Unique primary a big draw

Jackson seeks recanvass in 81st District state house race

By Keith Taylor
Citizen Publisher

Primary 2020

The turnout for the primary election was on target as Madison County Clerk Kenny Barger predicted and at least one race was decided by less than 200 votes.

In the 81st District State House race, Democrat Mike Eaves held off Martina Jackson 3,012-3,183. Jackson plans to ask for a recanvass of the final tally.

"At this point and time, my campaign is working on a request to recanvass," Jackson said in a Facebook post. "The margin is just too close."

If the vote count stands, Eaves, a lawyer and political newcomer, will take on Republican incumbent Deanna Frazier in the November election.

In addition Josh Bray upset incumbent Travis Brenda in the 71st District House race for the Republican nomination. Brenda carried Madison County 1,101-849, but Bray's solid showing in Garrard and Rockcastle County paved the way to victory, Bray carried Garrard County by 25 votes and held a 257-vote margin in Rockcastle County.

"I am humbled and honored by the support we have received from Republicans in Garrard, Rockcastle, and

15 file for city council

By Keith Taylor
Citizen Publisher

All eight incumbents have filed to run for re-election in this fall's Berea City Council race.

Steve Caudill, Jim Davis, Emily LaDouceur, Jerry Little, John Payne, Ronnie Terrill, Cora Jane Wilson and David Rowlette will be the council returnees on the November ballot.

The crowded field also will include Teresa Scenters, Katie Startzman, Vincent O. Gwin, Kyle Shelton, Shane Barton, Donald Scalf and Amy Asher.

The city council race in non-partisan and Caudill was the top vote-getter in the 2018 general election with 3,312 votes, followed by Wilson with 2,988.

Of the seven candidates seeking a spot on the council for the next two years, Gwin is the lone returnee from the previous race. He received 1,058 votes in 2018.

Student-athletes at Berea and Madison Southern are ...

Back on their feet

Berea football player Ethan Newton has his temperature taken by coach Tony DeGregorio prior to joining team workouts last month. At right, Madison Southern's Samantha Cornelison runs sprint drills during a S.O.A.R. workout recently.

After three months of eerie silence, the sounds of athletes working out was once again heard at Madison Southern and Berea Community.

This comes on the heels of the Kentucky High School Athletic Associations ruling to allow schools to begin the workout process on a limited basis starting June 15.

Madison Southern coaches came up with a joint venture called Safe, Organized, Accountable, and Respectful – S.O.A.R. – Camp.

According to Athletic Director Jay Simmons, groups of athletes participating in fall sports were able to work out in small groups of 10 during four 90-minute blocks spread out throughout the day on Monday, Tuesday and Thursday.

Reopening provides a boost for Pinnacles

By Louisa Summers
Special to The Citizen

Part I of III: Economic impact

Editor's note: This is the first of a three-part series on the Pinnacles at Indian Fort.

Last weekend was an optimal time for people to escape the tensions of being in a global pandemic and enjoy the views of the Pinnacle trails at Indian Fort in Berea, Kentucky.

The Berea Trail Town Research Team greeted visitors and locals, while maintaining social distancing. The research team features Dr. Louisa Summers, professor in the department of Health and Human Performance at Berea College and Skyllar Gayhart, a junior biology major at Berea College.

As they greet tourists and locals, Summers and Gayhart encouraged hikers to take their survey via QR code as part of their annual data collection for the Pinnacles. Eighty-seven trail users hiked this past weekend and reported on their trail experience. One hiker described their Pinnacle experience as the "perfect length for hiking that provides great elevation change for cardio workouts, with beautiful view and rock formations."

Last year the Pinnacles had approximately 69,000 users, and 79 percent were visitors from outside the city limits. The economic impact

PARTICIPATE IN BEREA'S FUTURE AT THE UPCOMING PUBLIC WORKSHOP

The City of Berea invites you to attend a Public Workshop for the Berea Comprehensive Plan Update.

Berea, KY — The City of Berea is in the process of updating their Comprehensive Plan, which is required every five years by KRS 100. The Comprehensive plan was initially adopted in 2015 and the City hired Taylor Siefker Williams Design Group and Bell Engineering in March 2020 to update the plan.

The purpose of a comprehensive plan is to serve as a guide or roadmap for city staff, city officials and community groups when making decisions about future growth and development. The comprehensive plan covers topics such as land use, transportation, community facilities & utilities, housing, economic development, and environment. The comprehensive plan update will adjust plan elements such as the vision statement, goals, and objectives to better align with today's demographic trends, population projections, community preferences and priorities.

An online survey was released in late March to gather initial input for the comprehensive plan update during the statewide Healthy at Home mandate. The survey can be found on the City of Berea website and Facebook page.

For further public input, there are two planned events that citizens are encouraged to attend. The first will be an online PowerPoint presentation and Q&A session via Facebook Live. The meeting will be held on Monday, July 13th, 2020 from 6:00-7:00 pm and can be accessed at @bereakygov or https://www.facebook.com/bereakygov/. Citizens can comment on Facebook during the meeting or send comments via email to codescomments@bereaky.gov.

An in-person public workshop will be held on July 15th from 6:00 - 8:00 pm at the Russel Acton Folk Center (212 W Jefferson Street). To minimize large crowds and adhere to social distancing measures, the workshop will be an open house format where anyone can stop by to learn more and share their input during the allotted timeframe.

It is important that we hear from as many people as possible during this process to ensure the comprehensive plan aligns with the values and desires of our community. We encourage everyone – citizens, business owners, college students, and property owners - to attend this meeting or participate in the online survey.

At the conclusion of the public workshop the comprehensive plan will be updated and provided to staff, officials and the public for additional comment and adoption.

If you would like more information about the Berea Comprehensive Plan Update, please contact Amanda Haney via email at ahaney@bereaky.gov or by phone at 859.986.8528.

Never use the refrigerator as a restroom

Roger Alford

A pastor was talking with a 90-year-old member of his church about things eternal.

"How is your relationship with the Lord," the pastor asked.

"Oh, we're on great terms," the old fellow said. "He couldn't be any better to me. Why, he has even fixed it so that when I get up in the middle of the night to use the bathroom, all I have to do is open the door and, poof, the light comes on. When I'm done, poof, the light goes back off."

"Wow," the pastor said, "that's incredible."

Later in the day, the pastor called the old fellow's daughter and said, "I'm in awe of your father's relationship with God. He told me how when he gets up at night to use the bathroom, poof, the light comes on, and when he's done, poof, the light goes off."

"Oh, no," the daughter exclaimed. "He's using it in the refrigerator again."

The older I get, the more I appreciate "old people" humor. Let's face it, all of us of the AARP generation do things, quite unintentionally, that can make young people laugh. But, the Bible clearly lets us know that we are a people of purpose, that it is our jobs to let the younger generation know of God's great power.

"When I am old and greyheaded, O God, forsake me not until I have shewed thy strength to this generation and thy power to everyone who is to come." (Psalm 71:17).

By the time a person reaches 90, he or she has seen so many incredible things that could only be wrought by God himself. They're seen the world through the eyes of a child, marveling at simple things, like a colorful butterfly floating on a breeze or lightning bugs that flicker in the darkness even though they have no obvious power source. They have known the love of a spouse and of children. They have felt their hearts turn to mush when they held their first grandchild in their arms. They have felt the comforting arms of God wrapped around them when they've had to say goodbye to the ones they love. And, through it all, they have felt the mighty presence of the Lord right there with them.

So, yes, senior citizens can tell you lots about the goodness of the Lord. They have decades of wisdom stored away and they're ready to share it with the younger folks around them. All anyone has to do is to ask.

If once in a while, we make you laugh by what seems to you like odd behavior, well, we're fine with that. After all, the Bible tells us "a merry heart doeth good, like a medicine."

But one word of warning: When we come to visit, you may want to put a lock on the refrigerator at night.

Fourth of July history

Few summertime holidays elicit as much excitement as the Fourth of July, also known as Independence Day in the United States. Each year, family, friends and revelers anticipate the arrival of the holiday so they can host barbecues, enjoy the sun, listen to their favorite summertime tunes, and commemorate the freedoms afforded by the monumental events that led to the holiday's establishment.

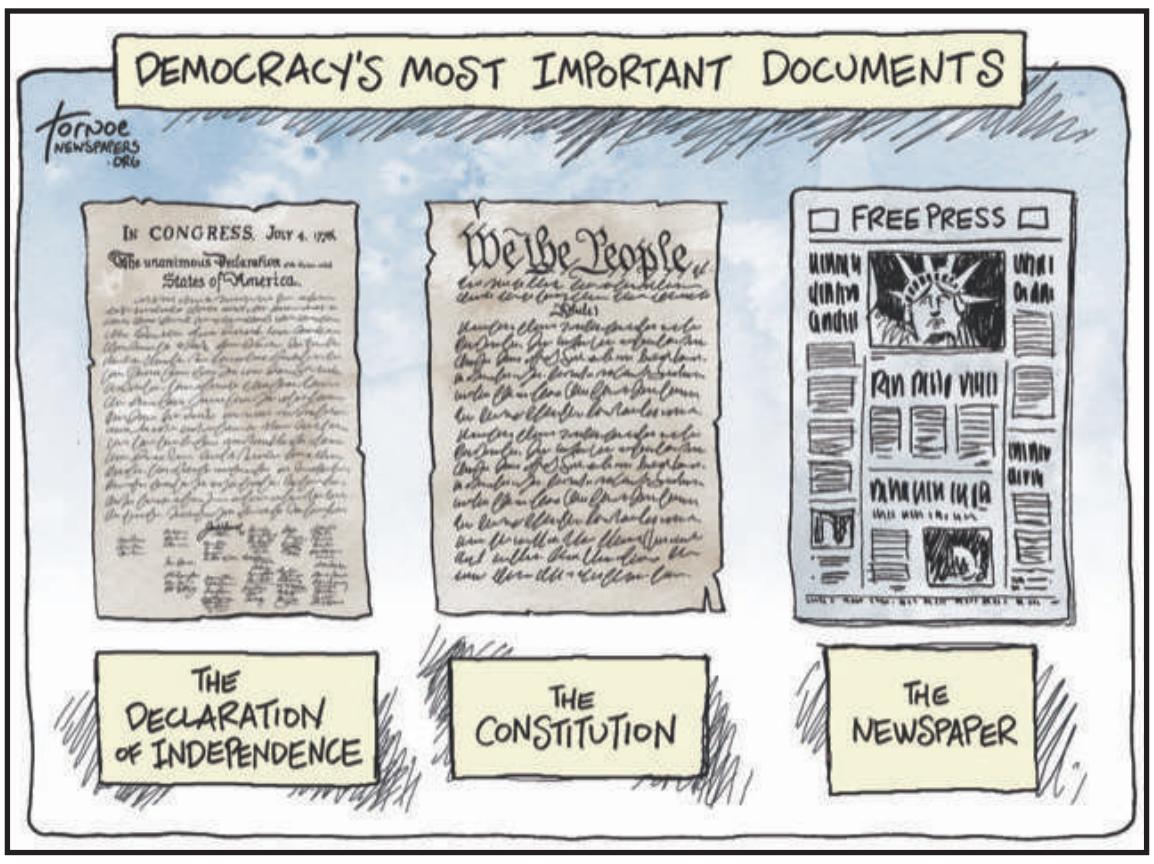
Independence Day became a federal holiday in 1941, but July 4th has stood as the birth of American independence for much longer. July 4th marks a pivotal moment in the American Revolution. According to PBS, the colonies were forced to pay taxes to England's King George III despite having no representation in the British Parliament. "Taxation without representation" became a battle cry and was one of several grievances colonists had with Great Britain.

Conflict between the colonies had been going on for at least a year before the colonies convened a Continental Congress in Philadelphia in June of 1776, says Military.com. On July 2, 1776, the Continental Congress voted in favor of independence from England. Two days later, on July 4, 1776, delegates from the 13 colonies adopted the Declaration of Independence.

The Declaration of Independence is an historic document drafted by Thomas Jefferson. Jefferson was considered the strongest and most eloquent writer of the declaration writing committee charged with putting the colonies' sentiments into words. Richard Henry Lee of Virginia was one of the first people to present a resolution for American independence, and his commentary was the impetus for the formal Declaration of Independence. A total of 86 changes were made to Jefferson's original draft until the final version was adopted. The signing of the document helped to solidify independence, and eventually lead to the formation of the United States of America.

A total of 56 delegates signed the document. Although John Hancock's signature is the largest, it did not hold more weight than the other signatures. Rather, rumor has it, Hancock signed it so large so that the "fat, old King could read it without his spectacles." However, the National Archives says it was also customary that, since Hancock was the president of the Continental Congress, he be the first person to sign the document centered below the text.

The Pennsylvania Evening Post was the first newspaper to print the Declaration of Independence on July 6, 1776. The first public readings of the Declaration were held in Philadelphia's Independence Square on July 8, 1776.



Historic Primary a success

Taylor's Thoughts
Keith Taylor

The ongoing COVID-19 pandemic has changed the way we live and not all of it has been for the worse.

Last week, voters in Berea and Madison County headed to the polls to cast votes in the delayed May primary. Those voters — 6 percent of them — were greeted with a different form of voting.

Instead of precincts, the three voting locations — Silver Creek Elementary School, Boonesborough Elementary School and Clark Moores Middle School — were set up polling precinct style. Voters simply showed the clerk a form of identification and they were given a paper ballot based on their party affiliation and fill them out in a makeshift booth.

Technology, mainly the use of iPads, has made it easier for voters when it comes to the polling-style approach. Maybe 20 or 30 years ago, polling voting would not have been a viable option for voters, especially during a pandemic.

Madison County Clerk Kenny Barger has been a long-time proponent of poll-style voting and he's been ahead of the curve when it comes to making things easier for voters in Berea and Madison County.

In addition to polling-style voting at the polls, voters were given the option to cast their votes through the mail by requesting a ballot online.

As did many voters in Richmond and Berea, I cast my ballot the absentee route and much like the polling precincts, it was an easy process.

In the past, Kentucky has had absentee voting available but voters had to present an excuse to obtain a ballot, such as age, illness, or being out of town on election day. That requirement was eased for this year's primary.

Normally, Barger and his office receive nearly 1,000 absentee ballots during a traditional election cycle, but this time, approximately 19,000 of them — give or take — were mailed or dropped off at the Madison County Courthouse.

Kentucky State Board of Elections Chairman Ben Chandler said the primary was a success.

"We are doing something that truly is historic, that's never been done before," he said. "Despite all the propaganda that's been put out there by certain campaigns and others, particularly national commentators who don't know what they're talking about, we are on track to have a tremendously successful and historic election, here in Kentucky."

Kentucky Secretary of State Michael Adams agreed with Chandler.

"I think the voters (were) a little relieved that (the) process (was) easy for them," he said last week.

Those votes were finalized this week and we survived another primary and now it's on the November General Election.

It remains to be seen what approach will be used this fall because of the coronavirus, but either way, voters will have no excuse not to vote.

of 45,000 of those visitors estimated spent an average of $13 per person while on their trail. The five-minute, 28-question survey asks demographic information, health and physical activity participation and wellness, as well as, tourist and economic impact questions. A surveyor highlighted that their experience was "peaceful and pretty" and described the Pinnacles as the "best hiking spot they've found within two hours from their residence."

The research Dr. Summers does is essential for the health and economic survival for Berea and has implications for other trail towns in Eastern Kentucky. As COVID-19 ravages through the nation and overwhelms the healthcare industry, outdoor recreation will be a part of a wave of comprehensive community health model for trail towns like Berea.

The Trail Town Committee research team will report their economic findings to the city council in late July.

Wellness has been an important area of life for many during the last three months. Of 114 surveyed, 20% stated that relaxation was the second most cited reason for going to the Pinnacles. The connection to the environment and the spiritual dimensions of wellness were satisfied by their trail use.

Madison Counties to serve as our next State Representative," Bray said in a Facebook post. "I look forward to providing a strong conservative voice in Frankfort for our district.

"Jana and I are grateful for everyone who has been so kind and supportive throughout this campaign. I look forward to representing all citizens of the 71st House District, whether you voted for me or not, and was thrilled to see so many of our citizens exercise their fundamental right to vote in this election.

Bray praised Brenda for his representation for the past two years.

"I want to thank Representative Brenda for his service in the General Assembly and wish him and his family nothing but the best," he said.

Incumbent Les Yates (R) lost to Ryan Dotson in the 73rd District House race and will take on Kenny Blair, who held off Rory Houlhan 1,842-1,633 to win the Democratic primary.

In the 6th Congressional U.S. House race, incumbent Andy Barr easily secured the Republican nomination and will square off against Democrat Josh Hicks this fall. Hicks easily defeated Daniel Kemph in the primary race.

Amy McGrath, who challenged Barr in the 6th Congressional U.S. House race two years ago, held off a challenge from Charles Booker in the Democratic primary and will take on Republican incumbent and Senate Majority Leader Mitch McConnell this fall.

With 99% of precincts reporting Tuesday, she had an 11,832-vote advantage over Booker.

"There is far too much at stake," McGrath said in a release. "The differences that separate Democrats are nothing compared to the chasm that exists between us and the politics and actions of Mitch McConnell. He's destroyed our institutions for far too long."

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:
Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

ATHLETES

"On the football field, we have three groups of 10 going, and we have three groups of 10 in the classroom as well during each session," Simmons said.

"On the football field, the athletes are working with the strength and conditioning coach on speed and agility drills."

During classroom work, athletes are required to wear masks, and are positioned a minimum of six feet apart, Simmons continued.

Before entering the facility, all athletes and coaches undergo a temperature check and screening questions.

"We're also giving them hand sanitizer, and before they leave the room, they'll sanitize their desks," Simmons explained.

A few miles away at Berea Community, according to Athletic Director Jerry Bingham, a similar scene is being played out.

Eight Berea Community teams have been OK'd to begin workouts, and will follow recommended social distancing rules, Bingham said.

"We're practicing in a group of 10 or fewer," he said.

"We're recording temperature checks, and all non-participants, including coaches, are required to wear masks."

There will be no sharing of water bottles, and the school is spreading out workout times to ensure enough time is allotted for proper cleaning and sanitizing.

Boys basketball coach Eric Swords said it is good to see players and coaches get to return to some normalcy.

"We are getting a lot accomplished as far as skill work," he said.

"Even with the guidelines in place, it has just been great to get in the gym and be around the players."

As of now, the workout sessions at both schools are limited in terms of contact, and Simmons said there are more pressing issues to tend to before figuring out when the contact phase will return.

"We haven't determined a date for high-contact," Simmons said. "That's a tough one to figure out, especially since we (as a school) haven't figured out the classroom setting or getting kids on a bus.

"I don't see (physical workouts) anytime soon. I would be surprised if we start doing any of that before the middle of July."

Battle called off

By Keith Taylor
Citizen Publisher

The annual Battle of Richmond reenactment scheduled for next month has been canceled.

Because of the ongoing COVID-19 pandemic, the Battle of Richmond Association opted against holding the yearly event, originally planned for Aug. 29-30. It marks the first time the battle has been canceled since the first event was held in 2002.

"This decision was not made on the spur of the moment," Battle of Richmond Association President David E. Jones said. "We have been monitoring the situation and how other battlefields have handled their events since the pandemic exploded earlier this year. We think it's best for al of our volunteers, reenactors and guests to cancel."

The two-day event draws more than 4,000 attendees every year, which features Major General Edmund Kirby Smith of the Confederate Army against Union leader William "Bull" Nelson. Next year's reenactment is set for Aug. 28-29 at the site, located on Battlefield Memorial Highway.

The Battle of Richmond was fought Aug. 29-30, 1862. More than 400 were killed and 1,000 were wounded in the two-day battle.

Blood drive

- A remembrance blood drive will be 11 a.m.-5 p.m. on Aug. 27 at the Madison County Public Library, Richmond branch. The drive is held in conjunction with the KY Blood Center.

Shortline Pike connector improves quality of life during pandemic

J.J. Kiboi
Special to The Citizen

Part II of III: Trail impact

The July Fourth weekend was not only a celebration for our country it was a celebration for the health of our residents of Berea.

The Berea Trail Town research team was on the Indian Fort Mountain trail during the holiday weekend collecting the annual health and physical activity information from the trails users.

One walker said, "I walked 5.2 miles today. I do it every day. If it wasn't for the trails I wouldn't be able to get my exercise in."

The first one-mile portion (Stevenson Trail) has increased its annual use from 7-748 users in 2017 to 17 to 911 annual uses in 2019.

Early research estimated the health impact of the trail on mortality. Over the last three years annual trail users consistently participated in an average of 59 minutes of exercise five days per week (Summers, Heggen, & Hackbert, 2019).

The amount of physical activity corresponds the prevention of 71 premature deaths per year (World Health Organization, Health Economic Impact Calculator, 2019).

This year with the pandemic, Ms. Skylar Gayhart's research is focusing on the impact of COVID-19 on monthly trail visits. Since April, the Stevenson trail, which is the first one-mile portion, has seen an increase of 82% from 2019. The stay at home order, has continued to increase trail uses with May seeing 6,150 uses, and June recording even more with 7345 total users.

The second mile Shortline Pike connector trail was completed in September 2018.

The importance of Shortline pike connection cannot be underestimated.

"I am more active. Better health for me and my spouse and children," one user said.

Increased cycling for all ages has been primary benefit of a longer multiuse path. Youth and young adults under the age of 18 have seen a 37% increase in cycling since 2018. Dr. Peter Hackbert's, professor at Berea College and the Entrepreunship for the Public Good students over four years have completed research with the cycling

In-person graduation ceremonies canceled

By Keith Taylor
Citizen Publisher

The COVID-19 pandemic hasn't subdued enough to convince Madison County Schools to have an in-person graduation ceremony that was planned on July 17-18 for its two high schools.

"Due to the current restrictions on gatherings in our state and based on recommendations from public health officials, Madison County Schools has made the difficult decision to cancel in-person graduation ceremonies," the district said in a Facebook post. "While we know this decision is very disappointing, we feel it is in the best interest of our community. We would like to convey how proud we are of each graduate in the Class of 2020. We wish them all the very best as they move on to their next chapter."

Madison Southern was tentatively scheduled to have a graduation ceremony on July 17, while Madison Central was to follow the next day on July 18.

Graduation ceremonies for both schools are traditionally held at Eastern Kentucky University's McBrayer Arena.

FIRST RESPONDERS REPORT

Berea Police Department

The number of traffic accidents in the City of Berea stayed steady for the month of June despite the continued increase in traffic in the wake of the COVID-19 lockdown.

The number of reported crimes, meanwhile, also remained relatively steady for the month, as a total of 18 crimes were reported in June. Two of the incidents were assaults, three larcenies, and one burglary, according to a report by the Berea Police Department.

Overall, there were 27 reported traffic accidents in Berea in June, compared to 28 in May. Chestnut Street had the most reported motor vehicle accidents for the second month in a row with four. Menelaus Road, Glades Road, Richmond Road, Prince Royal Drive and Big Hill Road were the sites of two reported accidents each, the report stated.

Vehicle accidents on Interstate 75 were down in June compared to May, which saw a total of seven vehicle accidents on I-75. In June, there were only a total of three accidents on the interstate; one on the southbound side, one on the northbound side, and one on the I-75 N. exit 77 off ramp.

Berea roads recording just one accident each in June included: White Station Road, Walnut Meadow Road, Mini Mall Drive, Ellipse Street, Main Street, Jill Drive, Brooklyn Street, Boone Street, and Ace Drive.

Berea Fire Department

The Berea Fire Department had a relatively busy June, answering 54 service calls, in addition to re-certifying all city employees in CPR and AED training.

The department responded to five fires, including three structure fires, seven motor vehicle accidents without injuries, seven downed power lines, one severe weather emergency and 13 rescue and emergency medical service calls.

PARTICIPATE IN BEREA'S FUTURE AT THE UPCOMING PUBLIC WORKSHOP

The City of Berea invites you to attend a Public Workshop for the Berea Comprehensive Plan Update.

Berea, KY — The City of Berea is in the process of updating their Comprehensive Plan, which is required every five years by KRS 100. The Comprehensive plan was initially adopted in 2015 and the City hired Taylor Siefker Williams Design Group and Bell Engineering in March 2020 to update the plan.

The purpose of a comprehensive plan is to serve as a guide or roadmap for city staff, city officials and community groups when making decisions about future growth and development. The comprehensive plan covers topics such as land use, transportation, community facilities & utilities, housing, economic development, and environment. The comprehensive plan update will adjust plan elements such as the vision statement, goals, and objectives to better align with today's demographic trends, population projections, community preferences and priorities.

An online survey was released in late March to gather initial input for the comprehensive plan update during the statewide Healthy at Home mandate. The survey can be found on the City of Berea website and Facebook page.

For further public input, there are two planned events that citizens are encouraged to attend. The first will be an online PowerPoint presentation and Q&A session via Facebook Live. The meeting will be held on Monday, July 13th, 2020 from 6:00-7:00 pm and can be accessed at @bereakygov or https://www.facebook.com/bereakygov/. Citizens can comment on Facebook during the meeting or send comments via email to codescomments@bereaky.gov.

An in-person public workshop will be held on July 15th from 6:00 - 8:00 pm at the Russel Acton Folk Center (212 W Jefferson Street). To minimize large crowds and adhere to social distancing measures, the workshop will be an open house format where anyone can stop by to learn more and share their input during the allotted timeframe.

It is important that we hear from as many people as possible during this process to ensure the comprehensive plan aligns with the values and desires of our community. We encourage everyone – citizens, business owners, college students, and property owners - to attend this meeting or participate in the online survey.

At the conclusion of the public workshop the comprehensive plan will be updated and provided to staff, officials and the public for additional comment and adoption.

If you would like more information about the Berea Comprehensive Plan Update, please contact Amanda Haney via email at ahaney@bereaky.gov or by phone at 859.986.8528.

In battle of wits, ventriloquist's doll no dummy

You may recall the old joke about the ventriloquist who was performing with his dummy on his lap. He was telling hillbilly jokes when Bubba jumped to his feet, one gallous of his old faded bibbed overalls unfastened and flapping.

"What gives you the right to stereotype hillbillies that way," he demanded. "What does the place I choose to live have to do with my worth as a human being?"

Flustered, the ventriloquist tried to stammer out an apology.

"You keep out of this," Bubba yelled. "I'm talking to that little jerk on your knee."

Roger Alford

For whatever reason, some people have always tended to look down on others because of where they live.

People from the central Appalachians or the Mississippi Delta region are too often painted in an unfavorable light. In New Testament days, that was true for people who lived in Samaria. So, I always loved the fact that Jesus often made the Samarians the heroes of the stories he'd tell.

The Jewish leaders were especially prejudiced against Samaritan.

They openly scorned them. So imagine their reaction when Jesus told the story of the Good Samaritan.

You remember, a traveler had been beaten and robbed and left in the road half dead.

A Jewish priest traveling that road walked right on past the injured man, offering no assistance whatsoever.

A Jewish worship leader who came along did the same thing. But then came a Samaritan who leapt into action when he saw the man lying there helpless. He tended to the man's injuries, then he took the man to an inn so that he could recover. (They didn't have hospitals at that time.) Remember, the attackers took all the man's clothing and any money that he would have had.

So the Samaritan paid for the man's room and board and medicines.

The Jewish religious leaders, who thought of themselves as holy and righteous, had to be offended by that story. Sometimes, it's when we're offended, that we learn to be better people.

The story Jesus told about the Good Samaritan came in response to a question from a lawyer who asked about God's command to love thy neighbor.

The Good Samaritan served as the perfect example of how we are to love our neighbors, by helping them when they have a need.

I think even Bubba, who argued with the ventriloquist's dummy, could figure that one out.

Adams: Voter registration saw rebound last month

Secretary of State Michael G. Adams announced that Kentucky began to see a rebound in voter registration during the month of May, with the state's total number of registered voters increasing to 3,476,391 as of May 31. This number reflects an increase of 7,744, or 0.22% more registered voters than reported on April 30.

Democratic registrants continue to represent just more than 48 percent of the electorate with 1,677,777 registered voters.

Democratic registration increased by 140 since April 30, a 0.01 percent increase.

Republican registrants total 1,491,224, or almost 43 percent of voters, with an increase of 6,886 registered voters, a gain of 0.46 percent since April 30.

Almost 9 percent of voters are listed under other affiliations, which saw an increase of 718 registrants, or a 0.23 percent uptick.

Last resort: Stampede!

My favorite TV shows, growing up, were Westerns. Rawide was one of my favorites. The whole concept of cowboys facing such difficult challenges from dust and snow storms to cattle thieves and outlaws to drive a herd of cattle across the vast plains to market for a payoff at the end… was remarkable to me.

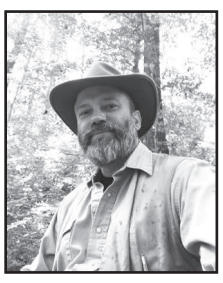
These guys were tough, determined, and followed a creed of conduct that required them to put the welfare of their fellow cowhands and the cattle above their own. It inspired me.

Rawhide, like many TV shows of the Western genre, can seem repetitive and even boring to some people. If you walk into a room and one of the old black and white Westerns is on, it may seem like the same thing in every episode.

Scenes will likely depict (with barely any talking) cowboys herding cattle, shooting it out, or sitting around a campfire. At the end, you might see one riding off alone into the sunset. Sometimes, there's a love interest. Always, there is a villain.

The villain might be an outlaw gang, a cattle baron and his paid shooters, railroad tycoons and their private army, or crooked politicians.

The cowboys on Rawhide were a tough bunch. They usually prevailed against the bad guys without too much of a problem. They'd out-fist-fight out-shoot, out-ride, and out-smart them all. Outright fighting didn't seem nearly as bad as the dirty tricks some villains would try. I remember the first time I watched one where the good guys were ambushed.



Clint Patterson

"That's not fair!" I thought…horrified that bad guys would do such an unfair thing. Well, then I realized, they are bad guys. If they'd steal cattle, shoot someone to do it, and so on ... why would they concern themselves with being fair?

The worst scenario for the bad guys to try, when nothing else worked, was a stampede.

I remember the first time I watched a Western where this was done. I couldn't believe someone could be so "low down" as to stampede a herd of big, rampaging, dangerously scared and fast-moving cattle uncontrollably right into a town full of people to provide cover for themselves to gain the upper hand.

Trampling down the towns people … men, women and children … destroying buildings and wagons, spooking horses to run off and so on … the sheer magnitude of setting willingly setting off such an indiscriminately damaging thing as a stamped seemed just too bad for even a bad guy to do.

The old Western tv shows, to me, weren't boring or repetitive … they were educational.

The writers of the old black and white movies were adept at depicting scenarios which featured how the "bad guys" operate and thus how the "good guys" can beat them.

The good guys in the Rawhide series made an honest living herding cattle for market.

The bad guys made a crooked living off other people. It didn't take long for me to see connections to what was on the news. Not much has changed. The words of the Rawhide theme song could be sung by the either the good guys or the bad guys: just depends on who the doggies are. When the get to stampeding them, that's when all hell breaks loose.

"Keep movin', movin', movin'; Though they're disapprovin'; Keep them doggies movin', rawhide; Don't try to understand 'em; Just rope 'em, throw, and brand 'em; Soon we'll be livin' high and wide.."

Word on the Streets

"Where is your favorite place to fish?

Justin Johnson

"I love to fish in Paint Lick Creek, in the upper part. Bass and bluegill are my targets when I get a chance to go."

John Cole

"I like to fish in Lake Cumberland. It's so wide open. I'm looking for whatever is biting."

Steve Anderson

"I enjoy fishing for bluegill in my Dad's pond."

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:
Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

• An open house and ribbon cutting was held for Davis and Powell funeral home. Mayor Steve Connelly and the Berea Chamber of Commerce joined the new owners James Davis and Greg Powell to celebrate. Davis and Powell freshly renovated the funeral home located on Chestnut St.

• The eighth annual Auxiliary Benefit 5K Run/1 mile Fun Walk was held on Saturday, Aug. 2 at 8:30a.m. at the Berea College Cross Country Course. The event was held to raise money for a Radiographic Multi-Viewer to benefit the Berea Hospital's radiology patients.

Tim Wolfe won the July 4 Pie Eating Contest held at Duerson Stadium in 2003. The contest consisted of four men; the other participants were Leo Hendren, Lonnie Lewis and John Mondine.

Berea College drops standardized test score requirement

Berea College will now allow its prospective students to apply for admission without requiring standardized test scores.

Berea College joins more than 1,000 elite institutions like Harvard, Princeton, Stanford, and Notre Dame who are offering test score optional admissions to their fall 2021 class. The COVID-19 pandemic has created insurmountable barriers for standardized testing for students across the country, and especially for the students and families that Berea College serves.

By offering its scholars a choice between submitting or not submitting their test scores, Berea also more closely aligns its admissions policies with the College's mission to serve low-income, high-achieving students from the Appalachian region. Berea College's Office of Admissions has always been committed to a holistic assessment of each student's potential, but will now rely more heavily on modern and data-backed indicators of college readiness like GPA, rigor of coursework, writing ability, extra-curricular and service involvement, and teacher or counselor recommendations. In doing so, the College hopes to enroll an even more competitive and deserving incoming class.

In addition to offering test score optional admissions, Berea will maintain its centuries-old commitment to providing an affordable, high-quality education to an accomplished group of students. All of the College's accepted students will still receive the No-Tuition Promise, which guarantees no student ever pays tuition.

The application for admission opened on Wednesday. Apply for free at www.berea.edu.

Daugherty named trustee

William S. (Bill) Daugherty was elected in April to serve on the Berea College Board of Trustees for a term beginning July 1.

A 1976 Berea College alumnus and recipient of Berea's 2017 Distinguished Alumnus Award, Daugherty is a co-founder and serves as a Managing Partner of BlackRidge Resource Partners LLC, an independent exploration and production company with oil and gas production in Kentucky, Illinois, Texas, Oklahoma and Wyoming.

"As an alumnus, I have always been grateful for the opportunities Berea College afforded me and the solid foundation I received for my future," said Daugherty. "I look forward to giving back by serving as a contributing member of the Board of Trustees."

Before co-founding BlackRidge, Daugherty was President and CEO of NGAS Resources, Inc, a NASDAQ-listed company focused on oil and natural gas in the Appalachian Basin. In 1984, Daugherty founded Daugherty Petroleum, Inc.—the predecessor company to NGAS—and served as its President and CEO from then through 2005 and as Chairman of the Board until April 2011.

Throughout his career, Daugherty has actively served as a volunteer and appointee to a number of state and national organizations. He was president of two Kentucky oil and gas trade organizations and a member of the Board of Directors of the Independent Petroleum Association of America.

Barnhart seeks special Game Day experience

LEXINGTON (KT) — Mitch Barnhart is confident the Game Day experience will be"very, very special" when sports return to campus in the future.

"We look forward to the day that we get our fans back in our venues" Barnhart said. "With that comes our cheerleading program and having an opportunity to engage with our crowd, create enthusiasm, and do those things that are most important."

Once play resumes, the Kentucky cheerleading program will be under the watchful eye of newly hired coach Ryan O'Connor, who brings a track record of integrity to the program. O'Connor cheered for one season at Kentucky before wrapping up her career at Alabama. She has served as cheerleading coach at UAB, Ole Miss and most recently Western Kentucky.

Barnhart said the program received a lot of interest nationally during a search conducted by Executive Associate Athletics Director Sandy Bell, who settled on O'Connor. Barnhart said O'Connor "stood out among all" of the other candidates.

"(She is) someone I felt like we needed to have and bring some energy to our program that understood our values and understood our traditions at Kentucky and had an understanding of cheerleading," Barnhart said. " … what it meant competitively, how you train, how you get ready, how you put a team together, and then how you represent a university like the University of Kentucky and Big Blue Nation. That was really important to me … we wanted to make sure we worked our way through that."

Bell added that finding the right fit was a "huge priority for us over the past few weeks" and said O'Connor's experience at the Division I level and in the Southeastern Conference was "really, really important to us."

O'Connor said she has the same core values as Barnhart and the rest of the program. She added, "we can't treat one more important than the other" and stressed consistency on and off the floor.

"I asked them to respect themselves and to treat themselves as student-athletes," she said. "I think it's a perfect fit that we are a part of athletics. My core values as a coach really align with what Mitch was talking about. … We always talk about integrity and that's a big word we talk about at the beginning of the year when we're in our summer practices. For me, integrity just means, having the same intensity for every area of your life. You need to be the same person you are at practices as you are in the games, as you are in the classroom, and as you are (during) competition."

Return update

Barnhart said approximately 100 to 120 student-athletes have made their way back to campus and the school has focused on a return to activity during the past few weeks.

"We continue to adjust our protocol as we watch the situations," Barnhart said. "It's pretty fluid."

Barnhart was glad to hear Gov. Andy Beshear give the approval for fans in the stands for the Kentucky Derby and said that's a positive sign for college and other athletic programs in the state.

"That's encouraging to me that we will have opportunities to bring our people back together," he said. "But that's one component in one piece of return to play and I said it publicly before there's a difference between returned activity and return to play. We're working our way through all those details.

"I think that that there's going to be clearly conversations as it relates to activities in our state. There's clearly conversations that will take place as it relates to activities in our league and so You know, we've got to combine all these pieces of information and pull them together in a spot where it's best for the University of Kentucky and our fan base and we're not there yet."

Welcome back! Open to the public area now open

Shelf Notes

Ruthie Maslin, Madison Co. Library

As June draws to a close and wraps up our first month of being open to the public on a limited basis post-COVID 19 shutdown, I can say two things with certainty.

First is that we here at the Madison County Public Library love our customers and community, and we sure did miss you all!

Second, so far, 2020 is shaping up to be the strangest year of my life.

Everything else still has a big question mark on it. I know you must be feeling this, too. At times, the uncertainty of it all almost makes me gag. So I will share one thing that helps me get through the day-to-day unsettledness – staying focused on the basics.

I don't know what's going to happen with the library, or the community, or the country, or the world over the next six months, but what I do know and can control at least to some extent is what the Madison County Public Library will do today and even next week for our loyal customers. And that is simple. We will be here, and we will provide you with books, DVDs, internet access, programs, and information to the best of our ability.

For example, on Monday, we expanded the "open to the public" area of our libraries. The main part of the libraries in both Richmond and Berea will be open, with access to the "stacks" (bookshelves) and computers. You will note some changes – furniture has been removed and rearranged to enforce social distancing, and meeting room access remains limited (although we will continue expanding that).

We still need to follow the state guidelines with regard to limiting the number of people in the buildings at any one time, so our security will continue to be stationed at the door (and in Richmond, only the parking lot entrance will be used). And our staff will continue wearing masks and face shields in some cases.

And on-site programming won't resume till later this year. But slowly, we are beginning to feel more and more like our old library selves.

That's not to say things were totally shut down during The Shutdown. For example, our customers checked out 7,044 digital titles in May just from Overdrive/Libby (aka KY Libraries Unbound). You may have read the two most popular titles – Where the Crawdads Sing, by Delia Owens, was the most checked out title, with Everything I Never Told You, by Celeste Ng, a close second.

The top titles for the month also give a glimpse of what's on people's minds these days -- Goodbye Things: The New Japanese Minimalism, by Fumio Sasaki, The Life-Changing Magic of Tidying up: The Japanese Art of Decluttering and Organizing, by Marie Kondo, and House Beautiful magazine all had high checkout numbers.

And that is just one of our available digital options. Hoopla gives you access to films, TV shows, and music, in addition to eBooks, and RB Digital also offers Acorn TV and Great Courses in addition to eBooks. All in all, during the 2 ½ months we were closed to onsite public use, our customers checked out 19,996 digital titles.

But just because we were closed to the public didn't mean we stopped providing library services. In fact, considering the circumstances, our usage was not too shabby. Library staff quickly adjusted programming to a digital format, offering book clubs, story and music times, STEM activities, and even fitness classes through Facebook Live, YouTube, and Zoom. In April and May, we recorded 22,123 "attendances" of those online programs.

Our customers visited our website – www.madisonlibrary.org – 17,467 times while we were closed, and in that same time, used our WiFi (which extends outside the buildings and in Berea, down Chestnut to the park) 8,164 times.

Even our old standby usage stats were respectable. During the shutdown, we had 17,450 checkouts of physical books and materials and issued 156 library cards – all through contactless delivery!

Many things started during the time of COVID will continue. Our curbside deliveries and electronic locker service will keep going, as will our online programming with the "take and make" component – we'll be adding more adult programs throughout the summer as well. Our cleaning protocols and quarantining of returned items for 72 hours will continue. And we will keep up our "Healthy at Work" protocols (staff wearing masks, having daily temperature and health checks, social distancing, and, of course, frequent hand washing).

And something cool, fun, and new – The Friends of the Madison County Public Library will host their first-ever drive-through bag book sale on Saturday. In Berea, the sale will take place 9 a.m.--noon in the parking lot of Berea Baptist Church (across Chestnut from the library). And in Richmond, the sale will run 2-5 p.m. in the parking lot of the Richmond library location.

The plan is simple. For $5, you can get one of the new Friends cloth bags filled with a genre of books. What's in each genre bag is different and a surprise. So you could buy a bag of mysteries and a bag of romance, for example. It's a fun, easy way to support the work of the Friends of the Library!

ANGEL NAMED DIRECTOR OF BUSINESS, TOURISM

By Andy McDonald
For The Citizen

Mayor Bruce Fraley announced that current Business Development Director Donna Angel has been appointed to head a newly formed department that will combine business development and tourism.

The announcement was made Tuesday evening after the Berea City Council retired to executive session at the end of their regular business meeting. When the council meeting resumed, Mayor Fraley made the following statement:

"I am very pleased to announce that I am selecting Donna Angel, the current economic development director, to be the new director of Business Development and Tourism for the City of Berea. Congratulations to Donna and I encourage all of our elected officials, city staff and citizens to support Donna and to congratulate her in her new role," Fraley said.

The move to integrate business development and tourism functions comes in the wake of other major moves by the administration to revamp the city's overall economic development strategy. Last year, the city hired consultants from Fortune, LLC, to focus on industrial recruitment and retention, while the city has also undergone efforts to bolster small business assistance and recruitment through the city and the Kentucky Small Business Development Center in Berea.

In other developments, Fraley announced that the city had secured a $100,000 grant from the USDA Rural Development division for the construction of a multi-use pavilion on Chestnut Street in the parking lot adjacent to the former Tolle building. Fraley added that is in addition to the $250,000 secured for the project by the city from the Governor's Office of Agricultural Policy. The city is currently working with the Kentucky Transportation Cabinet to redo the entrance off Chestnut for the multi-use pavilion, which will also serve as a home to the Berea Farmer's Market. Officials say completion of the pavilion could happen as early as 2021.

In other news, Berea City Councilmember Emily LaDouceur made an emotional appeal to fellow officials to support Black Lives Matter Berea activities and to participate in a community dialogue about race. LaDouceur specifically asked the council to vote in favor of a Juneteenth resolution commemorating the end of slavery in America. She also asked council members to participate in a demonstration in Berea slated for this Saturday.

"When I say black lives matter, I am asking you to acknowledge that there are people who experience this world differently than you for no other reason than the fact that they have a different color of skin," LaDouceur said.

In response, council members thanked LaDouceur for her remarks, though not all of them agreed with her. Councilmembers Cora Jane Wilson, John Payne, and Steve Caudill expressed appreciation for sharing her experiences. Ronnie Terrill responded that officials have an obligation to all of its citizens.

"We as council people have got to support everybody regardless of race or whatever," Terrill said. "And therefore, I think it's racist when you come out and say you only support one group. Black lives do matter, but all lives matter," Terrill said.

On the same subject, citizens Charlsa Hensley and Ethan Connelly submitted comments by email that were read by Berea City Administrator David Gregory, asking council members to consider issues of race and to seek the perspectives of people of color in people in Berea about the issue of racism.

On the issue of social media and the city, the council held a work session before Tuesday's regular meeting about how citizens can submit public comments while meetings continue to be teleconferenced. The council agreed comments submitted in advance by email could be read during the comments section of the meeting until regular in-person meetings are resumed.

That subject generated questions from officials on precisely when the council would be able to meet again in person. Gregory said that while the city is slowly reopening facilities, the administration is still following the governor's guidelines on when public meetings can be resumed. Gregory offered the option, however, that meetings could be held at the Russel Action Folk Center, with spaces created that would allow for social distancing.

Emily LaDouceur and Steve Caudill cautioned against resuming regular public meetings too soon as concerns about COVID-19 continue.

Curtis is ready to lead Lady Eagles

"My style has always been to play as fast as you can. You'll see us pressing, getting up and down the floor for easy layups and steals. If we don't have to run many plays, that is fine with me. I know when we play some of the higher-level teams, we'll have to be able to execute in the half-court, but I like to implement a faced-paced game."

For The Citizen

Josh Curtis' passion for basketball radiates from every fiber of his being. Since being named Madison Southern girls' basketball coach in early June, Curtis has hit the ground running.

"I had a chance to meet (the team) (June 17) on a Zoom meeting, and we've had four workouts, plus the S.O.A.R. workouts,' Curtis said. "I wanted them to know that I'm here, this is what we're doing, and I'm here for them 24/7. I'm here to serve them."

Curtis comes to Madison Southern from Montgomery County, where he served as an assistant coach for the Lady Indians for seven seasons and head coach at McNabb Middle School for four seasons. During his tenure as a middle school coach, McNabb compiled a 93-7 record, while winning two Bluegrass Conference tournament championships and three regular-season titles.

Madison Southern athletics director Jay Simmons said it was clear who the choice would be during the interview process.

"He came highly recommended from Montgomery County, and did a great job in his interview," Simmons said. "He had a great track record with his teams the past several years. We feel like he will lead our program to the next level."

Curtis takes over a team that finished 16-15 last season but returns a treasure trove of players from that team. The personnel returning should fit Curtis' style of play, the coach said.

"My style has always been to play as fast as you can," Curtis said. "You'll see us pressing, getting up and down the floor for easy layups and steals. If we don't have to run many plays, that is fine with me. I know when we play some of the higher-level teams, we'll have to be able to execute in the half-court, but I like to implement a faced-paced game."

The returning players plus system bodes well for a successful upcoming season, Curtis continued.

"The 44th District and 11th Region are very challenging," he said. "I'm a big believer in playing a difficult schedule because it prepares you for the end of the season. We have kids who are mentally tough and have been through the battles before, and it's going to help us in the long run."

During the interview process, Curtis pointed out Madison Southern's existing infrastructure as a gold mine for any coach.

"The facilities are top-notch, and the resources and talent are great," he said. "There's talent at the top with the senior class, but there is talent through middle school and below. The feeder system that has been developed here is special. There are so many positives."

As the summer continues, Curtis is working as much as he can with the players, while adding to his coaching staff, which will feature a familiar face in returning assistant Taylor Johnson.

"(Johnson) has a great relationship with the girls, and she's worked very hard just in the time that I've been with here," Curtis said. "I am looking to hire two or three more, but I am in no rush. I want to make sure we get the right people in place."

The first-year Lady Eagles' coach is looking forward to accomplishing a lot. Still, he acknowledges things are a bit unusual because of COVID-19 and the importance of keeping players and coaches safe.

"The biggest challenge has been the world we're living in right now, in terms of the restrictions and guidelines we have to follow," he said. "There is a lot we cannot do yet. We're in a practice setting where everyone has their own basketball, and they're at their own goal, so we're very limited in what we can do."

Curtis played high school basketball at Harrison County and earned a bachelor's degree in elementary education from the University of Kentucky in 2012. He received his master's degree in education and teacher leadership from the University of the Cumberlands in 2015.

communities.

The extensive research that includes interviewing Transamerica cyclists, local merchants, and studying the economic impact of other trails in Eastern Kentucky and Central Appalachia, concluded that the classic brand of Berea as Kentucky Arts and Crafts capital tourism was declining. Secondarily, that people who traveled to communities that blended adventure tourism (cycling/hiking) with arts/crafts and heritage tourism saw significant increases in tourism expenditures and tax revenues.

The residential and multi-county trails that distinguish Berea could have significant economic benefits for business retention and appreciation for the arts and crafts heritage and tax revenues that benefit municipal government. Dr. Hackbert states, "It is about time the city recognize and promote the trails as an asset to the quality of life and tourism destination in Berea". The analysis of the trail users per day and overnight expenditures are greater than expenditures for arts crafts leisure tourists.

As the pandemic numbers increase across the country, one way to stay healthy and happy at home is to visit 200 Harrison Court, park your car, and get out. Bike, run or walk out and back the 3.2 miles to the Pinnacles parking lot. Not only can one exercise, enjoy nature, but you can do it safely.

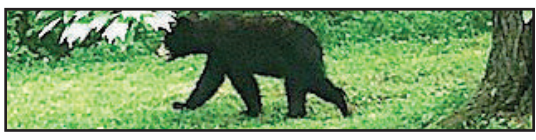
Beware! Bears on the move



In the past few weeks, there have been numerous bear sightings in the Berea area, mostly along Silver Creek and Brushy Fork Creek area and fortunately, most encounters have been uneventful with the bear running off scared at the sound of a barking dog or seeing people in the area.

In an email to faculty and staff on June 24, President Lyle Roelofs of Berea College confirmed a bear sighting near campus at Brushy Creek.

Dave and Therese Reilly, who live on Scaffold Cane Road, took a photograph of a black bear in their backyard in the early evening hours of June 28. When their son and grandson went out on the deck for a closer look, the bear ran off into the woods. It was the first time in 40 years that they have seen a bear on their property. Dave Reilly said they have seen paw prints in the mud near the creek, but not a live bear and the recent encounter was the first time.

Dennis Wright, vice president of the Berea Farmers Market, who lives near Mason Lake Road, had his new "free flow hive" torn apart by a bear one night right after the Fourth of July and his neighbor's old hive also was destroyed.

Since then he has seen a bear on twice in the morning hours.

Near the top of Big Hill, another beekeeper installed an electric fence around his hives to keep the bears away.

No one knows if it was the same bear or several bears that have been seen in the area.

Bears can have a 10- to 50 square-mile territory.. But, if you do see a bear, make loud noises and wave your arms, and back away slowly. Most will run away.

Whatever you do, don't feed it. Remember, social distancing also pertains to bears as well as people — even if the bears are wearing a mask.

Taylor: Masks still needed in COVID fight

By Andy McDonald/For The Citizen

The Madison County Fiscal Court approved a resolution Tuesday enabling the county government to apply for federal Coronavirus Aid Relief and Economic Security (CARES) Act Funds. The funds will enable the county to recover costs for expenditures related to the epidemic from March to June 30, 2020.

Serving seniors

Berea Senior Center Director Lisa Edwards, right, delivers a meal to Phyllis Jones, 93, last week outside her apartment. Meals are delivered to Berea residents over the age of 60 twice a week.

Senior center delivers meals to elderly

In the pre-COVID-19 world, the Berea Senior Center staff would deliver around 20 meals to homes of those 60 and older and serve another 20 inside the center, located off Jefferson Street.

Since the coronavirus hit Kentucky in March, the number of deliveries has shot up to 62 with another 11 takeout meals are handed out on the curb outside the senior center.

"We're serving everyone who needs a meal during COVID-19," Center Director Lisa Edwards said. "We don't have anyone on the waiting list."

Kentucky River Foothills Development Council operates the center, and it has been delivering meals twice a week to seniors for 27 years.

The eligibility requirements are minimal; a person has to be at least 60 or in need, while Edwards said that there are no income requirements.

"We go in and do assessments and determine the need," she said, adding that multiple facets come into play when determining need.

While the senior center has delivered and offered meals for nearly three decades, the coronavirus

Trail assets bring plenty of benefits

Berea Trail Town Committee

The Trail Town Committee completed its annual survey of trail users, at the Pinnacles and along the Indian Fort Trail from the municipal building to the Pinnacles. In addition, this year was the first year we surveyed trail users at Brushy Fork, the Artisan trail, and the City Park Trails, with 398 participants in July.

Pinnacles

For the fourth year in a row, 75 percent of the day hikers were from outside the city limits. In 2020, residents made up 25 percent of hikers, 49 percent were coming from within 50 miles (Richmond and Lexington zip codes). With over 200 Pinnacles specific surveys reported this year, 16 percent were from out of state, and 9 percent were in state residents.

What is surprising is the number of visitors coming in from out of town with the COVID 19 pandemic. This summer, the Berea Trail Town committee worked closely with the Business and Tourism director to find ways to appeal to hikers to revitalize businesses re-opening after the COVID 19 shutdown.

Cycling

The connection of the Shortline pike trail to Stevenson trail out to the Pinnacles has brought a different type of cyclist to the city of Berea. Madison County residents are cycling our newest trail. One-third of the cyclists are driving in from outside the city. With the newly approved US bike route 21 going north south, that follows the Daniel Boone Trace Trail, from Cumberland Gap to Fort Boonesborough extending to Maysville, this intercepts the east-west US bike route 76. Berea is one of the few small towns in the nation with intersecting US bike routes. One cyclist said now with the connection," I try to be healthier, I even quit smoking."

Puppies with open and closed eyes

A businessman was walking along one day when he noticed a little boy with a box full of squirming little puppies. A sign read: "ATHEIST PUPPIES FOR SALE. $10 EACH."

The next day, that businessman saw the same little boy back at the same place. This time the sign read: "CHRISTIAN PUPPIES FOR SALE. $10 EACH."

The businessman walked over and asked, "Aren't those the same puppies you were trying to sell yesterday."

"Yes, sir," the little boy said.

Roger Alford

"Well, yesterday, you called them atheist puppies, and today you're calling them Christian puppies. What changed?"

"Well, sir," the little boy said, "now they have their eyes open."

I can think of no better way to define a Christian than as someone who has opened his or her eyes to the truth of the Gospel. You may recall that Jesus once asked a very unusual question: How is it that you have eyes but yet you can't see?

Lots of people in the world seem to be blind to spiritual matters. They're unable to see that Jesus is our Redeemer.

The Bible tells us that people who have had their eyes open are the ones who should be leading others into the light of Christ. But often it's the ones who are blind to the Gospel who go about trying to lead others farther into darkness.

Perhaps you've noticed the very vocal atheists who do all in their power to convince others that Christianity is a farce. That's nothing new.

The Pharisees of the New Testament did everything within their power to discredit Jesus in their day, too. Jesus said, "Let them alone: They be blind leaders of the blind. And if the blind lead the blind, both shall fall into the ditch" (Matthew 15:14).

That's quite the word picture that Jesus painted. It's intended to wake us up to the importance of opening our spiritual eyes.

Anyone who has ever raised a litter of pups knows that they're born with their eyes closed and that they remain closed until they're about three weeks old. There comes a point in their lives when they open their eyes.

Our great hope for all nonbelievers is that there will come a point in their lives when they open their eyes spiritually.

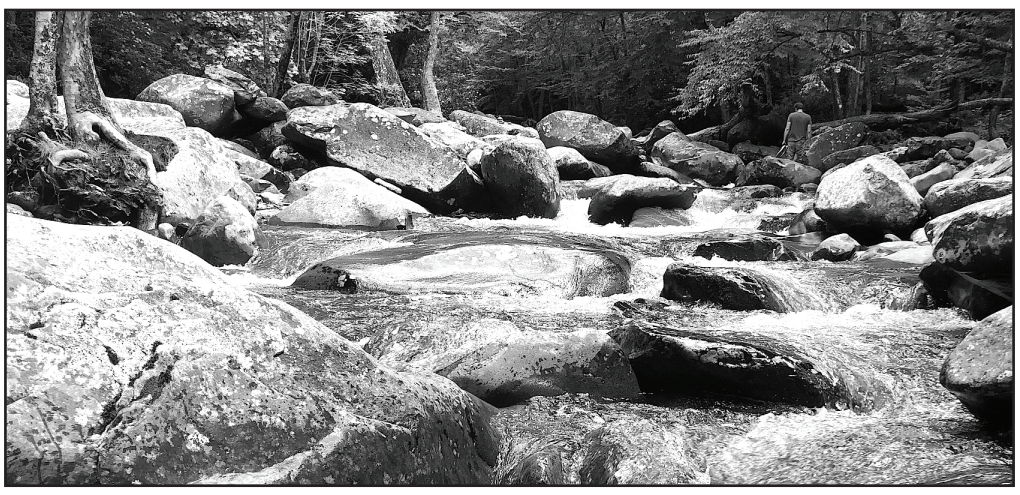
Mountains called, we answered



The mountains called and we answered.

Usually by this time of the year, I would have taken more road trips — both work-related and break-related — but because of the ongoing COVID-19 pandemic those trips have been far and few between.

Keith Taylor

This getaway was a four-night and five-day stay in Pigeon Forge, one of our favorite home away-from-home spots that we venture to several times per year.

Nothing has changed much since the last time we went to Tennessee, with the exception of precautions that are being taken as we fight this ongoing war with the coronavirus.

The Tanger Outlet was busy as usual and I stood in line at the Crocs Outlet so my niece Addisyn could get her a new pair of Crocs.

I teased her and told her I didn't see the big deal about those kind of shoes, but they are apparently "trending" as Addie Bug says, and she bought a pair of white Crocs.

When I was Addisyn's age, the big things trending were boom boxes, Michael Jackson and those portable radios with the headphones, otherwise known as a Walkman. I spent hours listening to mine, especially the Cincinnati Reds, the Grand Ole Opry, country, gospel, rock and bluegrass music.

Now back to our vacation.

For the most part, Tennesseans and vacationers were wearing their face masks, especially in large crowds and in restaurants. The mask order didn't go into affect until last Friday, but most had gotten used to wearing masks before it became an order issued by local authorities.

We didn't do any shows or entertainment with large gatherings this time mostly out of the abundance of caution, but Addisyn and I did the go-carts, bumper boats as Rhonda, mom and Kenneth provided fan support, Addisyn finally drove a go-cart by herself and got tangled up in a mishap, but it was a good learning experience, since she had been riding a double car for the past couple of years.

In between we grabbed a box of Kentucky Fried Chicken and did a picnic at the Chimneys picnic area, one of my favorite spots in the Smokies. Located approximately five miles from Gatlinburg, the stream from the mountains and the large rocks are an amazing sight and Rhonda and I always made it a point to stop there while in the vicinity of the Smokies. If you haven't made a stop, trust me, it's worth a stop.

The Old Mill was awesome as always and the restaurant had safety features, such as Plexiglas between tables in place as a precaution.

We also had dinner at Huck Finn's and Puckett's, which now has opened a location in Pigeon Forge. Puckett's is well-known in Nashville and the Pigeon Forge location is just as good.

We also grabbed some Krispy Kreme donuts and for the most part, relaxed in our condo.

Although this vacation was different for obvious reasons, we still made memories and got away from town for a few days and I'm already planning another visit in the fall.

Word on the Streets

"Do you agree or disagree with Gov. Beshear's executive order requiring Kentuckians to wear masks?

Jennifer Bryant

"No I don't, it should be each person's choice. Some people have a hard time physically wearing the mask."

Ben Collier

"Why now? The Number of new cases are going up because there are more tests being given. The death rate is down."

Barb Terrill

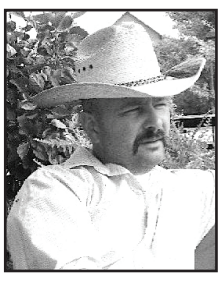
"I agree; I don't want Covid-19 nor do I want to give it to anyone. Just wear your masks. Show a simple kindness to others, let them know you care. This will not go on forever. Anyway, I have been able to quit wearing makeup and lipstick."

Compiled by Randy Coffey / The Citizen

You are your family's 'First Responder'

In case you didn't know already, today's headlines are making crystal clear the "To Protect and to Serve" (originally coined by the LAPD in the mid-1950s) motto stickered on nearly every police cruiser quarter panel in the United States is nothing more than a trite slogan.

Ask any man with more than five minutes in policing; and he will tell you his job is to show up post-fact, and begin the attempt to piece together who is the guilty party. Moving forward as fewer and fewer policemen will be willing to aggressively engage the rabble in our midst (as cops witness just how eagerly the weasel politicians appointed over them will sell them down the river); and even the most naive amongst us are beginning to realize what some of us have known all along: YOU are your family's "First Responder."



Shane Morris

While I was on active service overseas more than a decade ago, I was solicited to join a unit which was then just being formed (The Asymmetric Warfare Group). In reading the description of the new organization, I remember thinking to myself, "Somebody associated with this outfit has got his thinking cap on." Turns out that hat wearer was the group's leader, SGM Pat McNamara, US Army (Ret).

McNamara is a former longtime operator with the Army's 1st Special Forces Operational Detachment-Delta. Delta Force (aka, "The Unit") has over its history produced a number of authors and trainers who have made readily available (to those willing to search it out) hard learned lessons that can help you protect you and yours.

Easily available as an Amazon Kindle eBook (for the princely sum of $3) or $15 in paperback (I give them as graduation gifts); McNamara's The Sentinel guides the reader through protecting their "principals" (family members).

I can tell you for a gospel fact McNamara will take you behind the scenes concerning the key principles and skills used to provide your family the same type of protection enjoyed by our nation's politicians and their families (protections provided by your tax dollars).

TRAIL

of the trail systems, besides physical health JJ Kiboi, a student researcher in the Health and Human Performance department, found in his research that the emotional and social dimensions of health were also favorably impacted.

Participants ranked the areas of health that benefitted from their hike to the Pinnacles. Kiboi concluded during the pandemic, "Hikers had their emotional and social needs met while 90 percent reported that they always maintained social distancing." The good news from the Pinnacles is the win, win, win of our natural asset.

One conclusion is the city of Berea elected civic leaders, residents, and small business owners who are coming to recognize the trail assets contribution to tourism. The first asset is a historical and natural one, that needs no introduction. The Pinnacles at Indian Fort Mountain is the number one day hiking venue in the state of Kentucky (Outdoor magazine 2019) with over 45,000 out of city visitors per year. The second asset is the two US national bike routes (US 76 and US 21) that connect trail towns east (McKee, Beattyville, Hindman, and Elkhorn City) west, north, and south (London, Livingston) along a multi-day cycling route. These routes are promoted by the Adventure Cycling Association with no advertising cost to the city. The third asset is the town-gown commitment to an evidence-based trail and tourism research program. "We have the only accurate assessment of the number of trail users, estimates of users expenditures, and health impacts in the Appalachian region. These three assets are contributing to business retention and Berea Quality of Life." I want to thank everyone who participated in our annual research, "Dr. Louisa Summers, Professor at Berea College.

In the future, the next major initiative is to connect with the Trail Towns to advance accommodations, food and beverage establishments, arts and entertainment venues, and gasoline sales. Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:
Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Reflections

Berea Citizen archives, July 16, 1998

By Becky Brown
Citizen Writer

The 17th annual Berea Craft Festival was on July 10-12 at Indian Fort Theater. The event included more than 120 artisans and crafters from 20 states and two foreign countries. The festival drew an estimated crowd of 20,000 people.

• Damon Farmer, a Berea Native and Berea College graduate, was a guest on “The Crook and Chase Show.” Farmer demonstrated his craft by carving Lady Liberty and Uncle Sam in the likeness of Crook and Chase, the hosts of the show. The sand sculpture took 14 hours to carve, and required 10 tons of sand.

• The Madison County Board of Education passed an amendment to the board’s policy at its July 9 meeting, which banned backpacks or book bags. The amendment did give schools the choice to let their students carry clear or mesh backpacks. The amendment was made for safety reasons, the clear and mesh backpacks made it more difficult for students to hide contraband.

• Assistant Superintendent Glenn Marshall was chosen to succeed Shannon Johnson as superintendent of the Madison County School District. Marshall was the school system’s assistant superintendent since 1996, and was treasurer since 1993. Marshall served in the school system as an instructor and administrator for 29 years. Johnson served as the superintendent for 10 years, and retired on June 30, 1998.

• The Chamber of Commerce sponsored a one-day seminar titled Crafting Connections for Communities: A Look at Artisan-related Economic Development, set for July 24. The afternoon consisted of presentations from 10 experts, followed by a Q&A portion.

• The end of Rotary Year 1997-98 was celebrated on June 29, with a potluck, auction, and installation of new officers. Mitchell Tolle, a past Rotary Club president, installed the new officers and directors at the event.

The named officers and directors for that year were: Jack Hall, President; Stephen Hobbs, Co-Chaplin; Leonard Hays, Director; David Snively, Director; Charles King, Director; Manual Lakes, Director; Larry Harrison, Treasurer; Charles Mays, Sgt.-At-Arms; and Marvin Famer, Secretary.

George Curt Pigg was honored at the event by being made a “Paul Harris Fellow,” given in appreciation for devoted and unselfish “service above self” to club, community, and the world-wide pursuit of the service object of Rotary. Roger Carraway received his Past-President pin from Hall.

• The local Hillbilly Cruisers Club displayed about 200 vintage cars for spectators on July 12 at Brushy Fork Park, for the fourth year. The majority of the money from the event went to the DARE Program.

pandemic has presented unique challenges to both staff and clients.

Most notably was the suspension of programming at the center beginning on March 18.

Even though In-center services were stopped by COVID-19, Edwards, and employee Amanda Isaacs, along with a slew of volunteers can be found packing up meals for delivery and pick up nearly every day.

"These meals are a lifeline for seniors who are home-bound and unable to cook or obtain supplies to cook," Foothills Public Information Officer Karen Atkins said. "While the center remains closed for safety reasons, they are focused on meeting the needs of seniors who rely on meals from them. Since the day the senior center closed, Foothills has accommodated an unprecedented number of meal-sign ups. As of June 8, the center has delivered 9,625 meals. The program currently serves 73 seniors, up from 36 on March 13. The staff also conduct well-checks by phone and make sure clients have essential home necessities."

Edwards said the meals are prepared and delivered to the senior center during the week by Bateman Senior Meals out of Lexington. From there, staff and volunteers pack the meals and load them into vans.

Delivering meals is a staple service of the senior center, and Edwards said seeing the looks on the faces of those getting the meals is a great reward.

"We know all of them, and they know us," she said. "They're glad to see us, and we love seeing them," Edwards said.

With COVID-19, the staff makes sure to wear recommended, and required personal protective gear such as masks and gloves, and the drop-offs are not the same as in the pre-pandemic world.

"We're not allowed to go into the houses anymore, we're behind a mask, and we are wearing gloves," Edwards explained. "We knock on the door and hand them the meal and leave. In normal times, we can go in, visit with them for a minute, and go on. It is so different now. Some people we cannot see. They will set a table outside the door for us to place the meals on."

Madison County is eligible for up to $3 million of the $300 million allocated to the Commonwealth of Kentucky earlier this year. The funds are administered by the Kentucky Department of Local Government.

Madison County Judge/Executive Taylor expressed hope the community will continue to take precautions when it comes to the COVID-19 virus. The county is relaxing some restrictions, including opening parks and park restrooms, but citizens should continue to exercise caution when it comes to wearing masks, sanitizing their hands, and other measures, Taylor said.

"Right now is the time to see what health precautions are going to be in place for everyone's protection, so please see the various websites," Taylor said, referring to the websites of colleges and school districts. "Students are going to be coming in from all over the world to get their education. So we as a community just need to be aware and prepared for when that happens to make sure we are taking all the precautions we can to make sure we are staying healthy, and that we're complying with all the rules and regulations that are out there. Some people don't like to wear masks, but we need to do it. We need to be respectful of our fellow citizens," Taylor said.

In other business, the court adopted an ordinance allowing for commercial solar facilities to operate in designated county zones. The law applies to property owners seeking to build facilities that will collect, store or transmit solar energy for commercial sale.

Commercial solar power facilities are already allowed in industrial zones, but the new law would allow them to be built in other designated zones as a conditional use, subject to the approval of the Madison County Planning Commission. The law will not affect property owners who want to use solar power for their homes.

Judge Taylor said he liked the law because it provides for the broader use of solar energy while protecting local subdivisions. "It's a transparent process, but at the same time, it helps create clean energy," Taylor said.

In other business:

• The court unanimously approved a resolution entering into an agreement with Southern Health Partners Health Services. The contract includes a three percent increase, for an overall contract price of $395,762 for the year. Magistrates questioned why the price increased this year when the population of the jail has gone down. Madison County Jailer Steve Tussey said the service has been good, including retaining a new mental health nurse, but he acknowledged finding other qualified providers to bid on the business isn't easy. Magistrates asked Tussey to bid the project out the next time the contract comes up for renewal.

• The court approved a measure enabling the judge/executive to apply for a grant for the Agency for Substance Abuse Policy (ASAP) for $20,000. Funds would be used for educational materials and efforts to raise awareness of substance abuse, and are administered through the Kentucky Justice and Public Safety Cabinet.

• Taylor praised the efforts of the Madison County Fire Department and many surrounding firefighting agencies, including the City of Berea and volunteers from Berea Fire and Rescue, for their response to a massive mulch fire last weekend at the Madison County/Fayette County line. The blaze, which broke out on Sunday at the Allen Company, according to news reports, wasn't fully contained until Tuesday. Taylor said he was impressed by the response of surrounding agencies, including the City of Richmond, Blue Grass Army Depot, as well as departments from Waco, Kirksville, Union City, Redlick, Paint Lick, Cartersville, Garrard, Estill and several other departments in the region. Taylor also noted the overwhelming response by businesses and citizens who wanted to provide support for firefighters, who battled the blaze during high temperatures. Taylor praised Madison County Fire Chief Tim Gray, who managed to maintain coverage of the county despite the emergency. Magistrate Roger Barger expressed concern about neighboring residents who had to breathe the smoke from the aftermath of the fire. Magistrate John Tudor expressed hope the business owner would separate piles of mulch to prevent future disasters. Taylor said the county will work with the business to prevent future incidents.

• Madison County Sheriff Mike Coyle paid tribute to the late Deputy Michelle Anderson, who passed away on July 5. Coyle remembered the 10-year veteran of the MCSO as a compassionate and dedicated officer.

Pedestrian dies after being struck by vehicle

By Keith Taylor
Citizen Publisher

A pedestrian was struck by a vehicle Tuesday morning at Ky. 21 near Bratcher Lane and transported to University of Kentucky Chandler Medical Center in Lexington.

According to the Berea Police Department, no foul play is suspected and the driver of the vehicle was a motorist who "stayed to help sort it all out."

The victim, Andrew Flute, 22, later died from his injuries at UK Hospital.

In a report by the National Safety Council, 16 percent of all traffic deaths in 2017 were pedestrians. Injury Facts reported that, more than 16 percent of all traffic deaths were pedestrians in 2017. Every age group is vulnerable, though 10- to 14-year-olds and 50- to 69-year-olds have 20% or more pedestrian deaths as a percentage of all traffic fatalities.

The following are safety guidelines for pedestrians to follow:

• Whenever possible, walk on the sidewalk; if no

Council delays resolution

By Andy McDonald
For The Citizen

The Berea City Council voted to delay the vote on a Juneteenth resolution for the purpose of adding one phrase: All lives matter.

The resolution spurred a spirited discussion at Tuesday's teleconference meeting of the council.

Introduced last month by Berea City Council member Emily LaDouceur, the resolution commemorates the day the last African American slave was released from captivity, it recognizes the nationwide movement known as "Black Lives Matter," and it pledges the council will strive to create "pathways to freedom and justice" that make Berea a "safe place for families regardless of race."

During the public comments section, Berea residents voiced their support for the measure, asserting it will aid in starting a discussion about racism in the community.

Berea City Council member Ronnie Terrill proposed an amendment to the Juneteenth Resolution, however, stipulating the phrase "All lives matter," be including somewhere in the resolution.

When the vote was cast, Terrill, Cora Jane Wilson, Jerry Little, David Rowlette and Jim Davis voted in favor of tabling the item until the phrase could be added. Emily LaDouceur, John Payne and Steve Caudill voted against tabling the resolution.

After the vote, Ronnie Terrill said he thought

Mask mandate

Compliance at a 'good level'

By Keith Taylor

A recent surge in COVID-19 cases in the state resulted in Kentucky Governor Andy Beshear issuing a mandate that Kentuckians wear a mask in public businesses, including Berea and Madison County.

On Sunday, Kentucky recorded its highest number of coronavirus cases with 979. The number lowered to 674 on Tuesday. The Madison County Health Department recorded 20 new cases on Tuesday, bringing the total to 346 since the pandemic began in March. The state mortality rate stands at 3 percent.

Of the 346 cases reported in the county Tuesday, 168 have recovered, including 173 at home. Four are currently hospitalized for the virus and one death has been reported in the past six months.

Madison County Health Department spokesperson Kelley McBride said the unknowns of the virus have led officials to follow "science-based public health strategies" to combat "something unique and still not completely understood."

"There are no vaccines and no cure yet for COVID-19," she said. "We all have a part to play in the response and mitigation process of this pandemic. The Madison County Health Department encourages the residents of Madison County to have renewed diligence in taking actions that will reduce the spread of the virus and to have renewed patience with one another during these trying times."

McBride said those actions include "frequent

Mask covering recommendations

1 Who should not use cloth face coverings: children under age 2, or anyone who has trouble breathing, is unconscious, incapacitated or otherwise unable to remove the mask without assistance.

2 Cloth face coverings are not surgical masks or N95 respirators. Currently, surgical masks and N95 respirators are critical supplies that should be reserved for healthcare workers and other first responders.

3 Wash your hands before putting on your face covering

4 Put it over your nose and mouth and secure it under your chin

5 Try to fit it snugly against the sides of your face

6 Make sure you can breathe easily

Back the Blue march planned

Poll workers needed for Nov. election

FRANKFORT (KT) — Secretary of State Michael Adams has put out an urgent call for poll workers to serve during the November general election.

"Like most Kentuckians, I want things to get back to normal, and that includes our elections. I want more robust in-person voting options than we had in June, but that is only possible if Kentuckians step up and volunteer to be poll workers," Adams said.

Many counties only had one voting location open for in-person voting on primary election day, due to a shortage of those workers.

A typical Kentucky election entails approximately 3,700 voting locations and 15,000 poll workers. The primary reason June's primary offered so few voting locations is that so few Kentuckians volunteered to be poll workers. By law, each precinct voting location must have four poll workers, evenly split between registered Democrats and Republicans.

"Last year, before I was sworn in as Kentucky's chief elections official, I testified to the General Assembly that we have a poll worker crisis, and that was before COVID-19," he said. "We must find new poll workers, particularly younger people who are less at risk of harm from the coronavirus than the disproportionately elderly volunteers we usually have."

Is issuing the call, Adams invoked the fears of members of both political parties. "If you're a Republican who doesn't want a vote-by-mail election in November, you need to step up and be a poll worker. If you're a Democrat concerned about unintentional voter suppression caused by a paucity of voting locations, you need to step up and be a poll worker."

Adams encourages all Kentucky voters to contact their local Democratic or Republican committees, or their county clerk, to volunteer. In his bipartisan agreement with Governor Andy Beshear for the June primary, Independent voters were permitted to serve as poll workers, and Adams hopes to continue that in the fall, and permanently, with legislation next year.

Part of Adams' agreement with Beshear involved the sending of postcards to each registered voter in Kentucky, which included instructions on how to vote absentee. If the addressee did not live at that location anymore, the cards were returned, so the process could begin the process of cleaning up the list of voters, as required by a federal court order.

This month, each voter whose card was returned and is not confirmed as deceased will receive individualized correspondence from the Secretary of State that prompts such voter to confirm in writing whether the voter has moved out of Kentucky.

If so, the voter will be immediately removed from the voter rolls. By law, voters who have moved must consent to removal from the voter file and cannot otherwise be purged until two federal elections have passed after those voters have been identified and contacted, and have failed to respond, correct their voter information, or vote.

This way, Kentucky can proactively clean up its voter rolls in 2020, rather than waiting until after the 2022 elections.

"When it comes to legal compliance, there's a new sheriff in town. In order to make it easy to vote, we must persuade the public we are serious about making it hard to cheat," Adams said.

Masks provide an unselfish benefit

I don't like wearing a face mask. I hate them, especially in the blistering heat. That's my selfish and personal view. Now is not the time to be a selfish human being.

The ongoing fight against COVID-19 isn't about me. It's about all of us doing our part to prevent the spread of the coronavirus, which has made a resurgence over the past week in Kentucky. It's an invisible enemy and no matter how hard I wish it would just go away and never return, it's going continue to hang around — and spread — if we don't get it under control.

Like many of you, I have read true and false narratives concerning the coronavirus and what I do know is that the virus is real. It's very real and like many of you, I want the pandemic to be eliminated as soon as possible. Pretending it's not a real threat is like throwing your electric bill in the trash can and putting it out of mind and out of sight.

Trashing the electric bill doesn't mean it magically disappeared and not paying presents more consequences than just paying it, to begin with. Simply do the right thing and pay the bill.

Keith Taylor

I have chosen not to ignore the coronavirus, but I also have not let fear set in and control every decision that I make based on the coronavirus. Sometimes it just takes a proactive approach to the virus. Be on guard and at the same time enjoy life and what it has to offer.

We have been advised and under order from Governor Andy Beshear to wear face masks when we are in public and that's exactly what I have been doing. Sometimes I admit I have to go back to my vehicle to grab it because It's something I have to get used to doing. It's human nature and it takes time.

The generic face masks are perfectly fine, but I found a way to be creative with mine.

For any of you that know about me, I am a big fan of Ronald Reagan and George H.W. Bush. To me, there has been no finer President in my personal lifetime, than Ronald Wilson Reagan. He made an impact on my life because he was a great communicator and terrific President. You may agree or disagree and that's perfectly fine, but to me, Reagan was one of the best.

I had a Reagan-Bush '84 slogan made on my face mask. It was just my way of being creative with a mask I will wear for the next three weeks or so.

Although a mask isn't the most comfortable things you can add to your summer attire, making a short-term sacrifice will help make them a thing of the past in the future.

The sooner, the better.

Purse issues

A little boy came home from school visibly upset. His parents asked him what was wrong.

He said, "The kids at school were calling me sissy."

"Well, what did you do about it?" his parents asked.

"I hit them with my purse."

Roger Alford

In this part of the country, little boys carrying purses to school is far from normal. They may carry frogs, jackknives, lizards, and an occasional raccoon or opossum. But, you know, I don't recall ever seeing a little boy around here carrying a purse.

Actually, the Bible tells us about a fellow who carried a purse. His name was Judas Iscariot. You remember him as the man who betrayed Jesus, leading an angry mob to where he was praying in the Garden of Gethsemane. Judas sold out Jesus for 30 silver coins to put into that purse he carried around.

We first learn of Judas' purse in John 12. Jesus was being treated to a nice supper by his friends. During that get-together, a lady named Mary used a whole pound of very costly and sweet smelling perfume and anointed the feet of Jesus. The whole house was filled with the fragrance, and I imagine everyone was enjoying it but one person, Judas.

"Why," Judas asked, "was not this ointment sold and the money given to the poor?"

"This he said, not that he cared for the poor, but because he was a thief and had the bag and bare what was put therein" (John 12:6).

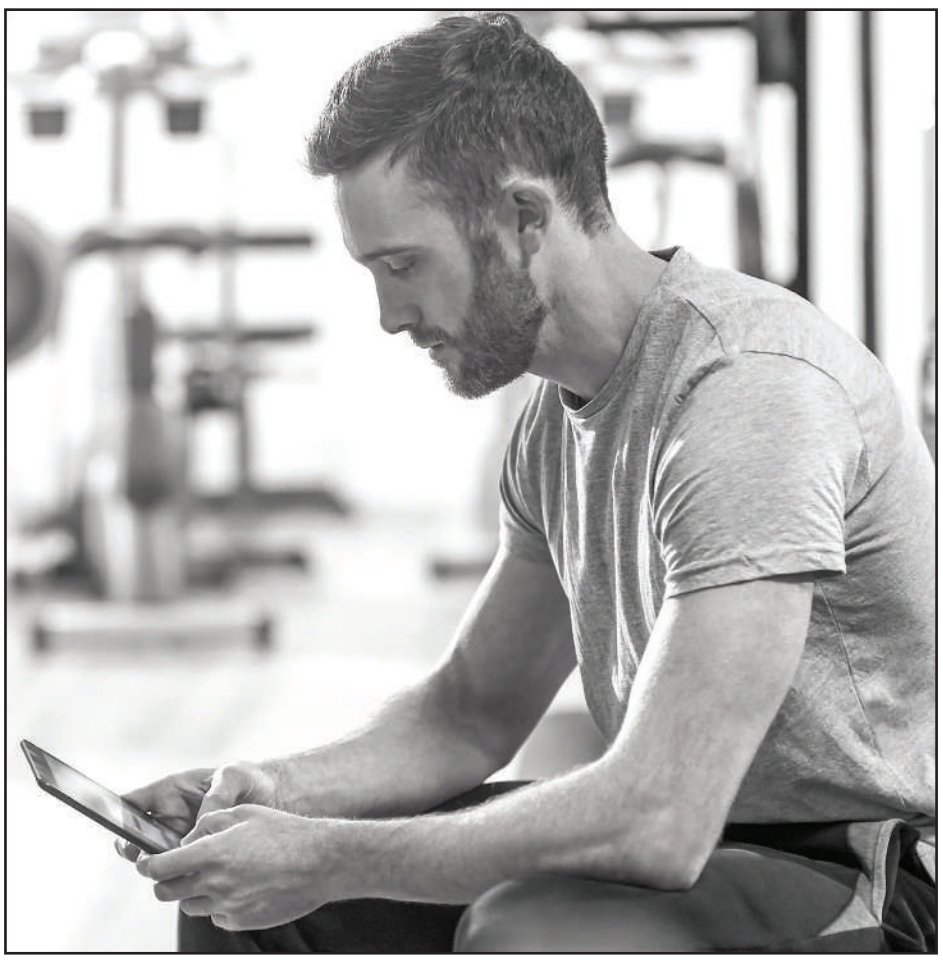
So, Judas, the man with the purse, was responsible for turning Jesus over to the angry mob that would ultimately beat him and nail him to a cross.

You may remember that Judas, apparently sorry for what he had done, tried to give the money back, but the Jewish leaders refused.

"And he cast down the pieces of silver in the temple, and departed, and went and hanged himself. And the chief priests took the silver pieces, and said, It is not lawful for to put them into the treasury, because it is the price of blood. And they took counsel, and bought with them the potter's field, to bury strangers in. Wherefore that field was called, The field of blood, unto this day" (Matthew 27:6-8).

I was in Jerusalem not so long ago, and stood on the Temple Mount. From there, I could see the potter's field in the distance. This small tract, considered by many Jerusalem residents to be cursed, is an eerie gift to mankind from the man who carried a purse.

Perhaps that's why Christian men and boys are more than a little reluctant to carry purses.



Pause before posting

Everywhere I turn people are talking. In some places they're even talking about how people are talking. Have you heard it?

I hear people say things like:

- Everyone is looking for a reason to be offended.
- People are so volatile right now.
- Why are so many people angry?

Brandon Porter

Maybe it's the stress of a pandemic and the disruption of our routines and expectations. Another factor may be how we're using social media. Short, direct and snippy comments seem to be common on many social media platforms I visit.

I'll admit that I rarely leave social media feeling encouraged or built up.

A 2017 article on Forbes.com called A Run Down of Social Media's Effects on our Mental Health said, "The more we use social media, the less happy we seem to be." The article pointed to a study that showed the more a person is on social media the more isolated they feel.

If you're using social media, let me offer you a way to help people rather than hurt them before you hit send. A short verse in the New Testament of the Bible says, "… whatever is true, whatever is honorable, whatever is just, whatever is pure, whatever is lovely, whatever is commendable, if there is any excellence, if there is anything worthy of praise, think about these things." (Philippians 4:8, ESV)

Not only should our thoughts be guided by these principles, but our words should be as well.

As you consider your next post, ask yourself these questions before posting:

- Is what I'm posting true?
- Is what I'm posting honorable to myself, God or others?
- Is what I'm posting right and fair?
- Is what I'm posting free from defilement or impurity?
- Is what I'm posting inspiring?
- Is what I'm posting something I'd recommend to others?

There are benefits to social media as we're able to connect with distant family members and friends.

But we must be mindful of the cost. Is what you're posting on social media helping those who will read it or contributing to the uneasiness in today's society?

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:
Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

NCAA preps guidelines for fall sports

LEXINGTON (KT) — The Southeastern Conference hasn't released its plans for fall sports, but the NCAA is preparing guidelines for member institutions to follow this season.

Those guidelines have yet to be finalized, but those plans are based on recommendations from the NCAA COVID-19 advisory panel and the Autonomy-5 Medical Advisory Group, which represents the SEC, Big Ten, Big 12 and the Pac-12 and several more medical groups.

The recommendations reported by the Associated Press include:

• Test results should be obtained within 72 hours of competition for athletes competing in so-called high-contact risk sports, such as football, basketball, hockey and lacrosse.

• Face shields should be integrated into sports where feasible.

• Masks should be worn by everyone on a sideline, including when an athlete moves from the playing field to interact with a coach.

• CDC guidelines should be used for determining when individuals can resume activities after testing positive for COVID-19. Time-based strategy means isolation until 72 hours after recovery and at least 10 days after symptoms first appeared.

• All individuals with high-risk exposure must be quarantined for 14 days.

Berea College mourns loss of Rep. Lewis, 'a dear friend'

In his last visit to Berea, John Lewis left with a degree.

Following commencement exercises three years ago, Lewis received an honorary degree from Berea College after addressing graduates of the college in 2017. The civil rights leader and activist passed away Friday at the age of 80.

Lewis (D-Ga.) was a long-time United States Congressman and was the last survivor of the Big Six civil rights activists who organized the 1963 March on Washington that featured Martin Luther King Jr.'s "I Have A Dream" speech.

"With the passing of Congressman John Lewis, our world has lost an extraordinary leader who dedicated his life to freedom, justice and equality for all," Berea College President Lyle Roelofs said in a statement Saturday. "He is one of the last great soldiers of the Civil Rights Movement that helped change the lives of Black Americans. For Berea College, we have lost a dear friend and brother who embraced us as kin."

Lewis visited Berea "several times" and made his last stop three years ago.

"In an energetic and inspiring speech, he imparted his deep wisdom to our graduates about the world that lie before them and their duty to change it for the better," the statement said. "He encouraged all of us to continue to 'make good trouble,' for it is the only way to fight for justice, equality and equity. John Lewis was just 25 years old when he marched from Selma to Montgomery, Alabama in 1965. He was among the protesters beaten by police, but he was undeterred in his fight for civil rights. He dedicated his life to that fight, making good trouble until his final days."

Roelofs and the college offered their condolences to Lewis' friends and family.

"The Berea College community is deeply saddened by the passing of our brother and honorary alumnus—indeed, our teacher and mentor, Congressman John Lewis. His affection for Berea and its mission and his enduring legacy are stamped on our hearts for all time."

hand washing, avoiding mass gatherings, maintaining at least a 6-foot distance between yourself and others when in a public space, and wearing a mask over the mouth and nose when appropriate."

As for the mask mandate, McBride said "there have been complaints made regarding both customers and employees who are not wearing masks/face coverings in the appropriate manner."

"In speaking with our Environmental Department, overall compliance with the governor's mandate for masks or cloth face coverings is considered at a good level," she said. "Most businesses are taking steps to comply with the mandate. While there is a small percentage of the population that takes issue with the mandate, even those who disagree are making the effort to comply. The local establishments want to remain open and so do their patrons and customers. Some establishments are not in compliance, but most are."

McBride said the health department is active in working with local businesses and agencies to comply with the mandate.

"Local health departments offer support in guidance and how best to conduct business in a safe manner," she said.

Earlier this week, Beshear issued a new travel advisory, which recommends a 14-day self-quarantine for Kentuckians who travel to the states of Alabama, Arizona, Florida, Georgia, Idaho, Mississippi, Nevada, South Carolina and Texas, as well as Puerto Rico, all of whom are reporting positive coronavirus testing rates equal to or greater than 15 percent. That compares to Kentucky's 4.37 percent.

"The virus is spreading out there," Beshear said. "It's spreading significantly. We must make sure that we take the steps to keep ourselves safe, our families safe and each other safe. Any concept that there's just more testing out there and the virus is still in the same place is absolutely and categorically false."

the resolution would be adopted once the new language was added. "I want to stick with my motion because whenever we bring it up, we'll add it, and we'll pass it," Terrill said. At one point, LaDouceur asserted that Terrill was trying to block the resolution, to which he responded: "I didn't make a motion to kill it. I said it could come back and we would pass it with added [language] I asked for."

The Juneteenth Resolution was introduced along with a measure expressing support for the Berea Police Department, recognizing their professionalism, dedication and commitment to the community. The initial draft of the resolution included statements of support for police officers who have been injured in protests across the country. Some citizens asserted that language was a direct response to LaDouceur's proposal to adopt the Juneteenth Resolution. But that language was unanimously removed after an amendment proposed by Councilmember John Payne. "It makes any commendation of our police department feel like a reactionary measure rather than a gesture based on their merits. In short, it doesn't help our police department, it doesn't put them in the right light… it doesn't belong," Payne said. Payne also proposed adding language recognizing the Berea Police Departments efforts to improve, including a ban on choke holds, seeking out diversity training for officers, and adding a social services coordinator. Both of Payne's amendments and the resolution affirming support for the police were adopted in an 8-0 vote.

During the Mayoral Comments section of the meeting, Mayor Bruce Fraley called for unity in Berea, making a statement of support for the right of citizens to protest for social justice, but also affirming the rights of people to support their police departments. Fraley also called for people to try to understand one another.

"Let's think about all of us. How we can come together for the good of our community?" Fraley said. "I believe it's important for all of us to seek understanding of one another, to be tolerant of each other and to be respectful of each other. If there was ever a time to do our part to come together as a community, now is the time."

While other council members expressed support for Fraley's remarks, LaDouceur sounded a dissonant note, suggesting the move to add "all lives matter" to the Juneteenth Resolution was racist and willfully ignorant.

"You know I wish I could say something rosy and supportive of your statement of unity, Bruce, but there are some things that aren't debatable and racism is one of them," LaDouceur said, adding that those who voted for delay were supporting coded language.

"It's racist, and it's willfully ignorant for you all to continue to obstruct a piece of legislation that does no harm to you. None.

"What it does is it shows our community that you do not stand for all people."

While Councilman John Payne said he was sorry to see the resolution delayed, he expressed willingness to accept additional language if it would help the measure be adopted.

"If a word has to change in order to pass it, I would simply assert to say that black lives also matter, because that is what the movement suggests," Payne said. "It's not that only black lives matter, but that black lives also matter. And by saying black lives also matter, you're not excluding anyone," Payne said.

The resolution will come up for consideration again at the Aug. 4 meeting.

COVID-19 case confirmed at Berea College

By Keith Taylor
Citizen Publisher

For the first time, a case of COVID-19 has been confirmed on campus of Berea College.

A student in Deep Green tested positive for the coronavirus recently and currently is under quarantine.

"Contact tracing has been completed (and) no close contacts were identified, but a second student is being tested out of an abundance of caution and is being isolated until we have the results," Berea College President Lyle Roelofs said. "The common areas in Deep Green that might have been contaminated were thoroughly cleaned and sanitized by FM (Tuesday) morning."

Roelofs said both students are upbeat.

"Both students are in good spirits and receiving support from Student Life and other campus offices," he said.

Madison County reported 21 cases on Tuesday. Overall, 447 cases have been confirmed in the county, 210 are recovering at home, two are hospitalized and 234 have recovered from the virus. Only one death has been recorded in Madison County since the pandemic began last March.

BCS to start online

The Berea Independent School district will open the 2020-21 school year virtually and students will be given two options to consider before classes resume online.

The Berea School Board approved the plan at a special meeting earlier this week and made the move as students, faculty and other staff adjust to the ongoing COVID-19 pandemic.

Teachers and staff will report on Aug. 13 and the current school year will begin on Aug. 26. The current plan is part of four phases and framework and guidance for future instruction remains under consideration and in-person classes could resume in the future if the threat of coronavirus subsides in the near future.

Two models will be available to students to open the calendar year. The first option offers support services from staff through online resources such as Google classroom, online video lessons among other options that will be available for students. Students have the option of services on school grounds, but those are by appointment only and must be approved by the school and its

'Prayer Box' a blessing

The Berea United Methodist Church sits on Chestnut St. across from the Library, and out in front near the sidewalk is a special kind of mailbox.

It's called a "Prayer Box" and anyone can write down their troubles, their hopes and dreams, their blessings or mercies needed or received, any concerns that are on their minds or hearts that day, and put it in the prayer box to be prayed for anonymously without the commitment of entering within the walls of a church.

There are pencils and little sheets of paper available to use on the side of the box. Prior to COVID-19, Hannah Grace, said a small group prayed each Sunday evening, with an open invitation to everyone and anyone to join. But they also wanted an immediate but thoughtful way to reach out to as many people as they could, so someone suggested the "Prayer Box."

It became a reality in May of 2018.

Because of covid, that prayer meeting does not happen. The staff collect the little papers from the mailbox each week to put on the altar and pray for the intentions.

They send them out anonymously on the email prayer chain to everyone in the congregation. Sometimes there is just one intention, sometimes there is ten; all are prayed for respectfully.

Knowing that someone else is interested in and cares enough to pray for your intentions is a wonderful comfort and hope during these strange and chaotic times. You don't even have to be a member or even a Methodist to use it. (Submitted)

Backroads lead to Bread of Life

I wanted to get away for a while, so Rhonda and I decided to take a road trip for dinner last Saturday and drove to Liberty for some freedom from the problems of the world.

While we are still fighting COVID-19 and people are going back and forth over other current issues such as the Black Lives Matter movement and the wear or not to wear mask mandate, sometimes getting away from it all helps clear your mind.

Social media — and I cringe when the word "media" is added to social web sites — is a big part of our lives now. Facebook and Twitter are the main hangouts for discussing topics and issues of our day and, sadly, sitting behind a computer has resulted in less civility in our country.

Keith Taylor

I did talk to one reader last week and she told me she has no iPhone, no computer, no Facebook and still maintains a landline phone for communication. I mentioned to her that she was probably better off for not having those types of technical advances.

Those are topics to consider for another time. Now back to our Saturday travels.

It had been a long time since we ventured into Casey County and decided to do it again last weekend We took the backroads tour — through Paint Lick, Lancaster, and Stanford to get to where we were going.

The drive reminded me of how blessed we are amid the ongoing chaos in our state, nation, and world. God's creation continues to amaze me. The green grass, nature, and seeing a bunch of cows cooling off in a pond on the right side of the road brought joy as I drove toward greener pastures.

Although it took more than an hour to get to Liberty, it was definitely worth the drive to get away from all the noise. The focal point of going to Casey County was to eat dinner at the "Bread of Life Cafe."

Just as I remembered from my previous visit more than 10 years ago, the buffet, featuring baked chicken, fried fish, shrimp and all of the fixings, plus the unique homemade bread, was excellent. The honey butter and cinnamon butter on the bread made it twice as good.

Because of the ongoing pandemic, a worker prepared my plate and she probably did better than I could have considering the many options that were available.

We saved room for the dessert and the banana pudding — one of my favorites — topped off an impressive meal.

We didn't take the backroads home and traveled on the Louie B. Nunn Cumberland Parkway, which took us to Somerset, Mount Vernon and back to Berea.

The "Bread of Life" put some wind in our sails and was soothing to our souls.

FROM OUR READERS

West: Alcohol option needed

To the Editor:

As a business owner in Berea, I see first-hand the major toll that the Covid pandemic and other economic challenges have taken on the local businesses in our great historic city. We now have an opportunity to get alcohol sales on the ballot in the November election, and with that the opportunity to expand existing business, attract new business, build a broader economic base, and provide a more diverse cultural experience for our citizens. Growth and diversity will create jobs for some and a more sustainable future for us all. With growth, we can make Berea, the town where our children live and go to school also the town where our children can stay as adults and prosper, rather than look for opportunity elsewhere as many feel they are now forced to do.

By allowing alcohol sales, we open up the opportunity for local craft brewery's, small craft distillery's, steak houses, large scale grocers and more. Those businesses will need employees, hardware, produce from our farmers, and other supplies. They will need insurance, repairs, and other services; and they will drive traffic to our restaurants and hotels. There is no sole path to a strong prosperous local economy and I do not represent expanded alcohol sales to be such, but there are many valuable contributing factors. I believe this will be a substantial contributor to our overall economic environment.

In the last few years, local options elections have taken place in every corner of the state. Mt. Vernon, London, Lancaster, McKee, Danville and Stanton are some of the cities surrounding Berea that have opted to allow alcohol sales. These surrounding towns found that limiting alcohol sales was not only transferring dollars out of their town, but was also preventing new businesses, including new industries, from locating there, and hindering the growth of existing ones. Since going wet, they have had increased payrolls, fees, and taxes flowing into their cities; and they did not experience an increase in alcohol related crimes as legal alcohol sales increased.

I believe the City of Berea can have a similar economic development experience. We should not miss out on these additional revenue streams, especially during this time of extreme budget woes! By properly managing regulatory and zoning restrictions, alcohol sales can be a valuable tool in Berea's economic development and a big asset to its Strategic Plan. Berea must remain economically viable and competitive, and not put ourselves at an economic disadvantage to other cities in the region.

I support the City of Berea going wet to keep local business local, to encourage new business development, to create jobs for our citizens, and to build a more diverse community. This is about opportunity for us all. I encourage you to both sign and support the local option petition put forth by the Berea Citizens for Growth, which would put the choice to the voters in the November election.

Thompson: Purse Issues confusing

To the Editor:

I read with confusion and dismay last week's piece by Roger Alford titled "Purse Issues." He started off with a typical story of a little boy being taunted for carrying a purse and declaring that "in this part of the country, little boys carrying purses to school is far from normal." Much more can be written about the fact that about the worst thing a male can be accused of is being like a female. I was truly surprised by the main point of Mr. Alford's writing, however. The summary of his piece is that the reason "Christian men and boys are more than a little reluctant to carry purses" is that Judas Iscariot, the disciple that betrayed Jesus, carried a purse.

Now this was certainly a twist on the usual intolerance of anyone who attempts to break free of society's narrow, confining, and often arbitrary gender boundaries, but it has the potential for even more danger. If we are to accept Mr. Alford's point that purses are the domain of women, then anyone who carries a purse, like Judas, is likely to be a traitor of Jesus, so most women, by extension, lie in this danger zone as betrayers. I reject this out of hand.

I spent some time this weekend looking through the three versions of the Bible I own, searching indexes and tracing the passages that contained the word "purse" or some variation. As anyone who studies the Bible will know, I found that many of the verses were translated differently depending on the version. Other words that were often used as synonyms were money belt, girdle, money bag, and money box. The only place I observed any of those words being specifically aimed at females was in Isaiah 3:22. In all other cases, any of these terms were used to describe containers that hold coins and were not ascribed to either sex or gender. Because neither men nor women had pockets in their clothing until at least the 16th century, both often kept what coins or other items they wanted handy in a bag tied around their waist, especially when traveling (Proverbs 7:20). This might more likely be called a girdle or money belt, in later use, sometimes this bag was called a "pocket." Men throughout the centuries since then have carried small purses for coins. So if Mr. Alford is going to use the biblical use of the term "purse" as a reason to shame a little boy, he is showing his ignorance of the cultural context of the Bible and the fact that different translations may use different words for the same thing. There are many aspects of the Bible that are extremely gendered, but purses are not included.

So why are purses gendered today and so much shame being connected to putting one's belongings in a bag? I won't spend much time on this subject in this piece, but several things should be pointed out. Much is made of the great distinction between a "male" wallet and a "female" purse, especially in beer commercials, and of course, any man who carries a bag is made to appear as a fool who can't even tell good beer from bad. A few practical points to make about women carrying purses: many women I know would prefer to carry their belongings in their pockets. For one thing, it is harder to leave one's pockets behind than one's purse. But women's clothing manufacturers refuse to put real pockets in women's clothing.

Many men and boys may not want to carry any kind of bag for their belongings for fear of it being called a purse, but they often rely on the women around them to carry items they also need or want, such as chewing gum, tissues, water bottles, hand sanitizer, keys, or sunglasses.

In Judas's case, it seems that the purse he kept was "the common purse" (Oxford Annotated Bible) or "the money box" (Revised Standard Version) as he was the treasurer for the group (John 12:6).

What is most remembered is that he took 30 pieces of silver to point out Jesus so He could be captured and crucified, thus fulfilling God's purpose of Jesus dying on the cross.

Judas's other sin was not that he carried a purse, but that he also betrayed the whole group of disciples by stealing from that common pool of money, all while professing concern for the poor.

While the story of Judas is certainly an important one in the Christian story, by far the more prevalent message about purses in the Bible is that we should take the money in them – whether they are called wallets, money belts, girdles, or money bags – and give to the poor (Haggai 1:6, Isaiah 3:23, Matthew 10:9, Mark 6:8, Luke 10:4, Luke 12:33, Luke 22: 35, Luke 22:38). It is not who carries the purse or what it is called, but how generous one is with its contents that matters. This is definitely a Christian value, but it is also universal.

Workman: Senator got too much praise

To the editor:

Several weeks ago, The Citizen ran an articlae about the Cares Act money coming to Kentucky.

It seemed to me that Senator McConnell gave himself too much credit for that.

There was no mention of both houses of Congress having to vote to pass the legislation.

The article carried only praise for McConnell from the Madison County Judge Executive, which in my opinion was free campaign support. In my opinion that is not appropriate.

Money is coming again, will this also be from Mitch McConnell, not Congress?

Berea's trails provide escape in the midst of a pandemic

By Bidhu Sharma

With the world having been turned upside down because of the coronavirus, people are finding themselves stuck at home with nothing to do.

This is taking a toll on the mental health of people across the world who are facing extreme levels of boredom, not to mention the stress that comes with being amidst a global pandemic.

Upon some reflection, I have noticed that residents of Berea may be at an advantage to others due to the town's ample opportunities for outdoor activity.

During the past few months, I have been going on walks and bike rides on the various trails in Berea with my close friends, all while maintaining social distancing, of course. I've found that these activities have had multiple benefits for my physical and mental health.

I have gotten in much better shape from the exercise, and the chance to get outside and interact with people I know has helped me maintain my social skills as well as a healthy frame of mind.

I have noticed that I would not be enjoying these benefits as much as I am if it wasn't for Berea's outside environment providing many opportunities to do exercise, whether it be alone or with my friends.

The Berea City Park, the Alumni Fields and Brushy Fork trail, the Stephenson trail, and the Berea Pinnacles (among others) all provide many opportunities to bike, walk, or hike and enjoy the benefits of outdoor activity.

If it wasn't for those opportunities, I would be stuck at home just playing video games, eating, sleeping, and being generally unproductive and unhealthy.

I am very grateful to have such freedom to enjoy the outdoors and appreciate the beauty of this town. Berea's welcoming outdoor environment is a privilege for everyone of all ages and I highly recommend everyone who isn't already to go out and enjoy this privilege that we residents of Berea possess.

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:
Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Lemonade, anyone?

Tony Smith found a way to keep cool and make some cool cash earlier this week by opening an old fashioned lemonade stand in front of his store, Contemptables, in Old Town Berea. Smith attributed his brisk sales to the addition of a real lemon wedge to each glass of lemonade. The 90-degree weather didn’t hurt, either. Smith also sold iced tea.

By Becky Brown
Citizen Writer

The front page featured a small article with the headline, “Hungry robber arrested.” Police officers arrested a man accused of robbing Lee’s famous recipe on Paint Lick Rd. in Berea, for stealing chicken. The alleged robber grabbed the cashier’s arm, and told her she had 15 seconds to give him chicken and that he had no money. The man was charged with second-degree robbery, one count of resisting arrest, and one count of disorderly conduct.

• At this point, many meetings were scheduled regarding the proposed Artisan Center, off exit 77. The first meeting was planned for August 5, 1997 at 7:30 p.m. in conjunction with the Berea City Council meeting. Tim Glotzbach, an EKU art professor, was heavily involved in the planning process. “There’s a lot of traffic on the interstate that doesn’t stop in Berea,” Glotzbach said. “The idea is to get them off the interstate and then draw them into downtown Berea where there are already existing crafters and art galleries and other businesses.” Artisans, crafters, business people, and all community members were encouraged to be involved in these meetings, to help in the planning of the Artisan Center.

• Plans were being made for the first ever-annual Berea Spoonbread Festival in September of 1997. The goal was unite and involve as many different areas of the community, with one event.

The committee members were primarily made up of Chamber of Commerce and Berea Tourism Commission members. Many subcommittees were formed as well, to help with food, entertainment, transportation, publicity and clean up. Arts, crafts, food, music, dance, and children’s activities were on the schedule in order for there to be something for everyone in Berea!

• A 1994 Monte Carlo was on display at Britton Chevrolet. Winston Cup winner, the late Dale Earnhardt, raced the car. The display attracted the attention of auto racing fans, as they got to get a close up look at the retired racecar.

• Over 40 classic cars were displayed at Car Cruisin’ 97, in the parking lot of Northside Dairy Queen.

• Portraits were advertised for only $4.95 at Wal-Mart Portrait Studio.

• Pagers were available for only $19.99, advertised in a variety of styles and colors.

Folk Circle update

At a recent Folk Circle Association annual meeting, president Sune Frederiksen presented a glance of the year that past.

The Folk Circle is involved in many worthy activities that put Berea on the map. He mentioned the popular contra dances and English dances, the Celtic Fest, Hands Four Spring Dance Weekend, Richard Powers Waltz Weekend, the Danish American Yule Fest and Fall Mountain Folk Festival, etc. The three new Folk Circle produced CDs (Hands Four, Berea Celtic and A Touch of Berea) have been selling pretty well lately. Laura Bost presented a satisfactory balance sheet.

The following were elected officers: Sune Frederiksen, president, Howard Carlberg, vice president, Deborah Thompson, secretary, Laura Bost, treasurer. In addition, Jan Pearce and Dennis Jacobs were elected members-at-large.

The Folk Circle has decided to postpone the Celtic Fest slated for August until further notice due to the COVID-19 spike.

Foothills offers cooling assistance program

By Mike Moore
For The Citizen

A new LIHEAP Summer Cooling assistance program is available to residents who need help with power bills. The program is offered by the Kentucky River Foothills Development Council as the latest resource to aid families during the COVID-19 public health crisis.

LIHEAP offers a similar program during the winter months, according to program director Shelly Howard.

"Typically, during the LIHEAP programs from November to March, approximately 1,500 households in Madison County receive utility assistance," she said.

Given the current pandemic, Williams said residents are in need.

"Many individuals and families need assistance right now due to either reduced income or a complete loss of income," Howard explained. "We have already received applications from people who have not received LIHEAP assistance in the past."

The program has two components, subsidy and crisis

Concerning subsidy, households applying must meet income and other guidelines. Eligible households may qualify up to $200.

Regarding crisis, the household must meet eligibility guidelines and be in a home energy crisis. Households must provide a disconnect notice, an eviction notice for non-payment of rent (if the electric cost is included in the rent), or 10 days of running out of pre-paid electric. Eligible households may qualify for up to $600.

"This assistance can be applied multiple times until the $600 threshold is reached," Howard explained.

If households are eligible for both programs, the benefit awarded is based on an individual's income. Benefits are paid directly to the fuel vendor in the form of a voucher.

Eligible applicants must supply the following information:

- Social security card or Permanent Residence card, also known as the Green Card
- Proof of all household's income from the preceding month
- Most current electric bill or statement from the landlord if the electric expenses are included in the rent or a statement from the utility company if the applicant participates in a pre-pay electric program
- Account number and name on the electric bill account

The income guidelines are:

Family Size	Income	Monthly
1	$24,242	$2,020
2	$31,702	$2,641
3	$39,161	$3,263
4	$46,620	$3,885
5	$54,079	$4,506
6	$61,538	$5,128
7	$62,937	$5,244
8	$64,355	$5,361
9	$65,734	$5,477
10	$67,132	$5,594

Eligible households – homeowners and renters can call (859) 623-6514 or email rmiller@foothillscap.org for more information.

"We encourage everyone who thinks they may qualify to apply for assistance," Howard said. "It's important to note that if a household has a zero balance on their electric bill, they are still encouraged to apply. Assistance will be applied toward your next bill(s)."

CASE

of coaches, trainers, athletics staff and more than 4,000 student-athletes as the top priority, the Presidents of the USA South Athletic Conference voted unanimously to postpone all conference competition until the spring 2021 semester.

Several factors contributed to the decision, including the recent rise in positive COVID-19 cases throughout the USA South's geographical footprint, as well as the availability, cost and feasibility of adequate and consistent testing for student-athletes.

The sports impacted at Berea are men's and women's cross country, men's and women's soccer, and women's volleyball. No decision has been made regarding men's and women's basketball.

"The health and safety of our athletics staff and student-athletes is paramount," Roelofs said. "These are challenging times for our country. This decision was a difficult but necessary one to ensure that we do our part to keep our campus communities healthy during this global pandemic."

"The presidents of the schools throughout our conference had a very difficult decision to make regarding fall sports," said Berea College Athletics Director Ryan Hess. "While disappointed for our athletes and coaches, we all understand the importance of prioritizing the health and safety of student-athletes, coaches, trainers and event staff. Our teams will be ready to compete when it's safe for them to do so but, in the meantime, we'll continue to support the academic pursuits of our student-athletes."

"While our member institutions maintain the freedom to address athletics as they see best on their individual campuses this fall, the NCAA recommendations especially related to testing that came out recently were a real game changer for our 18 conference schools collectively," detailed Dr. Tom Hart, USA South Commissioner. "We will begin work immediately to develop a strategic plan that allows for fall conference sports competition to return in some capacity in the spring, provided public health conditions improve in the coming months."

2005 and is located at the corner of Second Street and West Irvine Street, has gotten along with a chronically inefficient air conditioning system, Oliver said, which not only fails to adequately cool the building in summer, but is also energy inefficient and not environmentally friendly. Oliver said one of the main problems is the system's fluid cooler, which is at the end of its service life and requires constant flushing with city water to remain in operation.

The building is currently 75 percent occupied, but with the offices of the County Clerk moving into that facility, the building capacity will be nearly at 100 percent, and will further strain the HVAC system, Oliver said. With that in mind, Oliver offered the Fiscal Court two options: either fix the system beginning in January, or wait another year until the winter of 2022, in which case the cooling system might fail in the meantime.

"We need to do this ahead of the next cooling season because we may not make it through the next cooling season if we move the County Clerk in and if we start having troubles with the fluid cooler," Oliver said. "You cannot change a cooling system when the building is occupied in the summer months. You are in the position, unfortunately, of having to make a decision for the upcoming year now."

Marcum Engineering suggested a $438,000 option to replace the system, beginning in January of 2021, with additional features to increase efficiency for another $100,000.

At one point in the discussion, Magistrate Larry Combs asked whether the engineer could fix the critical issues first, allowing the county to keep the system operational for a while instead of having to come up with the whole $438,000 at once. Oliver said it would be possible to choose which components to install.

Following the report, Madison County Judge/Executive Reagan Taylor said he would work with County Treasurer Glenna Smith to determine how the county could pay for a new HVAC system. He said he would also work with Marcum Engineering to get a more definitive picture of how precisely much the county would save on energy costs with a new system. The county will also explore phasing in a new system over three years instead of replacing it all at once, Taylor said.

In other business, the court heard the first reading of a revised ordinance establishing a Bluegrass Regional Radio Network inter-local agreement. The updated draft agreement between Madison County, Scott County/Georgetown and the University of Kentucky would stipulate how much each entity is investing in emergency communication infrastructure, and it sets the dividends for participating entities.

Under the agreement, the four entities will establish an emergency communication network from Scott County to Rockcastle County, which can be joined by other local governments in the region for a subscription free. The proceeds from that arrangement are to be divided between re-investment in the system and dividends distributed to the founding entities as follows: Madison County 26%, University of Kentucky 26%, and Scott County/Georgetown with a combined eight percent dividend.

Madison County will be contributing $5 million in infrastructure, Taylor said, part of an initiative to get Madison prepared to move beyond CSEPP funding, which currently supplements much of the county's emergency communications system because of the ongoing chemical weapons neutralization project at the Blue Grass Army Depot. The new system can allow Madison County to have a new emergency communications system that can actually bring in revenue. "At the end of the day, we're saving taxpayer money, which is why we're here. I think this is really going to be good for our region," Taylor said.

The court also heard the first reading of a zone change for 3241, 3245, 3249 Old Kentucky Highway 52. The ordinance recommends a change from RC 7 rural agriculture to RC 1 rural corridor single family residential, noting the proposed zoning is consistent with surrounding residential zoning. The first reading was approved unanimously.

Madison County Jailer Steve Tussey reported the home incarceration program has been a success for the county, saving the county approximately $475,000 in the last fiscal year. Tussey noted 66 people are currently in the program, and it is growing. He added the county can expect to save anywhere between $550,000 and $600,000 in the coming fiscal year.

High School football season to begin Sept. 11

LEXINGTON (KT) — The Kentucky High School Athletic Association Board of Control voted on Tuesday to begin the high school football season on Sept. 11 with a nine-game regular season and five rounds of playoffs.

Here are some key dates for football:

- Aug. 24 — Helmet-only practices begin
- Sept. 11 — Regular-season play begins (nine-week regular season with week of Nov. 6 open to reschedule a game)
- Nov. 13 — First round of playoffs (keeping all five rounds)
- Dec. 11-12 — State finals at UK moved ahead one week

Other fall sports, including middle school, can begin practicing Aug. 24 including cross country, volleyball, soccer and field hockey will still be able to play 80% of their regular season games by abiding by the calendar:

- Aug. 24 — Light practice
- Aug. 31 — Full practice
- Sept. 7 — Full competition begin

There will be a limit on the number of players in uniform to ensure social distancing: cross country 10; field hockey 24; football 60; soccer 24; and volleyball 15.

administration.

The second option features an independent model, which students can take courses at their own pace, but will be required to check-in with staff on a weekly basis and attendance will be taken on a weekly basis.

"We feel very good about our plan and the viable options that it will provide for our students and families," Berea Community Schools Superintendent Diane Hatchett said. "I am so proud of the work of our committees. We sought feedback and input from the stakeholders in which we serve because this has to be a community effort. We are after all, Berea Community Schools. The word "community" means something. There is nothing quite like Pirate Pride. We are establishing a long-lasting system of innovation, collaboration and response to the needs of our students and staff by working hand in hand. Teamwork makes the dream work."

Students will receive free breakfast and lunch under both plans and delivery also is an option. Students also will be given a Chromebook and wireless internet hotspots will be available on campus for students who need wi-fi assistance. One mask will be provided for those who need in-person assistance. The chromebooks will be returned once in-person classes resume.

The school board also passed an anti-racism, cultural inclusion resolution in a virtual online meeting earlier this week. A meeting of the Anti-Racism and Cultural Inclusion Committee is set for 6 p.m. on Aug. 6.

"We will continue to pursue excellence and inclusion in the context of our district," Hatchett said. "Excellence is the vision to see obstacles as opportunities. BCS is all about creating opportunities for student success. We are all in this together. We are interdependent, part of the same puzzle. What impacts one impacts all."

"THANKS TO BAPTIST HEALTH, I'M A MOM AT LAST."

– Mysterie, Life-Changing OB Care

After Mysterie and her husband suffered the heartbreak of multiple miscarriages, they turned to Baptist Health Medical Group OB/GYN. "They diagnosed a problem no one else had found," said Mysterie, "and it was treatable with surgery. Then, when I got pregnant, they treated me like a million dollars. Every single person was invested in me and the baby." She added, "People assumed I'd go out of town for the delivery because of my history. But I wouldn't let anyone deliver my baby but the team at Baptist Health Richmond. And when she was born, it just seemed right to name her Victorie." For more on Mysterie's story, and many others, visit BaptistHealth.com/Stories.
