Mayor urges diligence in COVID-19 fight

City of Berea Mayor Bruce Fraley is urging citizens to continue being vigilant in the fight against COVID-19 infections. Fraley raised the issue during Tuesday's Berea City Council meeting in reference to the passing of local resident Donna Reed, 68, who succumbed to the virus Monday after a weeks-long battle with the disease. Reed was the mother of Berea Citizen Publisher Keith Taylor.

While urging citizens to keep the Taylor-Reed family in their prayers and thoughts, Fraley noted Taylor often shared news of his mother's condition on social media."I think that what he shared with us and his experience and his openness about that really helped us all to better understand CO-

Leaders fight absentee voting confusion

Jay Nolan,
CEO, Nolan Group Media

Voters in Kentucky are now preparing to participate in a major election. But, due to the Covid-19 pandemic, drastic changes in how we vote were made to protect public safety. Rules and procedures this time are very different from anything we have EVER experienced in state history.

Change is always unsettling, and often causes confusion. This election, much confusion has surfaced around absentee ballots.

Ben Chandler, chairman of the Kentucky State Board of Elections, recognized this. With the deadline for requesting absentee ballots, October 9, being just days away, he and his committee wanted to get the facts out. The message had to be communicated fast, accurately, and in a way it would be believed and trusted, without being hacked, altered or misunderstood. How?

Chandler wisely requested a written notice that clearly advertises the simple facts about absentee ballots be placed in over 100 newspapers statewide.

Governor Andy Beshear and Secretary of State Michael Adams have worked together, across party lines, to develop an election plan they both believe is safe, fair, and focuses on helping all eligible Kentuckians vote. By also approving the ad about absentee ballots, they supported the board of elections, reinforced a time-honored role of the Fourth Estate, and proved they want to protect our democratic process.

We in the media often write much, and justly, about political leaders doing illegal or self-serving stuff. Too many times it seems politicians focus more on scoring political points than serving us or solving problems. So, I think we in the media should also give credit when credit is due.

Our Governor, Secretary of State and board of elections are working together. They are put-

The City of Berea welcomes WILDFLOWERS BOUTIQUE

The City of Berea is encouraging reinvestment in historic buildings in order to revitalize Chestnut Street and Old Town. Mayor Bruce Fraley believes that the recent opening of Wildflowers Boutique at 412 Chestnut Street signals progress in that effort. When Berea Mayor Bruce Fraley recently observed the grand opening of Wildflowers Boutique at 412 Chestnut Street, it reminded him of the days when Chestnut Street had a thriving commercial district.

Local government sets guidelines for Trick or Treat

The Richmond City Commission, Madison County Fiscal Court and Berea City Council have agreed to set a "Trick or Treat" time for Saturday, October 31, 2020 from 6:00 PM – 8:00 PM, subject to the following guidelines, which are based on guidance from the Kentucky Public Health Department and advice from the Madison County Director of Public Health.

First, residents wanting to participate in trick or treat should put their porch light on. Residents who prefer not to participate should leave their porch light off during trick or treat hours.

Second, door to door trick or treating is discouraged. Instead, residents who choose to participate should place individually wrapped candy on their porch or on a table in their front yard or driveway;

Third, residents and trick or treaters should follow state guidelines on social distancing, wearing an appropriate face covering, hand washing and sanitizing, and to trick or treat in family groups only (reminder: Halloween costume masks do not count as a face covering). Specific guidance is available at https://www.madisoncountyhealthdept.org/ .

Lastly, all participants should avoid large groups and trick or treat in your own neighborhood while avoiding travel to other neighborhoods.

The Richmond Parks and Recreation Department invites all citizens to the "Halloween Hoedown Drive Thru Event" at Lake Reba Park on Thursday, October 22, from 6 – 8 PM. Vendors will have decorated booths set up along a pre-determined route for you to view and a limited number of goodie gags will be handed out at the end of the route.

In Berea, the Berea Chamber of Commerce and Berea Parks and Recreation Department are busy planning a "Drive Thru Balloon Glow" in the city and "Drive Thru Halloween in the Park" as an alternative Halloween event beginning at 7:00 PM on October 31, 2020. More information about this event will be shared soon.

Madison County Judge Executive, Reagan Taylor, along with Mayors Bruce Fraley and Robert Blythe encourage everyone to have a fun and safe Halloween.

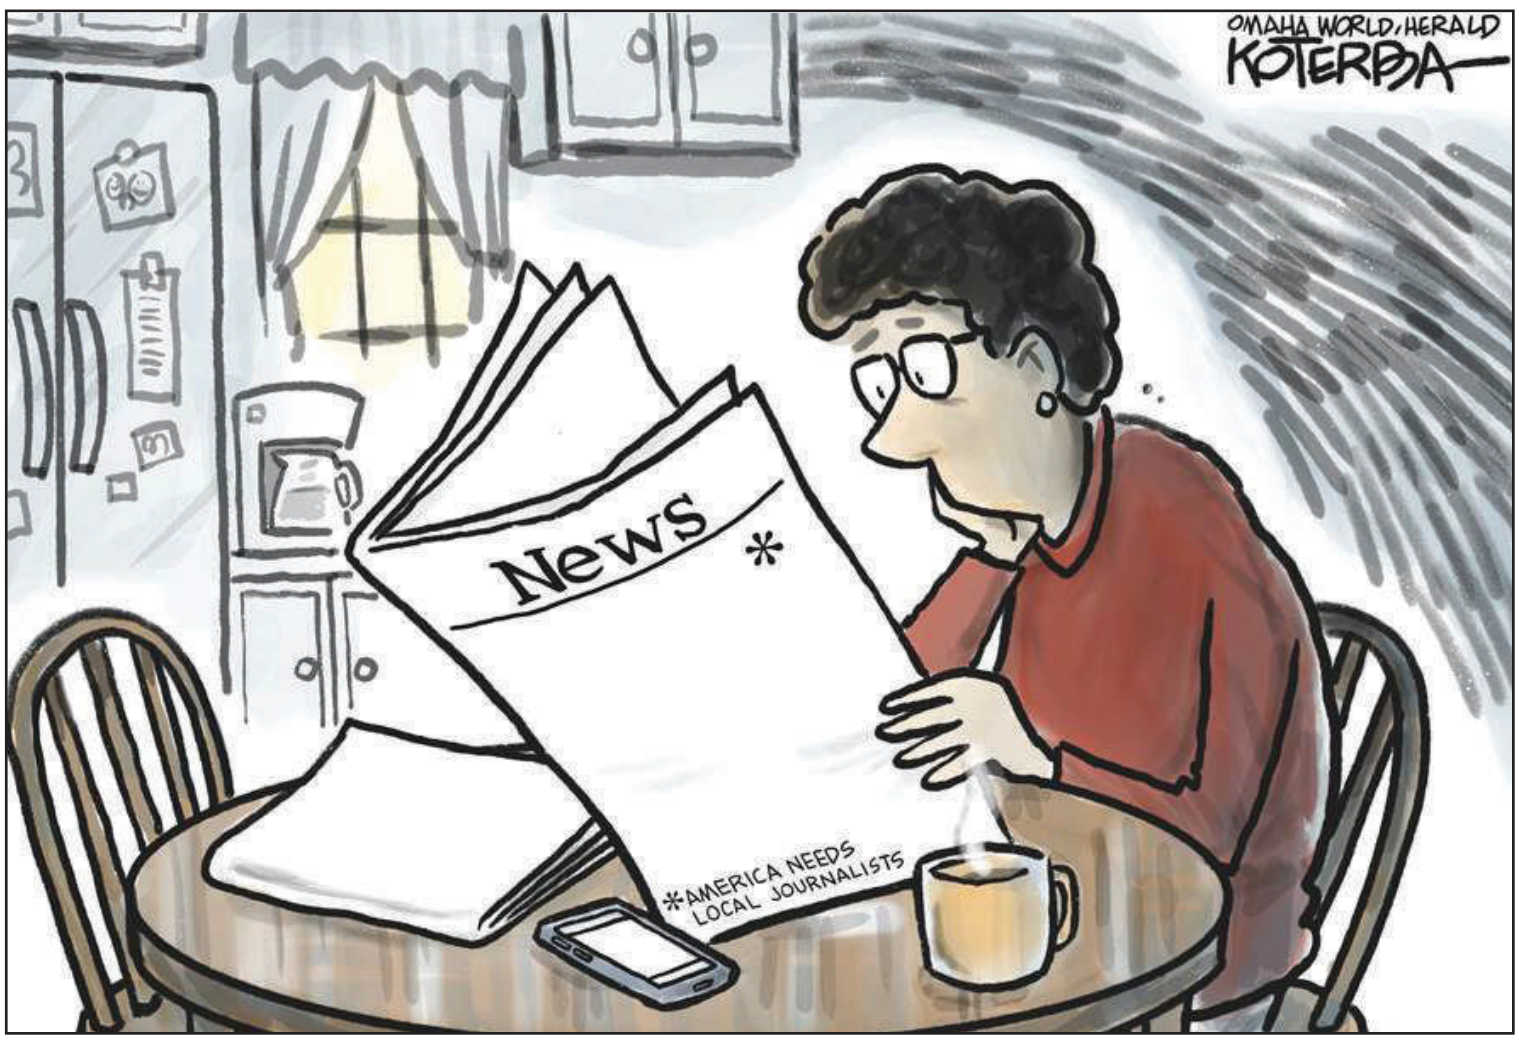
National Newspaper Week



Newspapers essential

Keith Taylor

What you hold in your hands is a newspaper that has been produced weekly in this community for more than 120 years.

We have survived the Spanish Flu pandemic and in the midst of another health crisis that has turned our lives upside down and inside out. When the current pandemic hit last March, readers turned to newspapers and our web sites to get the latest updates on a global health disaster that touched every piece of land on this planet.

We offered our web site content for free in the early stages of the pandemic and that allowed readers to stay informed online and keep up with current events in the community. We have covered events that highlight the struggles of our time to our readership, such as protests for racial equality, support for our police officers showcased in the "Back the Blue" march last summer.

We continue to cover city and county government meetings through Zoom and we report news those in future generations can look back on and learn from as we document life as it was and is during a pandemic.

During the course of past six months, you may have seen photos and stories from newspapers documenting what life was like during a pandemic a century ago. They wore masks and encouraged taking steps to prevent the spread of the flu.

Newspapers were there to cover it and document it for future generations to glean from decades later.

We put our information on various social media platforms, including Facebook and Twitter to reach a broader audience. Now more than ever, readers are reading local news than ever before largely because of the reach of social media.

We also continued printing our product every week, because not only are we essential, but because that's what we do, we report the news and keep our community informed. Without newspapers, you would have to depend on other untrusted and biased organizations to deliver information, whether it's true or false to mostly fit your narrative. That narrative has turned into right vs. left and no in between.

That's sad.

Taking over as a publisher in a pandemic has its challenges and many still exist. When the crisis struck our county and our state, advertisers started spending less, presenting another challenge we are starting to overcome.

We depend on your support to help us carry on a mission that our forefathers thought was so important that it adopted as part of our great constitution.

Now more than ever, local journalism — not to be confused with the national media — need your support and our mission remains the same as it was in 1899, 1969, 1979, 1989 and 1999.

Even though the way we deliver the news changes, we remain committed to local news.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Gore: Josh Hicks gets nod over Andy Barr

Dear Editor,

Every few years a truly outstanding candidate for public office comes along. This year that candidate is Josh Hicks who is running for the Sixth District congressional seat against Andy Barr.

Josh knows what it's like to struggle financially. He worked his way through college and then law school while working full-time as a police officer and raising a family. He understands and respects law enforcement. He also knows what it's like to lack affordable health care and wants to improve access for Kentuckians through a Medicare buy-in option. Andy Barr has voted repeatedly against the Affordable Care Act and wants it repealed, which would result in a loss of coverage for hundreds of thousands of Kentuckians. Barr also voted against negotiating drug prices with Medicare.

Unlike Barr, who has accepted 2.5 million from Corporate PACS, Josh has taken no money from them. Barr is bought and sold by banks, insurance companies and pharmaceutical companies and votes accordingly. Josh will fight to end dark money and political corruption and will represent the people, not the PACS.

Unlike Barr, Josh is a veteran and served his country proudly as a Marine in two deployments. He knows what it's like to work hard and is not a career politician. Barr has had his chance as our representative and has failed. It's time for a change. Vote for Josh Hicks for Congress.

Here's How It Works:
Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Reflections

Berea Citizen archives, Oct. 2, 1996xp

• The first annual Spoon Bread Festival was declared a success. Priscilla Tipton, Berea Tourism Director stated that she had received a lot of positive feedback from festivalgoers. Mayor Clifford Kerby expressed his pleasure with how well the festival went. "I think it's a good idea. Its one more element that will help our town grow." The festival, which was planned and organized in a little less than two months, featured craft and food booths, a petting zoo, a non-motorized parade, a consignment auction, a variety of live entertainment and free spoon bread tasting.

• The City of Berea in conjunction with Rumpke held it's annual fall cleanup during the week of October 6th through 10th. City Clerk Patricia Abrams said that a lot of the city's residents participate in the clean up every fall as well as the cleanup that is held in the spring. During the city cleanup period, Rumpke, the city's trash hauler will accept large and unusual items that they would not normally accept.

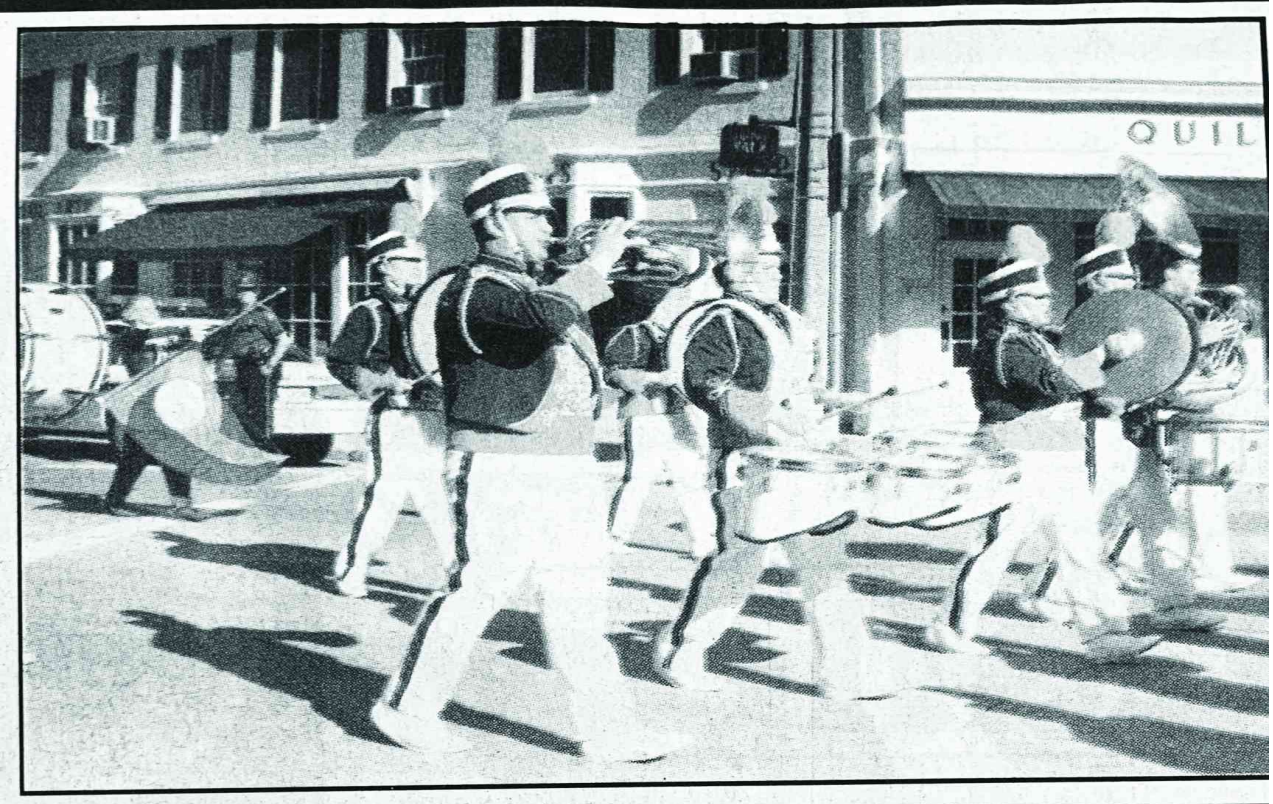
• Madison Southern High School held its homecoming festivities. On Thursday, September 29th, the town was treated to a parade, which featured the marching band, several elaborate floats, and several motorized vehicles along with candidates for homecoming queen and king. At the game on Friday, September 30th, Randy Calico was crowned homecoming king and Heather Broaddus was crowned homecoming queen. Members of the king's court were: 1st runner up Scott Tussey; 2nd runner up Jeff Wylie; 3rd runner up Michael Smith; and 4th runners up (a tie) Chris Franz and Patrick Casey. Members of the queen's court included: 1st runner up Brandi Cochran; 2nd runner up Becky Helton; 3rd runner up Michelle Horn and 4th runners up (a tie) Paula Coomer and Jamie Collins. The football Eagles went on to lose 6-0 to Montgomery County.

• Berea College was preparing to celebrate their 122nd Mountain Day on October 8th. On this day all classes were cancelled to allow students, staff and faculty to hike, relax and enjoy the mountain trails in the Berea College forest and participate in a variety of events such as a pops and jazz concert by the Berea College Band, a street dance in front of Boone Tavern and a breakfast.

• The Berea branch of the Madison County Library kicked off its fall reading program on October 2nd. The event kicked off with free pizza and games. Heather Dieffenbach said that a new schedule implemented by the library would allow for the inclusion of a wide variety of programs for youth ranging from pre-school through junior high.

• Evans Tire on Richmond Road was offering an oil change for $9.95 with coupon.

Madison Southern Homecoming Parade



photos by Danna Estridge

Madison Southern High School held its Homecoming Parade on Sept. 26 through downtown Berea. In addition to the marching band (above), several elaborate floats, motorized vehicles, and of course, the Homecoming Queen candidates also participated in the parade, along with several school and city officials and others. At right, two young spectators seemed more interested in what was going on behind the scenes than what was passing by in the parade.

Fall fever: Fire pit, marshmallows and s'mores

This weekend I did something I haven't done in a really long time. I had a fire in my fire pit and roasted marshmallows and made s'mores with my family. One of nephews whittled sticks to roast the marshmallows on, while the other "stoked" (let's be honest - "poked") the fire. One of my nieces ran laps around the backyard to charge her dad's kinetic watch.

My brother and I chatted. About nothing, really.

It was sunny and chilly. And super quiet in that autumn afternoon kind of quiet. \There were no "screens." We were outside and trying to distance (and eating s'mores), so for a few minutes, there were no masks.

And for one little slice of an October Saturday, life was just kind of boringly normal. Our biggest excitement came when a large spider skittered into view. My brother shooed it away, and with that, it spilled out dozens of baby spiders. We all jumped up and squealed. And then settled back down by the fire.

These days I am trying to focus on small pleasures, those brief pauses right after the commas in the sentences of our anxious days.

The swirling warmth of black coffee first thing in the morning. Snuggling in my fuzzy blanket while sleeping with the windows open. Candy corn and roasted peanuts.

And, of course, settling down with a good book.

I found the perfect title with my Madison County Public Library card this weekend. It's an eBook I checked out through Kentucky Libraries Unbound (if you don't already have the Overdrive app on your device, you can access it through our website - madisonlibrary.org under Stream & Download).

It's called Beach Read, by Emily Henry. Two very different writers with writers block find themselves lakeside neighbors one summer. In an effort to jolt themselves out of their respective writing ruts, they challenge each other to a genre swap. Each reframes their novel's premise in the other author's genre.

If you prefer to read a paper book, Beach Read is also available in print for checkout in both locations.

Of course, I usually read at least two books at the same time, so I am also enjoying a Miss Fisher Mystery - Ruddy Gore, by Kerry Greenwood. It's all full of Gilbert & Sullivan community theatre, Phryne Fischer's uber elegant derringer-do, and all the intrigue and excitement of Roaring 20's Australia.

It's also an eBook from Kentucky Libraries Unbound. This particular title is only available in digital format, but the library has other Miss Fischer mysteries available for checkout in other formats. You can even check out the TV series on DVD.

I'm happy to report that our Interlibrary Loan service has resumed (as of last month), so if you cannot find the title you want to read at our library, you can request it from another library. Again, the starting point is our website, then click "Services" and "Request an ILL." It's generally free (although some libraries charge a small fee to check out rarer titles).

Although we still have many restrictions in place for COVID safety, things are really cooking at MCPL these days.

Our "Take and Make" programs for all ages are through the roof. And if you haven't checked out one of our YouTube videos or FaceBook storytimes recently, you are missing out on something special.

Hey, I'm a middle age woman and I still get a kick out of storytime at the library!

You can find out more details on the calendar on our FaceBook page.

And our wonderfully creative staff has many sweet treats planned for Halloween week, all activities you and your family can do within COVID safety protocols. The Friends of the Library are even hosting a ghoulishly delicious drive thru book sale Halloween afternoon in Berea! Look for all the details on our website and social media.

I hope to see you soon at the library or maybe even in a Zoom meeting or social media event.

Until then, stay safe and healthy, love those around you, keep a positive outlook, and read a lot of books!

stand COVID-19 and the threat that it brings to our community and our families," said the mayor.

With that in mind, Fraley said that while people may be tired of observing COVID-19 precautions, the recent deaths of people in the community, including Reed, drive home the need to remain cautious.

"For me, I'm tired of COVID-19," Fraley said. "But just because we're worn out and fatigued doesn't mean we can stop. We have to continue to protect ourselves, our families, our friends, our co-workers and the people we love. So I would ask everyone to maintain six-foot social distancing, wear face covering in public places, and continue to observe frequent hand washing and avoid large groups."

Councilman Jim Davis agreed, noting COVID-19 has affected him and his family. "The reason I missed the last meeting is because I had COVID-19 and my wife had COVID-19. So we have to work hard to protect ourselves and avoid it," Davis said.

Councilman John Payne also expressed thanks to Taylor for sharing his story, which he said should serve as a warning that COVID is a real threat. "I've seen lot of people in the last few weeks that are kind of slacking off on wearing the masks. It's important to follow the social distancing. We'll all get through this, but we're all going to have to work together," Payne said.

On a related note, the city is encouraging citizens to exercise caution during Halloween celebrations. The council set the time for Halloween trick or treat activities for Saturday, October 31, from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m., subject to COVID-19 precautions issued by the Kentucky Public Health Cabinet, the Centers for Disease Control, and recommendations from the Madison County Health Department.

Berea City Administrator David Gregory said residents who want to welcome trick or treaters should leave their porch lights from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. on Halloween night, while those not wishing to participate should leave their lights off. While that rule is the same as in past years, there are new recommendations due to the pandemic.

"Door to door trick or treating is discouraged. Instead, residents who choose to participate should place individually wrapped candies on their porch or on a table in their front yard or driveway," Gregory said. He added participants should observe social distancing, wear appropriate face covering (costumes do not count as masks) and observe proper hand washing and sanitizing. Traveling in large groups is also discouraged, Gregory said.

Safe Halloween activities sponsored by the City of Berea and the Berea Chamber of Commerce include a drive-thru balloon glow at Berea City Park, and a drive-thru version of Halloween in the Park beginning at 7 p.m. on Halloween night. Details of those events are forthcoming.

Councilman Steve Caudill urged citizens to observed precautions in order to help ensure local children can remain in school. "Wear a mask, don't go door to door (for Halloween) and follow these rules because what should be a fun weekend we don't want to linger and create issues with kids going back to school," Caudill said.

In other business, the city unanimously approved the second reading of ordinance adopting a memorandum of understanding between the City of Berea and the Madison County Airport Board. Under the agreement, the city sponsors the board in securing loans for the construction of water and sewer lines to the Central Kentucky Regional Airport. The board is seeking loans to cover the $1.2 million project from the Appalachian Regional Commission and the Kentucky Infrastructure Authority.

Also approved unanimously was a measure extending the construction deadline for the Walnut Meadow sewer pump station. Berea Municipal Utilities Director Kevin Howard explained the project was delayed due the COVID-19 pandemic and because of inclement weather.

The council also observed the opening of bids for main portion of the multi-use pavilion project on Chestnut Street, including: Walker Company Mt. Sterling, KY, $598.000, Devere Construction, Berea, KY – 643,000, and Omni Commercial LLC of Lexington, KY.

Mayor Fraley also presented proclamation declaring October as Domestic Violence Awareness Month, and a proclamation declaring Fire Prevention Week.

The next Berea City Council meeting will take place October 20.

Berea Branch of Madison County Clerk Remains Open Driver's License Satellite Office Closes

On Monday, September 28, 2020, the Circuit Clerk's Office announced that the Berea Satellite office for Driver's Licensing and District Court in Berea would close permanently. Driver's licensing and District Court were held only on Fridays in the Berea Annex Building (old post office) at 304 Chestnut Street, and both activities have been suspended since March 2020 due to the COVID-19 pandemic. While the Circuit Clerk's office provides staffing for the Driver's Licensing Office and scheduled District Court, the decision to close the Berea Satellite office was made by the Commonwealth of Kentucky, Administrative Office of the Courts in Frankfort, which governs driver's licensing and all court proceeding in the state. The Driver's License Office was already scheduled for closure in the near future due to implementation of the Real ID Act. Other satellite offices are also being closed across the Commonwealth. Driver's licensing is available at the Madison County Courthouse in Richmond. The announcement advised that the increased use of videoconferencing for District Court, along with safety concerns were the primary reasons for closing District Court proceedings in the Berea location.

This does not change services provided by the Madison County Clerk's Office, which is located in the back of the Berea Annex Building at 304 Chestnut Street. It is important to note that the Circuit Clerk Office and Madison County Clerk Office are two separate and distinct agencies. As such, the Berea Branch of Madison County Clerk is still open from 8:00 AM – 4:30 PM, Monday through Friday and offers a full range of services including early voting, absentee ballot drop box and motor vehicle registration. Please see https://madisoncountyclerk.us for a full list of services available at the Berea Branch of Madison County Clerk, Kenny Barger's office.

FIRE

Cooking and heating are the leading causes of home fires and fire injuries, and winter months are the peak time for fire-related deaths. Fire prevention week, Oct. 4-10, 2020, is the perfect time to review and practice fire safety.

Minimize Your Risks

The good news: Over the past several decades, deaths from home fires in the U.S. have steadily gone down – from 5,200 in 1980 to 2,820 in 2018, according to Injury Facts.

But one death from a preventable fire is too many. While fire doesn't discriminate by age, it is a leading cause of death for children ages 1 to 14. In 2018, 288 children in this age group died from fire and smoke inhalation.

When cooking, make fire safety a priority by keeping these tips in mind:

Be alert; if you are sleepy or have consumed alcohol, don't use the oven or stovetop
Stay in the kitchen while you are frying, grilling, boiling or broiling food
When simmering, baking or roasting, check the food regularly, remain in the kitchen while cooking and use a timer
Keep anything that can catch fire away from your stovetop
Heating is the second leading cause of home fires. Follow these tips from the American Red Cross:

Keep all flammables, like paper, clothing, bedding, drapes or rugs, at least 3 feet from a space heater, stove or fireplace
Never leave portable heaters and fireplaces unattended; turn off heaters and make sure fireplace embers are extinguished before leaving the room
If you must use a space heater, place it on a level, nonflammable surface, like ceramic tile, not on a rug or carpet
Keep children and pets away from space heaters
When buying a space heater, look for models that shut off automatically if the heater falls over
In addition to cooking, other top causes of fire include smoking, electrical problems and candles. To minimize risks:

Institute a "no smoking" policy in the house
Check all cords and replace any that are frayed or have bare wires
Switch to flameless candles
Keep matches and lighters high and out of children's reach in a locked cabinet

Working Smoke Alarms Are a Must

About three out of five fire deaths happen in homes with no smoke alarms or working smoke alarms. Smoke alarms are a key part of a home fire escape plan providing early warning reducing your risk of dying in a fire. The National Fire Protection Association recommends you:

Install smoke alarms on every level of your home, inside bedrooms and outside sleeping areas on the ceiling or high on the wall
Keep smoke alarms away from the kitchen, at least 10 feet from the stove, to reduce false alarms
Use special alarms with strobe lights and bed shakers for people who are hard of hearing or deaf
Test smoke alarms monthly
Replace batteries annually, and change the batteries in your carbon monoxide detector at the same time
Replace smoke alarms that are 10 or more years old

Make an Escape Plan

A home fire is reported every 88 seconds. Once the smoke alarm sounds, a fire can spread quickly, leaving only a minute or two to escape. That's why it's so important to have a home escape plan.

Start by drawing a map for your home and following these guidelines from the NFPA:

Plan two ways to escape from each room
Make sure all doors and windows leading outside open easily
Identify secondary routes – a window onto an adjacent roof or a collapsible ladder from upper-story windows
If you live in a multi-story building, plan to use the stairs – never the elevator
Designate an outside meeting place a safe distance from the house where everyone should meet

Now Practice Your Home Fire Escape Plan

Home Fire Drill Day, a safety observance developed by Nationwide in partnership with NSC and other organizations, is held during Fire Prevention Week in October. Everyone – even children – need to know your family escape plan in case of a fire. The National Fire Protection Association indicates that 71% of Americans have a home fire escape plan but only 47% have practiced it. Practice your fire drill with everyone in the house at night and during the day, twice a year.

Remember to:

Practice getting out with your eyes closed, crawling low to the floor and keeping your mouth covered
Practice closing doors behind you
Practice how to "stop, drop and roll" if your clothes catch on fire
Practice testing door handles to see if they are hot before opening them
Teach children never to hide during a fire, and how to escape on their own in case you can't help them

When and How to Use Fire Extinguisher

Always put your safety first; if you are not confident in your ability to use a fire extinguisher, get out and call 9-1-1. The American Red Cross cautions you to evaluate the situation and ensure:

Everyone has left or is leaving the home
The fire department has been called
The fire is small, not spreading, and there is not much smoke
Your back is to an exit you can use quickly

Learn about the different types of fire extinguishers; not all will work on every fire. For home use, the National Fire Protection Association recommends a multi-purpose device large enough to put out a small fire but not so heavy that it will be difficult to handle.

Review the instructions once a year. If you need to use a fire extinguisher, there won't be time to learn how to do it.

To use a fire extinguisher, remember the acronym PASS:

Pull the pin.
Aim low at the base of the fire.
Squeeze the handle slowly.
Sweep the nozzle side to side.

County clerk advices voters to turn in absentee ballots as soon as possible

By Andy McDonald
For The Citizen

Madison County Clerk Kenny Barger had a message for voters at Tuesday's Zoom meeting of the Fiscal Court, urging residents to turn in their mail-in absentee ballots as soon as possible.

"We need your ballot back as soon as possible. We have 38 percent returned right now out of 15,698. We'll be mailing out the last 602 ballots today," Barger said, noting ballots can be dropped off at boxes at the Madison County Clerk offices in both Richmond and Berea.

Kenny Barger

Barger said he is hoping to avoid a scenario in which there are many outstanding ballots out on election night. "We need those back as soon as possible so we can have as many votes to tally and announce on election night as possible," Barger said. "We want to have everything in if we can and give a total number on election night versus having a whole lot of ballots out then on the 10th, when we give the next vote total, have a big difference in vote totals."

VOTING

Barger reported walk-in absentee voting had begun Tuesday in both Richmond and Berea, and voters lined up at both sites to cast their early votes. Barger reiterated that walk-in absentee voting will be available at both locations until the day before Election Day from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. on weekdays, and 8 a.m. to noon on Saturdays, Barger said.

Barger and his team drew praise from Madison County Attorney Jennie Haymond, who said she cast her ballot on Tuesday. Barger, in turn, gave the credit to his staff, praising them for their dedication and professionalism at a time when his office is re-inventing election procedures because of the COVID-19 pandemic. "I appreciate them, think the world of them," Barger said of his staff. "I hope the general public will understand what we're going through, too."

The court also adopted an ordinance endorsing a memorandum of understanding between the Madison County Fiscal Court, the City of Berea, City of Richmond, and the Madison County Airport Board. Under the agreement, the three governments will support the airport board's $1.2 million project to extend a water line from the Southern Madison Water District and a sewer line from Berea Municipal Utilities to Central Kentucky Regional Airport.

Officials said the project will be an asset to the region. "This is not just good for our county, but for our central Kentucky region," said Magistrate Tom Botkin. "We certainly appreciate the county and the cities stepping up for this," Botkin said.

"It is a great opportunity," added Judge Executive Reagan Taylor. "Thanks to the City of Berea and the City of Richmond for partnering with us on the airport. Mayor Bruce Fraley has done quite a bit of work on this."

In other action, the Fiscal Court approved a land use map change for 107, 115 and 117 Green's Crossing, and 2707 Robbinsville Loop, reclassifying the properties from RC-1 and RC-3 to RC 4 general commercial. The tracts are on the corner of Green's Crossing and Irvine Road.

Judge/Executive Reagan Taylor also presented a proclamation to Hope's Wings Executive Director Jennifer Lainhart, proclaiming October as Domestic Violence Awareness Month. Lainhart will be in Berea Thursday evening at 7:30 p.m. at Berea City Hall unveiling a display of 48 T-shirts that will commemorate the 48 people who have died so far this year as a result of domestic violence."We think it's important that people know that it's still happening and we still have work to do," Lainhart said.

Turning to personnel matters, the court approved the hiring of five people and the promotion of one person. Firefighter Cameron Arnold was promoted to Firefighter II, while John Wilburn, Ashley Dozier, Arabella Stamper and Michael Neumacowski were hired as Emergency Operations Center techs. Meanwhile, Justin Burton was hired on as a full-time animal control officer.

During the comments segment, Magistrate Larry Combs expressed disappointment with the decision by the state Administrative Office of the Courts to discontinue Circuit Court services in Berea in the Berea City Hall annex. No Circuit Court and no driver's license services will be available, however, Kenny Barger reiterated that services of the Madison County Clerk's office in Berea will continue, such as license plate registrations and voting.

Also adopted Tuesday were a series of resolutions enabling the county draw previously budgeted funds for CSSEP operations. Taylor reminded the court that it's time to begin to think about when nerve gas neutralization will be finished and when the county will no longer have access to federal funds.

"We really got spoiled with some of this federal funding for CSSEP to destroy the nerve gas, but it's coming to an end," Taylor said. "But we'll still have a lot of infrastructure that we're going to have to pay for and keep up. So I'm glad we're starting now in having these discussion and we'll have to make sure that the community is aware of that. We need to start bringing a lot of awareness to post-CSSEP and what that means to our budgets, our revenues and our tax base."

Army in building morale, promoting physical fitness and extending community outreach. Based on COVID-19 concerns, however, this year's national race was changed to a virtual event, resulting in the hosting of numerous local Shadow Runs around the country.

"The Ten Miler is a demonstration of the Army's commitment to its strategic objectives of fitness, readiness and resiliency," says Col. Dorris, "but it's also a key community-based celebration that unites Soldiers and local citizens. BGAD is proud to partner with and support the 149th MEB's Shadow Run."

Dorris noted that despite the public nature of the event, the Depot will be adhering to strict COVID-19 guidelines. "Face masks and social distancing rules remain in effect for all race competitors and public attendees. Once the race begins, runners can choose whether or not to wear face masks."

Local citizens planning to compete must register no later than 5 p.m. Thursday by calling (859) 779-6464 during normal business hours. Spectators do not need to register. However, all persons need to be aware that before access to the installation is granted, Depot Security personnel are required to conduct a criminal background check, as well as complete COVID temperature checks and questions.

Arrival times should be planned accodrdingly to allow for the completion of required background checks, COVID temperature checks and health questions, and other prerace activities.

Brown pants, red shirts

I always enjoy the story from long ago about the captain and his crew coming under attack by a pirate ship.

With those pirates trying to hijack his vessel, the captain yelled to his first mate, "Bring me my red shirt."

Roger Alford

The first mate rushed to the captain's quarters and got the red shirt, which the captain put on before leading his crew to victory over the pirates.

A couple hours later, the lookout shouted a warning about two more pirate ships approaching. The captain yelled to his first mate, "Bring me my red shirt." Again, the captain, crew defeated the Pirates.

The men sat on the deck that night celebrating their victories, and asked the captain why he put on a red shirt before each battle.

"Well, that way," the captain explained, "if I am wounded, the red shirt would hide the blood, and you men will continue to fight unafraid."

Early the next morning, the lookout yelled a warning that 10 pirate ships were coming at them. The men looked to their captain, expecting his usual command. But this time, the captain yelled, "Bring me my brown pants."

The Bible tells the story of a man who needed brown pants. His name was King Belshazzar, and he, because of his prideful ways, got crossways with God. You remember he was throwing a big party one night, no doubt laughing and living it up when something happened that scared him terribly.

"In the same hour came forth fingers of a man's hand, and wrote over again the candlestick upon the plaster of the wall of the king's palace: and the king saw the part of the hand that wrote. Then the king's countenance was changed, and his thoughts troubled him, so that the joints of his loins were loosed, and his knees smote one against another" (Daniel 5:5-6).

Have you ever thought much about what it means for the joints of the loins to be loosened? Most people have concluded that that phrase means Belshazzar grew weak all of a sudden and his legs failed him. Some others think it means Belshazzar lost control of his bodily functions and dirtied himself.

The fingers wrote, "MENE, MENE, TEKEL, UPHARSIN." Daniel was called in to translate the words: "God hath numbered thy kingdom, and finished it. Thou art weighed in the balances, and art found wanting. Thy kingdom is divided, and given to the Medes and Persians."

The Bible tells us in Hebrews 10:31 that "it is a fearful thing to fall into the hands of the living God." Belshazzar experienced that first hand. He was not prepared at all for that meeting. He had lived a prideful life of self-indulgence. He had not considered that eternity awaited him.

Let's not be caught off guard like Belshazzar. Let's make ourselves ready by trusting in Christ. That way, when our hour comes, we won't need to yell for someone to bring us our brown pants.

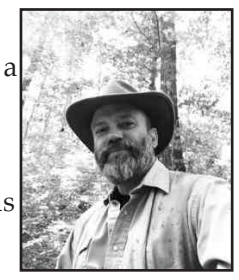
Boone Trace reflections

The new hike and bike trail going in along Brushy Fork just south of campus is coming along so nicely. The rock-bottom creek provides a peaceful atmosphere with its scenic and pleasant sounds and creates a sort of oasis of tranquility right by town.



Clint Patterson

This trail follows the historically significant Boone's Trace and is a great example of Berea College and the City of Berea working together to accomplish something meaningful and useful to area residents as well as visitors.

Growing up at near the terminus of the Cumberland Road; otherwise known as the Old National Road, at Vandalia, Illinois, I have always been interested in the nation's historic westward expansion and subsequent cultural implications. It was the completion of the National Road around 1840 which lead to the abandonment of the Wilderness Road (which followed the same route as the Boone Trace through Kentucky) and replaced it as the major east-to-west route in America.

I became especially interested in the Boone Trace and Wilderness Road as realized I was following it back and forth to visit my now wife, Christine. It turned out, not only did it lead straight to where she lived, but even continued into North Carolina and passed her brother's home near Boone where we often visited. We learned that the man who hiked the entire length of the trail a few years ago to document the route, was named Curtis Penix…same surname as Christine's step-dad. Noticing the historical markers along the way, I discovered that they were placed by a woman named Lucy Patterson…a founder of the Daughters of American Revolution North Carolina Chapter, from Salem, NC.

Really, her name was Patterson?! From Salem, NC, where Boone had lived in his youth? I was familiar with the Moravian settlement of Salem, as the small town of West Salem, IL is where a portion of these settlers relocated due to their opposition of slavery in North Carolina. Some of my own relatives…Pattersons, Fruits and Storms…had migrated through the Cumberland Gap and settled along the trail near London. One of them, a circuit-riding preacher, relocated to Illinois and founded a church…hence that branch ending up in Illinois. Another, George Fruits, had fought alongside Daniel Boone soon after he had settled in Kentucky.

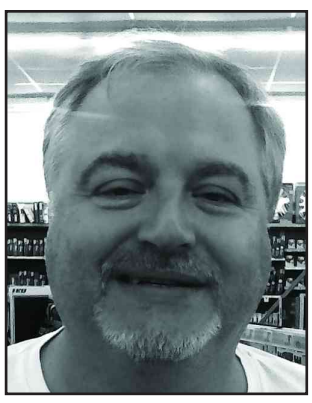
It is no wonder that many coincidences in surnames, shared histories and genealogies, would accompany Boone's Trace, as it is estimated at around 47 million Americans' heritage is linked to this historic trail as so many who settled the interior of America travelled this route. Walking along Brushy Fork and listening to the flow of the stream over the rocky bottom of the creek reminds us of the flow of time. We are only here for a while, but we leave behind a trace…an impact…upon the land, the communities we inhabit and the people we meet. I imagine that many folks visiting Berea may have connections to this place too. Now, while visiting Berea, folks can walk the path many of their ancestors did…settlers and Native Americans…and reminisce.

Word on the streets

"Where is the best place near Berea to take a fall afternoon drive?

Tim Pingleton

"I usually go to Kirby Knob, and drive through to Red Lick to get back to Berea."



Sammy Lee

"I like to drive up Burnt Bridge Road and back to Berea past the Pinnacles."

Patricia Van Winkle

"A nice drive up to the old family farm on Kirby Knob Road, in Jackson County."

Here's How It Works:
Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Reflections

Berea Citizen Archives: Oct. 12, 2006

The old brick smokestack that stood straight and tall overlooking the hills and streets of Berea for approximately 60 years began the process of demolition. Berea College President, Dr. Larry Shinn, was hoisted to the top by crane and used a sledgehammer to remove the first bricks from the 16 story structure. The smokestack was originally built in the1930's as a part of the now obsolete coal- and gas- fired heat plant. Bricks from the smoke stack and other buildings along with the limestone footer were used to fill and build walkways across a planned green space area. The project was slated to take approximately 10 weeks to complete.

• An equestrian therapy program located at Kirby Knob helped disabled individuals to be able to enjoy riding horses. Appalachian Foothills Therapeutic Equestrian Center offered riding lessons for disabled youth and adults as a part of their ongoing therapy. Owners Mark and Sheryl Martin taught a program that could be used to treat a wide variety of disabilities. Individuals participating in the program included clients with autism, visual impairments along with several other disabilities. There were volunteers who came from the Central Kentucky area to volunteer their time with individuals in exchange for lessons or ride time. The Martin's said they loved what they were doing and they were living the dream.

• The Appalachian College Association along with Berea College English, Theater and Speech Communication Department and Learning Center sponsored an evening writing workshop with novelist Gwyn Hyman Rubio on October 24th. Rubio's works included, "Icy Sparks" and "Woodsman's Daughter." The event was held in Danforth Chapel. Following the workshop, Rubio gave a short reading of her work and conducted a question and answer session.

• Collin McAfee, age 2, traveled over 2,700 miles from San Luis Obsido to Berea, Kentucky to receive his first hair cut from local barber Bobby Himes. Collin was the third generation of McAffee men to call Himes their barber. Grandfather Emerson had been going to Himes since 1960 and dad Kevin also got his first haircut from Himes 25 years prior.

• There was a showing of Al Gore's movie, "Inconvenient Truth" held at Union Church on Sunday, October 15th. Admission was free and open to the public. Following the showing, refreshments were served and there were conversations about the film.

• The Kentucky Artisan's Center at Berea was offering new menu items at its restaurant. Newly added choices included: an 8 oz. ribeye for $10.95; a grilled chicken dinner for $7.95; and a catfish dinner for $7.95. Each selection was served with cole slaw, baked potato and a roll.

• A 14-year-old Berea Community School student was arrested and charged following a bomb threat that was called in to Berea Community School on Oct. 10. The threat was received at approximately 1:30 p.m. Berea Police, Berea Fire Department and Madison County E.M.S. responded to the scene. Some students were picked up by parents while others were loaded onto school buses that were staged a safe distance away on the school's front lawn. The bomb threat occurred on the same day that Missy Jenkins Smith, a survivor of the Heath High School shooting was at the school to speak to middle school students about her experiences as a survivor of a high school shooting.

AWARENESS

of domestic violence.

"People need to understand that there are women, men and children who are dying at the hands of people who are supposed to love and protect them, and they are dying in horrible ways," Lainhart said.

As part of the effort to raise awareness, Lainhart said there will be a display of T-shirts on the lawn of Berea City Hall. The shirts will bear the names, ages and counties of those who died so far this year because of domestic violence. The shirts will also include their cause of death. The display is currently in Richmond on the lawn of the the Madison County Court House.

Additionally, Lainhart noted that Berea Police Department Community Resource Coordinator Zinnia Hensley, who also serves on the Hope's Wings board, suggested that people should wear purple and walk on Fridays in support of preventing domestic violence. Lainhart urged people to post pictures of themselves on social media, walking, wearing purple on Fridays, and posting their photos with the hashtag #Isupportdomesticviolenceawareness.

Lainhart cited an estimate that approximately one quarter of all women are subject to domestic abuse, and that one third of children grow up in a situation where there is domestic abuse in the home. Additionally, Lainhart noted domestic abuse prevention/response organizations receive up to 20,000 calls daily around the Commonwealth.

The joint proclamation between the City of Berea, City of Richmond, and Madison County reads as follows:

"WHEREAS, domestic violence has no place in our society, and we have a moral obligation to support the victims and their children while putting into place strategies for preventing it in the future, and;

WHEREAS, domestic violence destroys lives and damages the dignity of men, women, and children, and;

WHEREAS, Domestic Violence Awareness Month is an opportunity to emphasize our commitment to ending domestic violence in our community, and;

WHEREAS, a home should be the ultimate place for safety, comfort and love. Domestic violence shatters these basic foundations of life. We are strongly committed to addressing domestic violence and helping those who have been victimized, and;

WHEREAS, during Domestic Violence Awareness Month, we are grateful for the agencies and individuals providing care to those affected by these acts of cruelty and to law enforcement and the court system for bringing offenders to justice. By working together, we can build a community where every home honors the value and dignity of its loved ones.

Now, therefore, Madison County, the City of Berea, and the City of Richmond do hereby proclaim October 2020 as Domestic Violence Awareness Month in Richmond, Berea, and all of Madison County. I urge all our citizens to reach out to victims and help end domestic violence."

2 Constitutional amendments on ballot

FRANKFORT (KT) — Kentucky voters will see two Constitutional amendments on the November ballot following General Assembly action during the final days of the 2020 session.

It'll be the second time around for Senate Bill 15, known as "Marsy's Law," which is named after a California murder victim whose mother was horrified to see her daughter's accused killer in a grocery store a week after his arrest. Her brother, Henry Nicholas, has since crusaded to have the protections enacted by state legislatures nationwide.

Similar legislation was approved by Kentucky lawmakers in 2018 and won approval, with nearly 63 percent of the vote.

However, in 2019 the Kentucky Supreme Court unanimously threw out the results, saying the form of the amendment that was published and submitted to the electorate for a vote was not the full text, and was instead a question. So, the proposed amendment was voided.

This year the measure won easy approval from both the House and Senate, as did the enabling legislation, which would only take effect if voters approve the amendment.

Sen. Whitney Westerfield, R-Crofton, who sponsored the legislation, as he did two years ago, says it will provide support to tens of thousands of crime victims.

"Kentucky voters will again have an opportunity at the ballot box to guarantee vital Constitutional protection to individuals and families who currently face an alarming imbalance in our justice system," he said. "I am confident that Kentuckians will overwhelmingly support Marsy's Law once again, and that Kentucky crime victims will finally be granted the equal standing they deserve."

The other measure that will appear is House Bill 405, sponsored by Rep Jason Nemes, R-Louisville, which changes the terms of some elected officials.

The ballot language will state:

"Are you in favor of changing the term of Commonwealth's Attorneys from six-year terms to eight-year terms beginning in 2030, changing the terms of judges of the district court from four-year terms to eight-year terms beginning in 2022, and requiring district judges to have been licensed attorneys for at least eight years beginning 8 in 2022?"

It also cleared both chambers on a bi-partisan vote, 76-7 in the House, and 25-7 in the Senate.

Those two proposed Constitutional amendments were among 28 introduced during the 2020 General Assembly.

The Kentucky Constitution permits a maximum of four amendments to appear on the ballot and only during even-numbered years.

Becky Brown Jewelry is just one of the new businesses opening soon in Old Town. The City of Berea has continued to attract new businesses despite the pandemic.

Business booming

Shops setting up shop in city

For the second consecutive Berea City Council meeting, Berea Mayor Bruce Fraley announced that new businesses are coming to the city, according to a report submitted by Business and Tourism Development Director Donna Angel.

Mayor Fraley reported seven new businesses are working toward an October opening, including Becky Brown Jewelry, a venture launched by Art Accelerator alumna Becky Brown. Meanwhile, Old Town Fabric, owned by Rebekah Johnson, has purchased Ken Gastineau's building on North Broadway Street and will be relocating her shop. In addition, a bakery will be opening in Old Town, owned by Rebecca & Teague (Teeg) Moore from Lexington.

Wildflowers Boutique, owned by LeeAmber and Tim Hellard, opened in Chestnut Street last weekend, featuring boutique clothing and accessories. Black Cat Equestrian, located on Trey Lane in Berea, opened riding stables for all ages on their 350-acre farm. Angel reports Black Cat Equestrian also features wedding venues and other outdoor activity spaces. The owners, Leeanne Howard & Casey Potter, come to Berea from New Jersey, and they love Berea, Angel reports. Another recent arrival is Bowman Photography, owned by Janus Bowman from Toronto. That new business is also coming to Old Town, specializing in adventure travel and artistic photography. Kane's Computer and TV Repair Service on Highway 1016 also joins the list of new businesses, offering appliance maintenance and service work.

"We're very excited to welcome those new businesses to Berea, and we're continuing to see our economy grow despite the pandemic that we've all been enduring for the last seven months," Mayor Fraley said.

Angel, who's been on the job for about ten months, has been working to attract businesses despite the challenges of the times. An additional list of businesses that recently opened in Berea include: Happy Jacks Sandwich Bar, on College Square, Burger King, on Prince Royal Drive, A Little Southern Class, a florist in Old Town, Buckets and Suds, a car detailing business, Bluegrass Composites, a metal castings manufacturer, and Riley Trucking.

Additional businesses cited in last month's report include Crimson Duvall Pottery, scheduled to open this month, Planet Pawn, in a location on Richmond Road, KFC, which is eying plans for a store on Paint Lick Road, the expansion of Robert Walker Cable, and EQI Metal Castings, on 76 Boulevard.

Berea City Councilman Jim Davis, who chairs the council's Economic Development Committee, praised Angel's persistence and work during the pandemic. "I do want to give Donna Angel credit for the work that she has been doing. It's been amazing during this COVID time the number of people who have called her and been in touch with her requesting information about property in Berea. It's kept her busy and it shows that people do have an interest in Berea and want to come here and do business. So thank you, Donna," Davis said.

Councilman David Rowlette added that citizens need to get out and support the new businesses that take a chance on Berea. "We want to acknowledge and appreciate new businesses," Rowlette said. "It's a very tough time to be opening these businesses, but these guys have stuck their necks out, and we need to support them."

Stoops very pleased with UK defense

Kentucky coach Mark Stoops hasn't been surprised by Josh Paschal's leadership this season.

"He is an amazing individual," Stoops said Monday. "Josh has been through some tough situations and to see him come out on the other side is also inspirational."

Nearly two years removed from a cancer scare, Paschal had an interception and just missed scoring a touchdown following a 76-yard return in a 24-2 win over Mississippi State on Saturday. Paschal didn't play in the second-half following a knee injury but is expected to return Saturday at Tennessee.

Stoops said Paschal is day-to-day this week and it's unclear when he will return to practice. Although he wasn't able to play in the second half Saturday, Stoops said Paschal made sure his teammates stayed on task despite his absence on the field.

"He's a guy that wanted to speak at halftime with me and to address the team and to lead," Stoops said. "He is a courageous young man. He's a leader and passionate about the way he plays and it affects other people. He is a remarkable young man."

Paschal's interception against the Bulldogs helped set the tone for the Kentucky defense, which picked off six passes last week, tying a school record for the most interceptions in a game. The team's defense didn't allow a touchdown or a field goal against an opponent for the first time since 2009.

Stoops said Paschal's first-half performance was similar to the first two games.

"He's done that each and every week," Stoops said. "The first two games he was our defensive player of the week, so that tells you what we think of him and the way he's playing. He's done some really good things. He's been disruptive all year."

Stoops was pleased with his team's defense against coach Mike Leach and his "Air Raid" offense, handing Leach the first offensive shutout of his head coaching career.

"To hold that team to zero (offensive) points, to shut them out for the first time in Mike Leach's (head coaching) career, is a compliment to our players and our staff with the way they responded," Stoops said.

Berea City Council

City lures 175 high-tech jobs to Berea

By Andy McDonald
For The Citizen

In a 7-1 vote, the Berea City Council adopted a resolution Tuesday ensuring 175 high-tech production jobs will be coming to the Berea Industrial Park.

At the invitation of Berea Mayor Bruce Fraley, Simon Mortimer, of Hitachi Automotive Electric Motor Systems America, announced the decision in which the recently formed spinoff of the Hitachi Automotive Systems America, Inc. will produce automotive electrical components for Honda in Russell Point, Ohio.

Mortimer noted that engineering work on the production line will likely begin after the first of the year, with an eye toward sending the first finished products to the Honda plant in November of 2021. Mass production is expected to begin in 2022, Mortimer said. Mortimer said he anticipates the number of employees eventually hired may exceed 175.

Currently the production equipment is being produced in Japan, and will be shipped to Berea by November, while demolition and renovation in preparation of the new production line will begin as early as this week. "There's going to be a lot of activity down on Mayde Road," Mortimer said.

Mortimer added that 90 percent of the jobs will be automated, and that he has already reached out to local students in the hope of recruiting them for high-tech job opportunities in Berea.

Under the resolution, the City of Berea enters into an agreement with the Kentucky Economic Development Finance Authority, stipulating that Berea will forgo one percent of its occupational license fee as an economic incentive to attract the newly formed Hitachi spinoff to the city. Council members Jim Davis, Cora Jane Wilson, Jerry Little, Steve Caudill, David Rowlette, Ronnie Terrill, and John Payne voted in favor of the resolution, expressing support for the proposal, and welcoming Mortimer and the new Hitachi operation to Berea.

Councilmember Emily LaDouceur sounded a dissonant note, however, suggesting that giving the economic incentive to the manufacturer is unfair when small businesses receive no such incentives. LaDouceur voted against the resolution to provide incentives.

Several city leaders spoke in favor of the development, noting the creation of high-tech manufacturing jobs in Berea will positively impact generations of local citizens.

"I can't overstate the importance of Hitachi Automotive Electric Motor Systems America choosing Berea, Kentucky, to be the home of their initial operations in the United States. This is an advanced manufacturing operation that will have upwards of 175 highly technical, good paying jobs, and it is a great day for our city and a great day for our children and our children's children. They've made a huge investment in Berea, and we're happy to have them here as a corporate partner," Fraley said.

"Berea will be a whole lot better off with you than without you," said Economic Development Committee Chair Jim Davis, who also extended thanks for the effort of Business Development and Tourism Director Donna Angel and Berea's economic development consultant Lucas Witt.

Steve Caudill said landing the facility is a notable accomplishment. "We really saw an opportunity come to our city that is going to affect our grandkids. It's not going to just be about us. We're seeing some of these things that are going to have a generational impact on our town," Caudill said.

Other buisness:

• The Berea City Council received a positive annual audit report from the city's independent auditing firm, Baldwin CPAs.

Auditor Drew Olmer said the city was issued a clean audit with no compliance or management issues.

In fact, Olmer noted several positive developments in the city's financial picture despite the economic downturn related to the COVID-19 pandemic. Overall, the city's total net financial position reached $69.2 million, up 5.3 million from last year. "That's a very positive change when your assets change by 5 million dollars," Olmer said.

Olmer noted that revenues continued to outpace expenditures, due to the landing of several grants, as well as spending cuts imposed by the administration when the threat of the pandemic was looming. The city also saw a three million dollar savings in electricity transmission costs for the year after having switched from electric providers.

"We need to really give kudos to those who are running our city right now, because the way that they handled the end of the year last year is the only reason that we weren't in the red," said Audit and Finance Chair Steve Caudill. "I think a lot of that was the guidance of Susan [Meeks}, and Bruce [Fraley], David [Gregory] and all of the department heads. Thank you for that work." The audit report was unanimously adopted.

• In other action, the city accepted the latest revision of the Berea Comprehensive Plan, which sets goals and priorities for the next five years.

• The city council also voted to accept a bid for the construction of the multi-use pavilion on Chestnut Street from Omni Construction LLC for $538,000.

Why are you running for Berea City Council?

I ran once, last election, and won a seat. My hope in serving as your representative is to ensure that everyone in our community has the opportunity to live up to their greatest potential. Having served one term now, I come to this election with the experience needed to get work done in our local government.

I am running for re-election to a second term to continue the work I have dedicated my life to: developing communities, empowering our youth, and eradicating poverty and oppression.

What is the single biggest issue facing Berea and what is your solution to that issue?

The current coronavirus pandemic presents a real challenge for the future of our city. We are likely looking at a depressed economy as we head into 2021 and through this next term. This not only affects our fiscal budget as a city, but the burden on the wallets of Berea's families will result in more food and housing insecurity, which we know can impact drug addiction rates as well. These issues in turn put a strain on our first responders and front line workers. We must have council members who work diligently right now to prepare for an uncertain future. I take great pride in the fact I spent my first term scouring and scrutinizing our budget and advocating for prudent use of taxpayer dollars.

What is the role of city Government?

To distill it down to the basics, the role of city government is to take the pool of our taxpayer dollars and provide the highest quality services and infrastructure to our community, while modeling leadership that inspires an amicably engaged citizenry.

I like to frame our role by asking the question, "how do we create a beloved community?" We answer this question by addressing:

• how we pay our bills (Fiscal Responsibility),

• how we expand (Economic Development), and

• how we take care of each other (Social Responsibility)

I recently conducted a series of virtual town halls with local experts in our community to discuss these categories more in-depth. They can be viewed from my council Facebook page entitled "Berea City Councilwoman Emily LaDouceur."

What can be done to attract more businesses to Berea?

I believe our city government would do well to do a serious assessment to look at what is working, what needs development, and what we should move away from. By focusing on the assets we currently have and building upon them, we can create a more conducive atmosphere for businesses, but leadership must have some vision for what our city can look like. Some direct measures we could take as a city to create this welcoming atmosphere for businesses is:

Going 'wet' as a city. This has been communicated to our city on more than one occasion... businesses choose other cities to make their new homes because they are not able to sell alcohol.

Provide a hi-speed internet option. Every business needs and uses the internet these days. Having the best quality internet services available has been shown to attract businesses and business incubators.

Investing in our small business sector. Thriving small businesses make our city more attractive and keeps our quaint appeal. Also, we must provide business owners with the tools they need to succeed.

Beautifying our streets and maintaining our infrastructure.

What is the most underrated thing about Berea and what would you do to make sure it becomes the most noted thing the city has to offer?

Hands down, our youth. We have a community chock full of young energy and talent that has been underrated and I dare say, undervalued. Our youth should feel their voice makes a difference in the direction of our city, empowering them to take ownership in addressing the challenges of our times. This is succession planning for the future leaders of our city!

Additionally, part of our job as public servants is ensuring our kids and young adults have healthy, local activities that foster their development, give them a sense of connection to our community, and provide opportunities for them to gather for positive interactions with their peers. It is a dream of mine to have comprehensive community and convention centers in Berea.

Trying to make sense of a living nightmare

The past two weeks have been a blur and it feels like I've been having a bad dream. As bad as I wish I just got out of bed, that's simply not true.

In reality, the longest two weeks of my life have been indeed a reality real after my mom lost her battle to COVID-19 at 3:20 p.m. on Monday, Oct. 5 at St. Joseph's East in Lexington. Mom spent at least five weeks trying to fend off the virus and put up a courageous fight until the very end.

Keith Taylor

That was mom's character and it was no surprise she kept battling and fighting. She even tried to pull out the ventilator hose that assisted with her breathing at one point while sedated.

Before our family was hit with the virus, I knew COVID was cruel, but you don't know how vicious it can be until someone you love and the one who bought you into this world is attacked to the point of no return.

One minute, she is told she beat it during a brief stay at St. Joseph's Berea and three days later she can't breath and is transported to St. Joseph's East in Lexington. She was on a CPAP machine for about a week before doctors opted to put her on a ventilator — the last resort — a week later. Mom called us many times crying and fearing that last resort.

We were told she received a five-day treatment of remdesivir, not once but twice in Berea and Lexington and also the Convalescent plasma treatment. Neither option prevented what the virus did to her lungs and eventually the rest of her body.

After the first week on the ventilator, she was close to coming off the machine and I remember the optimism in the nurse's voices that week. However, mom started going downhill after a lung collapse the following morning that was termed as a "minor setback." It ended up being a bigger ordeal than we could ever imagine.

Because of mom's status as a COVID-19 patient, we were not allowed to go and visit her in her room until the final hour, which to me, was totally meaningless, because we could not give her the support she needed early on in the fight. We had to put on the gloves, gowns and other attire before making an entrance. My visit was long enough to tell mom goodbye and that I loved her and would see her on the other side.

Not being able to see your own mom in her time of need is cruel and I would not wish that upon anyone. It's the harshest and most inhuman thing ever and our family's wish is that others won't have to endure the hardships that we experienced during the past six weeks.

The doctors and nurses assured us — mostly by phone — they were doing everything they could to help mom get through this "crap." It wasn't until six days before her death that we received face-to-face consultation with doctors and the experts regarding her care and decisions that needed to be made in the immediate future.

That's wrong and it needs to be changed in the immediate future. It's like we lost mom the minute she stepped into the hospital and that is just not right, period.

I would advise mandates and hospital guidelines to be updated, especially for patients like my mom who were in critical condition and needed love and support, from those she loved and knew, instead of strangers taking care of her during her most crucial time.

It's hard enough losing a loved one, especially your own mom, but doing so during a pandemic made it 10 times harder and nearly unbearable. We can and should do better in the immediate future.

I recently received an excellent Voter Guide for Madison County published For the Commonwealth.

Well written and non-partisan questions were presented for candidates for Berea City Council, Richmond City Commission, Kentucky House of Representatives Districts 71. 73, 81, and 91, and U.S. Congress District 6, and U.S. Senate.

Given the COVID-driven restrictions on large public meetings such as the debates once sponsored by the League of Women Voters and others, the public has few opportunities to learn the positions of candidates other than yard signs, especially for local offices. I am very disappointed that so many candidates especially for Berea City Council did not bother to respond to this and possibly other surveys.

There are 14 candidates running for 8 seats. 7 responded and 7 did not. Those responding were Amy Asher, Shane Barton, Vincent Gwin, Emily LaDouceur, John Payne, David Rowlette, and Katie Startzman. Candidates who did not respond were Ronnie Terrill, Jerry Little, Jim Davis, Teresa Scenters, Cora Jane Wilson, Donald Scalf and Stev Caudill. Each Non responder would have to give their reasons for missing this chance to inform their

Baechtold: Election all about the elephant in the room

If Mitch McConnell loses the Senate seat he has held for 36 years, he will be replaced as Majority Leader by another senator, possibly one willing to consider a few of the several hundred House bills now ignored by McConnell – bills concerning the needs of ordinary people in a pandemic.

Maybe a new Majority Leader will be more concerned about Paycheck Fairness and Raising the Minimum Wage.

Mitch McConnell and his wife, Elaine Chou, President Donald Trump's Secretary of Transportation, are both multimillionaires. Could Chou be the reason McConnell remains silent when the President gives out dangerous information about drugs that don't work, "cures" that can kill, and conspiracy theories that scientists label lunacy?

In February of 2019, the funds to provide a much needed middle school for Fort Campbell and the 101st Air Force Division were re-allocated for President Trump's border wall.

In 2020, our country has one deadly enemy that has nothing to do with the border wall, Obama, abortion, same-sex marriage, or other issues Trump supporters seem to fixate on.

This election is about the elephant in the room, the thousands of dead Americans President Trump never mentions. When you vote, honor them.

Shirley Baechtold,
Richmond

Here's How It Works:
Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Reflections

Berea Citizen Archives: Oct. 21, 2013

The Madison County Public Library lost a friend and advocate with the passing of Sue Hays. Hays served as the first director of the Madison County Public Library and worked hard to ensure its success. Hays pushed for and was successful in getting a library tax leveed by the Madison County Fiscal Court to ensure funding for the library. Hays also oversaw the opening of the Berea Branch of the Madison County Public Library in the spring of 1998. Everyone who knew Hays agreed that the library was her all consuming passion. She lived and breathed her job taking it with her everywhere she went. Abbie Harris said of Hays, "Sue Hays created a legacy of Madison County can be proud of. Madison County Public Library's continued growth and success will rest securely on the strong foundation she helped build."

• Former Berea City Councilwoman and Berea Historian Frances Moore celebrated her 100th birthday on Sunday, October 14th in the old L and N Train Depot that she fought so fiercely to save. The depot, located in Old Town Berea, currently serves as the Berea Welcome Center. Mayor Steve Connelly stated that her work during the 1960's to save the depot would be remembered as her greatest legacy in Berea. Frances was only the second woman to serve on Berea City Council during her tenure in the late 1960's.

• Shannon Johnson Elementary School received a national award that recognized and rewarded creative and impactful physical activities in schools. The nationwide competition was sponsored in part by Child Obesity 180.

Kathy Todd, physical education teacher at Shannon Johnson, initially decided to compete because she was interested in the $25,000 or more award. Todd's intention was to build a multi-generational playground at the school. Todd was very pleased to be named a "Praiseworthy Pioneer" by Childhood Obesity 180 and won a prize of $2,500 to further fitness programs at the school.

• McDonald's Restaurant's in Berea were offering a Friday Night Lights special. From 4 p.m. until midnight on every Friday night Berea Community High School and Madison Southern High School have a football game (home or away). The special for Friday, October 19th was a 10 piece Chicken McNugget for $1.99.

• The Future Business Leaders of America (FBLA) from Berea Community School held their 2nd annual golf scramble as a fundraiser for survivors of cancer. The event was held on Friday, Oct. 26.

In addition to the golf scramble, the club also set up bake sale booths during home football games.

Sara Care merchandise was also available at these booths. Luminaries were also available for purchase for $3 each and were set up around the track during the games.

• On Oct. 29, AARP offered a safe driving course specially designed for drivers over 50 years of age. The 4 ½ hour course, which earned participants discounts on their automobile insurance, was held at the Berea branch of the Madison County Public Library.

The course identified many changes that occur with the aging process and addressed strategies to accommodate these changes for safer driving.

small victories, and know when to stand firm. I've done a little bit of everything to pay the bills.

I've worked on my own cars out of necessity, went without every single essential utility at one time or another, been on the receiving side of the food bank, and I understand the struggles of day to day family life.

Why are you running for city council?

I'm running for city council because for the last few years I've seen and heard as many residents have spoken up about the direction we'd like to move towards as a city, only to be ignored and silenced.

I believe our leaders have a responsibility to be empathetic to its citizens, whether we agree or not. As a Berea city council member I will do what's right, no matter the opposition.

Democracy is the voice of all people, and I would argue that it is a democracy's duty to represent those who can't speak for themselves.

My mission in seeking public office is simple: I will be an amplifier for you.

What is the single biggest issue facing Berea and what is your solution to that issue?

A lack of empathy, outright disdain, and the unwillingness to have real world conversations with those outside of our friends and family. Whether the topic is mask wearing, drug use, protests, or even the simplest of decisions, civil discourse seems to have fallen by the wayside, right along with the Golden Rule. I'm willing to talk to anyone who's willing to have a conversation without derisiveness, to realize common ground, and work towards the betterment for all Berea's citizens.

What is the role of the city government?

The role of City Council is to respond to its citizens' needs and complaints, review and approve the annual budget, establish long and short term goals, and represent the community by whom they were elected. I've asked myself; do I feel represented by my elected officials and I ask every Berean to answer that for themselves. Do you truly feel represented by our elected leaders?

What can be done to attract more businesses to Berea?

Berea must have the infrastructure of today's technological world available to employ its citizens in the 21st century. Reliable, inexpensive, high-speed internet is essential in today's marketplace.

With many office jobs transitioning to work from home, this was made readily apparent during the pandemic lock down.

Unreliable internet speeds, or even no internet without the use of a satellite is a non starter for new businesses looking to make a place here. Our economy and business as usual looks nothing like it did last year. Berea needs leaders able to prepare our city to not only recover from this past year, but to succeed in the 21st century economy.

We must continue the tradition of Berea creativity and craftsmanship and help the newer generations carry it forward.

What is the most underrated thing about Berea and what would you do to make sure it becomes the most noted thing the city has to offer?

The ongoing work that the city has made towards promoting Berea as a Trail Town destination is one of note. A new focal point for tourism needs to be promoted.

In conjunction with that, I can envision a working train station that makes daily stops in Old Town, with passengers boarding for a day trip north to Lexington or Cincinnati and depositing arrivals at our depot simultaneously. Bicycles would be available to rent to ride our trails and explore Berea.

Or visitors can hop on the green trolley to ride and hike the Pinnacles, with stops at local restaurants. In late afternoon, day visitors and Bereans alike could gather and listen to local musicians and dine under the twinkling lights along Broadway before boarding their evening trains to return to their homes.

improve Berea for future generations.

Why are you running for city council?

I am running for City Council because now more than ever is a time to have city leaders who are do whatever is best for the City. We have spent too many years worrying about partisan issues that have gotten in the way of creating the best environment for growth of Berea. My only goal is to do what is best for our community and to help continue the strengthening of Berea so that our children have a strong city to grow up in and live in if they choose to remain here. This is the fourth time that I have run for Berea City Council and I am finishing my third term.

What is the single biggest issue facing Berea and what is your solution to that issue?

The single biggest issue for Berea is the financial health of the city. We have spent years growing our services, but our revenues have not grown at the same pace. Over the next two years we must be focused on making decisions that will create a financial strength that we have been accustomed to in Berea. I would continue my work with honing the budget and working with city leaders to be strategic about not only how we control our costs but expand our revenues through growth.

What is the role of the city government?

The role of the City is to provide services for our citizens that create an environment that promotes a vibrant community. The reality is people have the freedom more than ever to live in whatever community they choose. If we do not give citizens the ancillary benefits that they desire in our community they will not choose to reside here.

What can be done to attract more businesses to Berea?

The best way to attract businesses to Berea is to show that we are willing and ready to have businesses come here and that sounds simple. The reality is that it is a great deal of work and preparation. We must have plans in place before businesses are looking at Berea instead of after they have begun to explore Berea. We must be prepared now more than ever. We need to continue to develop our industrial park to be shovel ready and also make sure that areas that could be developed for business are prepared if a business looks at the sites.

What is the most underrated thing about Berea and what would you do to make sure it becomes the most noted thing the city has to offer?

The most underrated part of Berea is our natural resources. If re-elected I will work diligently to make Berea a premier place for tourism based around outdoor recreation. The first goal will be to complete a mountain bike park and trail running venue.

voice their frustrations to regardless of what my thoughts and feelings are on an issue.

Why are you running for Berea City Council?

I am running to ensure everyone is given an opportunity to voice their opinion free from persecution. Currently, I feel that the current members will only listen if they agree with what is being said and brush off those they disagree with. This is my second time running for Berea City Council, my first run was in 2018.

What is the single biggest issue facing Berea and what is your solution to that issue?

The single biggest issue facing Berea is the level of division among the citizens, currently, it is an us versus them mentality that makes the headlines and it has even made its way to the level of the council members who are bringing to much of their national political ideology into their thinking on the issues that are presented before them. I have a firm belief that political ideology does not belong in local government, especially a small local government like Berea, that's why the seats are non-partisan. Political ideology is for state and national races and positions. My solution is to listen to everyone no matter their views on an issue and attempt to promote unity rather than what is currently receiving a majority of the attention in Berea. One of my favorite poems "Human Family" by Dr. Maya Angelou has a line, that refers to something political ideologies attempt to smother out of everyday life, "We are more alike my friends then we are unalike" I wholeheartedly believe in this and I will show it if elected.

What is the role of the city government?

The role of city government is to ensure that everyday essentials are there for citizens when it is needed. Clean water when we turn on a faucet, infrastructure that is kept up to date, and police and fire when we need them.

What can be done to attract more businesses to Berea?

Turning away from the mindset that progress will fundamentally change Berea or the feel of small-town America. Progress is necessary to attract business, if we stay stuck in the ways of the past and refuse to change and adapt to the ever-changing economy and ever-diversifying workforce new businesses will choose Richmond over Berea.

DAVIS

the Madison County Community Fund, and served my church in several capacities. I am married to Patty Calico Davis, a Berea native, who is a retired school teacher.

Why are you running for Berea City Council? How many times have you ran and if you are an incumbent, how many terms have you served?

I am running to hopefully see the completion of the Owsley Fork Dam project, the start and completion of the next phase of the Berea Bypass and to keep the city in good financial condition while providing our citizens with the essential services they expect. I am running to help bring in both large and small businesses to our city.

What is the single biggest issue facing Berea and what is your solution to the issue?

In my opinion the one of the biggest issues facing our city is an adequate water supply. When I was elected 4 years ago, we were told by the city administration at the time that the Army Corp of Engineers was the hold up on the raising of the Owsley Fork Dam. After consulting with Senator Mitch McConnell and Congressman Andy Barr's offices, we learned that it was not the Army Corp of Engineers holding up the project , but the city administration. We were able to get the project going again and hopefully we will see construction begin on the dam in the next year.

What is the role of the city government?

The main role of city government is to provide police and fire protection, Economic Development, Planning and Zoning, streets and street lights, to maintain any city property such as parks and city owned buildings, and to provide any other programs and services to citizens if funds are available.

What can be done to attract more businesses to Berea?

Although controversial, making Berea wet would help bring in some name brand eateries as well as a major grocery chain I believe. We became moist a few years ago and to my knowledge we have not had any problems with that. Every town around us is wet. It has been surprising during the pandemic the number of inquiries we have received from businesses, both big and small, wanting information and land available in Berea. Donna Angel is doing a good job working with these people and it takes someone like Donna to be on the job daily and answer any questions prospects may have.

What is the most underrated thing about Berea and what would you do to make sure it becomes the most noted thing the city has to offer?

Berea has three of the best kept secrets for tourism. The Pinnacles, the trail system and Owsley Fork Lake. In order for our shops to survive, they need foot traffic. Tourism needs to advertise these 3 attractions more in order to entice people to Berea so the will visit our shops, eat in our restaurants, stay in our hotels/motels, buy gasoline, etc.

LITTLE

best I can for our City and residents."

Why are you running for Berea City Council? How many times have you ran and if you are an incumbent, how many terms have you served?

I have served the people of Berea for the past 12 years as a part of the Berea City Council. I feel that public safety for our city is a big concern. People need to feel safe and secure in their homes and businesses. I always support the police and fire department as well as all first responders.

What is the single biggest issue facing Berea and what is your solution to that problem?

I feel that watching our budget. We need to be spending our taxpayer's money wisely. In addition, we need to ensure that the city has a rainy day fund. These things must be accomplished while keeping our city running smoothly and keeping our taxes as low as possible.

What is the role of the city government?

A good infrastructure is essential. We need to keep the costs of electric, water and sewer as low as possible. I have worked harder than anyone on the electric contract that started in 2019. We (Berea City Council), negotiated a really good electric contract for our citizens.

What can be done to attract more business to Berea?

We need to do more in the way of preventative maintenance for our city. Keeping our streets, curbs, gutters, and streams as clean as possible to prevent future flooding, etc.

What is the most underrated thing about Berea and what would you do to make sure it becomes the most noted thing the city has to offer?

Public space is a very underrated thing. We need to strive to keep our public spaces clean and safe. Improving our parks, walking trails, bicycle trails and side walks are all important undertakings for our city.

that call them home. I hold three degrees including a Master's of Urban and Regional Planning from Virginia Commonwealth University's L. Douglas Wilder School of Government and Public Affairs. My years of service as Volunteer in Service to America (VISTA) provided me the experiences to better understand what it means to be a servant leader. As a VISTA I started to develop leadership skills in community engagement, project development/management, community development, stormwater management, multi-agency collaboration, grant writing and volunteer management among others. My dedication to service has been foundational to nearly every life choice I have made since. As a professional community and economic development practitioner and educator I have years of experience dedicated to communities facing tough challenges – most recently coordinating downtown revitalization efforts throughout eastern Kentucky. I have a long-term commitment to inclusive and representative community development strategies and my background in urban and regional planning allows me to approach community problem solving in a rational way. My experience is exactly what the Berea City Council needs right now.

Why are you running for Berea City Council?

I am a first-time candidate but I'm not running to play politics. I am running to get things done for you and to represent all Bereans to the best of my abilities. As a community and economic development professional, I've spent my career working with mayors, city councilmembers, main street organizations, tourism commissions, industrial development authorities, arts organizations, environmental organizations, federal agencies, philanthropic organizations and many others to help build community, resources and capacity that addresses locally identified challenges with locally relevant solutions. I have the experience to help us navigate our toughest challenges and an advanced skillset tailored to help us plan for future. After spending much of my professional career dedicated to communities in coal impacted areas of central Appalachia, I decided to bring my skill set home to roost here in Berea. I have the right experience right now. I have seen our current council more enamored with semantics than they are motived to serve you or work to improve the lives of Bereans. I am ready, excited and motivated to use my skills, abilities and knowledge to serve you and the interests of Bereans. If elected I am committed to illuminating and improving the processes and opportunities for residents to get involved and engaged in the issues that matter to them. I am committed to cultivating civic pride by championing community leadership opportunities. I see a pathway for public involvement in civic affairs that moves beyond simple participation and prioritizes amplifying resident leadership and ultimate ownership. I believe in Berea and the good will and faith of Bereans to create the innovative solutions to our current and future challenges.

What is the single biggest issue facing Berea and what is your solution to that issue?

I think the single biggest issue our community faces is poverty. Our current poverty rate hovers at nearly double the national average. Poverty is a wicked problem because it's not a singular thing nor does it have an easy solution. It can be the symptom of numerous circumstances while also a contributing factor to other community ailments. It will take a commitment to a long-term multifaceted approach to address.

This issue isn't something you solve with an ordinance but rather with a more nuanced approach looking at this issue not as a choice but rather an opportunity to really improve the quality of life for nearly 20% of Bereans (depending on your data source). The solution has to go way beyond the simple notion of more jobs. We need a strategy that ensures we prioritize quality jobs. Jobs that can support a family and not jobs that require mothers, fathers and guardians to work two jobs to afford a home. We have to make Bereans feel heard and invite Bereans to be a part of the solutions. We need opportunities to build skills including vocational. We have to think about vocational training not as a pipeline into to industry but rather as a pathway to create new businesses filling the gaps of our aging plumbers, electricians, and carpenters. We have to combat apathy with engagement in our young people and invite them to the table to help shape the community they want to raise a family. We have to also support and champion efforts aimed at providing direct support to those with substance use disorder and homelessness while understanding that one does not cause the other. We have to focus on placemaking and making it easier for Bereans to enjoy our community. In essence we are talking about an approach that focuses on the long-term community engagement harnessing the power of our collective complexity to develop solutions that take into account the varied ways we can, and should, be moving our community forward with a focus on alleviating poverty and improving the quality of life of Bereans.

What is the role of city Government? City government has a primary responsibility to serve the needs of their citizens. City government serves an administrative role supplying services but, just as important, city government represents and involves citizens in determining public needs and solving them. City government and elected officials work collaboratively amongst councilmembers, the mayor, city attorney, departments, commissions and state and federal agencies to provide these needs. City government is a deliverer of services and infrastructure to provide function and amenities to improve the quality of life of residents. Examples include but are not limited to roads, parks and gardens, bridges, libraries, sidewalks, as well as future planning related to housing, economic and community development, recreation, fire, policing and emergency management services. The city's responsibility is not just as a service deliverer though. The city government should also be seen as a convener, facilitator, champion and a clarifier helping keep citizens involved and engaged in creating the solutions to our toughest challenges.

What can be done to attract more businesses to Berea? The short answer is to create the fertile destination businesses want to locate and invest in but it's way more than that. Whether we're talking about small retailers, restaurants, artists, professional/medical service providers, educators or even manufacturing and other industries – they are looking for great destinations to make investments and raise families. We have to first acknowledge that this goes beyond simple economic policy. We need to actually start by asking ourselves how do we make Berea a place worth investing in.

Great places and destinations are great because it's obvious the locals love them.

It's not about lowering standards or creating policies that make it easier to simply do business. We have to start focusing on building local wealth through local ownership. Community wealth and resiliency are directly related to the success of our locally owned businesses. Local enterprises offer unique experiences that both locals and visitors cherish. Local ownership allows Bereans to build valuable equity in their business, homes and support local philanthropy. Bereans with entrepreneurial aspirations need more support and we need a more direct effort to prioritize local first.

This process starts with civic participation and is underpinned by our individual complexity but there are a number of steps we can take to make Berea a destination for business investments. One of the most impactful pieces absent in our current portfolio is a local philanthropic fund or affiliated fund housed at one of the many regional community foundations. It's time we put our money where our lives are and a Better Berea Fund could help support community driven efforts that often result in distraction for our city council and reduces the financial pressures on our future city budget. The next step is to amplify our assets. Our most valuable assets are our people, places and local businesses. Together we can build local wealth and community resiliency by prioritizing our existing assets. We are overdue for a bottomup approach that values everyone equally. In particular as budgets get lean, we have to use what we have well before we can want for something new. In addition to the historic assets Berea has been known for (arts, heritage crats, creativity, Berea College, etc.) we are also seeing a growing financial return and acknowledgement for our existing trail system and outdoor experiences. To ensure Berea maintains its place as a destination we need support all the niches and not pit them against each other. We need to continue our investments in public spaces that accommodate the needs of Bereans. Trail expansions coupled with creative placemaking prioritizing the pedestrian could take us to the next level. Locations that prioritize the pedestrian experience are the places visitors prioritize and businesses invest in. There is also the need to retain and expand our existing businesses. The best place to start is by being informed. If elected I would initiate a sustained business and retention program that can provide us with a better understanding of the local business climate as expressed by local businesses. I share all this to emphasize that economic growth and resiliency is more than simple economic policy but is more complicated and needs to be addressed as such. For example, economic growth also needs to be considered in context of our housing availability, social policies, civic pride, amenities and infrastructure.

What is the most underrated thing about Berea and what would you do to make sure it becomes the most noted thing the city has to offer? The thing I is see and feel is often underrated or even completely discredited is our individual complexity and diversity. I am not simply talking about the color of our skin, genders or sexual orientations but rather ALL the things that make us unique and complex. Diversity is an interesting concept and one that both investment bankers and biologists can agree on. Just like your investment portfolio or an ecosystem our diversity of ideas, experiences, approaches and individualism make us stronger. Diversity in an ecosystem or investment portfolio is always seen as an indicator of resiliency. It's time we think about our community the same way. Berea and the ideals we represent are no different. Our varying perspectives underpin the solutions to our toughest challenges if we are willing to be uncomfortable enough to really listen to each other. In regards to how you make this something more appreciated it has to start with listening to each other and dropping the antics of paralyzing partisanship.

People need to feel involved and listened to. It's empowering to take an idea to completion but rarely do Bereans feel empowered to create the solutions they desire. We lack a structure to support residents in these endeavors. Any process can begin with an individual's vision for change but cultivating shared ownership and positive results requires a deeper commitment on all our parts.

I have experience building diverse community teams and working with existing organizations to solve problems and have the tough conversations. It takes a pragmatic and empathetic approach. It takes someone willing to listen and find the middle ground. We can be known as a place where our diversity and individual complexity is being harnessed to solve and respond to our toughest challenges.

A Tribute to Mavis Powell

By Daughter Judy Parker

I was born a moonshiner's (dad) daughter in a house up a dirt road in Red Lick Hollow. We were poor, but we were loved by a momma who wouldn't give up. She did her best to stretch every dollar, she worked day and most of the night, without rest, to take care of us. She did her best & always dreamed of geting us of Red Lick Hollow and she did! Momma fed & clothed 7 kids & helped us grow, she took in sweing for people who didn't even pay her what she was owed. She used that to buy clothe to make most of our clothes. Momma raised a garden & chickens, everything she cooked was finger'lickin. In the summertime my brothers picked berries to sell, & us little ones always wanted to help. We came upon a snake by a log but we were saved by our faithful dog. My brothers also made money by raising hogs. My oldest sister was also a big help, she & my oldest brother were like a mom & dad to me . I was the baby of the family. Momma is gone now & what a loos. People like her can never be replaced. She died earlier this year at the age of 98 years old. On her stone I placed...she worked very hard & she loved her children & grandchildren & we all loved her. I love you momma.

"In my opinion it's disturbing," Van Winkle said. "Given the fact that it's national domestic violence awareness month. And this goes out. It's very deceptive because this should have on it a 'paid for by.'"

Mike VanWinkle was interviewed by WKYT on August 19, 2020

WKYT tried repeatedly to reach Robert Goforth, sending emails, calling his phone, and leaving Facebook messages, but none were returned. Calls to the Kentucky Republican Party were not returned. The chair of the Laurel County Republican Party said he had not seen the letter and could not comment.

I want to touch on the WKYT campaign finance violation story from earlier this week. Let me explain... Robert Goforth has run in 4 elections, a special election, 1st term, a failed run for Governor, and now this race. Is Robert Goforth so desperate that he has to break the law or is he that blatantly incompetent? I'm a first time candidate, and I knew the law. Either he is completely incompetent or he thinks rules don't apply to him.

Robert Goforth's typical response of run and hide when you get caught doing something illegal has become far too common. It not only shows weakness but a blatant disregard for the rule of law.

The STRANGULATION AND ASSAULT trial of his wife began this Tuesday. I'm sure the news outlets had a field day with that and they should. Domestic Violence is a serious matter. I'm personally getting tired of having to clean up his messes. Our district is being dragged through the mud by a guy that obviously doesn't care about anyone but himself.

Speaking of being dragged through the mud, I'm sure there will be ANOTHER gutter lie newspaper ad run by Goforth's goon "Randy Hartmann" from Somerset. That doesn't make it true and the guy doesn't even live in the district. Nothing he's claimed is REMOTELY accurate. The people deserve better than a pack of lies and a Representative that has PROVEN far too often he has NO self control or ability to represent anyone. Leaders don't run and hide. They are transparent and answer the tough questions. That is EXACTLY what I have done.

This is the kind of race that you run when you have no record of achievement, your under INDICTMENT, and have no respect for the law.

WHY ARE ALL THESE LEFT-WINGERS SUPPORTING VAN WINKLE? BECAUSE THEY WANT ANOTHER RADICAL LIBERAL IN THE KENTUCKY HOUSE.

WE JUST CAN'T ALLOW ANOTHER PRO-BLM, PRO-ABORTION, PRO-TRANSGENDER, AND ANTI-GUN ACTIVIST TO TAKE A SEAT IN OUR LEGISLATURE.

Van Winkle proudly describes himself online as a "proud outspoken liberal" and his social media posts are full of joyous support for far-left candidates like Bernie and Biden and causes like BLM and Planned Parenthood. He even proclaims his support for BLM on his profile pic.

Fiscal Court

Clerk: Cast votes ASAP

By Andy McDonald
For The Citizen

With just a week to go before the general election, Madison County Clerk Kenny Barger is encouraging residents to cast their ballots as soon as possible, especially those who requested absentee ballots. Barger addressed the issue Tuesday during a teleconference meeting of the Madison County Fiscal Court.

"If you've got a ballot, get it in to us. We've got 78 percent of them back as of yesterday. We need those ballots back in so we can get them counted," Barger said. "If you have requested an absentee ballot, you cannot vote in person unless you didn't get that ballot by Wednesday [October 28]. Starting tomorrow, if you didn't receive your ballot, you can come in and vote early or on Election Day."

Walk-in voting locations are at the Madison County Court House in Richmond and at the back of the Berea City Hall Annex, more popularly known as the old Berea Post Office on Chestnut Street. Walk-in early voting will continue until the day before Election Day.

Barger noted that the turnout numbers look promising so far. "With early voting, we've had a 15.5 percent turnout already," Barger said. "Yesterday we were voting 142 people an hour. So you might see a line, but that line is moving at 142 people an hour. So there's no reason to wait. If you know who you're going to vote for, come on in and vote."

At one point, Magistrate Tom Botkin addressed the issue raised by Berea City Council member Jerry Little regarding the placement of the council candidates on the Express Voting electronic ballot machine.

Little expressed concern that voters might inadvertently overlook both he and candidate Cora Jane Wilson because they are located on the second page of council candidates, but Barger stated the system won't allow voters to move on without viewing all of the candidates for council.

"On the Berea City Council races, it is two pages, just like the constitutional amendments are two pages. At the bottom of the screen there's a 'More' button. If you don't hit that 'More' button when voting for Berea City Council, it will not let you go to the next screen. You have to view all candidates before you can move onto the next vote. That way, everybody has to see all of their available options," Barger said.

Barger noted there will be seven polling places open on Election Day, including five locations in Richmond: Eastside Community Church at 210 Catalpa Loop, Big Hill Christian Church on 1150 Goggins Lane, Whitehall Baptist Church at 3401 Colonel Road, Ashland Church at 700 South Keeneland Drive, and First Baptist Church 425 Eastern Bypass. Berea locations include the Russel Acton Folk Center on 212 Jefferson Street and Berea Church of God on 189 Rash Road. Voters can use any of those polling places regardless of where their original voting precinct is located.

Other business:

• The fiscal court adopted a proclamation declaring November Diabetes Awareness Month. David Johnson accepted the proclamation.

• Connie Baird was appointed to the Madison County Cooperative Extension Board for a three year term, along with Bethany Smith who was appointed 4-H Youth Development representative.

• The court unanimously voted to award a bid for emergency sirens to ASC Mass Notification Solutions to replace the outdoor siren alert system for $2.3 million, pending successful negotiations. Five bidders took part in the process, officials said.

• EMA/CSEPP Director Dustin Hiser said the county is looking at the new system because it is less expensive to maintain and replace, something that will be important once the county takes on the full cost of maintaining/replacing the siren system once the demilitarization project is complete. The system under consideration typically lasts 20 years, officials said.

• The court also unanimously approved a measure to apply for the Kentucky Utilities 2020 Plant for the Planet Grant Fund, which encourages the planting of trees in KU's service area.

The potential amount of the grants could be between $500 and $5,000, said grant consultant Tom Webb. Planting the trees at White Hall is under consideration, officials said.

• The court also approved application for 2021 KU Community Grants Fund, which is a community improvement program typically funded for $20,000 or less for economic development. Deputy Judge/Executive Colleen Chaney said some potential projects are currently being evaluated.

Also Tuesday, Northern Madison County Sanitation District Board will have James D. Rowe as a board member through 2024. Rowe's reappointment was approved unanimously. Meanwhile, Morgan Elliston was hired by unanimous decision as a human resources assistant .

Going green

AppHarvest breaks ground on leafy greens facility

For the second week in a row, the City of Berea welcomed a new high-tech employer to the Berea Industrial Park, as AppHarvest announced plans to open a 15-acre, environmentally sustainable indoor greenhouse. The facility will be located next to Farristown Middle School.

In a Monday ceremony that included city, county, state and Berea College officials, AppHarvest Founder and CEO Jonathan Webb cited Berea's unique identity and its proximity to Berea College as reasons for bringing the facility to the city.

"Why this community? Why Berea? This is one of the most special communities period in our country. Definitely in Kentucky," Webb said.

Webb noted the facility will produce leafy green vegetables using a computerized production process that will reduce consumption of water by 90 to 95 percent. Employing a pesticide-free, closed loop irrigation system, the Berea plant can grow vegetables all year around, and is located within a day's drive of 70 percent of the United States, thus reducing the energy needed for transport.

The Berea facility will be one of three large operations in central Kentucky, the largest being in Morehead, and the other near Speedwell in Madison County. The Madison County plant will employ approximately 300 workers, officials said. There has been no former announcement on how many will be employed at the Berea operation.

Webb noted that one effect of growing high-tech, indoor agriculture is that it will allow American consumers to be less dependent on foreign countries for produce. Webb cited farms in Mexico, which use far more pesticides than are allowed in the United States, and which employ child labor, making it difficult for American producers to compete. Operations like AppHarvest, however, can bring agriculture jobs back to Kentucky in a way that promotes environmental sustainability and makes American farming competitive.

Video: Use smart phone camera and scan QR code for ceremony video

"There's been a lot of struggle to get to this point. Our region has a moment to lead," Webb said. "It's going to take universities, community colleges, and high schools to make us a lot more than a leafy green facility, but a symbol of where we can all go together," Webb said.

Mayor Bruce Fraley addressed the audience, noting the building of the AppHarvest plant is the start of what he and others believe is Kentucky's new era as a leader in high-tech agriculture.

"I would have never imagined that the City of Berea would become part of a revolution in agriculture that will forever improve the supply chain of fresh vegetables to the Eastern United States, but here we are," Fraley said. "We are here today with a visionary leader of the ag-tech industry, Jonathan Webb and his team, and we are, in fact, a part or their revolutionary vision of the future of agriculture."

Fraley continued: "I want to thank Jonathan Webb and the AppHarvest team for choosing Berea, for investing in our community, for providing jobs that will diversify our economy and improve the quality of life for Bereans for generations to come. We welcome you as a community partner and pledge our support in helping AppHarvest succeed. We are proud to be your partner and we look forward to being part of the agriculture technology revolution!"

Berea College President Lyle Roelofs addressed the crowd, noting that the new AppHarvest facility will provide opportunities not only for the college community, but for the region and the nation.

"AppHarvest comes to our state and our town, bringing an approach that can work at the scale of big agriculture, but without all of those flaws," Roelofs said. "AppHarvest makes efficient use of water resources, operates chemical free, and locates itself so that shorter transportation to markets can be achieved. The whole region will benefit by their access to healthy, high quality produce, sustainably grown and transported."

Congressman Andy Barr, State Representative Deanna Frazier, gubernatorial advisor Rocky Adkins, and State Senator Jared Carpenter praised the leadership of the county and the city for spurring economic development.

Vote!

Plenty of options available to voters

It's time to head to the polls.

Some of you have already voted absentee and through a mail-in ballot, while others have made their choices through the early voting process at the Madison County Courthouse and the Berea City Annex.

Keith Taylor

Those who haven't yet cast their votes, will do so the traditional way Tuesday at the Folk Center and the Berea Church of God, giving voters three options in this year's General Election. In-person voters also can go to any polling place in Madison County and vote simply by showing a form of identification.

Other voting sites in Madison County include: Eastside Community Church, Big Hill Christian Church, White Hall Baptist Church, Ashland Church and First Baptist Church in Richmond.

Kudos to local and state officials for giving voters three viable options amid the ongoing pandemic.

Endorsements

The Berea Citizen doesn't endorse local, state or national candidates.

It's our belief that newspapers shouldn't endorse any candidate but rather let the voters make the decision for themselves. We do, however, fully support the democratic process and urge citizens to vote this year, next year and beyond.

Thank you

I sincerely appreciate each and every one of you for reaching out to our family during my mom's recent passing.

The thoughts, prayers, love and support has been overwhelming and I'm reminded of how blessed we are to live in Berea and Madison County.

'Why not Berea?'

National Arts and Humanities Month (NAHM) is a coast-to-coast collective celebration of culture in America that has been celebrated each October since 1993.

While NAHM is almost over for 2020, it is never too late to explore and celebrate new facets of the arts and humanities in our lives and collective histories.

Vallorie Henderson

This is my first October in Berea, having moved here last December to open the first Small Business Development Center in the United States that focuses on growing the creative and tourism sectors of its home state's economy. "Why Berea?" you might ask. I say, "Why not Berea?"

Choosing Berea as the location for Kentucky's newest Small Business Development Center was an easy one. Berea is home to a thriving population of weavers, instrument makers, furniture artisans, jewelry designers, glass workers, potters, painters, sculptors, writers, and musicians.

The story of Berea's artisan community is interwoven with historic Berea College, the first interracial and coeducational college in the South. Berea has a longstanding tradition of diversity, social justice, environmental responsibility and community service. Both college and town are committed to the practice of sustainability and conservation.

Community development efforts in cities, towns, and rural places across the country have demonstrated that artists, designers, and cultural organizations can play an essential role in realizing community-driven transformation.

Community development strategies that integrate arts and culture are better equipped to draw upon and support existing community assets, preserve and enhance the authentic character of place, and ensure equitable outcomes for local stakeholders.

In these rapidly changing times, creativity, innovation, imagination and entrepreneurship are the hallmarks of the new economy, in Kentucky and around the world. That means that investment in the arts and creativity is critical to economic, educational and civic success.

Arts and cultural experiences account for a significant number of small businesses that help stimulate the economy through tourism and neighborhood development, as well as creating community assets that improve our collective quality of life, something that is difficult to measures but important to business owners, employees and the community at large.

This in turn helps to incubate and grow additional businesses, broadens the tax base, and attracts tourists.

According to the Kentucky Creative Industries Profile, "The creative industries of Kentucky are represented by 4,470 establishments, employing more than 71,000 people, who earn wages totaling more than $2 billion, and generate $7.2 billion in annual revenue. The creative industries represent a full 5% of the industry establishments in the state, 4.1% of the state's employment, at least 3.4% of all wages and at least 2% of all industry revenues."

In addition, according to the May 2018 Economic Impact of Tourism in Kentucky:

- 71.6 million visitors spent nearly $7.6 billion in Kentucky and visitor spending increased by 3.7 percent.
- Visitor spending directly supported 4.4% of all jobs in Kentucky.
- Visitors generated the equivalent of $456 in state and local taxes for every household in Kentucky.

To succeed in the creative economy takes a sense of common purpose and goals, persistence, planning combined with flexibility, big-picture thinking, a can-do attitude, and the ability to admit and learn from challenges and celebrate big and small successes.

Communities must focus on coordinated, pro-active development strategies that capitalize on and invest in community assets for pathways to growth and stability, all the while creating vibrant communities where people want to live, work, learn, and play. I look forward to celebrating NAHM with you again next October in Berea, "Where Art's Alive."

When not surrounded by a worldwide pandemic, my office is located on the third floor of Berea City Hall.

Vallorie Henderson is the Center Director Kentucky Small Business Development Center in Berea.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Crachiolo: Food Bank offers letter of thanks

On Oct. 15, the Berea Food Bank distributed 30-pound USDA Farmers to Families food boxes and fresh milk to Bereans and Madison Countians in need at Southern Madison High School. We could not have done so without incredible support from every corner of our community: the City of Berea, Berea College, our schools, churches, civic organizations, and over 60 young volunteers who stepped up to answer our call to help.

On behalf of the food bank and our larger organization, Berea Faith Community Outreach, I'd like to thank the coaches and community leaders who recruited them and supervised their work. These fine young people included Boy and Girl Scout Troop 151, Venturing Crew 51, Scouts from First Christian Church, Madison Southern Boys and Girls basketball teams and other students, young people from Berea Community School, Home Schoolers, and young adults. To their coaches and scout masters, Madison Southern staff and scout-moms, we say--they did you proud!

All worked tirelessly and with good cheer to serve. It was quite a job. In just over two hours they transferred 1295 boxes — 38,500 pounds — 19.4 tons of good food into the hands of Madison Countians suffering the deepest food insecurity. About 10 boxes a minute. Amazing! We could not be more grateful and impressed with the quality of their work and their willingness to give of themselves. To these young people we say, you represent the best of Berea. Truly you have hearts full of love and souls full of Grace. Our board members and regular volunteers were proud to work alongside you.

About the traffic: We know how frustrating it must have been to be caught in it--we are sorry for long delays folk experienced.

And we commend the Berea Police Department for doing everything in their power to manage what turned out to be an unmanageable situation for so many.

Although we work on the front lines of food insecurity in Berea we had no inkling in advance of the number of people who would come. No one did. It was overwhelming. We hope you will accept our apology for your travel delays. Food insecurity is at historic levels in our area and the turn-out that jammed our streets was a testament to this reality.

There was a sadness to the day, too. Several hundred folk who waited through the long lines did not receive a box. We ran out before all needs could be met.

To the people who waited in vain we offer this promise — the Berea Food Bank stands ready to to meet your emergency food needs. Folks experiencing hunger who live in Berea or Southern Madison County are welcome to come to the Berea Food Bank for guaranteed assistance.

We can make this promise because Bereans have generously supported our mission for years and continue to give through these hard times caused by the pandemic.

With their continued support we will meet the needs of everyone in our service area who asks for help.

If you'd like to help us keep the promise of food assistance to your neighbors in need please send a donation in any amount to the Berea Food Bank at 108 Parkway Avenue, Berea Ky. 40403.

POLITICAL LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Lackey: Hicks a team player

Dear Editor,

We often choose the better of two poor choices when we vote. That's the ballpark democracies play in. We call balls and strikes between teams on the field, knowing that many players should have stayed in the minors.

The year 2020 has one game where there is one good team—and only one. It's our Congressional District.

The Republicans have never dirtied his uniform, never sweated wind sprints, never dropped down a sacrifice. He was the coach's son and the coach was Mitch.

The Democratic candidate was not the player anyone expected to be on the field. He made the team growing tobacco, being from Fleming County, being a Marine, a cop, a lawyer who actually tries cases. The Democrats signed him without a bonus.

No curve balls. This is our rare chance to vote for a really good player. It's Josh Hicks

John F. Lackey, Richmond

Terrill: Vote for 'Team Berea'

To the Citizens of Berea:

If you haven't already voted, please vote for Ronnie Terrill and the other Team Berea candidates for Berea City Council. Most of them were born and raised in Berea; and if they weren't born here, they have lived in Berea for most of their adult lives.

They have no agendas' their purpose in running for Berea City Council is to represent all citizens of Berea, not just a select few. They will serve our best interests, and they are willing to listen to anyone who has a suggestion to better Berea.

The Team Berea sign lists their names – Ronnie Terrill, Jerry Little, Cora Jane Wilson, Teresa Scenters, Jim Davis, David Rowlette and Donnie Scalf. Themselves, so be sure to look on both pages for their names list Jerry Little and Cora Jane Wilson on page 2 of the ballot. Your votes will be greatly appreciated.

Barbara J. Terrill, Berea

King: Elections have consequences

Especially when it comes to voting to fill the highest political office in the land and I believe that the upcoming 2020 Presidential Election is like no other we have experienced so far as "up-front" consequences matters are concerned (the future of our children and grandchildren)!

I believe that Joe Biden vs. Donald Trump for the highest office in the land should be a no brainier for any reasonable minded voter; as it is common knowledge that former V.P. Biden suffers from some form of mental debilitation. Reminds me of my own condition where I find myself getting up from the living room to make a trip to the kitchen only to discover upon arrival that I've forgotten what I came to the kitchen to retrieve.

I'm 75 and V.P. Biden is 78, but I'm not running for President. Anyone planning on voting for Biden should take a hard look at his V.P. selection; for should he win this election, I firmly believe that within 90 days, he would be taken to Walter Reed Hospital where it would be determined that his competency level is below the requirements for holding the highest office in the land.

Remember a vote for Biden is also consequentially a vote for Kamela Harris for President; just as a vote for Trump is also consequentially a vote for V.P. Pence, should Trump be unable to fulfill his term.

Elections have consequences (Vote Smart. I'm not telling you who to vote for; the choice is yours!).

Gary (Sonny) King, Berea

Elam: WMTN seeks unity amid division

Dear Editor:

I am concerned about this election. Maybe you are too. Maybe you are feeling down because you feel there this nothing you can do. Please consider this as an action you may be called to. Braver Angels is an organization that began after the 2016 election to promote civility between reds and blues (Republicans and Democrats). We now have a new program called With Malice Toward None (WMTN).

We are asking people to make a commitment to non-violence whatever the outcome. We are not trying to change your positions but promote dialog despite the differences. WMTN will provide resources for your organizations if you want to help people process this election. Just not talking about politics is probably not going to bring us to a better place. But having the skills and support to do so is important.

Braverangels.org/with-malice-toward-none or email me at jenelam@aol.com

We also have a program in case there is a period of time between election day and inauguration day when we do not know who the next president will be called to Hold America Together.

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

legislators. I am a passionate advocate for Berea and its citizens.

Why are you running for Berea City Council? How many times have you ran and if you are an incumbent, how many terms have you served? I am currently serving my first term as councilman having run one other time before. I have worked hard for the community during this time and would like to continue working on projects and issues that will improve the quality of life of my fellow Bereans.

What is the single biggest issue facing Berea and what is your solution to that issue?

Infrastructure. As our city grows, our city infrastructure (roads, utilities, parks, etc.) must be maintained, upgraded and grown as well. Our infrastructure affects our ability to attract and keep businesses and industry and directly affects the quality of life of our citizens. I will continue to support public works and utilities towards this goal and be attentive to their progress. I will gladly lobby Frankfort for continued work and funds to repair state roads and make improvements throughout our community.

What is the role of the city government?

City government directs taxpayer funds into services that improve the quality of life of our citizens. As council members, we provide a voice for the citizens to direct these funds in a manner that best reflects the priorities of the community. We also help establish the rules and procedures that move the community in the direction of its strategic plan and long term goals all while being responsible stewards of that trust.

What can be done to attract more businesses to Berea?

Improvements in infrastructure such as the Berea Bypass Project, Berea utility improvements, Owsley Fork Dam Project, Central KY Regional Airport improvements all provide advantages for Berea's future. If we want to attract businesses into our community, we must ensure that it is an attractive place to live with good roads, clean water and recreation. We must also work hard to market ourselves to new businesses as we do with tourism.

What is the most underrated thing about Berea and what would you do to make sure it becomes the most noted thing the city has to offer?

Berea has been known as the Arts and Crafts Capital of Kentucky for many years. I believe our parks system and especially our trails and shared use paths make Berea stand out. I believe our recognition as Trail Town Berea is a fantastic complement to our other tourist attractions and should be marketed as such. Many would come to Berea for the trails and stay for the crafts. I would happily continue to champion expansion of these paths and their place in our tourism.

Every new foot of trail or pathway benefits the quality of life to our citizens and the livability of our community.

Why are you running for Berea City Council? How many times have you ran and if you are an incumbent, how many terms have you served?

I am concerned about the future of Berea, our state and the nation. As I finish my third year on the Berea City Council, friends, family and several of Berea's business leaders encouraged me to run for re-election based on my diverse background (college professor, economic development leader and first-hand knowledge of our business community). Our community needs strong leaders that are willing to make difficult decisions and I would very much like to continue serving our community.

What is the single biggest issue facing Berea and what is your solution to that issue?

Expansion of our watersheds needs to be one of our highest priorities. Without the clean pristine natural resource that we take for granted, we will be hard pressed to address our residential and commercial needs and grow our local economy. Currently, the Berea City Council is in the process of raising the dam at Owsley Fork for the safety of those that live below the dam and to increase the water supply for Berea.

What is the role of the city government?

To be transparent in the administration of various programs and services in response to the needs of our citizens. These include: law enforcement, local ordinances, emergency management services, fire protection, planning and zoning, finance/budgeting, parks and recreation, streets and roads, promotion of tourism opportunities and economic development, taxes collection business licenses, waste disposal, animal control, environmental issues, utilities, etc.

What can be done to attract more businesses to Berea?

We need a targeted approach to retail and industrial development. Exit 77 is a prime location for retail development. However, our proximity to the Richmond Centre and Hamburg make it difficult to recruit new retail establishments and buy local. We have a 400-acre industrial park located on a major north/south corridor and within a 500-mile radius of 2/3 of the US markets. It is imperative that we diversify our efforts to recruit new sustainable jobs and to do so we need to have our industrial park shovel ready. It is time to begin a critical review of the tourism initiatives that have been made possible through the local restaurant tax. Given the popularity of adventure tourism, we need to diversify our approach to tourism by promoting the Pinnacles, Owsley Fork, trails, etc.

What is the most underrated thing about Berea and what would you do to make sure it becomes the most noted thing the city has to offer?

Our people that make Berea unique. We have always been very accepting of any and all. We need to continue reaching out to everyone and identify some common goals.

Why are you running for Berea City Council?

I am running for Berea City Council to help keep Berea the quiet town it has always been. I would like to see the tax money used more efficiently. Berea needs development to insure jobs for our future.

This is the first time I have ran. With all of the riots and destruction going on in the country, we must insure our citizens that it don't happen in Berea

What is the single biggest issue facing Berea and what is your solution to that issue?

It is hard to narrow it down to one. There is drugs, which is a problem nationwide. We have serious infrastructure problems that need to be solved. The taxes are really too expensive in Berea. We need to rethink the restaurant tax. Either rescind it or do better with the money. They have wasted over 14 million dollars so far. They have over a million dollars in the bank. So lets pay off the Tolle Building and get that debt off of the taxpayers.

What is the role of the city government?

City government is suppose to collect tax and provide infrastructure and services for the taxpayer. The safety of the people is the responsibility of the city.

What can be done to attract more businesses to Berea?

To attract more business, a city must be business friendly. Tax breaks, quick processing of applications, to make it viable for business to locate here. One example is Georgetown and Toyota. The city gave them a 10-year tax break to locate there.

It has grown by leaps and bounds since that was done. Business hire people. Then they require more eateries, service stations, motels, etc. The list goes on and on.

What is the most underrated thing about Berea and what would you do to make sure it becomes the most noted thing the city has to offer?

The peaceful and close-knit community spirit. That is what attracted me here to live. That very thing is at stake in this election. The entire nation is at risk of becoming like larger cities are becoming now. We must keep our city focused on the needs of the long-term Berea citizens. We cannot allow it to turn into Portland, Minneapolis, and Chicago. There are those running that will try to do just that. I beseech you to sand against this anarchy and vote for Berea. Keep it the town we love.

a long and rewarding career as Publisher of the Berea Citizen.

My years at the newspaper, where I followed all aspects of local government, have given me a unique insight into the inner workings of Berea City Council. I have also served on various boards and committees including several terms on the Boards of Directors of the Kentucky Press Association and the Berea Chamber of Commerce, where I was elected President in 2018. I look forward to serving my hometown in a new way by representing the citizens as a member of the Berea City Council.

Why are you running for Berea City Council?

If the voters give me the opportunity, this will be my first term. As a lifetime resident of the area I love Berea. Our family has deep roots here, going back seven generations, to a time well before the city was incorporated. This community has always been a special place. I want to do my part to keep it financially strong and thriving.

What is the single biggest issue facing Berea and what is your solution to that issue?

Singling out one issue is difficult, but our water supply is certainly near, if not, the top, priority.

I would support every means at the city's disposal to continue the upgrades at the Owsley Fork Reservoir. Making sure our police department is fully staffed and well compensated is another important issue. I would also work to put an end to the divisiveness of the past several years. In order to have a city government that works well for all, we need to find common ground.

What is the role of the city government?

The role of city government is to provide basic services and infrastructure for the safety and security of the citizenry; best accomplished by maintaining and expanding the economy in order to grow the tax base, so that the city is also able to offer quality of life programs such as the parks department. Another important function is creating a positive work environment for employees, especially first responders. I believe we need to find a way to work within the budget to do what it takes to recruit and retain the best candidates.

What can be done to attract more businesses to Berea?

The first step to attracting more businesses has been taken, in the hiring of an exceptionally competent Economic Development Director. Donna Angel is doing good things already. As a member of the council I would cultivate relationships with those people in local, state, and national positions, who have the ability help us help Berea.

What is the most underrated thing about Berea and what would you do to make sure it becomes the most noted thing the city has to offer?

Opportunity is the most underrated thing about Berea. Whether it's the opportunity for homebuyers to find quality affordable housing, or the opportunity created by the need for retailers, such as grocers, clothing, or building supplies, and even tourism opportunities, where visitors are looking for more than what Berea has historically offered. Adventure and Agri-tourism both come to mind; in addition to and not at the exclusion of our trademark arts and craft. Promoting all that opportunity should be done in a broad range of ways, from simple word-of-mouth, to traditional print and broadcast, to the many avenues of the Internet and social media.

Why are you running for Berea City Council?

I want to continue to work for all citizens of Berea.

In my 6 terms on the Berea City Council, I have provided a conservative voice for all to ensure we, as a City, don't waste taxpayer dollars.

I will continue to be a conservative voice on city council.

What is the single biggest issue facing Berea and what is your solution to that issues?

I think there are 3 major issues facing Berea: (1) completion of a new bypass, (2) our water supply and (3) our contract with out electric provider.

(1) Currently, we only have half of a bypass. We need to work with those in Frankfort to get the rest of the bypass complete so we have a "real" bypass within the city.

(2) We need to follow the State's mandate and repair the damn at Owsley Fork Lake.

(3) Our contract with our electric supplier KYMEA expires in two years. We need to start working now on an extension or develop a plan for the electric supply

What is the role of the city government?

I think the role of city government is to maintain, update and repair city facilities, promote economic development, and provide public safety services (police/fire).

We should provide all of these things with a balanced budget, keeping in mind that they are spending the citizen's tax dollars.

What can be done to attract more businesses to Berea?

Donna Angel, Economic Development Director and the Economic Development committee, of which I am a member, have been working together on several fronts for recruitment of businesses for Berea.

We must keep up the good work we have been doing.

What is the most underrated thing about Berea and what would you do to make sure it becomes the most noted thing our city has to offer?

I think that Berea has a lot offer, both citizens and visitors, Our parks, walking trails, locally owned restaurants are all a valuable part of Berea.

We need to continue to support for our tourism, just as long as the money is spent in a useful manner.

The Berea Pirates boys' basketball team will have a new face on the sideline as the school named Ray Valentine as its next head coach last Friday.

Valentine brings a ton of coaching experience to his new post, including assistant stops at Georgetown College, where he was on the coaching staff of the 2013 NAIA Division 1 national champion, Kentucky State University, Western Hills High School, Bondurant Middle School, Kentucky County Day, Western High School, Eminence High School. In addition to his coaching at the prep and college level, Valentine also served as head coach for the Kentucky Amateur Athletic Union (AAU) championship squads in 2009, 2010, and 2011.

"Coach Valentine has an extensive and successful background at all levels," said Berea Director of Athletics Jerry Bingham. "He has coached at the middle school, high school, college, and AAU level for more than 20 years. From our first conversation, I could tell he has a lot of fire, energy, and compassion for working with student-athletes."

Though Valentine has been with the program less than a week, he has come away impressed with Berea's student-athletes and feels his experience will benefit the program going forward.

"I like what I have seen so far from the players. They are all very eager to get started, as I am," the coach said. "I bring a wealth of knowledge to the program being I've been blessed to coach at all levels with different types of talent, along with working for outstanding institutions, with this, I hope I can help these young men continue to succeed in education, athletics and life."

Berea is a homecoming of sorts for Valentine.

"Berea holds a special place in my family's heart," Valentine explained. "My wife's (Celina) family is originally from Berea, so that made the decision a little easier because it felt like coming home."

The offensive attack will be all about tempo, Valentine said.

"We will try and spread the floor along with playing an up-tempo style," he said. "Defensively, we will play a mixture of different schemes, depending on the scouting report."

The first thing on the agenda is for the new coach and players to learn one another, but Valentine is confident that the sky is the limit once they do.

"I expect us to be very competitive," he said. "(Success) depends on how fast the boys understand the new system and their dedication. We plan to bring an exciting style of play to the program, along with continuing to support our community."

Valentine said many people are to thank for his new opportunity.

"First of all, I would like to thank God, my wife, Celina, my daughter Jasmine and son Rayden, along with family and friends for all the support over the years," he said. "I would like to also thank the Berea administration for this once in a lifetime coaching opportunity, which has always been a dream of mine. And thank you to the entire Berea community for welcoming us with open arms."

Why are you running for Berea City Council?

I am running because I love Berea. I want to continue to see it grow and prosper I want to make sure it's citizens and its taxpayers are well represented on the council. I have no agenda. I am currently serving my second term on the Berea City Council.

What is the single biggest issue facing Berea and what is your solution to that issues?

The biggest issue as I it, is the need for increasing the city's water supply. However, this issue is being currently addressed.

Infrastructure is also at the top of my concerns. It is important that we are making sure the streets are well maintained, that utilities are kept up to date.

Also of concern, is making sure we pay our employees competitive wages so we don't lose them.

What is the role of the city government?

To make sure our taxpayer money is spent wisely and responsibly.

What can be done to attract more businesses to Berea?

I think our mayor has taken great strides toward ensuring that is being accomplished. In addition, the hiring of the City Economic Development Director has been a great plus.

What is the most underrated thing about Berea and what would you do to make sure it becomes the most noted thing our city has to offer?

I think the most underrated thing from the past has been the promoting of the pinnacles, our trails and the Boone Trace.

This past week, I had customers in my business that were here visiting from North Carolina for the purpose of visiting the Boone Trace Trail.

I am glad to see that type of tourism and that the city is actively promoting those types of things along with our local businesses.

Holding out hope

Calipari hopeful Cats can play full schedule, backup teams in place

John Calipari isn't sure what's going to happen beyond Thanksgiving weekend.

"We don't run this," Calipari said during a Zoom conference call with reporters on Monday. "The virus runs us. … I don't know how this thing is going to play out and, I will tell you, if one of our kids gets positive and is traced, we're out 14 days."

Already in a bubble on campus, the Wildcats have spent most of preseason workouts following COVID-19 protocols and taking extra precautions even as cases continue to rise to record numbers in the state.

"I'm feeling very comfortable to the 25th of November," he said. "We're also wearing chips that they're doing in football, and what we're finding out is unless you're playing against somebody a lot, you're not going to be in his space more than 15 minutes, six feet. As coaches, managers, we're not near the players five minutes in a practice, three minutes in a practice.

"What we mitigated by wearing the chips, if it's the players and they're staying in the bubble, they should be fine. We leave the bubble to go home, managers, coaches, some of the managers are in the lodge. But when we come back, we're not in there. We've got masks on and we're not close enough to them. So, I feel good until the 25th."

Although a revised and complete schedule has yet to be released, the Wildcats have a backup plan in place in case a team on the non-conference schedule can't play because of coronavirus cases.

"We've got our schedule, which we were ahead of this because we just said, OK, play war games," he said. "If they give us this date, that date, that date, what's our schedule look like? Let's get it ahead of time. Then what if this team gets sick? How do we do this? So, we have some backups in case something like that happens."

Calipari admits he didn't watch a video of Louisville coach Chris Mack's response to playing the Wildcats in late December at the KFC Yum! Center, but added, that "guys that take shots, when you shoot arrows at me, they go through bazooka holes. They barely touch skin. They may not touch skin." Calipari's biggest concern is just navigating the current pandemic and playing this season.

"I just want to play — we have to get this underway in a safe way," he said. "We've all got to mitigate. We've all got to look after what we're doing with our kids – wait a minute – and our staff and our managers because the virus is running us. We're not running it. How do we mitigate all of this stuff? We've got to play. I'm saying, if we've got to play on I-95, I'm good. I'm playing."

The Champions Classic already is in jeopardy after ESPN reportedly called off along with a long list of other tournaments that were scheduled to be played in a "bubble format" in Orlando. Indianapolis appears to be the new frontrunner for the Classic, which features Michigan State, Duke, Kansas, and Kentucky.

With a plan in place for games against the rival Cardinals and other non-conference teams, the Kentucky coach isn't sure what will transpire when it comes to Southeastern Conference games.

"If someone gets sick it will be a make-up game, I guess," he said. "I don't know. I mean, if we play in pods and you're playing six or seven games at a time and one team's not there, how to make those games up I don't know. I mean, we're counting on the league office to have plans A, B, C, D and E. And maybe F."

He also is worried about trying to get his squad to stay composed amid the uncertainly surrounding the season along with preparing for the postseason.

"I think this is a year, you're not worried about your record as much as playing, playing well and then counting on the committee to pick the best teams," he said.

Why are you running for Berea City Council?

I'm running for City Council because I believe it is time to have more leaders serving with vision and conviction. I ran once before in 2014 and came in 9th place in a field of 20 candidates- so close! :)

Here's my vision for what Berea can be: I envision a welcoming, diverse community with healthy residents living fulfilling lives. I see a Berea known for its vibrant small business culture, lively arts scene, and bustling industry. Our city's schools, child care centers, and college will be standard-setting institutions for our children to grow and thrive. Our town's sustainable infrastructure will support a growing population. Successful public/private partnerships that address the social service gaps in our community will underscore the commitment of city leadership to address the challenging issues Berea residents face. This work will be conducted by a city leadership that is forward-thinking, proactive, and thoughtful-able to work together towards the common good of vibrant, resilient, and inspiring Berea.

People in Berea will benefit from my service as a city council person as I will use my entrepreneurial skills to bring innovation and creativity to the council. I will strive to work cooperatively with city leaders, citizens, and other stakeholders to work towards a shared vision. Also, I will be a responsive, engaged council member who serves with integrity.

What is the single biggest issue facing Berea and what is your solution to that issue?

The fractious, divisive rhetoric of current national politics has found its way to Berea with a vengeance. I believe this division is the biggest issue we need to overcome if we wish to move forward as a city.

I (maybe naively!) believe that it is possible for us to do the work of the city alongside folks who don't agree with us. It is imperative we can seek common ground and work to serve all Berea residents. If elected, I will do this work.

I pride myself for building a business that is a welcoming space for everyone in our community, and I will bring this sense of kindness and congeniality to council. I will listen to differing opinions with respect and care, and serve on council with humility and thoughtfulness. Our city is facing unprecedented challenges and I will be a council member that can work with all other council members, not just those who share similar values.

So to me the most important issue comes down to this- as a city we need to treat people with humanity and lovingkindness, work together towards common goals, and build a culture in town where we treat everyone with respect. If we can't handle these basic skills, how can we hope to achieve the real work that needs to happen in town?

What is the role of the city government?

City government's primary responsibility is providing essential services and maintaining the infrastructure of Berea. The number one job of Berea City Council is to pass the city budget. This important task demonstrates the priorities of our city leadership, stewards the money of taxpayers, and defines how we as a town will respond to the challenges and opportunities we face.

I'm proud to own a successful business in Berea and that has informed how I would approach my service on City Council. Even though the majority of folks on council have been of the conservative ilk for at least the past two terms, and have the political capital to basically push through any ordinance they like, I don't see how they have made significant impacts on the bottom line of our city's budget. They talk about things like repealing the restaurant tax around election time, but still happily take the money (which is has very specific ways it can be spent, according to state law), and then complain about the work Tourism is doing. They need to find new talking points that they are truly interested in enacting, and which will affect our city finances in a positive way.

The other primary way council members can serve Berea is the council committees. There are currently four committees: Audit and Finance (which is the committee that presents the budget to council), Economic Development, Parks, and Personnel. Because of my interests and experience, I'm most interested in serving on the Economic Development and Parks committees. There are many new projects I'm passionate about that would potentially fall under the Parks committee's purview. For example, I'd like to include more placemaking/beautification projects in the city's work plan, as well as work on expanding the growing trail network in town. Also, I think the recent consolidation of the Tourism and Business Development departments has created a great opportunity for the Economic Development committee to renew its vision and work on important new projects. I'm disappointed that according to posted meeting minutes, this committee has only met 4 times in the last 2 years. This feels like a huge missed opportunity.

What can be done to attract more businesses to Berea?

As someone who has started a business in town, I have direct experience with the business development work of the city of Berea. Five years ago, I participated in a business startup class series that the city sponsored- the Kauffman FastTrac program delivered by the Mountain Association. Through this ten-week class, I created the business plan for Native Bagel Company and set out on my entrepreneurial journey. This relatively small investment of the city has paid huge dividends in my personal life, but also has created 9 high-quality jobs for my employees, allowed me to purchase a building on Chestnut Street, and has generated thousands of dollars in the taxes my business collects and pays. This one, very personal, example demonstrates the power of strategic support for small business, and the value in capitalizing on the high-quality resources we already have here in town.

Also, Berea leadership needs to actively work to create a community where business leaders want to live and want to locate their businesses. In order to compete with other communities across the region for new companies and businesses, I believe it is important to champion a town that is inclusive, diverse, and forward-thinking.

What is the most underrated thing about Berea and what would you do to make sure it becomes the most noted thing the city has to offer?

It's the people. We have so many great people here- caring churches, service-driven nonprofits, Berea College, successful businesses, and high-quality schools. Our community is rich with people who care deeply about our town, and we need leaders who are tuned-in and ready to listen to them, capitalize on their talents, and celebrate the work they are doing.

I believe we need to widen the circle of folks who have input in decisions that affect city residents and consider the quality of life for all Berea residents.

We need to make space for the diverse mindsets, faith expressions, and values that residents in Berea possess. We should actively welcome challenging conversations with courage and vulnerability. Finally, we need leaders of conviction, creativity, and vision who can continue to build and harness the social capital we have and create a Berea that is a vibrant, resilient, and inspiring place to live and work.

RADICAL LIBERAL MIKE VAN WINKLE

SHOULD COME CLEAN.

Mike Van Winkle's campaign for State Representative is being bankrolled by a mysterious group of out-of-state liberals from places such as New Jersey, North Carolina, and Pennsylvania as well as the House Democratic Caucus Campaign Committee.

Source: Kentucky Registry of Election Finance

WHY ARE ALL THESE LEFT-WINGERS SUPPORTING VAN WINKLE? BECAUSE THEY WANT ANOTHER RADICAL LIBERAL IN THE KENTUCKY HOUSE.

WE JUST CAN'T ALLOW ANOTHER PRO-BLM, PRO-ABORTION, PRO-TRANSGENDER, AND ANTI-GUN ACTIVIST TO TAKE A SEAT IN OUR LEGISLATURE.

Van Winkle proudly describes himself online as a "proud outspoken liberal" and his social media posts are full of joyous support for far-left candidates like Bernie and Biden and causes like BLM and Planned Parenthood. He even proclaims his support for BLM on his profile pic.

HOLDING CHINA ACCOUNTABLE

- Andy is leading the China Task Force to investigate China, its coverup and mishandling of the coronavirus. He's committed to holding the Chinese Communist Party accountable for their lies and deceitful actions that led to the spread of this global pandemic.

City still in good financial health

An independent auditor gave the City of Berea a clean bill of financial health recently when representatives of Baldwin CPAs presented their findings for fiscal year 2019-2020.

"We didn't run into any issues. We've issued a clean audit opinion with no internal control matters. The results of the audit are good," said Drew Olmer of Baldwin CPAs. In addition, Olmer added the city managed to increase its value despite the economic hardships of the pandemic. "The total net position of the city as a whole ended the year at $69.2 million, which is up $5.3 million. That's a very positive change when your net assets increase by $5 million," Olmer said.

Olmer added that the city drew in more revenue than budgeted, and it spent less than was actually in the budget. He noted the increase in grant funds, such as funding for the Owsley Fork Dam, and $700,000 in federal CARES Act funding to defray the cost of fighting the COVID-19 pandemic, boosted municipal revenues. Overall, General Fund revenues reached $35 million, exceeding last year's numbers the report stated.

Expenditures dropped to $30.2 million, down from the previous year, including an approximately $2 million decrease in spending for utilities after the city opted to change electricity carriers. Overall, revenues outpaced expenditures by $300,000 in the General Fund.

The city managed to pay $2 million of its long-term debt last year, though Berea's expenses in paying for the net pension liability continue to climb. Overall, the city's liabilities increased by $800,000 last year, due in large part to pension liability costs, Olmer said. The city's share of net pension liability was $18.2 million last year, but as recently as 2014, it was just $8 million. "So every year, the net pension liability has increased significantly," Olmer said.

Kentucky Attorney General Daniel Cameron visited Berea and spoke at City Hall last Thursday afternoon. (Keith Taylor Photo)

AG Cameron delivers drug deactivation packets to BPD

Attorney General Daniel Cameron donated Deterra drug deactivation packets to law enforcement officials in Madison County to assist with the safe disposal of prescription drug medications. The packets provide a safe means to neutralize unused or expired prescription pills, liquids, and patches that, if not destroyed, can lead to misuse, abuse, overdoses, or accidental poisonings.

The Attorney General donated a combined 600 Deterra packets to the Berea Police Department, Paris Police Department, and Bourbon County Sheriff's Office to provide to the public. The donation came ahead of the Drug Enforcement Administration's (DEA) National Prescription Drug "Take Back Day" last weekend.

"It is our hope that the donation of Deterra packets will give law enforcement another tool to fight back against the drug epidemic in our communities," Cameron said.

"Unused and expired prescription drugs are a public safety challenge, and we encourage every Kentucky household to properly dispose of these drugs so that they don't pose a risk to children, family, and friends. Find a designated disposal location near you, and make a plan to properly dispose of your unused prescription medications."

During last year's Drug Take Back Day, Americans turned in nearly 883,000 pounds of prescription drugs at nearly 6,300 sites operated by the DEA and almost 5,000 of its state and local law enforcement partners. The DEA, along with its law enforcement partners, has now collected nearly 6,350 tons of expired, unused, and unwanted prescription medications since 2010.

"Addressing and educating Kentuckians about the importance of disposing of any unwanted or unused prescription medicine is a crucial public health issue," said Representative Deanna Frazier, who represents part of Madison County.

"The National Prescription Drug Take Back Day provides us an opportunity to further prevent the usage of these medications that could lead to addiction."

"Programs such as this reduce opioid utilization and help prevent pill and substance abuse within our communities," added Senator Jared Carpenter.

"I am encouraged by this initiative to promote an avenue to safely dispose of unused or unwanted prescription medications."

The 2018 National Survey on Drug Use and Health estimated that 9.9 million Americans misused controlled prescription drugs. In the wrong hands, expired and unused prescription drugs can lead to overdoses, drug abuse, and accidental poisonings.

"The Berea Police Department is thankful for the support and gratitude from our local and state partners," said Berea Police Chief Eric Scott. "We are especially grateful to have the Attorney General Daniel Cameron united with so many others here and across the Bluegrass to provide resources to assist all of our efforts in preventing unnecessary deaths related to illegal drug usage.

"Now, let's take back our communities by limiting access to unused left over drugs."

Chaney present Representative Deanna Frazier (R-Richmond) with a 2020 "Friend of Kentucky Cities" award.

Frazier honored by KLC

The Kentucky League of Cities (KLC) presented Representative Deanna Frazier (R-Richmond) with a 2020 "Friend of Kentucky Cities" award. Berea city officials joined KLC Executive Director/CEO J.D. Chaney and Director of Public Affairs Bryanna Carroll to recognize Frazier at Berea City Hall.

Frazier sponsored House Bill 357 in the 2020 Regular Session of the General Assembly.

The KLC initiative makes it easier for cities to hire vital emergency medical services professionals.

"As a member of the House Standing Committee on Local Government, I was honored to sponsor HB 357, and I appreciate the Kentucky League of Cities for recognizing me," Frazier said.

"The bill opens up more resources for so many of our Kentucky cities by requiring reciprocity of certification or licensure for any member of the United States military who is registered by the National Registry of Emergency Medical Technicians as an emergency medical responder, emergency medical technician, advanced emergency medical technician, or paramedic."

Officials seeking to keep roadways safe on Halloween

FRANKFORT (KT) — State and federal highway safety officials in Kentucky are joining together to warn drivers to drive safely this Halloween.

The Kentucky Transportation Cabinet's Office of Highway Safety is partnering with the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, or NHTSA, this year to remind drivers that "Buzzed Driving Is Drunk Driving."

Gov. Andy Beshear says 2020 has been a tough year for all Kentuckians but urges everyone to remain vigilant and continue making responsible choices to keep each other safe.

"Halloween falls on a weekend so there's potential for indoor gatherings to peak," he stated. "I want to encourage Kentuckians to celebrate safely by following health guidelines and making plans for a sober ride home if you plan to drink.

"A few preventive measures can mean the difference between life and death."

Berea Citizen Archives: Oct. 30, 2003

Senior citizens were treated to a day of pampering on Tuesday, October 28th at the Berea Senior Citizen's Center "Spa Day 2003," featured health assessments such as blood sugar testing, flu vaccinations, makeovers from Mary Kay, therapeutic massages and more. The Madison County Health Department, nursing students from Berea College along with various local vendors combined efforts to make the event a success. In addition o services, participants were also given information on health related issues such as diabetes. Romeatrius Moss (Berea College Senior) and fellow student Kerri Bell organized the event as a part of a class project. Moss said, "We wanted to see this age group get the healthcare information the deserve. We have to take care of our people. Senior Citizens are an underserved population and we should all be giving back to the people who need it.

• After it's opening in July, the Kentucky Artisans Center is bringing more people into the Folk Arts and Crafts Capital of Kentucky. According to Belle Jackson, director of Berea Tourism, visitors to the city's Welcome Center in Old Town had shown a 20% increase during the month of September. She noted that this was encouraging but several additional months of data would be needed to show a more convincing positive impact. Artisan Center Director, Victoria Faoro said that the numbers of visitors coming to the Artisans Center have been steadily increasing with any given Saturday experiencing 300 plus visitors.

• Save-A-Lot featured a variety of food items as a part of their "Special Buys" promotion. A few featured items as a part of that promotion included: 11.8 ounce Quaker Oatmeal $1.99/each; a 7.5 ounce bag of Bugles for $1.49; 27 ounce packaged Sara Lee Home-style pies $1.99 each; and a 12 ounce package of Oscar Mayer bologna for 99 cents each. Meat specials included chuck roast for $2.19 a pound and chuck steak for $2.39 a pound.

•It was announced that the appearance of Kingston Elementary would be dramatically different when Madison County Schools Superintendent Glenn Marshall revealed the artist renderings of the new state of the art facility to the public. Modeled after Brodhead Elementary in Rockcastle County, the new facility will have the capacity to house 600 students (an increase of 250 from the current facility). The building, designed by Clotfelter/Samokar, will feature a unique layout, including pods. Each pod will contain 4 classrooms. This design is intended to lead to a quieter school setting. A wet summer lead to some delays but Superintendent Marshall anticipates the new facility will be read for students in time for the opening of school in the fall of 2004.

The program was free and open to the public.

• During the week of October 2oth, businesses within the City of Berea experienced broken windows and other forms of damage. According to Berea Police, on Monday October 20th, windows at the Glades Road location of McDonalds, Knights Inn and at least one other business on Chestnut Street experienced broken windows and glass. More reports came in on Wednesday from a business on North Broadway as well as vehicles on Chestnut and Ellipse. The vandalism continued on Thursday and Friday with damage at 2 car lots on Richmond Road, the Boys and Girls Club on Prince Royal Drive, the MACED offices on Chestnut Street and another business in Old Town. Berea College also reported several broken windows as well. Lieutenant Ken Clark of the Berea Police Department said all windows were likely broken as a result of shots fired from a slingshot. He also stated that they had a couple of leads and that they were taking these crimes seriously.
