Sheri Patterson/The Citizen

Bereans once again came out in large numbers to see the annual Christmas parade roll through the streets this past Saturday. Above, children from the Light House church float wave to the crowd. To the right, Buffy Montgomery waves while walking alongside the Montgomery float, which won second place in the business category. Ace Hardware took first place in the business category. The Madison County Library in Berea once again won first place in the nonprofit category, while Madison Southern Horse Club won second. Pilot Knob won first in the church category and Lighthouse Baptist won second place.

Berea Water Shortage Getting Serious

By Beth Myers
Citizen Editor

Berea is facing a serious water shortage, a very unusual occurrence in the winter when usage is at its lowest point in the year. The water in Owsley Fork Reservoir is already 12 feet down - the city will start pumping when it gets down to 13 feet. Two more weeks of average use, without any rainfall, City Administrator Randy Stone reported at Tuesday's city council meeting, and they will be down to 13 feet.

"It's extremely important to conserve water any way you possibly can," Stone said. "Business should please not hose down their parking lots, and people should try to conserve. Take shorter showers."

Stone estimated that without any rain, there would be 170 days of water left.

"We usually recharge our water supply in November and December," Stone said. "It sounds strange, but we need to pray for rain."

Mayor Steve Connelly commented that around 60 percent of the nation is in drought conditions, which he stated could possibly be an indication of climate change or global warming.

Economic Development Workgroup Moves Forward

By Christie Green
Citizen Reporter

Berea Economic Advancement Teams that began working together in October 2011 are continuing progress toward goals and strategies they had planned to promote local economic development. As reported in November, the food sustainability workgroup is moving forward with a grassroots Community Food System Assessment that will help inform strategy development for promoting a strong local food economy.

The tourism group is also moving forward with several strategies to expand and promote tourism as a strong part of Berea's economy. Paul Reynolds, of Reynolds Insurance, helps lead the group. He explained that the group recently began distributing "What's happening in Berea" cards at restaurants and businesses in the community. The card lists some of the highlights for visitors and includes contact information for the Berea Tourism Commission. The card, printed with support from the Commission, is intended to help

Second Holiday Learnshops With 144 and Counting

By Beth Myers
Citizen Editor

For the second go-round of holiday Learnshops in December, there has been slightly more participants than the year before. Counting up to 144 on Tuesday, there will probably be a few more people signing up by the last Learnshop day, Dec. 12. These Learnshops started on Dec. 1, as a "twelve days of Christmas" theme.

"Next time, we may not do Learnshops during the week," Belle Jackson said, Berea's tourism director.

Jackson stated that around 85 percent of the participants were taking Learnshops during the weekend, leaving very small numbers during the week. For the next holiday season, Berea Tourism

Arts Center Breathes New Life Into Paint Lick

By Beth Myers
Citizen Editor

The small town of Paint Lick was out in force Friday night, with standing room only at the community arts center as people looked at the paintings on the wall, shared tidbits of food and visited with each other while high school players in medieval costumes from Garrard County High School milled around the room. Parking was extremely limited and the hot cider kept running out as Paint Lick residents arrived in droves, making very clear how pleased they were with their newest two residents - Hal and Yvonne Davis.

 "In the past we've talked about moving to a village and bringing the arts there," Hal said, who along with his wife, Yvonne, bought the old bank building, and opened up the Paint Lick Community Arts Center. "I've told people here that this may be the smallest community in the country to have its own art center."
 Hal and Yvonne moved to Paint Lick this past spring, and have been very busy preparing the community arts center. They had their grand opening on October 5, and were amazed when over 300 people attended.
 "We were quite surprised," Hal said. "People couldn't find a place to park. The people were also quite amazed and quite surprised at how many came."
 Since their grand opening, the Davises have been offering a few workshops per week, such as basket weaving and photography classes, along with hosting "An Evening With . . ." events once a month, where people are invited to an evening with one of their local artists. Yvonne, a professional jazz pianist for a few decades, is giving piano lessons. In all their offerings, the two of them are committed to honoring and encouraging the artistic and creative abilities of the Paint Lick residents. Hal has been working with homeschool students on different art projects on Fridays, and several of their drawings and paintings were hanging on the walls of the Paint Lick Community Arts Center.

 "Every chance we get, we want to help people feel good about the arts and the creativity that they have," Hal said, who taught art to elementary school students in Indiana for 26 years before retiring.
 The Davises had no thoughts of moving to Paint Lick even two years ago. They were settled in Hanover, Ind., and were visiting in Berea in August of 2011. They were traveling to Danville, and decided to mail a letter at the Paint Lick post office. They stopped at Friends of Paint Lick, and were instantly captivated with the friendliness and openness of the women there.

 "The openness of the women at the Friends was incredible," Yvonne said. "They invited us for lunch that day. The people were so open, very sweet and soft."

Yvonne and Hal had such a good visit that they decided to return to Paint Lick for their Fall Festival. Both were gratified that the people of Paint Lick were such believers; Yvonne said it felt like going to the Land of Goshen.
 "When we went to the Fall Festival," Hal said, "Yvonne spotted the bank building, and said, 'wouldn't that make a great community center.'"

They still weren't prepared to move to Paint Lick, however, until they experienced the violent storms and tornadoes this past March. As they reviewed their situation, and witnessed the devastation of the towns around them, Yvonne asked Hal where he would go if he could go anywhere and had no responsibilities or worries.
 "I said Paint Lick right away," Hal said. "It just came out."
 After that, they put their house up for sale, went to Paint Lick, and bought a bank. The renovation took several months, since they redid the upstairs for their living quarters. Even before they opened the center, however, they were busy helping Paint Lick to improve. They bought a new flag for the post office, since the old one was pretty tattered, and had an official flag raising for the Fourth of July holiday. About 80 people attended.

The community of Paint Lick has embraced both of them with open arms. After the flooding a couple of years ago, and some businesses leaving town, there was a fear with some people that their community was dying. The Paint Lick Community Arts Center has been a revitalization for the community, as well as a general hub where people can learn, visit and express their creativity. From a fear that it was dying, many now have the feeling that it's booming.
 "People keep telling us how thankful they are that we're here," Hall said, who stated that building the community arts center in this Paint Lick Village has been the fulfillment of his dream. "People are feeling the pride of Paint Lick again."

link people, both tourists and locals, to opportunities for recreation and entertainment in Berea.

The group is focused on promoting a full spectrum of tourism opportunities, including eco-tourism, adventure tourism, and sporting events like 5K's, cycling, and tournaments. Ideally, Reynolds explained, an economic development plan for local tourism would look at ways to develop events or attractions that draw visitors for overnight stays and longer visits.

"Tourism has a great impact on the whole community, and it benefits everyone," said Reynolds, who is also a member of the Berea Tourism Commission.

The group is working on plans for an event calendar for the whole community. This calendar would be able to accept submissions from the public and could be used by individuals, organizations, or businesses. The group also recommends formation of an artists' association that could prove a venue for artists to work together on business and tourism issues.

When asked about whether or not the group would advocate for alcohol sales, Reynolds stated, "We have to look at it from an economic standpoint. We think it's important to analyze the economic impact and see how it is working in nearby towns where the laws have been changed."

Another BEAT work group, focused on local investment, had strategized about creating a local investment fund that would give investors the opportunity to nurture and expand promising small to medium size businesses in the community.

Danny Isaacs, an Enterprise Development Project Specialist with MACED, chairs the local investment group. "We wanted to figure out how to encourage local investors to support local businesses in ways that would promote growth and entrepreneurship," Isaacs said.

As they researched examples of local business investment in the U.S., the group found that most models relied heavily on a single person who could spearhead the development of the project. There are many responsibilities related to the legalities involved in local investment models. Lacking a financial advisor, business attorney, or financial institution that could serve as a principle partner, the group struggled to find ways of moving their strategy forward. "Once we recognized what the costs really would be, we tossed around ideas, but it has fizzled out as time has passed since the last public meeting (in May)," said Isaacs.

Although the local investment group has not yet been successful with its strategy, Isaacs agreed that many positive interactions came as a result of the group's planning work. "The entire group was very much interested in local economic development and local support for small businesses. The challenge is still about how we can be involved in small business and let small business owners know that we want to be there for them."

Mayor Steve Connelly reported that he is optimistic about the BEAT workgroups and their contributions to local economic development. "The city council is going to pick up strategic planning in early 2013," he said, "and will likely invite the economic advancement teams to report on their ideas and how they envision the city contributing."

Even as the groups are trying to maintain momentum with their strategies, they are having an impact just by working together, making connections, and creating new networks in the community. Reynolds agreed that the BEAT process is an important part of economic development. "We have to plan our future," he said. "We can't just let everything happen around us."

A Life Well Lived

Scenter Stage

Teresa Scenters, Publisher

It may not mean much to many of you, but one of my heroes passed away last week. Zig Ziglar was an inspiration to me, and to so many others. He had written dozens of motivational and sales books, all of which were filled with such good common sense advice that if one heeded it you could hardly avoid success. I heard him speak many years ago at conference and I still remember his topic, delivered in the southern drawl he'd acquired growing up in Yazoo City, Mississippi, "If every day was the day before vacation." What a motivator he was.

To give you some idea of just how long ago that particular conference was, one of the things he asked that day, while trying to impart the importance of doing one's best, was, "Do you think if the Chicago Bulls fold next week Michael Jordan will have a hard time finding a job?" I'm not sure why but the very obvious answer to that question gave me a good deal of comfort. Somehow it took away a sort of fear I'd had of becoming jobless. Which to date, thanks be to God, hasn't happened.

Which brings me to the thing I admired most about Zig Ziglar, his openness about his faith, followed closely by his unabashed and vocal love and devotion for his wife, whom he always referred to as the red-head. I looked up some of his quotes and thought you might enjoy them as much as I.

- Your attitude, not your aptitude, will determine your altitude.

- People often say that motivation doesn't last. Well, neither does bathing, that's why we recommend it daily.

- Money won't make you happy...but everybody wants to find out for themselves.

- Many marriages would be better if the husband and the wife clearly understood that they are on the same side.

- You are the only person on earth who can use your own ability.

- There has never been a statue erected to honor a critic.

- Success and happiness are not matters of chance but choice.

- Remember that failure is an event, not a person.

- Life is too short to spend your precious time trying to convince a person who wants to live in gloom and doom otherwise. Give lifting that person your best shot, but don't hang around long enough for his or her bad attitude to pull you down. Instead, surround yourself with optimistic people.

- Positive thinking will let you do everything better than negative thinking will.

- People who have good relationships at home are more effective in the marketplace.

- It's not what you've got, it's what you use that makes a difference.

- If God would have wanted us to live in a permissive society, He would have given us Ten Suggestions and not Ten Commandments.

- Every choice you make has an end result.

- You can have everything in life that you want if you will just help enough other people get what they want.

The day he died his webpage had this message... Zig Ziglar passed from this world today after a short bout with pneumonia. Though his time on earth has ended, he is speaking with Jesus now in his heavenly home. The angels in heaven are rejoicing and his family is celebrating a life well lived.

I can't add a thing to that, I can only aspire to a similar outcome.

The Precious Nature and Value of Less

Letters from Berea

Beth Myers, Editor

In Mississippi when I was growing up, one year we had The Snow. Even now I remember getting off for a week from school when I was about ten years old. We had around four inches, and you would have thought we had never seen such a thing before.

Every day we wallowed in the stuff, sledding anything we could find, making snowmen every day, snow ball fights, snow angles and ice saber fights.

Our whole family went out to make a snowman one day, and soon a squabble broke out. My father was slapping the base together with no regard to getting all the pine needles out (a hazard with Mississippi snow people), or pine cones and sticks. The three of us girls were appalled that he wasn't "cleaning up" his part of the snowman and my mother took our side. He ended up stomping away to the other side of the house, and eventually called us over. There, in all its glory, was one pine needle-speckled, dirty, sticky snowman that my father was incredibly proud of. Despite being rather quiet in the midst of his loud female family, he always found a way to quietly and stubbornly stick to his way of doing things.

A Pennsylvania boy, I realize now that my father missed his mountains and snow after moving to Mississippi almost five decades ago. We always made fun of the tons of photos he would take of the tiny flurries we would get, or the one tree in our yard that had one-quarter inch of ice on one branch. I felt sad sometimes, thinking of Dad always longing for the snowy hills of his youth.

Today I interviewed a lovely gentleman who grew up in Bear Wallow in the 1920s. He remembered the Christmases of his childhood -- the one big present they would get every year with the popcorn and construction paper decorations all around the house, and the tree he would cut from "Uncle Dan's Woods." It was almost obscene to think of this precious memory against the greed we saw at WalMart, with people grabbing cheap phones and sheets. Products they would never appreciate as much as he appreciated the bike he got one year, or the pop-gun. Less is indeed more in this case -- the one present taking on a special glow compared to the tons of stuff kids receive today.

Perhaps that was how Dad felt about his snow, as well. Those few little flurries and small icicles taking on a special meaning, as he waited eagerly every winter to see if we would get that small white accumulation. Perhaps his small glimpses of his Pennsylvania childhood landscape became ever more precious when seen against the backdrop of the Mississippi red clay.

Christmas Trees – An American Tradition?

Clint Patterson, College Forester

What would Christmas be, without a Christmas tree? Whether you prefer an artificial or natural Christmas tree, the practice of decorating a tree and placing gifts under it for opening on December 25th is nearly a universal practice for today's American family. This hasn't always been the case. In fact, America is a relative late-comer in adopting what we now consider a "traditional Christmas".

Americans may be interested to know that in early America, any celebration of Christmas was banned. William Bradford, the famed Puritan leader, considered Christmas a "pagan mockery", and in 1659, the General Court of Massachusetts actually enacted a law making any observance of December 25th a penal offence. Up through the American Revolution, Americans continued to have little regard for Christmas; with Dec. 25th, 1789, the first Christmas under the new Constitution, passing by with Congress in session and no holiday recognized.

The early Americans had a problem with Christmas because of its pagan origins. Celebrated around the time of the Winter Solstice, various "sun gods" were worshiped across the ancient pre-Christian world. The Germanic tribes honored Odin, the Persians Mithras, and the Romans Saturn. The pagan festivals incorporated evergreen boughs in their celebrations to symbolize the return of life after winter. At the solstice, winter's shortening days again began to lengthen; assuring them of the coming summer. Finally, in 350 AD, Pope Julius I chose December 25th as the day to celebrate the birth of Christ in an effort to absorb these pagan traditions. Christians continued to incorporate evergreen branches in their festival to celebrate everlasting life.

In Germany, whole trees were often brought into the home for this purpose. Martin Luther, the German Protestant reformer, is credited as the first to add candles to the "Christmas tree". Reportedly, as he walked home one winter evening, as he was composing a sermon, Luther was awed by the beauty of the stars twinkling through the evergreens. He then wired candles to his tree to duplicate this experience for his family.

Decorated and lighted Christmas trees quickly gained popularity across Germany. German settlers brought the practice to America with them, but Christmas trees were still not widely accepted by most Americans. Finally, Queen Victoria married the German Prince Edward. An 1846 illustration was featured in the Illustrated London News of the royal couple with their children posed around their Christmas tree. Practically overnight, Christmas trees then became the fashion in the English-speaking world. Even so, it wasn't until 1870 that Christmas became a federally recognized holiday in America.

I'm not sure, around here, where there are tree farms where families can enjoy the experience of picking out a real tree, but there are surely some around, and wild-grown cedar trees make a pretty good Christmas tree too (ask permission if it's not on your property!). Others choose to buy a ball and burlap tree and plant it after using it in the house. Trees are now often available in many different species; from the once dominant Scots pine, to white pine, Douglas and Frazier fir, spruces and others. Wherever a live tree may come from, the Christmas tree farm provide wildlife habitat and erosion control, and if not used for growing trees, would probably be pasture or farm ground.

Being a forester, I'll probably always use a real tree, but artificial trees have come a long way; it's amazing how nice they look. Remember when they looked like they were made out of big pipe cleaners? Whether you choose a real tree or an artificial tree, please do not copy Martin Luther's practice of using candles. Back when they used candles, the tree was not cut and put up until Christmas Eve and was taken down twelve days later on the Epiphany; hence the tree had little time to dry out and pose a fire hazard.

Berea College Offering Annual Christmas Concert This Weekend

The annual Christmas Concert, co-sponsored by the Berea College Music Department and the Campus Christian Center, will be held on two consecutive nights this year - Friday evening December 7 and Saturday evening December 8. Both performances will begin at 7:30 p.m. in Union Church. All are invited to attend this popular event and to join in the singing of traditional carols accompanied by College Organist Dr. Javier Clavere. Music of the season will be performed by the college's Black Music Ensemble, Bluegrass Music Ensemble, Concert

Choir, Chamber Singers, Wind Ensemble, Jazz Ensemble, Clavere Piano Duo, and Women's Chorus. As patrons arrive, the Megasax Quartet, and the Old-Tyme Ensemble will perform Christmas music beginning thirty minutes before the concert. Plan to attend this joyful candlelit Christmas celebration to usher in Berea's Christmas Season. A special holiday reception with light refreshments will take place immediately after Friday night's performance.

Free tickets for admission will be issued again this year to guarantee that all patrons will have a seat at the concert. The tickets will be available during business hours at five campus locations: the Alumni Building Front Desk, the Berea College Bookstore, the Campus Christian Center office, the Union Church office, and the Music Program office. The doors to the church will open to the public at 7 p.m. each night with pre-service music beginning at that time. Although admission is free, tickets are required due to limited seating. For more information contact Dr. Clavere or Ms. Jeanette Davidson at 859-985-3466 or 859-985-3464

The Berea City Council approved switching cell phone service to Verizon from Sprint because of coverage issues. Berea Utility workers can not get signals in East Berea, at the Wastewater Treatment plant or the other pump stations. The Berea Police have also had problems with the coverage. Police Chief David Gregory mentioned that at the fatality on Highway 21, they were lucky that a police officer had a personal Verizon phone to call in, because they didn't have coverage on any of the city phones.

Gregory, Director of Codes Dale VanWinkle, Economic Development Director Tom McKay and a representative from Berea Utilities were all asked to work together on processing the bids, since all of them were directly impacted by the coverage problems. McKay stated that he would get dropped calls at least once a day, even at the Broadway Street office.

The Verizon monthly charge would be approximately $400 more than Sprint, but there was a zero equipment charge. Stone estimated that they would ultimately save when calculating in the zero equipment charge. The City of Berea currently spends $1,900 a month on cell phone coverage which also includes the air cards for the vehicles.

Two other benefits of the Verizon contract will be 30 "throw-away" phones they give to cities in case of disasters. One phone call activates all 30, and they can be given to city officials for their use during the disaster. They automatically get priority of calling over the other phones. Verizon also will automatically send a charging trailer for residents to use, once they hear of a disaster hitting an area.

Stone mentioned that at some point in the future, city council members should discuss what type of technology they might prefer for city staff to send information to them. It would be a great paper saver, Stone commented. A few members mentioned tablets, and Stone stated that was one of his considerations as well.

When the three governments had their joint meeting in November, Berea staff and council members first heard that a new 911 center may be built. CSEPP will be receiving an appropriation of approximately $6 million for the new center, where all the CSEPP activities could be consolidated.

Stone mentioned that it looked like a very lucrative deal for the county, but they were concerned with who would be responsible for the future upkeep and expense. Council member Virgil Burnside agreed, stating his concern that once all this money is put into the new building, the question becomes responsibility for upkeep. Once the chemical weapons are neutralized, there will be no more federal money to assist in those expenses.

Different concerns were expressed from staff and city council about the 911 department, and the lack of communication to the City of Berea. As an equal partner in paying for the upgrades to the 911 equipment, someone pointed out, the City of Berea should be kept informed and updated on all 911 activities. One council member stated his concern that the response time of 911 was very slow.

"It sounds like we need to be more involved," Stone said. "We need more substantial information on what's happening, and we clearly need to be treated as a partner."

A representative from Bereans for Fairness stood up during the meeting, and reported that during the group's participation in the Christmas parade, they were not announced at the college square, unlike the float before them and behind them. They investigated into the matter with the Berea Chamber of Commerce; the Commerce reported back that Bereans for Fairness weren't targeted, but it was an innocent oversight. The Bereans for Fairness representative stated that the discomfort she felt at the parade reflected her general feeling of discomfort in Berea with being a member of the LGBT community.

"It's difficult to be open and out," she said.

She requested that the city council pass the Fairness Ordinance, to help change the climate in Berea and create a more welcoming community.

The newest police officer was introduced to the city council, with badge number 429 and fresh from graduation. The German shepherd, named Parko, would be working with drug sniffing and tracking. He had just had first mission, and helped to recover some marijuana. His handler will be Detective Parker of the Berea Police Department. It's been several years since the department had a canine officer.

may decide to hold six weekends of Learnshops, to keep attendance and participation up for every one.

The December Learnshops - titled "Make It, Take It, Give It" - are for Berea instructors only. In winter weather, local artists are more reliable with getting to the instruction sites, and the tourism department also sees this as a way to build added value for being a local instructor. The most popular Learnshop this year has been Michelle Weston with her ornament making - where participants are able to actually blow their own glass Christmas tree bauble. Other popular ones are Dinah Tyree's watercolor class and Steve Farmer's workshop where he teaches people to make stools with grass woven seed on them. One new vendor/instructor is Fiber Frenzy, that has been holding classes at their shop.

While a few participants do come from further away, the vast majority of people who have signed up for the December Learnshops are local people, or people from the surrounding counties. The summer Learnshops bring in a much greater percentage from outside the region, since people travel more and tend to be more mobile. The offerings of Learnshops that count as continuing education for teachers also assist them in getting participants in the summer.

Jackson plans to ask the artists to discuss and brainstorm how many times they would like to hold these Learnshops. Currently, Berea Tourism hosts two a year - in the summer and in December. Tourism is willing to publicize and market more, however, if the artists/instructors are interested.

"The goal of the Learnshops has always been to be a festival," Jackson said. "We can go year round, if they choose."

Some options, Jackson said, would be to hold Learnshops every month, every quarter or every other month. Depending on the interest and energy of the instructors, Berea Tourism is prepared to ramp up their education and arts offerings.

Basketball Tournament to Help Feed the Hungry

Photo Submitted

The Berea Community High School Boys' Team will be hosting the 1st annual Food Bank Classic this Saturday, December 8 here. New Coach Cameron Jackson held a similar event when he coached in Perry County, so he asked the players if they would be interested in a similar event. "They are very excited," Jackson reported. "We have some great teams participating in our Classic this year. This year's tournament is being sponsored by various companies in Berea. All donations will be sent to the Berea community Food Bank organization that, Jackson said, has fed thousands of families that otherwise would have gone hungry during difficult times.

"Players like to get involved in the community, and feel like they're helping it," Jackson said.

The goal this year for the team is to raise the total to 1200 pounds. They're asking each team to bring in as much non-perishable food as they can. The team that brings in the most food will win the Humanitarian Trophy.

"This give us more than a basketball event, it helps stop hunger and teaches young men the value of giving," Jackson said.

Beta Club wins State Crafts Sweepstakes, receives awards

by Natalie Warren

The BCHS Beta Club won the State Sweepstakes in Crafts at the National Beta Club State Convention in Louisville on Nov. 30 and Dec. 1.

Five of the 18 BCHS Beta Club members who attended the conference won awards in one or more entry categories.

Senior Ellie Hogg placed first in the Handmade Jewelry category. Senior Olivia Jacobs placed first in the Handmade Christmas Tree Ornament, Needlepoint, and Calligraphy categories, and second in Onsite Acrylic Art. Senior Bethany Traynham placed second in Onsite Colored Pencil Art. Senior Hannah Haycraft placed second in Black and White Photography, and junior Madelyn McDonald placed third in Miscellaneous Art.

BCHS also won the Crafts division of the State Sweepstakes by accumulating more points through individual entries than any other group in the state. "I am very pleased with how the club performed," said Mrs. Charlotte Haycraft, the club's sponsor. "They were just wonderful."

Returning juniors Gammon Fain and Lincoln Satterthwaite both placed in the top 10 in their academic written test categories, which were Spanish and Science, respectively.

Mrs. Haycraft stated that this is the first time Berea's Beta Club has ever placed first overall in Crafts. "I am very proud of this group," she said. "They truly represented Berea well in both skill and behavior."

This was Madelyn McDonald's first year attending Beta Convention. "I thought it was awesome," she said. (see Beta Convention awards, p. 2)

by Ellie Hogg

Seventeen members of the BCHS Future Business Leaders of America club spent three days, Nov. 26-28, in Nashville, TN, touring various educational attractions in the area.

The students visited Waller Law Firm, the Country Music Hall of Fame, the Parthenon replica, Andrew Jackson's home and Vanderbilt University. They also participated in a behind-the-scenes aquarium tour and walked through a 'Shrek' ice exhibit.

"It was fun. I enjoyed visiting the law firm," said freshman Aaron Ambrose.

The trip was coordinated by Mrs. Sherry Schloemer, the club sponsor and high school business and marketing teacher.

"It was very successful and we got lots of compliments on the behavior of the students and the respect that they showed for the places we went," said Mrs. Schloemer.

The students who attended were also particularly impressed with the hotel in which they stayed, Gaylord Opryland, many of them listing it as one of their favorite elements of the trip.

"It [the trip] had a lot of educational value," said junior Rachel Long.

BCES to perform Christmas musical, "Santa's Holiday Hoedown"

by Gammon Fain

On Tuesday, Dec. 18 at 6:30 p.m. in the Singleton Gymnasium, Berea Community Elementary students will perform "Santa's Holiday Hoedown," a holiday musical production that will include students from grades K-5.

"We are expecting a very big crowd," said Mrs. Brenda Stratman, Elementary music teacher and director of the production.

The play will feature the story of Santa, Mrs. Claus, Rudolph, and their elves. There is a crisis on the North Pole: Santa's workshop is broke. To raise money for Christmas, the elves travel to Branson, MO. where they decide to put on a country music show called "Santa's Holiday Hoedown."

Soloists in the play are: Luke Shehee as Santa Claus, Christian Duff as Mrs. Claus, Hallie Harrison as Rudolph, Eleanor Green as Dolly Holiday, Jonah Wooten as Tex Glitter, and Thomas Brock as Elvis. All of the students singing solos are fifth graders. In addition, some fourth graders have speaking parts.

In case of snow, the performance will be moved to 6:30 p.m. on Wednesday night, Dec. 19.

"It is going to be a fabulous finale," said Mrs. Stratman.

Junior Emma Crump is given honors in music

Junior Emma Crump has been selected for the All-State Orchestra in viola, and also was chosen for Regional Band in clarinet. However, after being selected for the second round of All-State Band for clarinet, she accepted a seat in a small ensemble that will be performing with the Lexington Philharmonic.

Emma has been recognized before for both viola and clarinet as a member of the Central Kentucky Youth Orchestras, as well as All-State and Regional Bands.

Today's Family Dental donates supplies to BCS FRYSC office

by Hamrick Walters

On Thursday, Nov. 29, Today's Family Dental, the practice of Daksha Parikh, DDS, made a donation of numerous school supplies to Berea Community School's Family Resource Youth Services Center.

The Family Dental staff placed boxes in their reception area and advertised the drive on their website and on the radio.

All grade levels at Berea will benefit from the campaign. "She [Dr.

Parikh] is very thoughtful," said her secretary.

In the future, Dr. Parikh's office plans to make this an annual event for all the schools in the area.

"We are very appreciative of their consideration and support for the success of students," said Mrs. Diane Smith, director of the Resource Center. Mrs. Smith indicated that Dr. Parikh saw a school supply drive as an effective way to help the school.

Berea Community Players prepare to present A Christmas Story

by Chloe Atwater

The Berea Community Players are preparing to perform A Christmas Story on Dec. 13, 14, and 15 at 7 p.m. in the Kennedy Theater. Admission is $5 at the door.

Seniors William Spencer and Ellie Hogg will play the roles of Ralphie's parents. Joining the veteran actors are freshmen Sam McFarland and Trevor Woods, as Ralphie and Randy respectively. Senior Bryce Rosenbarker is the narrator.

Also playing large roles in the production of the play are senior Olivia Jacobs as student director, Noah Fouch as technology director, and Madelyn McDonald as the costuming manager.

Director Jody Flara believes that this group "jells" very well together, and that the presence of new-comers such as Sam and Trevor brings "a fresh perspective" to the theater department.

"I'm really proud of our up-and-comings," said student director Olivia Jacobs.

This adaptation of the classic 1983 Christmas film presents new challenges for the group, as they normally act in pieces written for the stage. A large portion of the play is narrated, and many scenes are shorter than they are in traditional plays.

"It's a really fun play, and it has a great message... it will be great to see from live performers," said Ms. Flara.

All-State is a three-day experience where the state's most dedicated musicians rehearse together, and perform in a concert at the end of the three days.

Boys' varsity basketball falls to Lynn Camp in home opener

by Breana Reynolds

The BCHS Boys' Varsity Basketball Team suffered a 68-62 loss in their first home game against Lynn Camp on Friday, Nov. 30.

Coach Cameron Jackson expressed that even though the team lost, he was still proud of many different aspects of the game. "We had a lot of positives, but we just couldn't put it all together. All the mistakes we made are correctable," Coach Jackson said.

Senior Nolan Sweet was the leading scorer with 12 points total. All of Nolan's points were from three point shots.

"[The team] is already showing improvement," Nolan said.

Sophomores Andy Allen and Dustin Kates both finished the game with double double. Andy had 11 points and 10 rebounds. Dustin had 10 points and 11 rebounds.

Junior Trey Terrill also scored 10 points in the game.

Berea's next home game is Saturday, Dec. 8 at 3:00 p.m. against Riverside Christian in the Food Bank Classic. Beria will be competing in the basketball game and in a food drive.

Members of the community can donate non-perishable items to help support the team and the community. Anyone who wants to donate items for the food drive can bring them to Beria Community High School; Mr. Jackson and Mr. Craig Dollins will be collecting the items.

Food items will be weighed at the end of the Food Bank Classic. The team with the heaviest weight will receive the Humanitarian Award.

Lady Pirate varsity basketball defeats Estill County at home, continues season with 2-1 record

by Gammon Fain

The Beria Lady Pirates' Varsity Basketball Team defeated the Lady Engineers of Estill County 63-47 on Monday night in the Conkin Gymnasium.

Beria started very strong with a 21-6 lead at the end of the first quarter and 36-20 lead at the half, but the Lady Engineers rallied back in the second half, outscoring the Lady Pirates 27-25 in the third and fourth quarters.

Even after the late surge, Beria held onto the lead for the win.

The Lady Pirates were led in scoring by seventh grader Jordan Sandefur, who finished the evening with 26 points.

Junior Chase Fain followed with 13 points. Eighth grader Alexandria

Horn and sophomore Victoria Sexton each finished with 10 points.

"I thought we played very well as a team. I can't wait to see what the season brings," said junior Emily Keyser.

Junior class attends career fair at Eastern Kentucky University, learns about professions and career options

by Olivia Jacobs

On Thursday, Nov. 29, Beria Community School juniors attended a career fair at Eastern Kentucky University.

The fair included a number of guest speakers who highlighted different fields, the careers available in those fields, and the educational requirements for the field.

Career fields included, but were not limited to, arts and humanities, communications, engineering, health, journalism, science and math, manufacturing, and military.

"I think it's a great opportunity for students to be exposed to careers and begin thinking about their future vocation," said Mr. Eef Fontanez, who coordinated Beria's involvement in the career fair.

The junior class spent the day exploring the different careers by attending three sessions with presentations by the guest speakers. Each presentation was followed by a brief time for students to ask questions.

Junior Hannah Crowe said, "The Arts and Humanities presentation was

by Ellie Hogg

On Thursday, Nov. 29, the BCMS Boys' Basketball Team lost to Caudill Middle School in both the seventh and eighth grade games.

The eighth grade team lost 20-36, making their current season record 0-8.

"We should've won," said Assistant Coach Corey Lilly. "They have to [start to] buy into a game. Being 'coachable' is something that we've been emphasizing a lot lately."

The seventh grade team lost 22-34, making their current season record 2-6.

"I think we gave it up at the end and we didn't play well enough [on] defense. We let them in-bound the ball and we were trailing at the end of the game," said seventh grader Clay Beavin. "It was one of our better games, though. It was one of the weaker teams that we played."

The sixth grade team did not play on Nov. 29. Their current season record is 4-0.

The next BCMS boys' basketball home game will be Tuesday, Dec. 11 at 5:30 p.m. for sixth grade, 6:30 p.m. for seventh grade, and 7:30 p.m. for eighth grade.

draw." The Onsite Colored Pencil participants had to draw a heap of stuffed animals.

The Onsite Acrylic subject was also a challenging subject: a pile of laundry. Olivia Jacobs, who placed second, said that a pile of objects is used because the artists sit in a circle around the subject while they paint it, so it must be "presentational from any perspective."

Next week, Monday is antler day, and students are invited to dress as reindeer. Tuesday is holiday character day, when students are to dress as Frosty, Rudolph, or maybe Old Saint Nick himself. Wednesday is holiday sock day, Thursday is Christmas pajama day, and Friday is nose and bows day, when students can wear Rudolph noses and bows.

The following three days are to be announced.

In addition to the dress up days, there will be a door decorating contest for teachers. Student judges will determine the first, second, and third place winners. There will also be a middle school and high school locker decorating contest, which will be judged by teachers.

To add to the festivities, a pickle ornament will be hidden in the school on Monday, Dec. 17, and the student who finds it will be given an award.

Movie Review

Breaking Dawn: Part 2 is best film in series, though that doesn't say very much

by William Spencer

The second installment of the Twilight finale wows fans and disappoints critics as well as those who have never been avid Twilight fans since it is a sluggishly paced film.

The lack of action and plot complexity in Breaking Dawn: Part 2 did not stop true Twilight fans from loving it as most reacted positively while almost every reviewer had nothing nice to say about this bland closer.

The plot, if you can call it that, starts off where Part 1 ends with the transformation of Bella into a sparkly vampire.

After Bella wakes up from her transformation and gets her "thirst" under control, she finds that her half-human half-vampire child, Renesmee, is well but growing at an alarming rate.

When the Volturi (evil Italian vampires) accidentally mistake Renesmee for an "immortal child," a pure vampire child, Bella's family of vampires is marked for death by the Volturi because they consider creating an immortal child a crime.

Breaking Dawn Part 2 is at best just a straight film representation of its novel counterpart making no attempt to become anything more than just another chance for Taylor Lautner to take off his shirt.

Out of the series this installment was the best; however, that only means that this stinker was mediocre at best coming in dead last behind other fall blockbusters such as Life of Pi and Skyfall.

For all the film's drawbacks,

Breaking Dawn: Part 2 is still an accurate and fulfilling conclusion to the Twilight series and in the end that is really all the fans of Twilight could ask for and expect of it.

For these reasons I give this film two and a half out five stars for successfully bringing the series to a close but failing to be entertaining to anyone outside of its thinning fan base.

ABSOLUTE Auction

of Mr. Tommy Mullins'
 100 Acre Farm More or Less & Doublewide
 Saturday, December 15th at 10:00 a.m.
 1797 Lake Linville Road, Mt. Vernon, KY
 Lake Linville - Renfro Valley section of Rockcastle County

Location: Turn off of Hwy 25 in Renfro Valley (beside the Historic Renfro Valley Lodge) onto Lake Linville Road (Hwy 2793). Follow Lake Linville Road 2 miles to the Boat Dock. Turn right at the Boat Dock and go approx. 600 feet to the property.

Mr. Tommy Mullins has decided to retire from farming and has chosen the auction method to liquidate this well located farm.

This farm will be offered in its entirety and contains 100 acres more or less. It will be selling by the boundary deed description.

The property is improved with a 24 x 48 doublewide mobile home that features 3 bedrooms, 2 baths, living room, kitchen and utility room. Other amenities include: city water and gas heat. Additional improvements: 3 barns in need of repair.

AUCTIONEER'S NOTE: This farm adjoins I-75 on one side and overlooks beautiful Lake Linville on the other side. Even though this farm is well suited for cattle and hay farming, it has development potential being so strategically located near Exit 62 of I-75 and near the Boat Dock. City water is available and sewer is nearby.

NOTE: There is a billboard sign on the property that could be rented out for a steady income.

TERMS: 20% down the day of the sale, balance within 30 days.

Chiropractic Health Solutions Makes Donation

Chiropractic Health Solutions hosted a Ladies' Night at their 1048 Ace Drive, Berea office last week, and during the evening Dr. Brenda Huser-Taylor presented a check in the amount of $250.00 to Lori Sliwa, Executive Director of the New Opportunity School for Women. Sliwa indicated that this donation would cover the entire cost of books for one student. "We feel it is so important to support our community. We chose to provide financial support and a platform for the New Opportunity School for Women to speak with our Ladies' Night attendees to share information about their worthwhile program," said Dr. Brenda Huser-Taylor. Ladies' Night was a first-time event for Chiropractic Health Solutions that brought 12 local vendors and many women in the community together to learn about services offered, and enjoy a fun, social evening together. Attendees shopped the event and supported the women who represented their products, and all attendees were invited to the New Opportunity School for Women information table to learn more about their services and how they can help the organization fulfill its mission. Chiropractic Health Solutions was established in 2005 and offers comprehensive chiropractic care, providing effective pain relief when needed as well as preventive chiropractic care to children and adults. Offices are located at 1048 Ace Drive in Berea, and 35 Hwy 290 in McKee. Visit their website at www.chiropractichealthsolutions.org or call 859-985-0606 for more information.

Human Rights Commission Looks to Fill Three Vacancies

By Beth Myers
Citizen Editor

Members of the Berea Human Rights Commission discussed both their need for new members and their ambition of creating a type of "State of Discrimination" report at their meeting on Monday night, as suggested by Mayor Steve Connelly. There are currently only four members on the HRC, three short of the seven required by city ordinance.

When Connelly first appointed people to the commission in November 2011, he picked Chad Hembree and Jonathan Schinhofen for one year terms, Tim Hampton and Jeanne Gregory for two year terms and Mae Suramek, Lisa Vaughn and Paula Dunson-Woods for three year terms. Since that appointment, Hampton and Gregory have resigned, and Schinhofen elected to not seek another term after his year was completed. Hembree, who was serving as co-chair, stepped down after his election to Berea City Council. Bryan Thompson has been the only appointment since then.

The mayor mentioned at the meeting that there needed to be diversity and broad representation of the community sitting on the commission. He is pursuing getting a representative from the business community, and would also like to have a representative from the housing side of things. As the commission members were talking about recommendations of people who could serve on the commission, Connelly said, "I have a list as long as up to my elbow of advocates who want to serve. But we need a broader representation."

Three members of Bereans for Fairness – a group that is trying to get the Fairness Ordinance added on to the Berea Commission's standard ordinance – were present at the Human Rights Commission meeting. The Fairness Ordinance would add sexual orientation on as a protected class in issues of housing, employment and benefits; a class not covered federally or by state statute. The Berea local government would be responsible for enforcement.

The Commission, which has now been meeting for one year, has elected to meet every first Monday of the month. They have spent, according to earlier reports to Berea City Council, much of their first year setting up their infrastructure and doing some outreach to the community.

Vaughn and Suramek discussed the process of filing their first complaint through the commission, a case that involved discrimination in employment on sex and sexual orientation.

Since sexual orientation is not a protected class, the complaint was filed under the gender discrimination. However, after the filing, the person decided to not pursue it since they had been hired in another position and wished to get on with their life.

"I want to say how appreciative I was for the help and guidance from the Kentucky Human Rights Commission,"

Vaughn said, when speaking of how they guided her through the filing process.

Juan Pena, a field supervisor from the Kentucky HRC, was presented at the Berea meeting. He stated at one point that he was still hoping that the sexual orientation class would be added to the standard charge of the Berea Commission, since that was the area where they saw the most discrimination in the state.

The four members of the Berea HRC spent some time discussing the State of Discrimination, and how they would gather data and reports from the community. They stressed that a multi-faceted approach would be necessary to gather information from all parts of the community, and Vaughn expressed her desire to have experts in data analysis and public surveying speak to the commission, and guide them through their first steps.

The Berea Human Rights Commission is currently working on a website, that hopefully will be launched in a few months.

Stay Warm All Winter With A Natural Gas Furnace

Natural gas heat brings your family together in total comfort. When the outside temperature falls, electric heat pumps struggle while natural gas furnaces bring a steady flow of warm air. Over half the homes in the nation are heated with natural gas, and natural gas is gaining in popularity every year.

There are several good reasons for this, starting with dependability. The natural gas pipeline system ensures the safe and reliable delivery of energy to your home. It's comforting, in more ways than one, to know you and your loved ones can depend on natural gas.

Natural gas makes a house feel like a home with warm, comfortable heat no matter how cold it is outside. When it comes to value, natural gas is clearly the choice. Natural gas is also the cleanest fossil fuel. With the need to reduce the amount of pollutants being emitted into the air and water, natural gas is better for the environment than other sources of energy.

You're probably doing your part. Bundling newspapers, saving gasoline, recycling glass and more. You are concerned about costs and saving our earth's valuable resources. Using natural gas helps to conserve our natural resources for future generations. It's interesting to note that most of the new electric generation projects being planned in the U.S. will be powered by natural gas. It's an available and abundant fuel that takes a vital place in our society today... and in the future.

So the next time you want to heat things up choose natural gas. For this and generations to come.

A glowing tribute to a community that cares!

During the holiday season, our thoughts turn to sharing with those who are less fortunate. A $15* minimum donation – will recognize a special person at our tree lighting ceremony, in an ad in the Berea Citizen and on an ornament displayed in the front lobby of the hospital. It also provides much needed financial assistance to our patients and families that cannot afford medical care. Lights will remain lit in recognition of your loved ones until January 1, 2013.

Lighting Ceremony will be Friday, December 7th at 7 pm on the Hospital's front lawn. Refreshments will be provided in the front lobby after the event.

Please share this season and send in form below with your donations to:

"Pinkalicious" Latest Effort for Team Dawna

By Beth Myers
Citizen Editor

For many Bereans, grief, loss and concern for loved ones have led to efforts to honor that person or undertake some way to show support and love. The latest example of that is Team Dawna, a group created when local resident Dawna Gilliam developed breast cancer. One of her close friends, Erica Carpenter, decided she needed to do something to support Dawna.

"I felt so helpless when we first heard," Carpenter said. "I wanted to do something for her; she's my very best friend in the whole world."

Dawna, a secretary at Farristown Middle, has also received support from Madison Southern, where her husband David is principal, and Shannon Johnson, where she used to work with Carpenter. All three schools have worked to honor her health struggle through Team Dawna, and the money raised now is going to Saint Joseph Berea Breast Cancer Foundation in her name. Carpenter had been contacted by the hospital to see if they would assist in raising funds for a new mammography machine.

The latest fundraising event was initiated by former Madison Southern drama teacher, Kathie Bettler, who donated the time and efforts of her Spotlight Acting School to perform Pinkalicious this past Sunday. All ticket proceeds were donated to Saint Joseph Berea through Team Dawna, and they raised $600.

"I always like to think of something we can do every year to give back to the community," Bettler said of her Acting School.

Bettler used five college students in the production of Pinkalicious who donated their time, and she paid the production costs. Around 125 people attended the performance, many of them, Carpenter said, little girls wearing pink tutus.

Team Dawna was created at the beginning of the summer, when Dawna was diagnosed, and the first event they participated in was the race Tracks for Packs.

Several other people have stepped up to fundraise as well, including the ROTC that raised $250 and Austin Sipple from Madison Southern Football who helped raise $500 through the sale of t-shirts.

Dawna, to the relief and gratitude of many, has completed her treatments and is doing well. But her advocacy as a cancer survivor, along with the support and efforts of Team Dawna and her school community, will most likely continue on.

Word From Berea Streets

"What is your favorite Christmas movie and your favorite Christmas carol?"

Andrea Lurty of Berea said, "My favorite Christmas movie is The Grinch, with Jim Carrey. We watch it every year, because it's so funny. I think Jingle Bells is my favorite Christmas song."

Jimmy Lou Jackson of Berea said, "My favorite Christmas show is It's a Wonderful Life with Jimmy Stewart. I like it best because it shows the impact that just one life can make on a whole community. I love all the Christmas songs, but my favorite would have to be I'll Be Home For Christmas."

Joyce Fields of Berea said, "I love Rudolph the Red Nose Reindeer cartoon. I watch it with the kids each year. My favorite Christmas carol is Green Sleeves."

Brain Damage Major Concern for High School Football

Jonathan Schinhofen, EKU Graduate Student in Mental Health Counseling

Every Friday night in autumn, all across the country, thousands of parents, friends, teachers and classmates gather together to cheer their local football heroes -- and possibly watch them suffer brain damage on the football field.

This harsh assessment may sound like an exaggeration, but recent research is proving this to be undeniable and inevitable.

Football, whether it be sandlot football or professional, is a rough sport. Every limb, joint, and mass of cartilage is subject to a more brutal pounding than most people can stand. Traditionally, these risks have been considered part of the bargain. No guts, no glory. They have also been considered acceptable to some extent because rarely was there any obvious permanent injury. All of that has changed in the past decade.

In 2002, a trickle of reports that retired football players were suffering from chronic traumatic encephalopathy (CTE) turned quickly into a flood. CTE is a degenerative disease of the brain caused by head trauma. It resembles in many ways Alzheimer's disease and Parkinson's disease.

The high school football community did not generally consider these results alarming, as the diagnosed cases were in professional football players who had long since retired. Then a case was found in a player who died during his career. Amateur adult athletes were shown to have had it. Then a case was diagnosed in a college football player. High school football was appearing to be less and less safe.

Today, there can be no doubt that high school football poses a serious risk of permanent cognitive damage even to those who never move on to college or professional football. In 2010, a group of researchers from Purdue put instruments in the helmets of high school football players and measured every hit they took during practices and in games. Cognitive testing and functional magnetic resonance imaging of the athletes' brains showed measurable declines in memory-related tasks during the season.

A recent study of the brains of athletes who received blows to the head throughout their lives found evidence of CTE in 80% of them. The subjects ranged in age from 17 years old to 98 years old. Comparisons to brains from individuals of similar ages with no history of head injury made it clear that football players are at risk of permanent cognitive damage regardless of the level at which they play.

Even more damning is evidence that permanent injury can occur even if there is no clinical evidence of a concussion. These sub-concussive hits over the course of a football season can actually cause more damage than one big hit resulting in an obvious concussion. Players who never even feel the impact of a hit to the head can still become impaired in the long run.

Equipment is developed and rule changes are introduced to try to make the game safer. Whether these are going to address the underlying issues, however, is questionable. The hits in question happen on every play of every game. No one hit is to blame, and evidence of an injury surfaces only when it is too late.

In 1905, 19 athletes died playing college football. Changes to the rules were introduced in the hopes of making the game safer. A century later, we are still trying to make the game safer. In the light of new discoveries, however, we have to ask ourselves if it can ever be made safe enough.

Rain Ended Short-Term Water Crisis, Not Long-Term Concerns

By Beth Myers
Citizen Editor

The steady rain that Berea received last weekend took the town out of its immediate water crisis, but Owsley Fork reservoir is still not as full as it should be for this time of year, according to Berea Utilities Director Ed Fortner.

"You could say we went from Code Red to Code Orange," Fortner joked.

Bereans were encouraged at the last city council meeting to conserve water any way they could, since Owsley Fork was down 12 feet. If it had hit 13 feet, the utilities workers would have stopped pumping and started using the reservoir they keep in reserve.

It was incorrectly reported in the Citizen last week that city workers would start pumping at 13 feet.

The rain received over the weekend ended up putting four more feet of water in Owsley Fork, a much needed increase.

"It was a good rain for us," Fortner said, "nice, slow and steady. It took us out of the short-term crisis, but we're still asking for voluntary conservation. We've never actually moved from asking for voluntary conservation since the summer."

During the winter, according to Fortner, is the time when the reservoirs need to recharge for the upcoming seasons when water usage is much higher. By the spring, it needs to be completely full.

Taking care of this year's water crisis, however, does not solve the longer-term problem of having enough raw water volume to serve the city's needs. During this past election cycle, different Bereans running for city council remarked on the water problem of Berea. The plan in the past has been to create a new reservoir in Upper Owsley Fork. That long-term plan has changed, because of another problem that has

Supporting Causes for Christmas

Fruitcake, fuzzy socks, ties, aftershave. Have you ever gifted something like this when you can't decide what to give someone? This weekend, you can have an opportunity to give gifts that reflect the true meaning of Christmas. Berea's Eighth Annual Christmas With a Conscience (also known as the Alternative Giving Christmas Market) is coming up this Sunday, Dec. 16, from 11 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. at St. Clare Catholic Church's Fellowship Hall.

Christmas With a Conscience was started by a group of parishioners from Union Church and St. Clare's Catholic Church whose goal was to create a fun environment where Christmas shoppers could make gifts of donations to non-profits.

Gina Chamberlain, who has been involved since the beginning, said, "Something that I always intended to do was to make gifts to organizations that reflected what the recipient cared about. My good intentions were always to do that, but I never got around to it. So this was designed to be that 'one-stop-shopping' that allows people to shop around and figure out the best fit between the wishes of the recipient and the focus of the non-profit."

On average, about thirty different non-profit organizations participate in Christmas With a Conscience. Many of them are local groups, such as Paint Lick Clinic, Kentucky Environmental Foundation and Kentuckians for the Common-Factories and other businesses, as well as individuals, donate gifts for the event. Fire department personnel went shopping Wednesday for the gifts that still remained on the children's wish lists.

For 25 Years, Firefighters Bring Christmas to Kids

By Beth Myers

The firefighters of Berea were busy playing Santa Claus this week, unloading gifts, checking through wish lists twice and shopping for any items still needed. Unlike Santa, however, they weren't worried if children were naughty or nice, just if they were in need of having their Christmas wishes for presents come true.

"We try to help as many as we can," Berea Fire Chief Roy Curtis said. "Sometimes we can't get all that's on their lists, but we try our best."

The fire department works through the family resource centers in the elementary schools in Berea to find out which families to help out. The children make wish lists of the presents they want to get, and the fire department works

WorkGroup Focuses on Energy Efficiency

By Christie Green
Citizen Reporter

This is the final in a series of articles on the plans of small Berea groups that were formed after the economic development consultant worked with the city for a year. Called B.E.A.T. (Berea Economic Advancement Team), these groups are working on such issues as local food sustainability, tourism and energy efficiency.

All BEAT participants learned about economic leakage during the public meetings in fall 2011 and spring 2012. Leakage, in layman's terms, refers to the money that exits an economy rather than staying within it. According to the Energy Efficiency group draft plan submitted in May, "utility expenditures represent a form of leakage (because) much of the money Bereans pay for electricity leaves the city and does not return."

The Energy Efficiency group decided early on to focus their efforts toward promoting an on-bill financing program through Berea Municipal Utilities. "It really did raise itself up as a priority for us fairly quickly," said Josh Bills, a member of the work group and also Chairman of the Berea Utilities Advisory Board, or BUAB.

Berea Municipal Utilities does not generate its own electricity but must instead purchase it; nearly 80 percent of expenditures go toward buying the energy that Bereans consume. Bills explained that, by implementing system-wide energy efficiency programs, a utility can reduce both overall consumption and peak demand. This in turn reduces the costs for that utility to purchase power.

Reducing energy consumption also has benefits for the consumer. For small businesses, Bills said, "It improves operating expenses and reduces overhead. It also generates jobs, such as those trained to conduct energy audits and contractors to carry out the building improvements."

On-bill financing is a mechanism that lets individuals or small businesses pay for energy efficiency improvements over time. On-bill financing is gaining momentum across the United States as a cost effective way to decrease energy consumption in a community, improve building comfort and reduce utility bills. Although open to any utility customer, on-bill financing extends opportunities for home or business energy upgrades to those who might not have access to traditional home improvement loans. The efficiency upgrades often result in an overall lower monthly utility bill. On average, cus-

As Promised...Recipes

Scenter Stage

Teresa Scenters, Publisher

A couple of weeks ago I promised to share a recipe if it was accepted well by the women in our family. Well, I'm pleased to report the Polar Express Hot Chocolate that Kelsey gave me the instructions for has now been deemed Liquid Fudge by my grand-niece Aubrey.

That name alone would indicate it was indeed a hit. As with most treats during the Christmas season that particular hot chocolate recipe however, is probably not going to land on a list of low calorie concoctions.

So here's the recipe for a billion calories in a cup,

- 1 and 1/2 cups of heavy cream
- 1 can of sweetened condensed milk (14 oz)
- 2 cups of bittersweet chocolate chips
- 6 cups of milk
- 1 teaspoon of pure vanilla extract.

In a large pot over low heat, combine all the above ingredients. Stir regularly for 30 to 40 minutes until chocolate is fully melted and incorporated with other ingredients.

Or you can put everything in a crock pot for a few hours and get the same result.

It's time to get started with the candy making too. Today, as clear as it is, would be perfect for turning out some Seafoam and pull candy. Both of which I've almost given up on. I need to call Mom and coax her into working on that project.

When my sisters and I were growing up making Pull Candy was a fun time. I remember one year Mamaw Ada was in on the candy making. At the time she was probably younger than I am now. Anyway she must have had a hot-flash or something since she went outside with a handful of the hot taffy. The look on her face when it went completely brittle as it hit the cold air was priceless. Good times.

Another of my favorite Christmas treats was the Orange Slice Cake she always baked. Even though I follow her recipe to the letter I can never get one to come out quite the same as she did.

In case you'd like to try it, here is that recipe.

- 1 cup butter, softened
- 2 cups white sugar
- 4 eggs
- 1/2 cup buttermilk
- 1 teaspoon baking soda

- 3 1/2 cups all-purpose flour
- 1 pound dates, pitted and chopped
- 1 pound orange slices candy, chopped
- 2 cups chopped pecans
- 1 1/3 cups shredded coconut
- 1 cup orange juice
- 2 cups confectioners sugar

Preheat oven to 250. Lightly grease and flour a 10 inch tube pan.

In a mixing bowl, cream butter and sugar until smooth. Add eggs one at a time, beating well after each. Dissolve baking soda in buttermilk and add to the creamed mixture.

Place flour in a large bowl and add dates, orange slices, and nuts then stir. Add flour mixture and coconut to creamed mixture. The dough will be very stiff.

Pour batter into the tube pan. Bake for 2 1/2 to 3 hours. As soon as cake comes out of the oven, combine the orange juice and confectioners sugar and pour over hot cake. Let stand in pan overnight.

The love she put in it isn't listed among the ingredients, but I have no doubt it's the one that made the cake so special.

Memories of Mt. Vernon

Letters from Berea

Beth Myers Editor

This past Thursday, I attended the Christmas show at Renfro Valley. The marketing department had a "media day" where they were offering area media a free dinner and show in the Valley. I'm always up for the free dinner and show event, so I, Jonathan, Sheri and Clint all piled in our vehicle and headed down to Mt. Vernon.

It's always a bit nostalgic for me to go to Mt. Vernon. As close as it is, you'd think I would get there a lot more often, but I don't seem to head south that often, except when traveling out of state. But Mt. Vernon was the first place I lived when I moved to Kentucky as a volunteer for Christian Appalachian Project, so all my early memories of Kentucky took place there.

Jonathan and I lived in what was then the volunteer house at the top of the hill -- what used to be the motel. I worked at the CAP Child Development Center in Berea, and he worked at the teen center in Mt. Vernon. Neither one are there anymore. The best sunsets took place on that hill. When I was looking at my old journals, one of my entries in that first week stated that "coming to Kentucky felt like coming home." I felt comfortable here in a way that I never felt in Mississippi or Virginia, the other two states I had lived in.

I eventually moved to volunteer at the spouse abuse shelter, and I still remember Anita Seals interviewing me for that volunteer position. At one point, she looked at me rather suspiciously and said that she had used CAP volunteers before, and it hadn't always been a great experience.

"You aren't one of those tree huggers, are you?" she asked, to which I burst out laughing and assured her that it had been years since I had been overcome by oaks. She was a smart, blunt, Kentucky woman and it's fair to say I liked her immediately. If they grew the women like this out here, I thought at that point, then I would definitely like this place.

However, in the 17 years that I've lived here, I've never been to a show at Renfro Valley. I wasn't sure if I would like it or not, since I'm not a huge fan of country music. But if there's one thing I've learned since moving to Kentucky, it's that music here blends a lot of different types and can be difficult to categorize. So I thought it was worth a shot.

Jonathan and I were both surprised with how much we enjoyed the performance. We were some of the youngest people there, with the Berea Senior Center taking their field trip at the same time. The singers were very talented and I thought Pete Stamper was excellent. It was fun, and I even ended up buying a CD.

So I added on one more fond, Kentucky memory, to all the other fond ones of my adopted home.

Be Careful About Fairness Demands

Dear Editor:

I am concerned and perhaps saddened that the Christians who turned out in large numbers earlier in the year saying they were in opposition to a so-called "fairness ordinance" have since -- by their unwillingness to run for office as well as how they voted in the council election -- showed a kind of hypocrisy in what they said coming in mass to city hall, and then not following up meeting after meeting with city council.

I am also concerned and perhaps saddened by things I hear from the LGBT community. Over and over I hear complaints that an ordinance is needed to protect members from discrimination, but the discrimination I hear them speak of is derogatory name-calling or an atmosphere of non-acceptance.

No ordinance can change the fact that people with infantile minds will continue to name-call. Nor would it change the fact that under the United States Bill of Rights and Constitution, the guarantee of freedom of speech which allows the LGBT members to speak out also allows those with infantile minds to call them derogatory names. Just as it does not prohibit LGBT members from calling conservative Christian individuals like myself names like homophobe, hypocrite, self-righteous and other names which should not appear in print.

Acceptance is another matter; acceptance is earned, not legislated. A productive employee is retained while one that pushes an agenda negatively affecting customers instead of being productive, is considered expendable by employers. Likewise landlords see the green of the money the LGBT community has; the landlord accepts them because it produces wealth for him/her. I caution those who seek to force a lifestyle upon employers and/or landlords to re-think trying to legislate (force) acceptance.

When the Americans With Disability Act passed federally, there were numerous individuals with disabilities working in the building where I spent my working career. Following passage, some individuals who had functioned at an acceptable level began making demands, the legislation allowed them to. As a result my employer, the Commonwealth of Kentucky, began, perhaps unconsciously, not making new hires with disabilities in the numbers. I believe it was because of feared lawsuits and/or costs to accommodate.

Walter Williams, of whom I am a big fan, made the statement in his "A Minority View" saying, "Discrimination is simply the act of choice. Whenever we choose, we discriminate. When we choose one person for a mate, we discriminate, we discriminate most of the time by race and sex. Would we want a society in which there are penalties for such discrimination?"

He went on to say that when he asked students whether upon graduation they will give every employer an equal opportunity to hire them regardless of what the job entails or pays they said, "No." That is discrimination toward the employers that cannot afford higher wages or easier and nicer type work.

Be careful what you demand in life. It frequently backfires resulting in the opposite of what we try to force others to provide us.

Stand up for Fairness With Pensions

Dear Editor,

For 27 years, I served as an employee in the Lexington 911 Center.

Throughout my career, with each paycheck, I faithfully contributed to my pension. My pension was a benefit promised to me by my employer, the City of Lexington, administered through the state of Kentucky.

While I lived up to my obligation, the state legislature failed to do so. Year after year, the legislature failed to put in its required amount. Money that was supposed to go toward pension benefits was diverted to other uses.

The Kentucky Retirement Systems is in financial peril, especially the largest fund, the Kentucky Employees Retirement System non-hazardous fund. Its assets are dangerously low in comparison to its long-term obligations. This is the umbrella system for my CERS retirement.

As a result, our pension fund has been called one of the worst financed in the nation. I am deeply concerned about my benefits and those of thousands of other public servants.

Legislative neglect created this crisis. The General Assembly must act now to avert a financial disaster.

The General Assembly should begin providing the full contribution to the pension fund starting in Fiscal Year 2014-15, as recommended by the Kentucky Public Pensions Task Force.

We ask for all Madison Countians to stand up for fairness. Support your government employees and retirees and add your voice to the call for action by the General Assembly.

Thank you for your concern.

tomers of on-bill financing see savings of about 10 percent.

A typical process for on-bill financing begins with an energy audit for the home or business. If that energy audit identifies improvements that can save more money on average per month than the cost to finance those improvements, then the customer qualifies for on-bill financing. Programs often require that applicants be in good standing with the utility company and have no unpaid bills over the past twelve months. The cost of the improvements is usually tied to the meter, rather than the customer. This means that if a person moves or sells, the repayment obligation falls to the next occupant.

Bills pointed out that "the bottom line is savings on the electric bill plus a more comfortable home or business."

Bills explained that MACED is currently completing a two-year pilot of on-bill financing with four different energy cooperatives in Kentucky. The project, which will wrap up in early 2013, tested the effectiveness and feasibility of on-bill financing with Jackson Energy, Fleming-Mason Energy, Grayson Energy, and Big Sandy Energy – all cooperatives that served distressed Appalachian counties.

The BEAT Energy Efficiency group plans to use MACED's pilot results to inform its recommendations to the city. However, both Bills and Mayor Steve Connelly acknowledge that there is some resistance to on-bill financing with the local utility.

"Berea Municipal Utilities is a relatively new entity, having only been in existence since 2005," said Bills. "There's interest there, but it may not yet be the appropriate time to embark on a project of this type."

There are still some questions about how well the model would work for a small local utility and concerns about the risk that the utility could lose money if customers couldn't keep up with payments.

"Because it is a fairly recent acquisition for the city, balancing the revenue stream with costs is very important," said Mayor Connelly.

However, on-bill financing is also included as a recommendation in the Berea Energy Cost Savings Plan, or BECS, which was adopted by the city council in September 2012.

"There are several parallel initiatives going on right now. There is a lot of community interest in energy efficiency and on-bill financing," said Bills. "This was envisioned as an energy efficiency program that could be implemented as a partnership with other organizations."

The Energy Efficiency group sees organizations like MACED and Home Energy Partners as important contributors to the success of an on-bill financing program in Berea.

Others contributing to the Energy Efficiency work group include Steve Boyce, Steve Wilkins, Vonda Poynter and Gina Chamberlain. Although the group has not met since the early summer, they submitted a strong plan at the last BEAT meeting with consultant Michael Shuman in May and are prepared to make further recommendations, based on the results of MACED's pilot project, to the city in the coming spring. Bills explained that the group wants to have good data to share before making a pitch to the city.

"We want to carefully consider what types of on-bill financing would pan out for our community," he said.

their hardest to get everything on the list. Their fall golf scramble raises money for the present drive, and they also use private donations from individuals as well as proceeds from the soft drink machines in the Berea city buildings.

On Monday, different firefighters unloaded the toys and gifts that had already been donated by factories and other businesses. Whatever items still remained on the wish list after all the donated items were considered were purchased by the firefighters on Wednesday, when they traveled down to the Berea Walmart. Firefighters then split up with carts and lists of gifts for different families, and went off to purchase what they could find.

According to Curtis, they will be buying presents for 108 children in Berea. Lieutenant Jake Lake has been spearheading the event for the past couple of years.

The Berea firefighters have been doing this for 25 years. At first they picked a few families, and helped them with meals, food and clothing. But after receiving assistance from Toys for Tots for a couple of years, they decided they could help more children by buying presents for them at Christmas.

"We enjoy doing it," Curtis said, "and helping out where we can."

arisen.

The NREC, National Resources Conservation District, has categorized the Owsley Fork dam as high hazard status, because of the people who have built homes around the dam in the last several years. Around 20 homes would be directly impacted if something happened to the dam, resulting in the high hazard status. Because of this, Berea Municipal Utilities personnel are checking out new designs for the dam, with higher flood walls, that would take the dam out of high hazard status as well as almost double the amount of water that can be held in the Owsley Fork reservoir. Currently, the reservoir holds around 650 million gallons of water; the improvements would take it to a billion. With this type of improvement to the current dam, there would be no need to build the new Upper Owsley Fork reservoir and it may also turn out cheaper in the long run.

The main thing Fortner and his staff are involved with now is researching for funds to assist in paying for this reconstruction, which could cost millions of dollars. There may be some money from the NREC, but that is still being checked into. Best case scenario, Fortner said, would be to start on the project in 3 - 5 years.

Officers arrested Jeffery Anglin, 29, of Berea and charged him with first degree DUI and possession of drug paraphernalia.

On December 8, an officer conducted a traffic stop on Prospect Street. The officer detected the smell of alcohol, and the driver said he had been drinking. He also said he smoked marijuana before he was stopped.

After a short investigation, officers determined he was under the influence. They arrested Kevin Burrus, 24, of Berea. He was charged with first degree DUI and other traffic offenses.

Concealed Weapon Arrest

On December 7, officers got a call about a man walking down the street with a large machete. Officers located him on Prospect Street and found a concealed machete under his jacket.

They arrested Nathan Metzger, 33, of Nicholasville and charged him with carrying a concealed deadly weapon.

Alcohol Intoxication Arrest

On December 8, an officer saw a woman sitting on the ground crying near the intersection of Prospect and Chestnut Street. She smelled like alcohol and almost fell down several times while talking to the officer.

She was identified as Tamera Pacheco, 40, of Berea and was arrested and charged with alcohol intoxication.

Disorderly Conduct Arrest

On December 9, officers were called to a disturbance in the 100 block of Jason Circle. They saw a woman in the street who told them she was involved in argument with a man. The officers began to investigate, and the woman became upset and began yelling. Officers attempted to calm her down but she would not cooperate and continued to yell.

Officers arrested Monica McWhorter, 22, of Berea and charged her with disorderly conduct.

New Coach, New Leaders for Berea Pirates

Sheri Patterson/The Citizen

New Berea Community men's basketball coach Cameron Jackson talks to senior player Eli Woodie on the sidelines during the game Tuesday night against Eminence. Jackson came to replace Bill Smallwood this year, who retired. He was head coach of the Campbellsville Lady Eagles.

By Jonathan Schinhofen
Citizen Sports Reporter

There are lots of big shoes to fill in the Berea Community High School Pirates basketball program this season. The team lost a handful of key players who were seniors last year, and long-time coach Bill Smallwood has moved on as well. Seniors Daniel Hubbard, Eli Woodie, and Nolan Sweet will be expected to step up their games this year. At head coach, the Pirates have brought in Cameron Jackson, formerly head coach of the Campbellsville Lady Eagles.

At Campbellsville, Jackson inherited a team that had won barely 11 percent of its games over the previous 6 seasons. His 27-88 record over four years was a huge improvement for Campbellsville. Before Campbellsville, Jackson was coach of a Paul Laurence Dunbar freshman boys team that posted a record of 24-6 and was ranked sixth in the state.

Jackson said that he was left with "great kids and a great program," and is confident that he can continue offering a strong basketball program.

There is always a period of adjustment with a new head coach, and each year high school teams have to cope with the loss of their seniors. After Tuesday night's 82-51 loss to Eminence, it was clear that this season's team is still rough around the edges. At times, the offense was passing the ball well, getting it inside to Daniel Hubbard and taking shots from the perimeter when Hubbard could not shoot. But they were not accurate, sinking just 18 of 47 shots from the field.

On defense, there were times that Berea's signature tough play inside was on display, yet they failed to come up with many defensive rebounds and allowed too many uncontested shots from the outside.

Still, the elements of good team play were there, and the errors committed by Berea players tended to be errors of execution rather than mental mistakes. In other words, Jackson does not need to teach them basketball fundamentals. The players just need to get more comfortable with each other and take better shots when they have the opportunity.

As always, the key is getting ready for the postseason. In Berea's district, one win in the playoffs is enough to send the team to regional play. That means being ready to play Madison Southern, Model, and Madison Central in February.

The Pirates' first taste of district play will be on January 4, when they host Model at 7:30 p.m. On January 11, they host Madison Southern at 7:30 p.m. On January 16, they meet Model in the 11th Region All A Classic. The Pirates do not face Madison Central in the regular season.

Hubbard Selected for KY/TN All-Star Game

Berea Community High School offensive lineman Daniel Hubbard has been selected to participate in the 6th Annual "Border Bowl" Senior All-Star game featuring the top high school football players in Kentucky and Tennessee. Hubbard, a 6' 6", 310 lb senior, was selected as one of the top 10 offensive linemen in Kentucky by the Border Bowl Committee and will be a member of the blue squad as they attempt to return the Border Bowl trophy to the Commonwealth.

Hubbard anchored both the offensive and defensive lines for the Pirates during the 2012 season and served as a team captain. Defensively, Hubbard racked up 68 total tackles this season—including 25 solo tackles. He also had 5 sacks, 2 blocked kicks and 2 fumble recoveries. Hubbard's leadership on the offensive line was key to the Pirates' 250 yards of rushing per game this season and he was selected as an All-District player in both the 2011 and 2012 seasons. Hubbard's size and speed have attracted a flurry of recruiting attention this winter from multiple schools, primarily as an offensive lineman.

The "Border Bowl" kicked off in 2008 as a non-profit organization established to promote high school football in Kentucky and Tennessee. The objective of the Bowl is to provide an All-Star game featuring the top players in Kentucky and Tennessee and allow players to have the opportunity to practice and play with some of the top talent in the states. It also allows high school seniors an opportunity to gain exposure and possible college scholarship opportunities. All players were nominated by their high school coaches and the team selection is made by a well-respected state-wide committee of coaches as well as Border Bowl founders.

This year's game will take place on Saturday, January 12, 2013 at 12:30 p.m. at James H Taylor Stadium on the campus of the University of the Cumberlands. The Tennessee squad pulled out a 24-10 victory over Kentucky in last year's game, moving the orange squad to a 4-1 lead in the series. The National Guard is the primary sponsor of the KY-TN Border Bowl.

Bees Finish as Runners-Up

The Berea Bees 10U AAU basketball team finished as runners-up in the "War on the Floor" Tournament held at Kirksville Elementary School December 8-9.

Team members are, kneeling, Autumn Griffith, then middle row (l-r) Samantha Cornelison, Deidre Caudill, Sonni Walters, Peyton Griffith and Kennadi Story; standing, are Selicity Broaddus, Casey Coleman, Ravyn Bullens, Hallie Harrison and Kayla Pigg. The Bees are coached by Jeff Cornelison, Keith Harrison and Debbie Coleman.

The Berea Community Pirates basketball family lost an integral member on Tuesday, Dec. 4. Burt Gadd served as official clock keeper, team bus driver, and stalwart fan for over 30 years. In honor of his contributions over the years, Burt's family was presented with a basketball signed by the players and the players will wear a black patch on their home uniforms for the remainder of the season. Fans and players observed a moment of silence before Tuesday night's game in remembrance of Burt.

wealth. There are also state, national and international non-profits that local individuals represent. Each organization brings displays and information, and visitors can "shop" for the non-profit whose mission suits their interests. Typically, a single non-profit processes the gifts, enabling a giver to write a single check and have the money dispersed among the non-profits of their choice. There is no extra charge for that oversight.

Chamberlain reported that the program has averaged about $7,000 in donations each year. One year, proceeds reached almost $10,000. In recent years, program organizers have combined the non-profit donations with a fundraiser for Berea Faith Community Outreach (BFCO), the umbrella organization for the Berea Food Bank, Bereans United for Utility and Rent Relief (BUURR), and the Frank Gailey Transient Aid Fund. Parishioners donate soup, sweets, and drinks, and the money raised from the sale of these lunch refreshments is donated to BFCO. Last year, lunch sales generated over $500 in additional funds for BFCO.

Betty Hibler, board member and secretary for BFCO, said, "All around, it's a great collaboration. We get so much support from across the community."

"Christmas shopping can be crazy and nerve wracking and crowded," said Chamberlain. "This is a way that you can buy something that reflects what your family and friends are passionate about. Maybe they care about the environment, or healthcare, or children's issues, or housing. You can give them a gift of hope for the future, without the hassle of searching for parking spaces."

joined the service prior to their recognition ceremony later that afternoon.

A steady rain was falling outside, but the inside was filled with light and love. As the service began, a beaming Union Church Pastor Kent Gilbert proclaimed to some 375 people, "What a joyous day this is!" Loud applause echoed throughout the sanctuary signaling agreement from the congregation.

Although founded 159 years ago, the present building that houses Union Church, officially known as Church of Christ, Union, has been a Berea landmark at 200 Prospect Street for 91 years. The Chapel at Union Church is some 30 years old. But age, water and mold problems, and the need to upgrade both space and systems led to the million and a half dollar project that was coordinated by Dave Kobersmith, church administrator.

"With a new high-efficiency heating and cooling system and upgrades of the lighting system to use LED or fluorescent bulbs, we were able to significantly lower our carbon and energy footprint," said Pastor Gilbert.

A system that monitors the building and shuts down heating and lighting when not needed is another cost and energy savings. Pastor Gilbert explained that an important mission of Union Church is to be good stewards of the earth and creation.

Although significant improvements in space were made, the physical footprint of the 39,000 square foot building remains the same. But the church, the community and the college will benefit for years to come from the new fellowship hall and classrooms, renovated lower level restrooms, a new baby nursery, a renovated toddler nursery, a new sprinkler system, reconfigured office space and a thoroughly modernized kitchen. Not all work was complete on Dec. 9, but it should be in about two weeks, according to Pastor Gilbert.

While renovation took place, the congregation met at Gray Auditorium in the Presser Music Building at Berea College.

Pastor Gilbert said, "We are so grateful to the College for the use of this space."

An important symbol of the return home was the return of the cross, the altar Bible and the Peace bell. The procession on Sunday was led by Merlin Kindel, moderator of Union Church, who carried the cross. He was followed by a beaming Colin Perman, age 7, who carried the large Bible. Union church member and mid-year graduate Courtney Matthews held high the peace plaque representing the peace bell that is rung at every service. As worship leader for the day, Matthews rang the peace bell during the service and participated with fellow students in lighting the advent wreath.

The procession also included Pastor Gilbert; Rachel Small Stokes, the new associate pastor; Gail Bowman, the director of Berea College Campus Christian Center; and Lyle D. Rolofs, president of Berea College. Also in the procession was the frock-coated preacher for the day, the Rev. John G. Fee as represented by Obadiah Ewing-Roush of the Kentucky Chautauqua program. His text was excerpted from actual sermons preached by the Rev. Fee.

Finally, a rainbow procession of 68 mid-year graduates entered the building wearing caps and gowns, some individualized with Kinte cloth and other bright stoles. The Rev. Fee, who founded both Union Church and Berea College to be a place of unity of races and gender, would have been very proud of the happy faces representing African American, Caucasian, Arabic and Asian peoples from many states and countries.

How was the decision made to undertake the renovation project?

"We really did have problems that were causing structural damage. We didn't have much choice if we wanted Union church to be a safe and good place to invite the community," Pastor Gilbert said.

Church leadership set a modest goal to raise $625,000 to resolve water issues in the basement. The good news is that the fund raising, with lots of folks giving what they could, raised enough to enlarge the project.

The capital campaign co-chairs were Jean Boyce and John Culp. The design team was led by Bob Boyce and Marlene Payne.

The service on Sunday was a joyous occasion from beginning to end with beautiful liturgy, music and a church filled with thankful people.

"We are very, very blessed," said Pastor Gilbert.

Bereans Enjoy Danish American Christmas Event

The 20th Danish American Christmas Celebration took place on Sunday, Dec. 9 at the Russel Acton Folk Center, and drew about 150 participants. The annual Christmas event was sponsored by the Folk Circle Association in cooperation with Berea Folk Gymnastics Club.

More Danish families than ever before participated; 98-year Vivian Roberts of Lexington, who was born to Danish immigrants, had a wonderful time. Pastor Kent Gilbert did the story telling while Ruth McLain, Al and Alice White entertained with Christmas songs. Jennifer Rose led the Danish Christmas hymns and the traditional "Now It's Christmas Again" - song/dance around the Christmas tree. John Holbrook, a.k.a Santa Claus, pleased children of all ages with funny stories, candy and photo options. The females of the Berea Festival Dancers all wore white and carried live candles, and performed an emotional "Santa Lucia Processional" that was choreographed by Theresa Lowder. There was also a spruce with live candles.

C.E. Morgan Receives Fellowship Grant

C.E. Morgan, a novelist from Berea, received a $50,000 Fellowship grant for artistic excellence from the national artists' advocacy organization United States Artists (USA). Fifty artists received these fellowships, with two from Kentucky. Edward White, musician and founder of the River City Drum Corps from Louisville, was the other Kentucky recipient.

USA Fellows include artists in the fields of architecture and design crafts and traditional arts, dance, literature, media arts, music, theater arts, and visual arts.

ARTS

Featured Artist

By Beth Myers
Citizen Editor

For Michelle Weston, art has been a part of her life for as long as she can remember, but once she discovered art glass in college, she never looked back.

"The teamwork aspect was interesting," Weston said, who owns the shop, The Glass Studio in Old Town. "And it's a very immediate art; once you start, you have to keep going."

Weston, a native of New Zealand, moved to the U.S. when she was around six years old. Her parents were artists and potters, and Weston has memories of a childhood in Nebraska drawing and painting, and sketching natural objects. She eventually went to Hastings College and received a bachelor's in both painting and glass. She first encountered the glass art when she had a class in the department.

"I hung out in the studio a lot before I could get into the class, because classes stayed so full. They eventually put me to work," Weston said chuckling.

Weston was fascinated with the fluid nature of the process, and working with the glass itself. She also loved the experimentation that went along with glass blowing and sculpting, as well as the constant challenges and development of the art.

During her time as an undergrad and also as a graduate student in art glass at Bowling Green, Ohio, Weston worked a few summers at Cedar Point Amusement Park. Though she didn't enjoy working at an amusement park itself, it ended up being a valuable experience for her as an artist. She worked on a round stage with other glass workers and a furnace that would heat to 2,000 degrees in front of an audience, with the making of art glass as a live show at the amusement park. They were allowed to make whatever they wanted, with the amusement park footing the bill for materials, so Weston was able to play around and practice with different forms and products, while announcing what they were doing on a microphone for the benefit of their watchers.

Weston ultimately received her MFA in art glass, and moved back to Nebraska. After teaching for a few years, and opening a studio in Wilmore, she moved to Berea 11 years ago and opened up her glass studio where she works and sells her art. She also sells to 360 galleries around the country.

"I had been looking for property around here for quite a while," Weston said. "I knew about Berea even when I lived in Nebraska, though I can't tell you how I knew about it. But I wanted to live in this art community."

When Weston heard about the availability of the building in Old Town, she moved her operation to Berea and has never regretted it.

"I love it here," Weston said.

Kiplinger Ranks Berea College the Nation's "best-value private college under $20K"

Berea College tops Kiplinger's list of the best-value private colleges where students pay less than $20,000 a year. In determining the ranking, Kiplinger cited Berea College's generous financial aid and commitment to providing an education to students with limited financial resources. Berea College "trumps all the others [with] the remarkable deal it offers every student," the ranking notes.

Kiplinger reports that the average net cost to a student attending Berea is $2,641 annually, well below the average cost of a two-year public college and almost $10,000 lower than the second-ranked school on Kiplinger's list. The list of 10 schools is drawn from Kiplinger's larger lists of the 100 best values in private colleges and 100 best values in liberal arts colleges, where Berea is ranked 98th nationally.

Kiplinger ranks schools based on five criteria -- cost and financial aid, student indebtedness, competitiveness, graduation rates and academic support. Each factor is weighted differently, to reflect differences in relative importance, with cost and financial aid being the greatest factor.

This is Berea College's second number one national ranking this year as the college was also ranked as the nation's least expensive private college when calculating the costs of tuition and fees, according to a report by the U.S. Department of Education (DOE).

The College Affordability and Transparency Center, a DOE website that helps parents and prospective students learn about and compare college costs, reports that Berea College's tuition and fees amount to $910 per academic year. The national average for the cost of tuition and fees is $21,949, but the most expensive schools charge twice that amount.

"I am deeply appreciative to all those who for more than a hundred years have generously given to Berea College so that an affordable and high-quality education could be available to those academically talented students whose families cannot provide it," says Chad Berry, academic vice president and dean of the faculty. "Such generosity in Berea is a big reason that our education is sometimes referred to as the 'best education money can't buy.'"

Canine Stress Therapy at ECU

Photo Submitted

Ben Pelfrey of Berea was one of many Eastern Kentucky University students to recently take advantage of "Pawsibilities for Student Success." Therapy dogs were brought to campus shortly before finals week as a means to help students, faculty and staff lessen anxiety and reduce stress. The 15 canines were on hand, along with their handlers, at three busy campus locations. The dogs and handlers were provided by Pawsibilities Unleashed: Pet Therapy of Kentucky, a Central Kentucky non-profit organization.

Tumble Shine Gymnasts Take Home Awards

On Saturday, Dec. 1, five athletes from Tumble Shine Gymnastics competed in a competition in Prestonsburg. These athletes were Hailey Brandenburg, Kennedy Morgan, Makenna Morgan, Cheyenne Rogers and Kennedy McGuffey.

The girls came home with eleven 1st places, three 2nd places, and one 3rd place award. All of them have put a lot of work into training for these competitions. All new athletes receive one free trial class.

GLASS

"The artists have a real investment in Berea, and that's important. And I can receive such practical assistance from other artists."

She pointed out that she can get some of her tools from Ken Gastineau, who owns the jewelry shop across the street.

Weston both blows glass, which results in her ornaments, bowls and vases, and she also sculpts glass with hand tools. Her preference is the sculpting, and many of her hand tools are repurposed such as butter knives, tweezers and cleavers. She often shops around for kitchen items that she can use at her shop.

"I don't know what these are for in the kitchen," she laughed, holding up a few items with spokes in them and oddly shaped handles. "But they work great for me. They even came in different sizes."

Her experience teaching in Nebraska and working at the amusement park prepared her well for the recent development of art and education in Berea, as she has been a popular instructor and presenter for the Learnshops as well as the schools groups that have been visiting different Berea artists as part of their curriculum. Unlike some artists who prefer to not deal with the public, Weston loves interacting with people and teaching them the history and processes of glass art, finding that it inspires her creativity and energy as well. Every Learnshop she has offered has been sold out, including the ones in the most recent "12 Days of Christmas," - not a surprising occurrence, since glass art is often considered the "rock star" of the art world.

Weston also does one-on-one instruction for people by appointment, where they can come in and assist her in making an ornament that they take home. People can choose the color and style of the ornament, and can literally "blow" their own. Call Michelle at 985-0150 if interested.

Weston is also considering other types of instruction and classes for items such as pumpkins and starfish. People can follow what she offers on Facebook, at WestonGlass.

Landon Wills had been hired by a vote of the City Council as City Clerk - Finance Officer. In the six to two vote William Finnell and Frances Moore voted against the hiring. Wills was to serve a six month probationary period at $8,600.00 per annum with a raise to $9,300.00 should he be retained.

A proposal presented by presented by city attorney Roger Oliver to annex into city limits 65 acres of the Hays Farm adjacent to Dixie Park met with objection from Councilman Frank Farmer who said that piecemeal annexation interfered with the overall assignment given to the council committee on annexation. The eventual vote to annex was unanimous in favor of bringing the property into Berea limits.

The Bankers of the independent basketball league had been doing the city proud, members of the team sponsored by Peoples Bank and Trust Company of Berea were Ken Maynard, Ronnie Devere, Dr. Robert Long, Dave Maynard, Dennis Grant, Lanny Huff, Doug Layne, Roger Oliver, Glen Marcum and Roy Smith.

Old Joe Clark and the McClain Family Band entertained at the Berea Chamber of Commerce annual awards dinner at the Boone Tavern. Earl Shupe was recognized as Man of the Year, Flora Allen was named Teacher of the Year, Mrs. Averill Kilbourne was Nurse of the Year and William Finnell was given a special award for his distinguished work as president of the Berea Industrial Development Corporation which had seen the acquisition of three new industries in the year.

Mrs. Grace Frazier, 84, foster mother and nurse to a host of young and old, had died in a fire that destroyed the modest building she called "Friendship Home" a mile west of town. Jesse Tull, 89, who had been a pastor at several churches around Richmond also died as a result of the fire. Miss Betty Davis and Mrs. LeAnna Anthony their way out to safety.

An article by Mace Crandall, then editor of The Citizen said, "If land purchased by a freed slave and devoted for more than a century to unselfish service to mankind is hallowed by the sacrifices of its owners, the modest little Friendship House of Grace Frazier stood on holy ground." The story continued, When the Todd family with long roots in Madison County freed all their slaves at the close of the Civil War, among them was a young mother of four, Betty Diggs, whose husband had been sold before the conflict broke out.

Mrs. Diggs promptly purchased 27 acres of land adjacent to the Berea, paying for it out of the fifty cents a day she earned working around town. Upon her death her youngest son Sidney Diggs, decided the land should be devoted to Christian service of mankind and it had never been used for any other purpose up until December 1972. It had held a school, church assemblies, recreation facilities a community center and up until the time of the fire, a nursing and convalescent home maintained by Mrs. Frazier.

Eddie Mac Wray had returned to Lebanon, Ohio after spending the weekend in Berea with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Wray.

Harold B. Clark of Gainesville, Florida had been in town for Berea College homecoming and attended a dinner in honor of retiring Coach Gunkler.

Mrs. Mae Lambert,

who was one of the oldest members of the United Neighbors Homemakers Club had attended their annual Christmas Party at the home of Mrs. W. E. Newbolt.

Dr. Kenneth Thompson and Dr. William Stolte were due back from a conference they had attended in New Orleans of the Southern Association of Universities and Colleges.

Mrs. Margaret Hammond Maupin was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Hart.

Mrs. Mabel Looney had spent a weekend with her brother, James A. Sheppard and his family of Dixie Park.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Huff had enjoyed a flight to Florida where they visited several points of interest.

Berea School May Have to Cancel Energy Efficiency Project

By Beth Myers
Citizen Editor

It is almost certain that Berea Community Schools will have to cancel their future plans to replace the HVAC system in the elementary school, which would have increased energy efficiency with a geothermal system and energy recovery unit, as well as other measures they were going to implement such as electrical upgrades and envelope closures. The school board members heard the bad news from their architecture firm, Tate, Hill and Jacobs at Monday night's board meeting, when it was reported that estimated costs for the project had increased over $600,000.

The school board and school administration had been planning some major construction since last summer, when they discovered their bonding potential was $2.8 million. Though they had hoped to build three new classrooms for the high school, since three teachers are currently floating, they gave up that plan for lack of funds and moved forward on replacing the "flat" areas of the roof and replacing the old HVAC system. The roof and HVAC system are very old and have needed to be replaced for a while.

The initial construction costs of the project were projected to be $2.3 million, and with the other project costs, the school

Last Saturday, Taylor Lake, above, gets ready to pass out the gift packages she purchased and prepared for the children at the UK Children's Hospital through the charity she created, Taylor's Fun Factory. Taylor, who was hospitalized at UK Children's Hospital at six years old for severe ulcerative colitis, has given out crafts and presents to the hospitalized children since she was 9 years old.

After Winning Her Own Health Battle, Taylor Continues to Give

By Christie Green
Citizen Reporter

On Saturday afternoon this past week, 17-year-old Taylor Lake and her parents from Berea distributed gift packages to 65 children at UK Children's Hospital. It is not unusual to find teenagers volunteering with charity organizations during the holidays. Taylor's case is unusual, however, in that "Taylor's Fun Factory" is a charity of her own creation that she has been doing with the help of her mom, Elizabeth, and dad, Pat, since she was barely nine years old.

Taylor's service grew out of her own experiences at UK Children's Hospital. At the age of six, Taylor was diagnosed with severe ulcerative colitis, a form of inflammatory bowel

New City Council Members Sworn in Tuesday

By Beth Myers
Citizen Editor

Newly elected Berea City Council members were sworn in at Tuesday night's meeting, when Circuit Court Judge Jean Logue had them repeat the oath after her. There were a few chuckles in the audience, as the eight city council members dutifully swore that they had never fought in a duel or assisted in one.

Both Chad Hembree and Chester Powell joined the six incumbents for the swearing in, though Powell had taken the oath before when he served four years ago on council.

City council members Truman Fields and Richard Bellando gave their farewells at the final 2012 council meeting, both stating their appreciation for having served. City council member Vi Farmer reminded the audience that she had attended Berea College while Fields and Bellando were there also, "just a little while ago."

Fields joked to newly elected Hembree that he understood what Hembree was getting into, and said, "I'll light a candle for you buddy. Make that two candles."

Hembree and Powell will both be active city council members at the first meeting in January.

Berea City Administrator Randy Stone gave council members a review

New President at Peoples Bank

By Beth Myers
Citizen Editor

After 42 years of service to Peoples Bank in Berea, bank president Larry Harrison has turned in his resignation and will be handing over the torch the beginning of January. He plans to spend time on his farm, which has been in his family since 1907, and spend time with his grandchildren. His executive vice-president, Pat Ballinger, has been chosen by the board to succeed Harrison, a promotion that the outgoing president completely agreed with.

"I'm very pleased," Harrison said, speaking of Ballinger taking over the position on January 1. Harrison will stay on for a few months after that as the outgoing president to assist with the transition, which

These words were written by Elaine Sasser Marshall as she received chemo at Markey Cancer Center in the spring of this year.

"The family of Glenn R. Marshall would like to thank everyone involved with the overwhelming support we have received since the unthinkable death of our leader and loved one. Perhaps you sent a card, called, sent food or flowers. Perhaps you prayed or thought about us with sympathy. We thankfully received so many tributes from schools and churches and Sunday school classes. We thank you for all your concern and trust that you will understand how hectic and chaotic this time has been for the remainder of the family. Please understand that this thank you is sincerely for you. We appreciated everything that was done. May God bless you all." Since these words were written our family has endured so much more with the loss of Anna Margret Marshall, matriarch of the Marshall family and Elaine Sasser Marshall, beloved mother, sister and educator. We, the family, feel her words express what we feel, an overwhelming gratitude to the Madison County community for support in this great time of need.
Thank you, Marshall Family

Maybe Not Merry, But Blessed

Scenter Stage
Teresa Scenters, Publisher

There are no words. Nearly a week after the horror in Sandy Hook, Connecticut I still can't wrap my mind around the evil that took the lives of so many innocents.

The only comfort I can find comes from knowing with all my being that those children are in heaven in the very presence of God.

That all this happened so near Christmas, the time of year that's uniquely centered around children, somehow makes it all the more terrorizing. This year especially, I'm focusing on the fact that Christmas is not about the gifts or the decorations or even family, but about a baby. A baby who came down to earth as nothing in the eyes of the world. But became everything to those who would only believe.

As is my custom Christmas week, I'm sharing the account of His birth, from the book of Luke. This is from the Holman translation of the Bible.

In those days a decree went out from Caesar Augustus that the whole empire should be registered. This first registration took place while Quirinius was governing Syria. So everyone went to be registered, each to his own town.

And Joseph also went up from the town of Nazareth in Galilee, to Judea, to the city of David, which is called Bethlehem, because he was of the house and family line of David, to be registered along with Mary, who was engaged to him and was pregnant. While they were there, the time came for her to give birth. Then she gave birth to her firstborn Son, and she wrapped Him snugly in cloth and laid Him in a feeding trough—because there was no room for them at the lodging place.

In the same region, shepherds were staying out in the fields and keeping watch at night over their flock. Then an angel of the Lord stood before them, and the glory of the Lord shone around them, and they were terrified. But the angel said to them, "Don't be afraid, for look, I proclaim to you good news of great joy that will be for all the people: Today a Savior, who is Messiah the Lord, was born for you in the city of David. This will be the sign for you: You will find a baby wrapped snugly in cloth and lying in a feeding trough."

Suddenly there was a multitude of the heavenly host with the angel, praising God and saying:

Glory to God in the highest heaven, and peace on earth to people He favors!

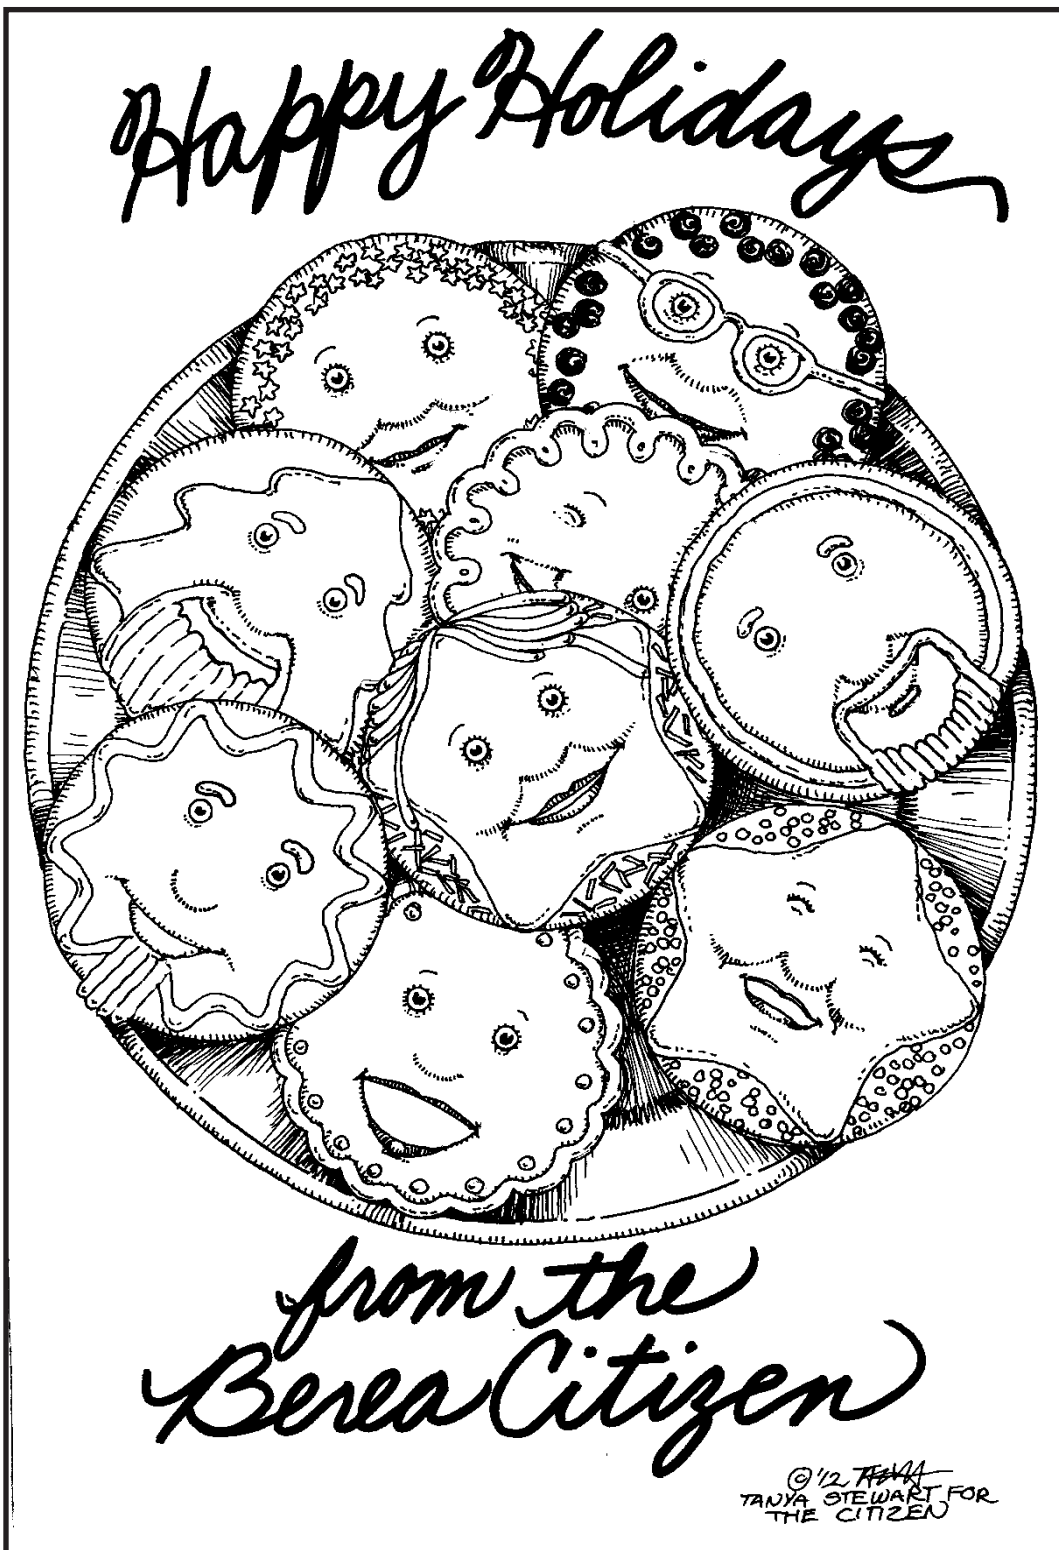

When the angels had left them and returned to heaven, the shepherds said to one another, "Let's go straight to Bethlehem and see what has happened, which the Lord has made known to us."

They hurried off and found both Mary and Joseph, and the baby who was lying in the feeding trough. After seeing them, they reported the message they were told about this child, and all who heard it were amazed at what the shepherds said to them. But Mary was treasuring up all these things in her heart and meditating on them. The shepherds returned, glorifying and praising God for all they had seen and heard, just as they had been told.

I'm praising God that even in the midst of unanswerable questions in our finite human minds, He is in control.

The Baby born in the Bethlehem manger is my only hope. I pray He is yours.

Have a Blessed Christmas.

Let's Go Very SLOWly

Letters from Berea
Beth Myers, Editor

What does one say about such a painful tragedy in our country? What could I possibly say in this column about the Sandy Hook massacre that would have any meaning, or insight or comfort? In this office, we've struggled with the same questions, discussions and anguish as everyone else in their different offices and homes and hang-outs.

Usually in these types of situations, I come upon something wise, something touching. But this time, everything I touch and read simply reflects the same horror that I feel, as the same question reverberates again and again, bouncing around the edges of my mind, bouncing around the edges of our culture. WHY?

Truly the unanswerable question, and I don't think we are ever going to get good answers. Perhaps we're asking the wrong question.

Two main issues have drifted to the top of the heap, as people try to find solutions, things that could prevent our children from being mindlessly killed. Both gun control and mental health care have been discussed. I agree both with bans on assault weapons, and the need for many more resources for mental health care. I've lived through different family members and friends struggle with finding mental health care they can afford. So I'm glad these issues are being discussed, and perhaps changes will be made, but I don't think those discussions begin to address the true horror and agonizing heart of this issue.

And what lies at that bleeding, screaming heart are our children, children with their front teeth missing and their smiles and the assumption for most of them that their world is fairly safe. We failed to protect them, our children, and it's impossible to understand how a flesh and blood human being could walk out of his house and take them down like they were targets at a shooting range.

My cousin has a glass slide that some teachers use in teaching language. The quote on it says, "Now we shall go very SLOWly." That's how I feel, as different wild ideas keep surfacing on the news, and reporters are muddying the waters even more with their speculation and complete misunderstanding of what mental illness is. We do have to think about where we go from here as a country, but not too quickly. We have to grieve, and pray and be silent and cry and somehow live with the fact that 28 families and more will be going through absolute hell this Christmas, while our families are intact.

We must figure out how to mourn for children we don't know and teachers we've never met and a town we've never been to.

Then I would hope we could think about our mental health care, and much greater caution with our weapons and finally how to deal with the fact that none of that will ever be able to completely keep our children safe.

And during it all, Let us please go very SLOWly.

Letter to Representatives

President Barack Obama, Speaker of the House of Representatives John Boehner, Senator Harry Reid, Senator Mitch McConnell and Senator Rand Paul

Dear Mr. President, Mr. Speaker, and Honorable Senators,

In light of the recent tragedy in Newtown, Connecticut, and after prayerful deliberation, we the members of the Church Council of Union Church, in Berea, Kentucky, urge you, with deliberate speed, to enact legislation that will reduce the likelihood of a recurrence of this mass killing.

While we recognize that the problems that lead to such a tragedy are complex, and while we join with so many other Americans in expressing our sympathy, solidarity, and prayers for healing to the mourning families and the broader community in Newtown, we nevertheless join President Obama and members of both political parties in asserting that this country and its government can do better. Men and women of every faith and others of good will now see that we can no longer protect unregulated access to weapons that lead to such tragic results.

Therefore, we urge you to enact legislation that will accomplish the following:

1. Make illegal the possession of assault weapons by ordinary citizens.
2. Mandate a substantial reduction in the capacities of gun ammunition magazines.
3. Require and enforce thoroughgoing background checks for potential gun purchasers.
4. Close loopholes that make easy the unregulated purchase of guns, such as at gun shows.
5. Adopt and enforce substantial waiting periods in the purchasing of guns.

We recognize that no legislation can eliminate human violence. However, we strongly believe that enacting these steps will significantly reduce the likelihood of tragedies of this scale. We believe the children of this country, and all its citizens, deserve no less than a zealous effort on the part of its leaders to make safer our schools, streets, marketplaces, and everywhere we come together.

Adopted this 18th day of December, 2012, by the members of the Church Council of Union Church, J. Stephen Rhodes, Chair of Church Council, Merlin Kindel, Moderator of the Church, Kent Gilbert, Pastor, Rachel Small Stokes, Associate Pastor.

A similar letter has been sent to Governor Beshear and Mayor Connelly.

What Fiscal Cuts Mean to Schools

Dear Editor:

You have probably heard a great deal about the looming fiscal cliff facing our nation. I want to bring the debate closer to home by sharing what that cliff means for Madison County Schools and the future of the children and youth of our community. Sequestration, the fiscal policy procedure adopted by Congress to deal with the federal budget deficit, generates automatic cuts for each of nine years – fiscal years 2013 to 2021 – totaling $1.2 Trillion. Without Congressional action to prevent sequestration, the first round of cuts will take place January 2, 2013. The 2013 cuts apply across-the-board to "discretionary" spending, and are divided between reductions to defense and non-defense spending including education.

As a school system leader, I can assure you that these education cuts will not heal quickly, if ever. The impact will be severe and far-reaching and threatens to undermine the success of our local schools in preparing students to be college and/or career ready. Kentucky legislators have made a concerted effort to protect state funding for education. Despite those efforts, the local district proportion of school funding has more than doubled in the last 20 years – from 18% in 1990 to 40% in 2010 – even though we have more students than ever before.

Under sequestration, education funding will be subject to cuts ranging from 9.1% (in 2013) to 5.5% (in 2021) according to the Center on Budget & Policy Priorities. The reduction in FY 2013 would amount to $4.1 billion. These cuts will devastate the already fragile economic condition of our local schools and will set the new baseline for future federal allocations. This is simply unacceptable.

I believe that Madison Countians understand the critical role education plays in the long-term economic

From our readers

Dear Editor,

We are deeply troubled and sorrowful to hear of the great tragedy in Connecticut at an elementary school on Friday. Our thoughts and prayers go out to the Sandy Hook Elementary School community that was devastated by the loss of their children and educators.

Our children and staff are our most precious resource and to that end, we take this tragedy as a stark reminder of the importance of our safety procedures and our check-in process for all visitors to our schools. While there is nothing but an isolated incident far away from our Berea Community Schools, we do want to take this opportunity to remind all of our families that we conduct regular drills, including those for a building lockdown, and that we have secure doors at the main entrance to each school. All visitors to our schools must enter and sign in with the school office. Other exterior doors to the buildings remain locked at all times and only staff can access those doors. Additionally, we have a full-time school resource officer assigned to our school.

These are just a few of the procedures that we have in place to help ensure student safety and security. Certainly in this day and age we can never be absolutely protected against all circumstances, but we do educate staff throughout the year, practice and revise our safety plan and rely on our parents, first responders and the community to help us practice and respond using our safety procedures.

We know that children may raise questions and concerns about this tragedy. The American Psychological Association (APA) recommends several tips for parents to consider:

Talk with your child -
If children ask questions, talking to them about their worries and concerns is the first step to help them feel safe and begin to cope with the events occurring around them.

Keep home a safe place -
Children, regardless of age, often find home to be a safe haven when the world around them becomes overwhelming.

Watch for signs of stress, fear or anxiety -

After a traumatic event, it is typical for children (and adults) to experience a wide range of emotions including fearfulness, shock, anger, grief and anxiety. They may experience trouble sleeping, difficulty with concentrating on schoolwork, or changes in appetite. This is normal for everyone and should begin to disappear in a few months.

Take "news breaks" -
Your children may want to keep informed by gathering information about the event from the internet, television, or newspapers. It is important to limit the amount of time spent watching the news.

Re-establishing routines are a critical part of "getting back" to normal. Please know we have a school counselor at each school that can assist parents in talking with their children or answering questions. Feel free to contact the Berea Independent School District's central office at 859-986-8446, if you have further questions. Again, please keep all those involved in your thoughts and prayers today and in future days.

Sincerely,
Mike Hogg,
Superintendent

health of our community. Together, we strive constantly to do more with an ever-smaller set of resources. Our hard work and success should not be jeopardized because Congress is incapable of assembling a responsible, balanced and bipartisan approach to avoid the fiscal cliff. To be more specific, sequestration for our schools will result in an additional loss of approximately $500,000 at the 9.1% cut. That cut is over and above the loss in state funding the district has already experienced.

Now is the time for action; now is the time for leadership. Sequestration can only be avoided if Congress passes legislation that undoes the legal requirement in the Budget Control Act before January 2, 2013. Please join the Madison County Board of Education in urging Kentucky's entire Congressional delegation to work with colleagues from both sides of the aisle to intervene and avoid the sequester and fiscal cliff. We must call on Congress to set aside differences and find common ground in a responsible approach that doesn't disproportionately impact students. There must be a solution agreed upon by both sides that doesn't gut our national investment in education and ultimately hamper the long-term fiscal health and competitiveness of our community, our state, and our entire country.

would have been able to squeeze both in. But when the architects reported that updates expenses and updated designs resulted in $600,00 more in expenses than they thought, Berea board members knew they would have to give up part of their plans. With the roof needing monthly patching and repair, it was clear that it needed to be the first priority with funding.

There is a slight chance that the HVAC system could still be replaced, if the construction bids come back lower than expected. The project will go out to bid in January. Board members questioned why the cost estimates had increased so dramatically since the last meeting. They were informed that the former development plans were fairly undeveloped, and once they finished the fully developed document, the costs had changed. Some construction costs have also increased in the past few months.

Both Berea school board members Elizabeth Crowe and Will Bondurant expressed their disappointment that they wouldn't be able to replace the HVAC system, a very old, inefficient one, which would have led to future savings in energy costs.

"The part, ironically, that will save us money in the future is the other stuff, that we won't be able to do," Crowe said.

Crowe asked other school board members to help her look around for other ways to pay for the replacement of the HVAC system, such as funding for making school systems much more efficient.

Elementary School Principal Emily Reed presented the school board with some demonstrations and examples of the Leader in Me program that they have conducted for a few months now.

The school board members heard from their accounting firm – Brandon Hardy, Mather and Co. – and the school received a clean audit, or unqualified opinion.

The two principals of the elementary school and the middle and high school thanked Superintendent Mike Hogg for his leadership over the weekend after the Sandy Hook tragedy. Hogg had called a meeting on Sunday night for the administration and the board to meet to review safety procedures.

"Those were our colleagues that fell in Connecticut," Hogg said, when speaking of some of the anxieties teachers and students had on returning to school Monday, "and our kids that fell in Connecticut."

• On December 14, an officer conducted a traffic stop on Highway 595 for a minor traffic offense. The driver appeared under the influence, and he said he had smoked marijuana before the stop. After a short investigation, it was deter-

Drug Arrest

• On December 14, officers were on Farris Street investigating after a call for service. They stopped a vehicle driving down the street, because a passenger in the car looked like someone they were looking for. One of the passengers tried to hide something in a pocket.

The officer asked him to show his hands, and he refused and threw a wooden box in the floor of the vehicle. Officers took him from the vehicle and located three clonazepam tablets inside the box. They arrested Stacy McMullin, 36, of Berea and charged disease. Her prognosis was not good.

"I wasn't supposed to mature. It was supposed to stunt my growth," she said. "But here I am, healthy and getting ready to graduate from high school."

Eventually, Taylor's disease became so severe that doctors gave her parents two options. She could undergo a surgery to remove her colon, which would require that she wear an ostomy bag on her side for the rest of her life, or she could try an experimental drug that had not yet been approved for use in children.

Taylor said, "At that age, I just couldn't imagine the idea of a hole in my stomach and a bag on the outside." So she said she wanted to take the experimental drug.

"We're so glad that we chose that option," said her mother Elizabeth, because the treatment worked, and Taylor's symptoms gradually went into remission. Now she has very little trouble, enjoys a diet with no restrictions, and gets regular check-ups with blood tests to keep an eye on things. The drug that she took experimentally has now become a standard treatment for children with advanced ulcerative colitis.

As they described Taylor's experiences at UK Children's Hospital, she and her parents laughed at some of the memories. But Taylor turned serious when she said, "We laugh now, but at the time it was horrible."

Taylor was almost nine years old when she got the idea for "Taylor's Fun Factory." She had to stay in the hospital frequently and sometimes for long stretches.

"It was my second home," she said. "For a kid to stay in the hospital, it can be pretty scary. I'd get bored, too. I realized that I wasn't the only one that felt that way. Then I thought, 'Maybe if I give them stuff to do they would feel less scared.'"

That's how it started, with the desire to give other children things to help keep their minds off what was happening. Taylor asked her mom to bring drawing paper and crayons for her to share with the other children. She made them drawings and decorations, and she decorated the windows in the ward.

Now, she and her father and mother take packages for each child with at least five different crafts. They don't limit their generosity to the Christmas season, typically delivering packages three to six times a year. For the children that are going to be in the hospital over Christmas, they also bring fiber optic Christmas trees to help cheer up their rooms.

Taylor's generous spirit hasn't gone unrecognized. In 2006, when she was eleven, Taylor was chosen to represent Kentucky as an Ambassador in the Children's Miracle Network "Champions Across America" program. As ambassador, Taylor travelled with her family to Florida and Washington, DC, to participate in public relations events promoting Children's Miracle Network. Taylor had photo shoots with Leann Rimes and with Tracy Byrd. Ultimately, her photos were in advertising around the world.

"They treated them like celebrities, like little queens and kings," Elizabeth said. "She had felt bad for so long. It was good to see her get to experience something positive."

The Lake family encourages people to contribute to the Children's Miracle Network. Money raised from donations stays in the state. In Kentucky it goes to UK Children's Hospital, providing up-to-date medical equipment, playrooms for the children, and comfortable arrangements for parents and caregivers.

"We know where it goes," Pat said, "We've seen the benefits of those donations firsthand."

Although the Lake family provides most of the materials for "Taylor's Fun Factory" on their own, they receive small donations from local Wal-Mart stores, and churches have occasionally contributed, too. This Christmas, a generous donation of collector's edition Beanie Babies from Robert and Alice Linville in Berea helped them fill the packages.

Taylor and Elizabeth described buying "literally buggy-loads" of school supplies during back-to-school specials or clearance sales, then storing it all until time to bring it to the children.

"It's not cheap," said Elizabeth. "But it's a good cause," Pat added.

Her gastroenterologist, Dr. Shashidhar (Dr. Shashi to all the children), was her inspiration to fight for others. He understood the severity of her disease and supported the family's decision to try the experimental drug treatment.

"He did things for me that no one else would have done," Taylor said.

Taylor said that she plans to continue with the Fun Factory work when she enters college. She is also thinking about expanding it to include Shriner's Hospital for Children and other facilities that serve pediatric patients. She plans to attend Berea College in the fall and is applying to be a Bonner's Scholar, which would give her the opportunity to carry on with the Fun Factory as a service learning project.

When asked what benefits come from serving others, Taylor said, "It reminds me to stop and be thankful."

"When I was sick, I spent a lot of time thinking, 'why me?' But I wouldn't be the person I am today without what I've been through. My heart is opened up to everything. I don't regret anything, and I'm glad everything took its course."

"We couldn't ask for a better daughter," said her father Pat. "We're so proud of her. She stands up for other kids who have it hard."

of the successes of the 2013 calendar year at meeting on Tuesday, highlighting some of the major projects that were completed.

"It turned out to be a responsible and progressive year for us," Stone said, who stated that he would like the city council members to feel proud of what they and the city staff had accomplished.

Out of his list of 36 items, he highlighted the street projects that were completed in Berea, such as the Center Street curbs, the Exit 77 sewer pump station and the progress on the plan for US 25. He also mentioned the Indian Fort trail and bridge, the very clean audit, the renovation and reopening of the Depot Welcome Center, the Acton Folk Center face-lift, the solar farm and the Safe Kids grant that brought in the Pirate Plank at Berea Community and the countdown signals.

Bellando brought forth a resolution that he asked city council to approve, which stated that the council would like the property on 300 Chestnut Street to be refurbished and used for public purposes. The City of Berea has been cleaning up the property for the last few months, which was the service station they had purchased from Bob McMahan. It is located between the municipal building and city hall. There have been discussions with Berea Arts Council (BAC) on renting the space to them, with BAC inhabiting the space with Berea Tourism. Tourism has been setting aside money for the renovation of the property.

Council member Jerry Little brought up the question of whether it may be cheaper to tear down the building instead of refurbishing it, since items such as energy efficiency may be important considerations. After discussion on what aspects may be important as far as sustainability, energy efficiency and the basic use of the building itself, the city council passed a resolution that the building be used for a public purpose, and cost would be a consideration in building or refurbishing.

Mayor Steve Connelly informed the council members that a resolution was in no way binding as far as action, but was more a statement of intent or interest.

Josh Bills gave a report as a representative of the Berea Utilities Advisory Board, and informed the council that there was an opening on the board since Gina Chamberlain had indicated she would be stepping down. He stated that the board had been established in 2008, to give citizens feedback on the utilities company, and the board had helped to bring energy efficiency measures by working on the net metering ordinance, LED street lighting and bringing the solar farm to Berea.

includes, he said chuckling, cleaning out his office. "We worked together as a team for all these years; every decision was made together."

The decision to promote Ballinger, who graduated from Madison Central in 1977 and Berea College in 1981, was a unanimous vote by the board. Ballinger came to Peoples Bank in 1989 and worked as a loan officer and vice-president. He started his banking career at Madison National Bank in Richmond after graduating from Berea College with a business degree. At the time, he hadn't decided to pursue banking as a career, but, he said, he "took it because he needed a job."

Madison National Bank turned into Citizens Fidelity Bank of Madison County in 1984, and Ballinger soon found out what it was like to work for a much larger banking corporation. Missing the community bank atmosphere and mission, he took the position at Peoples Bank because he felt it "got back to what Madison National was."

Both Harrison and Ballinger are very committed to the community bank ideal. Though Peoples Bank is owned by Whitaker Bank Corporation, the ownership still lies within the State of Kentucky, and Whitaker gives this oldest active Berea bank a lot of latitude and independence. Harrison stated that Whitaker believes in banks being very active in the community, and involving themselves locally.

"Our involvement in the community was never have to," Harrison said, "It was because we want to. It was the right thing to do. We want people to want to come here."

Ballinger agreed, "They [Whitaker] let Larry have a lot of decision making power."

Harrison stated that one of his satisfactions through the years has been serving different generations of a Madison County family, and watching these families progress through the years. He has helped clients, then their children, and then their children's children get homes, get their businesses started, and ultimately become an integral part of their future.

Both Harrison and Linda VanWinkle from Peoples were honored at the annual Chamber Awards Banquet with the Hall of Fame award, for people who had given a lifetime of service to the community and the chamber itself.

Ballinger has no big plans to change things at Peoples, or bring in a different agenda. His desire, he said, is to keep moving the bank in the right direction where Harrison has been guiding it.

Harrison stated that the opportunity to help people was one of the most gratifying parts of his position. He was pleased that the bank had such a significant role in financing the industrial park, as well as other development within the community. He has confidence that Peoples Bank will continue to serve the community under Ballinger's reign.

"I've always said that community banks are the backbone of the nation," Harrison said. "We've never received government assistance, and we've always wanted the best for our customers."

During the Holiday Season more than ever, our thoughts turn gratefully to those who have made our progress possible. And in this spirit, we say simply, but sincerely, THANK YOU and Merry Christmas and best wishes for the New Year.

HS Academic Team wins first place, awards in season play

by Ellie Hogg

On Tuesday, Dec. 4, the BCHS Academic Team participated in the Lake Cumberland Academic League Tournament. This competition marked the end of league play for this season. The varsity team earned the first place finish in regular league play.

Berea's varsity team initially faced off against Wayne County and won, but while competing against South Laurel in the next match, Berea lost by one point.

Both the varsity and the junior varsity teams lost in the second round. "Considering that ten out of seventeen teams lost in round one, we have no reason to feel bad about the loss," said Coach Linda Williams.

The varsity team finished the season with only two losses out of fifteen matches.

"We did really well. We had one off night in the whole season, and even then, we only lost one [of the three] match[es]. We did really well in the tournament, we just faced off teams that we always face off," said varsity captain and senior Noah Fouch.

The tournament included written assessments in math, science, language arts, social studies, and humanities. Senior Natalie Warren received third place in language arts. "I feel pretty good about the award," said Natalie.

Sophomore Sofia Saderholm received third place in language arts.

In Arts and Humanities, freshmen Della Walters and Sam McFarland tied for third place and senior Sativa Thompson received fifth place.

In addition to the written assessment awards, most valuable player recognition was decided by each coach and presented to the players during the awards ceremony at the end of the tournament.

The BCHS Academic Team will compete in the district tournament in January.

MS/HS band and choir students start holiday season with annual Winter Concert

by William Spencer

Tuesday, Dec. 10, the middle and high school school band and choir performed their annual Christmas concert in the Conkin gymnasium.

The middle school choir performed first; the sixth grade opened the program with We Want to Sing, and included a duet of One Little Candle by Anthony Rico and Emmy Lovell.

The seventh grade band performed six songs, including the iconic Jingle Bells and Up on a Housetop immediately following the sixth grade choir performance.

The seventh grade choir performed next, opening with a duet featuring seventh grader Mikeala Morgan and eighth grader Estefania Correa who sang For Good.

The seventh grade choir performance included three more songs: The Most Precious Gift, Reindeer Jive and We Wish You a Merry Christmas.

The seventh and eighth grade bands played three songs together: Got the Spirit Rock, Instant Christmas Concert and Rockin' around the Christmas Tree.

Closing the middle school show, the eighth grade choir sang Dona Nobis Pachem and Carol of the Bells.

The high school choir began the second portion of the show by featuring soloist, freshman Mckenzie Daugherty singing I Dreamed a Dream.

The eighth grade and the high school choir performed two songs together and then the high school choir performed three more songs.

"The kids did a great job. It's a building year, but I'm proud of what they have accomplished, and I look forward to what they will accomplish next semester," said Ms. Amanda Thatcher, MS/HS Choir Director.

The band concluded the program by playing an additional four songs: Carol of the Bells, White Christmas, A Wonderful Christmas and Christmas March.

"It went as planned and everyone played well," said Mr. Matt Barnhill, MS/HS band director.

Guidance counselor Mr. Eef Fontanez attended the performance. "The kids, Mr. Barnhill, and Ms. Thacher worked really hard to put everyone in the Christmas spirit," Mr. Fontanez said.

Elementary students offer fresh perspectives on Christmas, Santa Claus, and the holiday season

by Chloe Atwater and Gammon Fain

The air is full of holiday spirit here at Berea Community Schools. An aura of excitement about Santa Claus, Christmas trees, and many presents is seemingly ubiquitous throughout the building, but is especially apparent in the elementary school.

When Mrs. Leigh Wilson's kindergarten class members were asked about their feelings on the holiday season, they offered mixed responses. Many students were excited about receiving gifts from Santa Claus and decorating Christmas trees, but others found excitement in being out of school.

One boy said his favorite part was "going to my grandpa's birthday party," another girl mentioned "sleepovers with friends," and another even mentioned that while she enjoyed but the youngsters were sometimes able to convey their feelings better.

While some said that they also like receiving presents and putting up their Christmas tree, another girl said that she wished for "Nobody to be naughty, so everybody could get what they want."

Perhaps the age difference allowed older elementary school students to better articulate their answers. Mrs. Veronica Johnson's third grade class illustrated this with their responses.

When asked what her job on the North Pole would be if she were an elf, one girl responded: "My job would be to make anything out of wood." She wasn't sure why, but we appreciate her decisiveness. Another little girl commented, "It's fun to decorate the tree and play in the snow."

Christmas trees, her family chooses not to celebrate the holiday.

Mrs. Kim Powell's first grade class members held similar opinions regarding the holidays,

BCHS health students travel to Richmond on field trip

by Breana Reynolds

The BCHS health classes travelled around Madison County on their annual Life Choice Drug Education Field Trip on Dec. 5.

"The point of the field trip is to get students out into an environment where they can see first-hand the consequences of doing drugs and not just read it from a book," said Mrs. Cathy Jones, health teacher at BCHS/MS.

The first stop was the Drug Court, where students were able to speak with Judge Logue about court and legal processes that one would have to go through if arrested for drugs. Students were able to ask questions after her presentation.

The next stop was the Madison County Detention Center.

Sophomore Hayley Penn said, "I liked going to the detention center and seeing how the inmates acted."

After the detention center, students visited the morgue and then Davis and Powell Funeral Home.

"[The thing that really stuck with me] would be how heart breaking it is for families to go through these processes because of drugs, and how they are affected," said junior Cheyenne Barrineau.

Mrs. Jones coordinated the field trip with the help of Mr. Wayne Robertson, BCMS guidance counselor.

Mrs. Jones plans to take all of her high school health classes on this trip again next school year.

Fifth grade students participate in career fair held by BCHS seniors

by Natalie Warren

Approximately 75 BCES fifth graders participated in a career fair held by BCHS seniors on Friday, Dec. 7.

Students from Mrs. Sexton, Mrs. Jones, and Mrs. Combs' fifth-grade classes met with eight seniors in the elementary library to discuss job options and planning for the future.

"I was glad that we included the seniors this year; that was one of the most positive things," said Cindy Richardson, BCES Guidance Counselor, who was also responsible for coordinating the event.

The careers represented included art, theater, elementary education, accounting, psychology and criminal justice, and nursing.

"I thought it went really well," said senior Meghan Lovell, who spoke to the elementary students about her plan to pursue a career in art. "I think the kids were really interested."

Many of the students already had an occupation in mind before attending the fair. Career fields that were commonly mentioned included marine biology, sports, education, and veterinary medicine.

Some students, however, have unique plans for the future: "I've always wanted to become a geologist," said fifth-grader Emily Isaacs.

Emily cited the possibility of making new discoveries and the opportunity for traveling, particularly in Asia, among her reasons for interest in the field of geology.

Approximately nine elementary students per grade level got up in front of their peers and shared what they learned from the career fair speakers during morning meeting on Monday, Dec. 10.

Lady Pirates fall to Burgin, host annual Holiday Classic

by Hamrick Walters

Last Tuesday, Dec. 11, the Lady Pirates were defeated 34-52 by Burgin Independent. Berea had a slow start in the varsity game only scoring six points in the first half of the game.

Things picked up for the Lady Pirates in the last half of the game. At one point, Berea cut Burgin's lead to a mere six points.

Leading the Lady Pirates in scoring was eighth grader Jordan Sandefur with 12 points, senior Hannah Haycraft with seven, sophomore Victoria Sexton with six, and senior Ashley Sizemore with four.

"Our team has a lot of things we can improve upon, but we are slowly putting together the pieces of the puzzle," said Assistant Coach Jennifer Cornett.

Berea also hosted the Holiday Classic Thursday, Dec. 13 – Sunday, Dec. 16. The proceeds from the tournament will go toward paying for team equipment and possibly for a trip to Florida next summer for basketball camp.

The Lady Pirates did not actually play in the tournament; they were responsible for setting up, working the concession stand and hospitality room, and for cleaning up after games.

The Lady Pirates will play again Thursday, Dec. 27 in Louisville in the Candy Cane Classic.

Editorial: Dramatic arts underappreciated in modern America

by Olivia Jacobs

Theater is a vital part of many cultures and ideologies throughout the world. Unfortunately, America has defied global standards through a lack of appreciation for the dramatic arts.

Historically, Americans have attended the theater to maintain a positive attitude in times of economic trouble; however, with the recent growth of technology, the theater is no longer a primary form of entertainment.

This blow to the popularity of theater should not create the disdain or lack of respect for the theater that is commonly found in the mentality of some American citizens. The theater is a place of art, much like a museum, or an art gallery and should be treated with a similar reverend respect.

In the 1900's, people would dress up to attend a play, reserve tickets in advance, and pay to have good seats. Now, it's acceptable to come to a play in pajamas partially because thespians are so desperate for audiences that the theater no longer commands the high standards that were once so common. That's not to say that a renewal of those standards is necessary to show respect for the theater, but it should be recognized that the theater used to be a place of high society.

I am grateful that plays have become so accessible to the common person, but with this accessibility came disregard for the work, money, and effort necessary for the production of a play. People should understand that theater is art, and respect it as such.

There is a certain stigma that comes with the idea of theater and many stereotypes about theater that often stem from the accepting and inclusive nature of the theater.

The lack of judgment and criticism towards theater members based on lifestyle choices may have led to these cruel and false rumors.

It's time the theater has the respect it deserves. Show your appreciation for the theater by attending local productions. Luckily, Berea offers many and frequent opportunities to see a play, and most citizens have a genuine appreciation for the arts. Still, it is important not to neglect artisans, and to experience their skills in person.

Movie Review

The Hobbit: An Unexpected Awakening can be enjoyed by all

by Natalie Warren and Olivia Jacobs

The Hobbit: An Unexpected Adventure is a movie with wide cinematic appeal. Thanks to its excellent production, combination of genres, and superior special effects, The Hobbit has a lot to offer to a general audience far beyond the readers of J.R.R. Tolkien's classic novels.

Because the series already had an extremely dedicated fan base, the importance of loyalty to the original plot is vital for the success of the movie. The director Peter Jackson did a fantastic job staying true to Tolkien's vision of Middle Earth.

If the movie had followed the plot of the book exactly, the characters would have spent hours wandering through forests and reminiscing about irrelevant details of wars and pub songs. We felt that the choices made about what scenes to include were diplomatic and accurately portrayed the book, without any significant omissions.

The relationships between the characters were developed strongly throughout the movie using subtle plot cues. We were definitely satisfied with the film portrayal of a book so important in modern literature and geek-dom.

From a cinematic perspective, The Hobbit is well-directed and well-produced. The action sequences are suspenseful and dramatic, while impressive visual elements and well-chosen theme music are used effectively to keep things interesting, even in more placid scenes. It is accessible even to people unfamiliar with Tolkien's novel.

In The Hobbit: An Unexpected Adventure, Peter Jackson skillfully combines humor and sentimental moments with fast-paced action and elements of fantasy to create a film that everyone can enjoy.

Boys' varsity basketball wins game vs. Washington Co.

by Michael Powell

The boys' varsity basketball team defeated the Washington County Commanders on the road last Saturday, with a final score of 50-48. It was a well-earned victory on the road, and was the second for the Pirates in that week.

The game was very close throughout, with a score of at the half. Going into the fourth quarter, the score was 33-31 with Berea ahead, continuing the neck-and-neck competition.

Senior Nolan Sweet hit a three point shot with 1:30 remaining, which seemed to seal the deal for the Pirates. He was fouled on the shot, and went to the free throw line for an extra point. He made the shot, completing the four point play.

Sophomore Andy Allen came up big with 13 points, 13 rebounds, and 5 assists. Sweet followed with 11 points, senior Daniel Hubbard also added 10 points, and had 11 rebounds, and senior Eli Woodie scored 10 for the Pirates.

"We kept our composure and we finished well," Eli said.

Mental mistakes seem to be the key factor in deciding whether a game is a win or loss, but according to head coach Cameron Jackson, the goal as of now is to limit mistakes in practice and hope it translates to smooth games.

American Legion donates bicycles to Family Resource Center

by Breana Reynolds

The American Legion donated two bikes to the Berea Community School Family Resource and Youth Services Center on Thursday, Dec. 13.

The bikes will be given to two elementary students as Christmas presents this year.

The American Legion contacted BCS in the spring because they were beginning to raise the funds to donate the bikes to the school. They had a total of six bikes, and gave two to each elementary school in Berea.

"[We] thought it would be a nice thing for The Legion to donate bikes [for Christmas]," said John Jacobs as he was wheeling one of the bikes into BCS.

Mr. Jacobs is the Commander of post 50. He was in charge of setting up the donations and delivering the bikes to the elementary schools.

The American Legion membership is available to all Veterans.

They earned the money to make the bike donation possible from private donations, memberships to the program, and selling Poppy flowers in May.

Mr. Jacobs expressed the desire for The American Legion to make Christmas donations to local elementary schools an annual event.

Word From Berea Streets

What are your plans for Christmas?

Amanda Buskirk of Berea said, "My husband and I will be staying in Berea and I will be doing a lot of baking. We will spend Christmas Eve with his parents in Winchester."

Ann Williams of Berea said, "My plans for Christmas is that every year, we at Appalachian Mission of Hope sponsor a community wide Christmas party for the children of Jackson County. I also get together with my family on Christmas Eve for a game night with food and refreshments. This is a very special time with my family."

Barbara Barger of Berea said, "My kids are coming down from Richmond; we will be spending Christmas together as a family, there are 11 of us. This is an important time because we so easily can take for granted that we can spend this time together each year."

Paint Lick Students Visit Neverland for Christmas

Paint Lick Elementary School students presented Christmas in Neverland on December 13, 2012, to three different packed audiences. The production included a cast of 75 students.

The production was the story of the Darling children that embarked on another adventure with Tinkerbell to rescue Santa and Peter Pan from Captain Hook. Several individual roles were played by two different students because of the length of the play.

The students delivered an outstanding performance each of the three times and involved the audience in the story by bringing Tinkerbell back to life and thawing out Santa Claus in time for Christmas.

Students took care of all aspects of the play including sound provided by Trevor Holman. Levi Powell was the stage manager assisted by the narrators, Rosemary and Gracy Belt. The play was directed by Ms.

Diana Davis.

The cast would like to thank the parents and teachers for supporting them as they prepared. A special thanks goes out to Anna Graves and April East for assisting in the scenery, props and backstage.

Jefferson Street Homemakers Celebrate Christmas

The Jefferson Street Friends Homemakers met for a Christmas party at the home of the president, Jean Harding. The house was beautifully adorned for the occasion. Jean's daughters helped her to provide a sumptuous luncheon of lasagna, garden corn, party foods and drinks.

After stuffing ourselves, we played a paper-and-pencil game, and then we wrote out Christmas cards for recovering soldiers at Walter Reed Army hospital. We also shared our most precious personal blessings of the past year.

Brenda Thomas entertained us with poems and songs, some of which she had composed herself. We were having so much fun that it was getting dark outside before we finally adjourned.

Volunteer Firemen Assist Santa Claus with Calls

Photo Submitted

The Berea Volunteer Fire Department helped Santa Claus "make calls to local children" on Tuesday, Dec. 11, when the Berea Parks and Recreation Department sponsored the Santa Calls event. Children who were signed up received a call from Santa between 3 - 7 p.m., where he wished them a Merry Christmas and chatted with them for a short time. With the assistance of the volunteer firemen, Santa called over 100 children during the four hour time frame.

Carpenter Appointed Chairman of Resources and Energy Comm.

The Leadership of the Senate Majority has appointed Senator Jared Carpenter of Richmond as Chairman of the Senate Natural Resources and Energy Committee. As chairman of a committee, Sen Carpenter will decide in what order bills are considered and who will be invited to speak on behalf of issues in front of the committee.

Carpenter stated, "I am thrilled and delighted to lead this important committee. One of Kentucky's strongest advantages is our relatively low utility rates; I intend to protect families and employers so that both can continue to prosper."

The Natural Resources and Energy Committee is charged with overseeing matters pertaining to forestry; mining; fish and wildlife resources; soil and water conservation; and many other natural Kentucky resources.

Paint Lick Arts Center Holds Quilt Show

Plans are being made at the Paint Lick Community Arts Center for the installation of a January exhibit of quilts done by local residents. The "Paint Lick Quilt Show" will have its opening reception on Friday, Jan. 4, 5:30 - 8:30 p.m. at the center. Everyone is invited to view and enjoy the quilts and meet the quilters or the owners of quilts done by others in the past.

Refreshments will be served in the Tearoom and Porch while listening to live acoustical stringed instrument music by The Pilot Knob Boys.

This will be the first quilt exhibit at the Paint Lick Community Arts Center and will represent quilt-making by people who live primarily in the Paint Lick and Garrard County area. Some of the quilts have been done by relatives of the owners and show family and/or community heritage. Also, this show will be coinciding with a special class in quilt-making in January conducted by Diane Palmerton of Winchester.

Beginning Saturday, Jan. 12, 2 - 5 p.m., this class in the basics of quilting will be held for six Saturdays, from January 12 to February 16. Anyone interested in taking this class should call the center, 859-925-2741, for more information and to enroll.

The Paint Lick Community Arts Center invites anyone interested in quilt art to come to the opening reception on Friday, Jan. 4, or come by the center before the end of the show, Saturday, Jan. 26. The center's public hours are Fridays, 10 - 6 and Saturdays, 10 - 4.

Observe Safety Precautions During Holiday Season

Madison County Emergency Management Agency reminds Madison County residents to observe safety precautions during the holiday season.

When selecting a tree, needles should be green and hard to pull back from the branches, and the needle should not break if the tree has been freshly cut.

The trunk should be sticky to the touch. Old trees can be identified by bouncing the tree trunk on the ground. If many needles fall off, the tree has been cut too long, has probably dried out, and is a fire hazard.

Do not place the tree close to a heat source, including a fireplace or heat vent. The heat will dry out the tree, causing it to be more easily ignited by heat, flame or sparks. Be careful not to drop or flick cigarette ashes near a tree. Do not put your live tree up too early or leave it up for longer than two weeks. Keep the tree stand filled with water at all times.

When disposing of your tree, never put tree branches or needles in a fireplace or wood-burning stove. When the tree becomes dry, discard it promptly. The best way to dispose of your tree is by taking it to a recycling center or having it hauled away by a community pick-up service.

Vehicle Crashes from Dec. 10 - 16

Preliminary statistics indicate that ten people died in ten separate crashes on Kentucky's roadways from Monday, Dec. 10 through Sunday, Dec. 16, 2012.

One single-fatality motor vehicle crash occurred in each of the following counties -- Christian, Clay, Clinton, Daviess, Fayette, Gallatin, Laurel, Scott and Wolfe. The victims in Daviess, Gallatin and Laurel counties were not wearing seat belts.

One pedestrian was killed in Grant County. The suspected use of alcohol was involved.

Through Dec. 16, preliminary statistics indicate that 709 people have lost their lives on Kentucky roadways during 2012. This is ten more than reported for this time period in 2011. Of the 564 motor vehicle fatalities, 307 victims were not wearing seat belts. Of the 73 motorcycle fatalities, 38 were not wearing a helmet. Eleven of the 13 ATV fatalities were not wearing a helmet. Fifty-two pedestrians, one scooter/moped rider and seven bicycle riders have been killed. A total of 128 fatalities have resulted from crashes involving the suspected use of alcohol.

Citizens can contribute to highway safety by reporting erratic drivers to the Kentucky State Police toll-free at 1-800-222-5555. Callers will remain anonymous and should give a description of the vehicle, location, direction of travel and license number if possible.

Reflections

FROM THE BEREA CITIZEN ARCHIVES DECEMBER 1952

A one act play, "The Candle In The Window," was to be presented at the First Christian Church. The cast included Bobby Joyce, Janice Coffey, Peggy Azbill, Eddie Ford, Frances Boggs, Judith Nueber, Kenneth Pennington, Eleanor Coffey, Kenneth Griffith and Lola Faye Sexton. The play was being directed by Mrs. George Moore Jr.

On Saturday afternoon, December 6, 1952, at five o'clock, Miss Imogene Bicknell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Bicknell of Dixie Park, became the bride of Walter Powell, Jr., the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Powell. The ceremony was performed by Mr. C.A. VanWinkle. Attendants were Mr. and Mrs. John S. Johnson, the bride's sister and brother-in-law. After a wedding trip the couple would be residing in Lexington where Mr. Powell was employed as a salesman for the L.R. Cooke Chevrolet Company.

Pvt. Earle G. Fish, son of Mrs. G.C. Fish, 30 Center Street, had completed Army Clerical School conducted by the 3rd Armored Division in Fort Knox.

In an editorial on the season, the following appeared.

While we were thinking the other day about all the nice things that Christmas means in Berea, we are sorry that two unpleasant things come to mind.

The first is fire. Elsewhere in The Citizen this week have a warning from Fire Chief Pruitte Smith about the dangers of overloaded wiring and inflammable decorations. The black skeleton of a Christmas tree with the presents ruined and the drapery all smoked up and the living room soaked with water are a poor substitute for what we look forward to as our Christmas celebration. The blackened skeleton of a house is something we don't even like to think about.

A little care will go a long way to keep Christmas green and happy. Our local agents will sell you good insurance against fire, and we suggest you have some, but the best insurance is your own sensible care about things that can get on fire and that kind id for free.

The second thing that makes us see red is the flippant way people are leaving bottles and trash around the beautiful Nativity Scene up the street from our place of business. A lot of hard work went into the preparation of this fine scene, and when people with a strange silly sense of what is funny put paper sacks on the heads of the Three Wise Men that makes us angry. If grown people are doing this we think they should be ashamed of themselves and if it is our younger generation we have a suggestion of what their parents ought to do about it.

We think that sort of behavior is right sorry.

The Berea Christian Church had announced the acceptance of its call by Rev. James L. Burden who would replace Rev. L.M. Scarboro who had moved to a Lexington pastorate.

Mr. Bert Barker was spokesperson for a committee representing various Berea business interests who were finishing up decorations for Christmas. They were to include decorations on the lamp posts throughout the city and trees and special scenes on the yard of the city school and the triangle facing Main Street. The Nativity Scene in the triangle was done without charge by Mrs. Benny Malear, who painted the figures and arranged the scene. She was assisted in the making of the figures and the wiring by her husband. The wooden stable in which the scene was presented was erected by the local carpenter's union. The decorations on the lamp posts were done by Boy Scouts under the direction of Richard T. Hougen, manager of the Boone Tavern Hotel.

The Berea Baptist Church had three Christmas events scheduled. The Student Choir under the direction of Gene Watson would present a program of Christmas songs.

Miss Helen Bicknell was to direct the Girls Glee Club of Berea High School in a musicale entitled "Come All Ye Faithful." Mrs. Morris Todd was accompanist on piano with David Carter on organ.

Finally members of the Baptist Student Union were presenting a play.

The Myra Norris Past Worthy Matrons Club had a Christmas Party at the home of Mrs. Eldon Davidson. Slides of the Nativity were shown by Mrs. Richard Hougen with Mrs. Edna Begley as narrator, reading the Christmas Story from the book of Matthew. The group sang Christmas carols and songs, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Charles Davidson. Mrs. A.F. Scruggs, Sr., read from Peter Marshall's book, "Mr. Jones Meet the Master." A chapter of "The Sweetest Story Ever Told" was read by Mrs. Rebecca Perkins. During the social hour refreshments were served and gifts were exchanged. Attending were Mesdames Clara Britton, Ted Scruggs, Nora Davidson, Rebecca Perkins, Brenda Johnson, Edna Begley, Mary Hougen, Leona Picklesimer, Elsie Janes, Viola Ray, Mollie Davidson and Miss Nannie Johnson.

Bearwallow Memories

By Beth Myers
Citizen Editor

"We had no electricity, no running water. But my parents were very interested in the holidays; Christmas, Easter, Thanksgiving, and they were very good at improvising."

These were Rex Layne's words, who was born in 1924, of a childhood spent on Bearwallow Road near Berea. Rex's memories of Christmas were rich and moving, but very far removed from some modern views where several presents fill up space around the tree and people slog through traffic and shoppers struggle against the clock to buy everything they need.

Rex's family lived on a 13 acre farm in Bearwallow, and there was a large woods near them owned by Uncle Dan. They always traveled to "Uncle Dan's Woods" to chop down a cedar tree of the right size. Then Rex's mother would set the children to popping popcorn to make garlands, and cutting up construction paper for paper chains. They would put a Christmas bell in the middle of the living and dining rooms, and stretch out the paper chains in four lines to the corners of the house. His mother, who was a teacher along with his father, would cut up accordion paper dolls to place around the home as well.

"We always received one major gift under the tree," Rex said, and he has clear memories of which gift he received for most of the years of his childhood. When 2 ½, he received a tricycle with wooden wheels, and he remembers popping wheelies on it, going on the back wheels. His father, who Rex says made over 500 dulcimers in his lifetime, made the tricycle for him.

At 3 or 4 years old, he received a little red wagon, and he was very proud to take the wagon out to Uncle Dan's Woods the next year, to transport the Christmas tree back in his wagon.

"I kept that wagon until I was 30 years old," Rex said with a soft smile.

He had a fond memory of being 9 or 10 years old, and not being able to find his Christmas present under the tree one year. His mother kept telling him to look around the tree, but he couldn't find it. Finally, she pulled out a pop gun that was placed among the branches.

Along with the one big present, Rex and his sisters would receive Christmas stockings stuffed with fruit such as oranges, tangerines, apples and bananas, some nuts and other small items like a box of crayons.

"We grew up poor," Rex said, "but we didn't know it. Everyone lived like that around us. We would barter a lot, going down to the store and swapping eggs for salt and sugar."

When Rex was 11, he received a Hawthorne bicycle.

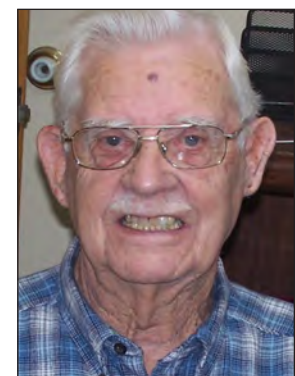

"I was the only one on Bearwallow with a bike," Rex said, and commented that he never got to ride it, because all the other kids were always taking it out for a spin. He would often take people out for rides on the handlebars.

He remembers one time going to the sock hop at Kingston High School, and taking his sister on the handlebars. She ended up winning a prize there, a gallon of motor oil, and Rex laughed as he remembered the trip home, balancing her on the handle bars while she struggled to balance the motor oil on her lap.

"I have wonderful memories," Rex said, a bit teary eyed as he thought of his childhood on Bearwallow.

Bearwallow Road,

Poem Inspired by True Story

By Carol Seals
Mother of

Years ago it was our habit to put away a certain amount of money each month for a Christmas savings. That money was taken out of my husband's check at work. Earl worked 3rd shift at the Army Depot in Richmond. When December came the check was mailed to us.

We had pinched pennies for this savings and it meant a lot to our family. This would have been in the 1970s.

The following poem is a true story.

Garbage Eve

*'Twas the night before trash pick-up,
And all through our house,
Everyone was stirring,
Family, dog, and mouse*

*Earl was ready,
For the night's work ahead,
And the family was soon,
To be off to bed*

*A few words of talk,
As we viewed the day,
And thoughts of tomorrow,
With work and play.*

*The month was December,
And Christmas was soon.
We had received our check,
Through the mail around noon.*

*When out of our heads,
There came such a scare.
The check was gone;
We were sure it was there.
Away to the door,
Earl ran to the trash.
Had we thrown it away?
The check we would cash?*

*The night was black,
So flashlight in hand,
We went through the trash,
In all three cans.*

*When what to our searching eyes should appear,
But a crumbled up check that, to us, was dear.
While cleaning the house, no mess did we leave.
We threw out the check, that we found on Garbage Eve.*

*We cleaned up the mess, holding the light, Wondering why the thought had come this night.
The trash would be picked up early tomorrow,
And without Christmas savings we would have sorrow.*

*The check we now put,
As he was planning before.*

*When he got in his car,
And drove out of sight.
I thought, What a Garbage Eve,
What an unforgettable night.*

The Importance of Simple Acts of Kindness

By Mike Hogg
Superintendent
Berea Schools

existence in the town of Bedford Falls and painfully shows George all the good done through his consistent, small acts of kindness and repeated self-sacrifice. Bedford Falls, absent George there to help others and to stand in the way of the antagonist, Mr. Potter, is a crumbling, oppressive town full of slum lords and crime.

None of us gets the opportunity George Bailey had for an angel to appear and show us what our impact has been on our families, friends, and communities. Of course we long for that knowledge, as we live in a society of instant gratification and immediate feedback. Technology has enabled us to remain "connected" in a way that none of our ancestors could have imagined. Adults and kids sleep with their cell phones so they can instantly know when a text message arrives, an email hits the in-box, or a new picture is posted on someone's social media profile. We have a deep longing for connectedness that I believe originates in the need to be part of a community. We long to matter to each other just as George Bailey longed to know if he really mattered.

One of my favorite things about serving in public education is the occasional note or email I get from a former student, teacher, or colleague thanking me for an encouragement or kindness that I do not remember. (Of course, they could have me confused with someone else!) Those small gifts remind me that the little things we do for each other – like asking someone to lunch, sending a card for no reason, dropping off a bag of the person's favorite coffee, or simply asking, "How are you?" and really listening to the answer – are invaluable.

As the title of the movie foreshadows, George Bailey realizes he actually had a life full of love, family and friendship that cannot be quantified like a bank account. George also realizes that his small acts of kindness and sense of responsibility are what helped maintain and nurture the community of Bedford Falls. In this season of gift-giving, remember it's the small, selfless, and seemingly insignificant gifts that build our families, friendships, and communities and show us that we do matter.

In the classic movie "It's a Wonderful Life," George Bailey gets the opportunity to see what would happen if he had never been born. In the early stages of the movie, George longs for a life outside of the small town of Bedford Falls, which he describes as "one-horse." He wants to travel, go to college, and build things. At each point in the movie when he is about to undertake one of his adventures, he is sidetracked by his sense of responsibility to his family, friends, and neighbors.

At a crucial point in the movie, his bumbling uncle misplaces a significant amount of money and George is on the verge of being indicted for fraud. Believing that he is "worth more dead than alive," George goes to jump off a bridge into a raging river. While pondering the jump, George sees what he believes to be another person jumping into the river. As he has done throughout the story, George's sense of responsibility to others emerges and he saves Clarence, who turns out to be an angel. Clarence magically erases George's

A LOOK BACK AT 2012

By Beth Myers
Citizen Editor

January and February

Early in 2012, two issues came up that would continue to be discussed in Berea for months after. In the January 19 issue, readers heard about the controversy with the expansion of Highway 25 N, and the proposed redistricting of Kentucky that would have a significant effect on Madison County. Both plans drew criticism from Berea public officials and citizens.

On January 12, 2012 citizens and business owners gathered to review the preliminary drawings from the CDP Engineers, working with District 7, for the Highway 25 North widening project. The project planned to expand Highway 25 from two lanes to five from Ellipse Street north to the intersection with the Berea bypass. With two lanes moving in each direction and a shared turning lane, the widened road would allow traffic to keep moving at all times, and it also included a pedestrian sidewalk on the west side and a ten foot wide shared-use pathway on the east side.

Many business owners were unhappy because of the project's impact on their public parking spaces. Rick Smith of Smith's Tire said at the time, "This will take approximately half of my total parking. We're going to have to figure something out. I'm losing almost my entire front parking area."

Some homeowners and business owners didn't realize that the property they built on right up to the highway was state owned right of way. The right-of-way had been purchased in the 1940s when the highway was first built.

Dr. Dan Sipple of Sipple's Chiropractic and Wellness Center, who later became one of the organizers of the business and residence owners on Highway 25, said at that January meeting, "If this happens, it could shut down the businesses. The state has been very clear with their intent, and we don't expect any changes."

Many business owners and home owners organized under the name, "Berea Citizens for Common Sense on 25N," following that January meeting, because of the fear that if this five lane expansion took place, it would force many businesses out because of the parking it would take away. The group advocated for a three lane design, and other biking enthusiasts advocated for bike lanes that would be placed on the road instead of expecting bikers to use the shared use path. These comments and arguments were taped at a city council meeting and sent to the state.

By mid-February, all involved parties including city officials, CDP Engineers and District 7, agreed that a redesign should be done for a three lane on Highway 25 N. Right turn lanes were added on both the west and east sides of Glades Road, which would require additional purchasing of right of way. Bike lanes were placed in the driving lanes - four inches in width - and the shared use path was moved to the west side of the project.

At the next public meeting, everyone expressed satisfaction with the Highway 25N three-lane design, a valuable example of citizenry, public officials and state government working together for something that would satisfy all. The redistricting that was proposed for Kentucky in January divided Madison County into four representative districts. It was a measure that had already passed the Kentucky House of Representatives. Representative Lonnie Napier, who had represented Berea and Madison County for several years, would no longer be representing any precincts in the county with the proposed redistricting.

One of the districts would have been the 81st district, Representative Rita Smart's current district, who would have kept approximately the same boundaries of her district. The other majority industries in town laying off almost 100 workers and one small precinct in Berea going slightly damp as far as alcohol.

Light House Home Products on Walnut Meadow laid off 99 workers early in April, well over half of the plant's month.

The management of Light House Home Products never responded to attempts by the Citizen to contact them about the layoff and the future status of the organization.

A local option election in April also ended up approving alcohol for qualified historic sites in East Berea precinct. This is the first time in Berea's history that any business could sell alco-hols. The vote ended up with 147 people voting yes, and 47 voting no. Approximately 16 percent of that precinct voted in the local option election.

The only qualified historic site in the East Berea precinct at the present time is Boone Tavern. At the end of this calendar year, it's still unknown whether they will take advantage of the opportunity to sell alcohol, since that would depend on a vote by the Board of Trustees.

Also during April, Mike Hogg was announced as the new superintendent of the Berea Independent School District, a position that has been vacant since Gary Conkin retired in October of 2011. Hogg had been the Acting Superintendent for the majority of the school year.

"I am very excited and honored," Hogg said, as he considered his continuing role at Berea Community. "We have such a great kids, a great staff and a great administration."

district would have been the 88th that Representative Bill Farmer served in Fayette County. The other two districts with pieces of Madison County in them would have been District 86th and District 91.

The redistricting ended up getting overturned in court, and the judge decreed that Kentucky should go back to its prior precinct map for the upcoming elections. For the round of elections in 2012, Kentucky had the same precincts as the election before, which sent many representatives scurrying at the last minute to file for the right one.

March and April

In March and April, a few different key things happened in Berea, including one of the smaller in-workforce. The company sent out letters to city officials that stated the layoff was for an indeterminate period of time, though there were initial plans to hopefully hire the workers back within six months. Despite these assurances at the time, as of the end of this calendar year there has been no move to do that.

It was also reported that Light House Home Products, which provides candles and other items to retail outlets, had listed their property for sale at $7,250,000. In the listing, it was written that the space could be subdivided for lease purposes down to as small as 50,000 square foot to 200,000, 300,000 or 600,000 square foot. City Administrator Randy Stone stated that the layoff would result in $3,000 less revenue for the city a

Above, Robbie Little, the owner of Berea Drug, points to where Highway 25 would have expanded if it had been widened to a five lane road as designed by the Kentucky Department of Transportation. Little would have lost two-thirds of his parking lot and a business such as Sipple's Chiropractic and Wellness Center may have lost all of its parking.

Citizen Archives

This year the East Berea precinct voters voted to allow alcohol in their precinct in qualified historic sites. Currently, the only qualified business would be Boone Tavern, and the Board of Trustees would need to make that decision.

Hogg served as elementary school principal at Berea Community for seven years before changing positions this past year to Director of District-Wide Services. All together, he has been at Berea Community over 11 years.

May and June

In May's primary elections, Jonathan Shell and Darlene Snyder were the big winners, with Shell getting a decisive win over Nathan Mick in the race to be the Republican candidate for the open State Representative seat in the 36th District for Madison and Garrard County. Long time Representative Lonnie Napier had thrown his support behind Mick for the seat he had filled for so long, but Mick still fell by 590 votes to Shell.

"The results don't show how hard a race this was to win," Shell said at the time. "Mick ran a great race. But our motto from the very beginning was to work like it depends on you, and pray like it depends on the Lord."

In Madison County, Shell won by a much slimmer margin than Garrard, where his family lives, getting 810 votes to Mick's 756 in Madison. In Garrard County he received an impressive 63 percent of the vote with 1,292 votes.

Snyder won the race for circuit clerk against two contenders, taking 45 percent of the vote to Jennifer Webb's 38 percent and Brandy Winkler's 16 percent. With no Republican registered for the office, the primary served as an overall win for the circuit court clerk for Snyder.

"I'm very proud and pleased," Snyder said. "We ran a good, clean, positive campaign. I've really enjoyed going door to door, meeting everyone and I've had such wonderful help."

Webb, who ran a strong campaign, came in a close second to Snyder, with 2,097 votes to Snyder's 2,489. Snyder's campaign emphasized her experience, with her working since 1988 as chief deputy clerk. She was heavily endorsed by current Circuit Clerk Linda Spurlock Cates, who is retiring.

Shell ended up winning the 36th District seat in the Kentucky General Assembly against Democratic candidate, Bud Montgomery, of Berea, despite stated concerns on his youth and inexperience.

When he spoke of his goals once he served in Frankfort, Shell said, "First, we need to fix the antiquated tax system, and do some tax reform. We also need to look at these unfunded liabilities. We need to let the people govern, instead of programs and institutions."

The home incarceration program in Madison County started in June of this year, partly in response to the overcrowding of the Detention Center. In a facility with approximately 200 beds, the center routinely has up to 280. The fiscal court was also interested in this option so people could work and/or take care of their family while serving their sentence.

Michelle Albertson, the deputy from the sheriff's department was assigned to the program. When it started in mid-June, two females were enrolled and wearing the required ankle bracelets. By the end of the year, the home incarceration program had around 40 in it. Because of how busy she became immediately, the fiscal court ended up hiring someone else to assist Albertson.

July and August

There was some very sad news in July this past year, when the Berea Health Ministry announced that it was closing its doors as of August 31 because of lack of funds. In the same month, while health care was on the way out, ironically, chickens did find safe harbor in the City of Berea.

Despite scrimping, saving and soliciting, the Health Ministry couldn't leverage enough funds to stay open. The board of directors had decided back in May to close their clinic, but did not make that public in case there was a chance to receive enough money to continue.

"It's absolutely awful," Cora Fletcher said at the time, the president of the board of directors of the Ministry. "This was really 12 years of planning, with nine years of operation."

The health ministry had kept their heads above water for several years, until 2008 hit with the recession. Berea Health Ministry took double hits, since the number of patients increased who needed their services that didn't have insurance, and the donations decreased.

Staff at the health ministry worked during July and August to find clinics for their existing patients. They stopped the prescription assistance on August 1. They stated that telling the patients that the clinic was closing had been the hardest part.

"It's been devastating. Some of these patients have been coming for years," Fletcher said. "A lot of good things have come out of the last nine years. But our goal was also to see a transformation of the health of our community and we didn't have enough time for that. It takes at least ten years of operation to see behavior change."

Cappie Parsons, the administrator, struggled with her tasks, "It's a grieving process," she said in July. "You keep thinking surely there's a way we can keep on."

As far as the welcome sign for fowl, the final act in the ongoing drama of chickens in Berea occurred when the Berea City Council unanimously approved an amended chicken ordinance early in July that would send interested chicken owners directly to the codes department for permit consideration.

The chicken ordinance that was passed the prior year required homeowners to apply for a conditional use permit, and then solicit the board of adjustments for approval. With the amended chicken ordinance that passed this year, all applications for the conditional use permit will go to the codes depart-

NOSW Awarded $15,000 Grant

New Opportunity School for Women (NOSW) was awarded a $15,000 grant along with ten other nonprofits that are helping individuals gain the education, training and resources they need to build and maintain careers. The November call for submissions resulted in more than 21,677 nominations from Facebook users who submitted descriptions of each nonprofit's impact in their local community. Walmart Foundation gave the grants. Submissions were initially reviewed by associates from across the company and then a panel from the Walmart Foundation selected the winning organizations.

Lori Sliwa, NOSW's executive director was notified three weeks ago but had to keep the announcement confidential until the formal announcement on the corporation's website this past Sunday, Dec. 16.

"It was so difficult to not share with everyone, but it was well worth the wait", said Sliwa. "We are thrilled with this unexpected gift, and even more pleased to know that a graduate nominated us!"

While the graduate who submitted the nomination is still not known, the nomination was shared with NOSW; "The New Opportunity School for Women is an organization that helps middle aged, low income women in Appalachia. They educate the women in a 3 week residential program held 2 times a year. In this 3 weeks, they expose these women to education and have classes to teach them to be more confident. As a graduate of the school I can say they drug me off rock bottom and gave me confidence, and made me feel I am a valuable person. Now I am in my 2nd semester in college, simply because they helped me. A lot of the women are survivors or victims of domestic violence, some have very little education, some have lots of health issues. They give mammograms, dental check ups and various other medical checkups to all the women who attend, and have a grant to help the women get false teeth. They basically hand life back to the women. This organization deserves every dime they can get. Last winter someone burnt the office down with all the stuff they use, and they need help to recover from that."

Over twelve consecutive days, a total of $1.5 million will be awarded to 140 organizations across the country that are providing basic needs and services such as food, shelter, clothing and medical care.

You're getting this paper on Thursday as always. But in order for staff to get some time off to spend with family on Christmas we're working feverishly to get it finished days earlier.

As a matter of fact while I write this it's 12-21-12. Yep, the day the Mayan calendar concludes. So, who knows, all this work may be in vain.

Jimmy Kimmel is of course a much better comedian than I, he said, "Christmas is on Tuesday, provided that the world doesn't end on Friday, which is the end of the Mayan calendar. Some believe there will be massive didn't collapse. Well, not really, because I knew that would have widespread economic consequences which could result in bad things like violence and famine.

Alas, the end of the world hasn't happened yet, so we are faced with a new year and whatever good or bad it may hold for us. But why does the New Year begin on January 1st? Various cultures around the globe have celebrated the New Year at various times; commonly based on agricultural or astronomical occurrences. Like the Mayans, many cultures created calendars to keep track of time using new moons, the rising of various stars, and other methods to mark certain dates. In the Roman Empire, this was done as well, but the calendar was falling out of sync with the sun.

Julius Caesar, in 46 B.C., decided to solve the problem with the calendar being out of sync. After consulting with the most prominent astronomers and mathematicians of his time, he established the Julian calendar; which closely resembles today's Gregorian calendar. As part of his reform, Caesar established January 1st as the first day of the year to honor the Roman god Janus. January is named after Janus, the Roman god of new beginnings. With two faces, Janus looks both at the old year and the new future ahead. Medieval Christians temporarily changed New Year's to December 25th (anniversary of Christ's birth) and March 25th (Feast of the Annunciation), but Pope Gregory XIII re-established January 1st as New Year's Day in 1582.

The year 2012 had its share of problems and turmoil; ending not long after the devastating tragedy in Connecticut. And, 2013 inherits its share of ongoing issues; from wars in the Middle East to growing global economic and environmental problems. If we dwell on these things, it can be difficult to be really excited about a new year, or even another day. This reminds me of Matthew 6: 34: "Therefore, do not worry about tomorrow, for tomorrow will worry about itself. Each day has enough trouble of its own." (NIV)

The New Year offers new hope... one day at a time. Many folks will undoubtedly make New Year's resolutions. 2012 was so hectic for me; I found myself, so many times, just wanting to get this and that over with. I will try to make a resolution this year to be more grateful for each day, and take time to "smell the roses".

If you are reading this article, December 21st passed without the Mayan "end of the world prophesy" coming true. Maybe the Mayan calendar just ran out because they ran out of space on the rock they were carving it on... or meant for it to be a cycle and start back up at the beginning. Who knows...

Talk of the end of the world reminds me of when Y2K happened... or didn't happen, actually. We lived in an old farm house in the middle of nowhere, at the time. We weren't too worried about it, as we had a cellar stocked up with food, chickens, a pond full of big catfish, and were surrounded by farms with huge grain bins full of corn. Our vehicles were too old to be affected, too, since they didn't have computers.

Being almost a "Luddite" myself (someone who wishes technology would have stopped progressing before the industrial revolution), I was a little disappointed that all our "high falutin" satellite-based computer systems

Getting the Christmas Tree

Letters from Berea

Beth Myers Editor

Getting and decorating the Christmas tree with my children has become one of my favorite holiday traditions. We headed out to Baldwin Farms last week to chop one down, as has become our tradition, and since my husband's back was bothering him I cut down my first Christmas tree. Quite a moment that.

My kids, though they did take a short moment to approve of our choice, quickly ran off to play on the assorted equipment set up at the farm, including ropes set up on a hill and another Maypole type of device where they could swing around it. We were able to visit with the assorted dogs that live there, that always seem very good natured, and have the customary hot chocolate.

My children's favorite thing was chasing both a goat and a cow that had somehow liberated themselves from the fenced in area. What I don't understand is why these animals stay close to the fence once they are free, just walking on the other side and grazing. Perhaps the thrill is gone once they actually get out of the fenced in area -- then life takes on its regular, monotonous, grazing flow.

My youngest son kept trying to direct my oldest on how to approach these animals, "go very slowly so you don't scare it," he said, measuring his steps carefully. My oldest, I believe, really did try, but each time he would suddenly yell, "I HAVE TO CHASE IT!" And off he would go, while the cow or goat in question would roll their eyes to the heavens, as if to ask, "do we have to do this again?"

pulled all the decorations out, and it was time to trim the tree. My husband has coached me most carefully to not try to control where the ornaments go, but it can be difficult. My youngest has this thing about grouping them all together, like bunches of grapes. I started to pick up some apple ornaments from Peacraft that were lying on the floor, hooked to the lowest branches, when my youngest quickly stopped me. Those ornaments, he told me, were very heavy, so he put them on the floor on the lowest branches so they wouldn't fall and break.

Call me Monk, but it's becoming very difficult for me to not rearrange the ornaments evenly around the tree, but my husband is quite adamant on this point.

And when we were all done, we turned off the lights and lit it up and sat while listening to Christmas music. And we all agreed that it was the best tree ever, as we always do.

First Grade Memories

Dear Editor,

First Grade..... Ahhh, to look back to a sweet time! Never were there so many hugs, never so much love. Every day was full of smiles, hugs, running noses, pouts, friends (everyone was your BFF), chatter, and love - always so much love. Truly, "love grows here" in the first grade. Fear was only when you did not have your homework! Anxiety was only when you couldn't sound out the word. Stress was only when the math answer wasn't the same as your neighbors. But none of these issues grew so big that a hug and smile could not erase. You were in the arms of love and security and you knew it!

Today, senseless violence has covered the sweet first grade with pain. Unimaginable pain. These innocent, loving, little ones have experienced the worst humanity has to offer. The sincere trust they had in their lives has been shattered and will not be regained. Fear is crippling.

We all mourn for the families who have lost the very heart of their lives. Most of us could not even imagine how we would cope. We need to pray for those who continue to help the children deal with tragedy. This is a long term need and we must not forget them!

Use this trusted and tried recipe with the children you touch: Hug often. Love always. Smile even when it's hard. Love always. Listen-really stop and listen. Love always. Teach values you cherish. ALWAYS LOVE!

ment. If all requirements are met, and the applicant has no recorded codes violations, the permit would be granted.

The issue of neighbors' rights regarding someone harboring chickens came to a head when Katherine Gardner of Adams Street had applied for a conditional use permit earlier, after having been denied the year before. Both times a few neighbors, or people representing neighbors, testified strongly against Gardner receiving the conditional use permit. The board of adjustments ended up turning down her request for the second time, but did not offer a recorded finding of fact.

September and October

In the early fall of this year from September to October, potential jobs were announced, Frances Moore turned 100 and Berea lost Sue Hays -- who brought the library to Madison County -- when she died of cancer.

Stemco Motorwheel, an industry in town, announced in October that they would be expanding their production in the next few years. They stated that they were eventually planning to add over 100 jobs in Berea, with a distribution center in the vacant portion of their building on Glades Road for phase one, while planning a $12-$15 million renovation and expansion of the business for phase two.

In the first phase of the expansion, Stemco planned to hire for an additional 35 hourly positions and five salaried positions. For phase two, they plan on creating 80 additional jobs.

Stemco was also looking at Tennessee and Texas for their expansion, but they chose Berea, according to Tom McKay, the director of business development, mainly because of the low electric rate. Other factors were the incentive package that Kentucky offers to new businesses as well as the UPS distribution center in Lexington.

Stemco manufactures a fairly unique brake drum for semi trucks and other heavy equipment.

Staff, patrons and friends of the Madison County Library mourned the lost of one of their staunchest advocates in October, when Hays passed away after a tough battle with cancer. She was the first library director of Madison County, worked hard to get the library started, and then spent the first several years creating a sense of goodwill in the community after it opened its doors in Richmond in 1988. The library in Berea came soon after, in the spring of 1989, opening operations from the storefront at 319 Chestnut St.

"At her birthday party, she came in and talked to me about the library, wanting to know what was going on," Ruthie Maslin said, the library director who took over after Sue retired. "Even ill, she was wanting to know everything that was happening. I told her our circulation passed over 500,000, which is big in the library world, and she was so excited. It was such a big part of her life."

Another important woman in Berea's history, former council woman and local historian Frances Moore, celebrated her 100th birthday in October in the building that she fought so fiercely to save -- the old L & N Train Depot that was renovated into the Berea Welcome Center.

"It was such an honor to have her celebrate her 100th birthday here," Belle Jackson, Berea's Tourism Director said. "To have her here in the building she was so passionate about was wonderful."

Moore may best be known for her work to save the Depot in the late 1960s. Mayor Steve Connelly stated that this would be her greatest legacy in Berea.

November and December

The Berea City Council elections took place early in November, and unlike the previous two elections, the incumbents were heavily favored. There were 13 people running for the eight available seats, and only one, Richard Belando, was voted off. Truman Fields chose to not run again. One newcomer, Chad Hembree, will be joining the council along with Chester Powell, who served for 12 years before losing in 2008.

"I'm surprised that I was sixth," Hembree said, who ran for city council in 2010, but didn't make it. "I thought if I did get in, I would barely get in. I'm very excited."

Incumbents Virgil Burnside, Vi Farmer, Jerry Little, Ronnie Terrill, Diane Kerby and Billy Wagers were all re-elected for a second term. Kerby was once again the top vote getter, same as 2010, with 2,807 votes. Billy Wagers, also a usual top vote getter, received 2,745 votes for the second slot.

Hopefuls Robert Johnson, Brandon Rutherford, Jim Lucas and Jerry Knowles all failed to receive enough votes to gain

one of the top eight slots. This was the third time Johnson ran for election and failed, and the second time Rutherford was unable to gain a seat. Lucas and Knowles, both relative newcomers to the city of Berea, finished at the bottom with 2,006 and 1,165 votes respectively.

Hembree was one of the first city council candidates to run on a mostly Internet campaign, placing campaign ads on Facebook, his blog and google ad words. He had 13,000 hits on one of his campaign ads.

Hembree also stated that he would be glad to lend his IT expertise and his technology know-how to the City of Berea, and be a resource and a help to the city.

"I just want to thank everyone for their support," Hembree said after his election. "I love this community with all my soul and I just want to serve it."

Working hard for a better Berea.

Realty World Adams and Associates would like to thank everyone for their support in 2012. Without the support of our local community, it would not have been possible for Realty World Adams and Associates to have had the rapid growth and the ability to sell over $26,000,000 worth of real estate transactions in todays market. There are many positive things happening in Madison County and we believe that it will continue to grow. We wish everyone a blessed holiday season and the best in 2013!

Word From Berea Streets

"What is your 2013 New Year's Resolution?"

Anne Boes of Berea said, "My New Year's resolution is to be the kind of person I should be: a Christian. To remember, 'to do unto others as you would have them do unto you.'"

Betina Gardner of Berea replied, "My New Year's resolution is to be grateful every single day in spite of the recent news stories." Her son, Finley replied, "My resolution is to not smack my bubble gum so much, and her daughter Lily plans to resolve to "be nice to my brother every single day."

Veronda Rose of Jackson County said, "My New Year's resolution is to try and get my diabetes under control and to lose the weight I've gained because of it."

Silver Creek Homemakers

Santa really made Thursday, Dec. 13, a special day for the Silver Creek Homemakers. The 23 members met at the home of Diane Combs. Diane had everything so beautifully decorated for Christmas and ready for Santa to come.

The lunch that was coming from Ann's Catering was ready to enjoy. Believe me, there was no shortage of food. Each one really enjoyed the food and fellowship.

After lunch President Sue McAfee made some announcements and a devotion, "My First Christmas in Heaven," was given by Virginia Farmer. It was so fitting for our group as we lost four special ladies this year. Before Santa came our club presented a special gift to Diane for always having us at Christmas and doing so much for our club. We wanted to show how much we appreciated a great party for our Christmas.

Finally it was time for Santa. So gifts were passed out and each lady opened and showed what they had gotten. Then each lady played Santa, passing out small gifts they had made for each member. The ladies were so appreciative of all the gifts.

You know our club is older, but we still enjoy Santa Claus. We are a group of over the hill ladies, but we love each other and have a good time sharing and enjoying fellowship with each other.

It was really hard to leave and go home, as we were having so much fun. With all the thank you's, we finally left and wished everyone a Merry Christmas and Happy New Year.

We hope everyone will be ready to start a New Year. On Thursday, Jan. 3, we'll meet at the extension campus. Stay well and be ready for 2013.

Let's hope 2013 will be a great year for Silver Creek Homemakers.

Paint Lick Offers Quilt Class

On Saturday, Jan. 12, from 2 – 5 p.m., Paint Lick Community Arts Center will offer a "Beginning Quilting Class". Students will attend six sessions all together, January 12, 19 and 26 and February 2, 9 and 16. Each class period will last three hours. The fee for all six sessions is $85, payable the first session.

The instructor will be Diane Palmerton from Winchester who has been a quilter for ten years and is a member of the "Clark County Quilters" group. She has completed more than 20 quilts, some by hand only, some by hand and machine and some a hand and machine appliqué.

In this class Diane will teach students how to piece a quilt top to make a wall hanging or table topper. Each student will create four blocks of the following patterns: "Rail Fence", "Log Cabin", "Nine Patch" and "Pen Wheel". The student will learn to use a rotary cutter and basic quilting techniques. Each student must bring a working sewing machine and other supplies as per a list which is available at the center.

call Paint Lick Community Arts Center, 859-925-2741, or email Hal and Yvonne Davis, the directors, halyvonnedavis@gmail.com.
