Council reviews fireworks ordinance

By Andy McDonald
For The Citizen

The Berea City Council heard the first reading of two pieces of legislation Tuesday, including measures addressing the hotel transient tax and the regulation of fireworks.

Berea City Council member Teresa Scenters introduced an ordinance that was drafted to address concerns raised by a citizen. Scenters said the citizen reported that her dogs are especially sensitive to fireworks and have to be sedated around the Fourth of July holiday. The draft ordinance limits the dates citizens can use aerial fireworks to December 31, Fourth of July, Memorial Day, or other holidays designated by the city council. "I just felt her concerns and wanted to address them," Scenters said.

While some councilmembers were sympathetic, they questioned whether imposing more restrictive measures on firework use would be enforceable, and whether it would place an undue burden on law enforcement.

"I think we're making more problems for ourselves by making it so restrictive," Steve Caudill said. "This is not going to stop what people are complaining about."

Scenters agreed that enforcement would be a challenge, especially since the county does not regulate fireworks.

Berea couple celebrate 70 years of marriage

The story of Bill and Rose Ramsey has both love and a well-lived life together. The Berea couple will celebrate their 70th wedding anniversary Sept. 7.

While their love story is romantic, neither would call their initial meeting love at first sight, but it has endured over time with a simple commitment to each other and the strength of their marriage.

"If people ask how to be successful in life, you say, 'choose the right parents', and we could say the same about how to be successful in marriage. Choose the right spouse," Bill said. "Marriage is not just a partnership or contract. It is a sacrament, something important to God. Commitment is not just to each other. It is also to the marriage."

> "We were good friends first. Then later we got serious."

Rose added, "there was never any hint of divorce; it never even crossed my mind."

Bill said, "Love grows, changes, and deepens over the years, through good times and hard times. And the precious reward is to share the joy of watching grandchildren and great-grandchildren grow up!"

The Ramseys met in the fall of 1948 during their freshman year at Berea College. The pair came from rural backgrounds and found it easy to bond. Rose Moore grew up in East Tennessee. Bill's family had a farm in Lithia Springs, Ga.

The couple was drawn together because of a common interest in drama. They became involved in weekly play productions at the "Tab", Berea College's theater building.

Because all students have work assignments, they each held a labor position at the theater building. Rose was the costume manager and Bill the technical assistant.

The following year, they graduated to lead roles in the production of "Arsenic and Old Lace."

"That was a lot of fun," said Rose, who added that the weekly plays were performed in front of a full house. "Entertainment had to be on campus.

Berea tourism eyes new banners, digital billboard

By Andy McDonald
For The Citizen

The Berea Tourism Commission is exploring strategies to bring visitors to all parts of the city as part of a plan to boost the local economy.

At an Aug. 29 business meeting, the commission explored deploying more advertising banners around the city, as well as hearing ideas about purchasing an LED digital message board.

Berea Business and Tourism Development Director Donna Angel said the city is looking at deploying banners near Interstate 75 exit 77 toward the center of town. The banners would read "Welcome to Berea" on one side, and "Thank You for Exploring Berea" on the other, Angel explained.

The city has experienced some success with banners in Old Town, and the idea would be to deploy them in other areas of the city so that more businesses could benefit from tourist traffic, she added.

Berea woman arrested on drug charges

Detectives with the Madison County Drug Task Force concluded a joint investigation with the Madison County Detention Center on Tuesday, August 30, 2022, with the arrest of a woman accused of trafficking cocaine and methamphetamine.

The initial investigation alleges Lilliann Reed, 28, of Berea, was involved in trafficking illegal narcotics in Madison County and was attempting to introduce those substances into the Madison County Detention Center. An investigation, which began in August, resulted in the seizure of heroin, methamphetamine, and cocaine before the items could be introduced into the Detention Center. As a result, Reed is charged with Trafficking in Controlled Substance, 1st degree (Cocaine), Trafficking in Controlled Substance, 1st degree (Methamphetamines), and Possession of Controlled Substance, 1st degree (Heroin). Reed is lodged in the Madison County Detention Center.

The Madison County Drug Task Force is an Appalachia HIDTA funded initiative comprised of Detectives from the Madison County Sheriff's Office, Richmond Police Department, and the Kentucky State Police.

Baechtold releases children's book

A picture book for youngsters and their grandmothers Grandmother's Song is a full-color picture book for youngsters ages 4-8 and a tribute to all grandmothers.

Richmond author Shirley Baechtold initially wrote the book focusing on her first grandson, but the illustrations and narrative pull together the heartfelt relationships grandmothers have with all their second-generation offspring.

The book comes with a bonus. Shirley, a celebrated entertainer and author, has added a special song that's in a CD accompanying the book.

Together, the book and recording enhance the introduction to youngster's reading and the enjoyment of music. Grandmother's Song actually began as a spiral-bound document distributed to family members and close friends, accompanied by the CD – Something to Dream About –that Shirley wrote and sang. But positive reception resulted in encouragement to incorporate the storybook and recording into public distribution.

A writer, musician and professor emeritus of English at Eastern Kentucky University, Shirley, an EKU alumna, had an early career as a jazz musician. She performed at clubs in Kentucky, Ohio and New York and is the widow of basketball star Jim Baechtold, who played professionally for the New York Knicks and was a basketball coach at EKU.

Kings Island still a thrill

As hard as it is to believe, my niece Addisyn Marcum— Addie Bug — is officially a teenager.

She made sure I didn't forget and circled her birth date (Sept. 7) on my desk calendar and had one simple request for her special week. Addie wanted to take some friends to Kings Island to celebrate, which we did Sunday.

Keith Taylor

My sister Taunya and I drove Addie and some of her close friends to an amusement park that turned 50 this year and a place we practically grew up with, considering the park was about two hours from home. A one-day trip was common and so were church youth group trips before adult life fully kicked in and took precedence.

The park wasn't overly packed, but still full considering it was the final weekend of the season. We encountered weather delays and had to wait 45 minutes after being next in line to ride The Beast as a small thunderstorm passed over the area.

Kings Island still gives thrills and Addisyn Marcum began her 13th birthday week at the park with friends Sunday. Marcum is the niece of Berea Citizen Publisher Keith Taylor.

Our first ride was Invertigo, the first coaster I had stepped on in probably 10 years or more and it proved to be the right one to break me back in again, followed by Banshee, which reminded me a lot of the Vortex, which in it's prime, was one of the top roller coasters in the region.

Invertigo and Banshee proved I could still get a thrill at my age.

We did the typical tour of the park and tried to get on Orion not once but twice, before succeeding a third time and ended up riding it twice. The Orion, one of just seven giga coasters in the world, is perhaps the best coaster ride I've ever experienced and I've been on a bunch of them from Sea World to Universal Studios, Six Flags to Cedar Point. The Orion drop is 287 feet and reaches a speed of 91 miles per hour with a duration of two minutes. One time wasn't enough and we rode it twice, with the last being in the dark.

I'm not sure why, but I had never stepped foot on Flight of Fear until this trip and loved the immediate takeoff that took us from zero to 54 MPH in just four seconds. The one-minute indoor thrill was a fitting ending to a day of reminiscing and watching Addie and her friends experience an enjoyable time on her birthday week.

The Racers were much more fun than I remembered, considering the cars were much more comfortable. I can remember mom getting bumped around while making sure we didn't fall out of the car on our many excursions there in our childhood. I can still see dad walking around in his dress shoes and slacks slipping and sliding all over the place.

Those were the good times we had as a family while growing up and I was glad to make new memories with my sister and Addie and her friends.

Amusement parks are still fun and amusing.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

McAfee: Veteran Support, or what?

This seems to be more of a question than a statement in the Berea community. If you consider the freshly installed signs on Highway 21 headed for Big Hill, you can see the large signs honoring one of Berea's home grown sons that gave his life in the Vietnam War. Hugh Byrd's sacrifice when his aircraft crashed somewhere in Vietnam (body not recovered) is one of the most sacrificing actions known to the citizens of Berea.

Several years ago, I researched all the 19 members of Madison County who sacrificed their lives for the war in Vietnam. Most of them were draftees who had no say in their being sent to fight the war in Vietnam. But there was one of these who had been in the Air Force for about four years and was a Sergeant stationed at the radar site at BGAD.

He had a small child, a daughter who couldn't have been more than two years old at the time. He was a volunteer for a Top-Secret mission to a radar site in Laos, just 15 miles from the North Vietnam border. The radar was on a mile high mountaintop which had a clear look all the way into the Hanoi and Haiphong Harbor. They used their all-weather radar to direct fighters and B-52's in on targets in those two areas trying to shorten the war.

They were discovered and overrun before their six-month tour was over and Sgt. Henry Gish was one of the first to be killed by the NVA. His dead body was used to save three of his comrades when he was thrown over a hand grenade before it exploded, hitting his comrades with shrapnel. The three of them were helped into a rescue helicopter before CMSgt Richard Etchberger was hit by ground fire and died before they could get to a Thailand hospital. Etchberger was later awarded the Medal of Honor posthumously for saving the lives of the three airmen.

Gish had only been in Berea for about 3 years and was married to a girl from Berea and had become a resident of this city. His daughter is now grown, and his wife has moved to Richmond and has never remarried. My feelings are he needs to be honored along with the other losses in the war from Berea. His name is on the monuments in both Berea and Richmond, but still there are other ways to honor those who lost their lives as well as those who devote their time and energy in support of all veterans.

For the past eight months or more I've been working hard to bring a beautiful monument to both Berea and Richmond to honor all veterans who serve their community, especially those who devote many hours of their time in support of projects and plans for these communities. I am speaking of a monument developed by the Kentucky Veterans Hall of Fame (KVHOF) to honor all vets who work to support your community, but especially those who have devoted many hours of their time and have been selected for and inducted into the KVHOF.

During 2019 and 2020, there were three veterans from Berea selected for this honor. They were Chester Elkin, Marvin Farmer and Emerson McAfee. For a town the size of Berea, that's a lot of veterans to be selected. Bot now in 2022, there have been two more Madison Countians from Richmond selected for this honor, Michael Boyd, and Phillip Sinclair. The names of all of these Madison Countians will be inscribed on the backside of the monument for all to see and know their service to the community.

These monuments are by no means cheap, as they cost $10,000 apiece. The KVHOF hopes to eventually have one of these in every county. So far there have been fire counties request one of these monuments with the first one already installed and dedicated in Kenton County. The City of Richmond has committed to buy one for their new Armory Park, where they will build a Veteran's Plaza with monuments honoring military veterans, fire, police and first responders.

The Berea City Council has received several briefings by Emerson McAfee since this project started and have stated "it's a great idea" and "the veterans are deserving of it," but to this date have made no commitments either way on purchasing it or not. As with everything else, the price on these monuments will continue to rise and make it harder to afford. Now is the time to get it when each city has Covid funds to help with ARPA projects. The City of Richmond is using these free funds from the Federal government to build a park and to purchase this monument. Surely the City of Berea could use some of these Covid funds to purchase something to show they honor those veterans who are, or who have devoted their time for the betterment of the community.

Mr. McAfee began canvassing the county collecting donations from the businesses and citizens of Madison County to help pay 25% of the costs for both monuments in Berea and Richmond. The Madison County Fiscal Court has also offered another 25% of the cost for both monuments, leaving the cities with a final cost of $5,000 each or 50% of the total cost. If Berea decides they don't want one, the donations collected will have to be used elsewhere to help honor the veterans.

Mr. McAfee has sent the down payment of $2,500.00 for the Richmond monument and Berea is still kicking the can down the road, with the mayor not bringing it up for a council vote. After this long period of considering it, why can't the Berea Council just bring it up for a vote? Is someone afraid it will fail, and they will have to say no?

Do some on the council feel if they say no, it will make them look like the don't appreciate the veterans? Will it cause them not to be reelected? Whatever the reason, it would solve the lingering problem if the mayor would call for a vote on the monument and make a decision known to all.

Whichever way they go, there needs to be a decision made soon. Berea has at least two good places to place this monument and it could be ready several months after their decision. If it's not wanted by the council, an effort will be directed toward looking for another sponsor in Berea, possibly some of our businesses in the Industrial Park. Laurel, Pulaski, Clark and Whitley Counties, who have members of the KVHOF are next on the schedule to discuss this monument for their veterans parks.

September brings work with these other counties to honor their veterans who are volunteering their services in the community. If Berea hasn't made a decision by the end of August, the effort to place these monuments will have to move on these other counties, and work started on how the donations and Fiscal Court monies for Berea can be used. The Madison County Veterans Center in Richmond would be honored to have something located there to honor these veterans who are continuing to serve the community.

I feel it is such an honor for the city and community to have one of these located in the community where all citizens can view it and reflect on the sacrifice made by our veterans, both past and present. And having two of them in Madison County would set this county apart from all others.

Recipe from the heart

As summer is coming to a close, I thought I would include another recipe that uses fresh ingredients that are still in season.
Libby Horn

Corn and Tomato Fettuccine

Ingredients
8 ounces uncooked fettuccine
2 medium ears sweet corn
2 teaspoons plus 2 Tablespoons Olive Oil, divided
1/2 chopped sweet red pepper
4 green onions, chopped
2 medium tomatoes, chopped,
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
1 cup crumbled feta cheese
2 Tablespoons fresh parsley minced

Directions
In a Dutch oven, cook fettuccine according to package directions, adding corn during the last 8 minutes of cooking.
Meanwhile, in a small skillet, heat 2 teaspoons oil over medium-high heat. Add red pepper and green onions; cook and stir until tender.
Drain pasta and corn; transfer pasta to a large bowl. Cool corn slightly; cut corn from cob and add to pasta. Add tomatoes, salt, pepper, remaining oil and the pepper mixture; toss to combine. Sprinkle with cheese and parsley.

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9X9 grid, broken down into nine 3X3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Professor A.J. Chidester, who would become the head of the Department of Education at the college arrived Saturday from Williamstown, Massachusetts. He was formerly the superintendent of schools and principal of Williamstown High School. The college was glad to welcome Professor Chidester into the midst. The position he was to fill was vacated by Professor D.W. Boitnott, who departed the college for the Pacific Coast.

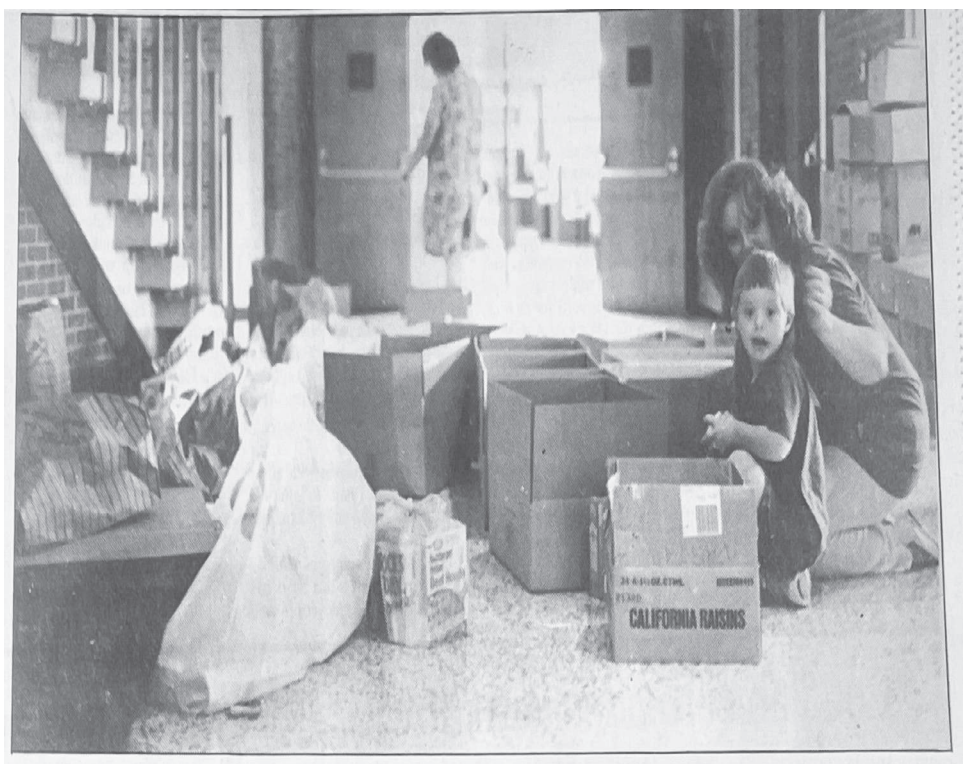
Walter Moores, principal of the Kingston High School, was re-elected as chairman of the Madison County Teachers Association at the annual Madison County Teacher's Conference held in the Central High School auditorium the previous Saturday morning. Other officers elected included Carl McCray, Kirksville High School principal, vice-chairman; Mrs. William Clark, Waco grade school teacher, secretary; and Edward Tevis, reporter. The primary purpose of the annual conference was to complete the arrangements for the opening of Madison County Schools on Monday, September 8th, by discussing various phases of school activities that school executives had planned to carry out during the school year. Additionally, teachers voted to join the National Education Association and the Kentucky Educational Association as a body. By being affiliated with the later, the teachers also became automatic members of the Central Kentucky Educational Association. Addressing the county teachers, Madison County Superintendent, William E. Pearson, complimented teachers on the excellent job they had performed the previous year. "It was the best year I have ever known in the Madison County Schools System," he said. However, he continued, "you teachers have got to work harder than ever. The people are now expecting more from you. Do not fail your constituents. In reference to the physical side of the teaching profession, the Superintendent said, "The physical side is just as important. We will get the facilities. The three things that will save the people in Madison County are good roads, electricity, and good schools." In conclusion, the Superintendent reminded all teachers that they must have health certificates before they can teach because of a new law passed.



Tommy Parsons hurried to get donated materials loaded at the Berea Community School last week before they were rushed off to Louisiana. The school collected foods and goods to send to the hurricane stricken state. Teacher's Aid Lynn Kelly is shown helping Tommy prepare the goods for shipment.

The newly formed Greater Appalachian Cultural and Economic Foundation would serve as a "broad vehicle" for promoting economic growth in eastern Kentucky, according to chairman G. B. Johnson, Jr. Articles of Incorporation and bylaws for the foundation were approved by the Appalachian Development Council last week in Berea. The council was attached to the Governor's Economic Development Commission. The foundation would be in operation as soon as papers of incorporation were filed with the Kentucky Secretary of State. The non-profit foundation was being organized to encourage charitable, cultural, educational scientific and economic activities for the benefit of the 49-county area designated as Appalachia.

A national publication picked Berea College as one of eight "unbeatable deals" in American higher education. In it's third annual "Best College Buys" issues, Money magazine groups Berea with the U.S. military academies, New York's Cooper Union College and Webb Institute of Naval Architecture and Missouri's College of the Ozarks. The eight institutions were in a separate category of schools that do not charge tuition but offer outstanding academic programs. In Money's ranking of the nation's top 100 intuitions which do have tuition costs, Rice University in Texas was number 1, the University of Kentucky was 15th, Bellermine College in Louisville was 64th and Centre College in Danville was 68th.

Buying windshield wipers not as easy as it once was

You might have heard about the lady who went to the auto parts store and said she wanted a windshield wiper for her Volkswagen.

The quick-witted clerk pondered that for a moment and said, "OK, that sounds like a fair trade."

I ran into a guy the other day who just might have been willing to make such a trade. His car had run out of gas and he was sitting catawampus smack dab in the middle of a four-lane highway. I pulled over to help, pushing the car to the shoulder as he steered. Once he was safely out of traffic, I drove to the nearest filling station to buy a can of gas to pour into his empty tank.

That man seemed so grateful for the help. I suppose all of us have had someone come to our rescue at one time or another. If so, we know exactly how he felt.

The Apostle Paul, who encountered some rough patches during his ministry, certainly would have identified with him. Paul was always careful to offer thanks to those who helped him. He mentioned them in the New Testament epistles he wrote.

Roger Alford

Sometimes, he even mentioned those who didn't help.

One of the more curious people Paul talked about was a man named Demas. Paul mentioned him three separate times alongside Luke.

The first time, in Philemon 1:24, Demas' name was mentioned before Luke's. The second time, in Colossians 4:14, he was mentioned after Luke.

I wonder if that might have been a sign Demas' passion for serving the Lord was fading?

The third and final mention of Demas was in 2 Timothy Chapter 4 may answer that. Paul knew his execution would be soon, and this is what he wrote to Timothy:

"Do thy diligence to come shortly unto me for Demas has forsaken me, having loved this present world, and is departed unto Thessalonica. … Only Luke is with me."

Demas started out as a man Paul could count on. He was on the front pew, so to speak. Then, it seems Demas' began to fizzle. He moved to the back pew. And, finally, he was out the door.

His is a sad story, but I expect many of us have known folks like Demas who started out on fire and then flared out. It's heartbreaking when someone you count on walks away. For some, that may have been a ministry partner. For others, it may have been a spouse, a relative, or a close friend. In any case, you feel a sense of abandonment.

I expect the feeling was similar for the gentleman whose car had run out of gas on that lonely stretch of highway as people sped past without stopping.

I counted a great blessing to be able to stop and help. I don't remember his name, but I will not forget the look of appreciation on his face.

I left there feeling the satisfaction of knowing I had helped a fellow man. And I wouldn't trade that for a windshield wiper or a Volkswagen.

COUNCIL

However, she added she wanted to give the council a chance to address the issue since others in the online community have expressed similar concerns.

Councilman Jim Davis expressed support for the measure despite doubts Caudill expressed about enforcement, stating citizens should be held accountable for laws that are on the books. "We set rules and rules have to have consequences," Davis said.

Councilman John Payne introduced an amendment that would specifically restrict larger aerial fireworks, noting that the ordinance should be not be too restrictive. That amendment failed for lack of a second, and the council adopted an amendment by Scenters to restrict only consumer aerial fireworks. The ordinance comes up for final consideration in two weeks.

Also Tuesday, the council considered an ordinance that affects transient room taxes in Berea. The legislation is recommended by the Kentucky League of Cities and comes on the heels of a related law passed in by the Kentucky legislature.

Berea Finance Department Director Susan Meeks explained the ordinance would allow the city to collect transient room taxes from campgrounds, RV parks, and Air BnB type rental places.

Instead of the city having to pursue individual businesses to collect the transient room taxes, the online booking companies would collect those taxes and forward them to the city. Meeks added, however, that the tax would not be applied to those staying 30 days or over, including those at RV parks, campgrounds, and residential rentals. The measure will come up for final consideration at the next council meeting.

The council adopted ordinances to revise how towing services operate in the city, especially those who are called by first responders to clear an accident scene. The measure sets standards for safety, and brings certain procedures, such as which towing company to contact, under the supervision of the Berea Police Department. The final draft was introduced following a listening session with council members and affected towing businesses.

Concerning the Scaffold Cane shared use path, the city council adopted an ordinance directing the mayor to apply for approximately $842,000 in Transportation Alternative Program funds administered by the Kentucky Transportation Cabinet. City Administrator Rose Beverly noted that since design is mostly complete for the project, the city will begin securing right-of-way for the bridge and path.

In other action, the council unanimously voted to donate a fire truck to the Wolf Cave Volunteer Fire Department in Breathitt County. The vehicle dates back to 1994, and was declared surplus property by the council. It is designated for donation as part of an effort to help flood ravaged communities of southeastern Kentucky.

During mayoral and council comments, officials urged residents to attend the Berea Chamber of Commerce annual Spoonbread Festival in the coming week. Mayor Bruce Fraley urged citizens to invite friends and family from out of town to experience the festival and to experience Berea.

The next Council meeting wil on Sept. 20.

"I think we have the opportunity to grow out at the other exit coming up from behind the Kentucky Artisan Center and going through the railroad tracks to Community Trust Bank," Angel said, adding she is waiting for cost estimates on the banners.

"I think it's a good idea," said Bill West, noting business owners from around town have asked him how they can benefit from city tourism promotions. "I think anything we can do to broaden that [impact on businesses] I'm supportive of."

"I think it's a great way to add color and to make people feel welcome," Becky Brown agreed. "I love the idea of thanking them for coming to Berea as they are leaving because that makes them want to come back."

Rick Thomas said deploying the banners away from traditional tourism centers like Old Town and College Square demonstrates the commission's commitment to helping all businesses in town.

"In all of our business signage, we need to make sure that exit 77 businesses are supported. Coming from the Artisan Center and that beautiful trail into town, this is another opportunity to send a good message," Thomas said.

Thomas took the idea a step further, however, noting there needs to be some way of advertising ongoing events like concerts at the Chestnut Street Pavilion, the Levitt Amp Berea concert series, the Berea Farmer's Market, or events like the Berea Spoonbread Festival. With that in mind, Thomas suggested the possibility of installing some kind of message board near the Chestnut Street Pavilion.

"I think we are overlooking how much traffic is in front of that Tolle Building and what a message center that could be," Thomas said. "I think we need to look at some kind of permanent, changeable signage there that is more attractive than the vinyl banners we put up temporarily to announce things."

Angel interjected that having a central board to advertise events all over town could be beneficial. "It's a great way to communicate to the community, and one of our missions we are trying to accomplish here in Berea is that the entire city can be represented in some shape or form," Angel said.

Later in the meeting, Laura Carpenter asked Thomas to clarify if he was referring to the kind of digital LED message billboard at the corner of Big Hill Road and U.S. 25 in Richmond.

"That's a video board," Thomas replied. "It's effective, but expensive, and I don't know whether we could afford that or not."

Carpenter suggested even an expensive digital message board could be a good investment for tourism. "That's your gateway to Berea,"

Back then, students did not have cars."

Bill studied history and political science. Rose majored in elementary education. They agree that it wasn't love at first sight. They were friends first and over time their relationship evolved into something more.

"We were part of the Tab gang before we became a couple," Bill said. "We were good friends first. Then later we got serious."

Bill was the editor of the student newspaper and Rose often came along to help him at work. Once they were sitting and talking about their future together when Rose reminded him he had forgotten the most important step when planning their future. He had yet to ask her to marry him. "So I remedied the situation," Bill said. "We didn't start to date in a committed way until the beginning of senior year."

Once they became serious, Rose's mother became ill, so eventually Rose had to leave school to go home to help. When her mother passed away, Rose was torn between going away to get married or staying home to take care of her Dad and younger brothers. Her grandmother urged her to move on with her life. The couple was married at Danforth Chapel on Berea College Campus Sept. 7, 1952.

After the pair graduated, Bill was headed for a graduate fellowship program in public service administration, but the military interrupted those plans. He was drafted into the US Army Medical Corps. The first location was Richmond Va., and Rose had to stay at the YWCA facility with other women. Next, in San Antonio Texas, husband and wife were happy to have a place to stay together. Last, they were sent to Georgia, where Bill was assigned to the Third Army Headquarters Hospital near Atlanta, so Rose could be "home" at the nearby family farm in Lithia Springs.

In 1954, Bill finished military duties and stepped back into the fellowship, spending time at the Universities of Georgia, Alabama, and Kentucky. His first internship was in Oak Ridge, Tenn., with ORINS (Oak Ridge Institute of Nuclear Studies), later ORAU (Oak Ridge Associated University).

The young couple now had two children (Bill E. and Laura) and were glad to settle in one place for several years. Three more children (Stephen, John, & Jim) were added to the family, and sometimes others who needed a home temporarily were welcomed in as well. Both Bill and Rose were involved in the civil rights movement, serving in their church, and Rose was an active part of the community with literacy programs, serving on the Advisory Board of the International Childbirth Education. Moving the family to Atlanta in 1967 was a big change. Bill was now working for the Southern Regional Education Board, linking economic development to higher education, bringing service learning into communities and colleges. Always a gracious hostess and an excellent cook, Rose enjoyed hosting international guests during those years.

Then, in 1970, Bill accepted the job of Dean of Labor and Student Life at Berea College. With the new baby, Jennifer, and her 5 older siblings, Bill and Rose came "home" to the place they had first met. Always involved in community needs, Rose helped start the Mother Child Mission, which later became the Pregnancy Help Center, and she started the Host Family Program for Berea College international students.

Away from their professional lives, Bill and Rose have been members of Berea United Methodist Church for almost 50 years.

In time, all six children attended Berea College, met their spouses and were married there. Now, years later, a grandson has also graduated from Berea.

When Bill retired, the two moved to Edisto Island, S.C., for 11 years and enjoyed new friendships and many community and church activities.

In 2006, it was time to move back to Berea, to come "home" once again. Four of their now adult children, with their own families, still live in the area. Bill and Rose have 22 grandchildren and 35 great-grandchildren "so far."

Some of those great-grandchildren, and nieces and nephews still live in Berea. Many others are coming in from several different states for the big celebration this month.

The happy couple is celebrating the big day by sending letters to their many family and friends to let them know they are remembered and appreciated. There will be a big outdoor event at Happiness Hills Farm to celebrate with extended family.

The Sept. 7 date isn't just special to the happy couple. It will now be the anniversary for three generations of Ramseys. Their Youngest daughter, Jennifer, and husband Alfredo share the same date and are celebrating their 26th anniversary. And their daughter, Lydia, is getting married on that day, too.

Bill and Rose each celebrated their 91st birthdays this summer. They read the Bible together every day, and they sit on their front porch swing to watch the birds in the evenings. They love thinking back over all the years, being thankful for people and places and experiences.

Wildcats' backfield getting thin

LEXINGTON, Ky. (KT) — Kentucky running back Chris Rodriguez is still missing on the team's depth chart and backup Ramon Jefferson won't be available when the Wildcats open Southeastern Conference play Saturday at Florida.

In a press conference Monday, Kentucky coach Mark Stoops offered no update on the status of Rodriguez, who was suspended and missed the season opener, a 37-13 win over Miami (Ohio) Saturday at Kroger Field. He added the situation continues to be "out of my hands."

"I wish I (had an update)," Stoops said. "Being a holiday (Labor Day), I don't have anything I could report. I've always been transparent with you and tried to be the best I can. I've been advised, there are things going on, there are layers to this I've been advised (that) I really cannot comment on it. It's not that I'm trying to hide things from you. The players have their own rights and things of that nature with this situation."

In addition to Rodriguez, Sam Houston State transfer Ramon Jefferson, who rushed for 10 yards on two carries in his debut, will be out for "several weeks (and) for the extended future."

JuTahn McClain is "week to week" leaving the Wildcats more depleted in the backfield.

"We got banged up," Stoops said. "We'll have to see from there, where things go."

The absence of Rodriguez was evident against the Redhawks. The Wildcats finished with just 50 yards rushing, led by starter Kavosiey Smoke, who rushed for 32 yards on seven carries.

"We need to be able to run the ball more efficiently," Stoops said. "It wasn't awful. When you add in the sack yardages, it takes off the net (gains). … we could get better on that."

Smoke remains listed first on the depth chart, followed by La'Vell Wright, who garnered praise from Stoops.

"He was really solid (in camp)," Stoops said of Wright. "He got dinged up late in camp and now he's back healthy. … It's nice to have Lavell back, because he's a tough, physical runner.

"At some point, he was running with the (first team) and in the middle some last spring. We have a lot of confidence in him."

Kentucky must do a better job of protecting quarterback Will Levis on Saturday against Florida. (Photo by Les Nicholson)

Defining moment?

Mark Maynard

Football analysts say the biggest improvement any team makes all season is from Game 1 to Game 2.

Kentucky is going to need that to be true.

The Cats are going to The Swamp on Saturday after defeating Miami of Ohio, 37-13, at Kroger Field. It was a largely uneven performance, with some red flags showing among the sea of blue. There was a lot to like too with some playmaking receivers in Tavian Robinson, Barion Brown and Dane Key among them. But there were concerns too.

Will Levis was sacked four times and hurried a few more against the Redhawks who are plenty good for the Mid-American Conference but hardly as good as what Kentucky is going to see Saturday.

During the preseason hype of predicting 10-2 and 11-1 seasons for Kentucky, the game with the Gators was hardly mentioned. But Florida defeated seventh-ranked Utah, 29-26 on Saturday, sending notice that you better not forget about the Gators.

I'm sure Kentucky's coaching staff, which has not been part of the Hype Machine, understands this will be no easy game and, truth to be told, may have held back a few wrinkles. Let's hope so. This is game where Kentucky's hype is on full display for the nation, a 7 p.m. night game on ESPN. The nation will be tuning in to watch two high-profile quarterbacks – Levis and Florida's Anthony Richardson - battling on the field.

The key to the game may well be keeping Kentucky's quarterback upright.

Levis and Richardson are already receiving NFL hype, with Sports Illustrated projecting Levis going No. 7 and Richardson No. 9 in the NFL draft. Levis was average, by his standards, although he threw for 303 yards and three touchdowns in the opener. Richardson was a double-threat, passing for 168 yards and rushing for 106 yards and three touchdowns. He averaged 9.6 yards per carry.

Levis is big and strong, and clearly one of the best quarterbacks in the country, but the offensive line must protect him. It's a Big Blue Wall on training wheels but they need to get them off in a hurry.

The running game was practically non-existent because Miami stuffed the box and used twists and stunts to keep pressure on Levis. Kentucky managed only 50 yards on 26 carries and certainly missed battering ram running back Chris Rodriguez, who sat out the game for the start of a suspension that nobody knows how long will last.

If Rodriguez is still sidelined as expected Saturday, that could clearly affect the game's outcome.

Kentucky's mental edge is good though since the Cats are 2-2 in the last four meetings with the Gators. They know it's not impossible to win at The Swamp because they've done it.

It's hard to call a Game 2 a must win but this feels like it if the Cats are to achieve their lofty expectations. How good the Cats will be remains a mystery but there's certainly room for improvement and that improvement better come fast.

You can bet Florida has this game circled even if Kentucky has not. A loss on Saturday would put the Cats back in the middle of the pack in the SEC East, wondering what might have been, while a victory keeps those dreams alive of the November showdown at Kroger Field with Georgia for a shot at a division title.

Kentucky did not look like that kind of team in Week 1 while Georgia looked every bit the team capable of defending not only the SEC crown but also the national championship while devouring 11th-ranked Oregon.

This week's game, while early in the season, will be a defining one. Buckle up. It should be a good one.

Clerk's office to relocate during renovation

"We anticipate it will open in January in the new location, but a specific date has not yet been set ..."

Jill Williams
Deputy Judge-Executive

By Leslie Barlow
Citizen Staff Writer

The Madison County Clerk's Office will have a new address beginning early next year, but the services offered will remain the same.

Jill Williams, Madison County Deputy Judge-Executive, said the new clerk's office will move from the county courthouse to 321 North Madison Ave. in Richmond, a couple of blocks from the courthouse downtown. The building is the former planning and zoning building and is already a county-owned property so no lease space is required for the relocation of the office.

"We anticipate it will open in January in the new location, but a specific date has not yet been set because we are awaiting the final construction timelines," Williams said. "They will be the last group to leave the courthouse. Strategically, we know that the elections are such a huge part of their responsibilities and we don't want to inconvenience citizens."

Williams added the county clerk's office touches more Madison County citizens in Court denies zone change

By Leslie Barlow
Citizen Staff Writer

After much discussion and input from the community, the Madison County Fiscal Court denied a zone change request on its second reading for property located on College Hill Road near Waco during its Sept. 13 meeting at the Berea City Hall.

The zone change request for 70.27 acres from C-7/R-7 (commercial and residential agriculture) to UC-1 (single family residential) was originally approved by the planning and zoning commission and had passed first reading from the fiscal court before the denial vote of 3-2 was issued. Magistrates John Tudor, Roger Barger, and Ben Robinson voted against the zone change. Judge Executive Reagan Taylor and Magistrate Tom Botkin voted in favor.

In issuing the denial, the court cited in its findings of facts that the property is not a safe area to develop at this point due to traffic and accident reports obtained from the Kentucky State Police.

Before the vote, Tudor, who represents Waco, said it was his belief and those of residents of the area that the traffic flow on this portion of Kentucky Highway 52 is too high to support an additional residential development.

"I just don't think this is a suitable situation for this many houses," Tudor said. "If it was Berea is known for its Spoonbread. This weekend, for the 26th time, the Berea Chamber of Commerce will host its signature event that is expected to draw thousands of visitors to the city.

The annual Spoonbread Festival kicks off at 3 p.m. Friday and will conclude at 5 p.m. Sunday at Memorial Park. The event begins at 10 a.m. Saturday and Sunday, while the Balloon Glow will usher in the three-day event Friday night from 7-10 p.m. at Berea Community School. The event will feature carnival rides, a car show and daily entertainment. The parade and Spoonbread eating contest are set for Saturday, while the Car Show will be Sunday at Berea Community School.

"Every day there is something different," Berea Chamber of Commerce manager Debbie Warford said. "One day you come for the balloon glow. The next day you come to see the parade. The next day is a car show. There's a big event every single day."

The festival was canceled in 2020 because of the pandemic, but made a return last year and celebrated its 25th anniversary. Past events have drawn between 30-45 thousand attendees, and Warford hopes to equal or exceed the 45,000 mark this weekend.

Heckman addresses Rotary Club

Berea native and Berea College graduate, Katie Heckman, brought news to Berea Rotarians about Berea Home Village, where she is the Director.

She explained the structure and mission of the non-profit, two of which are based in Kentucky—Berea and Paducah. This organization began in Boston and is built on the concept of volunteerism. The volunteers, who have prepared through orientation sessions, come together as a community to help meet the needs of senior citizens.

In particular, they help those seniors who wish to remain in their homes, yet need some assistance with such tasks as travel, whether to the doctor or the grocer or simply shopping. This Oct. 7 th the Berea Home Village will celebrate Five Magical Years. The group depends on funding from grants and sponsors. Further information is available on the website: www.bereahomevillage.com.

Before coming to the Village, Heckman had served 29 years with St. Joseph-Berea.

Leslie Caron and Rotary partner, Helen Eden, were guests at the meeting.

In the business session, President Frederiksen announced there would be a "Meet and Greet" gathering, 5:30 p.m. at the Honeysuckle restaurant, Oct. 27.

This is intended for those with an interest in learning more about Rotary International. Additionally, there will be workshops on being fit, brought to Berea Sept. 29-Oct. 2 by 55-75 Dane athletes. On Monday, Sept. 12, several members of the club attended the "Woodsongs, Old time Radio Hour" production at the Lyric Theatre in Lexington.

The next meeting, Tuesday, September 20, will be noon at the Smokehouse Grill.

The speaker will be Carla Baumann, retired nurse from Madison County Health Department. The host will be Harold Eden.

Another Business Deal

The John W. Welch Company changed hands again. The new firm was composed of W.H. Hensley, Joe Gilbert, and Elden Davidson. While many friends of Mr. Welch were sorry to see him go, they were glad to have Mr. Hensley back. Mr. Davidson was a brother of Charles Davidson, who made many friends in Berea. Berea was fortunate to have men of such caliber move into town. Mr. Gilbert had been connected with the former firm previously. The new firm planned to be in charge as soon as invoicing was reviewed.

8 file for council

Prior to the final deadline to file, only eight candidates had filed petitions for the eight vacant positions on the Berea City Council. Calling themselves the "Progressive Party," the eight filing were Ervin Connelly, David E. Burgio, Clifford Kerby, M.D., Ralph Wagers, Dennis Blackburn, Charles McIntyre, George T. Bryant, and Jack Farmer. Connelly, Burgio, Kerby, McIntyre and Bryant were all incumbents. All eight filed on the same petition.

Tallmadge still active

Bill Tallamadge, then 76 was named the Champion racewalker of Finland in the 75 – 79 age group. Along with his many awards and trophies, Tallamadge also took first place at the National Kilometer Racewalk in Niagara Falls in July of 1992. Later, in the National Masters Track and Field Championship in Spokane, Washington, he again placed first in the 20 kilometer and second in the 5-kilometer races. At the Washington event, Tallmadge was recognized as the 75 -70 age group Athlete of the Year for racewalking by The Athletic Conference. Bill was forced to miss several spring races because he was recovering from 39 radiation treatments for prostate cancer. "I came out of that very well," said Bill. "I tested normally by spring and raced for two miles in Knoxville in May. There was no competition, but I made a god time and was pleased with it." Bill said he is in better shape than the national average. "The last issue of "Walking Magazine" stated that if one is over 60 and can walk 3 miles in 41 minutes, he is in "excellent" physical condition as far as walking goes. At 76, I walk that distance in 32 minutes when I'm racing regularly," he said. When Bill joined Body Recall in 1980, and found himself getting in excellent shape, he decided to enter a walkrace. "I had been reading about other people's times for walkracing and I thought I was about that good. I thought I might could get second place or something," he said. That's exactly what happened. Bill decided to travel to Raleigh, North Carolina and enter a popular race there. He placed second. 'Like so many others my age, I was sitting around playing chess and not really moving much at all. But I quit smoking and that caused me to gain weight. That extra weight is why I tried to start walking and from there, look what has happened," he said. Bill's wife was also a racewalker. "She has won racewalking championships herself and she is in very good shape," he said. In fact, Mariam was one of the founding members of body Recall and she too gave credit to her health to the Body Recall system. This couple may be proof that it is never too late to start a good physical fitness program.

Never forget 9/11

Keith Taylor

More than two decades after terrorists struck our soil on 9/11, it remains unfathomable how a cruel act of violence could be carried out against our great nation.

I can still remember watching the television screen in awe and disguise during that tragic day in 2001. It was pure horror unfolding before our eyes,. I was scared, angry, upset and simply overwhelmed watching the towers fall and crumble the ground. The thought of a commercial jet being used as a weapon were unsettling, considering I had taken my first plane excursion two weeks prior to cover a football game in Mount Pleasant, Michigan.

Three days prior to the tragedy, Roy Kidd won his 300th football game at Eastern Kentucky University and I was busy producing a special section devoted to his achievement and the milestone remained on my mind the entire weekend.

Then, less than two days later, my emotions shifted from excitement to anger. For the first time in my life, I was truly scared for the future as were most Americans at the time.

I watched as President George W. Bush displayed patriotic leadership during a period to time that defined his eight years in the Oval Office. Instead of focusing on domestic issues, Bush's attention was totally devoted to foreign matters, including the war on terror that lasted past his tenure as President.

During the past two-plus years, we've been dealing with a health pandemic, a crisis that brought us to our knees. Personally, it's been the worst period of my life., I'm still recovering from the loss of my wonderful mom to COVID-19 on Oct. 5, 2020.

Although the health crisis hasn't been declared officially over, a return to normalcy in our society is closer to becoming reality and it's refreshing, especially after what we've endured as a society. Since a health emergency had never been experienced in our lifetime, it was new and everyone had to learn the go, instead of a lightning-quick solution. It has taken time and patience to get closer to normal.

We're not there yet, but so close and that's a good thing.

Will you own an electric vehicle?

Glenn Mollette

Will you own an electric car? If you live long enough and that's all that is being made, you probably will. Many of us we'll hold out for as long as possible.

I'm all for electric cars especially if someone else is buying them. If 20 percent of America's driving population goes to the electric vehicle, EV, then surely gasoline will become cheaper. Less people buying gasoline will reduce the demand and it should reduce the price. We hope.

California will not allow the sale of gasoline cars by 2035.

This same state told EV drivers not to charge their electric cars during the past Labor Day weekend when the temperatures were expected to hit triple digits for millions of residents putting a drain on the power grid.

This brings us to the same crisis every community will face. America's power grids aren't ready to accommodate millions of EVs plugging in a for a recharge. The prospects of city and regional blackouts are alarming. You can forget charging your car. You won't be able to charge your cell phone or have air conditioning or heat during a blackout.

I'm not opposed to electric cars. I am opposed to them being crammed down our throats. The manufacturers are being pushed to eventually eliminate all gasoline vehicles. We will see how this goes over the next ten years.

Plan to spend some money. A local salesman talked to me about an electric Mustang. Stickered at $48,000 but they were asking $58,000 because as he said, "We can get it." I didn't want the car to begin with but was curious about the car.

It sounds time consuming to recharge an EV, although some EVs are promising up to 150-mile charge in a short amount of time.

EVs could mean fewer people on America's Interstates. Currently in most American communities its much easier to go home to recharge at your own power station. Cross country driving will be out of the question or very difficult in an EV for the next two or three years. Currently an EV will go about 250 to 350 miles on a charge. This means you will always be searching for the next power station. This will be a major lifestyle change.

There are reports that Pilot and Flying J will have charging stations installed by 2025 and are spending a billion dollars to upgrade their facilities. They will also want to recoup their costs.

The car will cost you more money. You will spend anywhere from $20000 (low minimum) to $6,0000 to install a station at your home and this is all variable. To keep your car charged at home will cost you about what you spend on your monthly electric bill now. So, figure your electric bill doubling, if you're lucky.

You may be wanting something different in your life and an EV may be just what you want. There is a lot to consider and on some level they will impact all our lives, eventually.

FAQ

You would be surprised how many questions I get asked during any given week. Some of them are frequently the same, while others tend to be different, but completely logical.

What are some the most commonly asked questions asked? Follow along and you will get a sampling of some of the questions that we answer on pretty much every week.

When will it be in the newspaper?

Well, that depends on if we know about an event. Most of the time, we are aware of most events, but some folks prefer the social media method, which doesn't extend or reach the readership this newspaper does on a weekly basis. Your own Facebook of other social media feeds don't cover Berea and Madison County. The best way to get your news of interest to us is simply by submitting a photo and the information to us, which can be done easily by e-mail or if you prefer regular mail, that works as well. It's hard to clip out a social media post to save as a keepsake.

Why didn't I get my paper?

Two factors come into play on this one. Either the subscription ran out or it got mixed up at the post office after we dropped them off after getting them from our printing press at J. Frank Publishing in London. Other things can happen but those are the two most common reasons why some readers didn't get their paper on a timely basis. Be sure to renew your subscription early so you won't have a disruption in the delivery. Sometimes it takes two weeks for our cooperate office in Manchester to get the paperwork completed.

How much is the paper?

Right now, we have the best one-year subscription rate in the region. You can get a one-year subscription for just $30 per year if you live in the county and $40 per year if you reside outside of Madison County.

How much does an ad cost?

We base our rates on column inches and it depends on what size you want to run and the frequency of the ad that you are running, An ad that doesn't run on the classified page is considered a stand alone display ad and our most popular sizes are half page and quarter page sizes. We offer multi-run discounts and will work with you to help fit your needs depending on your budget.

Are you owned by the Government?

No, we are not owned by those who govern our state, nation or our world. We are protected by the First Amendment for the freedom of the press, but we receive zero local, state or federal dollars as a subsidy for our operation. We are owned a family cooperation - Nolan Group Media - based in London and we are part of eight newspapers owned by the family. Our advertisers, subscribers and folks who buy our paper in the machines and local establishments that carry our newspaper put money back into the local economy, meaning our newspaper and not big tech or other large cooperate chains based out of state.

Those are just a few of the many questions we receive. As always, we appreciate our readers and those who advertise in our newspaper. Without you, there would be no local newspaper.

Public Works praised as street repairs are completed

By Andy McDonald
For The Citizen

Berea city officials reported major progress when it comes to resurfacing local streets.

At last Tuesday's meeting of the Berea City Council, City Administrator Rose Beverly reported a list of streets that were have been repaired and resurfaced.

"We did Highland Drive, Oakwood Drive, Scruggs Street, Ellipse Street, Highway 595 to Laurel Street, Forest Street, Jackson Street to Center Street, South Cumberland Street, Delaney Street, the cul-de-sac on Brown Street, Plum Tree and Peach Tree," Beverly said. "So, we did get more done than we thought we could afford because prices are very high right now."

Officials noted that in some cases, portions of some streets were resurfaced depending on need and budget limitations. Some street restriping remains to be completed, Beverly said.

On a related note, Public Works Director Roy Curtis gave the council an update on the numerous projects his department is working on, whether it is helping to prepare for public events like the Berea Spoonbread Festival, ensuring the city's gutters and drains are clear, landscape maintenance on city properties around Berea, maintaining the city's fleet of vehicles, or conducting spot repairs of damaged streets.

Curtis noted his department did street repairs on Harrison Court and Dellwood Drive, while fixing street base failures on North Powell Street, the cul-de-sac on Brown Street, Elizabeth Street and Bronx Place. Repairs were also done on Kenway Avenue and Short Line Pike, Curtis said.

In reporting the repairs and other work, Curtis gave the credit to his work crews. "I can't say enough about these guys because they really get a lot of stuff done and it amazes me sometimes that they get it done so quickly. They do excellent work," Curtis said. He also noted that more street repairs are expected before winter. In response to a question from Councilman Jim Davis, for example, Curtis noted that a bump on Ellipse Street near the intersection of Highway 595 is expected to be repaired in the coming weeks.

Curtis and the Public Works crew drew praise from several city officials following his report, including Mayor Bruce Fraley.

"We appreciate the work that you do and all your crew does. Please express our appreciation to them for a job well done, keeping the city looking nice," Fraley said.

Davis, Steve Caudill, Katie Startzman, and Cora Jane Wilson echoed those sentiments, thanking Curtis and his department for their work in so many areas of operation in the city.

"Roy, thanks for your report and all your department does for the city," Davis said.

Public Works Committee Chair Jerry Little praised the department's work in keeping the city looking good, but he also noted the huge job the city has to do in repairing and resurfacing streets its network. Little estimated Public Works has approximately 64 miles of city streets to maintain.

"It's just a big process of keeping the streets. We do the best we can," Little said.

Constitution Week proclaimed

Madison County Judge -Taylor issued a Proclamation declaring Sept. 17-23 Constitution Week commemorating the 235th anniversary of the United States Constitution.

Receiving the proclamation was Debra Parsons of the Daughters of the American Revolution. Parsons encouraged all residents to read the Constitution.

reduced, possibly if the developer would agree to one-acre lots and put 50-60 houses in there then I could be for it. But for the safety situation at this point, I just can't be for it."

Exact development plans for the property, such as the number of homes per acre and square footage of each home, were not readily available due to the process of requesting the zone change prior to submitting the development plans for approval. Submitting development plans, along with engineering specifications, prior to the approved zone change can be cost prohibitive for the developer.

Tudor added it is often difficult to make decisions on zone changes when the complete plans for the property are not available. "I've said it before and I will say it again. I'm not comfortable with the process that we have to go through. I think we should have the development plans before approving the zone change."

Bert Thomas, planning and zoning representative, said if the court approved the zone change they would know exactly what they were getting without getting into the development plans.

"We are getting a subdivision. We are getting single-family homes that will sit on 9,000, 10,000 or one-acre lots, based on what the developer submits."

Thomas said the only question facing the court was whether or not the land is acceptable for single family homes.

Richmond attorney Stuart Olds, who represented landowner Shannon Renfore at the meeting, told the court the majority of the property in question is in the area designated in the urban corridor from last year's updated comprehensive plan.

The fiscal court updates the comprehensive plan every five years. In updating the comprehensive plan, Thomas said, surveys are sent to community residents and public hearings are called to entertain public comment, while a steering committee of 14-to-15 residents make recommendations to the planning and zoning commission. The final plan is sent to the fiscal court for approval. The 2021 comprehensive plan widened the urban corridor.

"The major change was increasing the footprint of the urban corridor," Thomas said. "Previously, it was just north to south in the county. We expanded that area out 52 East toward Estill County because of the development in that area as well as 52 West toward Paint Lick. The property in question falls in the new urban corridor."

In other business:

- The Madison County Sheriff's Department, working alongside the Madison County Board of Education, has hired four new deputies to serve as school resource officers at Kirksville, Waco, Boonesboro, and Kingston Elementary Schools. The addition of the new officers helps to fulfill the requirement of House Bill 63 which required a school resource officer at each school in the state by Aug. 1. The Richmond Police Department provides officers for Madison Central High School as well as a pair of middle schools.

The Berea Police Department provides officers for Madison Southern, Foley Middle School, and Shannon Johnson Elementary School.

- Amended the Employee Classification Schedule add the position of a general laborer at the road department.
- The county will host a hazardous waste disposal day on Oct. 1 from 9 a.m.-3 p.m. at 108 Clarksville Lane in Richmond.

- Hired Charles Barger as a general laborer at the road department at a rate of $14 per hour beginning Sept. 14.

one year than any other one area of government. She said it was vital that their location be convenient with great parking and be customer focused.

"When thinking about the temporary home for our county clerk, we wanted to focus on what was going to be most convenient for our citizens. (Madison County Clerk) Kenny (Barger) and his team do an outstanding job of serving the people of Madison County , so we didn't want to take the decision about their location lightly," said Madison County Judge Executive Reagan Taylor. "We looked at numerous possibilities and locations and ultimately decided that the great and easy parking, and convenience to the building made this the best choice. We wanted to make it as easy as possible."

The clerk's office is being relocated as part of the $10-million courthouse renovation project where the courthouse will transition into expanded space for the Circuit Courts. Following the renovations, the courthouse will become solely focused on the judicial branch and all administrative functions of county government will be housed in customer-focused locations.

Renovation work is expected to begin at the start of 2023, if not sooner, with the project being completed in 2024.

COVID-19 is on the mend, that we have a huge turnout," she said. "We hope to hit that 45,000 mark."

As of Monday, Warford said 142 vendors had signed up for the event, giving attendees plenty of food and shopping options. Warford said homemade crafts are among the popular items that are sold during the event.

"It is the one-stop shop for all your crafts," she said. "It's right before Christmas. So, come to the festival, get all your Christmas gifts, homemade-quality stuff. It's not a flea market. We really are a craft festival."

Warford has been a long-time volunteer at the festival and has done a "little bit of it all" but will be managing the event for the first time.

"I had the easy job (in the past)," she said. "I worked my butt off all weekend before. This is a completely different side of it all. I feel like I am ready for it. I feel like I'm ahead of the game and I'm good to go."

Warford has already checked the weather forecast and it's "all sunshine."

"It's going to be great," she said. "I'm excited. The Spoonbread Festival is my favorite time of the year."

Video cameras have a way of keeping people honest

Roger Alford

Grandpa was bragging about how things used to be, when he could walk into a grocery store with no more than 20 cents in his pocket and walk out with a loaf of bread, a dozen eggs, and a package of bacon.

"Now, they have cameras all over the place," he said.

Sounds like ol' Grandpa was coming by those things honestly back in his day.

You know, the Bible tells us that God puts great stock in honesty and integrity.

"What doeth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God?" (Micah 6:8).

Any person who does just those three things would be considered a very good person.

To do justly means simply to be fair in all our dealings. You may remember a day when a man's word was his bond, and a handshake sealed a deal just as securely as a legal contract with all its clauses and fine print.

To love mercy is to have a forgiving nature. You may remember a day when mercy and forgiveness were commonplace. Nowadays, people can hold grudges for years, even lifetimes, it seems.

And to walk humbly with God is to surrender ourselves to what He would have us do.

Time was when people took serving God very seriously. Nowadays, we're surrounded by people who never give Him so much as a thought.

Our country sure has changed over the years. I love to think back to some of the people I grew up around. Strong men and gracious women who lived by the biblical principles of doing justly, loving mercy, and walking humbly with God.

I fear we've lost much of that in this current generation. It makes me long for the good ol' days, back before folks had to install cameras to keep people honest.

Out of the Blue

Kentucky Athletics Director Mitch Barnhart congratulates football coach Mark Stoops after the Wildcats defeated the Gators 26-16 last Saturday in Gainesville. (UK Athletics Photo)

Past perception of UK football no longer a reality

Keith Taylor

Kentucky football hasn't always been the talk of the Bluegrass. Success has a way of changing the narrative.

Once an improbable feat — for 31 years to be exact — the Wildcats weren't the same caliber as the Florida Gators. It wasn't even close until Mark Stoops came along and changed the mindset, the culture and the image of Kentucky football.

Past teams would not have been able to overcome mistakes that occurred during a 26-16 triumph over the Gators in enemy territory. Miscues on special teams and playing without standout running back Chris Rodriguez were tough hurdles to overcome.

The Wildcats didn't complain and just kept playing. Kentucky shut out the Gators in the second half and contained and frustrated quarterback Anthony Richardson, the Southeastern Conference Offensive Player of the Week following opening weekend.

Florida brought the hype, but Kentucky brought its lunch pail and defeated the Gators in typical Stoops style, with an old-fashioned, hard-nosed approach on both sides of the ball, especially on defense.

The turnaround Stoops has orchestrated began with an emphasis on defense. A long-time defensive coordinator as an assistant coach in the collegiate circles, Stoops placed a premium on defense, while also making sure the Wildcats were making the right gains on offense in an ever-changing collegiate landscape.

In 48 of the past 54 games, Kentucky has limited its opponents to 30 points or less, proof the defensive unit means business when they step on the field.

The success on the recruiting trail, especially keeping in-state talent at home with players such as Dane Key, while also dipping into the transfer portal and grabbing quarterback Will Levis, also has played a big role in Kentucky's unprecedented success on the football field.

It didn't happen overnight.

It took three seasons for Stoops to create a winning environment. The Wildcats went 12-24 those first 36 months, but the Kentucky coach never wavered and kept his eyes on the future. Since then, Kentucky has compiled a 49-29 record and the Wildcats began gaining respect locally, state-wide and nationally.

It's hard to ignore the job Stoops, now the program's all-time winningest coach with 61 victories after passing Paul "Bear" Bryant on Saturday night, has done in one decade at Kentucky.

He's beaten Florida not once, but twice in Gainesville and beat the Gators for back-to-back seasons for the first time since Fran Curci did it 45 years ago. The Wildcats have collected 16 straight non-conference victories, the longest streak in the nation.

Kentucky has never been considered a "football school" or a major player in the sport in the Southeastern Conference. Winning seven games was once considered a successful season, but under Stoops, the Wildcats have notched 10 victories in two of the past four years, all while making a school record six consecutive bowl appearances and have won four straight postseason contests.

Thanks to Stoops, the past perception is no longer reality.

C-Rod expected to return to lineup at Ole Miss

LEXINGTON (KT) — Chris Rodriguez will return to the lineup soon, but the Kentucky standout running back must wait two more weeks.

Rodriguez has missed the first two games because of what will end up being a four-game suspension and will miss the team's next two games. No. 9 Kentucky hosts Youngstown State on Saturday, followed by a home date against Northern Illinois on Sept. 24 before Rodriguez will make his regular-season debut at Ole Miss on Oct. 1 in Oxford.

Kentucky coach Mark Stoops was somewhat surprised when asked about the return of Rodriguez during his weekly press conference Monday at Kroger Field.

"I just found out 10 minutes ago, literally," he quipped. "How do I plan on what will happen?"

Stoops and his coaching staff have been "prepared to handle this situation for weeks now."

"We've been getting the other guys ready, continuing to progress and also keep him in shape, get them reps when we can," Stoops said.

Owsley Fork Dam project moving ahead

By Andy McDonald
For The Citizen

Berea Municipal Utilities (BMU) is working to clear more hurdles before the Owsley Fork Dam improvement project can move forward.

That is according to BMU General Manager Kevin Howard, who provided a brief update on the project last week at a special called meeting of the Berea City Council.

■ The $12 million dam project will raise the Owsley Fork Reservoir Dam by six feet, increasing the water capacity from 650 million gallons to one billion.

In response to a question from Councilmember Jim Davis about when construction of the dam would go out to bid, Howard replied the city has addressed most of the concerns raised by the Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS), a division of the U.S. Department of Agriculture. However, a couple of issues remain to be resolved.

According to Howard, geologists from the project's architecture team and the NRCS will be conducting an analysis of shale samples collected by the city in 2016 to determine whether the shale around the base of the proposed dam would be subject to expansion. If it's determined the shale would be prone to significant expansion, that could potentially impact the specifications for construction of the dam.

If tests reveal the surrounding shale would be largely unaffected, however, then the request for final approval

The Kirksville community had its 32nd Kirksville Days celebration last Saturday. The event featured an exciting day with fun and games and a parade. EMA, court, purchase new fire truck

By Leslie Barlow
Citizen Staff Writer

The Madison County Fiscal Court approved the purchase of a new fire tanker truck at its Sept. 26 meeting at the Madison County Courthouse.

Dustin Heiser said the Emergency Management Agency solicited bids for the new truck and one sealed bid from Atlantic Fire Emergency Incorporated was returned for the purchase of the new vehicle. The cost for the 2,500 gallon tandem-axle truck will be $534,722.

Heiser said $300,000 of the cost of the truck will be covered by the Chemical Stockpile Emergency Preparedness Program (CSEEP) grants. The county will pay the remaining balance upon delivery of the vehicle, which is expected in 24 months.

"The reason CSEPP is able to contribute some funds to this purchase is because one of the main things we need at our field decontamination sites is water supply," he said. "We bring everything else to those sites but water is the only thing we must have to keep that facility running throughout an event. That is why tanker trucks are so important to our operation."

Heiser said he worked alongside the fire department

Homecoming: Find your reason to come back home

By Paula Keshderian
Berea College

Berea College has always gathered its alumni on campus to celebrate their achievements, re-live their college years and find their reason to come back home.

However, for two years, it was challenging to organize homecoming and reunion events because of the COVID-19 pandemic. So, the College is buzzing with excitement for the long-awaited homecoming and the reunion of multiple classes during the weekend of Nov. 18-20. This year, graduating classes of 1997, 2002, 2007, 2012, 2017 and 2022 will be celebrating reunions. As always, all alumni are welcome and encouraged to attend homecoming, regardless of their class year. "We will also do our best to include classes that missed their reunions these past two years," said Kristin Baker Dalessio '06, director of Alumni Relations.

If Ivan Santos '17 had one thing to say to Berea College students, it would be to stay connected. "Stay in contact with all your friends and other alumni after college," he said. "You never know their stories and what life brings. If I had not kept in touch with fellow alumni, I would not have met my wife!"

When Rachael Parker '12 was asked if she would be coming back, she exclaimed, "With bells and whistles! I look forward to waxing nostalgic and am counting down the days until our 10-year reunion at Berea College. I cannot wait to see everyone back in the bubble, reconnecting with my forever friends, classmates, professors and mentors!"

"There is a certain homey feeling Berea students create," Santos added "The culture, solidarity and the environment is a rare one."

All alumni have their own subjective reason to revisit Berea, other than the fact that it is their home away from home. For Marlene Michel '22, it is her faith and her love of community.

"The Tuesday chapels, the informative and interactive convocations, CELTS volunteer groups, sports team games, dance groups, music groups—honestly, every student organization with passion and support always draws my attention," Michel said.

Parker found her own poetic reason that draws her back to the College. "The beautiful campus, especially during the fall," she said, "a chai latte and the sight of ginkgo leaves lining the sidewalks truly rejuvenates my soul every time I visit during homecoming."

While students will, once again, enjoy the beauty of the campus, the nature and a hike to the pinnacles, Berea College Alumni Relations and the homecoming student steering committee have more to offer. Returning alumni will also get to relive some of the best memories they made during familiar events like the block party, homecoming basketball game and the court coronation, along with "alumni perks" like a mountaineer brunch and reception at Boone Tavern.

"Other than this being the first reunion since 2019, there is one more thing that makes this gathering a special one," hinted Dalessio. "This year, we are joining with the Center for Excellence in Learning through Service (CELTS) to support the Berea Food Bank in honor of the 30th anniversary of the Hunger Hurts Food Drive by having a community-wide fundraiser."

Participants will have the opportunity to participate in a run/walk on Saturday, Nov. 19, and proceeds from the race will directly benefit the Berea Food Bank. As you count down the days until Berea College homecoming, find your reason to come back to the beloved campus. The Berea College community is ready to welcome each and every one of you.

More Like Home: Celebrating Latinx Heritage

By Lyle D. Roelofs
Berea College President

Lyle Roelofs

The mission of Berea College has eight parts, known as the Great Commitments. And while that may sound complicated, it boils down to one simple, Biblical concept: the notion of impartial love. In the mission's origin, the founder of Berea College, the Reverend John G. Fee, was fighting against the institution of slavery. The profound inclusivity of Fee's message was revolutionary for the 1850s, even though its truth is eternal. Because of that eternal truth, impartial love is still our mission today.

As we celebrate Latinx Heritage Month, known nationally as Hispanic Heritage Month, we would do well as a society—as leaders, politicians and citizens—to follow Fee's example.

Impartial love is a big, open-arms mission that challenges us to live up to our higher ideals. As the population of Berea students who identified as Latinx or Hispanic grew, we understood that our welcome table needed to get bigger. With that in mind, in 2019, we established the Espacio Cultural Latinx (ECL) to provide students with programming and engagement activities that celebrate Latin culture at Berea.

While the focus is on supporting the Latinx student population, ECL programming is structured to welcome students from all backgrounds to participate. The goal, as always, is to learn from one another and discover our common humanity.

We also hired our first tenure-track professor in Latinx studies, Dr. Gwendolyn Ferreti, who cofounded the ECL. The following year, we hired the first, full-time Latinx Student Support Coordinator, Juan Jaimes Costilla. Together, Ferreti and Costilla have developed programming that welcomes all students while creating a welcoming atmosphere for our Latinx students. They are also working to develop more Latinx Studies courses and programming, and they will continue to support and mentor Latinx students in the years to come. We believe that Latinx studies and resources will become a lasting part of the College's rich history of interracial coeducation and will add to the College's investment in equity, diversity, and inclusion.

Latinx students have also taken on tremendous campus leadership through the Hispanic Outreach Program (HOP) which serves the broader Latinx community in Madison County as well as through groups such as the Latinx Student Union (LSU) which advocates for students and organizes events.

The fall semester began with a welcome back reception featuring Latin music and providing an opportunity for returning students to meet the incoming class.

Jean-Paul '24, a Latinx student from Louisville, who is on the men's soccer and track teams, said, "I didn't expect to have such a close community at Berea. It feels like home. As an athlete, the support that my Latinx community shows is heart-warming and very appreciated."

Jean-Paul's feeling of being fully at home here is our goal for every Berea student.

The power of impartial love has shaped the Berea experience since 1855 and has made a remarkable community possible, providing a model for all the other communities that together make up American society.

As we celebrate Latinx Heritage Month, let's also strive to make all places and spaces feel more like home to everyone.

Kirksville Community Center is still standinmg tall in Round Hill. The annual Kirksville Days was held last Saturday for the 32nd time.

Kirksville a special place

Keith Taylor

I spent a lot of time in Kirksville when I was a child.

Although a small community, nobody was a stranger and friends were, well like family. If your neighbor didn't know you, they sure knew your parents or grandparents, giving you a sense of belonging. Often I would hear the words, "aren't you William and Donna's son?" Or "Your grandfather is Bill May?" My mom was known as "sissy" in Kirksville and some still call her by that name when they offer their condolences.

Some things have remained the same since childhood, such as the beautiful Christian Church and the "old" Kirksville School, that now serves as the Kirksville Community Center. The Round Hill General Store is in the same location it was 30 to 40 years ago, but now sits empty.

The house papaw May lived in has been torn down and replaced by another dwelling structure on Curtis Pike. Coy Farms still make up a big portion of the lay of the land in Kirksville, with the only exception being rows and rows of tobacco crops that filled the region. Generations of farmer and families made their living — including my family — raising tobacco and cattle. Legend has it that my grandfather knew more about cattle than anyone else in Kirksville.

I have a genuine love for Kirksville and it remains a special place. I attended elementary school at Kirksville Elementary School and made many trips up the hardwood stairs to the classroom and many more down to the cafeteria. The gym, for obvious reasons, was my favorite place. I learned to play basketball in that gym and can still picture coach (Jimmy) Cain throwing pitches during a whiffle ball game in gym class. The favorite in gym class was dodge ball and it was always a hit.

This past weekend, I spent some time at Kirksville Days and reminisced about the old days and how simple life appeared to be at the time. I saw so many smiling faces and that same sense of community that I felt when I was a child.

I ran into Corinna Willis and her family, who knew my grandfather. Corinna's father, who papaw nicknamed "cud" had a photo of my grandfather in her phone and gladly sent it to me, which is a perfect picture of him sitting in the rocker in his back yard and smoking a cigarette.

Although I've been removed from Round Hill for several years, it still feels like home when I visit Kirksville, where the roots of my raising run deep.

Make it a good day

Glenn Mollette

Life is one day at a time. You don't have tomorrow. You hope for tomorrow but it's not guaranteed. We plan for tomorrow. We save for tomorrow and look forward to tomorrow.

Today is what we have. If today is the last day of your life, how is it going? If you knew for sure, how would you want to spend your last precious 24 hours? You wouldn't be planning next year's vacation. No, you would want to get in all that you could possibly do. Only you know for sure how you would want to spend your day and everyone is different. Maybe you would spend your day with loved ones or maybe you would want to be strolling in the mountains or by the oceanside. Maybe you would want to spend your day eating ice cream, hamburgers and pizza. If it's your last day then why not?

I like ice cream, hamburgers and pizza but my doctor doesn't recommend them as a daily diet because of the hopes of tomorrow. There are ways that we can shorten our days and too much of what we enjoy is not always very good for us.

Since life is one day at a time, we can't go back and repeat yesterday. All the good you did is in the past. All the mistakes you made are in the past. You can spend the rest of your life wishing you could repeat high school, college or an old relationship. Actually, you are better off if you don't sit around and think about it all the time.

It's good to remember the good memories of family, friends, life's successes and joys but they are in the past. This often makes us sad because we know we can't relive some of those great moments of life. It's best to give thanks for them and move forward.

Today is a good day to make some more memories – good ones. Living your life today regardless of what you are doing is the life you have. Make the best of it by enjoying your life. Do what you enjoy. Be good to yourself. Don't beat up on yourself. Don't live your life fighting with others.

Do your work. Find joy in your work or move on to a work that you do enjoy. Find ways to reduce stress and to be happy.

Keep in mind that you can't make everyone else happy and don't take on everyone else's problems. You probably have enough of your own.

Be patient. All good things take time if they are worthwhile.

Finally, just in case you do live a bunch more years, live today in such a way, that you can look back to today and remember it as a good day.

Apple Pie Cupcakes with Cinnamon Buttercream

Ingredients
1 package yellow cake mix (regular size)
2 tablespoons butter
4 medium tart apples, peeled and finely chopped (about 4 cups)
3/4 cup packed brown sugar
1 tablespoon cornstarch
1 tablespoon water
frosting:
1 cup butter, softened
tap here
3 cups confectioners' sugar
2 tablespoons heavy whipping cream
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
1-1/2 teaspoons ground cinnamon
Thinly sliced apples, optional

Directions
Prepare and bake cake mix according to package directions for 24 cupcakes; cool completely.
In a large skillet, heat butter over medium heat. Add apples and brown sugar; cook and stir until apples are tender, 10-12 minutes. In a small bowl, mix cornstarch and water until smooth; stir into pan. Bring to a boil; cook and stir until thickened, 1-2 minutes. Remove from heat; cool completely.
Using a paring knife, cut a 1-in.-wide cone-shaped piece from top of each cupcake; discard removed portion. Fill cavity with apple mixture.
In a large bowl, combine the 5 frosting ingredients; beat until smooth. Frost cupcakes. If desired, top with apple slices to serve.

Two stills captured

L. C. Powell and deputies Ben Davis, Franklin Deatheridge and E.B. Flannery, prohibition enforcement officer, left Berea on Thursday afternoon, September 21st, in a Studebaker on a still hunt. Deputy Davis and Marshal Powell had a clue there was a still in operation somewhere in the neighborhood of Cowbell Hollow and they had been in search of this still for some time. The party left the car at the head of the Hollow and started on foot across the ridge. The first still captured was sighted from the top of the cliff above Cowbell Hollow, just over the Rockcastle line. After that still was destroyed, further investigations were made in the hollow. Within a few minutes a second still of less proportion was found and destroyed. No arrests were made in connection to the stills. However, the Prohibition Officer said that there was a warrant sworn for one or more of the men connected. Photographer Ogg accompanied the party and was able to photograph the stills. Those pictures were on display in the Window of Berea Bank and Trust on Main Street in Berea.

Officers raid

Madison County Chief of Police, Willie E. Davis, reported that on September 24th, he, James Scarbouh, Constable, and Donald Tudor raided a still in the Red Lick District and confiscated 200 gallons of mash and 9 quarts of whiskey. However, the three men where were operating the still were able to escape and had not been taken into custody as of press time. Chief Davis reported his office had clues that point toward identifying two of the men. The raid Monday night brought the number of stills raided since Chief Davis to nine. During the same period of time, eighteen bootleggers had been arrested and fifteen convictions had been handed down.

Lily comes home

After 43 years in show business, Lily May Ledford was indeed sure of one thing, "I love to entertain." The folk and country music performer, the star of the original Coon Creek Girls, was back in Berea – her home for many years – as a folk artist in residence at Berea College. During the fall semester and the January short term at Berea College, she held workshops in folk music, banjo, and fiddle. She also was available for concerts at workshops at other schools. Her residency was sponsored by the college's Appalachian Center under a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts. "Berea people have always been good audiences, "Lilly said. "Not too many people came around to see me when I lived here but they would always come wherever I got up on stage to perform." The Powell County native got her start in entertaining through the efforts of promoter John Lair. It was Lair who arranged for her to perform at his talent show at Mt. Vernon, knowing that Chicago's WLS station manager would be in the audience. Ledford was hired immediately and became a regular on the station's "National Barn Dance" for a year. In 1937, she became the lead performer with the Coon Creek Girls, radio's first all-girl band on stations WCKY and WLW in Cincinnati. In 1939, she and the group made a command performance for the king and queen of England at an "All American Music Concert. "staged at the White House. When Lair completed the Renfro Valley complex, The Coon Creek Girls became regulars on his Saturday night "Barn Dance" and Sunday morning programs of which there were many any broadcasts made broadcast nationally.

Band has talent

The Madison Southern Marching band was Kentucky State Champions last year after winning several events throughout the year. That level of success would be difficult to live up to with a much younger band. Add that to the fact that according to director David Thompson stating that the band had gotten off to a late start for the 1992-93 season. However, the organization had proven to once again be on track as they traveled to the Madison Central Invitational Band competition where they would compete against 13 other bands. At this time, Madison Southern was in Class A, which was the smallest of the band classifications. Southern would have to not only compete against bands in Class A but they would also have to hold their own against bands in other classifications which were much larger. Keeping with school tradition, Madison Southern took first place in their division and received a superior rating and went on to place fourth overall against all of the bands at the competition.

"This is the first time Madison Southern had received a superior rating at the first competition of the year," Thompson stated. Some had worried that it would be difficult for this band to maintain the winning level that had been associated with Southern's band since the school's inception. This is only natural because every school has a "losing season" occasionally. However, this competition provided a peek into what the band's future could potentially be. "I think our potential is to be as good as last year's band." We have the potential to make it to state finals, but it would be presumptuous of me to predict a state win at this time." Thompson said.

Speaking of spies, vacuum cleaner gathers lots of dirt

A very paranoid fellow confided to his psychiatrist that he suspected his television and his laptop were spying on him.

"You've got bigger problems than the TV and laptop," his psychiatrist said. "The vacuum cleaner has been gathering dirt in your house for years."

Some people are obsessed with fears about being watched. Well, the fact is you are indeed being watched every moment by our all-knowing, all-seeing, ever-present God.

The Bible tells us nothing escapes his notice.

"The eyes of the Lord are in every place, beholding the evil and the good," (Proverbs 15:3).

So, you see, whatever we do, the Lord sees it. Day or night, He has an eye on us. Whatever we say, he hears it. Day or night. He's listening.

Roger Alford

That thought ought to be all the encouragement we need to do right, always.

"O Lord, thou hast searched me and known me. Thou knowest my downsitting and mine uprising. Thou understandest my thought afar off. Thou compassest my path and my lying down, and art acquainted with all my ways. For there is not a word in my tongue but, lo, O Lord, thou knowest altogether. Thou hast beset me behind and before, and laid thine hand upon me. (Psalm 139:1-5).

That's a welcome thought to people who honor God in all their actions and words. But that's alarming for people who do not.

We're told in 2 Corinthians 12:10 that we must all stand before the judgment seat of Christ to give an account for things we've done. And Matthew 12:36 tells us we are even accountable for the idle words we speak.

The truth is, the television, laptop, and even the vacuum cleaner should be the least of our concerns. Our primary concern should be that our Heavenly Father is watching and listening.

I, COUNTY CLERK IN AND FOR SAID COUNTY AND STATE, DO CERTIFY THAT THE FOREGOING IS A TRUE AND CORRECT COPY OF THE BALLOTS THAT WILL APPEAR ON THE VOTING MACHINES IN MADISON COUNTY FOR THE GENERAL ELECTION TO BE HELD ON TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 8, 2022.

GIVEN UNDER MY HAND AND SEAL OF OFFICE, THIS THE 19 DAY OF Sep., 2022.

Ken Bowyer MCC

(NAME), CLERK
MADISON COUNTY, KY

BALLOT QUESTIONS

CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT 1

"Are you in favor of amending the present Constitution of Kentucky to repeal sections 36, 42, and 55 and replace those sections with new sections of the Constitution of Kentucky to allow the General Assembly to meet in regular session for thirty legislative days in odd-numbered years, for sixty legislative days in even-numbered years, and for no more than twelve additional days during any calendar year if convened by a Joint Proclamation of the President of the Senate and the Speaker of the House of Representatives, with no session of the General Assembly to extend beyond December 31; and to provide that any act passed by the General Assembly shall become law on July 1 of the year in which it was passed, or ninety days after passage and signature of the Governor, whichever occurs later, or in cases of emergency when approved by the Governor or when it otherwise becomes law under Section 88 of the Constitution?

Proposed New Section

(1) The General Assembly, in odd-numbered years, shall convene in regular session on the first Tuesday following the first Monday in January for the purpose of electing legislative leaders, adopting rules of procedure, organizing committees, and introducing and considering legislation.

(2) No regular session of the General Assembly occurring in odd-numbered years shall continue beyond thirty legislative days.

(3) No bill raising revenue or appropriating funds shall be passed by the General Assembly in a regular session in an odd numbered year unless it shall be agreed upon by three-fifths of all the members elected to each House.

(4) The General Assembly, in even-numbered years, shall convene in regular session on the first Tuesday following the first Monday in January, and no regular session of the General Assembly in even-numbered years shall extend beyond sixty legislative days.

(5) Except as otherwise provided in this Constitution, the General Assembly shall establish by general law or joint resolution the date the regular session shall end. No bill establishing a later date shall be passed by the General Assembly unless it shall be agreed upon by three-fifths of all the members elected to each House. No session of the General Assembly shall extend beyond December 31.

(6) In addition to a regular session, the General Assembly may be convened by Joint Proclamation of the President of the Senate and the Speaker of the House of Representatives for no more than twelve legislative days annually, during which the General Assembly may recess from time to time as it determines necessary. Should a vacancy occur in the office of the President of the Senate or the Speaker of the House of Representatives, the Joint Proclamation for the House with the vacancy may be issued by the Senate President Pro Tempore or the Speaker Pro Tempore of the House of Representatives.

(7) All sessions of the General Assembly shall be held at the seat of government, except in the case of war, insurrection, or pestilence, when it may, by Joint Proclamation of the President of the Senate and the Speaker of the House of Representatives, assemble, for the time being, elsewhere. Should a vacancy occur in the office of the President of the Senate or the Speaker of the House of Representatives, the Joint Proclamation for the House with the vacancy may be issued by the Senate President Pro Tempore or the Speaker Pro Tempore of the House of Representatives.

(8) Limitations as to the length of any session of the General Assembly shall not apply to any extraordinary session under Section 80 of this Constitution or in the Senate when sitting as a court of impeachment.

(9) A legislative day shall be construed to mean a calendar day, exclusive of Sundays, legal holidays, or any day on which neither House meets.

Proposed New Section

No act, except general appropriation bills, shall become a law until July 1 of the year in which it was passed, or until ninety days after it becomes law under Section 88 of this Constitution, whichever occurs later, except in cases of emergency, when, by the concurrence of a majority of the members elected to each House of the General Assembly, by a yea and nay vote entered upon their journals, an act may become a law when approved by the Governor or when it otherwise becomes a law under Section 88; but the reasons for the emergency that justifies this action must be set out at length in the journal of each House.".

or in-person at the Clerk's Office (Richmond or Berea Branch).

Madison County Court Clerk Kenny Barger said the early voting, absentee portal, and central voting locations worked extremely well during the primary elections and believes it will be even better for the general election, which typically draws more voters to the polls.

"These types of voting options are cost effective and more convenient for all the voters," he said.

Barger used the example of someone who lives in Waco but works in Berea now has the option of voting in Berea instead of having to rush from Berea to their polling location in Waco.

Barger wanted voters to know that two Kentucky Constitutional Amendments and one local option vote are on the ballot this November. He suggested all voters become familiar with the amendments before going to vote to lessen the time they spend in the voting booth to help speed voters through the polls. The first amendment concerns the number of days the state legislature can meet in odd and even numbered years and when special sessions are called.

The amendment also covers when new laws passed would become law. The second constitutional amendment to protect human life and not guarantee a right to or fund aborition in the state.

The local option concerns the sale of alcoholic beverages in the Clay's Ferry district of the county.

of the project can be resubmitted, Howard said. He added if the current shale samples are found to be insufficient, the design team may have to conduct a new geological study of the shale at the construction site.

Additionally, Howard reported federal officials reported back to the city and said a stilling basin may be required for the project. A stilling basin reduces the impact of water runoff, helping prevent erosion around the dam.

The $12 million dam project will raise the Owsley Fork Reservoir Dam by six feet, increasing the water capacity from 650 million gallons to one billion. Officials say the increase in storage capacity could meet the region's water needs for the next 50 years.

In other business, Howard requested a budget amendment for chemicals related to water and wastewater treatment. Prices of the chemicals saw a sharp increase in the last year, including an 81 percent increase in water chemicals and a 36 percent price hike in wastewater treatment chemicals, he said. Howard explained the price increases may be because chemical processing centers in Texas were severely hit with bad weather last year. Additionally, a threatened railroad worker strike also may have contributed to higher prices, Howard added.

Overall, BMU had budgeted $130,000 for water treatment chemicals and $50,000 for wastewater treatment chemicals. The combined number was boosted to $229,000 by a unanimous vote of the council at last Monday's meeting.

In one other piece of business, the Berea City Council unanimously voted to accept Howard's request to integrate new sewer infrastructure in the city's maintenance plan, including manholes and new eight-inch sewer lines on Mayde Road, Vineyard Subdivision Phase III, and Fincastle Subdivision Phase I. Total value of the new infrastructure is $391,760.

in designing the specifications of the truck that would be useful to both entities.

In other business, the court issued a proclamation proclaiming October to be Domestic Violence Awareness month. To honor the month, "These Hands Don't Hurt" rally will be held Oct. 11 in front of the courthouse.

The court also proclaimed October to be Breast Cancer Awareness Month and kicked off Paint the Town Pink to raise money toward Breast Cancer research.

State Representative Bill Wesley told the court the state legislature is working with Madison County Superintendent David Gilliam to secure funding to place school resource officers (SROs) in every school in the county. Under House Bill 63 all schools in the state are required to have an SRO but the initial bill did not offer funding for the officers which has made it difficult for school districts to hire SROs.

Out of the Blue

Blue-White game to be played in Pikeville

Kentucky will take its Blue-White basketball scrimmage on the road this season.

The Wildcats will play their annual preseason scrimmage at 6 p.m. on Oct. 22 at Appalachian Wireless Arena in Pikeville. The contest will be part of an ongoing effort by the program to help assist residents who were affected by deadly flooding in the region last summer. A Fan Fest and a UK Basketball pre-game show will be held outside of the arena prior to the contest.

"We're excited to be able to come and play for the fans of eastern Kentucky," Kentucky coach John Calipari said.

"This is a unique opportunity for the people in our state who have been affected and we hope we can provide a temporary escape with basketball and community engagement."

All sales generated through ticket revenue will be given to assist in flood relief through Team Eastern Kentucky Flood Relief.

Big Blue Madness

Tickets for Big Blue Madness will be distributed Sunday.

The annual event will be held at 7 p.m. on Oct. 14 at Rupp Arena, and tickets will be distributed online at ticketmaster.com and in-person at the Memorial Coliseum ticket office on the Avenue of Champions beginning at 9 a.m. on Oct. 2.

The tickets will be distributed for free and a limit of two per household online. A limited amount of control cards with wristbands will be issued for campers at 6 p.m. on Oct. 1.

No more than four cards will be distributed per tent. Those with control cards can line up beginning at 7:30 a.m. on Oct. 2 for ticket distribution.

Campers who wish to arrive early to claim a tent location can begin arriving at 5 a.m. on Oct. 1.

Stoops wants C-Rod to be himself in return to lineup

LEXINGTON (KT) — Kentucky coach Mark Stoops wants standout running back Chris Rodriguez to simply be himself when he returns to the lineup Saturday at Ole Miss.

After sitting out the first four games because of a suspension relating to off-the-field issues last summer, Rodriguez is back on the team's depth chart alongside Kavosiey Smoke as the top running back. Jutahn McClain is listed at third string.

"He doesn't need to come in and be our savior or anything like that, or save our run game and any of that," Kentucky coach Mark Stoops said Monday.

"We don't need him to worry about that. We just need him to be him."

Without Rodriguez in the lineup, the seventh-ranked Wildcats (4-0, 1-0 Southeastern Conference) have struggled to gain traction in the backfield. Kavosiey Smoke has carried most of the load in Rodriguez's absence. The Wildcats rank 13th out of 14 SEC teams in rushing offense with 326 yards through four games.

Kentucky has known when Rodriguez would return to the lineup and has been "managing" his progression during the past two weeks.

"While he was out, (we've) just getting him the reps that we needed to the last week or two," Stoops said. "He was getting reps with the first and second team, mainly the second team, or just different quarterbacks, just to make sure he wasn't totally removed from practicing our plays, along with staying in shape, being on the scout team, doing whatever was necessary, staying in good shape."

Stoops has been concerned with his team's progression on the offensive line, but likes the way the Wildcats responded in the win over Northern Illinois last Saturday.

"There are several runs that they could've hit up in there without a doubt," he said. "There were other times when it was cloudy, and you could understand what they saw. There are a lot of things we could clean up and I thought they were doing some things that were creative. They were twisting and getting some guys in some gaps and then there were times when we hit it pretty well and sealed them up. We just want more consistency."

Moving up

The Wildcats gained one spot and moved up to No. 7 in the Associated Press Top 25 poll. Stoops likes the progress his team has made in the rankings.

"I'd like it to stay there," Stoops said of the No. 7 ranking. "That's really what's most important. Sure, it helps with the fanbase and showing up and having the people there. It helps with recruiting.

" It helps with your team and hopefully it motivates them to practice hard to stay that way because, we know we have a very tough stretch starting here this week."

Brown honored

Kentucky receiver Barion Brown was named SEC co-Freshman of the Week following his performance against Northern Illinois last Saturday.

Brown caught four passes for 102 yards and two touchdowns.

He hauled in a 70-yard touchdown reception and a 15-yard catch for a score. The 102 receiving yards were the most for a freshman since Garrett "Juice" Johnson had 154 yards receiving against Florida in 2014.

Brown received the league's SEC Special Teams Player of the Week after he scored on a 100-yard kickoff return in a season-opening win over Miami (Ohio). In his first season, Brown has caught 13 passes for 201 yards, an average of 15.5 yards per catch.
