Proposed Artist Fellowship Takes Bite Out of Tourism Budget

By Beth Myers
Citizen Editor

Tourism is considering a working budget that will put them in the red next year, which will cause them to dip into their cash reserves of approximately $900,000. The Berea Tourism Commission, like the City of Berea, carries over unspent revenue into the following fiscal year, and that has so far accumulated almost a million dollars.

In Tourism's working budget, commission members have estimated that they will spend $300,000 more than they collect in fiscal year 2014-15, mostly because of a new program they are starting, the "Artist Accelerator Program." The program will set up artist incubators for three to five Berea College graduates (see related story), and will offer them stipends as well as technical assistance and training.

"That program is expensive," Berea Tourism Commission chair Charles Arnold said, "and

Artist Incubators to Start This Year

Berea Tourism Commission members voted to go forward last Thursday with what they're calling the "Artist Accelerator Program," an expensive, ambitious project that will involve them offering fellowships to recent Berea College graduates. The current plan is to start this year with taking up to five college students who are graduating, and are interested in being working artists, and setting them up for around 16 months. The Tourism Commission would give each fellow a stipend monthly for living expenses, which they predicted may be around $1,200 a month, and their retail/work space will be located in the Old Town Artisan Village. Council Discusses Barriers to Economic Development

By Beth Myers
Citizen Editor

Economic development, and barriers to getting businesses in Berea, were the main topics of discussion at the Berea City Council meeting on Tuesday night, when Business Development Director Tom McKay gave a presentation to council members to kick-off strategic planning. Many hot topics were covered, including the possible perception of Berea as business unfriendly, and McKay's opinion that the inability to sell alcohol locally was hurting recruitment.

ber Ronnie Terrill started off the questioning of whether Berea needed to be more flexible with developers.

"I've heard developers say that Planning and Zoning can be hard to work with," Terrill said.

McKay said he had heard the same thing, and that the representative from Lowe's had been hesitant because he had heard some things. In response, Mayor Steve Connelly stated that Lowe's had indicated that the economic downturn in 2007 was the reason they didn't develop in Berea. McKay

Field Trip to the Madison Airport

Jason Bonham (EKU FBO Manager) and Sheldon Pate (EKU FBO lineman), want people to know that Madison Airport is a friendly place and people are welcome to visit. By the way, FBO stands for Fixed Base Operation (or Fixed Base Operator) and is the airport service center. I visited the airport this past Sunday. It was a beautiful sunny afternoon. When I arrived, Sheldon Pate and Dave were in the FBO building. Dave owns a 1946 Swift plane which is based at Madison Airport. Sheldon is a student worker whose position at the airport is as a lineman. According to Sheldon, usually there are two linemen and the FBO manager. Sheldon is an EKU aviation student who will graduate in December. He is a pilot working on getting enough flight hours to qualify for a commercial pilot's license. He said that amongst other things, the FAA requires 1,500 hours fly time for ATP (Air Transport Pilot) certification, which can make it hard to make it to the airlines. He said that going through a university program qualifies for an exception; EKU has a 1,000 hour power program. Sheldon said it is about, "... paying your dues." Sheldon also mentioned the benefits of being a well established professional pilot.

Members of the Madison County Airport Board approved the work order for the airport expansion design at their meeting on Tuesday, pending approval of the FAA

(Federal Aviation Administration). They plan on sending it to the FAA for their approval this week. The Airport Board also voted to approve the contract with The Corradino Group, an engineering firm that works with aviation, pending approval from the air-

Christopher Miller Pierce

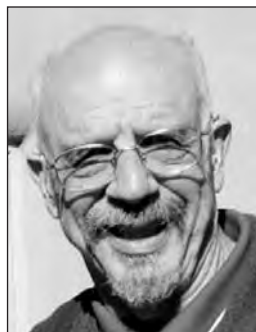

Christopher Miller Pierce, 74, passed away unexpectedly in Albuquerque, N.M., on March 23, 2014, after a short illness.

He is survived by his wife of 52 years, Carole Pierce; his daughter, Mikaela Pierce; his daughters-in-law, Priscilla Gonzalez and Lisa Hill-Pierce; his son, Brendan Pierce; young grandsons, Henry and Theo; his brother-in-law, David Rogers, and sister-in-law, Donna Rogers; Chance, his beloved Golden Retriever; and numerous friends in New Mexico and Kentucky, especially the Bolins and Hylecks.

Chris was raised in Albuquerque and raised by two artist parents, Florence Miller Pierce and Horace Towner Pierce. He graduated from UNM with a BA in anthropology and an MA in fine art. He and Carole moved to Berea as a young couple for a teaching job, planning on returning to N.M. in a few short years; however, they quickly met their best friends and became part of the strong art community. They lived in Berea until two years ago, when they returned to Albuquerque.

Chris was a Berea Community High School art teacher and Berea College art education professor, a jeweler, sculptor and a painter. He was eccentric, funny, though sometimes not on purpose, compassionate, and ever curious about the world. Even as his health faded rapidly, he kept a journal filled with questions, observations, and quotes from favorite writers and philosophers. He was notorious for losing keys, hats, lunchboxes, gloves, even a camera on a Thailand beach on the first day of his trip; for getting lost, for beating up his truck, and for getting stuck in an art department dumpster when looking for possible recycled treasure.

Chris and Carole gave their children a life full of love, support, laughter, art, pets, books, drawing, reading, writing, tinkering, cooking elaborate meals, growing enormous gardens, and being good to the people in their lives. Chris was definitely a different type of person, and his family and many friends are lucky to have known and loved him, and are heartbroken that he is gone.

Geof Michael Thomas

Geof Michael Thomas, 41, of Winchester, died Monday, March 24, 2014, at UK Medical Center. He was born on March 6, 1973, in Mt. Sterling to Larry Thomas and the late Linda Isaacs Thomas.

Geof was a Montgomery County native. He graduated from Montgomery County High School in 1991, and was a member of Gateway Christian Church. He was a hard working, dedicated manager at City Barbeque in Lexington and previously at Applebee's and Red Lobster.

He enjoyed history, primarily JFK related topics, and was an avid Reds, UK, Star Wars and Beatles fan.

Geof never met a stranger; he was well liked by everyone and always had a smile. His contagious smile, compassionate attitude and gentle spirit were an inspiration to all. He was a terrific father to his boys; he loved playing and teaching them. He will be dearly missed by his family, friends and all who had the privilege of knowing him.

Geof is survived by his two precious sons, Peyton and Clayton Thomas of Winchester; his father, Larry Thomas of Lexington; one sister, Jennifer (Steve) Thomas Hager of Jeffersonville; two nieces, Emilee and Lillie Hager of Jeffersonville, a grandmother, Henryetta Thomas of Sharpsburg; his fiancé, Libby Letcher of Winchester; and two dogs, Ty and Shorty.

In addition to his mother, he was preceded in death by his maternal grandparents, Raymond Sr. and Sally Coyle Issacs; and his paternal grandfather, Mark Thomas.

In lieu of flowers, donations can be made to the Memorial Fund for Peyton & Clayton Thomas, People's Exchange Bank, P.O. Box 870, Mt. Sterling, Kentucky 40353

The funeral was Friday, March 28, 2014 at 11 a.m.

All services were at Gateway Christian Church. Pastor Glenn Emery, Pastor Bill Kilgore and Pastor Ryan Dotson officiated. Burial followed in Machpelah Cemetery.

College Spring Concert this Saturday

The annual Spring Concert by the Berea College Concert Choir and Chamber Singers, conducted by Dr. Stephen Bolster, will be held on Saturday, April 5, at 8 p.m. and Sunday, April 6, at 3 p.m. in Gray Auditorium on the Berea College campus. The choral concert will be accompanied by Lindsay Clavere on the piano and organ. There is no admission charge.

The first half of the concert consists of sacred music, mostly by living American composers, with a focus on music for the Lenten season in preparation for Easter later in the month. The Chamber Singers will perform sacred works by Spanish composers Pablo Casals and Javier Busto, pieces that will be featured on the choirs' international trip to Spain and Portugal in May. Many of the pieces will be performed as part of Masses in Spanish and Portuguese Cathedrals.

The second half of the concert features secular music plus a group of African-American spirituals. The Chamber Singers men will begin with two South African songs, "Tschotsoloza" and "Kapanlogo." The Concert Choir will sing "Four Pastorales" by Colorado composer Cecil Effinger, accompanied by senior Wendy Danniels on the oboe.

The Concert Choir will then perform world premieres of two pieces by Indianapolis composer James Quitman Mulholland, commissioned especially for the choir, with the composer in attendance. The works, "Dear Friends," "Farewell" and "Sour Wood Mountain," are published by Colla Voce as part of the Berea College Appalachian Music Series, with musical materials drawn from the Hutchins Library Special Collections.

Following two works by contemporary American composer Eric William Barnum, the concert will end with three rousing spirituals, "I've Been in the Storm So Long," "Somebody Talkin' 'bout Jesus" and "Little David, Play on Your Harp."

Sleep to Speak at Lenten Luncheon

Kevin Sleep, the pastor of Berea Baptist Church on Chestnut Street, will be the speaker at the upcoming Lenten Luncheon this next Wednesday, April 9. The final Lenten Luncheon will be the following Wednesday, April 16, with Easter following on Sunday. This series is sponsored by the Berea United Methodist Church.

The theme this year for the luncheons is "What On Earth Am I Here For?" drawn from the book of the same name written by Rick Warren, founder of Saddleback Church, a 30,000 member congregation in California. Each luncheon begins at noon with a brief program, including interesting speakers and special music. Following the program, a light lunch will be provided. Those attending should be able to see the program, enjoy a meal, and return to work within 45 minutes; the event should end around 12:45 p.m. Reservations are not necessary; simply come and join in the spirit of community and in celebration of the season of Lent.

Rev. Sleep, who has served as senior pastor of Berea Baptist since 2000, is originally from Elizabethton, Tenn. He is a 1991 graduate of Berea College, and earned a master of divinity degree at Baptist Seminary of Kentucky. In the years following college, Rev. Sleep toured professionally with the Christian quartet, the Penny Loafers, and sang on six recordings with them. He then launched his own traveling ministry of speaking, music, and drama.

During this time, he served for two summers -- 1997 and 1999 -- as a camp pastor for the Baptist youth camp, Centrifuge. In August of 1999, Rev. Sleep joined the Berea Baptist ministerial staff as associate minister and minister of education. He then was called into the senior pastor position the following spring.

Rev. Sleep lives in Berea with his wife, Felicity, and their two children, Eliana and Aiden.

Berea Police Arrest Bengals Full-Back

A Cincinnati Bengals full-back was arrested by the Berea Police on Monday, after they received a call where a driver claimed that another on the road pointed a handgun on him.

Bengals player Orson Charles, 23, of Tampa, Fla., was ultimately charged with first degree wanton endangerment by the BPD. Charles was a fourth-round pick in 2012 out of Georgia.

After officers received the call alerting them to the incident, they drove to the area of Interstate 75 South where the incident had allegedly happened. The caller told officers he was involved in an occurrence of road rage with another driver, and that driver pointed a handgun at him.

Both vehicles were located, and the caller gave a statement and described the handgun. After Berea police officers received consent to search Charles' vehicle, they located a handgun matching the caller's description.

Charles did not make any statements to Officers.

Gripping, groaning and moaning

Scenter Stage

Teresa Scenters, Publisher

As a rule I'm against negativity but I'm giving in to my lower self today.

Let the rant begin. All of us in the office who are a part of the company's group health insurance program received packets in the mail a few days ago alerting us to the fact that the plan we currently have will no longer be available because of AFA (also known as the Affordable Care Act, also known as Obama Care, you remember, "if you like the plan you have, you can keep it") requirements. At the time the law passed, our company had the foresight to extend the contract they had with Anthem Blue Cross for a few additional months so we're facing this later than some have.

Now the only thing left for us to discover is how much the "new" compliant policy will cost and what coverage will change. Judging by the increased costs some of my family members who have already seen their plans change have faced, I'm guessing we'll see more costs for less coverage too.

In the last line of the letter we got we were instructed that we "don't need to do anything." Roughly translated that means you can't do a blankity-blank thing about it. But hey, I'm real happy for the twelve people who didn't have insurance before and now do.

The way the whole thing has played out leaves me believing that either the system was designed to fail in order to force the way for a single payer model, or we're dealing with some really incompetent people at high levels.

I'm put out with big business at the private level too. Namely the cable company. Their perennial rate hike goes into effect this month. Another case of more costs for less service.

We all realize the price of everything goes up, but really, a 600 percent increase in the past seventeen years is just ridiculous.

It's unclear what, if anything, the city could do about these increases since they let the franchise. But our private cable bills are ones I can do something about. It may just be time to cancel both my home service and the one here in the office.

New World Order of Agenda Driven News

Letters from Berea

Beth Myers, Editor

In the State of the News Media report that Pew Research Center released last year, it was reported that public relations workers outnumbered journalists 3.6 to 1 in 2008, up from 1.2 to 1 in 1980. It is expected that the gap between the number of journalists and public relations workers has only widened in the five years since then.

This didn't surprise me at all. Going by the number of "press releases" in my email -- marketing pitches or legislative campaign messages thinly (sometimes thickly) disguised as hard news -- it's obvious that some former journalists are working overtime in the capitalist workshop. The fact is, these agenda-driven news pieces are getting better and better, and it's taking more and more time to separate the wheat from the chaff. I'll get pieces on legislation all the time, but it can be hard at a glance to distinguish from the ones written by campaign officers and ones written by the legislative research commission. The McConnell campaign, especially, is pouring out the campaign messages, and they sound just like hard news pieces. Except that no self-respecting journalist would ever put such a positive spin on a piece about a politician.

But I have found these pieces posted on Internet news sites as news, instead of how they should be classified, which is advertising. People who read them would not know that they were generated from a re-election campaign that spins its facts. I'll also get op-ed pieces coming across my desk from "experts", such as one discussing what makes a healthy diet, which I'll then discover was written by an employee of the National Cattlemen's Beef Association.

We're living in the age of over-information, and easy access, and I'm afraid that the first victim of this new world order is "truth" or "fact." I watched All the President's Men when flying to Japan last year, and I was struck by one scene when Carl Bernstein, played by Dustin Hoffman, gave Bob Woodward, played by Robert Redford, a name that was on a check to the "re-election" fund, that somehow made it into the payment to a Watergate burglar.

Redford then starts tearing up the back room, looking in all the phone books, trying to find this name. He asks the paper archivist to look for it, and she manages to find a photo with this person's name on it.

The good old, pre-Google days.

How quickly that reality for journalists has changed, in just four decades. We are no longer the priests of data, charged with the sacred task of digging up facts and disseminating information. People can do that now with a click of a wireless mouse.

So our role must change. No longer can we concern ourselves with "breaking the story." Now we have to be the examiners of the information, the ones to check sources, check facts, look beyond the surface facts to the deeper ones that lie underneath.

Now, more than ever, there is a great need for high-quality, information of public value produced by legitimate news organizations, to counter the agenda-driven news that is dominating our communication methods. We can't allow the truth to become another cheap commodity.

would also be training and technical assistance during these 16 months.

"We'd be choosing people who could be a real plus for the program," MACED employee Peter Hille said, who has been researching the program for the commission, "and in turn, we could be a plus for them."

The Artist Accelerator Program will take a big chunk out of the tourism budget; for this next year, they have allotted $250,000 in their working budget, which they will consider for approval at their next meeting. In their preliminary figures, the working budget estimated that in fiscal year 2014-15, they will spend $335,915 more than revenues brought in. This will cause them to dip into their cash reserves, or the carryover revenue that was unspent from previous years. City Administrator Randy Stone informed them that this carryover money would be approximately $900,000

Chairman Charles Arnold emphasized to the commission that expenses would need to be cut other places in the future, stating to members, "We can only do this for a couple of years. We're really gonna gobble up the reserves that we have if we don't cut other places."

While the commission is hoping that the fellows will set up shop in Berea after their subsidized time is over, members acknowledged that many of these fellows may relocate, or decide that the artist life is not for them.

"You'll have those who decide they don't like it, and go and become a lawyer or something else," Hille said frankly.

Arnold reminded other members that one main goal of the project was to revitalize Old Town, to add another big reason for people to visit Berea. They are hoping the Artist Accelerator Program will be a tourism draw around the country.

Hille stated that unlike other incubator programs, they were only banking on a 20 percent retention rate, which would "still fill every empty storefront in Old Town."

Hille stated that they will be looking for students who have an entrepreneurship perspective and can produce their craft in large amounts; though they will be looking for people who are also good in the craft, excellence as an artist will be a secondary consideration next to the first two.

The fellows will also be expected to assist with Learnshops and Crafts Fairs. The first year, they will serve as basic labor, and the second year, they will present as artists themselves.

Commission member Paul Reynolds expressed concerns about the viability of the program, stating,

"I've insured artists, and then they leave because they say they just couldn't make it."

Commission member and artist Ken Gastineau said many artists don't have a good business plan, "I've been here 25 years. What's different about me?"

All tourism commission members voted to go forward with the program, with Arnolds confirming, "They will have shared retail space, with the expectation that it will be open seven days a week. They will have obligations to us as the tourism commission and as a tourist destination."

The commission plans to hire a full-time employee who will direct the Artist Accelerator Program, and the Learnshops.

Hille said at the end of the discussion, "I appreciate the vision that this commission is showing. You all are doing a really great job."

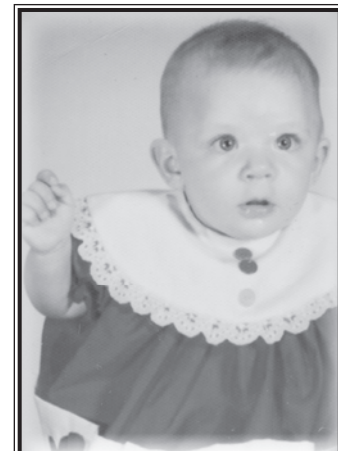

Berea Act of Random Kindness

An act of random kindness occurred early in March. One Berea woman who wished to remain anonymous reported to The Citizen, that she found herself in a very difficult position. She was driving a motorized chair on the sidewalk, and became stuck in the snow. She couldn't go forward or back.

Charlie and Joe from Evans Tree Service drove by, and witnessed her predicament. When they weren't able to get the chair loose, they began shoveling the ice for her instead.

The pair stayed with the woman until they were sure she was able to move in the chair, and get to where she was going.

when you see the bottom line, you'll see we're going in the hole. But we're starting a new program and the money's got to come from somewhere."

The commission listed $250,000 for the Artist Accelerator Program in the budget.

The largest expense of the budget, however, is the advertising line item, which is estimated for next year at $335,000, the same as the present year. Many members mentioned that they would like to increase that amount, but since it has been such a controversial issue locally, they decided to keep it the same.

Salaries are also a larger part of the budget, and they are considering increasing the amount by over 50 percent. This is, Arnold stated, because they are considering eliminating consultants and going to full-time employees instead. They plan to add a full-time position that will run the Artist Accelerator Program, as well as the Learnshops.

"I think it makes all the sense in the world to go to employees," Terry Fields said, a commission member. "Consultants were hired for the short-term, but we've used them like employees."

Because of the deficit, Arnold suggested cutting down the special programs line, which funds small programs that aren't expected to last more than two to three months. Tourism Director Belle Jackson stated that they gave the Police Run 10K $6,500 every year out of that fund. Commission member Paul Reynolds asked why they would fund the police run, and not other activities in town. Jackson said it was part of their overall support. Commission members asked to see what all was included in those types of line items; Arnold stated that at their next meeting, they would have more detail.

Tourism also put in their working budget to give the Berea Arts Council $25,000 for the upcoming fiscal year. Reynolds asked what the $25,000 would be going for, and Jackson replied, "This will reflect their contribution to Old Town, because they'll be open more hours, have more programming, have some evenings."

Reynolds asked if this meant they would be supporting a salary, but Jackson said they would just be supporting their programming. The Berea Arts Council will also be receiving $10,000 from the City of Berea's general fund to support programming in Old Town.

Commission member Ken Gastineau agreed with the amount, stating, "I've been in Old Town a long time, and the way that building goes is the way Old Town goes."

Arnold suggested striking their grant awards program completely. The tourism commission has been offering small grants of $5,000 to different programs in town for advertising.

"I have struck this for accounting reasons," Arnold said. "We had to do reductions to make room for the increases."

Other commission members were reluctant, however, to cut the funding to community groups. One member suggested keeping funding for four groups -- Kentucky Guild of Artists and Craftsmen, the Quilt Festival, Berea Arena Theater and the Spoonbread Festival. They also had budgeted $1,500 for the Twilight Christmas Parade.

When asked about where the funding went for these groups, Jackson stated that it didn't go to advertising, but supported the program itself. They budgeted $21,500 for the five programs.

Arnold also suggested cutting the beautification down by 80 percent, to $5,000. Fields expressed some reluctance for that idea, stating that it would be a good thing to embark on beautification projects this upcoming year.

"I look around, and this is the most unlikely-looking Artisan Village ever," Fields said.

The commission decided to keep it $5,000, but told the tourism staff that if they came up with a beautification plan, they would consider amending that line item.

Oliver, 22, of Berea and charged him with operating a motor vehicle under the influence -- first offense, first degree possession of controlled substance -- methamphetamine and drug paraphernalia possession.

On March 27, an officer saw two people walking down Jefferson Street during the early morning hours wearing backpacks and dark clothing. The officer turned his vehicle around to get out and approach them, but was only able to locate one of them. The one located gave consent to look in his backpack, and officers located a digital scale, two syringes, a razor blade and teaspoon. There was also a mason jar and a plastic bottle that contained an active meth lab. The subject had slow speech and movements, and appeared to be under the influence.

Officers arrested Lawrence Lamb, 27, of Berea and charged him with manufacturing methamphetamine, public intoxication and drug paraphernalia possession.

On March 28, officers with the Berea Police Department along with officers with the Richmond Police Department executed a search warrant at the Country Hearth Inn in Richmond. They located four oxycodone tablets, a small amount of marijuana, plastic bags, scales and $3,758 in cash.

Officers arrested Calvin Lee, 32, of Detroit, Mich., Charles Underwood, 29, of Richmond and Kimberly Hellard, 38, of Richmond. They were all charged with first degree trafficking controlled substance, first degree possession of controlled substance, drug paraphernalia possession and possession of marijuana.

like for our lawyer to approve this first."

The airport expansion will be a several-year project that will cost over $5 million total. It will include expansions of the parking lot and connector taxiway, a new terminal building and parking lot, additional conventional hangars, additional T-hangers, Apron 1 and Apron 2 expansions, taxiway seal coat, and new conventional and T-hangers for indoor airplane storage. The board is planning to solicit grant money for the ambitious expansion, with the most likely source the FAA itself.

The three governments – City of Berea, City of Richmond and Madison County Fiscal Court – were approached about giving additional money to the airport board so they could start with an airport site-development plan. This plan, members of the airport board reported, was necessary to start the grant solicitation process.

It was announced at the airport board meeting that they would like to have the design finished for the ramp expansion by July 1.

EKU has solicited for funding from the state, to expand their aviation school. The Kentucky General Assembly has put $2 million in a future state budget; while ECU will use much of that for their own program, such as purchasing a simulator and their own hanger for their planes, they also plan to use some of it for the infrastructure expansion.

The City of Berea put in their amended budget $75,000 towards the airport board for the planning process. City Administrator Randy Stone stated that if the board is successful in soliciting grants, the three governments may be reimbursed for part of the money.

Berea airport board member Chuck Conley stated that he would like to do a survey of industry within the county on what their attitude towards the airport is, what their needs were, and what they would like to see happen. He would do this with the two development directors in Berea and Richmond, as well as the two chambers of commerce in the two cities. Board members were very positive about the suggestion, stating that it would help to get buy-in from industry.

Chair of the board, Dr. Willi Walker from ECU, informed the board that she would be traveling to Washington D.C. with the Kentuckians for Better Transportation. She planned to go using her own funding, but asked if the board would be interested in reimbursing her for any of the cost. She was spending between $500 and $600 on registration and housing. Board member Jack F. Bisping suggested approving $1,000 for the trip, but Wyatt immediately said no.

"We don't need to be sending our chair everywhere," Wyatt said. "We don't need to do that now, or in the future."

Other board members discussed the value of the trip, which would include advocating for federal funding. Conley said that the value of funding for Madison Airport, however, would probably get washed-out within the larger goals of the Kentuckians for Better Transportation.

Walker stated that they could reimburse her for a lower amount instead, and Bisping suggested $600. Wyatt reminded them that the precedent was paying for registration costs only.

A motion was made to reimburse Walker $600, and both Conley and Wyatt voted against it. The other four members, including Walker who voted for her own reimbursement, approved the motion.

The Madison Airport Board will be holding an open house on Saturday, April 26. Board members discussed having some type of presentation of the airport expansion, such as a slide show or presentation boards.

TRIP

Sheldon's longer flights so far include flights to Myrtle Beach and Michigan City. He said his flight to Michigan City was a "buddy flight". His buddy on the flight was another student with multi engine ratings. The flight to Michigan City was the first time he had seen a great lake, so he asked to shoot the approach (something he said is only necessary in bad weather to land safely). The tower let him do it, and he got to fly out for a better look at Lake Michigan; "It was frozen about a mile out, I guess. It was neat for me to see."

In the Madison Airport hangar there was a Copperhead Consulting plane with some tracking devices attached to the exterior that look similar to old fashioned television aerial antennae. Copperhead Environmental Consulting, Inc. according to Sheldon is involved in tracking bats. The Copperhead web site says some of their work is related to Endangered Species Act documentation.

John Bolton was also at the airport on Sunday. He described himself as a "gooney bird"; when I asked what that meant, he said it is a big flightless bird. Although John isn't a pilot, he sounds knowledgeable about planes and said that he is into the physics of flight.

Jason Bonham has been the Madison Airport FBO manager for about three years. He said they like people to visit the airport because they want the "community to know it's there." Jason emphasized that this small airport is an important part of the infrastructure for the county. He likened it to the benefits of having I-75 available as a part of local infrastructure.

Jason said that the FBO is about the business on the field; fueling, hangar rent, and other ground services. He said that there are about 42 airplanes based there and 13 of those are ECU leased airplanes. The airport serves flight programs; ECU's and Foothills Aviation LLC (no web site; also offers discovery flights). And the airport serves local citizens with planes for recreation, local businesses and corporate traffic for cargo and meetings.

Jason said when corporate fliers come in to the airport, they might be coming in for a couple of hours or a couple of days. For people going to Berea or Richmond, Madison Airport gives them the advantage of not having to drive in from Lexington. When the corporate fliers are here, the airport has a courtesy car (or crew car) available if they are only in for a couple of hours. The courtesy car was an old police car donated by Richmond. For longer visits, people rent cars.

The Madison Airport runway was extended a few years ago. Jason said it was 4,500 feet and the added length (it is now 5,001 feet long) means that it can accommodate cargo planes. The added length is "important for insurance purposes", Jason said. It allows more diverse planes and larger aircraft.

Madison Airport (I39) will have an open house and barbeque on Saturday, April 26, from 11 a.m. – 3 p.m. This is an annual event hosted by Eastern Kentucky University and the Madison Airport Board. For more information contact Jason Bonham at 859-986-3913 or by e-mail at Jason.bonham@eku.edu.

conceded that this was correct, but said P & Z did ask for items that weren't in the regulations.

Terrill requested that they bring in a speaker to talk to both city council and P & Z about getting development plans through more quickly. Connelly, however, cautioned Terrill to not approach the situation with possible misconceptions.

"We could have a broad discussion about the two sides, and not go in with preconceived notions such as that there's a big sign in Berea that says, 'Do Not Develop Here,' which I don't believe is the case," Connelly said.

Council member Diane Kerby asked McKay what he thought was the item most critical to Berea's economic success. McKay's quickly replied, "alcohol." McKay said that he had been trying to get a Steak 'n Shake in Berea; when he saw one in London, he asked why they had started one there instead. They told him that London had alcohol, and their traffic studies showed that when alcohol was served in the town, the traffic by that location increased by 30 percent.

"You wouldn't think that alcohol sales would have anything to do with a Steak 'n Shake," McKay said, "but they'll go by their traffic study."

McKay said that alcohol was not nearly as big an issue when it came to industry.

"As far as retail," McKay said, "I'll probably get a question about alcohol every two or three weeks."

Connelly and council members also discussed the different issues of economic development, including whether recruitment should be the main strategy as it has been in the past, what types of business Berea wanted to attract, and how this would all affect the community. When discussing next steps, council members decided to each bring an economic development idea or two to the next council work session, and share and discuss them.

Connelly reminded council members that their next meeting was on April 15, which is the deadline for the KU decision. Municipal utility companies around Kentucky are trying to make the decision of whether to stay with KU as the energy producer, or contract with someone else. Connelly said he and Utilities Director Ed Fortner had a meeting with the consultants to the process, and the three-hour session was extremely helpful. He asked council members if they would like to hear this presentation as well, since this would be a very big decision to make. Council members scheduled a time; Connelly reminded everyone that this would be a closed executive session, since a contract was in discussion.

In other business:

- Streets Director Dwayne Brumley requested that the city council turn down the bid for an amphibious vehicle, and consider putting the money towards a new truck so he could offer two crews of mowers in the summer months. He stated that they had the equipment to get by without the amphibious vehicle, and the greater need was for the truck because of the large amount of mowing they had to do. Council members approved that request. Bids for the aeration steps and carport enclosure for the utilities company were approved.
- Jeff Fultz from Central Bank addressed the city council, and told them they were trying to get a community fund started for Madison County that would be under the umbrella of the Bluegrass Community Foundation. Harry Moberly from ECU and Pat Ballinger, president of People's Bank, were also there. They wanted to start a community fund, which would fund charitable giving in the county. They were asking for $75,000, split between the three governments, as seed money for the endowment fund they wanted to start. They would then go forward to wealthy people in town and corporations, and ask them to match the money from the governments. They would ask for the $75,000 for a three-year commitment.

• City council issued a proclamation for the Berea Younger Woman's Club, marking April as Child Abuse Prevention Month. Pinwheels were placed in front of Berea City Hall on Tuesday. A proclamation for Fair Housing Month was also issued.

• Three bids were received for subsurface investigation and report to support the substation design on Lewis Street. The bids ranged from $6,000 to $8,000. Three bids were also opened for self-contained breathing apparatus; they ranged from $25,000 to $31,000.

• There were first readings on the amended business license ordinance, the amended budget, and surplus property to be sold, and a surplus vehicle to be donated to the consulate.

ver pinwheel is the national symbol used to raise awareness about child abuse and neglect prevention.

As reported by the Madison County Department of Community Based Services, there were 473 substantiated cases of child abuse or neglect in Madison County in 2013. The month of April is devoted to celebrating ways in which individuals and communities can actively support families and children. Child abuse is a problem with solutions, and in an effort to raise awareness and remember these children, members of the Younger Woman's Club of Berea and some local children planted pinwheels on Tuesday, April 1, 2014.

The Younger Woman's

Club of Berea (YWCOB) is a member of the Kentucky Federation of Women's Clubs (KFWC) and the General Federation of Women's Clubs (GFWC), both of which are united by a dedication to community improvement through volunteer service.

BE SMART
IT'S CHEAPER TO BUY A HOME THAN TO PAY RENT

Do the arithmetic! After you deduct the interest on your mortgage and the taxes on your home, etc. from your income tax, you will be paying less income taxes than you would have paid had you not bought a home. Factually, it's the best possible investment a person can make. And more:

Buying a home is forced savings! When you have paid off your mortgage (15/30 years), you now own the cash value of your home. It's like money in the bank. So do not put off until tomorrow buying your home. Every tomorrow is a yesterday!

Buy the comfortable and lovely home pictured below as your first home. (Your mansion will follow). Three (3) bedrooms, beautiful hard wood floors and room for a fruitful vegetable garden in the grassy back yard. Price: Only $112,900 Reduced

Shelf Notes

Ruthie Maslin, Madison Co. Library

"Life moves pretty fast. You don't stop and look around once in awhile, you could miss it."

-- Ferris Bueller

Planning a visit to the Madison County Public Library this month?

You might want to think about wearing your acid-washed jeans and extra shoulder pads. And maybe some extra hairspray or styling mousse. Oh, and tie that oversized t-shirt in a knot at your side.

That's because we are all about the '80s this month as we celebrate our 2014 One Book One Bluegrass selection, Ready Player One, by Ernest Cline.

The novel is set in a not-so-distant dystopic future world decimated by economic and ecological disintegration. It is a world in which Wade Watts -- the novel's protagonist -- seeks escape from his grim daily life in the uber-reality of a 1980s themed video vision quest.

Young Wade has joined millions of other players worldwide searching for a hidden egg in the massive multiplayer online game world of OASIS. The first person to find the egg inherits the immense fortune of the game's creator, James Halliday, who rigged the contest to begin at his death several years prior.

The novel is studded with '80s connections and allusions, from video games to movies.

Many of us will find a lot of resonance in these nods to the decade in which the Terminator proclaimed, "I'll be back" and Airplane! designated the white zone for "immediate loading and unloading of passengers only."

"What is your damage, Heather?" "What's love got to do with it?" and "Where's the beef?" became rhetorical queries defining an era that found video gamers "standing in an open field west of a white house, with a boarded front door. There is a small mailbox here."

You'll catch the '80s vibe as soon as you step into the library (which has been transformed into a giant Pac-Man arena). Display cases filled with '80s memorabilia and nostalgia-filled programs, from 1980s classic film festivals to Dungeons and Dragons marathons usher folks on a walk down memory lane.

This month at the library you can learn how to create your own video games, make a lampshade out of old cassette tapes, and discuss Ready Player One with book groups in both library locations.

You can sing all your favorite 1980s hits with Flashback Libraraoke in Berea on April 18. That's also the day the MCPL Camera Club presents "Deja View," a program that will show you how to transform those old photographs in the shoebox in your closet. Or maybe test your mental prowess with our '80s Trivia Breakfast Club in Berea on April 12.

In fact, there's 1980s programming throughout the month at all 10 Central Kentucky public library systems that are part of One Book One Bluegrass, including both the Richmond and Berea MCPL locations.

Check out the Madison County Public Library website (www.madisonlibrary.org) and Facebook page for all the details. And while you are on the website, take on your own video quest by deciphering clues and uncovering Easter eggs hidden throughout the site.

Remember: "no matter where you go, there you are." I'll see you soon at the library!

Volunteers Bring Sunshiny Presence to Hospital

Beth Myers/The Citizen

Volunteers from St. Joseph Berea are a bright presence for the hospital staff and patients, and they also help to fund needed projects within the hospital. Above is Edna Hill, who manages the Patient Assistance Fund, and below are Karen Reynolds, left, and Linda Adkins, who help to staff the gift shop.

By Beth Myers
 Citizen Editor

When National Volunteer Week takes place next week, St. Joseph Berea will have much to celebrate, and much to honor. The hospital utilizes around 65 active volunteers from the community, who not only provide a friendly and warm presence for patients, but also raise money for needed projects within the hospital itself.

"Volunteers mobilize enormous energy," Katie Heckman said, who acts as the volunteer coordinator for the hospital under her title of community relations director. "When you get people together, give them a cause, the energy is amazing. I've seen it happen again and again."

The volunteers, who are mostly retired, completely staff the hospitality desk and the gift shop. They also serve in outpatient waiting, clerical assistance, chaplaincy, health information management, newspaper delivery, bake sales, fundraisers, and the Henrietta Child Fund Committee.

The St. Joseph Berea Auxiliary, the organization of volunteers, has their own board, and members make their own decisions on how to spend the funding that is collected. Recently, they completely paid for re-striping the parking lot. The largest contributor of their funding is revenue from the gift shop.

"The whole program is very rewarding," Edna Hill said, who manages the St. Joseph Patient Assistance Fund. "We're helping people who can't afford to get their own medications. They're so grateful, and medications can be so expensive."

Hill, who worked in accounting and management before she retired, works with Peggy Pollard in the assistance fund. They are liaisons between the patients and the drug companies, securing medications at low to no cost. Most of the medications they assist patients in paying for are long-term, such as blood pressure medicine. The fund has facilitated over $1 million in free or low cost medications from drug companies for uninsured or low-insured patients. The referrals come from the hospital, or doctors in the community.

Hill, a former SJB Volunteer of the Year, works as treasurer of the Auxiliary in addition to her work with the Patient Assistance Fund. She also helps Heckman with the volunteer files, and organizes bake sales.

"I've got all these people with awesome abilities helping out," Heckman said. "It's been a wonderful mix of all kinds of people volunteering. I had one woman who is Baha'i, so she could be here at Christmas. She came and was there for the patients who had to be there over Christmas."

"It's a good way to meet people and give back to the community," Chuck Morgan said, the president of the Auxiliary, who often can be found at the hospitality desk. "We're a friendly face when people arrive."

Linda Adkins, who used to be a nurse at the hospital, agreed, "I still get to see the people I worked with. It's the people who make volunteering so rewarding."

Heckman will be advertising soon for junior volunteers for the summer months. She usually works with 20 teenagers, from age 14 to high school graduates, and they tidy rooms, talk to patients, and assist on floors. It's a good way for young people to learn about health care careers, Heckman said, as well as giving them a chance to help people.

"Volunteers are much loved by staff," Heckman said. "They're such a bright, sunshiny presence."

Word From Berea Streets

"How has Berea changed the most over the years?"

Gary Powell said, "It's become too liberal for me and many other people. With the alcohol sales and fariness and things like that. If you don't like Berea, and want alcohol sales, then you should move to some place that has alcohol sales."

JD VanWinkle said, "You used to drive through Berea, and you'd see your friends. Now you drive through and you don't see anybody. And the kids used to be playing. You don't see them either. They're playing on the computer."

Tom Schultz said, "More people. More traffic. Less regard for each other. More houses."

Powerful Film on Mental Illness to be Shown Locally

By Jonathan Schinhofen
 Citizen Reporter

Bruce: What's it like hearing voices?
 Lucy: It sucks.

This is an exchange between two characters in the Lifetime production Call Me Crazy, which is being shown at the Madison County Public Library on Tuesday, April 8 at 5 p.m. The presentation is sponsored by the Madison County affiliate of the National Alliance on Mental Illness.

Call Me Crazy is a collection of five short films, each looking at the lives of people with mental illness from a different angle. There is Lucy, struggling through law school when a psychotic episode sends her instead into the hospital. Other shorts feature a teenaged girl trying to grow up in the shadow of her mother, who will not stick to her treatment for mental illness; Lucy's estranged sister; a man who has debilitating depression and his wife; and a combat veteran with post traumatic stress disorder.

Lucy's powerful two-word summary of what it is like to live with mental illness delivers something most dramatic representations of mental illness do not: authenticity. Some films, such as A Beautiful Mind, present mental illness in an unrealistic and even romanticized manner. Call Me Crazy has none of that. The five stories are not tied up neatly in a bow with a Hollywood ending. The film shows the raw pain, broken relationships, and ambiguity about the future.

The National Alliance

on Mental Illness is a national organization dedicated to improving the lives of individuals with mental illness and their loved ones. It offers programs for education, support, and advocacy. The Madison County affiliate meets on the second Tuesday of every month at 5:00 p.m. in the Board Room at Saint Joseph Berea. For more information, contact Beth Clark at (859) 986-6301 or email Jonathan at jonathan@namimadison.org.

Berea College Students, Faculty Initiated into Phi Kappa Phi

The following Berea College students, staff or faculty were recently initiated into The Honor Society of Phi Kappa Phi, the nation's oldest and most selective collegiate honor society for all academic disciplines. Those initiated were Maria Deiter, Kaitlyn Reasoner, Nancy Ryan, Sayid Bynefsi, Aja Croteau, Khando Dolma, Mikiyas Kurabachew Assefa, Namokaba Hichilo, Courtney Mollett, Barbara Hollstein, Joseclin Rocha-Hidalgo, Karen Reynolds, Daniel Dennert, and Quentin Savage.

These residents were among approximately 32,000 students, faculty, professional staff and alumni to be initiated into Phi Kappa Phi each year. Membership is by invitation and requires nomination and approval by a chapter. Only the top ten percent of seniors and 7.5 percent of juniors, having at least 72 semester hours, are eligible for membership. Graduate students in the top 10 percent of the number of candidates for graduate degrees may also qualify, as do faculty, professional staff, and alumni who have achieved scholarly distinction.

Founded in 1897 at the University of Maine and headquartered in Baton Rouge, La., Phi Kappa Phi has chapters on more than 300 college and university campuses in North America and the Philippines. Its mission is "To recognize and promote academic excellence in all fields of higher education and to engage the community of scholars in service to others."

Southern Football Players Sign on for College Play

By Katie Quintin
Eagles Eye Reporter

Madison Southern's senior football class is full of talented young men. On Wednesday, March 26, three more young men signed to continue their career on the college level. Buddy Harrison, Derek Howard, and Tyler Hagan are the three new editions to Southern's list that have signed to play for some of the best in state college football programs.

Buddy Harrison signed to play strong safety for Union College in Barbourville. He is a strong, dedicated player who definitely deserves a spot on Union's roster. Buddy has a record of 30 carries, 275 yards, three touchdowns and an average of 9.17 yards a carry. He had six catches with 84 yards. Also, Buddy has 97 tackles, five interceptions, and one sack.

Southern's #72 Derek Howard has signed to play defensive tackle for the Campbellsville University Tigers. Derek is one of the strongest guys who has come through Madison Southern's weight room. He has a total of 140 tackles, 10.5 sacks and eight fumble recoveries. Derek has not only signed with CU to play football, but he also is going to be a part of their track team to throw shotput and discus.

The final player of the day who signed was Tyler Hagan. Tyler has signed with the University of the Cumberlands to play linebacker. Tyler is one of the best linebackers in Southern football history. He holds the school records for 33 tackles in a game, 166 tackles in a season, three sacks in one game, 14.5 sacks in a career and 485 tackles in a career. In addition Tyler also has five fumble recoveries, three interceptions, 18 carries, 142 yards, and two touchdowns.

These three young men join the 11 additional Eagles who are currently playing or who have signed to play football at the collegiate level, including -- Spencer Stone at Wake Forest, Matt Howard at UK, Ethan Lake and John Williams at University of the Cumberlands, AJ Johnson and Adam Simpson at Lindsey Wilson, Brett Sipple at Union College, Devante Linville at Campbellsville University, Casey Dionne at WestPoint Academy, Clayton O'Neal at Georgetown College and Rico Brown at Western Kentucky University.

We are very proud of all of these young men who get the privilege to move on to the collegiate level and represent the Madison Southern Football Program. We wish them good luck and hope to see even more Class of 2014 athletes sign later in the school year.

Special Olympics Athletes Featured in "Hometown Heroes"

There are two more "Hometown Heroes" nights coming up at the Chick-fil-A in the Richmond Centre on April 8 and April 15, where different Madison County Special Olympics athletes are recognized. Chick-fil-A, a gold sponsor of the Special Olympics Kentucky State Summer Games, will be hosting these events from 5 - 7 p.m. on the two upcoming Tuesdays. There has already been one Hometown Hero event on Tuesday, March 25.

The Hero evenings are part of the lead-up to the Special Olympics Kentucky State Summer Games.

Guests can come to

Chick-fil-A Richmond Centre to meet and get autographs from the athletes; guests with autographs will receive a free mini sundae. Chase Barnes and Tommy Parson were featured on the first Hometown Heroes night in March. Jason Smitha and Cody Lashelle will be featured on April 8, and Michael Berry and 2010 Special Olympics National Games medalist Lesley Reising will be the Hometown Heroes on April 15.

Chick-fil-A at Richmond Centre is in their second year as a sponsor of the Special Olympics Kentucky State Summer Games. Chick-fil-A will be supplying nearly 2,400 lunches on Saturday, feeding all volunteers and athletes at the Games. Hometown Heroes nights are also supported by Media Partner The Coyote 100.7 FM.

The 2014 Special Olympics Kentucky State Summer Games will be held from June 6-8 at Eastern Kentucky University in Richmond. The Games bring together more than 1,300 athletes and more than 600 volunteers from throughout the state for a weekend of competition and fun in Richmond. The Games include five sports - track and field, swimming, bocce, flag football and rhythmic gymnastics - as well as opening and closing ceremonies, a Healthy Athletes wellness fair and a victory dance on Saturday night. This will be the 20th consecutive year that Eastern Kentucky University has hosted the Summer Games.

Special Olympics is the world's largest program of sports training and competition for children and adults with intellectual disabilities. Participation in competitive events is open to all individuals eight years of age or older. Training and competition in local, area, state, and national programs is offered year-round in Kentucky in 15 sports.

Several Madison County Special Olympics athletes will be competing at the Summer Games, and will be present at the "Hometown Heroes" evenings that Chick-fil-A in Richmond is sponsoring on April 8 and April 15. People can come meet the athletes, get their autographs, and receive a free mini sundae when they present the autographs. Left to right are Cody Lashelle, Lesley Reising, and Tommy Parson.

Tibetan monks from the Drepung Loseling Monastery were visitors in Berea this week from Monday to Friday. People found them creating a Tantric Buddhist mandala sand painting in Baird Lounge in the alumni building. These paintings are poured grain by grain to generate energies for global healing. On Thursday, the monks are giving a convo at 8 p.m. in Phelps Stokes playing ancient temple music with traditional Tibetan instruments.

Visiting Tibetan Monks Heal with Art & Song

By Beth Myers
Citizen Editor

Many people, young and old, Berean and visitors, had the chance to observe and visit with the Tibetan monks this week, as they created a Tantric Buddhist mandala sand painting in the Baird Lounge in the alumni building at Berea College. They poured this painting grain by grain to generate energies for global healing. Second graders in Tina Williams' art classes at Berea Community visited during the week as well.

On Wednesday evening, the Tibetans held a special "teaching session" from 7 - 8:30 p.m. that was open to all. It took place in the Baird Lounge.

Thursday evening, they will be giving a special performance for the Stephenson Memorial Concert series at Phelps Stokes. At 8 p.m., they will play ancient temple music with traditional Tibetan instruments.

County Debates Contractors for $5.5 Million EOC

By Beth Myers
Citizen Editor

Even though a Madison County construction company lobbied hard to receive the bids for part of the reconstruction and renovations of the county's EOC (Emergency Operations Center) building, it was awarded to an out-of-town contractor. As the Madison County Magistrates reviewed the bid package for the over $5.5 million center at their fiscal court meeting on Tuesday, a couple questioned the decision to not go with the local contractor.

"I just want to make a comment," Magistrate Roger Barger said. "I got a couple of phone calls in support of Stewart Construction, saying they're good guys and they do good work."

Barger had asked earlier in the meeting if there was consideration for using local entities in the decision.

Emergency Management Agency (EMA) Director Carl Richards explained that this was a very intensive bid evaluation. People from the federal level were involved, as well as local officials, in scoring each bid package, and they used a standard evaluation scale that judged contractors on their management experience, their fiscal ability to handle the size of project, their OSHA record, and the price they bid. Consideration for being a local contractor was only given if two had tied scores; then the local would win the tie.

"One bid picked was the best scoring, but not the lowest. They were the third lowest. But the safety stuff on the other two worried us," Richards said, who commented that Stewart Construction had contacted him as well about receiving the bid.

"We're dealing with federal tax dollars, so we have to be careful," Richards added.

Stewart Construction had a lower score than Rising Sun Construction, and their bid was $34,000 higher, so Rising Sun won the bid.

Dr. Harold Adams enjoys showing his art pieces at the Hutchins Library; six of his pieces are part of their permanent collection. A graduate of Berea College, Adams worked as a doctor for 30 years, before being diagnosed with Hepatitis C. He then enrolled in art school, to get his mind off his health problems. He eventually earned a MFA, and found his art healing as well -- he no longer is afflicted with Hepatitis.

Doctor, Artist Credits College for Achievements

Not many people knew that the tall, stately man looking at a series of large abstract paintings in the Hutchins Library just two weeks ago was the artist himself. Fewer still knew that the man was Dr. Harold Adams, a 1948 honors graduate of Berea College.

Six of Dr. Adams paintings are in the permanent collection of Berea College. His drawings and paintings are also in the permanent collection of the Wiseman Museum of Art in Minneapolis as well as the fine art galleries of several

Denmark Students Visit Berea Schools

Danish students from the boarding school of Han Herreders Ungdomsskole in Fjerritslev, Denmark had the opportunity to learn about America through a Kentucky experience this week, when they visited Frankfort, Harlan County, and Berea. The 23 students are in what the schools call a "gap year." They have finished nine years, and take one year of school to mature, develop socially, and master whatever academics they need to.

The students stayed with host families in the Berea area, and one of the organizers, Robin Taylor, stated how pleased she was with the generosity of the community in taking the students in. They visited Berea Community and Madison Southern on Wednesday and Thursday, to meet students from America and experi-

Homeschooling Provides Educational Alternative for Parents

Why would people homeschool their kids? Twenty-one children in the Berea Community School district are homeschooled, yet many people in the community don't know much about this educational option or the resources in the local community to help peo-

Clark asked Richards if he had ever experienced a bid scoring that was so intense, and he stated that only the radio upgrade was as intense. Richards stated that the fiscal court could make any decision they wanted; it was his responsibility to show them the evidence and analysis. Clark, however, stated that they should go with Richards' recommendation.

"It would be kind of ridiculous to not go with your recommendation after all you've done," Clark said.

All the magistrates except for Barger approved the recommended bid package. Barger stated that he didn't have a problem with any of the individual contractors, but he was concerned about using Codell Contracting again, because we "had such a bad experience with them during the annex construction."

He said they had extended the project way out with the change orders, and they waited much longer than they should have.

Clark replied that the delays were not Codell's fault; the wrong stone had been sent by a company, and then Katrina hit, and wiped the company out completely. They were held up a year, Clark said, just because of the stone.

The approved bid package, which included paying Rising Sun $1,735,000 for both the general trades and drywall and ceiling; TWF, Inc. charging $395,000 for steel; Allen Company, $80,029 for paving; Southerland Masonry at $325,000 for masonry; ABR Construction, $411,270 for roofing; Rogers Aluminum & Glass at $48,700 for windows and storefront; B. L. Radden & Sons charging $114,900 for painting; Landmark Sprinkler bidding $162,500 for fire suppression; Davis & Plomin, $1,149,000 for mechanical; and Complete Electrical coming in at $1,124,000 for electrical. The flooring had to be re-bid.

New Website, & Other News This Week

Letters from Berea

Beth Myers
Editor

So, it's been a long time coming, but the Berea Citizen actually has a website again. Yeah! Woo-Hoo! Our new website is thebereacitizen.com. Yes, we've gone electronic, but we're not going the entire way. We won't be offering the on-line subscriptions that some of you have requested. Still a very tricky thing, the business model for on-line media.

What our website will do, which has been beautifully built by our designer Tim Pack, is allow for submissions of letters to the editor, news, pics, renewals of subscriptions, feedback from readers – virtually anything you need to communicate with our office. We'll also be doing some breaking-news that we wouldn't cover in our regular edition.

Working with the website is not the only interesting thing happening for me this week, however. I spent these last two days taking pictures of Tibetan monks creating sand art, talking to Danish students and faculty who were visiting our two high schools, and watching the movie, Call Me Crazy at the library, a film about mental illness that highlights four different families. Just another typical week in Berea.

When I went to take pictures of the Tibetan monks, I decided to take a photo of the monks working on their art with the children in the background. However, I couldn't get the image to show up in my camera's viewfinder. As I fiddled with my controls, one of the monks approached me, gesturing for my attention. My immediate thought was, "oh no, he's going to tell me that I can't take photographs of such a spiritual practice, that this is inappropriate, that I need to put the camera away." Instead, he points towards my lens and said, "lens cap is on."

Okay, so instead of feeling like an ugly American reporter, I felt like a complete idiot. I have to admit it was hilarious, and for those of you who have seen Crocodile Dundee, you might remember a scene in that movie that was very similar.

Watching Call Me Crazy in the library Tues. evening was not nearly as lighthearted an experience. It was, hands-down, the best portrayal I've ever seen of mental illness. I encourage everyone to watch it; it shows rare insight and perspective into mental disorders. It showed the toll on families, as well as the absolute terror that people feel in the grip of a mental disorder they can't control. There was one line in the movie that haunted me. A girl whose sister had schizophrenia was venting to her boyfriend, and she reminded him of the time they had seen this homeless lady who acted pretty loony, and he joked, "let me introduce you to my mother." She told him that was funny, right? But, "that could have been my sister." And she was terrified that she might become her.

We have such a primal fear of "crazy" people; it can be hard to overcome that, and really advocate for research and money for treatment. A child who has lost hair with cancer makes for a much more beautiful poster than a child who's pulling their hair out and screaming.

It's scary for me, for all of us I think, to know how little control people can have over their minds, to realize how little we actually understand brain disorders. We want there to be reasons for why things happen, reasons for why our lives are good and our mind is sane, instead of the reality that we are just luckier than others.

That's not a very comforting thought at all.

Case Has Not Been Made for Fairness Ordinance.

Dear Editor,

How many authentic complaints have their been in Berea in the last 3 years from someone who has been discriminated against due to their sexual orientation? 1? 5 or less? The population of Berea is 10,000 to 12,000. Right? Why has so much ado been squeezed to the surface of our community awareness over the dividing issue called "fairness"? It is not being done to protect a body of people that have been mistreated. That body doesn't exist. I repeat, a "group" of people in our town cannot be assembled which have been denied housing or employment because, as one fairness enthusiast decried, "of who they love".

Perhaps some have been denied because of their attitude or some other preventable cause. But that is not a justifiable reason to implement a city-wide policy with such potentially huge fallout. The fairness ordinance is a policy designed to assist a phantom base of citizenry and will likely be enacted due to the current flow of popular culture. Not because of genuine discrimination.

Let me be clear, I am not denying there exists a crowd of people, some portion homosexual, who will celebrate the passage of fairness. Nor do I doubt any slurs or rude behavior against gays have been hurled. I am pointing out that the need for a fairness ordinance exists as surely as does the need to create legislation for protecting the rights of left-handed people. Or to form a commission to research the root cause of why the good-looking guy seems to always get the girl.

Finally, I would vote for it myself today if the following would be guaranteed: 1) Complete silence now and forevermore on the issue; 2) No furthering of the special treatment for people with sexually deviant lifestyles.

But that is as likely as the Reds taking the pennant this year. Fairness made law would open the gate for heightened favoritism to gay preferences.

Berea Needs a Fairness Ordinance

Dear Fellow Bereans,

Like you, there are a lot of things I could tell you about myself. I am a random exerciser, a book lover, an auntie, a lousy cook. My partner and I have lived together in Berea for the past seventeen years, and I am proud to call Berea my home.

I am lucky because I've never lost housing or employment because of my sexual orientation. My path has been full of family and friends who love and support me as I work to become the person I am meant to be. Hate and fear cannot stick in a soul that feels so loved, so I can honestly say that I've never lived under a weight of shame and judgment.

Others are not so lucky. Teenagers are killing their spirits and ending their lives because this is the choice they see – to admit the deep truth of who I am and love everything outside of me, or deny my truth and lose myself. This should break our hearts. We are teaching God's children to hate themselves in the name of God's Divine Love.

Berea needs a Fairness Ordinance because we need to stand together in sending a message to our young people – "We recognize that the gender of the person you love is not a compass that reveals your faith, your character of anything else about you. This one thing about you doesn't define you in our eyes. Berea is your home, a place where you are safe to become the person you are meant to be, and you are o.k. here with us."

Berea History Question for the Week

When was Interstate 75 officially opened at Exit 76 in Berea? What state official spoke at the ceremony? Who was president of Berea College at the time?

Answer to last week's question about what streets in Berea currently encompass Spring Street and Elder Street (disappeared in 1959):

Spring Street became a part of Main Street in 1959. It is now treated as a part of Scaffold Cane Road, running south from Union Church and the Alumni Building. Elder Street ran from Center Street to Prospect Street. It became part of Forest Street in 1959.

DOCTOR

universities. His work has been shown and highly praised in art circles. In a blog by artist Carol Best, she writes, "He is master of surface and texture and there is much in his process worth emulating."

Strangely enough, Dr. Adams did not major in art at Berea College. He says he walked into a biology class when he could hardly spell the word. His professor was Dr. John Bankston, who apparently saw ability to be a doctor in this farm boy from the rural community of Pittsburgh, just north of London, Kentucky.

After a few weeks, Dr. Bankston asked Adams, "What do you think you'd like to do?" The young freshman replied that he'd like to be a veterinarian. "No," said the professor. "You should be a doctor."

After that, Dr. Adams said that biology took over. He describes his four years at Berea College as the "beginning of the best days of my life." His roommate his freshman year was his older brother, George Mack Adams, an agriculture major. The two graduated in the same class.

While at Berea, Adams played on the basketball team and participated on the country dance team.

Berea College was "like heaven to me," he said.

His full scholarship to medical school came about when then college President Francis S. Hutchins was headed to New York for a business trip. Dr. Bankston asked the president to talk with his friend who was dean of the medical school at State University of New York at Brooklyn. The door was opened, and six days later Adams left Kentucky for medical school.

"The dean took me under his wing and made a doctor of me," he recalls. On graduation day, he was named the top student in his class. After completing his specialty training, Dr. Adams enjoyed a 30-year career as a successful obstetrician-gynecologist in St. Paul, Minnesota.

"All those babies, all those mothers - I would have paid those women and those babies just to take care of them," he said. "I had a desire to help people and I got more out of it than they did."

His work was not always in Minnesota. When invited to serve a medical mission aboard the Hope ship, he jumped at the chance to teach new surgery techniques to young OB-GYN doctors in Ecuador. When one of the doctors invited him home to a meal, a friendship began that included celebrating Christmas with the family and getting some of the youngsters involved in drawing.

His medical career ended when he was diagnosed with Hepatitis C, a common malady of the profession back in those days. At age 69, he closed his practice and enrolled in art school.

"I was older than my professors, but I turned to art to get my mind off my medical problems," he said.

His lifelong love of drawing and painting was rewarded when he earned a master of fine arts degree from the University of Minnesota and began to be recognized for his work. The healing aspect of his immersion in art was even more profound. His doctors were amazed that he was no longer afflicted with Hepatitis C.

He's pleased that his art work is still being shown, stating, "My art is a communication with myself. You have to make it your own."

He advises other aspiring artists to "do the work the way they see it, not the way others see it."

Some five years ago, Dr. Adams returned to Kentucky to be near his younger brother, Jack Adams, and other family. "I can't believe all the good fortune I've had. My life has been miraculous."

Dr. Adams will be 92 on Dec. 18 this year. A special joy is that he still receives notes on his birthday from some of the babies he's delivered.

en their families and educate in a way that is important to them. As parents and children spend more time and learn together, they also find new ways to enjoy being with each other. The parents have the opportunity to share their beliefs and values with their offspring, in a hands-on, lived way. For some it is important to share their religious faith, while others want to make sure their children are fully involved in their own learning process.

Margie Stelzer, a veteran homeschooler, says she homeschools, "To give my kids a broad learning experience that encourages critical thinking, self direction and a life-long love of learning."

Flexibility is another reason they homeschool. Learning can arise out of the everyday opportunities in life, in a variety of environments, and at different times of the day and year. Homeschooling can incorporate all of those opportunities. The parent can tailor the curriculum, pace of learning, and style of teaching to accommodate the needs of each child. Also, some learners don't "fit" in the public school system, either socially or academically, and the home environment can be more easily adapted to their needs.

One of the challenges of homeschooling is the weight of the responsibility on the parent (usually the mom). Being both parent and teacher can put a strain on the relationship with children. It can be hard for these parents to find time to re-charge when they don't have much "me" time. It can also be challenging to find a support network during the high school years.

One of the other challenges is handling other people's misconceptions and stereotypes of homeschooling. For example, when others make comments hinting that the child might not be "socialized" if they do not spend all day in a classroom full of peers. These homeschoolers value the deeper relationships within their families and the other interactions with people of diverse ages in a variety of circumstances. Sometimes other people also question whether their child is learning the "right" things, even when the parent sees how the child's thirst for knowledge has developed and grown.

Many homeschooling families find being part of a cooperative or other group offers academic, moral and emotional support for both children and parents. One member says, "It is great to have a network of friends that are sailing the same seas and can listen, share ideas, and support us in our choice to homeschool."

Two of these groups meet in Richmond and one, here in Berea. Wellspring Homeschool Community is a "community of home-school families joining together to offer programs that enrich, instruct, and provide a social outlet for homeschooled children."

Their weekly cooperative meets on Mondays at Red House Baptist Church in Richmond. They have other programs and field trips as well. Classical Conversations Community parents train other parents to implement home-centered education that "combines classical learning with a biblical worldview." It meets at Unity Baptist Church in Richmond on Tuesdays.

Red Cedar Learning Cop has been part of the preschool and homeschool landscape in Berea since 2005. Meeting on Tuesdays at the Friends Meeting House on Harrison Road, Red Cedar offers support and training to families pursuing active and self-directed community-based learning. They also offer a weekly open house Tuesday afternoons from 2 - 4 p.m. for homeschooling friends who are not currently members, but want to connect with their community. They welcome interested families to plan a visit in the next couple of weeks before the end of the co-op year. For more information, contact Michelle Hayden, mhbenearthebark@gmail.com, phone 859-353-7721. People can also find out more about the co-op at their website, www.redcedarlearning-coop.org.

Jones Attends to the Music & Silence of Poetry

Susan Garza/The Citizen

Libby Jones, above, is a professor of English at Berea College, a photographer, and published poet. She states that poetry starts as an impulse, then you attend to the music of the sound, and the silence.

By Susan Garza
Citizen Reporter

April is National Poetry Month and there are many poets in our midst here in Berea. One of them is Libby Falk Jones, a professor of English at Berea College, a poet, teacher and photographer. Libby has always had a love of language and the power of words. As a graduate student of English, Libby would have laughed if someone had told her she would come to poetry as her genre. She came to poetry accidentally when she sat in on a friend's poetry class to prepare to teach a class of her own. At the time she was the mother of two small boys, and she discovered that poetry allowed her to probe a moment. She didn't have time to work on long pieces of writing, but she could work on poems.

"The art of poetry comes from working on thoughts first put down," she says, "It becomes a piece of art when it is developed and shaped. It takes many drafts to figure out the heart of it." Libby believes that everyone should write poetry because it is an opportunity to work with idea, emotion and language. "I believe that writing is a natural connector of individuals to others and to the world."

Libby refers to the idea that, "Poetry starts as an impulse. Then you have to attend to the music, to the sound. When working with a poem you also have to attend to silence, the white space on the page. It is about the aural and visual silence."

Libby has come to enjoy writing in traditional forms. Most contemporary poems are in open form. The challenge in writing contemporary poetry is finding and inventing the form you are exploring; it is different than forms with rules.

In Above the Eastern Treetops, Blue a chapbook collection of Jones' poems that came out in the Spring of 2010, one finds lines like the moving first stanza of Alone, One Summer:

I have known the sorrow of the woman driven to the nursing home door, walker shining in the back seat, the vase whose history no one knows. In the quiet pool the frog has no need to jump.

Libby says that the value found in poetry is when a poem speaks to you, "it hits you at every level. Then, you can take it out at your leisure and relish it again and again." "There is this sublime concept of being taken out of ourselves," she continued. "In natural environments it happens in the presence of a mountain; it makes us feel insignificant but part of a larger universe. It also happens in the presence of great art like music or a painting. Then you feel 'I've been blessed in this space.'"

When a poem works it is a revelation to the reader and the writer.

Libby is interested in the connection between writing and contemplative practice. Her journey is outward and inward. She says that the journey inward has become more crucial to her over time, but that is also what propels the outward journey. Over the last 20 years she has come to understand that silence and stillness are crucial. She needed open space for silence from which all external work (like teaching) flows. She believes that others need that too.

She says, "Works of art need permission. Work to create the space." On April 2, Libby Jones presented what she referred to as a "performance" titled Seeing Mindfully which was well attended at the Berea Arts Council. The performance was a DVD collection of images and words viewed in silence. Libby refers to the idea that, "Photography means writing with light." And that "... the camera embodies receptivity."

In the creative process, Libby says that part of it is "being ready to notice. I think that is a lot of it.", but there is also the discipline,

Jay Coleman said, "3 or 4 times a week. There's more to offer."

Randall Rose said, "I do 95% of my shopping right here in Berea. It's convenient. I work right here, I'm so busy. I can get it right here instead of driving to Richmond or Lexington or wherever."

Infection Prevention....It's In Your Hands!

Saint Joseph Berea encourages you to use good hand hygiene. It is the single most important step toward preventing spread of infection. Germs are spread through the air by coughs and sneezes, but hands play a big role. One of the most common ways to pick up germs is by touching something that is contaminated and then touching your nose, mouth or eyes. You can also spread germs to others by touching objects or people with your hands. To protect yourself from germs, thoroughly wash your hands or use an alcohol-based hand sanitizer.

Jefferson Street Homemakers Meet in March

The Jefferson Street Homemakers met on March 24, at the Berea Senior Center. President Phoebe Huff opened the meeting by asking each member to offer a short prayer, and every one of them was special. Ten members answered roll call by giving facts about Ireland that were distributed in advance, to honor St. Patrick's Day. Nineteen of our presidents were of Irish descent.

Jeress Cash told a touching story about the many butterflies that visit her Zinna flowerbeds each summer. She had prepared a beautiful picture album of flowers and butterflies, which was passed around for all to enjoy. Several members are interested in establishing way stations for migrating butterflies, and subsequently becoming certified.

Phoebe Huff and Jean Harding attended the Monarch Butterfly class at the Extension office and gave valuable information on the vanishing butterflies. Because of poisons that are sprayed in fields and along the road sides, native plants are killed or are toxic to these butterflies, other insects and honey bees. Our members were inspired to plant more native plants, small bushes, shrubs, small trees, along with wild flowers to hopefully attract the vanishing butterflies to their yards and gardens.

Paula Woodman gave the lesson on Disaster Preparedness. She suggested we stock an emergency supply kit with items such as water, medical supplies, non-perishable foods, battery operated radio, flash light with extra batteries and a first aid kit, just to name a few. She gave handouts that helpful and informative.

Phoebe recommended a book by Water Cox, Angel on my Shoulder. The author is over 100 years old, and is still very active. Also, her homemade orange cookies were a hit.

Callie Isaacs is busy making corn shuck flowers, while others are painting and sewing, getting ready for the annual meeting. The ladies stopped long enough to have a photo taken.

Our next meeting will be on April 21, and people may become a member by calling Paula at 986-8350. The lesson next time will be Writing your Life Story.

Rev. Julie Love to Speak at Final Lenten Luncheon Tuesday

work within 45 minutes; the event should end around 12:45 p.m. Reservations are not necessary; simply come and join in the spirit of community and in celebration of the season of Lent. The series is sponsored by the Berea United Methodist Church.

The theme this year is "What On Earth Am I Here For?" drawn from the book of the same name written by Rick Warren, founder of Saddleback Church, a 30,000 member congregation in California. Love, an ordained deacon, is a native of Berea and a graduate of Berea College and Louisville Presbyterian Theological Seminary. In her ministry she works with outreach, campus ministry, camp and retreat ministry, disaster response, communications and providing resources for the over 800 local churches in the conference.

Previously she lived in Prestonsburg for ten years where she served as a Church and Community Worker in ministry with the 53 small membership churches in the Prestonsburg District.

She and her husband, George, a pastor in Presbyterian Church, USA, live in Mt. Washington, Ky. with their son Cameron, 19, a sophomore at Western Kentucky University, and daughter Eliza, 15, a sophomore at Bullitt East High School.

Love is the daughter of Drs. Paul and Joy Hager of Berea.

For more information, or for transportation, please call the church office at 986-3485.

Kennedy is March Find the Citizen Winner

Ruth Kennedy of Berea is the latest winner of the Find the Citizen contest that the newspaper holds. Her name was drawn as the March winner, and Keeley Johnson, the Citizen office manager, hands her the $25 prize, left.

People can participate in the contest by finding the small newspaper Citizen that's hidden every week. Every time they find it, their name is entered for the once a month drawing.

The picture above shows some of the local committee chairpeople in AAUW (American Association of University Women), the Berea branch. From left to right are Mrs. Arnold Robinson, the American in a Changing World; Mrs. Wm. Goble, Expectations for Education; Phyllis Shumaker, memberships; Charlotte Ludlum, cultural interest, M. M. Macaulay, president of the Berea branch and chairman of the year's topic, "Occident and Orient"; Virginia Auvil, who presided at a discussion meeting on India and Pakistan; Mrs. Virginia Matthias in the Indian Sari; Mrs. David Striffler; Dr. Helen Deane; Mrs. L. D. Bibbee, Bridging the Gap between Science and the Laymen; Mrs. P. W. Lambert, world problems; Lillian McGuire, parliamentarian, and Elizabeth Edinger, fellowships.

The State Highway Department issued a statement in April 1964 that they made the decision to relocate KY 21 to the north of its existing location because of the many existing residences along existing KY 21, which would be disturbed. The ultimate design was two 24-foot pavements with a 16-foot grass median, 10-foot stabilized shoulders, 8-foot ditches and control of access. Because of the short length of this four-lane section, difficulty was being experienced in transitioning from a four-lane to a two-lane design.

The Berea College Hospital announced that 438 people were examined during the annual screening program. The problem appearing most frequently was that people were overweight. Many of the overweight people also had an increase in blood pressure.

The screening program was originally instituted to encourage those past 40 years old to have an annual check-up, but the number of participants were declining every year.

The Madison County Fiscal Court offered a $100 reward to anyone furnishing information leading to the arrest and conviction of anyone dumping trash and garbage along the highways in the county.

There were 33 Bereans who attended the Council of the Southern Mountains in Asheville, N.C. The conference was four days of consultations, discussions, and addresses on the critical problems of the Appalachian South at that time. Those attending were President and Mrs. F. S. Hutchins, Mr. and Mrs. P. F. Ayer, Leo Arnold, Carol Mays, Mr. and Mrs. Fu Liang Chang, Mrs. Ruth Davis, Helen Dingman, Mrs. R. B. Drukker, Mrs. Goldie Gearhart, E. Dudley Howe, Roselea Johnson, Mrs. Dorothy Mitchell, Mrs. Robert Pollard, Mr. and Mrs. Mace Crandall, the Rev. and Mrs. T. B. Cowan, the Rev. T. Hoard Stark, Emma Reeverts, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Suters, Orville Boes, Tom McClure, Margaret Graff, Frances Nicholson, Mrs. Eva Knight, Milton Ogle, Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Wesley, and Mr. and Mrs. Loyal Jones.

The Berea Trio, composed of Arthur Dondero, violinist; Joseph Firszt, violist; and Robert Lewis, pianist; gave a concert in Gray Auditorium in April 1964. The group will perform the Trio in A Major by C. Bach, commemorating the 250 anniversary of the composer's birth.

Teams from both Berea High School and Berea Foundation School participated in the State Speech Festival held on the U.K. campus. Susan Kiteck, Brenda Holt, Pauline Smith, Jewell Gabbard, Beverly Hamilton and Mary Margaret Abney represented Berea High. Betty Jean Hall, Jackie Gunkler, Lee Hisle, Mirian Pride and Betsy Orwig represented Foundation.

The Berea High team received one superior rating for Mary Margaret Abney, and two excellents for Jewell Gabbard and Beverly Hamilton. Lee Hisle and Betsy Orwig from Foundation won superior ratings.

There were 18 girls from Berea who participated in the experimental World Friendship Project on Hong Kong. The program ran for eight weeks, and the girls learned about modern Hong Kong, and Chinese family life, art, and recipes. The participants were Lois Allen, Pam Baker, Darlene Barret, Pat Buda, Beverly Cummins, Donna Durham, Pat Gailey, Cathy Hale, Robin Hamilton, Carol Hansen, Jan Kilbourne, Anne Kreider, Linda Lunsford, Laura Menefee, Nancy Ramseyer, Sue Robinson, Frances Strickler and Kay Wood.

Farmers and businessmen of the Berea area held their 43rd annual joint banquet. A total of 165 men were present. The welcome was given by John Barton, Parker Seal Superintendent and President of the Chamber of Commerce. Morris Calico gave the response. Mayor C. C. Hensley of Berea was the toastmaster, and Rev. Don Welch was the song leader for the occasion.

Berea 4-H Club participants were working hard on projects in a special program sponsored by the Berea Kiwanis Club, The Berea College Industrial Arts Department and the local 4-H Group. Participants were Abby Scruggs, Gail Legear, Diane Jennings, Connie Van Winkle, Larry Wyatt, Jane Britton, George Wyatt and Jan Lindbert.

to share the great things about kites with the community. It offers the chance to have a peaceful good time outside with your neighbors, family, and friends. Garza hopes that a wide variety of people will come - those who spend hours making the perfect kite, those who are not even sure they can get a kite in the air, and those who don't want to fly a kite at all. And you don't have to be a kid - or bring a kid - to feel like you belong.

As she has been getting this festival off the ground, Garza has had lots of support from all over Berea. Berea Tourism, the Chamber of Commerce, and the Berea Arts Council are helping to promote the event. The library is sponsoring a kite making workshop on Monday, April 21st, from 3:30-4:30 and everyone is

When asked why she is organizing the Berea Kite Festival, Sue Garza replied, "I just like kites." And what is not to like? Kites can be flown and enjoyed by people of all ages. Kites appeal to people's artistic and scientific minds. A homemade kite is an expression of the flier's creativity and a test of engineering skills.

Through the years, Garza has flown kites with her nephews, but making and flying kites with two local moms and their children got Garza excited about a kite festival here. She was also inspired by the kite festivals in her previous hometown, Chicago. Plus, Garza says, "There is something magical about seeing lots of kites flying together." first as far as I can remember. I do recall some April dustings over the years, even one or two on Easter but never on my birthday. I sure hope that was the last one. The snow I mean, not the birthday.

The point has come where I'd just as soon not be reminded that I'm another year older, but everyone has been really kind and generous in the celebrating of my special day and I really appreciate it.

I'm looking forward to the Easter celebration this weekend too. Can't wait to hear the cantata at church and enjoy the rest of the day with family. I have a feeling Aubrey and Canon may think they're past egg hunting this year, I hope not, but I'm sure Caleb, Ally, Evan, Carly and Eli will be raring to go.

On a final note this week, I am tickled to death to be working with Kristie Fain again. She will be handling advertising for The Citizen and I know the business community will be as glad to have her as we are.

Well, it was pretty unbelievable to have an inch of snow on the deck Tuesday morning. Tex measured it, there was at least an inch.

Ordinance will create more conflict than harmony

Dear Fellow Viewpoint readers,

I am responding to Laura Nagle's letter addressed to "Fellow Bereans" and printed in the Citizen last week. I was happy to read that she has not experienced discrimination with housing or employment. Instead, she reports her path has been filled with loving friends and family, not making it possible for internal struggles to have a lasting hold on her life. Ms. Nagle shared that some gay and lesbian children have not received the kind of support she has known. She suggests the implementation of fairness would convey to gay youth, "you are safe to become the person you are meant to be and you are ok here with us".

The main thrust of "fairness" is acceptance, isn't it? The proposed ordinance: 5% is an attempt at righting the wrongs committed in Berea and 95% is a policy to achieve acceptance. But is acceptance supposed to be achieved this way? Can it be accomplished by enactment of law? This subject has produced the extreme tug of war that's become largely about the debate over whether or not one's sexual identity is a choice. Many have proposed on the viewpoint page that sexual identity is not a choice. I believe even the same was implied in one of Ms. Tanya Stewart's artistic messages, some time ago.

Some of these editorials over the past couple of years have communicated the journey of homosexuality as being a difficult one. Yet, should the journey be modified by dissolving the ability of others to choose who they want to conduct their business with? Or who they want to inhabit their property?

Certainly, gays are not always accepted. Nor are a lot of other groups in our society. Yes, there should be change. But not change which would be demanded by the fairness ordinance. The attempt to fix this problem by taking the strides proposed in the ordinance will create more conflict than harmony. More division than acceptance.

Reader's allegations concerning Lowe's

Letter to the citizens of Berea,

At the last council meeting, the mayor informed the public that the reason the Lowe's Home Center with approximately 140 jobs did not locate in Berea was because of the economy.

I challenge him to prove his allegations.

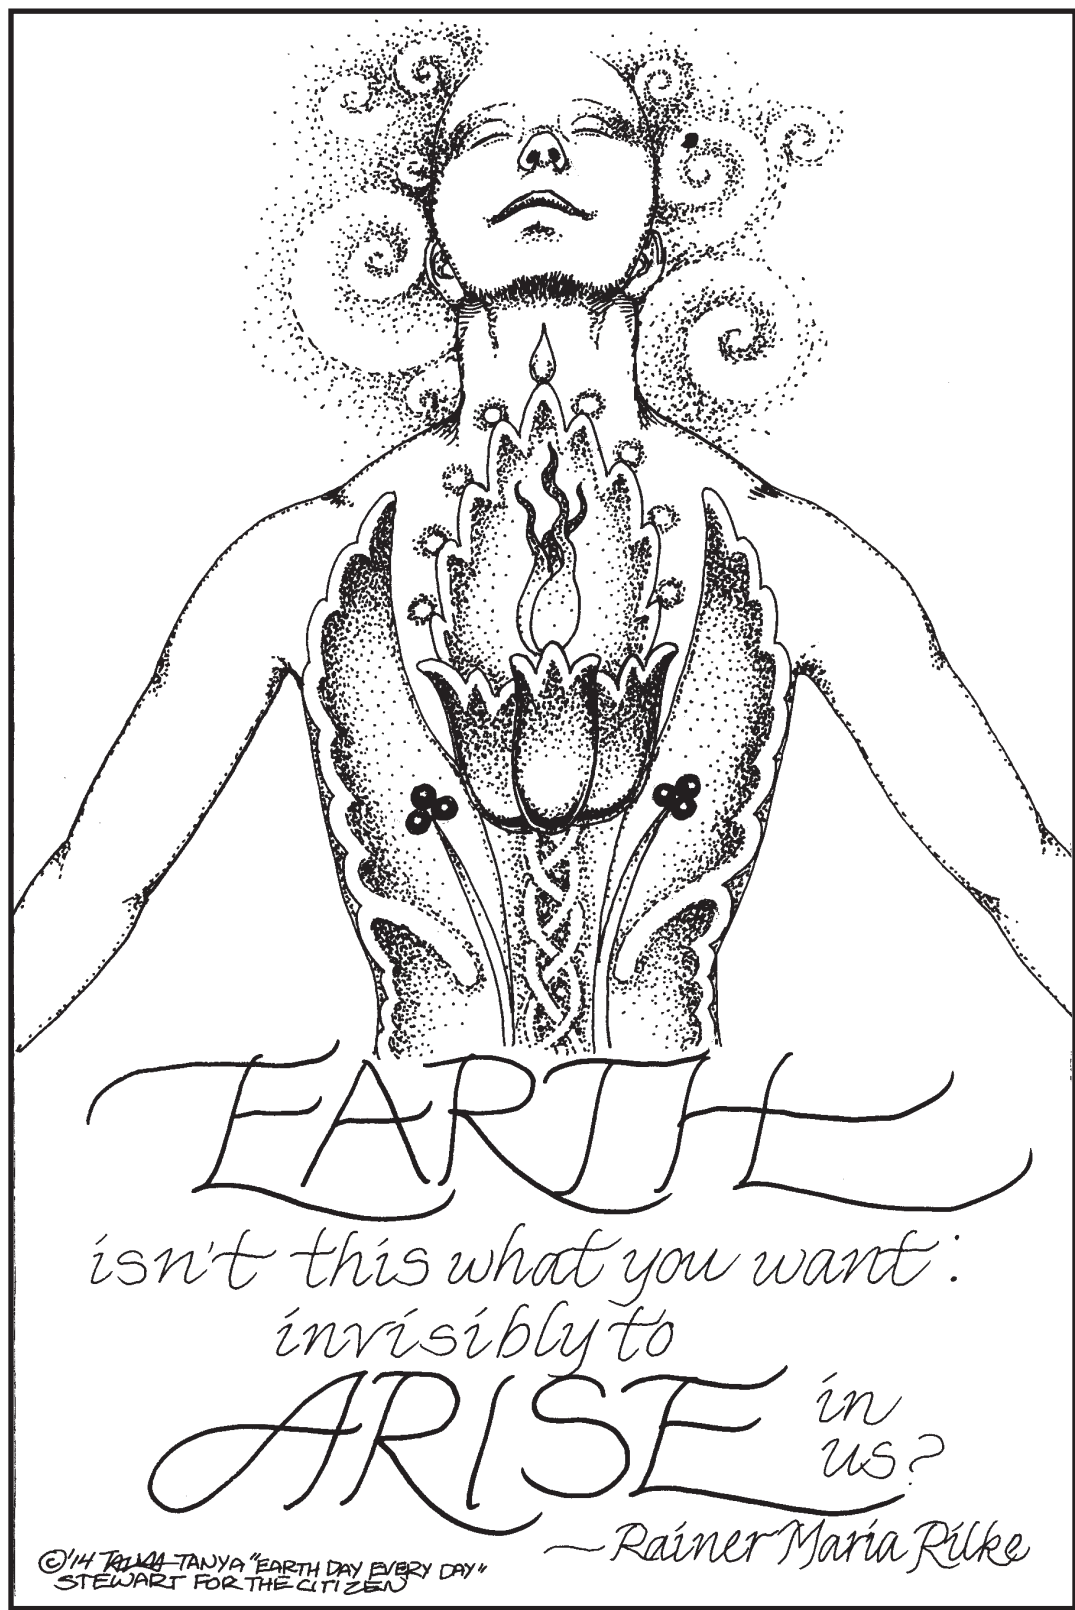

I have researched this through several channels and have found his statement to be false and my statement to be true and factual. The Lowe's Home Improvement Center wanted to enter into a memorandum of understanding with the City of Berea to defray a portion of the cost that the City would incur for the public transportation improvements required as a result of the development. This memorandum would allow the City to impose impact fees on any development in the benefited area to defray a portion of the cost to the City incurred for the public transportation improvements required as a result of the development and to pay out of the City funds the sum of $200,000 toward the improvements. The total cost of the improvement was well over $450,000. The City would enact an Ordinance establishing the South Dogwood Drive Benefit Area after which the City would start construction on their end of the project.

The City of Berea did not carry out any of these requests. They did not sign the Memorandum of Understanding nor did they enact an Ordinance establishing the South Dogwood Drive Benefit Area. That is why Lowe's withdrew and we did not get a Lowe's Home Center here in Berea.

Top Notch Production at Madison Southern

Dear Editor,

A big round of applause goes to Susan R. Bradshaw and the teams she assembled (Lisa Scully, Colin Hester, Hailey Brinegar, Linda Ross, Rebecca Petys, and Rod Bradshaw) to help bring Madison Southern's musical offering, Beauty and the Beast to life for Bereans to enjoy!

Speaking as an Almost impartial observer, (none of my relatives were in the show), this production was top notch, in every aspect of the show: Cast, Costume, Makeup and Hair design, Sets, Props, Lights, Backstage Crew.

Congratulations to all, and I look forward to your next production. (And by the way, I was told that you lost 22 days of rehearsal time due to Snow Days, making this an even more amazing story!)

Need an Anti-Discrimination Fairness Ordinance

Dear Editor,

There have been some great letters in the Citizen in support of the anti-discrimination Fairness Ordinance which the city council is currently considering. I wanted to take just a minute to write about the public accommodations aspect of the ordinance, and its potential to help the young people in our community.

In Berea, as we stand right now without an anti-discrimination Fairness Ordinance, individuals can be turned away from public places because of their perceived sexual orientation, and that is absolutely legal. Individuals can be made to leave restaurants, hotels, sports events, pools, gas stations, stores, banks, and all kinds of places where we all expect to go to and need to go to on a daily basis. While women, minorities, and people with disabilities face daily discrimination, too, we do have some legal protections from it. Because previous generations thought to enact such protections, it would not occur to me to worry that I might be kicked out of a public place because I am a woman.

When it comes to LGBT folks in our community, this kind of discrimination, though we may hope it's uncommon, is perfectly legal. At the same time that Berea does not yet have a Fairness Ordinance, around 1,500 families send their young adults here every year to get their college education. Those families expect that our community will be a safe place for their children to live, just as we want our children to be safe when we send them out into the world. As long as we cannot offer protection to all from discrimination, we cannot say we are living up to our responsibility to make a safe place for either the young people who come here each year or for our own young people who live here year in and year out.

We need an anti-discrimination Fairness Ordinance for so many reasons, but this protected and legal discrimination is the one that is breaking my heart today.

Berea History Question for the Week

What firms planned and designed the Berea Community School building in 1965, and what structure was it modeled after?

Answer to last week's question about when Interstate 75 officially opened, who spoke at the ceremony, and who was the Berea College president:

Interstate 75 at Exit 76 in Berea was dedicated by Governor Edward Breathitt, Jr. on November 23, 1966. Francis Hutchins was still president of Berea College at the time. Willis D. Weatherford became president in 1967.

History questions and answers are composed by Berea Mayor Steve Connelly organization terminates with them, they still use them for the next five years. Even if Connelly does sign a notice of termination, Berea will still be purchasing power from KU for five more years.

Berea Utilities Director Ed Fortner has mentioned before that a ten-year contract can lock a municipality in, since most other energy producers won't want to negotiate or wait ten years before a company starts purchasing from them. The consultants informed the council of the same sentiment, leading them to make the decision to terminate unless KU makes radical changes in their proposed contract.

Connelly stated that they are not sure of what the other 11 municipalities that own utility companies will do. They have been acting in concert, and there has been conversation about forming a cooperative to negotiate contracts together. That would give all of them more purchasing power. There may even be efforts to re-negotiate with KU after giving notice of termination.

In other business, the council approved the amended budget, though council member Jerry Little voted no.

"The reason I am voting no to the budget is because we should be using the tourism money to promote all tourism activities. I feel the art council and Kentucky Guild is tourism related. We spend over $300,000 a year in the tourism advertising budget, and yet we couldn't find $38,000 to help promote the arts council and the Guild and crafts fair. We had to take it from the general fund," Little said.

The City of Berea had budgeted $25,000 for the Kentucky Guild and $10,000 for the Berea Arts Council in the amended budget.

The mayor signed a proclamation making April 25 SaraCare Day in Berea.

The city council approved Winn Fire Equipment's bid for self-contained breathing equipment for the Berea Fire Department. They were the lowest bid at approximately $25,600. They also approved a bid of $6,324 for the Lewis Street Substation for the geo tech services.

at the Baptist church.

They will be taking a love offering that Sunday morning for money for the food bank and emergency relief. People can also donate food.

Cindy Morgan and Andrew Greer, the musical artists who hold Hymns for Hunger around the country, will be performing at 10:45 a.m. Karen Linville, who volunteers with the Berea Baptist Church Food Bank, and helps organize the food drive, estimated that the concert would last around an hour and fifteen minutes.

Both Linville and Marilyn Arnold stated that the number of people visiting the food bank has tripled in the last three years. This past year, they gave away approximately 10,000 pounds of food from God's Pantry.

Looking over their numbers, they served around 30 people in March 2012, around 50 in March 2013, and around 100 in March 2014.

"Nine times out of ten, people are genuine," Arnold said, when speaking of the fear that some people have of the system getting conned. We do this so we can serve everybody."

Linville, who has volunteered for over ten years at the food bank, talking of how rewarding the work was said, "There are people we've been close to that we've been serving for years," Linville said. "I have learned so much about compassion as well as discernment."

"It's so rewarding," Arnold said. "You see people pour their hearts out to you. They're so grateful and thankful and appreciative. They say how thankful they are that we don't judge them."

Berea Baptist Church has around 15 volunteers work at the food bank. Their clients are mostly from outside of the church, though there are a few they help who are church attenders.

Their food bank is open on Mondays and Fridays from 1:15 - 3:30 p.m. They only do rent and utility relief on Mondays.

Items that they especially need for the food bank are spaghetti, spaghetti sauce, peanut butter and jelly, cereal, and dried beans.

The food bank is located behind the Berea Baptist Church on Chestnut Street.

FLUTE

this event, since the flutist in question was his beloved sister, Elaine Shaffer, who died in 1973 at 47 years of age. She was at the height of her world recognition as a musician.

His other sister, Beverly Shaffer Gast, wrote the book, Angel in Black, in 2011 about Elaine; her life was chronicled there with letters, dairy entries, newspaper critics' reviews, photographs, and memories.

"I've done these types of presentations around ten times since I wrote the book," Beverly said, "But my audience in this area has mostly heard it. One woman here in the retirement center who heard it said it was one of the loveliest afternoons she had every spent."

At the presentation in Berea, Beverly plans to speak about things from her book, and also about things that aren't in the book, such as memories of their family and where they grew up. She usually plays about ten minutes of her sister's music at the end, but she may increase that time because of Robert's wish to have more played of Elaine's music

Beverly decided to write the book because of all the letters her sister had sent. She had hundreds, and remembered that she would receive two or three letters a week from Elaine when she lived overseas.

"It was really the letters; reading them, I knew I had to do something. When I would tell people her story, they loved it," Beverly said.

Beverly ultimately went to her son and daughter-in-law's bed and breakfast in Colorado because she knew she needed time alone to consider the book. She ended up spreading all the stuff out, and then knew that she wanted to write her sister's story through the letters and other documents.

"At the time of her death, she was considered the greatest flutist in the world," Robert said. "I invited Beverly to come to Kentucky so she could tell the story of this young woman determined to achieve success in a male-dominated profession."

Elaine didn't receive lessons on the flute until she was 18 years old; she taught herself as a child after becoming fascinated with a small black lead pipe in the family's attic. A clarinet teacher helped her as much as he could, and she also listed to recordings of the Philadelphia Orchestra.

Beverly remembers that Elaine was always trying to get her to play an instrument. She would bring different ones home, and would leave them in the house, hoping that Beverly would try it out.

"She wished I would just get interested in the French horn. She would tell me it would sound so good with the flute," Beverly said chuckling. "I realized as I went through the letters how much she loved me, and wanted me to be part of what she was doing."

After enrolling at the Curtis Institute of Music in 1924, one teacher asked Elaine, "with whom did you study before you came here?" When she replied that she didn't have a teacher, just a clarinet teacher, one of the clarinet players replied, "Maybe we should take lessons from a flute player."

Much of her story, however, are the huge barriers she faced as a woman flutist. The director of the Pittsburgh Symphony told her, after refusing her a spot, that, "You are the best I have heard, but too bad you are a woman."

Still, she pursued her music with unflagging determination the next three decades, and eventually obtained international fame. The title of the book came from an AP news headline published after she played in London, calling her the "Angel in Black." Author Herman Hesse told her she played "as a daughter of Handel or Mozart." After she was diagnosed with lung cancer, the illness she ultimately died of in 1973, she set herself to perform from memory six Bach Flute Sonatas, a feat for any flutist, especially a sick one.

"I don't think I could do it again," Elaine said, as she described the journey of working through the letters to write the book. "But for that while, it really absorbed me."

two stages of bands, roving performers, drum circles, and special single event acts such as fire performers. The rest of the budget listed $120 for a sound technician, $250 for assistants, $230 for staffing, $300 for security and $500 for licensing fees.

"We really want to reach different parts of Berea and the community with these events," Watkins said, though later she stated that they wouldn't be doing print or television advertising, since the types of people they would be targeting for this specific event "would not be reached that way."

"I don't even know anyone who has a television. The people we are talking to use new technology," Watkins said.

One of the Village Trough representatives mentioned that there were five different music festivals right outside of Berea, and they weren't even known to most people in Berea, and didn't advertise within Berea either. Watkins stated that for the First Friday event, they would have one band on the cabin stage, and a second stage at Gastineau Jewelers' parking lot. The Berea Farmer's Market would be on the other side of the studio, with various vendors set-up.

"What we're going to get out of all this, in case you're wondering why we want to do this, is number one this is what we see as a good time," Watkins said. "It's what we enjoy doing, our friends and the people we're hoping to market to enjoy this. It's a way to get people to the Friday night scene that we hold at Village Trough, and get people to the restaurant."

Watkins stated that they would have seven, eight or nine people doing a choreographed fire show in July. The amount for six events equaled $16,200.

"I think the $16,000 amount is a lot of money," Charles Arnold said, the chairperson of the Tourism Commission. "What I would suggest is maybe funding one, and possibly gathering data. But I'm all for trying anything that will bring people in, especially on Friday night."

Other commission members also expressed concern about the cost, but also stated that they had to get things going on weekend nights in Berea.

"We're giving a maximum of $5,000 to groups that bring in thousands of people," Paul Reynolds remind commission members.

Commission member Ahmad Reynolds said, "I would be opposed to helping finance anything the first time around." He later asked them, "If we don't fund it, what will you do?"

Watkins didn't have another funding source plan, stating instead that if the Commission didn't supply funds, she would have to try to get bands to come for free or call in bunch of favors.

Many commissioner brought up the weather problem, and how that has ruined many plans. Watkins didn't have specifics on how they would handle problematic weather, stating instead that, "we've been running through some scenarios."

Another commissioner brought up the fact that they paid $600 a month for Jammin' on the Porch, and they were considering $2,700 for another event. Paul suggested giving $800 a month instead, to be more in line for the Jammin' on the Porch funding.

Commission member Ken Gastineau was in favor of funding the group for three months, stating they had to do something to get things going on the weekend.

David Rowlette, the director of the Berea Chamber of Commerce, brought up two concerns, "First of all, what assurances do you have that anyone is going to be open after 5 p.m.? We've had music before, and people have been closed. Secondly, who will know about this besides the people in this room?"

Different people expressed concern about the lack of advertising money in the budget, but Watkins stated they would go through Facebook, QR Codes, and mass emails, since the people they were targeting used that media.

The commission voted to approve the three months of funding, and Arnold told the Village Trough representatives they would be, "expecting a lot from you."

The Berea Tourism Commission decided to post-

Secret To Lady Eagles' Wins? They Don't Like to Lose

By Jonathan Schinhofen
Citizen Sports Reporter

Madison Southern's softball coach Brian Foley has a simple explanation for the extraordinary success of the Lady Eagles so far this season.

"We've got a group of girls who do not like losing," Foley said.

While it takes more than a distaste for losing to win consistently, nobody can argue that the Eagles are hot this year, winning their first seven games and currently sitting on a 10-3 record. They had what Foley considers a successful season last year, going 19-9 in the regular season and 1-2 in the postseason. But this is turning out to be an even better season and is the best start for the Eagles in recent memory.

"We knew this was going to be a really good season," said Foley. "There's veteran leadership, they work hard and want to be the best they can."

Seventeen players are returning from last season, including eight juniors and seniors. The mix of young and old returning players bodes well for the future as well.

sel leads the team in batting average at .349 with 11 RBI and two home runs in 47 plate appearances. Sophomores Bethany Mays and Jaycee Combs are also hitting above .300.

On defense, they have allowed just 39 runs to 100 scored, and the pitching staff has a combined 1.83 ERA. Junior Tara Bord has done the heavy lifting, pitching 52 inning with seven complete games. Her ERA is 1.21 with 29 strikeouts against three walks and allowing only six extra-base hits, all doubles.

Coach Foley said they are aiming for 24 wins this year. That goal is in reach. Maybe they don't like losing, but winning only happens if players do the job on the field. So far, they are doing just that and are poised to make a run at the District championship this year.

With a 3-0 record in the 11th region, including a win against Scott County, the team that knocked them out of regional play last year, it looks like they will be able to make a deep run into the postseason.

Danish boarding school brings new gymnasts

During the week of April 6-12, a group of twenty-three Danish students from the Han Herred Ungdomsskole (HHU) boarding school in Denmark visited Berea.

The students are all completing their ninth or tenth grade year at the school, where most kids are between the ages of fourteen and eighteen. In Denmark, public school is offered all the way up until the sophomore year; at this point the kids often look at an opportunity to go to an Efterskole, like HHU. The Danish Efterskole is a residential school, where students choose to spend one, two or three years to finish their primary education. The students experience a great deal of freedom and establish wonderful teacher-student relationships. Classes that are offered are English, Danish, German, math, science, and elective type classes such as handball and soccer; gymnastics is the focus at HHU and students are required to attend practices three times a week. Most people look at this as a "gap year", a time for young adults to develop unique educational and personal skills.

When asked what the main difference between the Danish and American school systems is, seventeen year old Mikkel Hvass said, "The main difference would be that school in Denmark is expensive while here it's free, also, the food in Denmark is better".

Leading up to the Danes arrival, the journalism class from BCHS had been skypping with the students from HHU. Thanks to the Berea College Danish American Exchange program (DAE) and Kristine Petersen, a teacher at HHU, the skypping helped both classes from Berea and Denmark have a chance to get to know the other students and ask questions before they arrived to tour the school and shadow the students.

"The skypping experience was really cool because you could learn a little bit about what it's like in Denmark before meeting them, and you could establish a form of friendship before they arrived," said senior journalism student Alayni Hilton.

During their stay, the Danes stayed with host families scattered throughout the Berea community; this gave them a good sense of American home and family life. The day after they arrived they traveled to Frankfort to tour the capital and meet the governor. Tuesday they went to Harlan Co. and visited a coal mine museum followed by lunch at the local high school. Wednesday and Thursday the students split into two groups and toured BCHS and Madison Southern; at Berea they shadowed a student from the journalism class.

The journalism class had a special gathering in class on Wednesday, this was a good opportunity to do some ice breakers and let the Danes have a snack before their gymnastics performance Wed. afternoon. Mrs. Lovell also gave each Danish student a Berea Pirates t-shirt to take home. In Denmark gymnastics is primarily performed by teens; the basic purpose is to maintain strength and enjoy a happy body and mind. This is done through either rhythmical exercises to music or through vaulting and tumbling. Only about two students who attend HHU have done some type of gymnastics in the past.

On Friday the Danes went to Lexington to tour the University of Kentucky and shop at the Fayette Mall. Following their trip to Lexington the students ate at "the cowboy" restaurant, Logan's Roadhouse, and dressed up in their best cowboy/girl attire. After an exhausting yet entertaining week the students and their instructors went back home to Denmark on Saturday.

"My favorite part of Berea is the people, and how friendly and welcoming they are," said Danish student Laura Veje.

Welcoming the Danish students in such an impressionable way should make Berea feel proud.

Governor's Scholars recipient announced

GAMMON FAIN
PIRATE Senior Editor

On Friday, Apr. 11, BCHS junior Sofia Saderholm was notified of her acceptance into the prestigious Kentucky Governor's Scholars Program (GSP).

The Governor's Scholars Program is a five-week summer residential program that attracts Kentucky's best and brightest rising high school seniors, in which students experience social and intellectual growth, and have the opportunity to meet and connect with like-minded students from all across the Commonwealth.

At GSP, Sofia will study a focus area, or major, and take part in a General Studies class, or minor. In addition, she will attend a Governor's Scholars Seminar, which is a discussion based group led by a Resident Advisor where scholars can discuss happenings relevant to them, such as the college decision process, current events, and how their GSP experience has

This year's program will take place on the campuses of Bel-larmine University in Louisville, Morehead State University in Morehead, and Murray State University in Murray. Sofia will be notified of her campus location and focus area in the coming weeks.

During the application process, Sofia was allowed to select three possible focus areas. She selected: engineering, math and creative writing.

"I think that it is going to be great to learn new things and meet new people. I think it is going to be really fun," Sofia said.

One of only four applicants representing Berea Community, Sofia was the only member of the junior class accepted into the program this year.

According to BCHS Guidance Counselor Mr. Eef Fontanez, "As always, Berea will have representation at GSP that reflects very positively on our school as a whole, showing that our students are very competitive at any level."

Travel Club visits Scotland, England, and France

Over the span of eleven days, from March 29th to April 8th, several of our sophomores, juniors, and seniors traveled to numerous sights and landmarks across Europe.

"It was a lot of fun, I learned a lot about Scotland, France, and England. Not just about the attractions but a lot of the background about the place. Plus we got to see the Eiffel Tower," said Senior Michael Madden.

The trip took them to several of the United Kingdom's landmarks and locations. Their stay in England included a visit to Stonehenge, Windsor Castle, York Minster Abbey, the Durham Cathedral, Bath, York, Oxford College, the London Bridge, and a production of '39 Steps' by Piccadilly Circus. The students visited Edinburgh Castle in Scotland, as well as the Louvre and Eiffel Tower in Paris. Their stay in Europe afforded them a number of valuable experiences. Students were led to the very top of the Eiffel tower, giving them a chance to look on Paris at night. Their visit to the Louvre included a face to face encounter with Leonardo da Vinci's Mona Lisa. The group also had the opportunity to pass through the Channel Tunnel, an underground railway connecting the northern and southern tips of France and England.

Annual Health Fair continues at BCS

BAILEY J. ROSENBARKER
PIRATE Staff Reporter

What have you done lately to support healthy living, Berea? On Tuesday, April 15th Berea Community School promoted healthy living by holding a health fair, put on by Mrs. Jones, the health teacher, and Mr. Shearer, the marketing teacher.

The fair is a new tradition that has been held every semester for the past two years. It consists of the current high school kids in health class or club setting up booths about different healthy living tips, ideas, and statistics around the gym for other students to visit throughout the day. Each booth consists of a brochure on the student's topic, an interactive activity, and a display board. One example of a booth might be about healthy eating, or maybe about texting while driving.

"I thought this would be a great opportunity to teach the kids about health," said health teacher Mrs. Jones, "and showcase the students and their ideas and projects."

This health fair is one of many things that Berea Community has done and will proceed to do in the future to teach and to help Berea kids to have a healthier life style. What will you do to become a healthier person?

And don't fret, Berea, if you are not part of the school and you're looking for healthy living information you can still attend the local health fair sponsored by Baptist Heath Richmond and Madison County schools on Thursday, April 24, 2014 from 6 am to 6 pm in the basement of First Christian Church in Richmond.

Lady Pirates out first round of All 'A' Tournament

EMMA CRUMP
PIRATE Managing Editor

The Lady Pirates Softball team played in the 11th Region All "A" Softball Tournament on Fri. April 11- unfortunately the team was knocked out of the conference early after losing their first game against Lexington Christian Academy (LCA) 2-1. The other schools competing in this conference were Model and Frankfort. LCA went on to win the tournament in a victory against Model.

The team began the tournament at a disadvantage; Head coach, Rick Ingram, and the Lady Pirate's main starting pitcher Jenny Ingram were not able to attend due to a death in the family. LCA was ahead 1-0 until the 6th inning when another run put them ahead 2-0. In the 7th inning 8th grader Kendra Shearer got a hit to center field, sending senior Nikea Banther home to score the only run for the Lady Pirates.

"We really played as a team this game," said senior Miranda Montgomery. "We came up a little short but it was a hard fought game."

Assistant coach Jeff Sandefur stepped up in the absence of Coach Ingram: "The girls played [well]. I am proud of them. I think we'll see a difference as they get more comfortable and I'm expecting good things as the season goes on."

On Mon. April 21, the Lady Pirates will take on the Madison Southern Eagles at 5:00 p.m. at home.

Track team places fifth

Saturday, April 12, the Berea track team traveled to Somerset, KY for the Cumberland Invitational. The track team placed 5th out of 25 competing schools.

"Berea was at the bottom of the barrel three years ago, Lincoln Satterthwaite and Raymond McKinney have helped Berea grow into a competitive team," Coach Dustin Busler stated.

Lincoln Satterthwaite topped his personal record in the 1,600m at a time of 4:40.96 and placed fifth overall for the event. He is now ranked first within the region. Raymond McKinney placed 6th with a time of 4:42.28.

"I felt like I was on fire during that 2 mile run!" McKinney stated about his timing for the event.

Emma Patterson also placed third during the 200m dash with a time of 27.97 seconds. Bailey Rosenbarker placed third in the 3,200m with a time of 13:26.70.

"I feel like I've improved a lot this year and I was happy to place third, but I'm still hoping to get better and place 1st or 2nd at regionals," Emma Patterson said about her event.

"Austin Rose, how well he did in the 200 was amazing. He has improved a lot over the course of the year," Busler stated. Rose placed fifth during the 200m dash with a time of 24.49 seconds, while also tying for second place during the 100m dash with a time of 11.85 seconds.

"We still have a ways to go, but we are getting better each week," Busler said about the team.

The team's next meet is today, April 17, at Madison Southern High School.

On Saturday, April 12, the BCHS Boys' Tennis Team competed against Boyle County and West Jessamine, while the girls took on Mercer County and West Jessamine in the Berea Invitational Tennis Tournament.

Freshman Alex Horn won one of her singles matches against West Jessamine with a score of 6-2 in the first set and 6-0 in the second. Freshman Candace Elam did not win either match but according to Coach Janey Pendergrass, she had a nice comeback in the first match and almost won her second match.

Senior, and boys' team captain, Steven Gadd and 8th grader David Gadd were victorious in both doubles matches.

"My brother and I played great with very high intensity that I hope to carry on into future matches,"

8th grader David Gadd warms up before match

Despite putting their best effort forth, both teams came in 3rd place overall.

"Our veteran players are playing very well and my new players are showing improvement with

The Pirates will next play Lincoln County on Friday, April 18th at home.

On Thursday, April 10 Berea High School baseball (6-6) beat Frankfort Independent 5-0.

Berea was confident going into the game because they had played Frankfort earlier in the season and knew what to expect.

"We started out with senior Gabe Long striking out the first three of Frankfort Independent's line up which really helped set the mood and gave the team confidence throughout the rest of the game," said Daniel Wilkerson.

Neil Claytor had an RBI (Runs Batted In) single helping Daniel Wilkerson score. Jared Kilgore had an RBI single and reached second on a throw home resulting in Neil Claytor and Zach McPeek scoring. Then Zach McPeek had the final RBI single that scored Gabe Long and Neil Claytor.

The Pirates next play Pinneville on Tuesday, April 22 at Berea at 5:30.

BCMS baseball loses but improving

On Tuesday, April 8 the BCMS baseball team took on Clark Middle at home. Although the final score was 6-4 in favor of Clark Middle, the Pirates held their own with many players performing well.

Seventh grader Zane Brown pitched a particularly good game, causing several scoreless innings for the opponents.

"We played well and hung on, but it didn't go our way. I was still proud of the team," commented assistant coach Matthew Jenkins.

Though the team currently has a losing record so far, they are improving and gaining confidence with every game.

The team plays again tonight at London and tomorrow at home against Science Hill.

But what the students appreciated most, it seems, was the food. Sophomore Greg Schloemer said,

"In England and Scotland, the food was pretty similar to the US, with lots of fried food and peas/carrots with every meal. In France we had very good food as well."

"My favorite part was in Edinburgh, when we went to the top of Mary Queen of Scots' castle, and looked over the entire city. It was beautiful. Seeing the Eiffel tower in person was surreal. I had the best time of my life," said junior Haley Baker.

"The hotels were very comfortable. European hotels much different than American in terms of size, but everyone made do, and got along with their roommates," reviewed Mrs. Flara, who oversaw the trip.

Eighth Grade visits D.C.

KENZI DAUGHERTY
PIRATE Staff Reporter

The week of March 24-28 the eighth grade students visited Washington D.C. and Gettysburg. The group consisted of 65 eighth graders and seven chaperones.

During the trip the students had the privilege to see the Lincoln Memorial, Smithsonian Museums, Arlington National Cemetery, and a tour of the Gettysburg Battlefield. At the Arlington National Cemetery they got to see the changing of the guards. In Alexandria, Virginia the students visited George Washington's Estate, Mount Vernon, and went on a ghost tour.

When the students visited the Capitol Building they got to see the branches of government. Afterwards the students stopped in front of the Capitol Building for a group picture on the steps.

Eighth graders look forward to this trip all year.

"My favorite part of the trip was probably going to see the different monuments like the Lincoln Memorial because I enjoyed seeing all the quotes," said eighth grader Layla Bellando.

Seventh grade "digs" field trip

JACOB WILSON
PIRATE Staff Reporter

On March 27 and 28 the BCMS sent their seventh grade class to the East Tennessee State University and General Shale Brick Natural History Museum and Gray Fossil Site.

The group spent the day engaged in a fossil dig at the museum's interactive archeological site "the dig provided us insight into the jobs of archeologist," said seventh grader Josh Graggs.

After a long day of perfecting their excavation skills the students spent the night at the museum.

The next morning they woke up bright and early and traveled through the Cumberland Gap in or to attend an archeology and human remains unit taught at the University of Tennessee. "I thought it was extremely interesting and I had a ton of fun," said seventh grader Colton Cochran.

After the lesson the students were treated to lunch at the university's dining hall and then they headed back to Kentucky. "We had a great time it was without a doubt the best fieldtrip I had ever been on," stated Gear Up Academic Specialist Charlotte Haycraft.

Madison Southern Students Excel in Spring Activities

J. Conner Niceley
Editor of Eagles' Eye

While the end of the school year is quickly coming to an end, it would be fair to assume that students are becoming exhausted and are becoming incredibly anxious to begin their summer plans. At Madison Southern, though, it is quite the opposite. Students are involved in a plethora of clubs, teams, and organizations, or other activities and most all seem to be competing successfully and achieving and expanding the expectations of Madison Southern High School.

Beginning with seniors, even in their final semester of high school, the students are working hard to achieve a goal set forth by the Kentucky Council for Postsecondary Education (CPE) and the Kentucky Department of Education (KDE) to ensure that every student is college and career ready. When the implementation of this program first began at Madison Southern, only eight seniors qualified as being both college and career ready, meeting benchmarks on the ACT, Compass, or KYOTE tests and having passed the Armed Services Vocational Aptitude Battery (ASVAB) or the Kentucky Occupational Skills Standard Assessment (KOSSA) in a specific career pathway in which the student had taken several courses. Principal Cash met with seniors, encouraging them to make efforts to meet these goals and reach at least one component of readiness by offering incentives to those who met their goals. Students across the building have recently taken necessary exams to qualify them for readiness and await results.

As for spring sports at Madison Southern, many teams are having successful seasons thus far, despite garnering some intense competition along the way. The Lady Eagles softball team is no exception. The team of 22 young ladies, coached by Brian Foley has an impressive record of 7-1 so far in their play. The team has two seniors, Morgan Reynolds and Kayla Hargis, both of whom have played for four years while attending Madison Southern. Their counterpart on the diamond, the baseball team, has only three wins but looks to increase that number significantly throughout the rest of their season. The team, coached by Dustin Hon, is comprised of 28 young men from Madison Southern and Foley Middle Schools, including six seniors: Mark Agee, Kendan Angel, Jacob Dixon, Jonathan Millard, Lane Owen, and Donnie Wyatt. These individuals exhibit their best efforts and determination in their work, just as in many other activities, even young ones.

In a fairly new program within the Kentucky High School Athletic Association (KHSAA), Madison Southern chartered its first bass fishing team this year. The team is coached by Doug Carter and competed in their regional tournament this past weekend. The team consists of 12 individuals; of those, Bryce Marcum and Brandon Turner will be advancing to state competition after placing 14th, catching one fish weighing 2 pounds, 11 ounces, in the 2nd Region on Saturday. This is an exceptional start for the first year of the program which looks forward to many more successes in the future.

However, success extends in great measures far beyond the sporting activities at Madison Southern. Several organizations are seeing similar trends as the prosperous sports teams in their sector of competitions as well. Among these, the Madison Southern choirs recently competed in the Kentucky Music Educators Association (KMEA) Large Group Choral Festival where they received proficient ratings by a panel of three judges in their performance portion and received distinguished in the sight-reading section of their competition. The choir is one of Madison Southern's larger organizations and is directed by Puppets, Puppets Everywhere!

Over 50 people participated in the National Day of Puppetry at the Berea Memorial Park last Saturday, as kids and adults both created their own puppets, and then paraded in Old Town Artisan Village. Puppets and Such, the puppet business in Berea, sponsored the event for the third year; owners said this was the most people they have ever gotten for the event.

School is more than a place for education. At school we foster friendships, some of which will last forever; but more than anything, school is a place to make memories to always cherish.

Role models: My parents, Michelle Tolle.

Favorites: Musician - Hall and Oates, Rascal Flatts, Gaither Vocal Band; Movie - Smokey and the Bandit; holiday - Christmas; school subject - business, book - To Kill a Mockingbird; place to vacation - Baltimore, Md.; place to live - Berea, KY - it's home.

Teacher of the Month

Meet Charlotte Haycraft, who teaches sixth to ninth grades at Berea Community High School. She has a husband, Eric Haycraft; two sons, CJ and Gage Isaacs; and four stepdaughters, Hannah and Sarah Haycraft, and Lindsay and Kristen Bruner.

How long have you been teaching? 10 years.

Why teach? Teaching is not what I do; it is who I am. Teaching youth how to educate themselves creates life-long learners and provides hope that tomorrow's societal struggles will be less than today's. As both a parent and an educator, I want my children's lives to be academically richer than my own.

Degrees: Undergraduate degrees in biology and chemistry (EKU), reading and writing (literacy specialist degree), and a master's degree (EKU). I'm currently working on a second master's degree in school guidance counseling from the University of the Cumberland.

Favorite part of teaching: Seeing a child have pride in his/her own accomplishments, especially when (s) he previously thought they could not achieve the feat.

Semester goals: I have two goals. First, I want to ensure that I have made a personal connection with every student under my care. Second, I want to ensure that every child is academically ready for the transition to the next grade level.

Hobbies: Reading and gardening.

School Activities: Sponsor of the Jr. and Sr. Beta Clubs; academic director of Berea Community Middle School's after-school tutoring program called Pirate 21; All GEAR UP activities.

Who has helped you most in your education? My family is super supportive. Without them, I would not be able to be an educator.

Proudest moment as a teacher: I have too many proud moments to count only one as the best.

Role models: I do not have a role model. However, it was my freshman English teacher who taught me my own value as a child, allowing me to pay it forward.

Favorites: Musician - I don't have one; movie - tie between Lord of the Rings Trilogy and Braveheart; holiday - Thanksgiving, because of family involvement; school subject - biology, book - Angels and Demons by Dan Brown; place to vacation - at home; place to live - quiet country of Kentucky.

Word From Berea College Streets

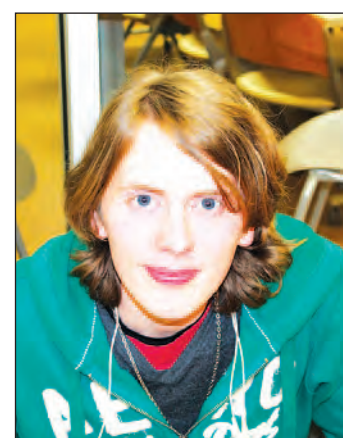

"What would you have done if you hadn't gotten into Berea College?"

Heather Phillips from Mount Airy, N.C., said, "If it wasn't for Berea, I'd be back at the community college back home and working at Kmart to work my way through it."

Sonya Chambers from northwest Georgia said, "I would have gone to a community college back at home, and it would not have done much good for me in terms of gaining a successful career."

Tanner Thomson from Mannington, W.V., said "I had three schools to choose from. I got offers of $37,000 a year for one and $52,000 for the other. Not including room and board. I would have gotten out with $200,000 to $300,000 in student loans."

Silver Creek Homemakers Invite All

Silver Creek Homemakers had 24 members present this month with three visitors; one of those visitors was Madison County Court Clerk Kenny Barger. Kenny spoke briefly on absentee voting and the county re-districting. People should call their county clerk to see if your their station has changed. Another visitor was Marvin Farmer, who gave our devotional this month titled "The Shoe". It was awesome. We also collected soda pop can tabs for the Ronald McDonald house. If people would like to turn in their tabs to the Extension office, that would be great for that cause. We made two donations this month, one to Hospice Care Plus, and the other to God's Pantry. Our birthday person was Ruth Poynter. I gave the main lesson on "Your Life story". We would like to invite you to join us here at Silver Creek Homemakers. Please contact the Madison County Extension Office on Duncannon Lane at 859-623-4072

White Station Homemakers Meet

White Station Homemakers opened their March meeting with yummy treats to eat while socializing and welcoming Helen Benson, the guest of Marge Cummings. Becky Knauer, our president called the meeting to order.

Roll call was answered by 18 members, with each stating their least favorite spring cleaning job. Minutes were read and accepted. Treasurer report was accepted.

Details for the cooking school to be held on May 31 were reviewed. Several club members plan to assist at the dinner. Funds raised for this event will go toward prevention of ovarian cancer. Health reports on hypertension and Medicare rules were read with discussion by the members.

All members were reminded to complete "Get Healthy, Get Moving" forms that can be brought to next meeting. Awards are to be given at the annual meeting on April 22. "Galloping Thru Madison County" is our theme. The club will be purchasing a door prize for the occasion. The cost for dinner is $13.

Next month's craft project will be garden flowers by Betty Eberle. Members are to bring at least one plate plus other plates, cups or decorations for their flower. Please notify Betty if you plan to participate so she can have enough prepared. Betty had a very nice example of the flower.

Alina Strand gave the lesson on Diaster Preparedness. This class updated most members' thinking on being prepared. It is much more than having a flashlight and batteries ready. A club member had been in the Katrina diaster and related how these tips were needed. This was an excellent class and had lots of valuable information.

The meeting was adjourned until April 9 at 12:30 p.m. at Silver Creek Baptist Church.

Come Celebrate the Risen Saviour

As we anticipate the activities of this upcoming Easter weekend, Bethel Baptist Church would like to invite our friends and neighbors in our community to come and celebrate the true meaning of Easter with us. We have several events that will help us focus on the real meaning and the infinite and eternal value of Christ's death and resurrection.

We would be honored if you would come and worship and fellowship with us in any or all of these services.

• 7 pm Friday, April 18

Come join us in the sanctuary at Bethel as we celebrate the sacrificial death of God's only Son so that mankind, sinful and separated from a Holy and righteous God, might be reconciled to him. The entire service from each song that is sung to every message that is shared will be about the amazing way that God manifested his great love for us on that day 2000 years ago.

• 2 pm Saturday, April 19

At Brushy Fork Park on Scaffold Cane Road there will be an Easter Egg hunt. This egg hunt differs from most egg hunts in that the real meaning of Easter is shared with every person present before the children hunt for eggs.

7 pm Saturday, April 19 & 11 am Sunday, April 20

In the Bethel sanctuary we will be presenting The Easter Drama, The Crown of Thorns. Are you a prodigal son who has lost his way and longs to return to the Father? Are you the brother who cannot find it in his heart to forgive, yet claims to be a follower of Jesus? The parable of the Prodigal Son is retold in Bethel Baptist's Easter Drama, Crown of Thorns. Join us as we examine our hearts and reflect upon our journeys as Christians.

• 6 am Sunday, April 20

He is Risen!

We will gather in the church fellowship hall located in the church basement and eat breakfast cooked by the men of the church and then following the meal go outside for our Sunrise service.

Fain Recognized at DAR State Conference

Gammon Fain of Berea Community High School senior, son of Steve and Kristie Fain, was recognized at the Kentucky Society of Daughters of the American Revolution State Conference on March 29, as the winner of the District IV Good Citizen Essay contest. Gammon will also receive the Berea-Laurel Ridges DAR Good Citizen Award later this spring.

The National Society Daughters of the American Revolution was founded in 1890 to promote patriotism, preserve American history, and support better education for our nation's children. Its members are descended from the patriots who won American independence during the Revolutionary War. With more than 165,000 members in approximately 3,000 chapters worldwide, DAR is one of the largest and most active service organizations.

The Berea-Laurel Ridges Chapter, NSDAR, organized in 1930, meets the second Thursdays at 10 a.m. at the Smokehouse Grill. Guests and prospective members are welcome to attend. Contact chapter regent Linda Jennings for information.

NOSW Summer Session from June 1 - 21

The 2014 NOSW Summer Residential Session will be from June 1-21. The deadline for applications is mid-May.

Since 1987, over 700 women across Appalachia have been learning they have the strength and courage to finish their education and to build the self-esteem they need to find their potential. At no cost to them, women who find themselves in transition and are seeking to be inspired and build their confidence are doing just that through the New Opportunity School for Women (NOSW) in Berea.

Applicants who are selected and complete the three-week residential program will find themselves to be more self-sufficient, more confident, and will be an inspiration for their families and community.

Requests for applications and/or additional information should be addressed to The New Opportunity School for Women, 204 Chestnut Street, Berea, KY 40403, or by calling 859-985-7200. Our website, www.nosw.org, provides additional information regarding our no-cost program and an online application.

Letha Hembree. Aside from humanities, other organizations are continuing their trend of achievement as well. Recently, members of the mock trial team recently competed in their state tournament as well. The team had new coaches this year -- sponsor Joe Hollenbach and Lexington attorney Eric L. Ray. After four tense rounds of competition at Eastern Kentucky University and the Fayette County Courthouses, members of the team placed in their second highest finish in school history at state -- finishing 12th with a record of 2-1-1. An outstanding witness and attorney were named for every team as well; those were Joshua Kincaid and Conner Niceley, respectively.

Students involved in Madison Southern's chapter of Future Business Leaders of America (FBLA) who had successful finishes at Regional competition will advance to state in Louisville next week. Select students placed in thirteen categories, three of which were first place. The many well-rounded students of Madison Southern continue to excel, in whatever club or activity they are involved in and give faculty and students alike a reason to have a significant sense of pride for our school.

The continuity of success will undoubtedly remain throughout the end of this school year and into many more seasons in the future. The drive and desire for success is evident and sought by any and all students involved in an extracurricular activity affiliated with Madison Southern High School. Congratulations and best of luck to all those who participate in any of the school's various clubs, teams, organizations, and activities.

Reflections

FROM THE BEREA CITIZEN ARCHIVES APRIL 1974

The Berea City Council created a three-member city Parks and Recreation Board on April 2, 1974, after agreement was finally reached between the Berea School Board and the city concerning the 37 acre park adjacent to the school grounds. The park was owned by the city, but was being leased to the school board; the two groups had to negotiate their responsibilities regarding the property and facilities.

After much discussion about merging with the county school system, the Citizen reported that Berea's financially-strained Independent Public School System refused to give up. James Bobbitt, director of Institutional Research, produced a financial study that gave three alternatives to merger. First, the local school district would limit enrollment only to students living within the Berea school district, which would allow the Berea school to operate at an annual surplus of $11,449. Secondly, the school could annex all areas currently within the city limits, and limit enrollment to them, which would give them a surplus of $174,668. The third alternative was virtually the same, except space would also be provided for 84 students living outside the district. This would wind up with a deficit of $42,044. Dr. Dwight Blackburn, chairman of the school board, said, "the easiest thing for us to do would be to merge. But I would hate to see us deprive the people in this area of a quality education."

Both Dr. Willis Weatherford of Berea College and Dick Kliese of the new Hyster Company plan, were strongly for Berea Community staying independent.

The Berea chapter of AAUW held its March program at the Community School on Tuesday, March 26. Fifth graders put on a play that they had written themselves, based on Alice In Wonderland. Gretchen Wierwille, Alesia Stolte, Kay Holloway, Becky Forbes, Ellen Wray and Vickie Hays all participated. Sarah Firor and Rhonda Higgins were responsible for the program. Sarah was elected as president; Virginia Auvil and Phyllis Shumaker were elected as 1st vice presidents; Sue Glennan was elected as 2nd vice president; and Dorothy Groves was elected as treasurer.

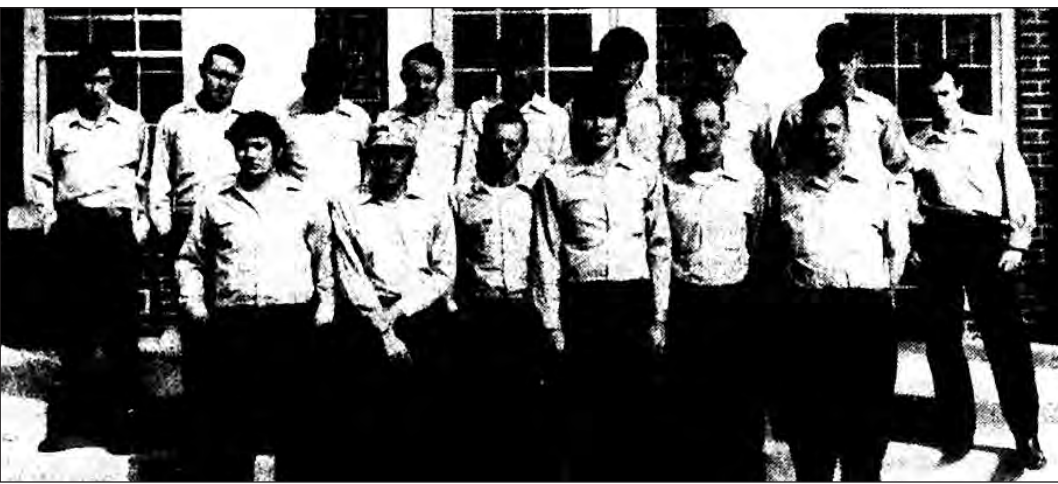

Judge George S. Noss, a retired member of the Berea College Religion and Philosophy Department, addressed the Berea-Laurel Ridges Chapter DAR.

Elizabeth Gilbert, Mrs. Carl McCray and Barbara Gilbert were hostesses to the meeting.

Gladys Parris called the meeting to order, Mrs. C. T. Herndon served as chaplain in the absence of Mrs. G. H. Picklesimer, Mrs. H. H. Hays led the pledge, and Lucille Stephens led the singing of America."

To the left is Gummer, an aging dog that was featured in the Citizen in April 1974, that Berea College students cared for. There was a sign on the bulletin board in the college's alumni building that said, "Gummer is fed a good balanced diet. So all the gag bags he gets go to FAT! We are keeping a record of his weight each week. Last week he measured 37 1/2 inches at the middle. This is far, far too much for his heart and age."

Above are the employees of the street and sanitation departments modeling their new uniforms that were purchased by the City of Berea in April 1974. In the back row were Shirdy Johnson, Allen Alexander, David Gadd, Carroll Cain, Johnny Gadd, Larry Isaacs, James H. Cain, James Oliver, and David Van Winkle. In the front row were William Miller, Arnold Gadd, Homer Cope, Clarence Isaacs, Charlie Collins and Superintendent Earl Hamilton.

Ten Families Participate in Audible Egg Hunt

Families took part in the 3rd Annual Audible Egg Hunt held at Berea College on Saturday, April 12. The event was sponsored by the Berea Lion's Club and Families Advocacy for the Blind (FAB). Special "talking eggs", giving out audible clues, helped the kids find candy-filled eggs. Twenty-one children from ten families took part in the egg hunt, some from as far away as Ashland.

Sacred Texts Available for View on Thursday

Bibles, both original and facsimile, manuscripts, and other sacred documents will again be on display for students, staff, faculty, and the community of Berea on Thursday, in response to the popularity of the first event.

This event is free and open to the public on Thursday, April 17, from 9 a.m. - 5 p.m. The Special Collections and Archives Reading Room is located on the Lower level of Hutchins Library at Berea College Campus.

Assembled in cooperation with Dr. Tyler Sergent, history and general studies professor, the display represents sacred texts both unique and ornate, from the 13th through the 21st centuries. Early handwritten and illustrated Bibles, those with curious printing errors, and those showing the evolution of printing processes will be exhibited.

Education Funding Increased, Along with Required Staff Pay Raises

By Beth Myers
Citizen Editor

The Kentucky legislature has increased the SEEK fund for next year by one percent, but the school will actually end up with less available funds, Berea Superintendent Mike Hogg told the school board at their meeting on Monday evening. Along with the one percent increase in SEEK came a Kentucky legislative requirement that schools increase all salaries by one percent. And since Berea has many positions not funded by SEEK, and therefore many raises that the state is not financing, they will have to take funds for part of the payroll raise from somewhere else.

The year after, there would be a mandated two percent raise for everyone, with another two percent increase in SEEK.

Hogg also had good news in terms of attendance at Berea; he stated that they were up two percent from this time the year before.

County Looks at Budget Draft, Confirms Money for Berea Fire Dept.

By Beth Myers
Citizen Editor

The Madison County Fiscal Court magistrates will be looking over a rough draft for their 2014-15 budget this next month, which includes some money put aside for emergency needs when the CSEPP money runs out. Judge Executive Kent Clark stated it was another balanced budget.

Berea City Council member Ronnie Terrill addressed the county fiscal court during the meeting on Tuesday morning, stating that he needed to check "on a rumor." He told the fiscal court members that there was talk that if Brad Hylton, a current firefighter in Berea, was elected as Magistrate of the 1st District, county fund-

SJE's Alternative Concessions Bring Healthy Eats to Kids

Beth Myers
Citizen Editor

The concession booth at Shannon Johnson's elementary basketball games on Tuesday certainly did not resemble a typical concession booth. Missing were the fatty hot dogs, small bags of Doritos, and soda cans; they had been replaced with a Tupperware of cut-up fresh fruit, juices, and veggie fries. But that didn't stop the kids, who still ran up with their dollars to purchase their healthy snack, or to beg their parents for the necessary funds.

When considering the health crisis that both Kentucky and the nation are facing, however, Shannon Johnson's concession booth could be considered a model for concession booths in the future.

Shannon Johnson Elementary, in line with the school's heavy emphasis on a healthy environment, is offering what staff call, "alternative concessions" at sports games this week. These concessions include such items as smoothies, veggie straws, fresh fruit in cones, and chili dogs with nitrate-free Applegate hot

Artisans from Red Lick Host Studio Tour

By Beth Myers
Citizen Editor

A group of artisans living in the area of Red Lick Valley has decided to pool their resources and promoting power, and offer a Spring Studio Tour on the Saturday before Mother's Day. There will be around ten different sites featured along Highway 594, or Red Lick Road, that include potters, woodworkers, jewelers, fiber artists, and even one blacksmith. The tour will be open from 9 a.m. - 6 p.m. on Saturday, May 10.

"This kind of came about with a convergence of energy of all the artists out here," Sarah Culbreth said, who runs Tater Knob Pottery at Red Lick, along with her husband and son, Jeff and David Enge. "People should come out to the country, see where we

SaraCare Celebration This Friday

Submitted to the Citizen

The SaraCare celebration this year will be taking place on Friday, April 25, at Union Church. The community event, which raises money for the SaraCare Fund, will start with a spaghetti supper at 6 p.m., with the annual free concert taking place from 7:30 to 10 p.m.

Once again, Nashville Songwriters of the Year Kim Williams and Doug

Johnson will be joined by singer/songwriter Chip Davis and Raymond Davis.

SaraCare was established in honor and memory of Sara Kennedy, Norma and Eddie Kennedy's daughter, who was stricken with a rare childhood cancer as a senior at Berea Community High School. Sara struggled valiantly for ten months at Kentucky Children's Hospital, before ultimately losing the battle.

The SaraCare Fund has partnered with the hospital to make children's stay more comfortable, and to enhance their health, care, and their hope. The SaraCare celebration raises money for the fund, which is devoted to providing assistance to seriously ill children and support to families as they deal with unexpected financial difficulties.

Christopher Miller Pierce

Christopher Miller Pierce, 74, passed away unexpectedly in Albuquerque, N.M., on March 23, 2014, after a short illness.

He is survived by his wife of 52 years, Carole Pierce; his daughter, Mikaela Pierce, and daughter-in-law, Priscilla Gonzalez; his son, Brendan Pierce, daughter-in-law, Lisa Hill-Pierce, and young grandsons, Henry and Theo; his brother-in-law, David Rogers and sister-in-law, Donna Rogers; Chance, his beloved Golden Retriever; and numerous friends in New Mexico and Kentucky, especially the Bolins and Hylecks.

Chris was raised in Albuquerque by two artist parents, Florence Miller Pierce and Horace Towner Pierce. He graduated from UNM with a BA in anthropology and an MA in fine art. He and Carole moved to Berea as a young couple for a teaching job, planning on returning to N.M. in a few short years; however, they quickly met their best friends and became part of the strong art community. They lived in Berea until two years ago, when they returned to Albuquerque.

Chris was a Berea Community High School art teacher and Berea College art education professor, a jeweler, sculptor and a painter. He was eccentric, funny, though sometimes not on purpose, compassionate, and ever curious about the world. Even as his health faded rapidly, he kept a journal filled with questions, observations, and quotes from favorite writers and philosophers. He was notorious for losing keys, hats, lunchboxes, gloves, even a camera on a Thailand beach on the first day of his trip; for getting lost, for beating up his truck, and for getting stuck in an art department dumpster when looking for possible recycled treasure.

Chris and Carole gave their children a life full of love, support, laughter, art, pets, books, drawing, reading, writing, tinkering, cooking elaborate meals, growing enormous gardens, and being good to the people in their lives. Chris was definitely a different type of person, and his family and many friends are lucky to have known and loved him, and are heartbroken that he is gone.

ing would be pulled for the fire department.

Clark assured Terrill that this would not happen, since they needed that partnership with southern Madison County with the fire protection areas. Magistrate Larry Combs stated the amount for the Berea Fire Department was already in the budget.

Hylton is running as a democrat for the magistrate seat that Combs currently holds. There are four Democrats running for First Magistrate, including Terrill, Hylton, Combs, and Bobby Joe McMahan. Brian Combs is running as the sole Republican for the seat. The fiscal court awarded the microwave bid to AMK on Carl Richards' recommendation, the EMA (Emergency Management Agency) director. This will be of significant benefit to Estill County, and they could then back up Madison. The two bids that were received were only $4 apart, but consultants from Mission Critical recommended AMK because of a few technical matters. Bennett's received the bid for the flooring of the new EOC (Emergency Operations Center). Richards stated that they didn't receive any bids for the tower lighting. He put together a spec, and sent it out to everyone, but no one responded. "I don't know why they didn't bid it," Richards said, who stated that one contractor said they were too busy to put a bid together. "I can't every remember something like this happening before." Richards plans to put the bid out again. Scott Tussey from the solid waste department stated that they removed 709 livestock since January 1; that was 227 more than last year at this time. The loaner trucks from solid waste are booked until the July 4 holiday, and 415 bags of trash have been collected on the highways.

live!"

Sarah has worked on organizing this artisan tour with Bruce Hoefer of Turning Wheel Pottery. Since moving out to Red Lick five years ago, Bruce has been interested in collaborative advertising and promoting with other artisans in the area. The idea of an actual artisan tour came from one of his guest artists, Cindy Cusick, who had toured around lots of regions that do pottery tours.

here a few years, I didn't realize how many of us were here."

Each site will offer different things, with some providing food or entertainment-type activities, while others such as Sarah will have a pottery wheel available for those who would like to try it. Mitch Barrett will be a roving minstrel at Tater Knob that day, doing both storytelling and singing for the people who come.

"We want to build more community in the Berea area, let everybody know that's there's a wealth of talent kind of hidden back here," Bruce said. "It's a beautiful area, and a nice place to come, it's not far from town. I would say that building community is our biggest goal."

Sarah, who has been working in the Red Lick area for 22 years as a potter, stated there were no artists when she first moved out. But gradually over the years, more artists discovered the beautiful, somewhat isolated spot.

"I felt a heart-felt warmth after the first meeting," Sarah said. "It was like a warm sensation all through my body. It felt the same as when I first looked at this place, a wide valley that opens up to an even wider valley. How wonderful that all these people moved out here, that I wasn't the only one who thought this was a great place to live."

The risk factor, of course, with outside events like this is the ever-unpredictable weather. But the Red Lick Valley Artisans will hold the event rain or shine, knowing their loyal followers will still come out.

The majority of the tour is within a five or six mile radius on Red Lick Road. People who decide to venture out on Saturday, May 10, could first encounter Happiness Hills at the end of Big Hill Road, a retreat center where Jennifer Rose and Alfredo Escobar will be putting on a sing-along, an Appalachian dulcimer lesson, and perhaps an Appalachian dance. Further on down the road, there will be Bill Lennox Pottery, Red Lick Furniture and Alley Cat Pottery. People can next visit Bruce, who will offer lots of food as well as different guest artists such as potter Cusick and woodworker Eddie Shupe, who used to own Fast Eddie's deli in town. Tater Knob Pottery, the stop after, will have guest artists, including potter Buddy Dobbins, painter Jonathan Clark, jeweler Austin Evans, and Albert Mooney who works in Kentucky Agate. For people who want to continue on to Wolf Gap Road, there will be stops at John and Sue Martin's place; D. James Fox's place with custom furniture; Against the Grain/BeeDreamer Creations that has wood-working, leatherwork, and jewelry; and the Wolf Gap Mountain Forge with blacksmith Bob Montgomery.

The Snug Hollow Farm Bed and Breakfast, several more miles more down the road on McSwain Branch, will be offering back-to-back lunches at three different times. People can reserve a lunch spot by calling 606-723-4786. Walking the Snug Hollow trails will also be part of the luncheon, as well as meeting author Barbara Napier, who wrote the award winning cookbook, Hot Food & Warm Memories.

At a budget forum that was held the week before, Hogg informed parents that attendance was up, while discipline problems were down for the year.

The Berea school board recognized all the academic teams on Monday evening, as well as the FPS (Future Problem Solving) teams. Berea had a clean sweep with their FPS teams, with the elementary, middle and high school all winning at Districts. Berea School Board Chair Van Gravitt stated that Berea's success with FPS spoke well of their learning 21st Century skills such as creativity, collaboration and communication.

Isis Rodgers from Berea Community Elementary was recognized for her Children's Champion poster, which was a runner-up in the competition.

The special needs program at Berea Community School was monitored this year by the Kentucky Department of Education. The Department randomly selects 14 districts to monitor every year, and they review programming and well as finances. They had a positive report in terms of programming, though they were different recommendations on how the documentation should be kept.

The school board approved the use of Conkin Gymnasium for the Spoonbread Pageant on September 13, and also approved the auditing contract with Summers, McCray & Sparks. That audit will cost $12,000. The school board also approved using Peoples Bank and Trust for an extension year to the original banking contract.

The amended school calendar was approved, with June 5 as the last day of school for students, and June 6 as graduation day. Staff will work from June 9 - 11.

The Tyranny of Lawns

Letters from Berea

Beth Myers
Editor

Through my adulthood, I've become fascinated by society's perspective towards lawns, specifically relating to what the upkeep and appearance should be. I loved the episode in the show King of the Hill, when the character Hank says to his wife, "Without my lawn I'm Bill [loser friend of his]. Do you want to be married to Bill?" At which point she let him purchase some very expensive grass.

My husband and I had a very laissez faire attitude towards our lawn, which resulted in twice being cited by the city for our blades reaching beyond the maximum allowable length. Of course, they didn't actually come out and measure it (or at least I hope they didn't), but it did become obvious at a certain point. Since I live on Chestnut Street, we're unfortunately on the hot zone of both tourism and the historic home district, so it was a little hard to hide. We were simultaneously amused and chagrined when we saw that little city citation waving at our front door.

It has been several years since we've been cited, not because we developed a greater appreciation of lawn upkeep, but because my husband developed a type of sixth sense about it, and seemed to know when we were getting near the "citing point."

There's just a certain suburban, middle-class value thing going on with lawns that gets me to feeling a little rebellious. Not only do we have to keep washing cars so we can keep driving them on dirty roads, but we also have to keep macro-clipping plant matter for no particular reason except we've decided it "looks better".

Lawns go back to the 17th century in Europe, when there was a sense of imposing order on nature. In England, lawns were a symbol of aristocracy, since it showed that someone was rich enough to have land that didn't do anything, and also rich enough to hire all the people who used scythes and other hand-held equipment to keep the grass short.

In my childhood, it seemed like we were always mowing the acre we owned. I remember my dad showing me where the lines were on the last cut, so I could make sure not to leave some kind of mohawk running down our yard. As a small child, according to my parents,

I would race ahead of the lawnmower and pick all the flowers I could in its path, because I didn't want them to get cut and hurt. Evidently I didn't quite get that picking them pretty much had the same effect.

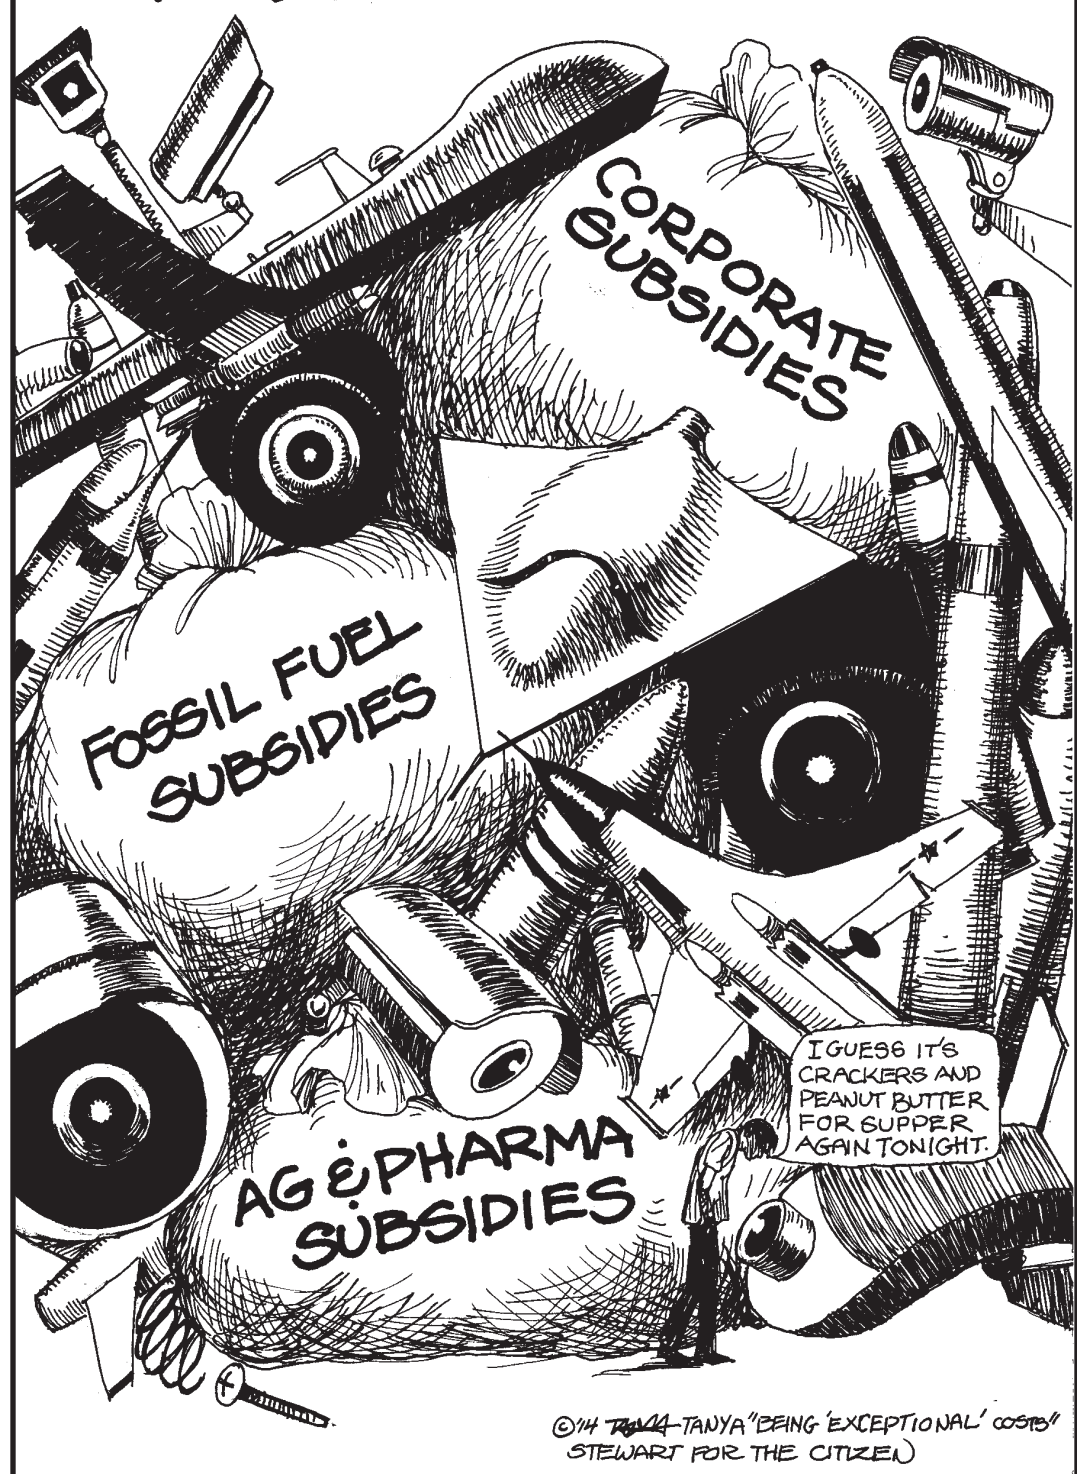

It wasn't until I met Ann Longworth last summer that I started to have a different feeling about that space in front of my house. When she started talking passionately about native plants, and pollinators, and how they evolved together, I was intrigued. Could this be the way to throw away the yoke? Could native plants spell the destruction of our hated lawn?

So with native plants in hand from Ann last fall, we gleefully started our anti-lawn project, with my husband facing the grass at high noon every day with Round-Up.

But a funny thing happened after we put some plants in the ground, and then trees, and then more flowers, and then rocks. We started thinking less of destroying our lawn, and more about what we were creating, what was evolving.

Finally when we ran into each other out front, each admiring what was evolving, we had to admit that we were no longer killing a lawn. We were now building a garden.

Response to Francis Boggs' Letter

Dear Editor:

I thank Francis Boggs for requesting information about why Lowe's decided not to build a store in Berea. Here is a chronology of significant events:

September 15, 2008: Lehman Brothers filed for bankruptcy, precipitating a financial crisis that grew into the Great Recession.

October 28, 2008: The Berea Planning Commission approved the Lowe's development plan to build a new store on S. Dogwood Drive.

January 26, 2009: The Codes Office reminded Lowe's by letter that it had not yet submitted signed copies of its development plan.

Early 2009: Berea circulated a Memorandum of Understanding and Ordinance allowing Berea to pay $200,000 of the cost to upgrade S. Dogwood Drive when Lowe's built its new store. The total estimated cost of the upgrade without contingency was $398,598.

May 13, 2009: Berea's city administrator distributed a memo to the audit and finance committee indicating that $200,000 was included in the 2009-10 budget to pay for the upgrade of S. Dogwood drive when Lowe's built its new store.

June 16, 2009: The city council approved the 2009-10 budget (Ord. 10-09, Fund 22, line 4305) with $200,000 for S. Dogwood Drive and the new Lowe's store.

June 28, 2009: The Codes Office continued to wait for Lowe's to provide copies of its development plan.

August 17, 2009: Reuters

News Service reported:

---Lowe's stock price fell 11% after it had announced the company would curb its expansion plans and forecasted worse-than-expected results in the third quarter as recession-weary consumers put off big renovations;

---Lowe's posted a 19 percent drop in quarterly profit and blamed weak demand for its decision to scale back North American store expansion plans;

---Lowe's had planned to open 60-70 stores in 2009, but planned to open only 35-40 in 2010.

Reasonable Conclusion: National macroeconomic factors hit Lowe's hard in 2009 and trickled down to Berea, canceling Berea's store on S. Dogwood Drive.

Berea History Question for the Week

Who was George G. Dick, and what did he do in Berea from 1903 to 1947?

Answer to last week's question about which firms planned and designed the Berea Community School building, and the structure it was modeled after:

Galloway and Guthrey of Knoxville, Tennessee was the architect for the project, and the School Planning Laboratory from the University of Tennessee, a non-profit enterprise affiliated with the Ford Foundation, directed by Dr. John W. Gilliland, provided educational planning assistance. The domes on the buildings were modeled after the Astrodome in Houston.

History questions and answers are composed by Berea Mayor Steve Connelly dogs and organic, local beef. They even offer "walking tacos," but with organic tortilla chips instead of Fritos.

"We're really trying to create an atmosphere of healthy eating and activity," Kathy Todd said, the P.E. instructor at Shannon Johnson who has spearheaded the healthy environment at the school. "We're really trying to set an example for these kids to follow as they get older."

When parents expressed their desire to have elementary basketball games this year, Kathy saw this as a wonderful opportunity to incorporate healthy foods into another part of the school culture. Kathy gave a lot of credit to parents, Teri Wilson and Crystal Catron, who have worked hard on the concession stand, with Crystal purchasing beef from Three-Fold Meats to make the chili.

The response from the kids has been great, Kathy said, who had to make another grocery run mid-week since they ran out of food after the first two nights.

"We've gotten so much good feedback from parents," Kathy said. These basketball games were such a good opportunity to have a concession booth with healthy food."

The most popular item, by far, has been the fruit smoothies that mix together frozen fruit, yogurt, and orange juice. The smoothie machine was bought with Fuel Up To Play money. Kathy purposely kept the prices lower on the concessions so child could afford all the items, with even bottled water only costing $.50.

"I know the kids aren't the ones doing the shopping, but we know how persuasive kids are," Kathy said, who hopes that these healthy choices become natural for the children.

"The whole thing has been a ball," Kathy said. "We've seen lots of good sportsmanship, and they've enjoyed the concessions. And it's just so good to see kids out moving."

By Beth Curlin
Special to the Citizen

The Kentucky Derby is right around the corner and what better way to show how Kentucky Proud you are than by serving up some locally-grown goodness at your Derby Party?

all their local food needs in a single location, conveniently located at 311 Main Street, just down from the College Square, next to the Seabury Center parking area on the Berea College Campus.

Beginning at nine on Saturday, May 3rd, the Berea College Farm Store and the Berea Farmers Market will be hosting a grand opening celebration to welcome the return of warm weather, local food abundance, and community. The Berea Farmers Market will open at nine in their new outdoor location on the lawn next to the Farm Store, where they will be on Tuesdays and Saturdays through October.  Anne Bruder and Avery Startzman enjoy planting a pear tree while Richard Olson assists with the shoveling. New Orchard Starts Off East Ridge Community Garden

By Susan Garza
 Citizen Reporter

An orchard was started on the land between Estill Street and Richmond Road this past Saturday, the first official event of the fledging East Ridge Community Garden group. Disease resistant fruit trees and berry bushes were donated to the Community Garden by the Berea College Community Sustainability Laboratory.

This first event involved a tree planting workshop led by Richard Olson of the Community Sustainability Lab. He demonstrated and talked about proper techniques for planting fruit trees and berry bushes.

Even with proper planting Richard said, "Be prepared, not all of our trees will live."

There were over a dozen adults, a teenager or two, and about half a dozen children present.

What planting fruit trees and berry bushes represents was captured in part when Richard Olson told the group that "planting something so permanent" requires spending extra time now. He told the group that these are "30 year decisions here", get it right so there will be more fruit later. The decisions being made included looking for lateral roots as a guide to how deep to plant, the diameter of the hole to be dug, watering considerations, and proper use of mulch. It will be a couple of years before there is any fruit as a reward for these efforts. For now the trees' energy needs to go to growth of the trees themselves. In these first couple of years most of the maintenance will be watering. Not little waterings, otherwise the trees will develop surface root systems. It is important that the waterings really soak the ground. Luckily there will be water on site.

Another major step in the creation of the East Ridge Community Garden was two tillings to prepare the ground; the tilling of the garden beds was one of the contributions made by Grow Appalachia, one of the community garden's partners. At the first tilling, Katie Startzman and Jenny Hobson felt like it has been a short time since they had first started talking about the idea of a community garden. Katie and Jenny are just two of the people on the steering committee. Jenny referred to Katie as "our fearless leader". About her objectives in getting the East Ridge Community Garden started Katie said, "there are two prongs, one is to grow food, and the other is to build relationships."

In early December, Katie contacted friends with the idea of a community garden on the land. This winter they had organizing meetings to work out some of the details. In January, they met with Derrick Singleton, Vice President for Operations and Sustainability at Berea College. They presented a proposal, including a site plan, and formally requested the use of the land. Mayor Connelly and Randy Stone of the City of Berea met with

Saint Joseph Berea encourages you to use good hand hygiene. It is the single most important step toward preventing spread of infection. Germs are spread through the air by coughs and sneezes, but hands play a big role. One of the most common ways to pick up germs is by touching something that is contaminated and then touching your nose, mouth or eyes. You can also spread germs to others by touching objects or people with your hands. To protect yourself from germs, thoroughly wash your hands or use an alcohol-based hand sanitizer.

Progress Club Luncheon Meeting

The Progress Club of Berea met at the Boone Tavern for the luncheon meeting on Friday, April 4. We were seated in the Coyle room, and were happy to welcome back Dinah Tyree from her winter vacation.

After enjoying lunch, President Joyce Mosher opened the business meeting with roll being taken by the secretary. There were thirteen members present. The secretary's report followed the roll call, with the report accepted as read.

No treasurer's report was available.

Joyce Henderson introduced our speaker, Belle Jackson, head of tourism in Berea. Belle spoke of a new program in the making for Berea College graduates who qualify, an arts fellowship program which aims to encourage and train future artists, who may then be encouraged to stay in Berea to practice their craft.

Belle also reminded us of the 12 Days of Christmas project, which will begin on Thanksgiving weekend, and will continue through the next five weekends. It would be a chance for all of us to participate in some kind of artistic endeavor - painting classes, glass blowing, pottery making - a long list of possibilities.

Following a question and answer period, the business meeting was resumed, all of us impressed by the work done by the Berea Department of Tourism in Berea.

There is a planned trip to Windy Corner on Tuesday,

April 15. Instead of antique shopping, there will be a bus tour through the Lexington Cemetery, which is always resplendent with flowers and budding trees this time of the year.

If tickets are still available, those desiring can go as a group to Keeneland on April 26. Dinah will make inquiries on the club's behalf and the membership will be advised.

President Joyce called upon Dinah Tyree, Dottie Blackburn and Hazel Morris to serve on the nominating committee for the 2014/15 year. The next regular meeting will once again be at Boone Tavern on May 1, 2014.

Morris dancers around the globe dance the sun up on Mayday. Come Join Squash Beetle Morris as they dance at dawn on Thursday, May 1, 2014 in front of the Frost building on the Berea College campus. They will begin dancing at about 6:15 a.m. and continue until the sun is up. There will be dances to watch and dances which the audience may join in. This is free and open to the public.

Morris dancing was old when Shakespeare was young. They dance at dawn on Mayday to ensure the sun does rise. There are many ancient stories told of the Morris Dancers and the luck they bring. Come join them and encourage the Morris dancers here in Berea.

Nesco Resource Named 2014 Best of Staffing

Nesco Resource announced today it has been named as one of Inavero's 2014 Best of Staffing® Award winners. Presented in partnership with CareerBuilder, the fifth annual Best of Staffing Award provides the only statistically valid and objective service quality benchmarks in the industry, revealing which staffing agencies are delivering the highest satisfaction levels to their clients and the permanent and temporary employees for whom they find jobs. Yet again, this year's award outcome highlights a growing divide among the industry's leaders and laggards, and identifies Nesco Resource as one of the best staffing agencies for companies and job candidates to call when they are in need

Less than two percent of all staffing agencies in North America receive the Best of Staffing Award for service excellence. Utilizing the Net Promoter® methodology, the 2014 Best of Staffing winners achieved satisfaction scores more than double the industry average. This stark contrast in scores is a clear indication that the firms who have earned the 2014 Best of Staffing Award truly stand out for their service quality. Nesco Resource received satisfaction ratings of 9 or 10 out of 10 from 66 percent of their permanent and temporary employees, significantly higher than the industry's average of 53 percent. 68 percent of their clients rated them a 9 or 10, compared to just 35 percent for the average staffing agency.

"Less than 2% of staffing firms in the U.S. and Canada have been named to the Best of Staffing Lists for both Client and Talent Satisfaction, and far fewer have been recognized in this way for three consecutive years," Nesco Resource President and COO Tim McPherson stated. "Our focus on providing quality and responsive service to both our customers and the individuals who represent us is unrelenting. The entire Nesco Resource organization is proud and honored to be recognized once again for our efforts."

Berea College officials. Then the East Ridge Community Garden group had to work out a land use agreement with the college.

Along the way Katie felt like the "way was being cleared. Doors opened fast."

In addition to wanting this to be a productive space, the goal is also to make this a beautiful space. There will be vegetables, flowers, and a children's garden. Two of the fruit trees were planted in the children's garden for shade. Katie Startzman would like this space to have a park like feel, and for it to be a "place where people are welcome." The garden will also include rows for donations to the food bank.

This will be an organic gardening space. People who do not have experience with gardening or organic gardening can partner with experienced people. Their aim is to have at least 25 plots filled this year. Eventually they would like to have 50 plots being gardened. Most of the beds will not be raised, however, Jenny said that they will have beds raised by request for accessibility by people in wheel chairs or anyone who has mobility issues.

Their plan for the land includes a pergola for shade, where they will grow wisteria or grapes. In addition to looking for members, they are seeking donations of materials to help them with projects, like building a shed and a fence. Once the garden is established, the money paid for plot fees should make the garden self-supporting. The ongoing expenses to run the garden will include on site water, educational programs, and annual garden preparation.

Following Saturday's event, Richard Olson said that he was, "... very impressed with the fledgling East Ridge Community Garden. It will be a real asset to the community."

For more information about the East Ridge Community Garden, see their web site www.eastridge-communitygarden.org or call Katie Startzman at 859-985-9114.

Reflections

FROM THE BEREA CITIZEN ARCHIVES APRIL 1984

Firemen from the Berea Fire Department were able to use the two-story house across from the Berea courthouse as a training exercise in April 1984, since the building was going to be taken down anyway to build a new Hardees. The flames could be seen for blocks and a large crowd gathered to watch the firemen contain the blaze.

Fire Chief Jerry Simpson's crew set three blazes in the house at different times, and stood by with breathing apparatus in case the volunteers had trouble extinguishing the fires.

Berea Community students performed well in the Special Olympics in 1984. Nine of them competed against other students in art, swimming and gymnastics. Marc White performed in the diving, backstroke, and swimming relays. David Whisman placed second in backstroke, third in diving and fourth in the 25 meter free style. Darryl Chasteen placed first in the 25 meter freestyle and first in 25 meter backstroke. Barb Baker, the high school coach for Special Olympics said that the sports were a great way for handicapped people to express themselves.

Elementary students from Berea Community that competed were Anthony Howard who placed first in tumbling and free exercise, Kay Mullins who placed second in fundamental gymnastics, Bobby Hollandsworth placed first in fundamental gymnastics, and Lester Sparks placed first in tumbling and floor exercise. First place winners of art were Mark King, Kay Mullins, Frank Pigg and Bobby Hollandsworth.

On March 18, 1984, the Berea Community School held the National Honor Society induction ceremonies. Melissa Gardner, the president of the Beta Club, made opening remarks. There were 12 new members, and the six who took their membership pledge were Matthew Nelson, Johnny Hannon, Cheryl Williams, Beth Fraley, Alison Hall and Donna Reed.

New officers were also installed. Ann Shuber was to be the new president, Carrie Abney presented the office of vice-president to Cheryl Williams, Charla Brumley relinquished the position of secretary to Alison Hall, Dana Rhodus gave Donna Reed the position of treasurer, and Ann Shuber made Beth Fraley the next year's parliamentarian.

New members of the Tora Chapter of the National Honor Society were Regina Pyles, Joe Sweeney, Regina Campbell, Candy Castle, Betsy DeWitt, Mary Kiteck, Angie Mikel, Ann Shuber and Lori Stinebrickner.

Keila Capenter, the teacher educator at Berea College, was the guest speaker at the annual FHA Banquet on March 14, 1984. Cathy Carraway was recognized for her help in organizing the scholarship project, and Carrie Abney received the High Points award.

The 1984-85 officers were installed -- Lorna Hayes

as president, Betsy Dewitt as first-vice president, Suzanne Graham as second vice president, Lori Linville as secretary, Stephanie Saylor as treasurer, Shonda Whittaker as reporter, Vince Poynter as historian, Sherri Lakes as parliamentarian, Leshia Gay as song leader, Greg Lakes and Sherry Grant as recreation leaders, and Lisa Himes as roll chairman.

City allocations of federal revenue sharing money to private groups and agencies were in trouble in 1984. There was a question on whether cities could allocate federal funds to private groups. The City of Berea traditionally allocated large amounts of its yearly revenue sharing apportionment to private groups. Those groups were Berea Child Care Center that received $2,000, Mountain Maternal Health League that received $2,000, Senior Citizen Nutrition that received $2,000, MARC that received $1,750, 62 PLUS that received $2,350, Berea Hospital that received $11,300, and the Volunteer Firemen that received $4,000.

The Berea Garden Club had a meeting at the home of J. Miller Lackeys in April 1984. Plans were discussed for the planting of two golden chain trees in Berea. Harries Marsh, club president, announced that one of the trees would be planted on the grounds of the Berea College Agriculture Building in memory of Dr. Howard Monier, a charter member of the Garden Club. The other golden chain tree was to be planted on the Berea Hospital grounds in memory of Louie Key, a former Berea Hospital nurse and member of the Garden Club. Other members were Susan Gray, Miller Lackey, Louise Lackey, H. E. Hunter, Bernice Hunter, Hazel King, Maudi Ledford, Harriet Marsh, James O'Dell, Charles Welsey, John Ramsey and Gertrude Ramsey. A special guest was Catherine Haight.

Six Berea Community Schools juniors and seniors competed at the first History Bowl at ECU on April 6, 1984. Jon Wallace, Melissa Ballinger, Betsy DeWitt, Andrea Willia, Harry Suters and Stephen Davenport attended from Berea.

The students represented 40 high schools, and participated in competitive examinations in American and world history, consisting of multiple choice questions and essay questions.

academic potential but limited financial means. The Berea College Farm Store is open to the public Tuesday-Friday from 12 - 6:30 p.m. and Saturday from 10 a.m. - 4 p.m. For more about the new store, see the website www.berea-collegefarmstore.com

The Berea Farmers Market is located on the lawn adjacent to the Farm Store and will be open on Tuesdays from 3 p.m. - 6 p.m. and Saturdays from 9 a.m. - 1 p.m. This year's Farmers Market will feature new and returning local and regional growers, artisans, food vendors and sampling. Through a collaboration with the Madison County Health Department, the market is now welcoming customers with SNAP/EBT benefits.

"Fresh fruits and vegetables are an essential part of a healthy diet and lifestyle," Hilary Dolstad of the Madison County Health Department said. "We're excited to work with the Farmers Market to increase access to nutritious, local foods for all residents of the Berea area," Dolstad added.

This program was funded through a Healthy Communities grant from the KY Department for Public Health. The market will also be giving out vouchers for fresh food at locations throughout Berea this spring, through a grant of $3,000 from WellCare Health Plans, Inc. Market Manager Margie Stelzer will be on hand to answer questions about these new programs.

"We really want to thank the Community Farm Alliance and the Madison County Health Department for helping us with funding, training, and support through our grants," Stelzer said. Other partners that have helped are the Berea Community School, Berea Food Bank, and the Madison County Extension Service.

There will be signs posted at the Berea Hospital lawn where the Market has been previously held, and as the crow flies, the new location is just down the hill, via Estill Street and North Main. Large signs will be posted at the Berea Farm Store to remind the community of the new location.

"Locally grown food is better tasting and connecting the growers with the eaters in a direct buying relationship builds community," Carla Baumann, local organic grower and nurse-coach, said.

New vendors are always welcome to the Berea Farmer's Market and applications and a vendor's agreement can be downloaded from <http://berea-farmersmarket.org/>.

MADISON SOUTHERN HIGH SCHOOL

DRIVE 4UR SCHOOL

Madison County Ford is teaming up with Madison Southern High School to help raise up to $6000 as part of Ford Motor Company's Drive One 4UR School program. For every person who test drives a new Ford or Lincoln vehicle, Ford Motor Company will donate $20 to the high school.

Go Further

Participants must be 18 or older and have a valid driver's license. Limit 1 test drive per household. Ford Motor Company and its dealers partner with high schools across the United States to offer the Drive One 4UR School program. This initiative has raised more than $10 million through nearly 3,000 events since its inception in 2007, and provides up to $6,000 per school through test drives of Ford products. More than 1,150 dealers have partnered with their local high schools to participate in the program and the funds raised can be applied to any area where the school needs support - athletics, music, even to fix damages from natural disasters. In April, Ford, its dealers and high schools will attempt to raise a record-setting $1 million in a single month through more than 300 Drive One 4UR School events throughout the U.S.
