Spoonbread committee looks ahead

By Keith Taylor
Citizen Publisher

The Berea Chamber of Commerce is looking to next year after it canceled the Spoonbread Festival because of the ongoing COVID-19 pandemic last week.

Organizers made the decision to cancel this year's event originally scheduled for September. Berea Chamber of Commerce President Jennifer Napier said a potential spike on coronavirus cases after the Labor day weekend and classes resuming three weeks prior to the event played a role in the decision to cancel the event for the first time in four years. She added that preparing for the event takes time and is a yearly process.

"The Chamber begins planning for the next year the Monday after the current year ends," she said. "The Spoonbread Festival Planning Committee meets year around. It takes an army of volunteers and tremendous coordination to be able to pull off an event this size and over $100,000 in donations and sponsorships from local businesses and supporters to support an event this size."

Napier said the board "brainstormed numerous alternate options for

Backing the Blue

March draws more than 1,000 supporters

Approximately 1,400 supporters of "Back the Blue" attended a march last Saturday to show their support for law enforcement officials.

"I was so thankful for the show of support," said Bill Moore, one of the event's three organizers. "I was blown away at the number of people that came out.

"I think that the fine men and women of Law Enforcement who protect us here in Berea and surrounding counties got the message that we support them 100 percent."

Berea City Council member David Rowlette read a resolution supporting police when marchers reached Berea City Hall.

More "Back the Blue" marches are being planned for other counties and cities across Central Kentucky to show support for law enforcment officials.

These arrests were the result of undercover Internet Crimes Against Children investigations. The KSP Electronic Crime Branch began the investigations after discovering the suspects promoting the sexual performance of a minor or sharing images of child sexual exploitation online.

The investigations resulted in the execution of search warrants at three residences in Berea Tuesday. Equipment used to facilitate these crimes were seized and taken to KSP's forensic laboratory for examination. The investigations are ongoing.

Pulsford

The Kentucky Internet Crimes Against Children (ICAC) Task Force is comprised of more than twenty-six local, state, and federal law enforcement agencies.

The mission of the ICAC Task Force, created by the United States Department of Justice and administrated by the Kentucky State Police, is to assist state and local law enforcement agencies in developing a response to cyber enticement and child sexual abuse material investigations.

The support encompasses forensic and investigative components, training and technical assistance, victim services, prevention and community education.

The ICAC program was developed in response to the increasing number of children and teenagers using the internet, the proliferation of child sexual abuse material, and the heightened online activity of predators searching for unsupervised contact with underage victims.

pass it. My decision to table it indefinitely is because I would hate to see a resolution pass that does not embody what we truly mean it to be," LaDouceur said.

The discussion stemmed from a 5-3 vote two weeks ago when the council voted to table the item until it could include the phrase "all lives matter." At the time, Councilman Ronnie Terrill stated that because the council represented all people, the resolution should reflect that sentiment in addition to the original phrase, "black lives matter."

In council comments, Cora Jane Wilson said that while she was not against the resolution, she did not vote for it because her personal research on the Black Lives Matter (BLM) organization revealed it is led by people who espouse Marxist ideology. At that point, LaDouceur interjected that the statement "black lives matter," as expressed in the original ordinance, is not in itself not connected with BLM.

The original draft of the Juneteenth Resolution commemorated the date that the last American slaves were declared free in America. Berea College President Lyle Roelofs, who addressed the meeting to update council members on the college's plans to welcome returning students, made a very passionate appeal to the council to memorialize an important milestone in the life of America.

"It wasn't until 1865, after the Civil War, on June 19th, that an American military officer declared to African Americans of Galveston, Texas, that they were, in fact, free," Roelofs said. "That is why Juneteenth is such an important date because it marks the date that African Americans became true American citizens," Roelofs said.

Councilman John Payne, who had tried to craft a compromise by suggesting the phrase that "black lives matter also," said some black people in the community felt any change in the originally proposed language was simply a "poison pill."

They and others supported retracting the resolution instead of changing it, he said.

In other business, Roelofs stated that approximately 900-950 students will be returning to Berea College for the fall semester this weekend.

He stated returning students were given the option of in-person instruction and online instruction, and there was about a 50-50 split between the students who returned and those who opted for the online option. He added the college is mindful of the student body's potential impact on Berea and Madison County and the administration is taking precautions.

"We will be doing our absolute best to prevent outbreaks, and we know there are dangers to the community," Roelofs said.

On an optimistic note, he said there has still been only one COVID-19 fatality in Madison County in over 500 cases. He added the college will be closely monitoring the college community for the purpose of preventing outbreaks and protecting the public health.

Contracts, etc.

Turning to roads, Berea City Administrator David Gregory recommended the acceptance of bids for road paving and landscaping. The Allen Company was awarded a bid of $258,321 blacktopping bid, which was approved unanimously by the council.

The council also voted to award a landscaping contract to Jade Enterprises for $47,960. Gregory noted the city would only be charged for services rendered on the city's shared use trails. Councilman Steve Caudill noted there were concerns about the procurement process, but that all city procedures in place were followed. Caudill, noted, however, that the city will still research ways to improve upon its procurement process in order to draw a wider spectrum of bids.

Bid opened

Concerning the proposed multi-use pavilion, the council received four bids for the project, which is to be built on Chestnut Street next to the former Tolle Building.

Devere Construction submitted a base bid of $733,440, Hacker Brothers Construction of London had a base of bid $718,550, Omni Commercial LLC of Lexington bid $689,000, and Walker Company of Mt. Sterling bid $689,000.. Those bids were passed on to the city administrator for further review by officials.

Mural gift

The city council also unanimously approved a recommendation from Parks and Recreation Committee Chairman John Payne to accept the gift of a mural from Murals of Berea at Berea City Park. The mural by Keena Sparks will be featured on a utility shed facing Ellipse Street and Pirate Parkway at no cost to the city.

BRIEFS

MACED changes its name

After more than 40 years, the Mountain Association for Community Economic Development (MACED) is changing its name to the Mountain Association in an effort to be more inclusive and welcoming to the people and communities they serve.

The community economic development nonprofit has worked to advance a just transition to a new economy in Eastern Kentucky and Central Appalachia since it was established in 1976. Over the course of 2019, the organization took a deep dive into understanding the history of Appalachia, the current state of society, and what a better future could look like. They developed a new strategic plan with goals to guide their work over the next five years.

The plan includes deepening their commitment to equity and inclusion, and a name change is a big part of that work.

GOP making plans for fall election

Members of the GOP Ladies Republican Club are making plans to set up Republican Headquarters on Main Street in downtown Richmond at the former Glyndon Hotel in conjunction with the Madison County Republican Council.

Special efforts are being made to make political signs and literature available to the voters. Opening will be announced soon.

The ladies plan to support all the Republican candidates and their campaigns for the General Election on Nov. 3.

The President of the Kentucky Federation of Republican Women, Helena Pitcock, is challenging all our Kentucky Women's Clubs to be creative in campaigning for the candidates in various media avenues. Club Member and 81st District Legislator Deanna Frazier continues to work with the local club and its initiatives to get out the vote.

We have information and updates from Republican candidates Ryan Dotson, seeking the seat for 73rd District House of Representatives and Andy Barr's campaign representative Carter Skipworth.

Madison County Republican Chairman Kirby Easterling has given club members statistics showing the party's increased voter registrations since 2015.

The group hopes to meet later this month. and in September.

hosting the festival, such as spacing out vendors, incorporating numerous sanitation stations, cutting back on the number of events held within festival scheduled weekend, setting up a timed and ticketed entry system to monitor crowd control and provide a head count, hosting drive-through options for food and vendors, carry-out options for Spoonbread sales, and many more."

"We conducted surveys of members and community members using survey monkey and the results were a 50-50 split on whether to have event and whether people would attend, but when asked if people would volunteer, 18 percent said yes and 82 percent said no," she said. "The festival cannot operate without volunteers. The festival also cannot proceed without commitments for accessing venue space and the ability to host large crowds – all items that are outside the Chamber's control. The festival cannot recruit sponsors to cover festival expenses if we cannot have guarantees in place that the festival can occur. Without sponsors, without income, without volunteers – it's an impossible task."

The festival was last canceled in 2016 because of "misinformation about the contents of those numerous contracts was targeted by media and fueled growing protests."

"For the safety of local citizens and vendors, the 2016 Board voted to cancel the festival and err on the side of safety to prevent additionally planned protests during the festival from having the opportunity to turn violent, and prevent the destruction of local properties via riots if protests turned violent," she said.

Napier said the chamber is already looking ahead to next year's event.

"The Chamber plans to resume the festival in 2021 and will begin planning immediately for next year's event," Napier said. "It is the largest event in Madison County and draws thousands of people every year. It is typically the single largest revenue maker for most participating vendors and our local businesses during Spoonbread Festival weekend."

Let's choose unity

Unity is a wonderful thing. Divisiveness is ugly.

I've witnessed unity several different ways in our community and it's a thing of beauty and a sight to behold.

During the past two years, several churches in our community formed a "Unity in the Community" event that drew hundreds to a crusade-style revival that proved that despite denominational differences, churches can come together and worship God in one setting with one common goal in mind.

Keith Taylor

The Baptists, Methodists, Pentecostals, and other denominations came together for worship and that would have been virtually impossible decades ago, but it happened and churches are now united more than ever to support the cause of Christ.

Last month, a "Solidarity March" in support of the "Black Lives Matter" movement and voices of concern calling for an end to racial injustice united individuals for that cause at Union Church and they held a peaceful march and a rally. They had a right to voice concerns about racism and I agree that racism has no place in our society and we must do everything we can to ensure that we all men, women and children are treated equal and do our part to make that happen.

Last weekend, a "Berea Backs the Blue" march was conducted in support of our local law enforcement officials and was a well-attended event that was conducted in a peaceful and civil manner. Much like the "Black Lives Matter" event several weeks ago, citizens united together as one. They were in support of our law enforcement officials who are called to serve and protect our community. They also had a right to march and voice their support for those who put their lives in harm's way every day to ensure our safety as a city and county.

As Berea Mayor Bruce Fraley pointed out in a statement at last month's City Council meeting, there's nothing wrong with "speaking up in pursuit of justice and an end to racism and discrimination" and there's nothing wrong with "voicing support for law enforcement."

Fraley also said, "it has been said that, before you judge my life, or my past, or my character, walk in my shoes. Walk the path I have traveled, live my sorrow, my doubts, my fear, my pain and my laughter. And empathy is about standing in someone else's shoes, feeling his or her heart, seeing with his or her eyes. Not only is empathy hard to outsource and automate, but it makes the world a better place. End quote."

Personally, my path in life hasn't been the same as yours. It has been carved with ups, downs, curves and everything in between.

I strive to treat others as I would like to be treated and living by the "Golden Rule" has always been my rule of thumb. It should be yours, too.

As the late Martin Luther King Jr. said, "we must learn to live together as brothers or perish together as fools."

Let's strive to live together in harmony and we will be much better off as a community.

Eating dangerously

I expect a good many of you remember the TV show Hee Haw. I was flipping through channels the other day and had to stop when I came across a rerun from the 1970s. Two regulars on the show, Archie Campbell and Junior Samples, were talking.

Roger Alford

Archie said to Junior: "I saw your son in the town the other day. He had cuts and bruises all over his face. Had he been in a fight?"

"Naw," Junior replied. "His mom is making him eat with a fork again."

I admit to laughing out loud at that comedy skit, to think of someone who is such an enthusiastic eater that he clumsily injured himself trying to get food into his mouth.

I love to see Christians approach God's word with that kind of appetite, so hungry that they can't get scriptures into their minds and hearts fast enough.

The Bible likens God's word to milk and meat in 1 Corinthians 3:2. And, you will remember, Jesus identified himself as the Bread of Life in John 6:35, saying "he that cometh to me shall never hunger; and he that believeth on me shall never thirst."

You've noticed that physically healthy people have healthy appetites, and spiritually healthy people have healthy spiritual appetites. This truth has led some to question just how spiritually healthy people are at this point in history.

Church attendance in the U.S. has fallen off like crazy this year because politicians have convinced huge numbers of people that going to church will make them sick. In some states, governors even declared churches to be nonessential and ordered them to shut down.

Did you ever wonder how Christians of the early church would have responded to that? Throughout recorded history, God's people have faced truly life-threatening circumstances, but they refused to bend or bow. Hebrews 11:36-38 describes a people who "endured the trial of cruel mockings and scourgings, yea moreover, of bonds and imprisonment. They were stoned; they were sawn asunder, were tempted, were slain with the sword. They wondered about in sheepskins and goatskins, being destitute, afflicted and tormented."

You'd never convince those people that worshipping the true and living God is non-essential.

They were serious about their faith. They had to be to risk being sawed in half, to risk having their flesh laid open by whips, to risk being run through with swords or pelted with stones until they were dead. Would they have been frightened away from worship by a virus? I leave it to you to draw your own conclusions about that. The question I'm raising is this: How does the faith of people in modern-day America compare to those of centuries past?

Would people in modern-day America run and hide if they faced the kind of persecution that their forefathers in the faith faced? Would people in modern-day America measure up at all?

I fear that this coronavirus has provided the answer to those questions.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Lucas: Referendum needed

Dear Editor: I would like to encourage the citizens of Berea to sign the petition cards, currently being circulated, supporting the sale of packaged liquor within the boundaries of the city limits. These cards can be obtained online at www.bereacitizensforgrowth.org, from local businesses, by mail and from individuals who are collecting signatures. There are many reasons why this is a good idea, including but not limited to:

1. Berea is already moist and has had no problems with the sale of alcohol.

2. Berea should accrue the revenues associated with alcohol sales instead of sending that revenue to Rockcastle and Garrard Counties or to the City of Richmond. It's a fact that Bereans buy liquor at those locations and Berea money remains there.

3. The face of Berea will not change with liquor stores since the city government will control the appearance and advertising of any liquor business by location of the business and signage. If you want an example of this, visit Lancaster, Kentucky which has two liquor stores. If you didn't know they existed you would probably never see them if you drove through the town.

4. A more detailed discussion was presented by Bill West in last weeks letter to the editor in the Berea Citizen

A number of years ago, I and others attempted to get Berea wet, but fell short on petition signatures so the issue never came to a vote. Let's not let that happen again. All registered voters need to have a chance to vote for or against this issue.

Remember, a petition signature only allows for the issue to come up for a vote. For the future of Berea, let the referendum go forward for vote.

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:
Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Free writing project

"Coming of Age," a free year-long writing project for local women over 60, begins in September. The project aims to help older women develop and share creative work.

Project leaders are Libby Falk Jones of Berea (retired faculty, Berea College) and Julianne Unsel of Irvine (retired faculty, Evergreen State University). They will offer writing tips and prompts at monthly meetings to be held in Madison and Estill Counties.

"We believe that older women have much wisdom and creativity to share with the world," Jones said.

The women will choose subjects to explore and will be able to discuss their writings with each other. The project will end with a book publication of selected writings.

"We look forward to the group's exploring a variety of life experiences as well as our Kentucky heritage," said Unsel.

Kentucky state Covid-19 precautions will be in place at project meetings. Alternate arrangements will be made for those not wanting to meet in person.

Funded through the Kentucky Foundation for Women's Arts as Activism grants program, the program is free for participants.

For more information and to apply to join the project, contact Libby Jones at jonesl@berea.edu or Jules Unsel at unselj@evergreen.edu. Application deadline is Sept. 10.

Reflections

'Library enters computer age'

• The Madison County Public Library installed their first computer system, benefiting Berea, Richmond, and the bookmobile. The new system involved adding a barcode to each book, to catalog books as they are checked in and out. This allowed staff to be able to look up where a book was at any given time, and which books a customer had checked out - which wasn't possible prior. The system also made it possible for customers to renew books over the phone, instead of physically bringing them in. Switching over to this system was a time consuming process, as every book needed its designated barcode placed on it. The Berea Branch alone had 29,000 books, which dozens of volunteers helped place barcodes on.

Jinny Williams is one of the dozens of volunteers helping place bar code stickers on the 29,000 books in the Berea branch of the Madison County Public Library in preparation for a new computerized check-out system. The new system is scheduled to be put into use on Monday, Aug. 11.

'Berea goes online'

• The city of Berea had it's website designed by CH Business Systems, and was in the developmental stages at this point. The site would provide information for those coming from out of town, on what the city had to offer. The website was also designed to serve Berea residents as well, it made it possible for residents to email the city and stay updated on what was happening in town.

'City Administrator Resigns'

• City Administrator Eric Strahl tendered his resignation, which went into effect Oct. 20. He was City Administrator for five years, and resigned due to accepting an opportunity as City Manager of Boyne City, Mich. Mayor Clifford Kerby said he hated to receive Strahl's letter of resignation, and praised him for a job well done along with several council members.

'Bluegrass fest begins tonight'

• The sixth annual Big Hill Mountain Family Bluegrass Festival was scheduled for Aug. 7-9. The Festival was located eight miles southeast of Berea on U.S. Highway 421, about three miles south of the intersection of KY 21 and US 421. More than a dozen bluegrass bands were on the schedule throughout the three days, and an open stage was available on Friday and Saturday as well for amateur musicians. Dr. Ralph Stanley and the Clinch Mountain Boys made an appearance on Saturday. In addition to music, the festival had food concessions, novelty vendors, wagon rides, free parking, free camping, and a soup bean and cornbread dinner on Thursday evening. Arlie VanWinkle was the festival coordinator, and his family worked to help him make this festival possible.

Quarantine leaves some time to read

One would have thought that with Coronaclypse 2020 making it difficult, if not impossible, to do the things we are used to doing in a regular week, that I would have gotten a lot of reading done.

One would have been wrong. In fact, it was just this past weekend that I finally got to "get my read on." And on top of that, it was the rarest of weekends when I had the luxury of enough time to mow the yard, bake two quiches and a dozen cinnamon rolls, make dinner for some friends, do the laundry, and read two books.

Yes you heard right. Two books! It was like some wondrous bibliomiracle.

Although I am a great collector (ahem, hoarder) of print books, I actually enjoy pleasure reading on my iPad. I'm a pretty fast casual reader, so I can actually move more quickly through an eBook than I can through a print book. So I had already loaded my iPad with eBooks from the Madison County Public Library. After all, they are free to check out with my handy dandy library card.

I had six titles to choose from. For my first read, I decided to go with an old favorite author – David Baldacci. The book was, "The Fallen," one of his series of novels featuring Amos Decker, the detective known as "The Memory Man" ever since a football head/brain injury had gifted him with both perfect memory and synesthesia, "a neurological condition in which information meant to stimulate one of your senses stimulates several of your senses." Decker sees colors overlay specific types of events.

In The Fallen, Decker and his partner Alex Jamison are visiting her young niece for her birthday, when inexplicably, people start turning up murdered. So of course they have to investigate.

My second reading adventure for the weekend was another old favorite author, Lee Child. This time it was a Jack Reacher novel set in the Western Plains. The Midnight Line finds Reacher on the trail of the mysterious owner of a West Point class ring he found in a pawn shop in a small Wisconsin town.

They were both great stories. I was a little disappointed that even though they were written by different authors and published in different years, the central issue at the heart of each was the same. I won't tell you what that was because, well, "spoiler alert!" Even so, I would recommend both, especially if you enjoy those authors.

I checked out both titles from Overdrive/Libby.

Our Overdrive subscription is through the Kentucky Libraries Unbound consortium that we participate in with many libraries across the state in order to stretch our eBook purchasing power.

As of last month, there were 175,260 copies of 90,670 titles in eBook and eAudio format in the collection. All you need to check them out for free is your Madison County Public Library card and PIN, both of which you can get without ever coming in to the library!

So whether you are quarantining or just awake in the middle of the night with nothing to read, this is a great source of reading material.

If you don't have a library card, you can easily apply through our website, madisonlibrary.org. And if you have a card but have forgotten your PIN, you can call the library to get it. The staff will ask you a few identifying questions, and then they can give it to you over the phone.

Last month, MCPL customers checked out 8,208 items from Overdrive. The top checkout (with 18 uses) was On What Grounds: A Coffeehouse Mystery, by Cleo Coyle. Coming in for a close second with 14 uses was the New York Times best-seller, So You Want to Talk about Race, by Ijeoma Oluo, and third with 13 uses was The Hate U Give, by Angie Thomas (a National Book Award Longlist and a Coretta Scott King Honor Book).

I encourage you to check out all of our online resources on our website, madisonlibrary.org. Just click on "Stream & Download," and choose one of the options.

If you need help accessing any of them, just call either library location – Berea, 859-986-7112, or Richmond, 859-623-6704. We have staff who can set up a help session with you over the phone.

Both library locations are also open Monday-Saturday 9 a.m.-6 p.m. if you prefer to come in to check out books. Plus, we offer curbside delivery and even contact free home delivery. And you can still utilize our electronic locker system to pick up holds. We'll see you soon at the library or maybe online!

Play ball! Youth sports returning

While things could change depending on the status of COVID-19 infections in Kentucky, the City of Berea Parks and Recreation Department is reporting that youth sports in Berea are on track to begin the season according to schedule.

Last Thursday, Berea Parks and Recreation Director Priscilla Bloom noted that development in her report to the Berea City Council Parks and Recreation Committee, which had not met since February 27 due to the pandemic.

Bloom reported that MUSA soccer plans to begin practice within the next week and games are scheduled to start on August 22.

Berea Youth Football has begun practice, and they hope to start games on Aug. 29.

Softball and baseball leagues are currently holding signups, though their registration numbers aren't as high as recent years, Bloom said, but officials are hoping they will increase. Those games are scheduled to begin the second week of September. "Things could change, but they are all a go for now," Bloom said of the teams.

In the meantime, Bloom said the baseball and softball fields are being used five days a week by traveling teams for practice. Use of the city fields is scheduled by appointment through the city.

While Berea's ballfields remain open for now, committee member Ronnie Terrill suggested the city will have to cancel games if the COVID infection rate in Berea and Madison County continues to increase.

"We have a Berea College student who has it, so it's in Berea," Terrill said. "If you get a report of any player that gets it, then I think that's when you really need to shut it down."

Committee member Emily LaDouceur asked Bloom her personal opinion about safety as it relates to coronavirus. Bloom responded the city looks to the state and county for guidelines, and Parks and Recreation informs teams of their responsibilities regarding virus precautions. For example, parents are not allowed to congregate at the games, the temperatures of the players are supposed to be taken before practices, and there is a limit to how many players can sit in the dugout, among other precautions. Still, Bloom said the city will watch the situation.

"The governor hasn't said anything else about suspending youth sports. But that's something that the mayor and the council would have to decide," Bloom said. "My personal opinion is if the teams follow the guidelines, and the governor hasn't said anything about it, then I'm okay with it.

Not a typical summer

In related news, Bloom noted the Parks and Recreation Department has scaled back significantly on staff because of COVID-related budget cuts.

Much effort is on anti-virus efforts, including sanitizing the restrooms up to four times a day, sanitizing picnic tables, benches, and selected playground equipment. Those tasks are being completed in addition to the usual summer efforts, such as painting, weeding and trash pick-up.

"While this has not been a typical summer at the park, it's still been a busy one. We're operating with minimal staff so everyone has had to step up and do things outside of their normal job duties," Bloom said, noting they are also working on ball fields. "We're definitely making some progress but it's a challenge because we've got two maintenance workers and we have a lot of other parks and buildings to maintain.

"But they are working hard and doing a good job. If you see grass growing kind of high, please just forgive us a little and know we are doing our best."

"THANKS TO BAPTIST HEALTH, I'M A MOM AT LAST."

– Mysterie, Life-Changing OB Care

After Mysterie and her husband suffered the heartbreak of multiple miscarriages, they turned to Baptist Health Medical Group OB/GYN. "They diagnosed a problem no one else had found," said Mysterie, "and it was treatable with surgery. Then, when I got pregnant, they treated me like a million dollars. Every single person was invested in me and the baby." She added, "People assumed I'd go out of town for the delivery because of my history. But I wouldn't let anyone deliver my baby but the team at Baptist Health Richmond. And when she was born, it just seemed right to name her Victorie." For more on Mysterie's story, and many others, visit BaptistHealth.com/Stories.

Madison County Schools

In-person classes may be delayed

By Keith Taylor
Citizen Publisher

Madison County Schools offered its students three options when classes begin on Aug. 26 but one of those plans could be changed this week.

On Monday, Kentucky Governor Andy Beshear recommended state public and private schools not to reopen for in-person instruction until Sept. 28 because of a recent spike in COVID-19 cases across the state. Madison County recorded its highest count to date with 60 last Friday. There were 801 cases reported in the state last Saturday, prompting Beshear to make a call for schools across the state to reconsider plans for in-person classes for the next six weeks.

Superintendent David Gilliam

The Madison County School board has set a meeting for Thursday night and an amendment to the school calendar that was approved last week.

"From the beginning of this pandemic, it has been our intention as a district to offer options for families that include in-person and virtual attendance," the school board posted on its Facebook page. "We remain committed to our belief that in-person instruction is what is best for kids. District

Deputies to receive de-esculation training

By Andy McDonald
For The Citizen

By a unanimous vote on Tuesday, the Madison County Sheriff's Office received funding for verbal de-escalation training for deputies. The measure was approved in a teleconference meeting of the Madison County Fiscal Court.

Sheriff Mike Coyle

The measure allows for the county to enter into a contract with a consultant for $2,400, providing deputies with seven hours of video conference training in strategies for de-escalating potentially tense encounters with citizens that might otherwise lead to serious consequences, such as the use of force.

Magistrate John Tudor said $2,400 to give officers another tool is a good investment.

"Anytime I think we can de-escalate a situation and talk someone out of doing something harmful to themselves or to the public --- that money is well spent," Tudor said, noting that a bad outcome could end up costing the county and taxpayers money. All 40 Madison County

Roy Curtis, an employee with the City of Berea Public Works Department, works on a window frame at the Berea City Annex earlier this week finishing up a window project. Curtis and co-worker Zach Lainhart have been scraping the windows of older paint and replacing with a beige color to match the new trim at Berea City Hall. The trim is getting replaced with composite material for a longer, lasting appearance. (The Citizen/Keith Taylor)

PRICE

Along with his wife, Della, Price co-owns Front Porch Recording Studios in Berea. He began his podcasting career after becoming hooked on the TV show "Lost."

"It goes back to 2005 when podcasting was in its infancy," Price said. "I started working from home, and there was a TV show called Lost. I enjoyed it, and I discovered that there were all of these podcasts about that show. In 2007, I started creating my podcasts."

Being a member of TPA lends more credibility to his ever-growing resume as a podcaster.

"The Podcast Academy's standards are high," Price stressed. "It's intended to be a professional organization where you've proven yourself already. Forbes magazine says the awards the academy are going to put together are equivalent to the Oscars, but for podcasting. Being included says I'm at that tier of productivity."

Price was inducted into TPA as an Industry Journalist/Reporter. The TPA's membership standards for this category include, "A writer, newsletter publisher, or contributor on at least 10 podcast-related articles, publications or newsletters published in print or online in the preceding two years. All members are approved or disapproved by the Board of Governors based on these qualifications and must requalify every five years. Members must conduct themselves in an ethical and professional manner and adhere to the organization's policies."

Price's podcasts focus on local issues and stories.

"You can live in a place, but not know your neighbors, and that is the idea behind the podcast," he said. "Who is that person who does the jazz walking on the street? So, we did an episode on her, for instance. Or, how tall is the community school's spire … different things like that."

In essence, podcasting is a way that helps Price and his audience learn about Berea, he continued. The podcast formats vary but often include interviews, self-discovery, and essays.

Depending on the length of his podcast, it takes Price anywhere from an hour for a 20-minute show, to four hours, for an hour show, to produce. New shows are released on Tuesdays at www.thebereapodcast.com.

His topics come from a variety of sources.

"Most of it stems from our interests, and it always leads to learning more about the town," Price added.

In addition to Berea-specific podcasts, Price also produces best-practices tips on podcasting at www.podcastingtipsfromthefrontporch.com.

"These are intended to be short, about five minutes, max," he explained.

Price's notoriety and skills have also landed him an opportunity to share his knowledge on an international stage, as he will participate in the 2020 Podfest Expo conference, which will be virtual this year because of COVID-19. He will be speaking about local podcasts during the event, which runs Aug. 3-15.

"You can build connections with other people with being a podcast person," Price said. "That is what I'm going to speak about at the conference."

The Berea community is teaming with stories to be told and shared. Those wishing to offer topic suggestions can email Price at troy@thebereapodcast.com or troy@frontporchstudios.com.

COURT

sheriff's deputies will receive the training, officials said.

Magistrate Tom Botkin praised Sheriff Mike Coyle for taking the initiative to ask for the funding in order to give his officers an additional law enforcement tool.

On the subject of law enforcement, Botkin also praised the "Back the Blue" march that took place on Aug. 1 in Berea, complimenting Coyle and the MCSO for their role in ensuring public safety at the event. "With all of the negative things going on, our law enforcement officers go out every day and put their lives on the line in performance of their duties, and we certainly appreciate them and thank them for that," Botkin said.

Madison County Judge Executive Reagan Taylor, and magistrates John Tudor, Tom Botkin, and Roger Barger all voted for the funding. Magistrate Larry Combs was not present at the video conference meeting.

In other business, the Fiscal Court was initially deadlocked on a proposal to endorse a zone change on Old Highway 52, but the zone change ordinance was adopted anyway, based on Kentucky law.

The court was considering the final reading of an ordinance regarding 3241, 3245, and 3249 Old Kentucky Highway 52, a proposal changing zoning of that property from RC 7 rural agriculture to RC 1 rural corridor single family residential. The ordinance was based on a unanimous decision from the Madison County Planning Commission, which stated the agricultural zoning is now inappropriate while the proposed zoning of single family residential is appropriate given growth in the area.

Taylor read 18 letters in opposition to the zone change, with many residents expressing concern about increased traffic, a lack of adequate drainage, and the potential for packing too many houses into the development. Many residents expressed concern that the property would consist of quarter acre lots, and perhaps have between 60 and 70 lots, or more.

Two proponents of the project, including the developer of the project and his attorney, noted the area is in a space that is specifically designated for future development along an urban corridor.

When the item came up for discussion, Barger opposed it because of the potential draining issues, instead suggesting the property could be divided into mini-farms. Both Tudor and Botkin expressed regret that only one person had raised an objection to the project when the item came before the Madison County Planning Commission.

Taylor asked about questions raised about the number of lots on the project, to which Planning Director Bert Thomas replied that even if the zone change is approved, the property owner will have to submit a site development plan, including providing an engineering study stipulating the project has adequate infrastructure and drainage.

When the vote was taken, Barger and Tudor voted against the zone change, while Taylor and Botkin voted in favor.

Because the vote ended in a tie, Madison County Attorney Jennie Haymond and Thomas advised that the zone change was approved, since a majority was needed to overturn a decision by the Madison County Planning Commission, according to Kentucky law.

In other business, the court approved the final reading of a measure setting the rules for the Bluegrass Area Radio Network, an inter-local agreement between Madison County, Georgetown/Scott County, and the University of Kentucky. The program will enable the entities to provide emergency radio services in the future.

Also unanimously approved was a bid for the Madison County Fire Department to buy a boat for emergency rescue. The boat will be purchased for $18,000 from Tri-County Marine.

Another measure approved was the memorandum of agreement between Madison County and the Kentucky Transportation Cabinet to repair a slide on Stoney Run Road. Under the agreement, the county will be reimbursed for up to $167,000 to repair the 315-foot long slide. Hinkle Environmental will handle the project, officials said.

KENTUCKY STATE POLICE

'Cover the Cruiser' a success

FRANKFORT — The first Kentucky State Police "Cover the Cruiser" event raised $16,206.16 to support Special Olympics of Kentucky (SOKY).

KSP posts across the state parked their cruises at designated locations and encouraged the public to cover their cruisers with custom SOKY stickers. A minimum donation of $1 was requested to place a sticker on the cruiser, but Kentuckians donated more than the minimum.

The 'Cover the Cruiser' campaign was developed when the Special Olympics Law Enforcement Torch Run was canceled due to the COVID-19 Pandemic. Each year, The Torch Run escorts the Special Olympics Flame of hope to kick off the Kentucky State Summer Games in Richmond. State Troopers, in conjunction with national law enforcement agencies throughout the U.S., participate to raise awareness and funding for Special Olympics programs.

The fundraiser developed into a friendly competition among Kentucky State Police posts.

The London Post took top honors with a total of $2,577.94 raised. Trooper Scottie Pennington organized the post fundraiser and battled heavy rain on the date of his event.

Trooper Scottie Pennington, KSP London Post, accepted a donation from a young girl at the London Walmart. (Submitted)

"To say that I am humbled by the support and generosity of our Laurel County Citizens is an understatement," he said. "Special Olympics of Kentucky holds a special place in my heart and it was an honor to assist them in this way."

administration developed a plan we felt held everyone's best interest at its core and the Board of Education unanimously approved that plan."

Following the Governor's recommendation earlier this week, "district leadership worked to consider the direction for our district if we are mandated to follow the governor's recommendation."

"In communication with the Kentucky Department of Education this afternoon, the Commissioner of Education made it clear that districts have no room to sway from the governor's recommendation," the post stated.

"The Board of Education will hear recommendations from Superintendent (David) Gilliam at its meeting Thursday evening regarding our plan to move forward. A detailed update will be released immediately following that board meeting."

The options approved last week included in-person instruction, Independent Distance Learning and Interactive Distance Learning.

The Kentucky Education Association (KEA) advised against in-person instruction to start the new school year last week because of the ongoing coronavirus pandemic.

A struggle like no other

Keith Taylor

I don't know about you, but I'm ready to get back to normal.

Like many of you, I wish COVID-19 would magically disappear, a vaccine developed and administered with a snap of a finger. Unfortunately, the life we are now living isn't a movie, novel or even a dream.

It's reality.

I don't want to get back to the way things were without feeling a sense of security but at the same time, I want to live life at its fullest. Like the rest of you, it's a hard balance to navigate, but the deeper we get into 2020, the closer we are to getting past the virus, simply because hope lies ahead of us.

The past six months have been unlike anything we have experienced in our lifetime. As I am writing this, I'm watching the Grand Ole Opry Live with no fans. The show goes on, but without fans.

I'm sure the performers are doing their best to make things as normal as possible, but they likely will admit it's not easy performing in front of empty seats, compared to a full house.

The fans are very much part of the show and who would have thought one day the Grand Ole Opry would be going on on without fans in the historic venue?

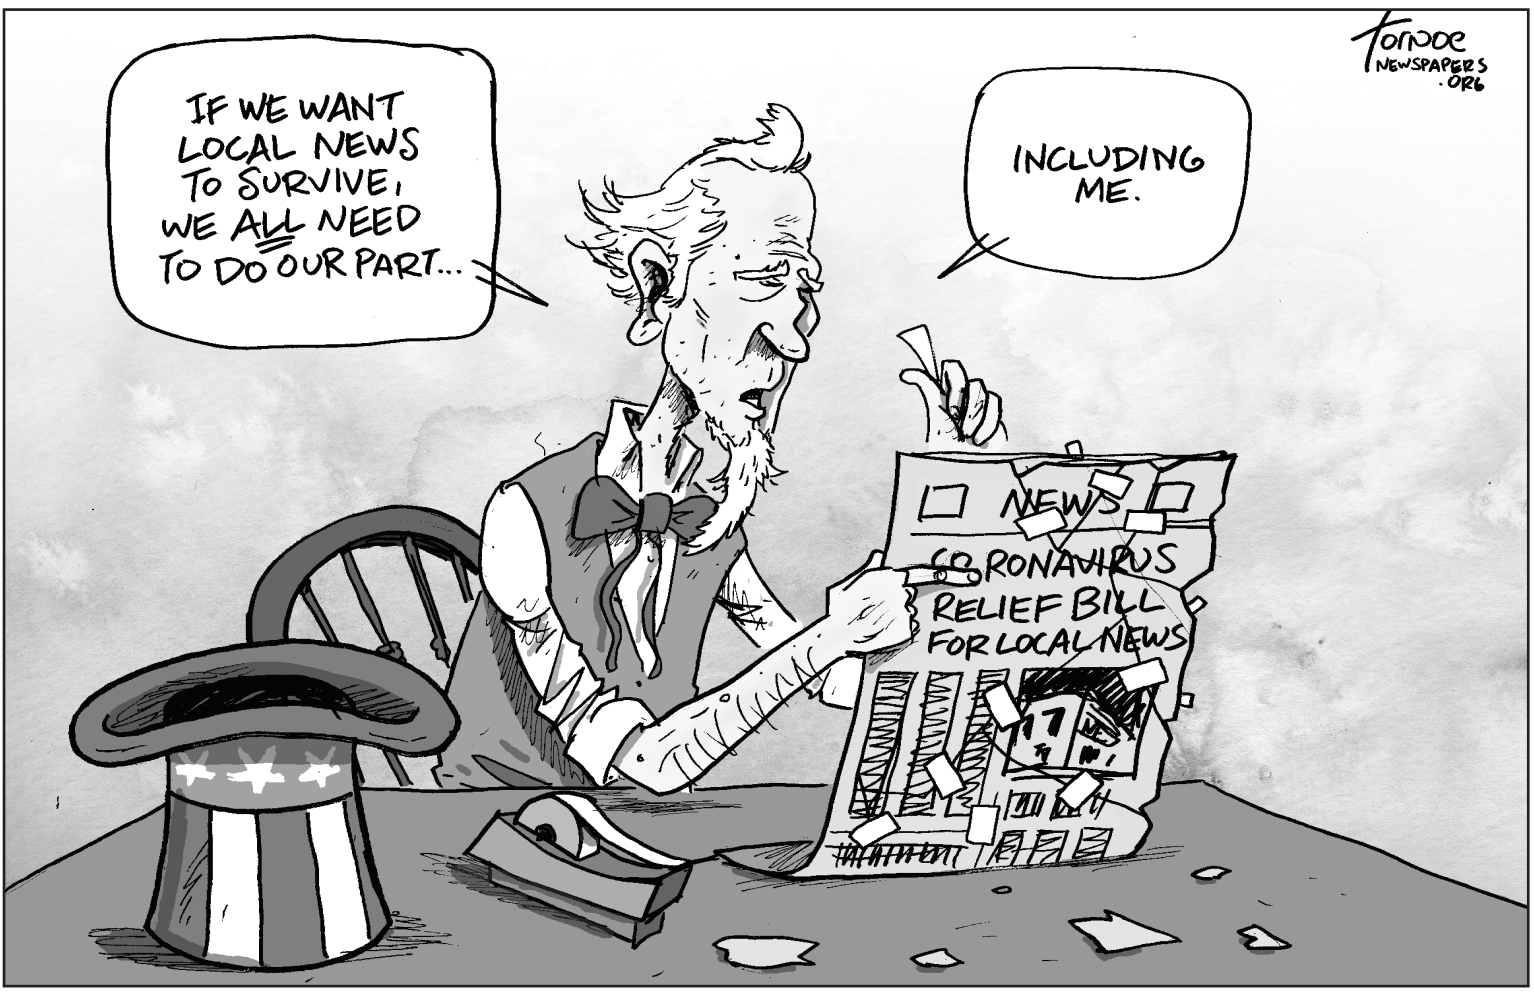
The shows have been very good and I've enjoyed watching them on Circle, but I do miss fan interaction. Once we are past the virus, maybe we will appreciate concerts that much more.

I've watched Major League Baseball do its best to duplicate past games with cutout fans in the stands and fake noise in the background. Some of the life-less cardboard cutouts have been downright hilarious, and just last week, a cutout of the main actor in the 1980's flick, "Weekend at Bernie's" was as clever as you can get when it comes to mixing creativity with reality. Personally, I like the noise better than the fake fans, but nothing seems to be real this year, so I will just have to embrace it and live with it.

We've also had to get used to wearing masks in public, which has led to confrontational debates on social media. I see both sides, but choose to wear mine in public, because I want COVID-19 to leave the county, state, nation and our world forever and I do what I can to make that happen, sooner rather than later.

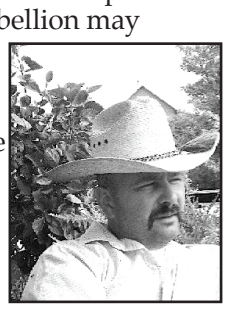
Many colleges and universities, including the University of Kentucky and Berea College opened their doors to students this past weekend and hopefully it's a sign that maybe we are moving further away from the coronavirus.

It has been a struggle like no other.



True justice hinges on A-O-J factor

Key facets in the counter-revolutionaries' transparent "Get Trump" game plan are the "epidemics" of police "brutality" and "systemic" racism.



Shane Morris

The event which sparked Floyd's Rebellion may indeed be found to have constituted the crime of negligent homicide. I reiterate the police officers' actions "may" be found to have been criminal; but that can only be ascertained after full and fair trials.

Two other contemporaneous, high profile mixed race murder cases out of Georgia (I predict) will be found to be apples to the Minneapolis case's orange.

Particularly as seen in the Rayshard Brooks Case; there are actions one may take which can very much get you justifiably shot.

My old teacher Massad Ayoob is a nationally recognized authority on the judicious use of deadly force. Some 40 years ago, he distilled the elements necessary for the justifiable use of deadly force into the initials "A-O-J."

The "A" stands for "Ability." Did your attacker possess the "ability" to cause you (or another innocent individual) death OR grievous bodily harm at the time you used lethal force on said attacker? A non-exhaustive list of things which might have the "ability" to cause a person death OR grievous bodily harm are (obviously) a firearm, knife, or iron pipe; but also a shod foot, multiple attackers, disparate physical size/strength, multiple blows from a closed fist, and (directly tied to the Brooks Case): a Taser. You see, a reasonable man is under no obligation to assume an assailant will not take advantage of a "Tased" policeman in order to take the officer's duty gun from him and then execute him with said firearm.

The "O" stands for "Opportunity." Did the attacker possess the "opportunity" to cause you (or another innocent individual) death OR grievous bodily harm at the time lethal force was used on said attacker? As a singular example, did the man with a butcher knife expressing, "I'm going to cut your guts out!" do so from behind a 15-foot high chain link fence separating the two of you? If he did, he did not (at that time) possess the "opportunity" to cause you death OR grievous bodily harm; though he certainly possessed the "ability" and intent vis-a-vis the butcher knife and his threatening statement toward you.

The "J" stands for "Jeopardy." Did your attacker cause you to believe your (or another innocent individual's) life OR physical well-being was in "jeopardy" of ending OR suffering grievous harm? This final element is often measured against the ruler of what a "reasonable" man could have believed "at the time" lethal force was used. In the above butcher knife example; remove the fence barrier, and A-O-J is fully met.

The police officer's use of lethal force in the Rayshard Brooks case will, I believe, be found by an impartial jury to have been completely justified within the A-O-J triad.

The Ahmaud Arbery Case however has been injected with the Orwellian spectre of constituting a possible "hate" crime. "Yes. Your actions were justified; however 'we' think you held 'bad' thoughts at the time of your actions, and therefore you are guilty regardless of the circumstances." So-called "hate" crimes are an anathema to the 14th Amendment's guarantee of "equal protection of the laws."

True justice hinges upon consistent measuring sticks. As identified by Mas Ayoob, A-O-J provides a level playing field for the lawful application of lethal force. Federal tax dollars spent on "outreach" to various "communities" would be far better spent teaching middle and high schoolers how checking the A-O-J boxes can very much get you justifiably shot in the United States of America. A truly free civilization rests upon the ability of the individual to preserve innocent life.

Madison County Animal Shelter receives cat spay neuter grant

The Madison County Animal Shelter was named a 2020 recipient of the Joanie Bernard Foundation and Team Shelter, USA, Bluegrass Cat Spay Neuter Project grant.

The $12,000 award, in partnership with the Bluegrass Area Development District's Bluegrass Cat Spay Neuter Project, is to provide spay and neuter services for community cats in Madison County.

"I am really proud of our grant team who has been laser focused on finding alternative means of funding important projects concerning our County," Madison County Judge Executive Reagan Taylor said. "In addition, I greatly appreciate the work of Drs. Pizano and Skipworth for working with our Madison County Animal Shelter team. Their support will ensure reduction in our community cat population in Madison County."

Madison County was selected based on a Bluegrass Community and Shelter Needs Assessment, conducted by Dr. Sara Pizano, DVM and Animal Welfare Strategist with Team Shelter USA.

"Community cats are defined as outdoor cats and can be friendly or feral," she said.

"I am so thankful to the Joanie Bernard Foundation for funding this spay neuter program. When cats are spayed and neutered it eliminates many unwanted behaviors and prevents future litters. Everyone benefits."

Madison County also is pleased to partner with Skipworth Veterinary Clinic to provide the spay and neuter service in compliance with this grant for Madison County.

To schedule an appointment, citizens can contact Skipworth Veterinary Clinic at (859) 623-0008. The grant will cover the cost of the spay/neuter as well as rabies, basic vaccinations, and ear-tipping for the cat.

Upon completion of the spay or neuter, the Clinic will release the cat back to the citizen who will return the community cat to their original location.

The goal is to reduce Madison County's community pet population in a safe and responsible manner. The average female community cat gives birth three times a year with a litter of approximately three surviving kittens over a lifespan of 15 years. This means the average community cat can birth up to 135 kittens in its lifetime.

"This is a great opportunity for us to control the community cat population," Madison County Animal Shelter Director Katie Tibbs said. "As a shelter, we receive numerous calls regarding cat colonies and spay and neuter is one of the best ways to reduce these populations."

The other counties that were chosen for the project include Anderson, Boyle, Clark, Estill, Franklin, Garrard, Harrison, Lincoln, Mercer, and Powell counties.

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:
Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Giving back to the blue

The Berea Police Department accepted a donation totaling $2,600 from "Berea Backs the Blue" for its charity programs earlier this week at Berea City Hall. "Berea Backs the Blue" is represented by Bill Moore, Jason Kenworthy and Tina McIntosh. Berea Police Department Chief Eric Scott, accepting a check from McIntosh, is joined by officers Amanda Chitwood, Austin Davis and Matt Kenney. A "Berea Backs the Blue" march was held on Aug. 1 and more marches are planned in the region to support law enforcement officers.

Berea Home Village repairs window

Mike Wallace installed a new window for Jeffrey Wick, a member of Berea Home Village (BHV). Jeffrey's window was broken in a strong storm and was letting water into his trailer.

With poor mobility and low income, Jeffrey's Berea Home Village annual membership fee of $300 is paid from donations to cover membership for folks like Jeffrey.

We do not want anyone to be without the service who needs it.

Most handyman type jobs are done for members by volunteers, but when the job is more entailed, BHV-recommended paid providers are called in.

The cost for this window and repair was $234.26. A generous $500 grant from Madison County Community Fund has assisted BHV to provide a vital service to one of our members during the pandemic.

White House Clinics take part in national 'health center week'

White House Clinics is holding several virtual and in-person events throughout the service area to mark National Health Center Week (NHCW) which runs through Saturday.

The events are part of "an annual celebration with the goal of raising awareness about the mission and accomplishments of America's health centers over the past five decades."

Community Health Centers (CHCs) are key to ensuring everyone can access affordable, quality healthcare. One in every nine Kentuckians receive primary care services from nearby CHCs.

While they are are locally run, health centers are part of a national network that serves nearly 30 million people nation-wide.

CHCs save American taxpayers $24 billion a year in healthcare costs by preventing and managing chronic diseases. CHCs, like White House Clinics, are more than ordinary medical clinics; they are problem solvers who look beyond medical charts to address the factors that may cause poor health, such as poverty, homelessness, substance use, mental illness, lack of nutrition, and unemployment.

Governor Andy Beshear issued a proclamation recognizing August 9-14, 2020 as Community Health Center Week in the state of Kentucky.

In the proclamation, the Governor notes "Community Health Centers and their teams of dedicated healthcare workers develop new approaches to integrating a wide range of services beyond primary care, including oral health, vision, behavioral health, and pharmacy services, to meet the needs and challenges of their local communities…"

Beshear encourages Kentuckians to familiarize themselves "with Community Health Centers, the services they provide, and the communities they serve."

David Bolt, Chief Executive Officer of the Kentucky Primary Care Association said "CHCs are an essential, extremely valuable component of our healthcare system. They are located in underserved communities and treat patients without regard to the patients' ability to pay."

Community Health Centers across the nation have consistently provided primary care to patients prior to and during the COVID-19 pandemic and will be key to the recovery of our nation in the coming months and years.

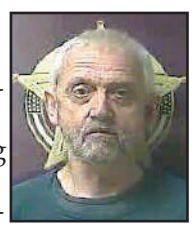
Man arrested for sex crimes found dead

By Keith Taylor
Citizen Publisher

One of three men arrested on child sex charges earlier this month was found dead at his home Saturday afternoon.

Stephen Pulsford, 61, arrested on sex crime charges by Kentucky State Police on Aug. 4, was discovered deceased at 108 Lorraine Court. No foul play was suspected.



Pulsford

Pulsford was charged with distribution of a matter portraying a minor in a sexual performance.

Pulsford had been serving as an associate professor at Berea College.

Berea College President Lyle Roelofs and Dean of Faculty Matt Saderholm issued a statement on the death of faculty member Stephen Pulsford Monday morning.

"Berea College regrets to announce that Dr. Stephen Pulsford, Associate Professor of English, died suddenly this past weekend," the college said in a message to faculty and staff. "Dr. Pulsford had been a member of the faculty since 1995. He was a former chair of the Department of English and specialized in Victorian literature. His loss will be deeply felt by his family and close friends, and we ask that you keep them in mind in their grief."

In a statement from the college following his arrest earlier this month, college officials were "shocked at the news and completely unaware of the circumstances leading to Pulsford's arrest."

Joshua M. Hensley, 30 and Bradeley S. Helton also were arrested and also are facing child sex charges.

The arrest of Pulsford and the two others were the result of undercover Internet Crimes Against Children investigations.

The KSP Electronic Crime Branch began the investigations after discovering the suspects promoting the sexual performance of a minor or sharing images of child sexual exploitation online.

School opening delayed

Madison County Schools to open new year online

By Keith Taylor
Citizen Publisher

The classrooms at Shannon Johnson Elementary School sat empty earlier this week.

Students were scheduled to return for in-person session next week, but faculty and staff will have to wait longer to greet students after the Madison County School Board voted to delay in-person instruction during a meeting last week in Richmond.

The board set the return date for Aug. 26 recently, with an in-person option but decided to delay students returning to the classroom until a mandate set forth by Kentucky Governor Andy Beshear is lifted on Monday, Sept. 28. A recent rise in COVID-19 cases in the state resulted in a recommendation from Beshear to delay classroom instruction until Sept. 28. The first day of school has been set for Sept. 2.

The board decided to delay in-person classes under advisement from legal counsel and following a meeting with the Kentucky Department of Education on Thursday. Students will choose between Option 2 (interactive distance learning) and Option 3 (independent distance learning) for the first few weeks of school.

Students who chose in-person instruction "will be contacted beginning next week with further details for the start of school."

"We understand the frustration and inconvenience this

The hallways at Shannon Johnson Elementary School were empty this week and students who chose in-person instruction won't be returning until at least Sept. 28. Election 2020 guide

Mail absentee ballot

- Kentuckians concerned with contracting or spreading COVID-19 can request a ballot by mail.
- An online portal will launch Friday to allow Kentuckians to request a ballot by mail. Ballots can be requested through the portal through Oct. 9, and through traditional means after.
- Mail ballots must be postmarked by Election Day, Nov. 3, and received by Nov. 6.
- Drop boxes will be available for Kentuckians to return their mail ballots if they are concerned about postal delays. County clerks will determine these locations.

Early voting

- Beginning Oct. 13, three weeks before the election, every workday between Oct. 13 and Election Day, and every Saturday for at least four hours, every county clerk will provide a location for safe in-person voting.
- Early voting is not absentee voting – anyone can vote early for any reason.

Election Day

- County election officials will decide election sites on Election Day.

The State Board of Elections, Secretary of State and Governor will approve each plan.

- Every county will have at least one voting super-center, where everyone from the county can go to vote, regardless of his or her precinct.

Voter identification

- Kentuckians who were unable to get a driver's licenses or photo ID due to the pandemic because their clerk's office was closed, or because they were afraid of exposing themselves to COVID-19, can sign a document explaining this concern and cast their ballot.

Billie Faye Hughes Pool

Billie Faye Hughes Pool, 93, gently completed her home-going on Thursday, 13, August 2020, at Mesa Springs Healthcare Center in Abilene, Texas, where she had lived for the last few years. Billie's parents, Karl Leslie Earl Hughes and Lela Pearle (Eaton) Hughes, brought Billie into the world on 14 August 1926 in Rotan, Fisher County, Texas. Billie completed elementary school at Cedar Point School, a few miles east of Seminole, Texas, later graduating from Seminole High School on 28 May 1943.

Billie's survivors include many family-members: her daughter, Karen Dansby, and her spouse Richard Dansby, of Abilene, Texas; her son, Jeff B. Pool, and his spouse Laurinda Pool, of Richmond, Kentucky; her daughter-in-law, Glenna Pool, of Perryton, Texas; Kristen (Pool) Edgeller, a granddaughter, and her husband, Joseph Edgeller, of Tulsa, Oklahoma; Jonathan Pool, a grandson, and his spouse Lindsay Pool, of Chicago, Illinois; Jeremy Dansby, a grandson, and his spouse Janette Dansby, of Austin, Texas; John Dansby, a grandson, of Austin, Texas; Christopher Pool, a grandson, of Arlington, Texas; Katie (Pool) Ground, a granddaughter, and her spouse Michael, of Manford, Oklahoma; nine great-grandchildren; Juanda (Hughes) Wiseman, a sister, of Lubbock, Texas; Jimmie (Hughes) Williams, a sister, of Seminole, Texas; Karl Don Hughes, a brother, and his spouse Sandra, of Seminole, Texas; and numerous loving nieces, nephews, cousins, and dear friends. Her husband, Lee Rogers Pool, Jr., and her youngest son, David Bryan Pool, preceded her in death.

When Billie returned with her children to Seminole in the early 1960s, she worked for several years as a Radio Dispatcher for the Gaines County Sherriff's Department. In 1963, she married Lee Rogers Pool. In 1991, after many years of working together for Singleton Funeral Home, Roger and Billie started their own business, Roger Pool Funeral Home (now Ratliff Funeral Home), eventually constructing their own building, in Seminole, Texas. After developing a successful business, they sold their business several years later. Billie continued to serve as consultant to the corporation that bought their business for ten years before she retired fully from work.

Throughout her life, as she faced difficulties and struggles, Billie drew strength, support, and healing from the faith, love, and hope that God had planted in her as a child. Billie actively served the community of Seminole for decades, both through the business that she and Roger built, but also through her extensive spiritual and material expressions of concern and love for people and families in need. She also taught Sunday School for many years at both South Seminole Baptist Church and First Baptist Church in Seminole.

Billie, an avid reader, who loved animals, especially hummingbirds, her dogs, her cats, and her Sun Conure, Sunny, also loved music, having learned to play the piano by ear. She organized and played the piano for many "singings" in her home, with many good friends and relatives, for decades.

Given the current pandemic, for now, the family had an interment service at the Gaines County Memorial Cemetery, under the direction of Ratliff Funeral Home in Seminole, on Saturday, 15 August 2020. The family will hold a memorial service for Billie at a later time.

Berea City Council

Third Juneteenth Resolution tabled

By Andy McDonald
For the Citizen

The Berea City Council unanimously voted to table the proposed Juneteenth Resolution after the third iteration of the measure was rejected Tuesday night.

The latest version of the resolution contained references to the Declaration of Independence and the Emancipation Proclamation, in addition to passages about the Juneteenth celebration commemorating the end of slavery in America. But citizens and council members noted the latest draft fell short because it contained inaccuracies and did not make reference to the Black Lives Matter political movement that was spurred after the death of George Floyd at the hands of Minneapolis police.

Said Berea City Councilman John Payne: "After reading the resolution several times, I tried to do my homework and also discuss it with members of the community, and one of the biggest issues with this version of the Juneteenth Resolution is that it simply doesn't reach out to the African American community. Certainly it acknowledges and credits white men for writing the Declaration of Independence, the Emancipation proclamation, and Order 3 delivered by General Gordon, but the agency of the black community is hardly mentioned except to say that they celebrated Juneteenth. While Juneteenth is recognized as the day that they were told they were free, for many, freedom would not come until much later," Payne told the council. "A Juneteenth Resolution should be used to recognize the journey from statements of equality towards the practice of equality. For the last 160 years or so the African American community has risen up through oppression from Jim Crow, Day Law, segregation, red-lining and much more. Open discrimination continued well into the 1960s while systemic issues remain to this day, and the goal of equity and true equality continues to be sought. None of that is represented in this resolution."

Payne's motion to indefinitely table the item ended in a 4-4 vote as Payne, Emily LaDouceur, Steve Caudill and David Rowlette voted in favor. Jerry Little, Cora Jane Wilson, Jim Davis and Ronnie Terrill voted against it, and Mayor Bruce Fraley voted no to keep the discussion going.

Steve Caudill then tried to table the item until June 1, 2021. He suggested by delaying the resolution, the council could actually commemorate the celebration in the month it was intended. Terrill, Little, Rowlette, Little and Wilson voted against tabling, while Caudill, LaDouceur and Payne voted in favor.

What caused the third version to be tabled were alleged historic inaccuracies in the text cited by both citizens and officials. LaDouceur suggested the item should be raised in a work session to correct the text. Jim Davis motioned to raise it again on Sept. 1 to make corrections.

The council approved that motion unanimously.

The topic came up again during council comments when Cora Jane Wilson and Emily LaDouceur disagreed on the issue. Wilson noted she was not the one who drafted the latest version, stating the latest draft was actually given to her by a citizen. Wilson also stood by her claim that leaders of the Black Lives Matter movement are influenced by Marxist ideology, a statement LaDouceur said was flatly untrue. Both Wilson and LaDouceur urged citizens do their own research on that particular issue.

In other action, the council voted to reject the latest round of bids for the multi-use pavilion on Chestnut Street. City Administrator David Gregory said the move was necessary to alter technical language regarding the prevailing wage scale for the contract, which will receive USDA funds.

Mayor Bruce Fraley introduced a proclamation recognizing the 100th anniversary of the adoption of the 19th Amendment, which gave American women the right to vote. Joyce Mosher and Sue Blyth were on hand at the virtual ceremony to accept the proclamation on behalf of the Berea Woman's Club.

Dr. Louisa Summers urged the city to develop signage at local trails, such as the Pinnacles, to encourage tourists to spend more money in town. Summers said 74 percent of visitors to the Pinnacles are from out of town, and that the city should do more to seize that economic opportunity to help boost local businesses. Mayor Fraley pledged the city's cooperation to add signage that will direct hikers to local restaurants. Summers said there were an estimated 80,000 users of the Pinnacles last year.

Mayor Fraley read a proclamation recognizing the contributions of educators during the COVID-19 pandemic. The measure was suggested by John Payne.

The council unanimously voted to extend an electric rate study for Berea Municipal Utilities until October. Utilities Director Kevin Howard said the delay was needed for the city's consultant, Catalyst Consulting, to gather more data.

The City of Berea is still open for appointment only due to the pandemic. Four employees recently tested positive for the virus, officials said, and the city continues to exercise precautions.

Civility in society matters

Keith Taylor

I never had a party line growing up, but heard plenty of stories about how gossip, rumors and lies spread from one house to another, simply by eavesdropping.

Despite the absence of social media, those stories spread pretty quickly and eventually they were twisted and turned into a falsehood before anyone knew it, based on what "somebody said" according to what "someone else said."

Although landline phones and party lines are pretty much a thing of the past in today's society, we still have "party line" stories traveling along the "Super Information Highway."

Social media — Facebook, Twitter and other platforms – have replaced those old phones and opinions, assumptions and all kinds of falsehoods to fit a certain narrative appear all across the internet.

Sometimes there are truths, lies and sometimes manipulative schemes to pull you into a particular story or post.

It's easier now more than ever to type your thoughts, get it out of your system and hurl a fastball from your keyboard to the computer screen in a matter of seconds without giving it a second thought.

Some of those comments and opinions, if you will, can be downright ugly, no matter what side of the fence you reside on. I wonder if those could be relayed in face-to-face form as opposed to typed words that debate topics such as COVID-19 and other hot button issues of our day.

Everyone is entitled to their opinion and that's part of living in a free society, but sometimes it can get out of hand. Respect for differing opinions is seemingly hard to come by these days and has been replaced with the, "I'm right and you're wrong" way of thinking. People spend more time trying to prove themselves right rather than agree to disagree.

Some of those opinions are based on truths and falsehoods, depending on what you want to believe and the source of your information.

A good, useful tip is to consider the source, and trust but verify before spreading the link from your social media page to share with others.

Civility still matters and we need more of it in our society.

"I agree with their choice. We are still not stable in the number of positive cases here in Kentucky yet."

Levi Gentry

" I agree. I would plan on going the virtual route until this pandemic is over."

Hubbard: Do we care?

Dear Editor:

We're all concerned when we see no masks or social distancing. I'm an old 87-year-old RN who is familiar with germs and viruses.

The average public knows what risk they are in. I've said no to relatives to visit me from Michigan, also and refusing family Birthday parties, sadly, but I also believe in mine and their constitutional rights to keep all of us safe and healthy.

Now, it's been learned by our doctors that more children under 5-years-old are asymptomatic, and carriers for the virus and even 1- and 2-month old babies are dying.

It is obvious few tune into TV at 4 p.m., to hear Dr. Stack and our knowledgeable health department people. Our Madison County Health Department is doing a wonderful job for watching out for us.

With another three-day Labor Day holiday coming, I know our county and state will surge again- 11 days after Labor Day. Madison County doubled their positive cases, and now nearing 500 cases.

Sports players are not concerned it seems, as TV shows us the number of cases in Aug. in football and soccer, and many schools having none. Players careless?

I read now that child abuse has increased as they have been out of school so long. They don't have the food, or help with teachers who worry about them, an/or not seeing their counselors. Spouse abuse up and alcohol abuse. Now doctors are seeing more lasting health problems after one recovers, with lung blood clots, and kidney problems. 0.8 percent of new UK students arrived on campus to enroll, tested positive for the virus.

When I was 11 years-old, during the WWII 1942-1945, each family had a coupon/book for each member of our family - could use one stamp for a pair of shoes a year. Nobody objected or complained. That's one pair a year for school, church, and play, and my shoes had cardboard in them for the holes I had in them. It was patriotic and Christian. We knew the soldiers needed the leather on the front lines, and I had seven uncles and cousins in the war.

I continue to pray for all the police and firemen, and people on the front line, all in harm's way.

Kentucky is lucky to have a governor who is caring and smart, and listens to the scientists for guidelines. I'm so glad Lee and I chose Berea to retire 27 years ago.

I care — it comes down to, do we all care? One for all, all for one? Do you care?

Joyce Hubbard, R.N.

Band-Aids and mirrors

Roger Alford

Maybe you heard about the husband who didn't want his wife to know he'd been out on the town drinking again. When he got home, he sneaked as quietly as he could up the stairs. He looked in the bathroom mirror and bandaged the bumps and bruises he'd received in a fight earlier that night. He then got into bed, smiling at the thought that he'd pulled one over on his wife.

When morning came, he opened his eyes and there stood his wife. "You were drunk last night weren't you!"

"No, honey," he replied innocently.

"Well, if you weren't, then who put all the Band-Aids on the bathroom mirror?"

I've always felt sorry for women whose husbands feel compelled to booze it up. It's not an easy life, worrying about them constantly. What kind of trouble will they get into next? Will they hurt themselves in a car crash, or, worse, will they hurt someone else? Will they offend the neighbors or embarrass the family?

There are times when our hearts should be so burdened for those we love that our minds can think of nothing else, a time when we feel driven to pray without ceasing.

But, you say, the Bible tells us we are not to worry about anything. What I'm telling you is there is a huge difference between a healthy concern for those we love and unhealthy worry.

Out of great concern for the Israelites, Moses once prayed for 40 days and nights without stopping. Deuteronomy 9 tells us he did so because those people had become so very rebellious that he feared the Lord would destroy them.

When those we love get off track, we need to be concerned enough to pray like Moses did. The Lord wants to hear from us. And we should want to hear from Him.

I'm reminded of a little deaf boy named Grayson Clamp who, as a 3-year-old back in 2013, underwent an experimental surgery in North Carolina to allow him to hear. Cameras were rolling when little Grayson heard his father's voice for the first time. The look of delight on the little fellow's face was priceless. Millions of people watched the heartwarming video.

There's truly nothing as beautiful as the voice of one we love. We can be assured the Lord is absolutely thrilled to hear from us in prayer, because he loves us so very much. And when he speaks to our hearts, I hope our eyes will always light up the way little Grayson's did the day he heard his father's voice.

The Lord is so gracious to us that he will sometimes send us reminders that he wants to hear from us. Band-Aids on the mirror might just do it.

DELAY

decision causes the majority of families in our community," Madison County Schools said on its Facebook page. "And we hope you all know how immensely disappointed we are to postpone in-person instruction."

The school system added that is remains "committed to our belief that in-person instruction is what is best for kids, especially after being isolated for such a long period of time.

"We will continue to prepare to have students in the buildings as quickly as possible and will welcome them with the same enthusiasm no matter what date the calendar reads."

"Thank you for your support as we make these extremely difficult and often unfair decisions.

"We are so grateful for this community."

Robert New disagreed with the decision to delay in-person instruction.

"This will further damage public education in the eyes of taxpayers and lead to a movement toward more private schools," he said. "Kids need stability and consistency.

"This constant jerking people around pretending the virus will magically disappear or a miracle vaccine is developed isn't doing anyone any good."

Peggy Coyne said in-person learning should be delayed to open the school year.

"They are listening to the expert's recommendations," she said. "As the local numbers are rising, they are taking the health of the community into account.

Angie Carl Alexander trusted their judgement.

"I have complete faith in our school board and Superintendent," she said. "I would follow anywhere they lead.

"They love our kids and teachers and are doing the absolute best job they can in a unique situation."

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:
Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers w appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

This week in history

• The official acknowledgement that gave women the right to vote came to a successful resolution 100 years ago this month. After the state of Tennessee ratified the 19th Amendment on August 18, 1920, the two-thirds requirement to make it law was satisfied. Eight days later, the Constitution was formally modified to reflect the change.

Historical documentation shows that the suffrage movement started in 1848 when Elizabeth Cady Stanton and Lucretia Mott organized a meeting of 200 suffragists in Seneca Falls, NY, and adopted a resolution: "it is the duty of the women of this country to secure to themselves their sacred right to the elective franchise."

However, there is strong evidence that the notion of voting rights for women might have begun even earlier, before America's independence. In a March 31, 1776 letter written by Abigail Adams to her husband, John Adams, the nation's future second president, she wrote "If perticuliar care and attention is not paid to the Ladies we are determined to foment a Rebelion and will not hold ourselves bound by any Laws in which we have no voice, or Representation."

• On August 21, 1959, another star was added to the American flag. President Dwight D. Eisenhower signed a proclamation, which admitted Hawaii into the union as the 50th state.

Swords resigns at Berea for 'dream job' at Williamsburg

By Mike Moore
For The Citizen

After four years at the helm of the Berea Pirates boys' basketball team, Coach Eric Swords is heading home to Williamsburg.

Swords agreed to become the new head coach of the Yellow Jackets in his hometown. Swords called it his "dream job" as he starred at Williamsburg High School for four seasons in the early 2000s.

"It was a tough decision because we have a lot of guys coming back this year," Swords said. "Those guys poured everything into the program, as I did, so it was tough to leave Berea. The main factor was being able to go back home. My wife and I talked about the chance to go back and give back to the community we grew up in, and we decided to do that."

Swords, who graduated from Williamsburg in 2004, will carry fond memories of Berea, both on and off the court.

"Berea has been a great place," he said. "Professionally, I've grown so much in the classroom. I am grateful to (former principal) Donna Lovell and (athletics director) Jerry Bingham for allowing me to be a teacher and coach at Berea. I've grown so many ways in the classroom with teaching, and also as a coach.

"Many times, the coach gets too much credit, but it's been mutual with the kids I've had. I've learned just as much from them about being a better person, and all of us strived hard to do that," he continued. "The entire community has been great to us."

In a Facebook post, Swords thanked the players he coached during his time.

"The last four years we have poured our hearts and souls into this program, school, and community," he wrote. "No team in the state played harder than the Berea Pirates. I love each of you and will always be just one call away. To the parents, thank you for the support and allowing me to coach your sons hard and each of them accountable.

The Pirates improved every year under Swords, going 66-53, including a 40-23 record over the last two seasons. He guided the Pirates to a 22-win season last season, and a berth in the 11th Region Tournament, the school's first appearance since 2006.

Swords rejuvenated Berea basketball, Bingham said.

"Coach Swords and his staff did a tremendous job over his four year reign as the Pirate head coach and has brought back a lot of excitement to our program," he said. "Our kids loved playing for him and he and his staff did a great job of motivating them to play hard. He is one of the top young coaches in the State and will be hard to replace, but I know going back home was very important for Coach Swords and his family. We wish them nothing but the best and appreciate all the dedication and hard work he put into our school, student-athletes and the athletic program."

SEC doing its part to keep football alive

By Keith Taylor
Citizen Publisher

Commentary

I breathed a sigh of relief when the Southeastern Conference released its upcoming football schedule on Monday night.

The league did a remarkable job ripping up the old slate and piecing together a new one in less than two weeks to keep hope alive for college football this season. It took creativity and teamwork by the leagues's athletic directors and coaches to make that happen in such a short period of time.

In a time when the Pac-12 and the Big 10 and several other mid-major conferences postponed the season, the Southeastern Conference elected to receive the kickoff rather than defer to the spring. It remains to be seen which leagues made the right call, but at least the SEC is making an attempt to resume life as it was before the coronavirus struck the heart and soul of our state, nation and our world.

Sure the task will be risky and nothing is for certain, especially when facing an invisible enemy. However, giving the season a try is just what the nation needs after being being stuck in neutral since the SEC men's basketball tournament was canceled last March.

What transpired during the last couple of weeks is what could be a wave of the future with 10 SEC games, which also would include a pair of non-conference contests next year and beyond. In Kentucky's case, that may include a season-opener against a non-conference foe, such as schools from the Mid-American Conference, the Ohio Valley Conference and perhaps Conference USA and what has now become the traditional regular-season finale against instate rival Louisville.

Because of the ongoing COVID-19 pandemic, there will be fewer fans in the stands, meaning less revenue for each member institution. Going the 10-game route in the league next season and beyond will result in better conference matchups as opposed to undesirable non-conference games, especially during the first half of the season.

At first glance, Kentucky's schedule is packed in the back. The Wildcats are at Alabama on Nov. 21, followed by another road contest at Florida. The Crimson Tide is predicted to win the SEC West, while the Gators are one of the favorites in the East.

The home games, especially the first two, against Mississippi and Mississippi State, respectively, should be fun. Lane Kiffin, in his first season at Ole Miss, will return to Kroger Field for the first time since his short stint at Tennessee, while former Kentucky assistant coach and Hal Mumme protege, Mike Leach, makes his first visit to Lexington as an opposing coach.

Kentucky also hosts Georgia, Vanderbilt and South Carolina, both of which are Eastern Division foes. The Bulldogs, along with Florida, are predicted among the top two teams in the SEC East.

After playing a full slate of games in October, the Wildcats get an open date to start November, which couldn't have come at a better time after playing six straight weeks, including five contests in October.

Now that the schedule is complete, it's time to start looking ahead to football this fall.

Second COVID-19 death reported

By Keith Taylor
Citizen Publisher

The Madison County Health Department reported a second COVID-19-related death in Madison County last Friday.

"Our thoughts and prayers are with the friends and family as they mourn the loss of their loved one during this difficult time," Madison County Judge-Executive Reagan Taylor. "The passing of yet another Madison Countian is a reminder that the virus is still very present in our community. I continue to encourage citizens to make responsible choices, as recommended by the CDC and our local Health Department, to reduce the spread of COVID-19."

Since the pandemic began in March, there have been more than 1,164 cases reported in Madison County. As of Tuesday, 26 new cases were

3-D cross walk

A and B's of making honey

By Mike Moore/For The Citizen

Beekeeping began as a curiosity for Berea's Bart Bowman in 2017. It wasn't long before Bowman's daughter, Abby, began helping him with his hives, and soon the pair began producing local honey under the label of A and B Bees.

At first, the honey was for his family, but over the past few years, the Bowmans have been producing the sweet, sticky bee product in their barn off Dale Road.

"I started with two hives," Bart said. "We quickly became addicted to it, and now

Fiscal Court drops tax rate

By Andy McDonald/For The Citizen

The Madison County Fiscal Court accepted the compensating rate for ad valorem tax rates for 2020, while other taxing districts either followed suit or kept their rates the same as last year. In some cases, that means county residents will be paying slightly less than last year.

In a unanimous vote at Tuesday's Fiscal Court teleconference meeting, officials reduced the 2020 rates for real property from 8.3 cents per $100 of

Drive Sober

The Madison County Sheriff's Office is currently joining the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) and law enforcement throughout the nation for the "Drive Sober or Get Pulled Over" campaign Aug. 21 to Sept. 7.

We aggressively watch for impaired drivers year-round, but by joining this effort, we will make our roadways safer during the heavily-traveled Labor Day holiday.

There were more than 4,700 total collisions involving an impaired driver in Kentucky last year, resulting in more than 2,200 injuries and 138 deaths. During the Labor Day holiday weekend, there were 56 crashes involving an impaired driver, resulting in 30 injuries and two deaths.

We hope this campaign will serve as a reminder to make smart choices before getting behind the wheel, and if someone chooses to drive while under the influence of any substance, they will be arrested.

According to NHTSA, on average, there is one alcohol-impaired driving-related fatality every 50 minutes across America.

EPA ID #KY8-213-820-105, AI #2805
Tentative Approval of two Hazardous Waste Permit Modifications

The Kentucky Energy and Environment Cabinet (Cabinet), Division of Waste Management (Division), has tentatively approved two modifications to the existing hazardous waste permit for the Blue Grass Army Depot (BGAD). Both modifications are for the chemical weapon disposal facility known as the Blue Grass Chemical Agent-Destruction Pilot Plant (BGCAPP).

- VX Projectile Permit Modification. A modification to permit the transportation, storage, and treatment of VX projectiles at the chemical weapons treatment facility Main Plant. VX agent will be drained from projectiles and destroyed by utilizing neutralization followed by supercritical water oxidation. Drained projectile bodies will be thermally treated to destroy any residual agent.
- EDT Storage Permit Modification. A modification to permit the storage of H mustard projectiles and secondary hazardous waste at the Explosive Destruction Technology (EDT) Facility in the EDT Enclosure Building (EEB).

The U.S. Army is the owner of the permitted facility. BGAD is located at 431 Battlefield Memorial Highway, Richmond, Kentucky. The BGAD facility contact is Joe Elliott (859-779-6021). Bechtel Parsons Blue Grass Joint Venture (BPBG) is the operator of BGCAPP. The BPBG contact is John McArthur (859-625-6447).

What will be done and why?

The hazardous waste regulations require that proposed hazardous waste permits or modifications include a thorough review of all required information to ensure that all program requirements are met, and that all interested parties have an opportunity to review and comment upon the proposed actions. The Division has completed a review of the respective permit applications and has prepared draft permit modifications. The draft Permit sets forth conditions for conducting the hazardous waste operations. The Division has determined that the applications meet the requirements set forth in the regulations, and that operation of the facilities in accordance with the requirements of the Permit will not pose an unreasonable risk to human health or the environment.

The permit modifications includes detailed conditions required under the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act (RCRA) and the Commonwealth of Kentucky statutes and regulations to ensure protectiveness of human health and the environment.

A fact sheet with more information about the proposed modifications is available upon request.

How can I tell the Division what I think about this tentative approval?

Public involvement is encouraged and comments are welcome. Anyone wishing to comment on the tentative decision to approve these permitting actions should submit comments on or before October 7, 2020, the close of the public comment period. Due to the Covid-19 pandemic, a public meeting will not be conducted. Anyone desiring a public hearing should mail their request to Brandon May, Kentucky Energy and Environment Cabinet, Division of Waste Management, 300 Sower Boulevard, Second Floor, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601 before the close of the public comment period.

Comments or requests for further information on the Permit Modification should be mailed to Brandon May, Kentucky Energy and Environment Cabinet, Division of Waste Management, 300 Sower Boulevard, Second Floor, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601, with all issues of concern clearly stated. Electronic comments should be submitted to brandon.may@ky.gov, 502-782-7010. All comments received by the close of the public comment period noted above will be considered when making a final decision on the proposed permitting actions. Anyone submitting comments will be sent a "response to public comments" document specifying any changes made or not made, with the reasons why, as a result of the comment(s) submitted. Any person who may be aggrieved by the final decision on these proposed permit modifications may file with the cabinet a petition which sets forth the grounds of the objection and demand a hearing pursuant to KRS 224.10-420(2).

Where can I review the documents used to make these tentative decisions?

— The First Amendment

100th anniversary — 19th amendment

We've come a long way

It's hard to believe women had to fight for their right to vote in this country.

It took decades for that to happen.

This month marks the 100th anniversary of the ratification of the 19th amendment, which gave women full voting privileges in the United States.

Prior to ratification by three-fourths of the states, including Kentucky, supporters of woman suffrage fought for their right to vote begging in the 1800s.

The amendment was first introduced to Congress in 1878 and didn't pass until more than four decades later.

Keith Taylor

Largely because of the 19th amendment, a lot has transpired in the last 100 years. Women now not only can voice their choice at the polls, they are leaders in the work force, involved government and politics, daily decision makers and have come a long way in one century.

Today, the eight-member Berea City Council has two sitting members — Cora Jane Wilson and Emily LaDouceur — and Kentucky has a female Lt. Governor in Jacqueline Coleman.

Coleman's predecessor was Jenean Hampton, who served as GOP Governor Matt Bevin's second in command.

Martha Laye Collins was elected Kentucky's first female Governor in 1984 and women serve in various roles in local, state and national government both in elected and appointed capacity.

Hillary Clinton ran for President four years ago and Democratic Presidential candidate Joe Biden chose Kamala Harris to be his running mate in the oncoming presidential election.

The late John McCain's running mate in 2008 was former Alaska Governor Sarah Palin.

Both parties have done a excellent job of including women in high-ranking public offices and voters have equally acknowledged that women are more than capable of filling roles once dominated by their male counterparts.

We've come a long way in the past 100 years and it's a tribute to the women across this great country who made that happen way before our time.

Becky Johnson

Sowder: Police heroic at mall

Editor: As people were running frantically with their family and friends through the Fayette Mall parking lot on Sunday and people were speeding away in their cars, there were a group of people I saw first-hand running full speed into an apparent active shooter scene.

Those group of people were the police — those same policemen and women who were recently cursed at, spit on, etc. during recent protests in Lexington. They ran into a crowded shopping mall with a report of multiple shots and possibly multiple shooters and victims. They ran in without second thought to protect and serve every single person in that mall without regard to race, religion, etc.

• Imagine a scene like Sunday and nobody shows up because we've defunded the police.

• Imagine your family member being shot or a victim inside and nobody coming to help.

• Imagine your loved one taking shelter in the storage area of Foot Locker and no one coming to help.

Richie Sowder, Berea

Coffey: City Council race crucial

Editor: It's only a few weeks until we vote. It seems like in Berea, we fight the same fight every 2 years. The goal — hold the majority on Berea City Council. In no other city council race in the state, is a race for a small town watched so closely. Every other town wonders, "Will they give up this time?" "Will they be overcome by the huge 'Outside Influence' looming in the ridges of town" "Did they build too many trails this time?".

All we can do is go vote. And let a Conservative council member or one of the two potential conservative voices now running for a seat put a sign in your yard. Write a letter of support to the local paper. Donate some campaign funding to them. Get some of their paraphernalia and display it or wear it proudly. Discuss this election at breaktime and around the water cooler. Clue your neighbors and family and friends in. This is too important a choice to allow the Liberal/Progressives to win any seat.

People need to understand that their taxes always increase, waste increases, "free programs" increase and Berea grows poorer and poorer each time we elect a bunch of "Progressives." We've already spent a decade and a half and $15,000,000 on "Tourism" in Berea, with nothing but a handful of empty buildings we owe $$$ on to show for it. We have not had a new factory move here in over 15 years. We don't even make the potential newcomers in industry's "short lists".

If you don't know who the conservative incumbents are — Cora Jane Wilson, Jerry Little, Ronnie Terrill, Jim Davis and David Rowlette. The two newcomer candidates with conservative ties are Donnie Scalf and Teresa Scenters. That gives us 7. Steve Caudill's not a bad choice either, though he often entertains the ideals of, and votes with, the liberal-progressives on the council. There is your 8.

A vote for any of them is a vote for increased taxes, spending, regulation, a loss of your rights, and a signal to the rest of the world — "We Have Given Up" Our 1,400 person "March for the Berea Police" indicates to me we have not given up.

Vote for the eight best people we can put up there. Maybe then they can fix your crumbling curbs and stop worrying about the language of a "proclamation" or a "statement" about politics in a far off place -- in a land far, far away. Thank you, and go vote!

Randy Coffey, Berea

Along for the (bumpy) ride

It seems no matter what the subject these days, there are no clear answers or lack of opinions.

Wear a mask, don't wear a mask.

Defund police, defend police.

Reopen schools, keep schools online.

Virus is deadly or virus is overblown.

Diet Coke or Coke Zero.

Trump or Biden.

Mark Maynard

The list goes on and on and on. And on. You know what I'm talking about here.

We're supposed to be better together, except it seems like we can't get it together because there's not much anybody can agree on. Everybody has an opinion – and a Facebook post or tweet on Twitter to give it.

We've become a world of experts on health, the economy, religion, civil unrest, history and education. Social media has become the battleground as the "experts" give their opinion on how to fix any of the above. We are drawn to their nonsense like a moth to a flame.

We can agree on this much: The coronavirus has us losing our minds.

The magnifying glass seems to shift almost day to day and the latest dissection is on our educators who are deciding how to reopen their schools safely in the next 4-6 weeks.

Those school superintendents and school boards are facing difficult decisions on bringing everybody back in person or going online like they did in the spring. Most are choosing a combination of the two, giving parents the option of one or the other.

And if they do choose the return-to-school option, the issue of the face mask covering and the opinions that come with it are diverse.

"I'm not bringing my kids unless everybody wears a mask."

"My kid will never wear a mask."

Welcome to their world. Pastors can sympathize. They've heard similar statements from church members as our houses of worship have been reopening the last couple of months. It's impossible to please everybody. Educators know it and so do pastors.

My wife, her mother, her two sisters and my daughter were or are educators. They all agree that educating our children is going to look a lot different going forward. They also agree that keeping a mask on small children – or older ones for that matter – for eight hours is asking too much.

Even in public spaces, where masks are now supposed to be worn in Kentucky, people aren't being asked to wear them all day long. At church, we wore them in and wore them out. But as long as we were social distancing the mask could be removed. It's the same at school, but can the desks be spread six feet apart and still get 30 in a classroom? Can the first-grade teacher stay six feet away from children who are calling her mom?

There's no such thing as no danger but we have to figure out a way for kids to return to school in the safest way possible. It's imperative to their social and emotional health and to the sanity of parents who are finding out the teacher is a very valuable person in their children's lives. Many parents became the teacher in the spring, so they have a newfound respect for them.

Our schools need to reopen so our economy can reopen more. Parents of children are the workforce. They can't be that if they teacher-sit at home, making sure everybody is doing what they're supposed to be doing.

Besides masks, the CDC has recommended schools spread out desks, stagger schedules, have meals in classrooms instead of cafeterias and add physical barriers between bathroom sinks when students return.

And then there's the compromised health of the teachers, who will be on the front-line in crowded school rooms. Some are questioning if it's worth it.

Welcome to 2020. The bumpy ride is far from over.

Beshear won't overturn decision to play fall sports

FRANKFORT (KT) — Gov. Andy Beshear said he will not overturn the decision by the Kentucky High School Athletics Association to begin fall sports practices and allow competition the week of September 7, but will require schools to report positive cases of the coronavirus to state officials.

"It's not because I think it is a good decision or a wise decision," he said during a Capitol press briefing on Monday, "but if we are going to defeat this virus we need people all over Kentucky taking responsibility to make good and wise decisions."

Beshear has concerns, especially with contact sports.

"By starting with some of the most high contact sports, that we risk a shortened season, that we risk what I think can be successful plans to get our kids back in school, that we risk every other sport that's going to follow. We can't be making every decision on what's best for folks out of the Governor's office, and it's going to be incumbent on our superintendents, on coaches, on different groups to make the wisest decisions that they can."

State Public Health Commissioner Dr. Steven Stack said they have created an online survey for schools, which he says asks them to self-report a handful of numbers every day.

"The number of cases among students and staff, the number of quarantined students and staff, and we're just going to put it up on a dashboard," Stack said. "Just four numbers, make it available in real time and ask you to report it every day that school is in session. Then we'll have something available to the public they can go and see, and we'll ask you to put it on your website."payment, during which time the two sides must meet together, to try and work something out.

Practices for football and other fall sports began Monday, with the first football games slated to begin on Friday, Sept. 11.

The Board of Control voted 16-2 in favor of the current schedule that delayed the beginning of fall sports by more than two weeks because of the ongoing COVID-19 pandemic. Golf has already begun and teams have been playing since July.

"There is absolutely no doubt this is going to be the most unusual year we've been through," KHSAA Commissioner Julian Tackett said last Thursday.

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:
Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

This week in history ...

On August 28, 1963 America's most prominent civil rights leader -- Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. – delivered the words that have gone down in history—perhaps—as the most stirring call for the end of racial segregation and discrimination: "I have a dream that one day this nation will rise up and live out the true meaning of its creed: 'We hold these truths to be self-evident: that all men are created equal'."

The event took place in front of the Lincoln Memorial, surrounded by 250,000 persons--the largest audience in the history of the civil rights movement. Later, The New York Times said the speech played an important role in the passage of the 1964 Civil Rights Act and the 1965 Voting Rights Act.

... You're never too old

Growing old is what you make of it, says the Association of Mature American Citizens [AMAC].

Take, Dorothy Pollack who resides in a nursing home in Muskegon, MI. She decided to celebrate her 103rd birthday recently by getting her first tattoo. And then there is Bob Mettauer, of Santa Maria, CA.

He's 95-years-young and is better known by friends and neighbors as "Bicycle Bob." He retired in the 1990s, took up cycling and recently logged his 100,000th mile of biking all these years. Let that be a lesson to you, says the senior advocacy organization: you're never too old.

HONEY

we're up to 72 hives."

Soon, Abby began tagging along with her dad, and after enduring a few stings, Abby, a rising middle school student at Foley Middle School, stuck with it and quickly became just as hooked as her dad.

"The first time I got stung, it scared me a little," she said. "But, when I got my suit, I went in there, and my dad showed me the queen, and I started going through hives to find the queen bees, so I became addicted to it."

The honey-making process all begins with bees.

"It starts with the bees,' Bart explained. "It's called the nectar flow. In the spring, the pollen will start coming off the dandelions, and you also have the maples.

"The real prized honey comes early in the year because it's clear honey. It's called water-white honey. You'll get that off your locust and bush honeysuckle."

Each hive can produce between three and five gallons of honey.

"A gallon weighs 12 pounds, so if you have three gallons, you have 36 pounds of honey," Bart said.

This year, Bart and Abby have worked on building their bee population, but still managed to produce enough honey to fill 200 one-pound squeeze bottles to sell.

Local honey is of higher quality than honey one can buy in a supermarket.

"Honey, you'll buy in stores has been processed," Bart said. "It's been heated and pasteurized. That doesn't need to happen to honey.

"There was honey found in King Tut's tomb that was still editable."

Store-bought honey doesn't have near as much pollen as local, raw honey, Bart said.

"Because it has been super filtered," he said. "That is the great benefit of raw honey. You can taste the difference between local, raw honey, and what you buy in stores."

A vital element in producing raw honey is moisture content. Raw honey should have a moisture content between 17 and 18 percent.

"If the moisture content is between 17 and 18 percent moisture content, the honey will not ruin," Bart said.

"It will crystalize some, which you can put it into warm water, and that will take it back to its liquid state."

If the moisture content gets above 18 percent, it could ferment because of the natural yeast found in honey.

Depending on the area, raw honey can have a different taste, Bart said.

"If you try locust honey, it will have some floral backgrounds taste to it," he said. "That stuff you can get $55 and up for a quart of it.

"It's a rare honey because your bee population is not large during that time, and the locust only blooms for two weeks."

"A friend of mine, Rick Sutton, takes his (bees) down to Florida, and he'll bring his back, and his honey will have some orange notes to it," Bart explained.

Harvesting local honey does take a lot of work, but Bart said that as long as he and Abby enjoy doing it, they would continue producing honey in many summers to come.

"It's a great way to spend some time with my dad," Abby said.

reported and seven are currently being hospitalized. 572 patients have recovered and 583 at home.

In a report by the White House, Madison County was listed among 43 Kentucky counties listed in a yellow zone last week, which includes counties with new cases between 0.1 and 1 per 1,000 and a positive-test rate of 5-10 percent. The number of counties in the yellow zone has increased, from 34-40 to 43 counties during the past three weeks.

On Tuesday, Governor Andy Beshear announced 688 new cases, up from 373 on Monday, bringing the pandemic total to 44,568. Ninety-six of the newly reported cases involved children under the age of 18, which he called a disturbing trend. The state positivity rate increased from 4.77 percent Monday to 5.07 percent Tuesday. Currently 593 Kentuckians are currently in the hospital due to COVID-19, Beshear said, with 151 of them in the ICU and 81 on a ventilator.

"This continues to grow," he said. "The percentage of kids testing positive, and we know not as many kids are being tested.

"With people going back to sports, go get your kid tested. Don't show up at a big group activity if they haven't been tested in the last couple of weeks, please."

The Madison County Health Department continues to urge residents to take actions to reduce the spread of COVID-19 in Madison County and across the Commonwealth. Those actions are:

- frequent hand washing
- avoiding mass gatherings
- maintaining at least a 6-foot distance between yourself and others when in a public space
- wearing a face mask that covers the mouth and nose
- staying home if you are sick
- cooperating with contact tracing investigation

For information about COVID-19, Madison County residents can call (859) 623-7312 or (859) 986-1192, or visit the following recommended links: www.kycovid19.ky.gov, www.cdc.gov, www.madisoncountyhealthdept.org.

A list of COVID-19 testing sites in Madison County remains available on the Madison County Health department webpage.

RATE

property to 8 cents per $100. The rate for tangle property was set at 9 cents per $100 of property.

"Our rate is actually going down this year as the value of our assessments continue to rise, based on our PVA reassessing properties," said Judge/Executive Reagan Taylor. He added the savings would add up to about $3 on a property valued at $100,000.

The court then turned attention to the various taxing districts, in which the respective taxing district boards set rates, then announce their decision to the court. Madison County Health Department Director Nancy Crew announced that district will keep its rate the same as it has been for the last 12 years at 5 cents per $100 of real property, and five cents per $100 of all personal property all motor vehicles.

As for county libraries, that tax rate dropped by a 10th of a cent for the third year in a row, settling at 5.7 cents per $100 of real property, tangible personal property and inventory tax was set at 7 cents per $100, and 3.5 cents per $100 for motor vehicles.

The Madison County EMS tax district dipped slightly from 4.9 cents to 4.8 cents per $100 of real property. The tax on motor vehicles, water craft and tangible property stayed steady at 6 cents per $100.

Meanwhile, the Madison County Extension District voted to keep its tax rate from last year, with a rate of 1.772 cents per $100 of real property and 2.983 cents per $100 of personal property and inventory.

In other action, the court amended the budget to receive federal funds reimbursed to the county for pandemic-related costs. In cooperation with the Kentucky Department of Local Government, the county is eligible for up to $3.1 million in federal relief funds under the CARES act. The county is currently seeking reimbursement of $184,000 in expenditures. The measure was approved unanimously.

The court also unanimously approved a memorandum of understanding with Baptist Health of Richmond to continue helping the hospital to provide free or reduced-cost health care to financially disadvantaged or under-insured individuals.

Baptist Health President Greg Gerard said that through the 340B program, the hospital was able to help low-income patients last year to the tune of $2.2 million worth of care. Financially disadvantaged patients account for slightly less than 25 percent of the hospital's clients, he said. The program allows the hospital to obtain medicine at discounted rates. Baptist Health Richmond needs a government co-sponsor to participate in the program, Gerard noted. "Allowing us to purchase drugs at a discount is a significant benefit for us as we continue to provide health care services to our communities," Gerard said.

Also Tuesday, Madison County Jailer Steve Tussey proposed seeking an energy audit before the Madison County Detention Center makes several hundred thousands of dollars worth of facility upgrades. Tussey noted that the jail currently pays $200,000 for utilities annually, but that an evaluation of the electric, HVAC, and plumbing systems could help the county recover some of its energy costs.

"I understand there's usually a return on investment, maybe long-term, 10 or 15 years, but if we can reduce our footprint on the environment, currently we're paying over $200,000 a year just in utility bills," Tussey said. "If we could reduce that by 15 or 20 percent, then we would actually have a return on our investment."

When Tussey suggested he would send out a request for proposal for energy audit services, Judge Taylor recommended having all of the county facilities audited to explore additional savings on energy costs.

In other action, Windy Oaks Circle and Sunny Oaks Drive road were adopted into the county road plan in a unanimously vote.

On the subject of grant applications, the court unanimously approved recommendations by consultant Tom Webb for two requests for funds. The court approved an application for a litter abatement grant through the Kentucky Energy and Environment Cabinet, Division of Waste Management. Last year the court received $64,000 in funds.

Also approved was an application for Petco Animal Welfare grants, the amount of which is to be announced later.

The next meeting of the Fiscal Court is September 8.
