

Council Discusses Water Supply Options

By Beth Myers
Citizen Editor

Options for another raw water source for Berea were discussed at the city council meeting Tuesday evening, and City Administrator Randy Stone also made an important announcement about the Berea Bypass. There has been a letting date scheduled for the bypass, or a date that the project will go out for bid, assuring Bereans that bids for the bypass construction should occur relatively soon.

Engineer Ronald C. McMaine reported to council members on the possibilities of building another

HRC Moves Slow, But Steady

The Berea Human Rights Commission (HRC) is moving slowly, but surely towards different goals they have set themselves, including getting their infrastructure completely set up, and continuing to work on the Fairness Ordinance and the education of the Berea community regarding it. At their meeting on Monday, the committee reviewed their progress in

Installing Berea College's 9th President

By Beth Myers
Citizen Editor

Berea College President Lyle Roelofs has spent his first year at the liberal arts college listening, learning, and getting to know his new home with what he calls, "sufficient depth." This Saturday, Roelofs will be inaugurated as Berea College's ninth president in an installation ceremony at Seabury Center at 10 a.m., one of the last events in a four-day stretch of inauguration events in Berea that range from the unveiling of a sand sculpture to a 5K race.

"It's really been amazing getting to know the college and the community," Roelofs said.

Roelofs, who followed Larry Shinn as president after his service of 18 years, stated that he has been gratified at how committed the school is to the Great Commitments that it was founded on. These Great Commitments include providing an educational opportunity for students primarily from Appalachia, black and white, who have great promise and limited economic resources, as well as providing an education of high quality with a liberal arts foundation. Roelofs has found a college community that takes these commitments very seriously.

While presidents may bring a re-interpretation or a different emphasis with the commitments, Roelofs said, "I sense no interest in changing the commitments in any substantive way."

The inauguration week of events reflect Roelofs interests as well as his preference for a less posh, more real and laid-back time celebrating his installation.

"There's no grand ball," Roelofs said. "That wouldn't be Berea. We have the town dimension, community dimension, academic dimension with the symposium. There is the ceremony on Saturday, but that will even be followed by a block party."

Two rather unusual events for an inauguration week are the Presidential 5K run/one mile walk on Thursday morning and the Town and College luncheon that the Berea Chamber of Commerce is holding Thursday at noon. The 5K Run is definitely a reflection of Roelofs, who has held invitational runs every Tuesday and Thursday morning.

Civic Leader "Ned" Gilbert Passes

By Beth Myers
Citizen Editor

Berea lost a civic leader and long-time board member of Blue Grass Energy this week, when E. A. (Ned) Gilbert died on Tuesday at age 87. The father of Berea's City Attorney J. T. Gilbert and a native Berean, Gilbert was a decorated World War II hero and a past employee of the Department of Agriculture in Chicago.

Gilbert became a board member of Blue Grass Energy in July of 1967, and served as chairman for 38 years. In addition to his 45 years of service on BGenery's board, he also represented BGenery on East Kentucky Power's Board of Directors for nearly 38 years.

Tony Campbell, president and CEO of East KY Power Cooperative stated, "Mr. Gilbert was one of the most important leaders in Kentucky's history of rural electrification".

Gilbert served as chairman of EKPC's Board for 9 years, and was honored in 2005 for his contribution to the cooperative program when the newest generation unit at Spurlock Station in Maysville was named, "The Gilbert Unit".

In addition to his achievements in bringing power to rural Kentucky, Gilbert was also a true hero from America's greatest generation. During World War II as a 19-year-old, Private First Class Gilbert landed at Cherbourg, France with

Peoples Bank and Habitat Partner With Affordable Housing Funding

The partnership of the Federal Home Loan Bank of Cincinnati (FHLBank), Habitat for Humanity of Madison and Clark Counties, and Peoples Bank and Trust Company of Madison County, has announced new funding for affordable housing.

Peoples and Habitat for Humanity were awarded $160,000 from the recent round of the FHLBank's Affordable Housing Program for the acquisition, construction and rehabilitation of eight houses in Madison and Clark Counties. The project will assist very low-income, first-time homebuyers, some with special needs, with household income at or below 60 percent of area median income.

The first home will be built in Berea, followed by homes in Waco, Richmond and Winchester.

"We are especially happy to be working with our partners at Peoples Bank to create more vibrant communities by tending to housing needs for low income families," says Judy Flavell, executive director for Habitat for Humanity of Madison and Clark Counties.

Flavell adds, "We're grateful, too, for the continued support from FHLBank. Habitat has received close to $1.9 million in AHP awards over the past twenty years, and we are delighted to be partnering with FHLBank again to place more deserving families into safe, decent, and energy-efficient homes."

Habitat for Humanity of Madison and Clark Counties, an ecumenical Christian nonprofit, has been working in partnership with low income families and community partners for more than twenty years. The vision of Habitat for Humanity is a world in which every person has a safe, decent and affordable place to call home.

Each year the FHLBank Cincinnati sets aside ten percent of net earnings for the congressionally-established Affordable Housing Program (AHP), which helps create affordable housing for very low-, low- and moderate-income residents. Through the AHP, now in its 24th year, the FHLBank and its members have responsibly created more than 61,000 units of affordable housing for eligible people.

Poetry Under the Stars

"If the poets don't sing of science, who will?" asks physicist Alan Cromer.

On Tuesday, April 9, from 7-8 p.m., poetry will sing the beauty of the night sky in the Weatherford Planetarium on the Berea College campus. In "Poetry Under the Stars," members of the Berea community will read poems from various cultures and time periods, accompanied by images of stars and skies as well as musical selections provided by the Planetarium.

Physics and astronomy professor Tracy Hodge and English professor Libby Jones, plus physics teaching associates and students from English 124, Creative Writing, have combined efforts to create this program.

The event, which celebrates National Poetry Month, is dedicated to Berea Physics Professor Emeritus Smith T. Powell, ardent supporter of the planetarium. Powell, in collaboration with Jones, began offering an evening of astronomical poetry in 2006. Now living in Texas, Powell continues to locate and contribute poems to be read.

Weatherford Planetarium is located in Room 108 of the Science Building at Berea College. Both the public and campus community are welcome to come for an evening of beauty and wonder. There is no charge for the performance.

College Performs Crowns

The Berea College Theatre Laboratory will close its 2012-2013 production season with a six-night production run of Regina Taylor's play, Crowns, the weekend of April 12 and starting the next week on April 17. Taylor's play is a celebratory musical production in which hats become a springboard for an exploration of black history and identity as seen through the eyes of Yolanda, a young black woman who travels down South to stay with her grandmother after her brother is killed in Brooklyn. Gospel music, rap and dance underscore her story as she explores her cultural identity and the significance of her roots in a very energetic, colorful and theatrical depiction of African-American life. This play is filled with spiritual music, jazz numbers and African rhythmic drumming.

The Berea cast is directed by Assistant Professor of Theatre Adanna O. Barton. Barton is assisted with the musical elements of the play by Berea College graduate Jessica Slaton.

Audiences will be enchanted by the singing and performances of LaWynter Bailey, Sala Dia, Trinisha Dupree, Tessa Jones, Le'Naya Langford, Marienette Ngambou, Candace Reed, Joshua Rhoden, Emmanuel Watkins and Chelsea Watson.

"This is the perfect production to end our season with. 'Crowns' fully embodies Berea College's Great Commitments. Our extremely talented cast is ready to spread the message of love, peace, and understanding to all audience members who are fortunate enough to witness this amazingly powerful production," says Barton.

Performances of Crowns will be in the Jelkyl Drama Center on the Berea College campus on the dates of April 12, 13, and 17-20, beginning at 8 p.m. each evening. There will be a sign language interpreted performance on Friday, April 19. Tickets are $10 for the general public and can be reserved by calling the Theatre Laboratory Box Office at 985-3300 between 1 - 5 p.m. Special group prices can be arranged for groups of ten or more by calling 985-3419.

were called to Walmart because of a shoplifter. Store employees said they saw a man attempt to leave the store with items concealed under his jacket. The total value of the items was $218.20.

Officers arrested Everett Roberts, 57, of Richmond and charged him with theft by unlawful taking shoplifting.

Burglary

Connelly reminded council members that Berea only set aside $10,000 in their current budget, even though the year before they had set aside $25,000 after a one-time request.

He reported that Judge Executive Kent Clark, who had earlier refused to approve George Wyatt to serve on the airport board as a Berea representative, met with Wyatt to discuss "past conduct." Though Wyatt felt positive about the meeting, Clark has not reported on it. The airport board is currently meeting without Wyatt, with the one Berea slot sitting empty.

Though Terrill suggested not paying the $10,000 until the appointment question was cleared up, other council members felt that they shouldn't punish the county airport board by withholding their designated money. They agreed that Connelly should is-

• On March 28, a resident from the 800 block of Ridgewood Drive reported a burglary. The victim said they arrived home to find the front door open and several items missing. The estimated loss was $650.

DUI Arrest

• On March 30, a traffic stop was conducted on Richmond Road for a speeding violation. The driver slurred his speech and was unsteady on his feet. He told the officer that he had taken Xanax prior to the traffic stop.

After a short investigation, the officer determined the driver was under the influence.

Officers arrested Christopher Durham, 30, of Berea and charged him with first degree operating a motor vehicle under the influence (DUI).

reservoir in Berea, raising the existing Owsley Fork dam to increase water supply or reusing water already in the system.

Currently, Berea's water system can produce four million gallons a day, an adequate amount for the population, though it can get tight if there is a significant drought. However, within the next few decades usage is projected to increase quite a bit.

"There will be increased production because of an increase in population," McMaine reported, who suggested that Berea look to increasing their available water by one million gallons a day.

"You want enough water supply to be tolerable in a moderate drought," McMaine stated later.

By 2050, water demand is estimated to increase to 4.3 million gallons per day.

There are four different reservoirs that Berea pulls water from, with Owsley Fork being the largest by far with 652 million gallons. Lower Silver Creek has 80 million gallons, and upper Silver Creek provides 20 million gallons. Cowbell is the second largest reservoir with 143 million gallons.

McMaine reminded council members that Berea has an existing contract with Berea College concerning the raw water supply, with conditions that may need to be modified so that the city can pursue options for additional raw water.

"Berea College's system was not designed to go beyond four millions gallons a day," McMaine. "They didn't consider that they would need to."

The city has looked at creating an additional reservoir at both Drowning Creek and Upper Owsley Fork. The problem with Drowning Creek is the high costs to bring the water to the treatment plant as well as the number of property owners involved. Upper Owsley could be an option, with storage of 600 million gallons, but that could be too costly.

Some have asked about pumping from the Kentucky River, but McMaine stated that this would be the most expensive option, since it would require 108,000 feet of transmission main. Bereans would also be sharing the same pool of water as Richmond and Irvine. The option of purchasing water has also been brought up, but Richmond would be the only possible candidate and they are not interested. The water cost could also equal $1.1 million a year.

There have been discussions in the last couple of years about renovating the Owsley Fork Dam, because it has been designated as a "high hazard" dam.

"This is not because of the state of the dam," McMaine assured council members. "This is because of who would be affected if the dam failed. If there would be any houses under water if the dam fails, then it is designated a high hazard dam."

Staff from Berea Municipal Utilities have explored the possibility of raising the Owsley Fork Dam with McMaine, which would then raise the available amount of raw water. McMaine said this would be a complex situation, however.

"And when you say the word 'complex,'" McMaine said wryly, "then it's another word for expensive."

The National Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) would give a potential 65 percent match for eligible costs in renovating the dam to get it out of "high hazard" status, but currently the NRCS has no money and they would only fund what is needed for the hazard status.

The last option that McMaine brought up was reusing water -- pumping limited wastewater plant discharge into Cowbell's drainage basin.

"We're not advocating it, we're not recommending it, we're exploring it," McMaine said.

McMaine said he expected that nationally reusing or recycling water would increase in the next several years; it is a current push with water usage. Currently, there is no water department in Kentucky that reuses water -- if Berea does take this on, they would be the first. There are no regulations currently in place for Kentucky, so McMaine stated they would need to follow the more stringent national requirements. The reuse option, McMaine stated, would produce the needed increase of one million gallons.

City council member Ronnie Terrill asked for an approximate cost for the renovation of the Owsley Fork dam, but McMaine said they were too many variables for him to venture a dollar figure.

During their earlier work session, the city council received a report on the amended budget that city staff has prepared. City Administrator Stone reported that the city was still very stable financially, and he expected that they would come in $200,000 more revenue than expenses at the end of the year.

City staff are looking at some possible renovations to the city hall building to solve some space issues. Fire Chief Roy Curtis informed Stone that the fire department was pretty cramped, and that led to looking overall at space needs. Stone agreed to schedule a future work session to discuss it, once they research possibilities a bit more.

Fuel costs have really increased for the police department, because of having a full contingency of officers. They are patrolling more and making more arrests, which means more trips to Richmond since arresting officers need to have fingerprints taken at the Madison County Detention Center.

The Tourism Commission will be undertaking two capital projects; one will be renovating the Chestnut Street property between city hall and the municipal building, and the other will be a shared use path between Mayde and the Kentucky Artisan Center. The city will also be renovating the kitchen in the Russel Acton Folk Center.

Randy Coffey addressed the city council group about the Highway 25 yard sale, which will take place from June 6 - 8. He has already talked to different people in the community, and asked council members to consider providing some generator-driven, scrolling signs. Parking and traffic issues were dis-sue the $10,000, explaining that it was the amount budgeted for this year, and concerns about the airport board and appointments could be discussed on the next budget go-round.

Campus is looking particularly spiffy this week. And with good reason, it's not everyday Berea College inaugurates a new president. We join the campus community and all of Berea in welcoming President Roelofs and wishing him a long and successful tenure.

After what seemed like the longest, coldest and dampest March on record I'm sure we're all welcoming spring too. The sunshine is a spirit lifter for sure. So was Easter Sunday, even through the clouds and drizzle.

I don't think the eight o'clock service at Pilot Knob could have been any more inspiring. The cantata was worship at it's best and pastor Greg's Resurrection Day message a true celebration.

Then it was on to Mom's for a family feast and egg hunt for the little ones. Canon, almost ten now, couldn't decide whether he wanted to help the old guys hide the eggs or hunt them. I was glad he decided to join the fun of the hunt with Aubrey our other ten year old. There was no question for Caleb, Ally and Evan, they were excited about how many eggs they'd find. The babies, Eli and Carly even uncovered a few, with some help. Ally came away with lucky egg and the rest of us came away feeling the joy of a day well spent with family.

The third welcome is for Tim Pack, the newest member of the staff here at The Citizen. A very gifted artist, he will be handling graphic design for the paper.

He is also the pastor at Wallaceton Baptist Church. Tim and his wife Joyce are Berea residents, they have four sons and one daughter-in-law and are expecting their first grandchild soon. They're in for some good times.

Fighting Diseases of the Mind

Letters from Berea

Beth Myers
Editor

Jonathan Schinhofen wrote a good piece about mental illness and suicide for our health page this week, and ever since reading it I've found myself remembering different members of my family and different friends who have been swallowed whole by the nightmare world of mental illness and madness.

My schizophrenic aunt is seen as doing well as long as she pays her bills and cleans her house at times, and different of my cousins have melted down in their young adult years as depression or bipolar disorder wore out their hopes and dreams. I don't find meaning or wisdom in their struggles;

I only find a deep sadness that they should struggle so much through no fault of their own. It is a tragedy that no amount of positive thoughts, yoga, willpower or meditation can fix, regardless of how many well-meaning friends have offered such remedies.

I attend governmental meetings for both county and state, and listen to different advocates speak for ending cancer, heart disease, diabetes, and talk of their struggles to raise money for these causes. I support the battles they are fighting, but I wonder why one of the most horrible diseases inflicting humankind is not on the fundraising radar for most of us. Where are the foundations to support research into mental illness? Into fighting the madness that inflicts schizophrenics? Their diagnosis is not a death sentence, but it's definitely a life sentence. Why are pharmaceutical companies the only ones with mass marketing? Other people will vilify these companies with their profit motivations -- but I'm just relieved there is a profit margin that encourages the research. Those psychotropic drugs are the reason that two of my cousins are still in this world, and not dead from their own hand.

The tragedy of mental illness is that people have to accept that they cannot always trust their own mind, that their thoughts are suspect. It is a shaky reality to base a life on, relationships on, careers on.

I wait for the time when annually an organization approaches city council for a proclamation on fighting mental illness, when stories are told of victims who have fallen, and victory stories are related where those in need get help. When attacking the madness of the brain is as unremarkable as battling influenza.

Planting Trees in the Snow

ent oak seedlings which were measured last fall. So, the work is just beginning. Stay tuned for the results, in a couple of years.

For now, the issue at hand is just getting all those seedlings in the ground. The seedlings arrived during the first week of March from the Kentucky State Nursery. After such a mild winter, I had been wishing I had opted for them to be shipped in February. For the best results, seedlings should be planted before it starts to warm up. So, I was worried that we wouldn't be able to get them all planted before our puny little winter rapidly escalated into hot weather.

Instead, we ended up having to schedule our work days around times when the ground wasn't too frozen to plant. Ultimately, we finished our last two days of planting early this week... in the snow. At times, it was snowing so hard, we had to position ourselves with our backs facing the wind, as you couldn't keep your eyes open with the wintery blast blowing in your face.

I suppose we could have put off planting the seedlings and did something else until better weather. But, you never know about Kentucky weather... this spring could turn into another drought, like last year. Better have those seedlings in the ground as early as possible, to take advantage of the wet ground while they can, I reasoned.

The weather has sure been crazy the last few years. When the record flood that happened about three years ago; I was still in Clarksville, TN. However, I got to experience the flood there as well. Water from here in Eastern Kentucky swept down through the Cumberland River Valley and flooded downtown Clarksville (as well as the more publicized downtown Nashville). Since I've been the Berea College Forester, in just under three years, we've had both the wettest year in Kentucky history, and the hottest. And now, we're planting trees in the snow.

I wonder what's next?

"Let us not be weary in well doing, for in due season we shall reap if we faint not."

New Resident Urges Fairness

Editor, Berea Citizen,

As a newer resident to Berea, it is disheartening to know that I now live in a city that doesn't offer full protections to its citizens. After serving 12 years in the army, being a decorated soldier who served in combat, I would like to feel safe to settle down in a community. While there is nothing the city can directly do if someone were to yell obscenities from a passing car; the city could pass a fairness law that would include anti-discrimination protections based on actual or perceived sexual orientation or gender identity in the areas of employment, housing and public accommodations. With this law in place, a potential partner and I would be able to live a full and complete life in Berea.

Since I want to settle down in Berea and feel safe; I have been able to take an active role in Bereans for Fairness.

Bereans for Fairness brings together concerned citizens, a good intersection of diverse people of race, color, religion, national origin, sex, age, disability, familial status, sexual orientation and gender identity. If we bring our community together and celebrate our differences, we can be proud to call Berea home where we all are treated fairly. Taking an active role in the community just doesn't mean to be involved with equal rights. Being involved means that you can be a consumer within the community, able to go into businesses and not be discriminated against. Now if you wish to have equal rights in Berea, full protections that all citizens should have, then we invite you join us in our regularly scheduled Bereans for Fairness meetings.

Jared Carpenter and Rita Smart: A Contrast in Styles

Guest Column

Andy McDonald,
KYNews.org

complain: "In my day we didn't need the government to care about bullying! We handled a bully the good old fashioned way - with blind rage, a solid club, and gratuitous violence!"

Smart took a position that could appeal to both Republicans and Democrats, and even if her initiative doesn't actually impose any regulatory action, it can at least raise awareness. Who could quibble with that?

In contrast, Senator Jared Carpenter took a stand that assumes more political risk.

On the surface, Carpenter's bill to allow Kentucky to resist federal gun control seems like a low risk venture in the deeply red Bluegrass State.

President Obama isn't especially popular in Kentucky, so standing up to Washington seems like it would be a crowd pleaser. But here's where things get interesting. The good news for Jared Carpenter is that he made national news on an issue that is dear to conservatives. That is also the bad news for Carpenter, because now he becomes a legitimate target in the eyes of liberal donors not just in Kentucky, but beyond the Bluegrass State.

Before Carpenter sponsored his bill, a state senator from Berea Kentucky would have been of little consequence to liberals. But now Carpenter means something to proponents of gun control. He can be painted as a backwoods advocate for the so-called "gun nuts," as well as the guy who dared obstruct Barack Obama's utopian vision. To liberals, Carpenter is not just an opponent anymore. He's an enemy. And that may make it easier for Carpenter's 2014 opponent to raise money among Obama loyalists and supporters of gun control who previously couldn't have cared less whether Jared Carpenter was reelected.

Carpenter's legislation raises important questions concerning the rights of the states. Smart tackled an important issue as well. But unlike Smart's position, Carpenter's stand carries substantial political risk. After Carpenter's bill made the news, Facebook was alight with rage, as liberals in Berea and Richmond denounced Carpenter's stand. There was no rage following Rita Smart's anti-bullying rally at Madison Middle School.

In a sense, both Carpenter and Smart have a tougher job than past legislators. When Ed Worley held office, he had the luxury of demonstrating his efficacy by playing Santa Claus, showing up at city council and fiscal court meetings with state checks that were the size of beach towels. That didn't make too many people mad. But now that the money has dried up in Frankfort, it seems lawmakers have to play for more "moral" victories that they used to. So Carpenter rallies gun rights supporters while Smart takes a very public position against bullying. The difference between the two, however, is that Carpenter's action, for better or worse, may well affect the outcome of his 2014 re-election bid.

The CEO of Blue Grass Energy, Michael I. Williams, said, "Mr. Gilbert was a true leader in every aspect. No doubt, he touched the lives of many during his 45 years of service to this cooperative. Mr. Gilbert was one of the kindest gentlemen I ever knew, treating everyone with respect and kindness. He always made you feel like you mattered. Yesterday, we lost a true friend. events, there are other parts of Roelofs experience in Berea that have been rather unconventional. Soon after moving in to the President's House on campus, Lyle and his wife Laurie found themselves hosts to a chicken. Having stowed away on an employee's truck who was also its owner, the chicken ran for the forsythia bush in front of the President's house once the truck stopped. Despite numerous attempts to catch it, the wily fowl evaded capture and insisted on hanging around Lyle and Laurie's home.

"I never thought on moving to Berea, that I would find myself taking care of a chicken," Roelofs said chuckling.

They have named her Dora, after Dora the Explorer. Once they tamed her enough to capture her, Lyle and Laurie decided they wanted to keep her, a request that the former owner gladly granted. Roelofs reports that she lays one or two eggs a day at a couple of special spots, but that does not quite pay for her feed or their efforts to keep predators away from her.

Roelofs has especially enjoyed getting to know the Berea College students. "It's been extremely heart-warming getting to know the students here," Roelofs said. "You hear their stories, and it's like, 'wow,' what this kid has already overcome to make it this far."

He has spent a great deal of time traveling this first year, since many people around the country wish to meet the new president.

He has held several events with alumni clubs, and spent time with committed donors. One highlight for him this year was a major gift from an alum, the largest ever received by an individual alum.

Roelofs, like other Berea College presidents before him, states that not offering tuition is a fundamental part of the college, and will not be changed. Though the downturn in the economy several years ago did cause a lot of administrative cuts for the college, Roelofs said their capital markets have recovered significantly, resulting in a fairly straightforward budget this year, and the ability to offer more than just the minimal raises for faculty and staff.

Roelofs is also pleased by a plan to hire a director of health and wellness as well as a sustainability coordinator. Though the college has already been involved in several sustainability initiatives, the coordinator will allow them to do things more programmatically.

"I wouldn't be surprised if those two positions don't have a significant impact," Roelofs said.

So far, Roelofs' plans and leadership style have met with positive responses from students, faculty and staff alike. He has been using the Great Commitments in faculty meetings, to take a fresh look through those lenses.

"Faculty have said they enjoy seeing the institution through new eyes," Roelofs said.

Artists in Modern Motion Present

The Berea College Artists in Modern Motion (AIMM) will be presenting their annual modern dance concert, Kinetic Expressions, next week with performances taking place on Wednesday, April 10, Friday, April 12 and Saturday, April 13. All shows begin at 8 p.m. in the Seabury Center Arena.

General admission tickets are $7, with $5 tickets for children under 12 years old. They will be available at the door. Ticket reservations can be made by calling 859-985-3566 between 4 - 6 p.m. from April 1-5.

Kinetic Expressions offers a full menu of modern and contemporary dance works by Berea College students, faculty and staff. This season's concert also features the work of choreographer Theresa Bautista, the director of the Louisville area dance group, Moving Collective. Bautista was commissioned by AIMM to create a new work for Berea students. Her work explores the idea of "replacement" through strong-partnered work among the dancers. This physical and dynamic piece has been a challenging and energizing experience for Berea dance students, and will also challenge audience members with movement and sound that is at times tense, sparking images of the negotiations we all make with those who precede and follow us.

Berea College Dance Programs Director Stephanie Woodie, reworks an abstract movement landscape, while faculty members Nashwa Cahill and Kristine Petersen add their own unique voices. Cahill contributes a meditation of light in the darkness and Petersen brings the explosive energy of an all male cast to the stage. Joe Saleem's work in honor of fallen family and friends will touch audiences.

Parking is available in the Seabury Center parking lot and t-shirts will be available for sale with proceeds to the Kinetic Expressions 2014 costume budget. AIMM welcomes seasoned audience members, but especially invites members of the Berea community who have not attended a modern dance concert. This will be a show with something for everyone.

For more information contact AIMM Director Sarah Downs at 859-985-3566 or sarah_downs@berea.edu.

writing up by-laws as well as a flyer they are developing regarding the Fairness Ordinance they plan to recommend to the Berea City Council at a later date.

Chairperson Lisa Vaughn stated that she was pleased with the progress of the HRC, "We're moving so many little things forward."

The committee heard a recent complaint from someone in the public school, and members were unsure of whether they had any jurisdiction in the school system. The nature of the complaint regarded weight. Vaughn stated that first they had to discover what kind of jurisdiction they had in the school system, and also how to handle weight, which is not a protected class.

The HRC members learned that the Kentucky Human Rights Commission has been hearing cases in the public school since 2005, and that weight is only a protected class if so noted by a doctor as a disability. The principal and superintendent of the school were contacted, as well as the school board, and the case will now be processed through the school's anti-bullying policy.

"This shows our role where we can be a sounding board and offer guidance," Vaughn said.

Vaughn reviewed the recently passed HB 279, which Governor Steve Beshear had vetoed, but both the House and Senate overturned. Known as the "religious freedom bill," the controversial legislation protects, "sincerely held religious beliefs" from infringement unless there is 'a compelling governmental interest.'"

"I am particularly concerned that we will be asked about it," Vaughn said, who passed out a copy of the short, less than 70 word bill. "The language is even more vague than the other 16 states that have passed such a law."

In those other 16 states, Vaughn informed other commissioners, there had already been several lawsuits.

HB 279 could particularly affect the HRC in terms of the Fairness Ordinance that they plan to propose to the Berea City Council in the future. Different advocates of the ban against discrimination based on sexual orientation are concerned that this new law will make minorities more vulnerable to discrimination.

Though the LGBT community was very vocally against the bill, Vaughn said, the bill is not specific to the LGBT community.

Two commission members are working on bringing the Vicco Mayor Johnny Cummings to Berea, so he could speak to the commission members, city council and possibly community members on the process the town went through in approving the Fairness Ordinance. Vicco passed a Fairness Ordinance back in January, making it the smallest municipality in Kentucky to enact such an ordinance.

Commission members discussed the fact that several reality television shows had made monetary offers to Vicco in order to film a reality show there, but the city council had recently voted to refuse all offers.

Suicide, A Death Like No Other

hard hit when a child takes his own life. There is often an awkwardness and social stigma left over as the bereaved finds that people are uncomfortable being in the presence of grief, or even in the presence of the grieving.

All of these are common experiences. One of the goals in treating the bereaved after a suicide is normalizing these painful events and conflicting feelings. Any unexpected death is difficult to deal with, but a suicide leaves behind it so many personal issues that are not present when the death is by an accident or sudden illness. The loved ones of a suicide victim may do well to seek counseling, preferably from an individual experienced in bereavement counseling.

When trying to make sense of a suicide, it is common to point to circumstances. Whether we are close to the suicide victim or simply friends of friends, attempts to answer the "Why?" questions tend to revolve around life circumstances like stress at work or school, a personal or professional setback, or the loss of a significant relationship. The most straightforward answer to the question of what led a person to suicide is hard to swallow for loved ones and society as a whole. It is almost too terrible to contemplate, but most often the answer does not lie in the mundane circumstances of day-to-day life.

Looking at suicides among the young and healthy, far and away the most common factor is mental illness. People with schizophrenia are 10 times more likely to die from suicide as a person from the general population. A person with bipolar disorder is around 15 times more likely to die from suicide, and the risk for people with depression is 20 times the baseline risk. We shy

Saint Joseph Berea earned a Quality Respiratory Care Recognition under a national program aimed at helping patients and families make informed decisions about respiratory care services. Above is the respiratory therapy staff of Saint Joseph Berea (l-r); Devonda Flannery, Stacey Irvin, Cherry Ruffing, Brenda Smith and Scott Thompson.

Saint Joseph Berea Recognized for Quality Respiratory Care

Saint Joseph Berea has earned Quality Respiratory Care Recognition under a national program aimed at helping patients and families make informed decisions about the quality of the respiratory care services available in hospitals. About 700 hospitals or approximately 15 percent of hospitals in the United States have applied for and received this award. Saint Joseph Berea has received the recognition for the past four years.

The QRCR program was started by the American Association for Respiratory Care in 2003 to help consumers identify those facilities using qualified respiratory therapists to provide respiratory care. Hospitals earning the QRCR designation ensure patient safety by agreeing to adhere to a strict set of criteria governing their respiratory care services.

To qualify for recognition, Saint Joseph Berea provided documentation showing it meets the following conditions:

- All respiratory therapists employed by the hospital to deliver bedside respiratory care services are either legally recognized by the state as competent to provide respiratory care or hold the CRT or RRT credential.

- Respiratory therapists are available 24 hours.
- Other personnel qualified to perform specific procedures must be designated in writing.
- A doctor of medicine or osteopathy is designated as medical director of respiratory care services.
- Hospital policy prohibits the routine delivery of medicated aerosol treatments utilizing small volume nebulizers, metered dose inhalers, or intermittent positive pressure treatments to multiple patients simultaneously. Circumstances under which this practice is permitted is defined by policy.
- Use a process that periodically compares performance of respiratory departments on efficiency and quality metrics with similar departments for the purpose of identifying and achieving a best practice.

The AARC's QRCR program grew out of growing concerns among health care leaders and the general public regarding the safety and quality of health care services provided to patients. Hospitals that meet the QRCR requirements provide a level of respiratory care consistent with national standards and guidelines, and should be commended for their commitment to quality care.

Respiratory therapists are specially trained health care professionals who work under physicians' orders to provide a wide range of breathing treatments and other services to people with asthma, chronic obstructive pulmonary disease, cystic fibrosis, lung cancer, AIDS, and other lung or lung-related conditions. They also care for premature infants and are key members of lifesaving response teams charged with handling medical emergencies.

Word From Berea Streets

"Do you drink caffeinated or energy drinks?"

Stacey Williams of Berea, with her children Taylor and Abigail said, "I never drink caffeine. I usually just have water. My kids all drink juice, milk or water."

April Johnson of Berea said, "I don't drink caffeinated soft drinks; I usually have water or juice, but I drink energy drinks like Monsters about once a week when I need a quick pick me up."
Thomas Spencer of Berea added, "I drink caffeinated soft drinks all the time."

Cody Ledford with his son, Matthew, of Berea said, "I am an occasional coffee drinker, but very seldom have soft drinks. I have been drinking Monster drinks for a couple of months to give me a little more energy."

Infection Prevention...It's In Your Hands!

Saint Joseph Berea encourages you to use good hand hygiene. It is the single most important step toward preventing spread of infection. Germs are spread through the air by coughs and sneezes, but hands play a big role. One of the most common ways to pick up germs is by touching something that is contaminated and then touching your nose, mouth or eyes. You can also spread germs to others by touching objects or people with your hands. To protect yourself from germs, thoroughly wash your hands or use an alcohol-based hand sanitizer.

Kerby Appointed to Alumni Relations

Berea College appointed Diane Kerby as acting director of the college's alumni relations office, effective this past Monday. Kerby previously held the position of vice president for business and administration at Berea College before retiring in 2007. In that role she provided operational oversight for many familiar services and operations across campus including Boone Tavern, Forestry and People Services while leading many new construction projects, including the heat plant, the Ecovillage and Fee Glade. She also was instrumental in the selling of the utility company from the college to the City of Berea in 2004.

Mortgage Suppliers Comes to Berea

Mortgage Suppliers has opened a new branch office in Berea, to serve the residential home loan needs of homebuyers and homeowners. Mortgage Suppliers, a privately held residential mortgage direct lender since 1999, named local industry professional BJ Chambers as manager. "Over the years I have worked in almost every area of the real estate industry," said Chambers. "I've done new home construction, residential lending and more."

Suppliers in 2008 was prompted by the company's longevity and commitment to customer service. "I have many relationships with realtors and attorneys who deserve the level of service I was able to deliver by joining Mortgage Suppliers, and because the company has been around since 1999 I'm confident that I am building a branch on a firm foundation," said Chambers. Among other planned locations, the new branch will also be served by lead processor, Andrea McDermott, and five additional loan specialists. "We're very pleased to have BJ Chambers leading a very knowledgeable team at Mortgage Suppliers Berea," said Peydon Pelphrey, president. "This office gives us another great opportunity to serve the customers of the Madison County community which has always been an important market for our company. We look forward to seeing BJ and his staff excel here."

Burnside Speaks to BPW

Dr. Jackie Burnside, sociology professor at Berea College, was the guest speaker at a recent Berea Business and Professional Women's meeting at the Smokehouse Grill. The topic included the history of Berea College and the close connection of African American students, teachers, residents and founders. A slide presentation accompanied the discussion, citing many familiar names, structures, locations, and citizens. The presentation was followed by a question and answer session.

Appalachian Heritage Celebrates 40 Years

The fortieth anniversary of Appalachian Heritage, the literary quarterly published by Berea College, will be celebrated this Friday, April 5, at the Loyal Jones Appalachian Center Gallery on Main Street.

The event, which is free and open to the public, will begin with a reception at 7:30 p.m., followed by a panel presentation at 8 p.m. Gurney Norman, Crystal Wilkinson, and Silas House will be the panelists.

Former Kentucky Poet Laureate, Gurney Norman, remembers when the first copy of Appalachian Heritage came out in 1973. The author of Kinfolks, Divine Right's Trip and Ancient Creek, Norman will reflect on the role of the magazine in the renaissance of Appalachian literature. He teaches creative writing at the University of Kentucky.

Crystal Wilkinson was a featured author for Appalachian Heritage in 2006. She is the owner/manager of the Wild Fig Bookstore in Lexington, the director of the Bachelors of Creative Writing Program at Morehead State University, and the author of Blackberries, Blackberries and Water Street.

Silas House's first published work appeared in Appalachian Heritage in 2004. Subsequently, he has published three novels and a youth novel and co-authored another youth novel and a non-fiction book, Something's Rising: Appalachians Fighting Mountaintop Removal.

All three of the panelists have work published in the magazine's 40th anniversary issue, which highlights some of the best work that has appeared in the magazine during its first 40 years. The issue includes 30 poems and 18 short stories and 25 art-prints and photos, all of which first appeared in previous issues of the magazine.

Several of the artists and authors have indicated that they plan to attend the celebration.

Appalachian Heritage highlights the art and literature of the Southern Appalachian Region.

Author Lee Smith called it, "absolutely indispensable, the most trenchant, dependable, knowledgeable and innovative record of our region and our times."

away from these explanations because it is awful to think that this person may be alive if he had gotten the right help. It is easier to think that the loss of a girlfriend is reason for the suicide rather than an underlying mental illness. But people lose jobs, lovers, and status all the time. Rarely does a person commit suicide because of it.

It is true that most people with a mental illness do not commit suicide, but the important point is that almost without exception, young and healthy individuals who commit suicide have a history of a mental illness or leave evidence that they were suffering from one at the time of the suicide.

This places the ball right back in our court, not as individuals close to the suicide victim, but as a society. The price of our general ignorance about mental illness and lack of available services for people with mental illness is 37,000 deaths a year. In America, suicide is between the fourth and second leading cause of death for all age groups from 10 to 54.

Night Falls Fast is a current, poignant, comprehensive, and well-researched book. While Jamison speaks with the authority of a medical professional, she retains the emotion in her voice known only by individuals who have confronted the specter of suicide. She covers the history and culture of suicide, the psychology and neurobiology of suicide, prevention, treatment, and aftermath. It is not easy to read about suicide, nor should it be. But for someone who wants to move toward understanding the incomprehensible, the book, Night Falls Fast, is a good place to start.

Night Falls Fast by Kay Redfield Jamison is available at Robie Books on Chestnut Street.

Watoto Choir Visits Berea

This Friday, the Watoto Children's Choir from Africa will be performing at Bethel Baptist Church at 7 p.m. as one of their stops in a six-month tour of the U.S. During the last of March, and most of April, the Watoto Choir will also visit Somerset, Elizabethtown, Waynesburg, Paducah, Lexington, Georgetown and Louisville. All performances – which are titled, "Beautiful Africa: A New Generation" are free and open to the public.

The Watoto Children's Choir acts as Watoto ambassadors to raise awareness about the plight of the orphaned and vulnerable children of Africa. Watoto is a holistic child-care solution initiated to serve the dire needs of Africa and her people.

Each of the children in the choir has suffered the loss of one or both parents. They live in Watoto Children's Villages where they receive the care and nurture they need.

With vibrant, original African music; dance routines; life-transforming stories, the tours is indicative of the new generation of leaders emerging out of Watoto.

"Through the choir's Concert of Hope, we share a message of transformation by telling the story of Africa's rescued orphans and women. We hope to reach out to audiences with the message of Christ's healing power," says Gary Skinner, Watoto Founder.

With its genuine appeal, accompanied by music and dance – an energetic fusion of contemporary gospel and traditional African rhythm – the globally acclaimed Watoto Children's Choirs has traveled internationally since 1994 as ambassadors for the millions of children in Africa, orphaned as a result of HIV/AIDS, war and poverty.

Since its inception, 58 choirs have traveled globally, providing the children with a bigger worldview, an unusual opportunity they would otherwise never get. The choirs have been to Australia, Brazil, China, Europe, Hong Kong, Japan, Germany, France and the U.S., among others. Their audiences have included royalty, presidents, ministers, and the ordinary person, capturing many hearts wherever they go.

To preview a performance of the choir visit: www.watoto.com/the-choir.

FROM THE BEREA CITIZEN ARCHIVES APRIL 1953

Reflections

The Kiwanis Easter Egg Hunt was scheduled for Saturday, April 4 in 1953, and took place at the college athletic field at 2 p.m. with registration at 1 p.m. Units of the Boy Scouts assisted the Kiwanians in organizing and managing the hunt, patrolling to keep the public from the grounds beforehand.

Around 250 children attended the egg hunt, and the winners of the two live white rabbits were Mike Coyle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Coyle of Holly Hill and Kolan Morelock, son of Mrs. Mary Morelock, a college student of Adams Street.

Winners of the six Easter baskets were Buddy Whitlock, sixth grade, son of Mr. and Mrs. Boxley Whitlock of Maple Street; Rose Marie Taylor, fifth grade, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Taylor of Hanson Street; Betty Neely, fourth grade, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Neeley of Route 2; Janice Kirk, third grade, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bascom Kirk of Hillside Drive; Polly Ann Downs, second grade, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Downs of Jackson Street; Tim Bryn, first grade, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Byrn of Center Street; Joyce Whittemore, preschool; and Christopher Drake, kindergarten, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Drake of the college campus.

Chairman of the Kiwanis Egg Hunt Committee, Alva Pullins, said that 120 dozen eggs were colored and hidden by members of the Club before the event. He expressed gratitude to the Berea College Store for serving as a distributing point for the coloring and collection of the eggs on Saturday morning.

On March 27 and 28, 21 pre-college age pianists from the Berea College Music Department participated in the contest sponsored by the North Central Kentucky Federation of Music Clubs held in Lexington. Sixteen of the 21 were judged superior in the contest, and five excellent.

The ones who received a superior award were Trudy Gilkerson, Polly Downs, Veree Thompson, Helen Bibbee, Carolyn Jennings, Helen Hovey, Gail Jennings, Helen Pauck, Kenneth Griffith, John Stivers, Mary Roberts, Irene Blanton, Jean Baker, Ruth Biggerstaff, Janice Reesor and Kay Baker. The five who received excellent ratings were Tommy Reesor, Carol Gunkler, Claire Ross, Rosemary Rogers and Eleanor Colley.

The new home of Baker Buick Sales on Chestnut Street was preparing for its formal opening on April 4. The doors were opened to the many friends of Brady Baker and Raymond Baker, with new models to sell. The building was renovated by local contractors, such as Stephens and Muncy who did the complete renovation and Dan Longfeller, who did the plumbing installation. Mrs. Malear did the sign on the west side of the building, which gave a full story of Baker Buick Sales.

There was a drawing at the opening, and the prize was an appliance of major importance to the home.

Rehearsals started for the Lions Club's second annual minstrel to be performed on April 22, 23, and 24. The minstrel of 1953 was a sequel to the first one, Nicodemus Goes to Town. The show was under the direction of Rolf Hovey with Bill Dizney and Litten Singleton assisting. Mrs. Taylor Gabbard was the pianist and was also assisting the director. The performance was to be presented at the Berea High School Auditorium.

A frame dwelling was destroyed in a fire in Black Bottom. The owner of the house was Henry Huff, and lived in by Mr. and Mrs. Roy Allen and their six children. They saved some bedding clothes and few household articles.

Berea started organizing a team to play in the Blue Grass Baseball League for the upcoming season. The League had three Kentucky divisions -- Eastern, Central and Western. Berea was part of the Eastern Division. They were negotiating with Berea College to use their diamond as home field. It was noted that this would be an important benefit to the local association, since the Mountaineers' diamond was considered the best in the Commonwealth.

Coach of the ball team was Chick Neeley of Berea with players Don Hale, Bill Huntsman and Dick LeMasters from Berea, Rudy Bicknell from Panola, Paul Wilson from Berea, Ronald Findey from Eastern State College in Richmond, Don Richardson and Bryon Winkler from Richmond, Bernie Burleson from Berea College, Billy Evans from Berea, Billy Hiatt from Wildie and Lonnie Durham from Mt. Vernon.

The squad was to play under the name, "Berea Merchants" to thank the various businessmen who sponsored their uniforms.

The club of 1953 was to receive no individual compensation for their efforts, unlike other years where members had received pay for their participation.

Mrs. Julian Capps hosted a luncheon at her home for Wellesley College graduates living in Berea. Members of the alumni group were Mrs. Arthur Boyce, Mrs. Gordon Ross, Mrs. D.C. Churchill, Mrs. F. S. Hutchins, Miss Eleanor Brooke and Mrs. Thomas Kreider.

The Big Hill Homemakers met at the home of Mrs. Clark Hylton with Mrs. Cecil Hylton acting as hostess. Adelia Fox called the meeting to order, in the absence of Mrs. Ewell Pittman, the president, and Mrs. Mary Hendricks, vice-president. Miss Fox gave the devotional and Mrs. Mary Etta Pittman the thought of the month.

Mrs. Cecil Hylton gave the project lesson, demonstrating the making of silver polish. Those present were Adelia Fox, Mrs. Ed Gadd, Mrs. Clark Hylton, Mrs. George Noss, Mrs. Charlie Pittman, Mrs. Letta Jasper and Mrs. Sherman Whipple.

There was a meeting for people interested in working on the fundraising drive for the American Cancer Society. The group met on Tuesday, April 7 at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Armstrong on Jackson Street. Mrs. Armstrong, chairman of the drive in Berea, stated that funds were badly needed. She announced that only six percent of the money is given to administration, while 56 percent was used in direct treatment for patients, with 30 percent for research and eight percent for education.

At the "New and Improved" Berea Theatre, several films were shown during the week of April 16. On April 16 - 17, Thursday and Friday, Viva Zapata, featuring Marlon Brandon and Jean Peters was playing, a film based on a story by Jon Steinbeck.

That Saturday, there was a double feature program. First playing was Superman and the Mole, starting George Reeves as Superman and Phyllis Coates as Lois Lane. It was the first full-length adventure movie for Superman. The second film was Desperadoes Outpost with Allan

"Rocky" Lane.

On Sunday and Monday, A Girl in Every Port was playing, starring Groucho Marx and William Bendix.

There was another double feature Tuesday and Wednesday, of first Turning Point featuring William Holden and Edmond O'Brien. The second film was Goin' to Town.

Thursday and Friday showed The Crimson Pirate with Burt Lancaster. An upcoming film was The Lawless Breed starting Rock Hudson and Julia Adams. The Berea Theater had 2:30 p.m. and 7 p.m. starting times.

City Detours Next Week

CSX will be replacing railroad ties at the crossings on 595/Mayde Road and at the Jefferson Street crossing the week of April 15. Expect detours within the city, as certain intersections must be closed for this railroad maintenance.

Hospice Event Gets a Makeover

After ten years of hosting a Roses Derby Eve event, staff at Hospice Care Plus decided it was time to strike out with a new theme, a new look and a new logo. Instead of concentrating on the Roses for the party on Derby Eve, Hospice Care Plus will hold "the Gala on Derby Eve." The Gala will take place on Friday, May 3 at 7 p.m., at the Armed Forces Reserve Center in Richmond.

When the Hospice Care Plus's Derby Event Committee met last year to start to discuss the 2013 Run for the Roses Derby Eve Benefit, Madison County's longest-running Derby party, the conversation quickly moved to offering something different for their eleventh year.

"We always begin planning for the next one as soon as the current one has ended," said Angie Bailey-Davis, special events coordinator at Hospice Care Plus. "And when we sat down last spring to start the process, we immediately began to talk about how to add something fresh and new."

Once they decided on the new name of "Gala on Derby Eve," the committee, which is made up of women from Berea and Richmond, realized they would have to change several other characteristics including location and logo. The committee

The Farristown Fliers and Foley Warriors played their first softball and baseball games in their new field this past Tuesday. The two middle schools will be sharing the fields, a beautiful new facility, that sits on Farristown's campus.

Fliers, Warriors With Field of Their Own

By Jonathan Schinhofen
Citizen Reporter

The Farristown Fliers and Foley Warriors baseball and softball teams finally have a field to call their own. They share a beautiful new facility located on Farristown's campus. The style of the baseball and softball fields are the same, with brick backstops that curve behind home plate and continue down the baselines to the dugouts. Netting rather than chain link fence protects fans from foul balls, providing a perfect view of the action from any seat in the bleachers.

The Fliers and Warriors played their first game against each other at the new park on Tuesday night. Farristown principal Alicia Hunter and Foley principal Mark Wall threw out the first pitches for the softball game and baseball game, respectively. Hunter and Wall both expressed appreciation for the new digs because until now they had to borrow Madison Southern's fields. A ballpark that is truly their home field makes scheduling games and practices much easier.

Celebration of Sara Elizabeth

By Beth Myers
Citizen Editor

As the third Friday in April approaches, the preparations and organization for the SaraCare Celebration are heating up. Eddie and Norma Kennedy, the founders and organizers of this event to honor and remember their teenage daughter, Sara, who died of Rhabdomyosarcoma, rush to answer phones while giving an interview.

"I have Saraitis," Norma laughs as she rushes to answer another phone call.

This will be the 9th year for SaraCare, an evening where many from Berea and elsewhere gather to eat spaghetti, listen to music and purchase raffles for the many items that are on display. This year, the Celebration takes place on April 19 at Union Church, with the spaghetti supper at 6 p.m. and the free concert going from 7:30 - 10 p.m. Eddie and Norma have spent hundreds of hours over the years making personal connections and soliciting donated items to put on what has become a major event in the town. They estimate that 1,000 to 1,200 people attend throughout the evening.

Norma Kennedy, left, takes a look at Rebecca Pettys' one-of-a-kind, handmade purse that she is donating for the raffle at the SaraCare Celebration, which takes place on Friday, April 19, while Diane Kerby jokes around with her. Donations for the raffles are coming in steadily for the SaraCare event, which will be held at Union Church this year, beginning with a spaghetti supper at 6 p.m. and a free concert at 7:30 p.m. For more information call 986-9039.

"We've really kept it the same since the beginning," Eddie said, who chuckled when he talked about the "family friendly" price of $5 for the spaghetti supper, a price they have never increased.

The Lexington Herald-Leader's 50th anniversary series on Harry Caudill's, Night Comes to the Cumberland, by John Cheves and Bill Estep made a strong case that Caudill's book had a big effect in the creation of the Appalachian Regional Commission and the War on Poverty that brought billions of dollars into the region for roads, public facilities and human and economic development programs.

The series reminded me of another resident of Berea who also had a strong hand in informing the nation about this region. He was Alfred H. Perrin, who was editorial director of Proctor & Gamble publications in Cincinnati when Caudill's book was published. A Michigan native, he was a graduate of Northwestern University's Journalism School and served as a Naval communications officer in the Pacific during World War II.

After he read Caudill's book, Perrin contacted Perley Ayer, executive director of the Council of the Southern Mountains (CSM) in Berea, and offered to buy a hundred copies to be sent to influential Americans, such as members of Congress, cabinet secretaries, governors, heads of major corporations, church denominations and nonprofits. Hey there, hi there, ho there. People my age recognize that line from the opening song of the original meeska, mooska, mouska Mickey Mouse Club show, we loved it.

Even on a black and white television with a fuzzy picture, that often required someone to go outside and turn the antenna to see anything at all, we wouldn't miss it.

And for me and several hundred thousand, maybe millions of other little girls born in the mid to late 1950's and early 60's, Annette Funicello was someone to emulate. She was a nice girl.

Now I need to stop myself before I go off on a tangent just now, about how much better behaved kids were back in the day. If I start on the current garbage that's coming out of Disney Studios with their smart mouthed, disrespectful kid characters I'll just end up having a blood pressure spike, and that I don't need.

I have more memories of Annette as a teen in the beach movies with Frankie Avalon than of the Mickey Mouse Club days. It's pretty funny to think of how risqué it was when she went from wearing an oh so modest one piece swimsuit to a bikini.

Annette, it seemed, always kept her priorities straight. She took a break from show business after appearing in several of those beach movies and concentrated on her family. It wasn't until 1987 that she went back to entertainment with a reunion film with Avalon called Back to the Beach. It is reported that it was during that filming that she noticed she was having trouble walking in the sand and maintaining her balance.

As it turned out Annette had multiple sclerosis. The kind of MS she had was the worst. It put her in the ten percent of those with the disease that face a steady, downhill descent with no cure.

She eventually went public with her disease and talked to groups about symptoms, cures and support. Then early in this century she lost the ability to walk. By 2009 she could no longer talk. And this past Monday, after a long battle that saw her drifting in and out of a coma the last few years, she died, the eternal teenager was 70.

Many of us like to look back on the days of our childhoods as better times, simpler times. I don't know that either is completely true.

The Cold War was not simple. The civil rights movement was not simple. People dying in America because they wanted their children to go to integrated schools or they wanted to vote was certainly not better times. Having women automatically excluded from many jobs, again not better times.

People like to poke fun at the Annettes, the Cleavers and the Andy Griffith kind of characters from that time. But I have a feeling that members of that generation had already had enough excitement and stress for a lifetime after living through the depression and fighting WWII. It was probably a great comfort to be entertained with the simple and wholesome.

Response to "Fighting Diseases of the Mind"

Dear Editor,

Thank you so much for your article on mental illness. My mother suffered from schizophrenia most of my life, with just terrible repercussions for the whole family. The shame, fear, and isolation we felt growing up knowing our mother was "different" became a life lasting experience. My father's self imposed ignorance and denial of my mother's mental illness just lead to greater tragedy for all. I am a witness to the failures of the mental health system in America. My mother had to nearly die a recluse in a rat-hole slum apartment before the State of Ohio could step in and take control. The last seven years of her life she was able to live cleanly and comfortably in an assisted living facility thanks to anti-psychotic drugs.

Dishonest Tactics Used by "Fairness" Advocates

Dear Editor,

Yet another letter in last week's paper encouraging support for a so called "fairness ordinance" for Berea that really is not about fairness at all. It also disheartens me some to see that those who were at first so adamant in getting the truth out about this matter are making much less of a noise now.

While we continue to see these letters printed encouraging "fairness" for Berea, giving the impression that our town is some sort of a breeding ground for hatred and intolerance (which is far from the truth), I must encourage those taking a personal interest in this issue to do some research into the matter, exercising an open mind to hearing both sides of the matter and getting information, as much as is possible in this day and age, from un-biased sources. And, please, do so before wading into this issue on either side.

What these people are calling for, under the guise of "fairness" is not fairness at all. It is actually quite telling that those who have been condemning what they perceive to be intolerance and hatred in their fellow Bereans have done so, in no small part, by treating those fellow citizens WITH intolerance. Their approach is "You are entitled to your own view on the matter....so long as it coincides with my view of the matter." What utter silliness.

While I would encourage no one to withhold their support from any cause without being fully informed on the details, I would likewise ask that people get fully informed on the details before throwing their support behind something that is, frankly, not what its supporters want to paint it to be. As someone who grew up in Berea, it hurts to see the out and out dishonest tactics being used by those supporting this idea. If what they were really advocating for is true fairness, I would get behind it 100% today. Do your homework, get the actual facts on this issue. It has become plain that Steve Connelly can't be counted on to do what is right. The voters still have a voice in the city government. I encourage all to make their voice heard, not only on this issue, but on any issue that the city faces.

The Lovely Time In Mississippi

Letters from Berea

Beth Myers
Editor

I traveled to Mississippi last week, and had a lovely time.

Those words . . . all together . . . shouldn't . . . go . . . together . . . don't understand . . .

Much to my amazement, those words did go together last week. During my kids' spring break, I hopped into the mini-van with my two sons while leaving my husband to his work, and we traveled into the bowels of the south. And not once did I feel the need for a proctoscope.

It may have been fatigue, from driving the whole way myself while facing that dreaded sigh and whine from the back, "how much longer?" that occurred at regular intervals like a cuckoo clock. Perhaps I was simply too tired to keep up my animosity towards my hometown of Philadelphia, MS.

But no, that wasn't it. The difference was in how I perceived everything. Once there, places felt more neutral, more harmless, friendlier. And there were two big reasons for that change -- son one and son two.

As I was driving south from Meridian, Mississippi to Philadelphia on Highway 19, I found myself telling them about this historic highway, where the three civil rights workers were killed. I showed them the memorial sign, and then they asked me questions about growing up here.

I told them about grandpa's and grandma's house getting shot into, and their church getting bombed three times, the knifings at my school, racial slurs screamed out, fights that happened, and I watched their eyes get big. They had studied about all these things at Berea Community School, every year around the time of Martin Luther King, Jr. Day, but we have never talked about how their mom and aunts and grandparents had been involved with that whole struggle. Suddenly this "past" they had studied about their nation became real personal, real quick.

On that highway drive, I realized my personal, haunting memories were transforming into family history, adding one more layer to the archives that had started in my family generations ago in Germany. And now my stories were being told to the next generation, to affect how they saw the world and how they saw themselves.

I think any of us who have become parents experience this at some point. The pain, joy, happiness, failures and successes are no longer just ours. They become an essential part of our child's development, as they study us and learn from our behaviors and choices. As I drove into Philadelphia, I started eyeing things to see what stories I could tell, since this familiar place had turned to live history for my kids.

So along with the Philadelphia tour, I took them to the Choctaw reservation where my parents started their current church, and we found a sale of hand-made jewelry -- with young and old Choctaws alike working with beads while selling at their booths. And I ate an old favorite -- Indian taco on fried bread, and introduced my kids to some people who still remembered me. My sons recognized Native American art they had studied, and other artifacts. I had forgotten how diverse this town really was.

No place is perfect, and Philadelphia has many skeletons that rattle. The three different races of black, white and Choctaw, with the history of white violence and discrimination, still exist rather uneasily together. There is still incredible economic disparity. And the red dirt and pollen still gets all over my shoes and car in like, one hour. And don't get me started on the fire ants.

But my children helped me lighten the dark glasses that I always wore traveling down Highway 19; they helped me take a step back. Things happened in this area, from when many Choctaws hid in caves to avoid the forced trek out west, to when it served as the bloody heart of the civil rights struggle. All these struggles were significant and important, though miserable and often deadly for those who lived through it, and those like myself who lived through the aftermath.

There are many stories in this town of secrets, many evolving dramas as history continues to unfold. But it was rather nice to realize the latest chapter of my story was just this -- I had a surprisingly lovely time in Mississippi with my family, and my children, and my Indian taco.

And sorry Mom, the answer is still no, I'm not moving back to Mississippi. Love you much -- kiss Dad for me.

Trials and Tribulations of 5K Racing

As part of the celebration of Berea President Lyle Roelofs' inauguration, a 5K run/1 mile walk was held last Thursday. The 7 a.m. start time was way too early for most of us, but right on time for the good Dr. Roelofs. He runs at an unreasonable hour twice weekly, and it has turned into a group event, with anywhere from a handful of runners to a few dozen accompanying him. Ever the intrepid investigative reporter, I pressed him on whether the hangers-on were all working toward tenure and whether those who could beat him were encouraged not to return. He would neither confirm nor deny my speculations.

Among the mingling runners was an individual who was clearly lost or overdressed or both. He was in military uniform complete with heavy boots. He was carrying a very full backpack. I was not aware of either a parade or a sleepover in the immediate vicinity and it finally dawned on me that this individual intended to race. We were asked to arrange ourselves according to our usual race times with the faster ones up front. I placed myself where I belonged and noticed Mr. Backpack way up with the faster runners.

At the beginning of a race, I usually identify an individual to try to beat. This is not exactly sporting, as said individual never knows that we are in direct competition. I said to the runner next to me, "If I can't beat that guy with the 40-pound backpack, I'm in bad shape." At the start of the race, I immediately set out to overtake him.

Unfortunately, I had not taken into account my own 40-pound fatpack that I carry around with me. Unlike my rival, I do not have the opportunity to take it off and put it down when I get tired of carrying it. In any case, I overtook Mr. Backpack and did manage to beat him. But not by much. Fishing for a positive spin to put on the luggage I acquired over the winter, I rationalized that if I could beat a guy who is in good enough shape to run a 5K race while carrying 40 pounds then I couldn't be too bad off.

As it turns out, the man with the backpack was Cody Clabo, a student at Berea College who is also in the National Guard. As part of their training, they are expected to be able to keep a 4-mile-an-hour pace carrying full gear. I don't know his time, but given that he finished soon after I did, I'd say he kept the required pace over three miles with enough spare time to sit and have a cup of coffee in the middle of the race. I'm sure his superiors in the Guard would frown on such behavior, but I'm just sayin'.

The run/walk was such a success I suggested to President Roelofs that they should make this an annual event. He immediately scuttled the idea, however, pointing out that doing so would require inaugurating a new President every year, something that would be bad for him personally and even worse for Berea College. So anyone wanting to run with Lyle will have to join him on his twice-weekly runs at dark thirty in the morning. And just in case my worst suspicions pan out, I would suggest letting him win.

worked with a regional graphic artist to capture the elegance and charm associated with Derby tradition, while introducing modern touches that incorporate the drama and sophistication they wanted to add to the restyled event.

"The red and black colors evoke that sense of drama," Angie said. "And the clean lines you see in the logo are a stylized version of the twin spires, a more modern take on that image. The rose is our symbol of tradition, the importance of keeping the long and storied history of the Derby as part of our event. And finally, the beautiful, curved lines the rose rests on call to mind the track at Churchill Downs."

Changing the location was a more difficult decision than the change in logo. Acres of Land Winery had been a successful setting for the event for years—but "keeping it fresh really required a change," Angie said.

"Many people will remember that, when this event began 10 years ago, it was hosted at a different home each year. We've been hearing that our guests really miss the excitement of celebrating in a new spot from time to time. As much as they—and we—loved Acres of Land's beautiful facility and landscape, the event really requires that we vary location occasionally," Angie said.

curved lines the rose rests on call to mind the track at Churchill Downs."

The committee chose the new Armed Forces Reserve Center in Richmond as the 2013 location. This facility provides a large, open space for an ample dance floor, band space, roomy dinner tables, and elaborate décor.

"We don't want to give away all the surprises," said Angie. "But I can tell you that the red carpet is an exciting new feature. We'll have a true, red carpet entrance that includes a backdrop with the dramatic Gala logo on it. Photographers will be in place to take photos of every arrival, and we'll be sharing those online for people to use as they wish."

There will also be an ice sculpture there, but Angie refused to give away what the subject of the sculpture was.

Guests are asked to wear black-tie-optional attire, a slight change-up from the previous dress code.

Some parts of the event will be familiar -- valet parking will still be offered along with hors d'oeuvres, cocktails (particularly the iconic Mint Julep), open bar, full buffet dinner, live music and dancing.

"I don't think anyone will want to miss this," said Angie. "Even if you've attended every year, you're going to want to see this amazing transformation."

Reservations for the Gala can be made online at hospicecp.org or by calling Hospice Care Plus at 859-986-1500. All proceeds support the non-profit Hospice Care Plus.

CSM prepared a list and mailed the books. The Berea College Hutchins Library archives preserved correspondence among Perrin, Ayer, Caudill, and many recipients of the book.

Perrin later donated 300 copies of Michael Harrington's, The Other America, about poverty throughout America, to be used by the Appalachian Volunteers, a program of the CSM, as they worked in Appalachian communities and trained hundreds of Volunteers in Service to America who were involved in the War on Poverty.

Perrin was a rare book expert, and an authority on and collector of the works of Bacon, Montaigne, and Max Beerbohm. He was a "bookman," a believer in the printed word. He had visited Berea and gotten acquainted with Bess Gilbert, the librarian at Berea College's Library, and had become interested in its Weatherford-Hammond Mountain Collection.

When Perrin retired in 1968, he and his wife Jean moved to Berea. Jean became involved in the work of Kentucky Educational Television, the League of Women Voters, and Mountain Maternal Health League. Al organized Friends of Berea College Library and served as its chair. He also became the library's volunteer bibliographer, appraising rare books from donors, setting up special displays, and publishing brochures that highlighted the holdings of its Special Collections.

Perrin owned the premiere collection of the works of Beerbhom, the English essayist and caricaturist that both Oxford and Harvard Universities sought to purchase. However, Perrin sold it to Indiana University and sold his collections of Bacon and Montaigne and used the money to enlarge the Weatherford-Hammond Mountain Collection. This collection was started in 1914, and Perrin used his knowledge to acquire books and other printed materials on all aspects of the history and culture of the region, including both newly published and out-of-print works. Today it holds over 21,000 volumes. Berea's Special Collections have more than 800 visitors a year and over 400 mail, email, and phone requests for information.

In other efforts, Perrin conceived of and financed the Weatherford Award given each year to the author of the work that is judged to be the best book written on Appalachia. This award honored Dr. W. D. Weatherford, Sr., a pioneer in Southern race relations and long-time chair of the Berea College Trustees (later to include Willis D. Weatherford, Jr. who served as president of the college from 1967-84.) This prestigious award, now given in two categories, fiction and nonfiction, is presented jointly by the Berea College Appalachian Center and the Appalachian Studies Association at its annual conference. In 1976, a Special Weatherford Award was given to Harry Caudill for his many books, and Perrin himself was so honored in 1988. The Weatherford Awards have called attention to outstanding Appalachian books for over 40 years.

Jean and Al Perrin also gave financial aid to the work of the Council of the Southern Mountains, and made a founding grant for the Berea College Appalachian Center, the first such center in the region, and financed the Appalachian Center Newsletter under the able editorship of historian Thomas Parrish, also of Berea. They also established the Griggs-Perrin Highland Fund in honor of their mothers to provide emergency scholarships for mountain students. As a personal contribution, Al regularly drove patients from the Berea area to Lexington hospitals for treatment.

Another notable contribution that Perrin made was locating the long-lost papers of James Harrod, founder of Harrodsburg, and arranging for their purchase for the Kentucky State Archives in Frankfort.

Al Perrin was the embodiment of the civilized person, active in society. He was a remarkable philanthropist in that he thought up and helped to shape projects that he financed. He once amused a gathering by saying, "I'm the Santa Claus who came down the chimney and stayed!"

Al's daughter Kate Warner reported that her father had changed from a moderate Republican to a liberal-minded Democrat from his work at Berea, and she thinks the greatest influence of this change was getting to know needy people as he drove them to their medical appointments in Lexington. However, he never talked about his political leanings. He was interested in ideas, and he thought that good ones should be disseminated, especially if they were in books.

Here is how Al Perrin described his life, "Mine has been a happy middle-of-the-stream sort of life . . . Books and bookmen have added a pleasant patina, a glow, to more than thirty-five years of my life . . . I was fortunate in being able to use all of my book collecting experience and skills and many of my contacts in buying books for [the collections] at Berea; in fact, it was almost as though all my previous experience was designed to prepare me for this. I have had fun and yet been sure that this was for a useful purpose and likely to be used and appreciated long after I am gone . . . Things fell into place: the need, the timing, the money, the knowledge and experience."

Jean Perrin died in 1989 and Al in 1995. Their children reflect their influence. Kate Warner served as professor of architecture at the University of Michigan and is an authority on affordable housing for low-income families. Tom Perrin became a gifted carpenter and craftsman. He now works for Habitat for Humanity in North Carolina involving students in building houses for the poor as part of their instruction in carpentry at the county high school.

$100,000 has been raised through the raffle, dinner and some private donations. All money raised goes towards SaraCare projects, which includes giving three scholarships a year to local high school students, giving money to the Kentucky Children's Hospital, helping out individual families facing catastrophic illness, and donating money to the St. Joseph Berea Hospital for gas cards, meal plans and phone cards for families struggling with the financial burden of a serious illness.

Norma stated they have also given money to the Matt Ross Fund and other local causes.

"Really, anything that impacts youth," Norma said, of the organizations they support.

The first year, SaraCare Celebration was held by the community to assist Norma and Eddie in the financial costs of Sara Elizabeth's illness. Sara died shortly before it occurred, and Norma and Eddie decided to use the raised funds as seed money for a fundraising event the next year. They plan to continue this Celebration, Norma said, "until we die."

Eddie mentioned that it's somewhat easier to plan the event now, since he and Norma aren't struggling to keep from crying every 24 hours; their grief has slowly become easier to cope with. As they have organized the event for the last nine years, it's been important to them that Sara's face has stayed as the logo for SaraCare Celebration, helping her to stay in other people's hearts and memories as well.

The raffles raise the most money every year, and this year there won't be any tickets sold ahead of time. People can purchase $1, $5 and $10 raffle tickets for different items at the actual celebration. There will be the traditional items, such as VIP David Letterman tickets, a dulcimer crafted by Warren May, and a "Cats" print from Mitchell Tolle signed by Coach Cal.

This raffle will also have a basketball signed by the 1972 Olympic Team, two trips to Gatlinburg and Nashville where lodging is paid for, and a torn paper snow scene by June Fish.

As far as the musical performances, Doug Johnson will again attend from Nashville, bringing a solo artist who he sponsors, Molly Hunt. Several local musicians will also be performing, such as Mitch Barrett, Teri Thompson, Kelsey Debord, Donna and Lewis Lamb and the Madison Dulcimers.

ARTS

Featured Artist

Ceramic artist Buddy Dobbins, who lives in Kingston, throws a vase in his work place at home. Dobbins said that he enjoys throwing pottery, since he finds it calming.

By Beth Myers
 Citizen Editor

Even before college, Buddy Dobbins knew he wanted to work in ceramics, even though he had experience with different art mediums in college. He enrolled at Eastern Kentucky University, and right away declared himself for a bachelor of fine arts with the emphasis in ceramics.

"The throwing is most enjoyable," Dobbins said, when talking about working with pottery. "It can be very relaxing to do, of course some days it can be infuriating."

Dobbins works on his pottery at his home in Kingston, having a work area set up in one open garage, and his kiln in the second closed garage. He opened a shop in Richmond in 2008, but found it difficult to draw in interested customers. Now he mostly sells his ceramic wares at crafts fairs around Kentucky; his work is also sold at the Kentucky Artisan Center and Renfro Valley.

Recently he was accepted as a juried artist in the Kentucky Guild of Artists and Craftsmen, and will be showing in their spring show in June. He was also invited as a guest artist to their October show.

He would like to find full-time work, however, so he doesn't have to rely on pottery for his income. He worked at Powdermill Pottery from June 2010 to Nov. 2011.

"I don't think I want my income to be based solely on my pottery sales," Dobbins said. "That can be one big stress ball."

What sells the best for him, he stated, are the mugs, pie plates and vases. Though he enjoys experimenting with more gestural movement, with pieces whose value is solely artistic, he knows the functional pieces pay the bills.

He has trouble, however, sticking with exactly the same design for pottery pieces.

"I morph a lot," Dobbins said. "I get bored and do something else. That can be good, but then someone breaks something and they want an exact replacement."

Dobbins is a young artist, having graduated from ECU in Dec. 2007. As a child, he always enjoyed drawing, stating that "drawing Garfield was his favorite." When a student at Madison Southern, he was able to take several art classes, including the one where he got his first taste of ceramics. He was able to experiment on a few wheels that were in the classroom. One of his teachers told him about Tator Knob Pottery, and the fact that at that time they let people use their wheel. Dobbins tried it out, which led to a continuing relationship with owners of Tator Knob.

"They took me under their wing," Dobbins said grinning. "I would work out there some in the summers, and even now I still help them with their shows."

Dobbins first moved to Kentucky in the fourth grade, after his dad retired from the military and took a job at Madison Central in the junior ROTC. After all the military traveling, he was glad to settle in one place, a place he has stayed every since.

The artists and arts and craft market convinced him to stay in the area.

"What I love about ceramics is the point where you get to where the vision starts to come out," Dobbins said. "That's when you lose track of time, and then look up and realize that it's 2 a.m."

Word From Berea Streets

"What do you enjoy doing now that the spring weather has arrived?"

Austin Stevens and McGuire Jennings of Berea replied "Our favorite thing to do is to hang out at the skate park with friends."

Chris Whitt of Berea replied, "I enjoy taking my dog Baker out for walks."

Rocky Anglin of Berea replied, "I like to metal detect now that the weather is warmer."

I'm Alive...
because someone like YOU joined the Kentucky Organ Donor Registry

At 3 months old, Katie's parents noticed the whites of her eyes were turning yellow. Katie would not survive without a liver transplant. She's alive because someone said "yes" to organ donation. Now, Katie is a 10-year-old honor student who plays basketball and goes camping.

Please give $1.00 to promote organ donation when you renew your driver's license.

Farristown Baptist Church
presents
Chad Higgins & In Spirit and In Truth
April 13, 2013 | 3:00 pm

Chad Higgins & In Spirit and In Truth (ISIT) are a collection of God's worshippers from various churches in and around the Lexington, KY area that have been "predestined" for a divine assignment from GOD. ISIT is made up of people from various walks of life, but their love for GOD and ministry brings a unified spirit.

Since singing publicly for the first time in July, 2007, they have shared the stage with gospel artists Amber Bullock, Kurt Carr, Tramaine Hawkins, Keith "Wonderboy" Johnson, Donnie McClurkin, Jessica Reedy, Vickie Winans, Stephen Hurd, Vashawn Mitchell and Earnest Pugh. Reflections

Because of reduced enrollment at the Berea City Schools and the anticipated loss of Minimum Foundation Program funds, the board of education reduced its teaching staff.

At a meeting on March 22, the city school board voted to combine two different coaching positions, and decided that Howard Foley would be released from his coaching position.

The board also received an acknowledgement from Berea College that the proposal concerning combining educational programs was received.

A group of 16 Berea College Country Dancers gave a program at the White House on April 22. This special exhibition was being given at the request of the President and Mrs. Kennedy. The accompanying musicians were Raymond McLain, director of the Hindman Settlement School; Mr. and Mrs. Otto Woods of Florida and Mrs. Lucille Gault of N.C. The dancers were also accompanied by associate dean Kenneth Thompson; Miss Ethel Capps, director of the Country Dancers; Ray Ramseyer, director of public relations and development; Mrs. Francis S. Hutchins and Miss May Gadd.

Two of the three Berea High choral groups were rated superior Friday and Saturday at the division of the State Music Festival. The top ratings went to the 13-member Melodettes, a junior high group, and to the Junior High Glee Club. All were under the direction of Norman Aich, city schools music teacher.

Members of the Melodettes were Mary Margaret Abney, Cheryl Carter, Charlotte Cummins, Beverly Hamilton, Belle Jackson, Diane Jennings, Beverly Johnson, Gail LeGear, Shirley Shouse, Debbie Stoy, Margaret White, Judy Williamson and Renee Wray.

Two voice pupils of Lucille Stephens participated in the festival and received an excellent -- Margaret Allen and Marsha Anderson.

Neil Di Teresa, instructor in the Berea College Art Department, is one of 300 water-colorists who work was on exhibition by the American Water-color Society in their annual exhibition in New York. He exhibited two paintings.

The United Neighbors Homemakers held their regular meeting on April at the home of Mrs. Scudder Abney. Attending were 14 members and one guest, Mrs. Rufus Allen.

Mrs. Stanley Powell conducted the devotional period, and Mrs. C. A. Kelly, president, led the business session. Mrs. E. B. Lanter was appointed chairman of the nominated committee.

At the Silver Creek P.T.A. on April 1, the devotional part of the program was handled by pupils from Mrs. Estill Bickford's room. The Bible reading was given by David Evans, with the song by Marsha Whitmore and Patty Todd. The prayer was given by Reta Halcomb.

Mrs. Jo Nelda Cole, associate home agent for the 4-H Club, showed slides of various 4-H projects. Acts from the 4-H talent show provided the entertainment. "Mother Goose's Friends" by the Junior High 4-H Club placed first in the county and third in the district.

The cast included Mother Goose by Sandy Williams; Little Bob-Peep Act by Phyllis Davis, Edith Combs and Jimmy Penning; Little Mis Muffet Act by Sandra Phelps and Ginger Farmer; Simple Simon by Steve Dyer; Georgie Porgie Act by Gary McHone, Deanna Johnson and Patsy Tillery; Jack and Jill by Lester Powell and Faye Isaacs; Miss Mary Act by Judy Hensley, Dianne Johnson and Peggy Tussey; Little Jack Horner by Karon Lakes; and group singers, Shirley Lunsford, Lana Lunsford, Thelma Gabbard, Margaret Gabbard, Joanne Whittemore, Clara Whittemore, Joyce Isaacs, Judy McHone, Alma Abrams, Patty Bloomfield and Phyllis Reed.

Mrs. Daisy Dalton of Route 1 was an honor guest as a birthday supper party given by her daughter. Guests were Miss Betty Powell, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Dalton, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel R. Coffee and son, Dwyne, J. E. Dalton, William Dalton and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Burnell and children, Harvey and Charlotte.

On April 4 members of the Progress Club and guests met at the home of Mrs. W. D. Epling on Lorraine Court. Mrs. W. E. Stivers conducted the business. Mrs. Louise Smith presented names for offices in 1963-64. Miss Bess Gilbert for president, Mrs. T. J. Wood for vice-president, Mrs. W. S. Swinford for secretary, and Mrs. Kathleen Young as treasurer. Mrs. W. D. Epling and Mrs. Lyle Ray, members of the civic committee, planned to meet with Mayor Hensley to plan a schedule for Cleanup Week in Berea.

Concern About Panhandling Discussed at Council

By Beth Myers
Citizen Editor

The problem of panhandling in Berea was brought up by council member Chester Powell at the city council meeting on Tuesday, when he stated that having people sit out and ask for money around the WalMart area was becoming a nuisance.

"These same people have residences in Richmond," Powell said, "and there are very few from Berea. You keep seeing the same ones."

Powell wondered if the city council could pass an ordinance against the panhandling.

One of the Berea police officers got up to address city council about the problem, stating that the police received complaints about this a lot. He stated that there were different problem areas such as the grassy places by Wal-Mart and McDonalds and the Exit 77 interchange off of the interstate.

Berea School Struggles With Little Money, Old Systems

By Beth Myers
Citizen Editor

School board members at Berea Community will be crossing their fingers for the rest of the school year, hoping their ancient air conditioner will make it at least until the summer. For the second time this year, the system has broken down, but the school board does not have enough bonding potential to pay for a complete new system.

"We're looking now at what the absolutely minimum would be for an efficient system," Berea Superintendent Mike Hogg informed the school board members at their meeting Monday night.

Last year, Hogg and the school board members had made plans to put in a geo-thermal heating and cooling system as well as constructing a new roof for their capital improvement projects this summer. Having been informed

Police Show Up to Support Their Own The Berea Police Department ended up with beautiful weather for their annual 10K race/5K walk this past Saturday; above are state police applicants in training participating in the race. There were 99 runners in the 10K, and 18 walkers. BPD ended up raising roughly $2,500 for the Supporting Heroes fund that supports families of police, fire and EMS heroes killed in the line of duty in Indiana and Kentucky.

Interview with an Officer from BPD

By Beth Myers
Citizen Editor

Citizen Editor Beth Myers was able to drive around with a Berea police officer this past Monday night, one who has spent years fighting the drug war in Madison County.

Officer Joe Johnson works second shift for the Berea Police Department, from 3:30 - 10:30 p.m., five days a week. Prior to working in Berea, he worked for the Richmond Police Department for 9 1/2 years, and for the last two of those years, the Central Kentucky Drug Task Force. When the funding dried up for the task force, he lost his position in Richmond, so he joined the BPD. But his interest in cleaning up the streets of drugs continues, despite not working on the task force anymore.

"I think the pill problem is worse now," Johnson said as he patrolled throughout the streets on Monday night. "Meth is making a comeback now too."

Johnson seemed relaxed about having me ride with him, as I questioned him about how Richmond and Berea were different.

"There are so many more cases in Richmond than Berea," Johnson said, pointing to the lap top that was placed at a right angle

Community Food Assessment Underway

By Christie Green
Citizen Reporter

Have you skipped a meal to keep within your food budget? Do you think availability of fresh produce is a problem? Do you purchase food from the farmers' market?

These are some of the questions that were included on the food survey that volunteers with Berea LIFE (Locally Integrated Food Economy) distributed to Berea residents on April 6 and 7. The survey is part of a larger Community Food System Assessment that the Berea LIFE group is conducting.

Berea LIFE is one of the five

In late 2011, the city of Berea hired Michael Shuman of Cutting Edge Capital to conduct an analysis of Berea's economy and prepare an economic development strategic plan. The economic advancement teams focused on different aspects of local economy including energy, tourism, and small business. The LIFE group took on the responsibility of creating a vision and a plan for localizing Berea's food economy.

Audible Egg Hunt Grants Independence

By Beth Myers
Citizen Editor

The traditional Easter Egg Hunt for many children is as exciting as a pirate treasure hunt, as they scan their surroundings looking for those familiar oval colored shapes. But for children who are blind or visually impaired, the traditional egg hunt can turn into a frustrating, impossible event where they are trampled and often finish without one egg, on a playing field that is anything but even.

For the last two years in Berea, however, children and adults who are blind or with visual impairments had the opportunity to participate in an audible egg hunt, where they could hunt for eggs that literally talked to them.

"It felt good, like you got a fair chance like everybody else," Lloyd Hall said, a 16 year old who is functionally blind. "When I was a little kid there would be hunts where we didn't get any eggs."

His brother Austin Hall, who is 12 years old and legally blind, agreed that the audible egg hunt was much better than the traditional ones.

in the car. "Look at all these cases right now."

On the laptop, all the traffic stops and arrests taking place at that moment scrolled on screen. The college crowd results in a lot more calls for Richmond as well, since EKU students can be much more apt to throw noisy, drinking parties than Berea College students. But there have been a few Berea College parties to stop this year.

There are always a minimum of three cops on patrol in Berea, but often more than that. Johnson stated he got a little nervous when there were only three.

Soon Johnson heard a fellow officer radioing in, asking him if he sees a certain vehicle at the Circle K off of Richmond Road. It is a suspected drug dealer, who has been arrested before and the Berea Police have been keeping an eye on him.

"They'll sit in the parking lots of the Circle K's," Johnson said, "and do the drug dealing in the cars."

Later on, when I asked him about the level of drug dealing in Berea, he stated that there were some bigger dealers in the city. But they were usually the hardest to arrest, and took some investigation time.

When he first started with the Richmond police, Johnson said, he was big on DUIs, even winning awards for the first few years on having the most DUI arrests. That interest in cutting down on drunk driving eventually turned into an interest in getting drugs off of Richmond's streets, and now Berea's.

When Johnson first started with the Berea Police a year ago, two other officers were hired at the same time. Johnson said that Chief David Gregory let the three of them know that cracking down on the drug traffic was a key priority. Gregory was happy to get someone with Johnson's experience.

Johnson doesn't mind the slower pace in Berea, since it allows him to initiate more investigations and check into things. With the drug traffic, Johnson comments, it's essential that they gather information up and keep up their contacts.

"I've already got a file this thick on information coming in about drugs," Johnson said, holding up his fingers to indicate about two inches, "since I came a year ago. People will call with complaints and information, and they think we aren't doing anything with it. But we are, it can just take a while of checking into things. Cases can take up to six months."

So what, I asked, are his most difficult calls?

"The abuse cases," Johnson said immediately. "I've worked drugs for so long, but the abuse ones are hard. Especially when it involves kids. But you have to stand strong for them."

Johnson first heard about heroin when his brother was transferred and called to inform him he had seen five ounces of it. Johnson stated that as of a month ago, the heroin has been appearing in Berea. They have also been seeing more meth labs this past year. Johnson said it could take 6 - 8 hours for them to break down a meth lab, which can be a treacherous undertaking.

"When I first came here," Johnson said, "I would see syringes everywhere. I'd stop somebody and there would be syringes around the cars, they're around the parking lots."

While talking, Johnson continually scans around, taking side roads and driving around residential streets. Berea police split up the city into zones - red, blue and green - for their patrols.

The Berea Police have started a Street Crimes Unit in response to the break-ins around the city and the thefts that seem to be related to drugs. A crew of eight officers not on patrol will pick different hot spots around the city, and will walk around in plain clothes. They may attempt to buy drugs from likely suspects, or walk around places that have been hit hard by break-ins.

"We've arrested a few that way," Johnson said.

And the arrests often lead to more information, and more suspects.

Many drug users and/or dealers get nervous and start dropping names right away, he reported, and often they will give consent for a vehicle search, assuming the cops won't find where they've hidden drugs or drug paraphernalia.

"I've found marijuana hidden in the fender wheel under the hood," Johnson said. "I've found syringes with the air filter, dope in the gas tank."

By the time 10:30 p.m. rolls around, we haven't been involved in a single stop. He tells me I should have been with him yesterday, when he had nine calls. But that's the nature of the job, constant readiness, without knowing when you'll be called upon.

Near 10:30 p.m., Johnson spotted a truck with no tail lights. As he turned on the lights and raced past a few cars, he stated that many drug busts happen over traffic stops like this one. And sure enough, he smelled marijuana when he got to the window. A search of the driver turned up a pill bottle full of marijuana seeds. But the driver passed the sobriety test, so it earned him a ticket instead of an arrest.

"They often won't stop right away, because they're trying to get rid of the drugs or hide them," Johnson said. "Once I was chasing someone, and when he drove over a bridge I saw him toss the pills out the window. But we found them anyway."

"They'll come down as a group," the officer said, "and drop people off at different places. We do see this as a problem."

When the officers receive a complaint, they will go down and speak to the person, and sometimes ask them to leave.

City council member Ronnie Terrill said they should have the city attorney look at writing an ordinance, but Mayor Steve Connelly said it would be better to have a council committee write up the stipulations they would like for such an ordinance first before turning it over to the city attorney.

City council members Vi Farmer and Virgil Burnside agreed to serve on such a committee.

City council also heard from the committee that was looking at the city of Berea participating in the Hwy 25 yard sale in June. Committee chair Chad Hembree presented a resolution from the committee, that stated the Berea City Council officially recognized the US 25 Yard Sale event, and would support it by marketing through tourism efforts and helping to ensure the safety of all citizens and visitors through traffic control and enforcement.

The resolution also recommended that an ordinance be brought forward next council meeting for approval, that would state that for the particular weekend of June 6 - 8 one permit would be issued for the three days and those days would not count against the maximum two yard sale allotment per year.

The city council approved the resolution.

Novel Experiences of the Week

Letters from Berea

Beth Myers
Editor

I had two novel experiences this week; one was doing a ride along with a police officer and the other was interviewing a family where the majority of the members were legally or functionally blind.

There was definitely something cool about riding along with Officer Johnson in his police car. Perhaps it goes back to childhood, when firemen and policemen were these heroes in uniforms with vehicles that would go fast and make lots of noise. All I know is that when we stopped someone at the end of the evening, it was pretty exciting to have the lights go on and speed around the cars. Woo-hoo! Definitely one of the highlights of my time here at the Citizen. If I didn't think I'd wear out my welcome pretty quick with the Berea Police, I'd probably try to schedule a ride once a week -- all in the name of informing the public, of course.

My interview on Tuesday was equally stimulating, though in a different way. As I interviewed the two Berea College students who were blind, along with the children of one of them, it struck me how much I communicate non-verbally. I wave my hands, smile, gesture to the side, nod -- none of which were helpful for this interview.

I found myself having to really concentrate on their names. I couldn't catch someone's eyes and then ask a question. I needed to address first by name. I had to be very intentional about my communication -- something that most of us just do by default. Speaking counted for everything in this interview - I couldn't use short cut language, using my body language to finish out the thought. I had to make sure my words and or sounds communicated the entire thought or question.

One thing that struck me is when one of them talked about people saying, "right here" -- a useless comment for someone who is blind. Where's here? And yet we're all so used to saying, "right here" and then gesturing to whatever is in question.

I was grateful for the interview and what I learned, and also grateful for the patience and care of my interviewees as they took time to educate me and were tolerant of my verbal fumbblings.

So thank you both Officer Johnson and the Hall/Lewis family for expanding my horizons this week. It was a real pleasure.

Disappointment at Lack of Coverage of Inauguration

Dear Editor,

I was extremely disappointed to find only one story in last week's Berea Citizen pertaining to the inauguration of President Lyle D. Roelofs. It was the story written by the sport reporter, Jonathan Schinhofen, who wrote about the 5K race. How often does Berea College get a new president? Dr. Roelofs is the ninth. Dr. Shinn was the last in 1994! The actual inauguration ceremony was extremely well-planned and had many interesting speakers and excellent musical presentations. I have never been surrounded by so many Doctorates in a small area. The celebration afterward at Boone Tavern and on Main Street was a perfect place to meet President

Lyle and Mrs. Laurie Roelofs and their family along with many other fellow Bereans. The food and entertainment was outstanding. The planning committees should be commended for a job well done, including perfect weather!

History of Earth Day

Earth Day was established in 1970 through the efforts of Wisconsin Senator Gaylord Nelson. An excerpt from his April 22nd speech in Denver Colorado announcing the first Earth Day includes the following excerpt:

"Our goal is a new American ethic that sets new standards for progress, emphasizing human dignity and well-being rather than an endless parade of technology that produces more gadgets, more waste, more pollution."

Having been born in 1970, I must say that during my lifetime, this goal has certainly not been reached. Sadly, the polar opposite, I would say, has happened. During the '80's, Madonna's "Material Girl" song pretty well summed up the prevailing psyche of America; "living in a material world".

The Environmental Protection Agency was also created in 1970, and many new laws and regulations have been introduced since that time to deal with air and water pollution. Progress has been made in some ways, yet the goal of Earth Day was for a new "ethic" to prevail in America. This ethic would focus on quality of life rather than quantity of "stuff" in its measure of progress.

Ironically, one of the best examples of someone who lives this Earth-friendly ethic is one of the world's richest men: Warren Buffet. Worth over $50 billion, Mr. Buffet still resides in the Omaha home that he purchased in 1958 for $31,500. He owns no plane or yacht, but donates hundreds of millions of dollars to various charities and causes around the world.

Warren Buffet's middle son, Howard Buffet, lives on a farm a few miles from where I grew up in Illinois. He is often seen at farm auctions and local events and looks just like any other farmer there. Although he is worth millions, instead of flaunting his wealth and "living it up", he chooses to spend much of his time working to help improve conservation and farming; particularly in Africa.

According to a Wall Street Journal article titled A Buffet Turns to Farming in Africa, after taking a trip to Africa to photograph wild animals, Mr.

Buffet realized that efforts to protect wildlife habitat in Africa would fail without first fighting its food shortage.

"I'm watching this thinking, 'They are going to destroy the last forest.'" Mr. Buffet later recalled. "It was an epiphany for me: The hungry can't worry about conservation. I realized you can't save the environment unless you give people a chance to feed themselves better."

Much of Buffet's efforts in Africa include introducing higher yield, yet sustainable farming practices which conserve the soil and do not require the use of expensive fossil fuels, chemicals and equipment and so can be practiced in poor regions.

Yes, a new "land ethic" is what Earth Day is about. Without it, the marketplace will continue to give people what they want... an endless parade of technology and gadgets... while continuing to convert the Earth's priceless resources into trash instead of sustainable solutions for a clean environment.

"Let us not be weary in well doing, for in due season we shall reap if we faint not."

- Galatians 6:9

reported a theft. The victim said a weedeater was taken from the front porch. The estimated loss was $279.

Stolen Property Arrests

On April 10, officers went to the 100 block of Morningview Drive because of an investigation. They contacted the residents in the apartment and when speaking to them inside officers located several items that had been reported stolen.

One of the people involved said he had stolen the items from a vehicle. He also said he had a handgun at one point that he had gotten from two other people who told him they stole it from a vehicle. He later sold the stolen handgun to a juvenile.

Later, officers located the two that stole the handgun, an adult and a juvenile. Officers arrested Angela Hurst, 39, of Berea, Rodney Horn, 24, of Berea and Cameron Frye, 19, of Berea. All three were charged with receiving stolen property (firearm). Hurst and Horn were also charged with receiving stolen property under $10,000.

Horn and Frye were charged with second degree unlawful transaction with a minor and unlawfully permitting a minor to possess a handgun. Horn was also charged with possession of a handgun by a convicted felon.

On April 11, after further investigation, officers arrested Michael Whitt, 25, of Berea. Whitt was with the juvenile when he bought the stolen handgun from Horn. Whitt was charged with second degree unlawful transaction with a minor and unlawfully permitting a minor to possess a handgun. Two juveniles were also charged in this case.

On April 11, a traffic stop was conducted on Chestnut Street for a minor traffic violation. When the officer approached the vehicle, he noticed several potted rose trees. After investigating, the officer was determined that the trees had been stolen from The Potting Shed.

Officers arrested Claude Cope, 48, of Berea, Thomas Carpenter, 33, of Berea and Nicholas Gadd, 23, of Berea. All three were charged with receiving stolen property under $10,000. Cope was also charged with several traffic offenses.

DUI Arrest

On April 11, a traffic stop was conducted after an officer observed a vehicle swerving. The driver had bloodshot eyes, was slurring his speech and seemed disoriented. After investigating, the officer determined the driver was under the influence.

Officers arrested Randy Burton, 44, of Somerset and charged him with first degree operating a motor vehicle under the influence (DUI). He was also charged with some traffic offenses.

On April 13, officers were called to the area of Bob O Link Drive because of a woman passed out behind the wheel of a vehicle. The officers located her inside a vehicle with the engine running.

When the officers made contact with her, she slurred her speech and wasn't sure where she was. She told officers that she had taken three hydrocodone tablets earlier in the day. After investigating, officers determined that she was under the influence.

Officers arrested Kimberly Richardson, 51, of Richmond and charged her with first degree operating a motor vehicle under the influence (DUI).

On April 13, a traffic stop was conducted on I-75 for reckless driving. Officers noticed the vehicle smelled like alcohol, and the driver had bloodshot eyes and slurred speech. After investigating, officers determined the driver was under the influence. Officers arrested Theodore Mace, 29, of Berea and charged him with second degree operating a motor vehicle under the influence (DUI).

Marijuana Possession

On April 12, an officer saw someone walking down the street late at night and contacted him. The officer discovered the man had two outstanding arrest warrants. After he was placed under arrest, a small amount of marijuana and a pipe were located in his pants pocket. Officers arrested Jason Wingfield, 39, of Berea and charged him with possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia possession.

that they would have an approximate $3.2 million available in bond potential, the board approved last October going forward with a new HVAC system with a geo-thermal system and an energy recovery unit. They had to cut the project, however, when their bonding potential was less than they were initially told.

Hogg has requested a new compressor for the old air conditioning system, and is hoping that this will solve the problem. If it doesn't, Berea Community will be looking at bringing a truck in to cool the building until classes finish the end of May. This could cost the school between $45,000 - $48,000.

Hogg stated that the system was so old, that new parts couldn't be purchased for it. The compressor they are getting will be a rebuilt one.

"They told me we were driving a Pinto," Hogg said, "but I told them we needed this Pinto to get us a little farther down the road. This will be a short-term solution for a long-term problem."

Hogg stated that he was hoping to have enough bond potential next year to go forward with the geo-thermal system and high efficiency HVAC system. Partly why this project is so costly is because the parking lot will have to be ripped up to install the system underground. That process alone costs around $200,000. Hogg stated he was also checking into a cooling tower, which would be much cheaper though much less "green".

Lloyd Jordison from the Madison County Health Department gave the final report for the Pedestrian Task Force; a group that worked on difference infrastructure improvements for pedestrian safety, including the Pirate's Plank at Berea Community.

"What really came out of this project was a cultural shift," Jordison said.

Farristown Archer Places 5th at State

Farristown had a great day at the Kentucky State NASP (National Archery in the Schools Program) this past March in Louisville, when 13-year-old Shana Webb took fifth place in the archery tournament championship and the team qualified for national competition.

The competition took place at the convention center on March 18 and 19.

Shana, who has hunted turkey and deer with a bow and arrow with her dad since she was little, won in a shoot off to break a tie. Her score was 287/300.

Nationals will also take place in Louisville, where the team will travel on May 10.

Lewis, who founded the group Families Advocating for the Blind (FAB) in 2011, has worked with the Berea Lions Club the past two years to offer the audible egg hunt. This past Saturday was the Second Annual Audible Egg Hunt. Seven children participated in the audible egg hunt on the Berea College quad, one of them coming from as far away as Owsley County. The audible eggs, saying things like, "Over here! I'm hiding!", would be hidden in a pile of regular plastic eggs with candy inside. Once the participant found the audible egg, they found a whole bunch of other eggs as well.

Ashley Alvey, a first year Berea College student with no vision, said, "I really liked the independence and I'd never done anything like this before. It was a blast!"

Gina Fugate, a member of the Lions Club who also works as a teacher of the visually impaired (TVI) for the Madison County School system, said that she preferred the talking eggs to the ones that constantly "beep." This is the only talking egg hunt that she knows about.

Becky, who like her son Austin is also legally blind, has participated in egg hunts in the past where the eggs beeped constantly.

"It's so much more overwhelming," Becky said. "There's all this beeping and it's hard to tell them apart."

Janice Lewis, the younger sister of Austin and Lloyd, has blindfolded herself the past two years for the audible egg hunt.

"I wanted to get the experience of not being able to see and the difficulties surrounding it," the ten-year-old girl said. "I wanted to know what they go through."

Janice commented that her big brothers were much better at the audible egg hunt than she was; they found six piles, while she only found five. Gina said Janice was much more timid about walking forward after being blindfolded.

"There's this first moment of panic," Gina said, who stated that three college students -- Angela Rowe, Mikola Burks, and Victoria Cox -- and five members of the Lions Club volunteered to help organize the hunt.

Ashley said that one of the best things about the egg hunt was the chance to independently find the eggs, and to feel free to do it herself. When she was younger and her family would hold egg hunts at home, her mom would need to walk with her and tell her where different eggs were.

agreed, emphasizing, "An audible egg hunt is really special, because it allows the children with limited vision to independently find the eggs due to the sound cues. They also don't have to worry about a stampede of children that can be really overwhelming for any kids with special needs. Next year we hope to have more kids with special needs and their siblings."

For many months, Gina and Becky have had people keeping their eyes out for the talking eggs, so they could have enough for the two audible egg hunts. Gina said they found a few at Wal-Mart, would order some others from different places, but it was difficult to find enough in any one place. Bud Montgomery, a member of the Lions Club, paid for half the cost of the audible eggs and the Lions Club paid the other half. They now have approximately 60 talking eggs, which cost a few hundred dollars.

Ashley and Becky, as the two Berea College students without sight, have been educating the school and college community, as well as the wider Berea community on the issues, needs and challenges of people who are blind or visually impaired. They both stated they were, "paving the way."

Part of that education involves teaching people to use more specific language. Gina pointed out that saying, "over here," to gesture to something means nothing to a person who is blind. Becky, who will soon get a service dog, said that people often make the mistake of treating them like pets instead of working dogs. Kids come up and pet them, which distracts the dog from their primary purpose of keeping their person safe.

Becky and her husband, Jerry, actually moved their family to Berea, because of the services offered by the Madison County Schools for children with visual impairments. After moving here, Becky became interested in attending Berea College. Both Becky and Ashley state that Berea College has been wonderfully supportive, and they were pleased with their decision to attend.

"Berea has something for all of us," Austin piped up. "There's trains for me, and music for Lloyd and arts and crafts for Janice."

"And cats for me too," Janice added with a grin.

FAB and the Berea Lions Club plan to continue the annual audible egg hunts. People who are interested in FAB, the Berea Lions Club, or the audible egg hunt can call Becky Lewis at (859) 582-8046 or email bfjl@yahoo.com.

8th graders travel to Washington, DC on annual trip

by William Spencer

Sixty-nine eighth grade students traveled to Washington D.C. the weekend of Mar. 25-28 for the annual eighth grade trip.

The trip included a stop at the Smithsonian Aerospace Museum and visits to many monuments including the Lincoln, Washington and Jefferson.

Students were also able to visit the Arlington Cemetery, where they witnessed the changing of the guard.

"Everyone was respectful, especially during the Arlington visit," said Assistant Principal Luke Wright who helped chaperone the trip.

Many students expressed their enjoyment of the overall experience.

"It was a fantastic trip and I hope that every eighth grader next year chooses to go," said eighth grader Chandler Goins.

by Gammon Fain

With a date set for Saturday, May 5, Prom at Berea Community High School is just under one month away. The theme for this year's prom is a 1920s garden and mansion party, modeled after those in the classic American novel The Great Gatsby by F. Scott Fitzgerald.

Doors will open at 9:00 p.m., and the interior decorations will feature two sections: a garden, including a tent filled with greenery, and an indoor mansion section, with a large staircase and a decorative water fountain.

Junior Class President Emily Keyser is looking forward to Prom, and is excited about how it will turn out. "Prom is coming along great, and I can't wait for everyone to have a great time," she said.

Tickets will be sold during first and second lunch every day up until May 4. They are 15 dollars for a single ticket, and 25 for a couple. Seniors have one free ticket and the price for their outside guest is 15 dollars.

Travel Club students, family members travel to Italy and Greece over Spring Break

by Natalie Warren

Twenty- six BCS students and affiliates experienced the culture, history, and art of Greece and Italy on April 1-10.

The Berea Community Travel Club enjoyed their trip, which included stops in Athens, Delphi, Mycenae, and Corinth (Greece), and Pompeii, Naples, and Rome (Italy).

"It was super fun, and it was really fantastic [to see things we've learned about in school]," said senior Ellie Hogg.

The Travel Club visited several ancient sites of cultural significance, such as the Parthenon in Athens, the Colosseum in Rome, and the Vatican. They also toured the ancient city of Pompeii, which club sponsor Ms. Jody Flara said was her favorite location on the trip. Eighth grader Thomas Weckman said he especially enjoyed the Vatican's historical art.

The group also traveled to a number of historic amphitheatres, which were especially enjoyed by Ms. Flara and her drama students.

"My favorite part of the trip was going to [the Theater at] Epidarus and getting to stand on the Dionysus rock," said Ellie Hogg. According to legend, those who stand on the rock will be blessed by Dionysus, a Greek patron god of the arts.

While traveling, the group was able not only to sample some delicious local cuisine, but also to experience Greek and Italian culture firsthand. Thomas Weckman was especially interested in observing the customs that define personal interactions in European cultures.

Ellie noted that the Greek people she met were very friendly, an impression which Ms. Flara shared.

"They were incredibly gracious and pleasant," she said.

Though the Travel Club enjoyed meeting locals, Ms. Flara said that her favorite part of the trip was the company of her fellow travelers. "It was a great bunch of kids and the parents were very supportive," she said.

Ms. Flara and the Berea Community Travel Club are already looking forward to the next time they will travel together, which will be a trip to Scotland, England, and Paris during Spring Break 2014.

BCHS juniors accepted into prestigious Kentucky summer programs

Three students selected as Governor's Scholars, one as alternate

by Chloe Atwater

Three BCHS juniors, Emma Crump, Gammon Fain, and Steven Gadd recently received notice of their acceptance to the Kentucky Governor's Scholars Program. Junior Jacob Mondine was also selected as an alternate.

The three will each represent BCHS at one of three college campuses: Bellarmine University in Louisville, Murray State University in Murray, or Morehead State University in Morehead. While there, the students will participate in three classes: A focus area, a general studies, and a seminar. Each participant will be placed in one of his or her three desired focus areas.

The students will receive a packet which will allow them to confirm or deny their intent to go to GSP. Later, students will receive a letter indicating both their focus area and their campus, but will not be notified of their random general studies and seminar classes until they each arrive at their respective campuses and begin their sessions.

Jacob could be selected from the alternate list should enough students choose not to take their seat in the program.

For the three accepted students, excitement and anticipation is common.

"If I end up going, I'm looking forward to the entire program: the college experience, the classes, and the people," Emma said. Emma was also granted acceptance to the Governor's School for the Arts in instrumental music, but will have to choose between the two programs.

"Getting into GSP has been a goal of mine for a really long time, since I've seen so many people that I've looked up to and close friends go to GSP," Gammon said. "I'm only a little bit concerned for my family's sake. I've never been away from home for that long, but I think we'll be fine."

The first session is set to begin on June 16, and will end exactly five weeks later on July 20. The second and third sessions begin on June 22 and 23, and end on July 26 and 27 respectively.

Emma Crump selected to attend the Governor's School for the Arts

by Devin Hester

Junior Emma Crump was accepted into the Governor's School for the Arts (GSA) program on Monday, Apr. 15.

"I'm super honored and pretty excited. They don't take a lot of instrumental candidates so I feel pretty good," said Emma.

Emma auditioned for the area of instrumental music with the viola. She was required to perform the scales, a solo, and sight readings. She also had an interview with the judges.

"I had to make sure my scales were memorized, and I practiced my solo with my teacher a lot more leading up to the audition."

BCHS FBLA members place first, second at state event

by Katherine McManus

On Apr. 8-10, the Berea High School Future Business Leaders of America (FBLA) Chapter placed in two events at the Kentucky state competition.

Gammon Fain received first place in Local Chapter Newsletter, but will not be going on to the National FBLA competition because the competitive event only applies to the Regional and State levels.

"I was really shocked when I got first because I had been second place in regionals... It was amazing to still be standing in the end."

JD Lovell, Sam McFarland, and Greg Schloemer placed second in network design, and will go on to the National competition.

"The other teams seemed a lot tougher than they actually turned out," said freshman Sam McFarland.

Six groups participated in the competition. Junior Chase Fain competed in public speaking; junior Gammon Fain competed in newsletter; juniors Steven Gadd and Trey Terrill competed in the business plan project; juniors David Johnson, Jacob Mondine and Chase Fain competed in digital video production; juniors Rachel Long and Jacob Mondine competed in marketing; and freshmen JD Lovell, Sam McFarland and Greg Schloemer competed in network design.

"I'm very proud of my groups," said FBLA sponsor Sherry Schloemer.

The National FBLA competition will be held June 27-30 in Anaheim, California.

Varsity softball defeats Paris

by Devin Hester

On Monday, Apr. 15, the Berea Lady Pirates' varsity softball team defeated Paris 17-2 at Paris. The JV team was also successful in a 6-1 victory over Paris.

One of the factors that contributed to Berea's victory was their success at batting. "We were more aggressive with hitting the ball and played better as a team," Sydney said.

Kayla DeBorde contributed to this success with a home run.

The Lady Pirates took an early lead, jumping ahead 5-0 at the end of the first inning, and didn't let up until the end of the game.

This win made the Lady Pirates' season record 3-5. Berea will play at Sayre in the Bluegrass Conference on Friday, Apr. 19.

MS baseball loses to Jackson Co.

by Ellie Hogg

On Monday, Apr. 15, the Berea Middle School boys' A and B baseball teams lost 21-3 and 6-4, respectively to Jackson Co.

Berea's A team made an impressive double play early in the game and eighth grader Tyler Pumphrey had a triple with three RBIs.

"We definitely played better than before, but Jackson Co. was just a really good-hitting team," said eighth grader Jared Kilgore.

Berea lead for the first two innings. of the B game, but was unable to hold the lead.

"I really have high hopes for next year. These guys are learning the program and I'd really like to build it up so that we're starting them in fifth grade and going all the way into high school," said Coach McAfee.

On Tuesday, Apr. 16, Berea Community Middle and High Schools held their first annual Health Fair in the Singleton Gymnasium.

Gym and health students were able to choose their own topics related to health and wellness.

There were over 15 booths set up in the gym, with topics ranging from drug abuse to texting and driving.

Middle and high school students were able to browse the health-based booths.

Junior Gabby Olave found the cigarette booth especially interesting. "It was really gross to see what cigarettes do to the inside of

by Hamrick Walters

May 9, 10 and 11, at 7 p.m., the Berea Community High School Drama Department will present The Little Shop of Horrors.

The Little Shop of Horrors is the story of a man-eating alien-plant that is cultivated and grown by florist-in-training, Seymour Krellborn. Seymour lives with his gruff adopted father, Mr. Mushnick.

Varsity boys' tennis team wins Berea Invitational Tournament, girls' team continues to improve

by Chloe Atwater

The BCBS tennis teams recently hosted the Berea Invitational Tennis Tournament at Berea College. Wayne County and Somerset Independent were in attendance. Berea's boys' team won all but one match to take first place, while the girls' team also performed well.

Doubles teams senior Sam Jackson and junior Steven Gadd, and seniors Chris Robinson and Colin Weckman finished the day with two wins each and no losses. Senior Nick Lykins and seventh grader David Gadd won one game and lost the other.

Of the two girls' doubles teams, Alex Horn and Ruth Ramos pulled out a win against Wayne County in a third-set tie breaker.

Looking forward to the rest of the season, the boys' team could go undefeated in regular play, and are expected to do very well in regionals and to progress to sectionals.

"They [the boys team] are in a good position to repeat last year's first place finish in the Regional Tournament and make it to Sec-

BCMS track team competes at Caudill

by Ty Saylor

On Monday, Apr. 16, Berea Community Middle School Track Team competed at the Caudill All Comers Track Meet.

Multiple members of Berea's team had strong showings including eighth grader Justice Williams and seventh grader Taiza Alexander.

Justice won first place overall in both Shot Put and, with a distance of 38 feet, and Discus with a distance of 128 feet.

Berea girls' 4 x 100m relay team placed fourth overall.

"I thought we did well. I'm just happy to be teaching these kids how they can be successful," Head Coach Dustin Busler said.

The Middle School track team will be competing next on Apr. 22 at Caudill Middle School, followed by the Middle School Conference Meet on May 5 at Eastern Kentucky University.

Varsity baseball falls to Frankfort

by Hannah Haycraft

On Monday, Apr. 15, Berea Pirates' Baseball Team fell to the Frankfort Panthers 10-0 at Frankfort, making their record 10-3.

"We just weren't ready to play," Head Coach Sean Linville said. "We gave up three runs in the first inning, and that deflated us a little bit."

Coach Linville expressed that although he wasn't happy with the outcome of the game, there were also some positive aspects of the game.

"We had an opportunity to play guys in different positions since we had some guys out," Coach Linville said.

Seniors Devan Strong and Jonathan Smith were also disappointed with the effort that their team made.

"We weren't making routine plays and our hitting wasn't alive either," Devan said.

"We had no heart or effort in that game," Jonathan said. "We completely let down, and let our big heads get in the way of playing the game the right way."

The Pirates play Williamsburg at 5:30 p.m. at home on Apr. 18.

Coach Linville expressed that the team should be ready by then. "If we've been motivated for a game all year, we should be motivated for this game," he said.

Project Graduation holds Ford Test Drive fundraiser event

by Ty Saylor

The Project Graduation committee at Berea Community High School hosted a Ford "Drive 4 UR School" fundraising event on Saturday, Apr. 13.

At the event, Madison County Ford provided automobiles for test drives. For each test drive, Ford donated 20 dollars to Project Grad.

The fundraiser was a success, drawing in nearly 300 participants and raising approximately 4,600 dollars, coupling funds raised by the test drive in addition to a vendor fair.

BCBS Principal Donna Lovell said, "I think the senior parents and students did an amazing job implementing a fundraiser that was not just good for Project Graduation but also helped nurture a sense of community."

For the vendor fair, parent and student volunteers set up multiple booths to help the fundraising process.

"We really appreciate all the folks that came out and test drove cars. It was really a great fundraiser," said Superintendent Mike Hogg.

The booths varied from a rummage sale, made possible by donations from students and staff, to face painting and henna tattoos.

Project Grad is a program to keep students from taking unnecessary risks on the night of graduation, offering a place to stay and a group of students to spend time with.

Eighth graders Katie Okumu and Levi Saderholm act out a scene in the Middle School Drama Club's production of Ever After.

MS Drama presents Ever After

by Ellie Hogg

The Berea Community Middle School Drama Club performed Ever After in the Kennedy Theatre on Friday, Apr. 12 at 6:00 p.m.

Eighteen middle school students participated in the production of Ever After, which was directed by Mrs. Whitnee Broadus and Mr. Nathan Jones, the BCMS Drama Club sponsors. The students began preparing for the show in February.

Ever After is a musical that follows the stories of the classic fairy tale characters (Snow White, Cinderella, etc.) coming to terms with their enemies and resolving their issues while on a talk show.

"It was kind of [like] a 'Maury' episode; they had to resolve their problems with the help of a host," said Mrs. Broadus.

The show was approximately an hour long.

"I thought it was pretty good and funny but it was too short," said sixth grader Baylor Hill, who saw the show during the one of school performances.

Approximately 70 people came to see the show on Friday night, which was the only public performance.

"It went surprisingly well. I'm a middle schooler at heart so when [high school drama teacher Jody] Flara suggested musicals were difficult, I just had to give it a try," said Mr. Jones.

food system was to conduct a Community Food System Assessment (CFSA). Community Farm Alliance and Berea College's HEAL program convened a group of community members, students and faculty from area colleges, the Madison County Health Department, and many other agencies to aid in this project.

The goal of a CFSA is to compile a community food profile, including statistics and perceptions on food accessibility in Berea. With a community food profile at hand, Berea LIFE hopes to identify achievable goals and inform decisions about next steps for Berea's food system.

Hilary Dolstad, a health educator with Madison County Health Department, gave examples of results that might come from a completed CFSA, "This could include policy changes that support increased access to local foods in schools or institutions. It could also result in the implementation of new programs in the community, such as community gardens."

On April 6 and 7, four field teams fanned out across the city of Berea, dropping off and picking up surveys. The teams were made up of students from both Berea College and EKU. According to a release from Berea LIFE, "this research marks one of the first collaborative research projects between the two campuses."

The team collected one hundred eleven completed surveys over the weekend. They hope to collect at least 350 surveys, but their goal is to get up to 500 responses. They were careful to randomly select households, and all results included in the report are anonymous. Dolstad explained that the team, "wanted it to be a randomized sample so that the results are representative of the overall Berea population."

The survey, which is only one component of the Community Food System Assessment, asked questions related to food security, sources of food, barriers to obtaining food, and food culture. For example, the survey asked respondents if they were able to find food that reflects their culture or family traditions. It also asked whether price or transportation problems created barriers that kept respondents from buying the type of foods they preferred.

"Thank you for taking action. Berea and its people need this," one anonymous resident wrote on the survey.

"My kids were just begging today to plant a garden. I told them I would love to but I don't know how and [have] no space to do it in, plus no money for supplies. Would love it, though," wrote another respondent.

Berea LIFE will continue to collect information about the current state of Berea's food system throughout the summer. This will include surveys of farmers, home gardeners and local resources, as well as more door-to-door consumer surveys. The team expects that final results will be available next fall.

"Building a strong local food system is really good for the economy, for individual health, and for the wellbeing of the community," Dolstad said. "It helps build a stronger local economy by keeping food dollars in the community while simultaneously benefiting the overall health of Berea residents."

Berea LIFE invites all interested community members to an event on Thursday, April 25, at 7 p.m. at the Berea Library. The group will share information about the CFSA and about their progress to date. There will be a discussion about the assessment, screening of the movie Fresh, and light refreshments. Fresh, a 2009 documentary about local food systems, features author Michael Pollan, Joel Salatin of Polyface Farm, urban farmer Will Allen, and others who champion sustainable local food systems instead of industrialized agriculture.

More information about Berea LIFE and the community food system assessment is available at www.berealife.wordpress.com.

SaraCare Celebration This Friday

The SaraCare Celebration returns to Union Church on Friday, April 19 and once again Eddie and Norma Kennedy welcome Nashville musical guests, Lisa and Doug Johnson. Doug, a celebrated Songwriter of the Year, wrote the Rascal Flats hit Sarabeth-Skin with a story that parallels that of Sara Kennedy and her yearlong struggle with cancer.

The Celebration begins with a $5 spaghetti supper at 6 p.m. followed by a free concert beginning at 7:30 p.m. that features talented area musical artists as well as Nashville's Songwriter of the Year Kim Williams and rising star Molly Hunt.

Couples Therapy (which featured Sara's story this season) will be represented by producer Damian Sullivan and Host Dr. Jenn Berman from Hollywood. The celebration includes raffles on an array of incredible items and runs throughout the evening.

Ayers Showcases New Play

Berea playwright Trish Ayers will be showcasing her new play, Taking Stock, from April 26-29 at the Berea Arena Theater. Performed as a staged reading, where actors will appear with scripts in hand, Ayers' new play is about redemption. Set in Mexico, on the surface Taking Stock deals with the controversial practice of horse slaughter. Several of the characters are horses, played by performers, and serve as metaphors for the plight of the disenfranchised.

Ayers' play will be directed by Berea College professor of theatre, Shan R. Ayers, who is also acting in this production. Also performing are Lacey Gresham, Pat Jennings, Anthony Logal Nathan, Chip Plummer, Patricia A. Watkins and Glenda Dent White.

Performances will all be at the Berea Arena Theater on Big Hill Road on that Thursday - Sunday, with the April 26 and 27 performances taking place at 8 p.m. and the April 28 taking place at 2 p.m.

All tickets are $5 plus one non-perishable item for the local food bank. There are no reservations for this event, but interested parties can call 859-985-0686 for more information. Please leave a message if there is no answer.

Calligraphy Workshop

The Berea Arts Council is holding a 4-week Calligraphy workshop on Thursday evenings from April 25 through May 16 from 6-8 p.m. Explore the styles of writing from the past, from Roman to Copperplate, in order to understand the movements of pens across the paper today. Participants should expect to be able to write meaningful notes and letters, and do decorative lettering on their own...perhaps designing greeting cards and notes.

The main part of the study will be instruction in italics and cursive. Visit the BAC website, www.BereaArtsCouncil.org, to download the registration form or call 859-985-9317 for more information. The fee for the class is $75.

YWCOB Creates Pinwheel Garden at City Hall

The Younger Woman's Club of Berea (YWCOB) is a member of the Kentucky Federation of Women's Clubs (KFWC) and the General Federation of Women's Clubs (GFWC), both of which are united by a dedication to community improvement through volunteer service.

In honor of the federation's junior clubs, whose special project is Advocacy for Children, the lawn at City Hall became adorned with a Pinwheel Garden. The pinwheel symbol is being used nationwide to raise awareness about child abuse and neglect prevention. It was chosen to represent imagery of hope and promise.

As reported by the Madison County Department of Community Based Services, there were 549 substantiated cases of child abuse or neglect in Madison County in 2012. The month of April is devoted to celebrating ways in which individuals and communities can actively support families and children.

In an effort to raise awareness and remember these children, members of the Younger Woman's Club of Berea and local children planted pinwheels on April 8.

Infection Prevention...It's In Your Hands!

Saint Joseph Berea encourages you to use good hand hygiene. It is the single most important step toward preventing spread of infection. Germs are spread through the air by coughs and sneezes, but hands play a big role. One of the most common ways to pick up germs is by touching something that is contaminated and then touching your nose, mouth or eyes. You can also spread germs to others by touching objects or people with your hands. To protect yourself from germs, thoroughly wash your hands or use an alcohol-based hand sanitizer.

Reflections

FROM THE BEREA CITIZEN ARCHIVES APRIL 1973

Above is the proposed facelift from early April of 1973 for the principle commercial section of Chestnut Street. The facelift was proposed by the Rogers Aluminium Company of Jamestown. The proposal included a seven-foot canopy to achieve a shopping center effect and overlaying of an aluminum "screen" across the upper stories to achieve unification of the area. An editorial in the April 1973 issue of the Citizen stated that something needed to be done about the "air of decrepitude" that pervaded the neighborhood, but that the suggestion of aluminium would make it look rather bland, and get rid of the varied character of a "downtown."

A group of six speakers -- Forest Bryant, Donald Hiles, Donald Lamb and Joe Hutchins, Principal of Madison Central J. B. Moores and Principal of Waco Elementary Robert Azbill -- addressed the State Department of Education about the need for a new elementary school in southern Madison County. They stated that six buses left Berea every day, driving along Ky. 21, bound for Kirksville. Bryant stated that he spoke for the 2,000 people of southern Madison County who signed a petition asking for a new elementary school. Three women representing the Berea Kindergarten Association -- Becky Cook, Betty Armstrong and Joyce Nixon -- appeared before the Berea Board of Education to ask if there was any possibility of space for their kindergarten, which had been operating at

Union Church. Chairman Dr. Dwight Blackburn told them nothing was certain, but they should continue meeting at Union Church in the meantime. The Berea College Drama Lab performed A Streetcar Named Desire for their spring play. It was announced that director Paul Power would be leaving for a year's sabbatical, and turning the helm of the TAB to Dr. John Bolin. The reviewer stated that Nancy Aldrich lit up the stage with her portrayal of Blanche Dubois, and Mary Thron gave a gentle performance in her first time on stage. Robert Gravel was "intensely believable" as Stanley Kowalski. Tom Mustard as Mitch was especially fine and Sylvia Ball as Eunice was good as well. The reviewer also mentioned Charles Bacigalupi and Wayne Bowman doing good work as Stanley's beer-swilling buddies, as well as Robert Warming as the young paper boy. They also mentioned the good work of the Bad House Seven Jazz Band that performed good work at the performance, which included Jon Neff, bassist; Rod Tate at trumpet; John Forbes at trombone; and Dave Crandall on harmonica, flute and saxophone. A number of Industrial women reported on the articles they had on exhibit at Union Church, including quilts, corn-shuck flowers, embroidery, painted pillow-cases, a kissing ball, a braided rug and dresses. Among those who exhibited were Mrs. Della Abrams, Mrs. Elsie Baker, Mrs. Mary Binkley, Mrs. Erma Holt, Mrs. June Fish, Mrs. Martha Muelder, Mrs. Addie Powell, Mrs. Bertha Prewitt, Mrs. Mary Short, Mrs. Sylvania Robinson,

Mrs. Gisella Randecker, Mrs. Elizabeth Thomas, Mrs. Evelyn Walden and Mrs. Effie Young. Mrs. Eleanor Workman exhibited and told about several items made by members of the Appalachian Fireside Crafts, a self-help program of the Save the Children Federation. The race for county offices was heating up, with the May 29 primary set. Four officials ran unopposed -- William Robbins, incumbent county attorney; Charles S. Wagers, incumbent county court clerk; Embury Curry, coroner; and property valuation administrator, Eugene Spurlock, Jr. Several people worked hard for the PTO variety show, which took place at the Berea Community School gymnasium. Joyce Hannan, Brenda Gentry, Rhonda Higgins and Martha Reid all worked on the event. The PTO sponsored the variety show to raise money to buy books for both the high school and elementary schools. The show netted $164.37 after expenses, and the money was turned over to the library fund. Mrs. Lila Bellando and her classes made the decorations and Mr. Chris Pierce and his students made posters, while Mrs. Brenda Gentry's department of journalism helped with publicity. Ricky Davis and Tom Tipton worked with lighting effects and audio. Performers were the McLain Family, the High School Country Dancers, James Orwig and his musical saw, the Phuz Street Nucklebusters, Teresa Able, John Chisholm, Debbis Hannan, The Yellow Strange, Becky Williams, Nancy Shugars and Lynn Staggs, Richard Bellando and Randy Osborne and Sonya Yancy. Births at the Berea Hospital were Gloria Anne Lear to Herbert Terrill Lear and Beulah Thacker Lear of Mt. Vernon, Michael David Sowers to Cecil Irvin Sowers and Mabel Odessa Casey Sowers of Berea, Norma Jean King to Roy King and Faye Clements King of Sand Gap, Teresa Lee Burdette to James Gary Brudette and Linda Lou Sowder Brudette of Mt. Vernon, Darlene Webb to Ronald Lee Webb and Dorothy Mae Gray Webb of Waneta, Lisa Carol Cornett to Frank Lee Cornett and Ginger Carol Farmer Cornett of London and Freddie Lee Embree, Jr., of Freddie Lee Embree and Sandra Grances Green Embree of Berea.

County Rural Roads to Get Resurfaced

By Beth Myers
Citizen Editor

Maintenance and resurfacing of rural secondary roads were discussed at fiscal court on Tuesday, when Brett Blair from District 7 reported that resurfacing would be done on Walnut Meadow Road, KY 1016, KY 499 or Crooksville Road and Scaffold Cane Road. Funds for the Rural Secondary Road program are taken from a fuel tax; by statute 22.2 percent of the projected motor fuel tax is set aside for the RS program.

Blair reported that there was $1.1 million for rural secondary road projects, and another $277,128 set aside in flex funds. Counties can choose to use the flex

Southern Theater Scores Second at EKDAS

By Beth Myers
Citizen Editor

While the Madison Southern theater students were pleased to win "Best Death By Noodle," and "Best Duo Furniture Performance," at the EKDAS competition this past month, they were even more excited to win second place overall. EKDAS, or Eastern Kentucky Dramatic Arts Society High School Drama Festival, was the first time the Southern theater students took home an overall award from a competition, since their previous drama teacher Kathy Bettler chose not to participate in competitions.

The 18 theater students that attended thoroughly enjoyed the competition, stating that it was fun to perform Least Offensive Play in the Whole Darn World in front of the other teenagers competing, who laughed throughout the play.

"I'm really proud of the work that they have done," Rebecca Tomlin

The theater students, however, were vocal and loud with their praise of Tomlin, many of them calling out, "We love her!"

One student said, "She wants us to do our best. She'll even act out a part for us on stage so we can see how to do it."

Tomlin took her students to the KTA (Kentucky Theater Association) competition in the fall -- their first competition -- but the students found the state-wide competition much more stressful. Two students stated they couldn't eat a day beforehand. The competition was more fierce as well, with 22 schools competing to advance to the next level.

The EKDAS was a much more laid-back experience, with four schools competing with less rules and more flexibility. When driving to EKDAS, they ended up getting turned around, a hilarious adventure with all of them checking their phones and directions as they tried to get back on track. They ended up arriving late, but another school had switched places with them. If that had happened at KTA, Tomlin said, they would have been disqualified.

The students had 45 minutes on stage, and that included setting up props and becoming familiar with sound and lighting. Teachers are not allowed on stage, so a student acts as the director for the chosen play. The Least Offensive Play in the Whole Darn World was one long information for a "script cleaner", a valuable machine that would edit scripts so they would be appropriate for high school students. This included a sword fighting scene where swords were replaced with noodles, leading to the aforementioned award of "Best Death by Noodle."

Tomlin, who worked as the drama teacher in Garrard County before coming to Southern, stated that winning or placing in the competitions wasn't the most important part.

"It's important to take the students there so they can appreciate what other schools are doing," Tomlin said. "More than winning the competition, the importance is to be a part of the theater arts in general."

While the EKDAS competition itself was not that stressful, the weeks leading up to it were another matter. Different students got sick the week before, and the cast discussed canceling their participation. Ultimately, however, they decided to go ahead with it, and used alternates who were literally learning their lines on the bus ride to EKDAS.

Tomlin will be bringing another novel experience to the Madison Southern students next year, having arranged for the school to host the EKDAS competition.

"She's hard on us," one student said, "because she wants us to do great."

Madison Southern will be performing Back to the 80s, the totally awesome musical, this weekend, with 7 p.m. shows on Fri. and Sat. nights and a Sun. show at 2 p.m. Tickets will be $5 and $8.

funds for the roads that the District 7 recommends, or they can choose to use the funds for their own rural roads.

This year, Madison County was allotted 15 percent for flex funds, instead of 20 percent. Judge Executive Kent Clark asked Blair to explain why the county was receiving less funds.

"Madison County has been good about using the county funds on state roads, but most counties have used the flex funds for county roads so they've pushed back their resurfacing cycle," Blair said.

Some counties ignoring the state roads resulted in them receiving a lower grade when the state evaluated roads across the Commonwealth. Since Madison County received a C for their roads, they received a smaller percentage than the counties that received a worse rating.

"The good ones are getting penalized to take care of the bad counties," Clark said.

Clark and the magistrates voted to use the flex funds for county roads instead of the state recommendations.

Approximately 1.5 miles of Walnut Meadow will be resurfaced, from Guynn Road to KY 52; over four miles of KY 1016 will be resurfaced, from Glades Road to US 421; around 1.5 miles of Crooksville Road will be resurfaced from US 25 to US 421; and over two miles of Scaffold Cane Road will be resurfaced from KY 1617 to KY 21.

BORA (Battle of Richmond Association) will open up the Living History Days to the public on Saturday, May 4. The Living History Days have traditionally been available only to school groups, but this year the public is invited on Saturday from 10 a.m. - 2 p.m., while the schools will visit the Thursday and Friday before. There will be a variety of activities including cooking, story telling, farming, broom making, cemetery tours and cavalry.

The public was also invited to the courthouse lawn on Thursday, May 2, for the National Day of Prayer which will be observed across the nation. It will start at 12 p.m.

County attorney Marc Robbins shared his experience with the National Day of Prayer, when he was a child and his father was a judge. He stated that all the communities were to ring the bell at the same time, and his responsibility was to ring Madison County's bell. But when he pulled the rope, it disintegrated.

Albert Hall

Albert Hall, 85, of Berea, passed away at his home on April 22, 2013. Albert and Ruth (Lakes) Hall were married August 25, 1950 and were married for 62 years.

Barbara had been a homemaker, but many may remember her from working at Tastee Freeze or Peoples Restaurant in Berea. She was also a daytime babysitter for many years.

Barbara was preceded in death by her husband, J.B. Neeley; her brother, Don Winstead; and half-brother, Harold Gentry.

ews. Graveside funeral services were 12 p.m. on Monday, April 22, 2013 at Berea Cemetery. Pallbearers were Mose Jackson, Greg Jackson, Rick Kaylor, Dale Willis, and Steve Lanham. Lakes Funeral Home is in charge of funeral arrangements. Online register book at www.lakesfuneralhome.com.

Climate Wake Up Story on May 8

On Wednesday, May 8, at noon, Union Church will host Global Warming: A Climate "Wake Up Story", a presentation by nationally celebrated authors and teachers Connie Barlow and Rev. Michael Dowd. For Barlow and Dowd, evidence of the speed and magnitude of human-caused climate disturbance became undeniable in 2012. It carried the issue, for them, as the fundamental moral issue of our time. Their storytelling explores how last year's climate-change news and statistics rocked them out of complacency, and they offer an invitation for program participants to make a similar shift in their outlook and priorities.

Through their personal "waking up" story, Connie and Michael share a frank overview of the challenges of global-warming while also offering opportunities for hope and suggestions for action.

As members of the generation in power, Michael and Connie exhort their fellow "boomers" to awaken to the "generational injustice" that will become a sad legacy if people continue to address climate change with a business as usual mentality.

Spring, Time to Get Moving

Scenter Stage

Teresa Scenters, Publisher

Did you hear about the woman who liked to walk her dog in the cemetery? Seems one day she ran into a man there, he said, "Morning." To which she replied, "No, just walking the dog."

With the gorgeous spring days we've been having lately I've been motivated to get out breath the warm air, take in the scenery and hopefully get in a little better shape physically by doing some walking myself. Pete, Tex's little Jack Russell, goes with me sometimes but he usually runs off chasing something before I'm done.

Walking by myself is okay but I prefer company. Kelsey's been joining me on my jaunt around the farm on her days off and Sunday I had not only her company but Deb's as well with baby Carly in her stroller.

Canon and Caleb even talked me into a little baseball practice, but that didn't last long after Mark came out to take over pitching duties. You see, Gramma throws like a girl.

I'm not sure participating in baseball is a real good idea anyway at my advanced age. Last week I officially became eligible for a senior discount, but you can bet I won't be requesting one.

On Monday, my sister Kaye asked me join her on her daily lunchtime jaunt. It was great, except that she's as tall as a model and her legs are as long as me. I was huffing and puffing just to keep up. Plus I wore heels to work. No, not even I, am goofy enough to try walking the trails at the park in heels.

So in the absence of appropriate walking shoes I resorted to the house shoes I had stowed away in my trunk. Not the best choice either, but hey-jack, it worked.

On Saturday I had exercise for the spirit. Among the many, way too generous, birthday gifts I received were tickets to Celtic Woman for their performance at the ECU Center for the Arts. I've loved them from the first time I heard them and try not to miss anytime they're on KET, but to see that show in person, oh-my-goodness. It was spectacular.

At the very top of my bucket list is a trip to Ireland and Scotland; I fully expect to take that trip one day. But even if I never make it there I have experienced the joy of seeing and hearing, up close and personal, a man in kilts playing Amazing Grace on bagpipes. That might just be close enough.

Is This Who Hospice Really Is?

Letters from Berea

Beth Myers, Editor

I found out several days ago what "black tie optional" means. I always assumed it meant you could wear a tux if you wanted. But I was taken aback when I discovered that black tie optional for the upcoming Hospice Care Plus event -- The Gala on Derby Eve fundraiser -- meant that women should wear cocktail dresses or evening gowns and men should wear suits or tuxedos. Obviously my experience with a higher dress code than blue jeans has been very limited.

I had planned to attend The Gala, as I did last year when it was called Run for the Roses. I have an enormous degree of respect for the nonprofit and many of my friends work there, so I wanted to show my support, dance and dip my toe into that whole strange world of "putting on the Ritz." I have had a few friends who have lived through the sad times of needing Hospice care for a loved one, and their reports have been glowing of this organization that helped support their family through one of the very worst of times.

But then this black tie optional came up, and spun me off into another direction. My first thought was, "great, now I have to go buy a dress," my second thought was, "how am I going to afford to buy my husband a suit," and my third thought was, "I don't think I can attend this."

After worrying about the inconvenience of shopping and the impossibility of suit financing, I realized that I couldn't go because I couldn't support this decision. Hospice Care Plus staff have said they are "ramping it up," by increasing the sophistication of the event. What I worry about is a ramp that is putting a larger distance between their clients and the people they are courting for this fundraising event.

Nonprofits must court those with money; coming from a former career in development, I understand that. But such glittery events like The Gala can create the appearance of a gap between the haves and the have-nots, and Hospice Care Plus is not about the haves -- their nurses and counselors serve six counties that average a 40 percent child poverty rate. That average rate would be higher if it weren't for Madison County pulling the percentage down a bit -- it's at the lowest at 24.4 percent, ironically the location of The Gala.

I am positive that for Hospice Care Plus, this is an opportunity to give people the chance to dress up, support the organization and raise money, not an attempt to divide people. I'm sure their intentions are good, as honorable as their mission, but this ramped up event doesn't seem to reflect who they are. After all, Hospice Care Plus is not an art museum, The Gala is not an endowment or capital fund drive for a university, or a hospital fundraiser to build a new wing. This organization deals with dying people and their families every day in their homes, many of them in compromised financial situations. They help everyone, regardless of insurance or ability to pay, so holding a fundraising event where only those appropriately tuxed and gowned are welcome sets up a real cognitive dissonance for me.

I believe that whether an organization is a nonprofit, a factory, or even a newspaper, every action taken, every event hosted, and every decision made should in some way reflect the organization and its purpose. So I look at Hospice Care Plus, with their work in the trenches of the sick, poor and dying, and wonder... is this Gala, with the required evening gowns and tuxes, and cocktails and ice sculpture, who they really are? Does this reflect their mission and who they serve? Is this the community they live with and wish to serve?

Bereans Please Support Local Farmers

Friends,

We live in a rapidly changing world, a world where less than one million farmers are tasked with feeding well over 300 million mouths. In the last 100 years, our numbers have shrunk and our age has risen.

Our communities need new farmers for a number of reasons, to feed our citizens, protect our land, rebuild our economies, keep us healthy, make our nation secure, and restore the lifeblood to our rural communities that we all hold so near and dear to our hearts. We need to do everything in our power to ensure the success of our local farmers.

We all know we need jobs. Investment in local sustainable agriculture can provide those jobs. Everywhere I turn, people and communities are looking out to find ways to bring prosperity in. Look around, prosperity is here, its roots are expanding rapidly on our farms. We should be looking inward to find ways to lift up the people in our communities who want to make a change, who want to create jobs and feed us. If we are looking for answers, perhaps we should look within ourselves and see what we find.

Berea is my home and I am proud to say we have real potential, long term growth potential. You have farmers in your community right now that want to make a difference, who want their children not looking outward in hope, but looking in with pride and respect for the community that they and their families helped build.

On May 4, the Berea

Farmers Market begins its outdoor season. I encourage everyone to join me in making a commitment to support local entrepreneurs. I am but one citizen, but I pledge to spend $5 a week at my local farmers market. This is a small investment and may appear trivial, but with a population of just under 14,000 citizens, if one third of you join me we will be putting over $5,000 a week into our local economy, and it will linger longer than the $5 you spend every week on coffee.

Join us, your farmers, as we work to build something we can all be proud of.

Health and Prosperity,
Mike Lewis

College Student Urges Fairness

I am frustrated that we still have to discuss fairness. It's been forty-eight years since the monumental Civil Rights Act of 1964, which prohibits discrimination based on race, religion, gender, national origin, and color. This bill has been a monumental showcase of civil rights for America, but it is not a comprehensive act. The bill gives no provisions for protecting individuals against discrimination based on sexual orientation or gender identity.

Members of Bereans for Fairness have been working incredibly hard to educate the public about why a fairness ordinance matters, whether in print or in direct conversations. Some of the many reasons why the town of Berea needs a fairness ordinance deal with the right to work and being able to dine in one's favorite restaurant, and they are crucial to acknowledge. For me, though, the reason that the Fairness ordinance is so important is that I love Berea.

As a first-year Berea College student originating from East Tennessee, this town has quickly become my home over the past eight months. The town has a rural, welcoming feeling that I have come to cherish. This ordinance is so important because once I, and many other students, graduate from the college, we may want to stay in this town; however, with nothing protecting us, that may be difficult. Without knowing that I would be protected from discrimination based on my sexuality, staying in Berea is a doubtful prospect.

The college was founded on the belief that "God has made of one blood all peoples of the earth." While Berea College has been incredibly welcoming, I have heard of people having difficult times within the town due to sexual orientation, and that is frightening to me. We are all human beings, so why shouldn't one person not have the same rights as another based solely on the gender of the person who they love? As Scout said in the novel To Kill a Mockingbird: "I think there's just one kind of folks. Folks."

participate, thanks to the partnership between the shop Puppets and Such on Broadway and the Berea Parks and Recreation Department.

"It's the day set to celebrate puppetry," Mary Brown said, who owns the shop Puppets and Such with her husband, Richard. "It's trying to get people more interested in puppets than just watching a show."

And there's one requirement for activities on the National Day of Puppetry, which was started in 1999 -- all activities must be free.

Mary and Richard celebrated the National Day of Puppetry last year in Berea with a puppet making craft and a puppet parade down Chestnut Street. Having just opened their store, it was quite the event to pull together. They ended up with four families that participated in the craft and parade, and Richard had the opportunity to walk the eight foot Merlin the Magician down the streets. This year, they've had more time to plan the activities and also to develop a solid partnership with the parks and recreation department.

"Parks and Recreation and Jennifer have been very helpful," Mary said, "getting us college helpers and she will be taking care of the refreshments. She also has good contacts so she can do some advertising for the event."

The Day of Puppetry will start with puppet making at 10 a.m., and Mary will work with younger children in their shop on Broadway, while Richard works with adults and older children in Memorial Park at the large shelter. Mary plans to have materials where the younger children can make tube puppets. People are invited to drop in anytime between 10 a.m. and 11:30 a.m.

A puppet flash mob will then meet at 1 p.m. in front of Boone Tavern.

"Richard said it wasn't a flash mob if we announce it publicly," Mary said chuckling, "but I told him we had to let people know."

Their hand puppet alligator will be leading the flash mob, with a rousing chorus of Celebration by Kool and the Gang. Other puppets and people will be invited to sing along, in, via the definition of a flash mob, "an unusual and seemingly pointless act . . . often for the purposes of entertainment, satire and artistic expression."

Mary and Richard will then end the day with a puppet variety show at 3 p.m. at their store, where Richard will introduce different puppets.

"These activities are really separate," Mary said. "People should feel free to come and go as they please."

Communities across the nation will also be celebrating National Day of Puppetry, and many of them are organized by Puppet Guilds. Kentucky doesn't have a guild, so Mary and Richard belong to the Cincinnati one. There are several puppeteers around Kentucky, however, and Mary is hopeful that they may be able to start one.

Mary and Richard moved to Berea, and opened Puppets and Such in Berea around a year ago. After full careers as educators -- Richard has a doctorate in music education and Mary has a masters in education -- they decided to dedicate themselves to the puppetry life, not a typical choice for retirement. But during their time in education, they both became hooked.

They're planning to attend the Puppeteers of America National Conference this year, which they always try to attend. Though Mary said with a smile that they're not at the caliber of many of the well-known puppeteers at this conference, they will continue working on their craft and getting more ideas.

Community Outreach (BFCO), and the Berea College CELTS program. It emphasized local advocacy and the importance of contacting government representatives to address hunger issues.

The film examined the issue of hunger in America through the lens of three people struggling with food insecurity: a single Philadelphia mother who was trying to provide a better life for her two kids; a Colorado fifth-grader who often had to depend on friends and neighbors to feed her and has trouble concentrating in school; and a Mississippi second-grader whose health issues were exacerbated by the largely empty calories her hardworking mother could afford.

The film illustrated how hunger poses serious economic, social and cultural implications for the nation, and finding solutions that make healthy food available and affordable is in the best interest of all. Betty Hibler, a BFCO board member, was one of the organizers of the event.

"I just feel so strongly that our nation could do better and that we shouldn't have to rely on churches and food banks to feed millions of people," she said.

The film gives USDA statistics from 2011 indicating that 1 in 6 are hungry in the United States and nearly 30 percent of all families are food insecure. According to the Kids Count Database, child poverty in Madison County was at 24 percent (or 1 in 4) in 2011. Data from the US Census translates that figure to just over 800 children in Berea proper who are at risk of hunger or food insecurity.

In 2011, 60 percent of children attending Berea Independent School District qualified for free or reduced lunch. In order to qualify for free lunch, family income must be at or below 130 percent of the Federal Poverty Level. For a family of four, that means making $29,900 or less per year. Also in 2011, an average of 4,875 children under 18 years were receiving food stamp benefits (SNAP) each month in Madison County.

In that same year, BFCO assisted 1,237 households with food, rent, or utility relief. The Berea Food Bank alone provided food assistance to 961 families.

According to the film, there were 200 registered food banks in the U.S. in 1980. Today, there are over 40,000 food banks, soup kitchens and other charitable food programs. While this reflects a shift in ethos away from federally subsidized assistance and toward an emphasis on charity from the private sector and religious organizations, it also highlights the increasing problem of food insecurity in the nation.

One problem for families that have to depend on food charity in a long-term or chronic way is that the food available from food banks may not be nutritionally appropriate. Foods are typically starchy, sugary, heavy in carbohydrates, and high in salt. They often lack options for whole grains or fresh fruits and vegetables.

"Children may not look hungry," said viewer Toby Wilcher, "but they sure are malnourished."

In order to improve the nutritional value of the foods available, the Berea Food Bank accepts donations of fresh fruits and vegetables. These items can be left in the donation barrel on the front porch of the Food Bank at 103 Parkway Avenue, or donors can call to arrange a drop-off time for perishable items.

After the film was over, viewers stayed to write letters to Rita Smart, Andy Barr, Jared Carpenter, Rand Paul and Mitch McConnell. They expressed concerns about hunger issues in Kentucky and advocated for policy that would increase access to healthy foods for people in poverty.

As she wrote her letters, Peggy Patrick commented, "What stood out for me was that we spend $167 billion in healthcare costs because people can't get good quality food and that 85 percent of families in poverty have at least one person working full time. These are staggering statistics."

One viewer, her eyes brimming with tears, said, "It was hard for me to watch because I don't need a movie to tell me about the difficulties of feeding a family. There's shame involved, and there's judgment involved. I'm above the poverty level, but it's still a struggle."

"I think we need more of it (letter writing). They need to know about these statistics and how we feel about them," said Tom Frazier, a retiree who plans to volunteer with God's Outreach food bank in Richmond. "We need to be in grief over this situation. We need to act locally."

A Place At the Table can be downloaded or streamed on demand from iTunes. For more information about the film, visit www.takepart.com/place-at-the-table. To learn more about Berea Food Bank, visit www.bereaoutreach.org.

Press of Kentucky, is dedicated to Elleigh, Linda's granddaughter, who is featured in many of the pages, pages that include where Gg is for Game of Graces and Hh is for Hoop and Stick. In her written dedication to Elleigh, Pack wrote, "It is my hope that you will always hold dear a fierce appreciation for the people and place that you call home: Appalachia. There is nothing in this whole wide world that brings me more joy than being your grandmother."

"I took their photographs around three years ago," Pack said, who had the middle schoolers dress up in period costume and play the different games such as fox and hounds and yard games.

She then took the photos to Banks, who illustrated them in vibrant watercolors for the ABC book that portrays the innocence and fun of children at play.

This past Sunday many of the now-teenagers featured in the book, as well as Pack and Banks, were at the Russel Acton Folk Center for a book signing. Pack estimated that around 90 people attended the book signing, where all the teens signed along with the author and illustrator.

"The book signing and reception was for them," Pack said, who brought Elleigh to the signing too. "I put up name plates for each of them, and put an illustration of them beside the name."

Though Pack, Banks and the teenagers were from Richmond, she decided to hold the book signing in Berea because of the log cabin.

"I loved the log cabin feel," Pack said. "And Berea is Appalachia, so I liked holding it here."

For the reception at the book signing, traditional Appalachia food was served, including pinto beans and cornbread, apple stack cake, apple cake, snicker doodles, ginger cookies, biscuits and ham, chow-chow, apple butter and cornbread and buzz button cookies.

Appalachian Toys and Games is available at the Kentucky Artisan Center in Berea and can also be purchased on-line.

"Totally Awesome" Theatre Season Comes to a Close

Eagles' Eye Reporter
Katelyn Duerson

Madison Southern Eagle Players have been successful this year in so many ways. The students started off the year with a competition in November, the first ever for Madison Southern, and scored a superior rating at the Kentucky Theatre Association's Fall Festival at the University of Kentucky. Emma Heid, who is a senior, was named to the All-Star cast and Rebecca Tomlin, theatre director at Southern, was named KTA Theatre Educator of the Year. Their first production of the season, Acting Out, opened in December, followed by a well-received production of Neil Simon's Fools in March. On April 13, The Eagle Players performed at the Eastern Kentucky Dramatic Arts Society (EKDAS) festival in Williamsburg. They received the Newcomer award, Lucas Slagle and Elliott Board were named to the All-Star cast, and the group placed 2nd overall. The Eagle Players will open their final production of the 2012-2013 theatre season with "Back to the 80's: The Totally Awesome Musical!" (sponsored by Club Arena Skating Rink of Berea) on April 26 at 7 p.m. Additional dates and times are Saturday, April 27 at 7 p.m. and Sunday, April 28 at 2 p.m. Tickets are $5 for students and $8 for adults.

Dakota Gadd Signs to University of the Cumberlands

Eagles' Eye Editor
Amanda Collier

Brian Jones, Javanon Soccer Club Coach, Joseph Townsend, UC Soccer Coach, Dakota Gadd, Jackie Gadd, mother, Randy Gadd, father, and Adam Gadd, brother at Dakota's signing on April 15.

On Monday, April 15 Dakota Gadd signed to play soccer at the University of the Cumberlands. After visiting many colleges such as Union College, Eastern Kentucky University, Lindsey Wilson College, Transylvania University, and Pikeville University, she decided that UC was the best fit for her and her family. This year, UC named Joseph Townsend as their new head coach, making Dakota apart of his first recruiting class. Dakota commented on her decision by saying, "I'm really excited to start a new chapter in my life with my new team and coach at UC and I can't wait to meet new people." Dakota played varsity soccer at Madison Southern for four years, but she has been playing since she was three years old. Along with being a part of the all-district and 2nd team all-region, Dakota set the school record of number of goals scored in a season with 36 this season. She was also picked to be MVP last year and this year. Needless to say, Dakota has been a huge asset to the Lady Eagles soccer team during her time at Southern, and she will be greatly missed next year. Congrats Dakota and good luck!

Track Team Predicts Successful Trip to State

Eagles' Eye Highlights Editor
McKenzie Bicknell

McKenzie Bicknell, Amanda Collier, Kate Freel, and Karrigan Moberly are ranked second in state in the 4x100 and 4x200 meter relays.

This year's girls and boys track team is off to a successful start with their new coach, Megan Smith. They started the season by competing in meets at Madison Central, Boyle County, and Madison Southern. Last year's team set high standards by having many runners place at the state meet, including, Kate Freel, McKenzie Bicknell, Casey Dionne, and Damien Harris. This year's team is excited for what is to come in the future. Senior Amanda Collier says, "placing first in state last year has put the pressure on us to win again this year, but we are working hard and we plan to come out on top once again only in both the 4x100 and 4x200 this year."

In fact, many athletes are already highly ranked in the state. For example, the girl's 4x100 and 4x200 teams are ranked second, this team includes McKenzie Bicknell, Amanda Collier, Kate Freel, and Karrigan Moberly. Also, the boys 4x200 team consisting of Michael Rothermel, Damien Harris, Buddy Harrison, and Casey Dionne is currently ranked third in the state.

Although there have been many changes within the MSHS track team, Coach Megan Smith is also excited about her talented team. She comments by saying, "we're off to a great start by placing in the top three in every meet so far, and I'm very excited for what the future holds for this team." The next track meet is an Invitational tomorrow night at Boyle County. Good luck to them as they compete against some of their toughest competition!

MSHS Baseball Team Hopes to Finish Their Season Strong

Kaitlyn Tompkins

This year Madison Southern's baseball team started their season with a brand new coaching staff. The head coach Dusty Hon and his assistants have worked hard to get the team ready for their season. Overall the boys have adjusted well to the new coaching staff and have been practicing hard to improve their game. Junior player Lane Owen says, "It's important to give it all you've got at practice because champions are made when no one is looking." Lane also says that he loves the new coach and he always pushes them to do their best!

The boys have had a rough start with a record of 2-21. However, they have improved tremendously in the last few games and Coach Hill is confident that they will pull through and finish the season strong. The boys have been giving up too many runs and making too many errors, says Chance Norris but "Improvement is always around the corner for the team!"

Lucas Reynolds makes contact to earn two RBI's.

So far this year the boys have defeated Nicholas County and Frankfort. On top of these wins the baseball team also had the opportunity to play Madison Central for the first time during regular season in several years. Although Central came out on top, the team still worked very hard.

Senior Lucas Reynolds has played very well this season according to Coach Hill and Junior Lukas Owens is also a standout player who has done an excellent job pitching this year!

We wish the team the best of luck in the rest of their season. The baseball team will be back in action tonight against the North Laurel Jaguars. The game starts at 6 p.m. so come out and support the team!

Baseball Team Donates Money to Travis Gaines

On April 18, the Madison Southern baseball team played against Whitley County High School and donated all of the proceeds to Travis Gaines and his family. Travis Gaines is an eighteen year old senior at Paul Laurence Dunbar High School and an outfielder and first baseman on the school's baseball team. He hurt his neck while diving into the surf of the Gulf of Mexico on April, 2 2013, apparently hitting a sandbar head first. Gaines was on the Gulf Coast with his baseball team for the Florida Beach Bash Tournament in Destin, Florida, which draws 30 teams to the area each spring. On the Facebook page created for Gaines, photos have been posted showing him in a neck brace as he visits with his teammates in his room at Sacred Heart Hospital. Many Central Kentucky businesses are pledging on the page to raise money for the Gaines family to help with medical expenses and nearly $20,000 has been raised so far. The Madison Southern High School baseball team took it upon themselves to help support Travis Gaines. They felt as if this tragedy had happened to one of their own teammates, they would want the same amount of support and southern hospitality that Travis has received. This is why they chose to donate all of the money earned from their game against Whitley County. This includes money they made from admission and the concession stand that night. It all will go to help pay for his medical bills and if anyone would like to help by donating money, it would be greatly appreciated.

Madison Southern's Principal, Mr. Gilliam, says "It's very good to see students helping out a fellow student and athlete, we hope for the best on his recovery." We are very proud of our baseball team and all they have done to help out Travis.

MSHS Softball Team Looks for a District Title with a Young Team!

The MSHS Lady Eagles Softball team before their first game.

This season the Lady Eagles softball team is back and looking to win a district championship after coming in second year after year after year. The ladies have been hard at work making sure that they work well as a team, since there are so many newcomers. The 2011-2012 team lost many starters with two of them being pitchers, Jessica Helton and Chelsey Morgeson that made for a great pitching staff with so much varsity experience. This year the teams look to sophomore Tara Board who has little to none pitching experience in a varsity game, although she has a ton of talent. Lastly, the team lost four year starters Morgan Grubb and Aleecia Broughton, who played third base and shortstop. Within these two positions, it has been a battle between junior Kayla Hargis and freshman Jaycee Combs for third base and sophomore Alex Nash, freshman Abby Nash, and again Jaycee Combs for shortstop.

With such a young team the beginning of the season seemed to be a struggle with a common theme of losing

When you enroll in the CNA class you are entered into the Medical Career Training College, which trains students for many careers in the medical field. In the course you are given the opportunity to take a test at the end of the year. It is a test that requires you to put everything you have learned to use. In order to qualify for the State Board test you must complete 15 clinical hours. Students are asked to complete these hours at The Terrace nursing home.

The students are currently going on Monday and Tuesday mornings from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m. In those three hours the students are placed with an experienced CNA; this is so that each student gets their own individual attention. Every student in the class really enjoys the individual attention that allows them to study for the state board test. Both CNA classes would like to thank the nursing home for allowing them the time to practice and participate. That being said some of the students have realized that this field might not be for them which is very understandable. Also some of the students have realized that they love this field and would like to continue as well. Stephanie Riddell, senior, said "The class has taught me a lot of things I need to know in the medical field. I plan on taking the State Board test but I am undecided as to what I would like to do after I take it." The test in May and if students pass this test they will be state registered as a CNA.

The team has come together and proven that they have the ability to do all things great, and are true contenders for the district title and a good run in the 11th Region Tournament.

Southern Belles Win Two Grand Champ Titles

Eagles' Eye Reporter
Maggie Collins

This 2012-2013 season has been Madison Southern's Dance Team, the Southern Belles, most successful yet! They have been to many competitions where they have mostly placed first. They went to two national competitions this year and have done better than they ever have. The first national competition was the Bluegrass Classic National Championship on March 2 at Lexington Christian Academy. The competition was fierce but they came out on top by placing first in pom, first in jazz, second in fight song, and over all grand champs. After that amazing win, they had the Jamfest National Competition in Gatlinburg, Tennessee which was on April 6 and 7. After weeks and weeks of hard work, the girls traveled to Tennessee for their biggest competition of the year. The Jamfest National Competition was a two day competition where the girls had to dance and be judged on both days. The final day, the winner of the competition was announced. Maggie Collins, co-captain of the Southern Belles says, "The last day of the competition was so nerve wracking! I just wanted to do my best and hope that we would come out on top." Fortunately the Belles really did come out on top! They received first in jazz, first in hiphop, and overall grand champs! This was the biggest accomplishment the Belles have ever had! "This has been by far the best team I have ever coached. They have worked so hard for these wins and I am so blessed to be their coach." says coach, Ashley Fowles. The Southern Belles has had an amazing season and hopefully they will continue the wins for next season!

On April 8-10 Madison Southern's FBLA chapter competed at the State Conference in Louisville, Kentucky at the Galt House. In order to make it to state, the FBLA students had to place top three in their competitive events at the Region 6 Conference held earlier this year at Eastern Kentucky University. This year Ben Eipert, John Eipert, and Lori Farmer placed 2nd in Management Decision Making and will be competing at the National Conference held in Anaheim, California in June. They are the second team in school history to receive a second place score. Amanda Collier and Hayden Halstead placed 4th in Desktop Publishing and Taylor Johnson, Tori Rousey, and Alex Martin also placed 4th in Banking and Financial Systems. Congratulations to those who participated and placed!

Tennis Team Struggles Due to Weather

Eagles' Eye Reporter
Paige King

The Madison Southern Tennis Team began their season on March 14 against Danville but unfortunately they didn't come away with a win. That has been one of the few matches they have been able to get in this season due to the terrible spring weather. It has either rained or the courts have been too cold for them to play. They have canceled eleven out of 16 matches already this season and they only have 20 scheduled.

This year's team is young and new to the game of tennis. They have three returning players; Ashley Erwin, Patrick Coyle, and Andrew Parson's. Other than those three the rest of the team is brand new to the sport. If you want to catch one of their matches they have region coming up in the beginning of May. The single matches will be held at the Berea College tennis courts, and the double matches will be held at the Madison Southern tennis courts on May 3.

Dancing Up the Sun on Mayday

It is spring, and in the rolling Cotswold Hills of England, a team of white clad dancers burst into the bustling village marketplace. The fiddler strikes up a familiar tune, and the spectacle of the Morris Dancers waving hankies and clashing sticks brings traditional joy to all who are there.

So too in Berea, 5,000 miles and 400 years away from the source of the tradition, Morris Dancers will gather to welcome in the spring. All are invited to come share in the joy on Wednesday, May 1 as the Squash Beetle Morris and Nonesuch Players dance the sun up in front of the Frost Building, near the crosswalk on Chestnut St.

The Morris Dancers will show a few dances, then invite those around to join in as they teach some simple country dances. People are encouraged to take a ribbon and dance around the maypole.

Morris dancers, which was old when Shakespeare was young, dance at dawn on Mayday to ensure the sun rises. Many ancient stories are told of the Morris Dancers and the luck they bring.

Nonesuch Players can be reached at 985-5501 or nonesuch_1998@yahoo.com for more information.

Elite Comes Out Kicking and Punching

By Sheri Patterson
 Citizen Reporter

Kicking, punching, and yelling are not usually what parents' would want their children to do. But some parents in Berea are discovering this can be a good thing. These parents have enrolled their children in a program at Elite Martial Arts and Fitness.

Elite Martial Arts and Fitness has been open in Berea for a month at 124 Mini Mall Dr. Owner and Instructor Master Will Schneider opened the school here after realizing there were no martial arts in Berea and people would be happy to have a place to train.

Schneider became interested in martial arts at a very young age and earned his first black belt in Tae Kwon Do at the age of 7. He joined and became affiliated with Premier Martial Arts school and learned various martial art styles including Hapkido, Muay Thai, Brazilian Jiu-Jitsu, Kickboxing and Krav Maga. He also worked with Kid Safe and anti-bullying programs. His father owned a Tae Kwon Do school in London.

When Schneider became an adult, he took over the ownership and instruction of his father's school and operated it until he moved to Richmond. In 2010 he bought out an existing martial arts school in Richmond and established Elite Martial Arts and Fitness. He is happy to now be expanding his business into Berea and hopes to continue to expand his schools regionally. Schneider has also started Martial Arts Global and has the long term goal of traveling the world training others to teach various disciplines.

EmmaLee Scaff is the manager and an instructor here at the Berea location. She has black belts in Chito-Ryu, Tang Soo Do, and Tae Kwon Do. She has an extensive history of competing in martial arts and achieving the title of regional champion in forms, weapons, and sparring.

Elite Martial Arts and Fitness offers Tae Kwon Do classes for children ages 4 and up. According to Scaff, Tae Kwon Do teaches discipline, respect for self and others, helps combat obesity, increases confidence and overall fitness, and works to develop each student into becoming a good example in their community that others look up to.

Kevin Jones, whose son Devin and daughter Emily are currently enrolled, stated, "I be-

Sheri Patterson/The Citizen

Children are instructed in Tae Kwon Do above at Elite Martial Arts and Fitness on Mini Mall Drive. Owner and instructor Master Will Schneider opened the school in Berea a month ago. To the right, Emily Biggs and her brother, Devin Biggs practice with kamas.

lieve it's good for their confidence and I can already tell a difference in them. I'm also a believer that it is good exercise and improving their health. I feel forty-five minutes of nonstop activity can't be bad."

Adult classes are available in Krav Maga. Krav Maga is a weapons, defense, and disarming style of martial arts. It is considered the best defense tactic system in the world, according to Scaff. It was developed by Israeli Defense Forces and is often taught throughout the country to law enforcement agencies. Scaff reported that the techniques are simple, easy to perform and extremely effective. It covers choke, knife, gun, and ground defense.

Elite also has fitness kickboxing, and plans to have afterschool karate, summer day camp, and hosting of kids birthday parties.

Scaff stated, "Elite offers a disciplined, state of the art facility with quality instructors who continue to train. They offer the best all around training that is fun high energy but with learning. They like for their students to be smiling, sweating, and learning."

For additional information call 859-228-0093 or visit www.elitema.org.

Word From Berea Streets

"What do you enjoy most about Tae Kwon Do?"

Jordan Gooch, 9, said, "I love doing the flying side kick." His mom, Becky Gooch, said, "It has been really good for his discipline and it has helped him to develop to better self-control."

Hayleigh Kittoe, 6, said, "My favorite part is doing the punches." Her dad, Will Kottoe said, "We were the first to sign up for class. I am happy to see that she is enjoying it and having fun while learning discipline. She has tried a variety of activities such as dance, gymnastics, and ballet, but this is the only one she has really enjoyed and been excited to go to."

Organic, Fresh Meat Now Sold in Berea

By Beth Myers
 Citizen Editor

Three Fold Meats, the business which first started in Paint Lick, moved to Berea a couple of months ago. Owner, Doug Floyd, who raises his own beef, first got into the business because he wanted to offer customers a fresh, affordable alternative to the meat in the grocery stores. His store at 210 S. Broadway sells beef, chicken, pork, lamb and also eggs, bread and butter that he gets from the Amish in Liberty. He also purchases pigs from the Amish, and purchases his lamb from Cartersville.

The most popular items at Three Fold Meats are ground beef at $3.29 a pound and extra sage sausage at $2.99 a pound. Floyd oversees the butchering process, and uses no antibiotics with his cows.

While Bereans have been slow to discover the new store, Floyd has received rave reviews from those who have started as regular customers.

The store is open from 10 a.m. - 6 p.m. Mondays - Fridays, and 10 a.m. - 4 p.m. on Sat.

Tandon Isaacs, 9, said, "I enjoy learning to do cartwheels." His brother, Jackson Isaacs, 10, who is currently out with a foot injury (unrelated to martial arts) said, "Learning self-defense and using the weapons is my favorite part." Their mom, April Baugh, said, "I love the development of good manners such as using 'yes ma'am' when answering."

FROM THE BEREA CITIZEN ARCHIVES APRIL 1983

Reflections

The Berea Industrial Development Foundation was established to plan for economic growth in the area. The plan was for the foundation to raise funds through the sale of stock and use the funds to promote expansion of existing industry and to seek new industry.

Mayor Clifford Kerby was one of three incorporators of the foundation. The other two were George Moore, Jr., and Ronald Pennington.

Among the possible projects for the new Development Foundation were a new sewer system, a second I-75 interchange and the expansion of Hyster.

A new effort was underway to establish a library in Madison County. The plan was to finance through private donations instead of tax dollars. Earlier, taxpayers voted against a special tax to support the operation of a public library in the county.

The Richmond Exchange Club was spearheading the drive to raise $300,000 over a three-year period. The money would be used to establish an endowment and earnings from the endowment would be used to qualify for state funding for a public library.

Over 50 people attended the 10th annual meeting of the Berea Child Care Center held at Emmaus, the Christian Life Center on April 5, 1983. Three new board members were elected -- Gail Hester, Cecilia Wierwille and Patrick Gooding. Other board members were Bill Hamilton, Linda Creech, Martha Duttlinger, Diane Settle, Carl Hogsed and Brenda Brown. When reporting on activities of the past year, co-director of the child care center, Nancy Holloway, reported that the major change was the move from Adams Street to a house at 308 Estill Street.

Child care staff included David Kennedy, curriculum director, Debby Gray, head teacher, Debra Ramsey, Lonna Isaacs, Karen McElmurray, Thana Connelly, the cook Barbara Grimes and the bookkeeper Paula Atkinson.

The Berea Community High School track team beat Model 114-22 in a meet in April, and the team was 1-1 for the season after losing to Clay County. Against Model, Berea won victories in 14 events. Jerry Blair won first place in shot put and discus throw, Tracy Johnson won first place for the pole vault, Eric Cooper won first place for the long jump and triple jump, John Hannan won first place for the 110 meter hurdles, 400 meter dash and 300 meter hurdles. Matthew Nelson won first for the 1,600 meter run.

Mike DiTeresa won first for the 800 meter run, Dale Houston for the 200 meter dash and Cobb Cunniff for the 3,200 meter run. Jon Wallace, Mike Wilson, Eric Cooper and Dale Houston won first place for the 800 meter relay, and Robbie Waddles, Mike Wilson, Mike DiTeresa and John Hannan won first for the 1,600 meter relay.

Placing in the Foley Middle School honor roll for seventh grade were Lynn Abney, Teresa Alexander, Dan Ball, Regina Ballinger, Jamie Belcher Brett Bingham, Brooke Boyer, Leslie Bragg, Kim Brashear, Harve Brashear, Mark Broadus, Kristi Brock, Tony Broughton, Joey Calico, Connie Cates, Kim Cates, Crystal Chasteen, Kim Chasteen, Shawna Cockrell, Rebecca Cox, Jennifer Davis, David Duttlinger, Tina Eden, Jennifer Helton, Angie Hembree, Camella Isaacs, Regina Jones, Tonya Kendrick, John Lamb, Shawn Martin, Maria Mays, Kim Meritt, Jeff Miles, Delaina Puckett, Amy Richardson, Terri Roth, Mark Shouse, Sherry Spillman, Kelly Stocker, Chet Surgener, Sonja Turner, Deana Tussey, Lori Watkins, Kelly Whitaker, Chris Williams and Patty Wolfe.
