

Retirement Community Feasible in Berea, Study Indicates

By Beth Myers
Citizen Editor

All the Berea City Council members were present for the discussion about a future retirement center in town at Tuesday's work session, and all were favorable about working to find a developer or organization interested in such a project.

Council members had received a draft from Spectrum of the feasibility study conducted in Berea; a study that concluded that the community could support additional beds for assisted living and/or independent living.

"The assumption from the beginning was that with this information, both the data that was assimilated and the conclusions that were offered, could be distributed to retirement community professionals," Mayor Steve Connelly said, as the council started to review the study.

Berea Teenager Dies In Crash

An 18 year old from Berea was killed in a car accident on Monday, when his 1997 BMW collided with a tree near the Rockcastle/Madison County line. It occurred just after 4 p.m.

Austin Tillery, who attended Rockcastle County High School, was traveling south on Hwy 25 when he lost control of his car and crossed the oncoming lane of traffic. Emergency responders worked to free Tillery from his car, but he died during their intervention. The Madison County Coroner pronounced him dead at the scene.

According to Kentucky State Police, Tillery did not appear to be wearing a seatbelt, and speed seemed to be a factor in the collision.

The ongoing investigation is being conducted by Trooper Charles Brandenburg.

Several emergency vehicles showed up to the accident scene, top, on Monday that ended with the death of 18-year-old Austin Tillery; traffic stayed backed-up on Hwy 25 S while responders waited for the coroner, left.

COTR Hosts Multi-Media, Interactive Nativity Drive Thru

By Beth Myers
Citizen Editor

Bereans will once again have the chance to experience a multi-media, multi-level nativity scene this holiday season, when Church on the Rock parishioners host their 3rd annual Journey to Bethlehem - Drive Thru Nativity this Thursday through Sunday.

This is not your simple nativity scene, with some live players and animals, as well as a manger and possibly a barn. This is a huge undertaking that first brings vehicles and their passengers into a Bethlehem marketplace, and then leads them through 23 different scenes that include Mary and Joseph speaking to the Innkeeper, Roman soldiers riding on horses, and camels and donkeys milling around. And participation is absolutely free.

"Last year we had to get the camels from Indiana," Dana Sarver said, who first had the idea of building a live nativity scene at Church on the Rock. "This year, I found them from Georgetown."

Unfortunately, the Kentucky camels are a bit smaller, but they will be joined by donkeys, pigs, llamas, horses, and pigmy horses. Around 150 people are involved both with staffing the nativity scene and serving as security. More than that are

Pastor Mark Sarver talks to his parishioners about how the roof will be placed on the marketplace building that is part of the Nativity Drive Thru at Church on the Rock. It will be the first of 23 scenes that people will be guided through in the Journey to Bethlehem - Drive Thru Nativity. Church on the Rock will be hosting the third annual Nativity Drive Thru this weekend, Thursday through Sunday, from 6 - 9 p.m. It is a free event.

Women's Group Celebrates 120 Years

By Kim Kobersmith
Citizen Reporter

Not many organizations in Madison County can say they have had three generations of families as active members, but Women's Creative Sewing and Crafts (WCSC, formerly Woman's Industrial) can. This weekend, this ministry of Union Church celebrated 120 years of serving the women of Madison County.

The women who served chili and shared their crafts on Sunday had a long legacy of involvement with WCSC. Connie Lewis

Massucco Named All-America

Berea College junior Jessie Massucco has been named to the Capital One Academic All-America soccer team. Selection for the First Team All-America designation is made by the College Sports Information Directors of America.

To be eligible for nomination, a student-athlete must carry a minimum 3.30 GPA and be a starter or key reserve on his team. Massucco carries a 3.94 GPA. Out of the 22 First Team members, Massucco is one of just eight players whose GPS is above

Massucco, a three year starter for Berea College, has been the Mountaineers' primary offensive weapon for the past two seasons. In 2014, led the team in goals (nine), points (22), shots (28), shots on goal (12), and was second in assists with four. His season high came against Crown College, when he scored nine points (four goals and one assist).

A junior from Moravian Falls, NC, Massucco is majoring in Agriculture and Natural Resources.

Austin Lee Tillery

Held at Gunpoint

The Madison County Sheriff's Office is currently investigating a home invasion. On Nov. 30, around 8 a.m., Madison County deputies were sent to an address on Alexander Road in Berea because of a home invasion.

A man and woman forced entry into a trailer and held a man at gunpoint. An argument took place and the man was struck with a fist. The suspects then left the scene. The man who was assaulted refused medical treatment. No other details can be released at this time.

Rape Arrest

This Wednesday, Berea Police arrested Kenneth Scott, Jr., 27, of Berea. He was arrested after an investigation revealed that he had sexual intercourse and other sexual contact with a female under 16 years of age.

Scott lived in the same home as the alleged victim for several months, and was left in charge of her at times. He was charged with third degree rape and sodomy.

BEREA POLICE

Drug Arrest

On November 28, a traffic stop was conducted on the I-75 on ramp at Exit 76 after a complaint of possible drug activity. Officers were assisted by deputies with the Madison County Sheriff's Office and their K-9 unit, which alerted on the vehicle.

Under the passenger seat, officers located a black bag containing needles, spoons with residue, and a plastic bag with a brown substance. The substance field tested positive for heroin.

Officers arrested Caitlyn Cowan, 25, of Nicholasville and charged her with first degree possession of controlled substance -- heroin and drug paraphernalia possession.

Alcohol/Drug Arrests

On November 30, officers were called to Shell on Prince Royal Drive because of an intoxicated female inside of the store. She was located in the parking lot, smelled like alcohol, and was slurring her speech. Inside of her coat pocket she had a half empty bottle of whiskey and a small amount of marijuana.

Officers arrested Tracy Smith, 40, of Berea and charged her with alcohol intoxication in a public place and possession of marijuana. While she was being booked into the Madison County Detention Center, deputy jailers located a lortab pill concealed on her person. She was also charged with second degree possession of controlled substance.

Shoplifting/Drug Arrest

On November 30, officers were called to Walmart because of a female shoplifter. Store employees saw her conceal several items before attempting to leave the store. She was placed under arrest, and officers located three llopin tablets concealed in a cigarette pack. After being transported to the Berea Police Department, they discovered more concealed merchandise in her clothing. The total value of the merchandise was $92.11.

Officers charged Kathy Todd, 35, of Berea with theft by unlawful taking - shoplifting, third degree possession of controlled substance, and prescription of controlled substance not in proper container.

Tell us about your angels

*I believe there are Angels Among Us, Sent down to us from some-where up above.
They come to you and me in our darkest hours
To show us how to live
To teach us how to give
To guide us with a light of love.*

-- Alabama
I'd be perfectly happy if all the news in the Berea Citizen was of a positive nature. But alas giving a true picture of the happenings each week doesn't lend itself to only good news, and on a purely practical note that probably wouldn't turn out well from a business sense either. Healthy paper sales are way more likely with controversy, tragedy and mayhem.
A series we ran a while back called Meet Your Neighbor that featured many Bereans and the stories of their lives was one of my favorites. Remembering those articles got me thinking about how we could get more input from the community about the people who make a difference in their lives.

This brings me to a request. We want to hear about the angels in your life. Not the white diaphanous kind with wings, but those who are mortal and maybe even a bit flawed.
I saw a little quiz recently that really made me stop and think about the people who really make a difference in the lives of others. See how well you do.
Name the ten wealthiest people in the world.
Name the last ten Heisman trophy winners.
Name the last ten winners of the Miss America contest.
Name eight people who have won the Nobel or Pulitzer prize.
How about the last ten Academy Award winners for best picture or the last decade's worth of World Series winners?
Well, how did you do? Me either. Without resorting to Google, not many of us remember yesterday's headlines too well.
Here's another quiz. I suspect you might do better on this one.
Think of three people you enjoy spending time with.
Name someone who taught you something worthwhile.

Name three friends who have helped you in a difficult time.
List some teachers who aided your journey through school.
Easier? It was for me. The lesson? The people who make a difference are not the ones with their names in lights, they're the ones who care about others.
In the next couple of weeks we hope that you will send letters (in less than 500 words) telling us about someone who has been an "Angel Among Us" in your life and how that person has made a positive difference. Tell us about a member of your family, your child's teacher, your pastor or your Sunday school teacher, the mailman, the receptionist at the doctor's office, you get the picture.
We will share those letters with the readers in the Christmas edition of the paper.
Send them to PO Box 207 Berea, KY 40403 or email them to bereacitizen@windstream.net. We're excited to hear about the good things happening around us. I hope we have to print extra pages to contain all the letters.

Experiencing the Loss of One

Monday was the first time I've ever covered a car accident that turned into a fatality. Most of the time I hear about a serious car wreck after it's mostly over, and always the drivers and passengers are alive, though sometimes seriously injured.
But late afternoon on Monday, I drove out to the wreck on Highway 25 South immediately after the young Berea teenager crashed into a tree. I was standing outside the perimeter as all the action was taking place to try to get him out of the car, and I was there when word started making its way to the family members that he had died. One minute there was frenzied action, and the next minute, it all stopped.
It was a complete shock. I was sure they would get him out of the car, busted up of course, but alive. That necessary life-saving measures would be taken, and I would be writing at the end of my article that he was in the hospital in critical condition.

For some reason, I called my publisher Teresa, though I wasn't sure why. Don't take a photo of the car, she immediately told me, or anywhere close to it. The family does not need to have that splashed on the front page. Just take one of the scene, the chaos, the emergency vehicles.
It's an unwritten code in our office. If it's an accident with injuries only, then photos can be taken of smashed up vehicles. We only cover wrecks if it's a particularly bad one, or if the accident really interrupted traffic in the city. Teresa and I refer to newspapers that have the "wreck of the week," but that's not the way we roll.
I'm relieved we have that unwritten code. It's hard enough to be present at a car wreck that results in tragedy when you have a camera slung around your neck; I can't imagine if I had to skulk around for a dramatic photo.
I walked about a quarter of a mile back to my car from the scene of the accident, past the long line of backed up traffic. It was drizzling, cold rain, and that felt appropriate to what was happening. It seems so wrong when it's sunny and bright, with a tragedy in front of you. Around half of the people opened their windows, asking me what had happened. What was going on? Was there a wreck? Did I know how long things were going to be backed up?

And then of course the final question -- was everyone all right? Was anyone hurt? And I had to answer that no, everyone was not all right. They were very far from being all right.
How wrong and twisted up it is, when a young person dies. It's a punch in the gut when someone young is badly damaged; how could we not have protected our children? How can we not keep them from being hurt? But of course we can't, not really, we never could.
When I got back to the office, Teresa was waiting for me. She stayed late, because she didn't want me to come back to the office alone afterward. I was more thankful for that than I could say. I felt raw and detached, processing what had happened.
My sense of loss, disorientation, surprised me since I didn't have a personal connection to the family. But observing the tragedy had somehow made me feel a part of it, put me inside it. Representing in that moment, perhaps, the community that had just lost one of their young.

Rights Commission. The John G. Fee Justice Award was created by the Berea Human Rights Commission last year, and the 1960s coalition, the Concerned Citizens of Berea, was the first recipient. The group formed after the 1968 racially motivated shooting in Berea occurred, to assure that the African-American defendants received a fair defense. “The person who nominated them said there was no doubt their support for human rights has made a significant contribution to maintaining, improving, and expanding the human rights of fellow Berea residents,” Gilbert announced, after Jackie and Virgil had been brought to the front to receive the award. The two of them have been residents of Berea College for over 30 years, Gilbert stated, not including the years they were students of Berea College. They both work at Berea College, and serve in different capacities for the city; Virgil as a member of city council and Jackie as a member of the Berea Community School Board. They received a standing ovation in city council after the award was presented to them. A plaque with the names of the recipients of the John G. Fee Justice Award hangs in Berea City Hall. A certificate of appreciation was awarded to Dorie Hubbard, the other nominee of the John G. Fee Award. David Shroyer presented it to her. “Dorie and Tom were both founders of the P-Flag organization, parents and friends of lesbians and gays, and they have worked to dedicate themselves to persons who have differences,” Shroyer said, “and have stepped forward also, and recently as activists as Bereans for Fairness and Kentuckians for the Commonwealth for many years.”

Berea Elementary Students Selected for All-State Choir

By Beth Myers
Citizen Editor

Two fifth graders from Berea Community recently received the honor of being chosen for the KMEA All-State children’s choir, the only two elementary school students in Berea who were selected. Hannah Fairchild and Grace Davidson, who had to sing Cantate Domino in Latin for their audition, were two of 200 Kentucky singers chosen for the children’s choir. Berea Community Music teacher Mark Fields stated that applicants had to record their audition to send to KMEA. There were 600 submissions from the state. According to Fields, having elementary school students selected for the KMEA choir is somewhat of a tradition at Berea Community. There is usually at least one child selected for the children’s choir, which takes 5th and 6th graders.

“It’s very hard to get in,” Fields said. “Sixth graders have more mature voices, so it can be harder for the 5th graders to get in. But both Hannah and Grace are very talented singers, with mature voices for their age.” In February, Hannah and Grace will travel to the KMEA Conference in Louisville to perform with the other selected singers in the children’s choir. Dr. Amir Zaheri, the musical director and conductor of the University of Alabama’s Contemporary Ensemble, will be conducting the children’s choir at the conference. The successful applicants are expected to learn and work with the music with their teachers now, and Zaheri will then work with them for a full-day at the KMEA Conference to prepare them for their performance. “They are both very excited,” Fields confirmed.

shared how her grandmother, mom, and aunts were all a part of it in the early 1900s. Her mother walked from Gabbardtown each week. Jennifer Shelton, an adult with children of her own, first attended the group when she was a week old. Heather Richardson, director of WCSC, shares the importance of the group. “I am a great believer in the therapeutic value of handwork, especially for those women who are low-income or have other life challenges.” Odessa Denny, a third generation member, comes because, “It is just a wonderful group, and we get lots of enjoyment out of being together.” Madonna Fay Himes has been involved for over 45 years and shares, “Sometimes one of the ladies needs an electric or water bill paid, and the money we make from selling our crafts goes towards helping each other.” According to historian Richard B. Drake in “One in Spirit: The Liberal Evangelical Witness of Union Church, Berea, Kentucky,” WCSC was inspired by the popular settlement houses, a reformist social movement whose goal was to help alleviate poverty by getting the rich and poor to live more closely together in an interdependent community. “WCSC began as a way to empower women, an opportunity for them to do something for themselves, and a respite from sometimes difficult home environments,” says Rev. Kent Gilbert, pastor of Union Church. “It offered a place to learn skills and form relationships with other women.” The women originally gathered to mend clothing, and give them to those in need. Now, the women focus on learning crafting skills, selling their creations, and forming a supportive fellowship. Quilting and jewelry-making are primary focuses, but the women are interested in learning other crafts. Connie Lewis has a picture of her grandfather weaving a basket. She is proud of her crafting background, saying, “I wish that some of us had learned how to do it.” Artisans in the community who might be interested in volunteering to teach their craft (quilting, crochet, basket weaving) can contact Heather Richardson through the Union Church webpage, www.union-church.org or call the office, 859-986-3725. Looking to the future, Richardson sees attracting younger members as one of the challenges ahead. She sees the importance of interpreting some of the traditional, fabric arts in new ways (like knit quilts), and in adding new mediums for their creativity (pottery, knitting). They have also created a Facebook page under the name, Women’s Creative Sewing and Crafts. Expanding opportunities to market their crafts is another opportunity on the horizon. Currently they sell through local craft fairs and the Union Church Bazaar. This year they set up a booth at First Fridays and they hope to have an Etsy website in the spring. “This ministry has helped tether Union Church to its origins and a way to serve people who are right here,” shares Rev. Gilbert. “It is an inspiration for the church to connect with folks with a deep history in Madison County, with the strength and character of this region.” Women’s Creative Sewing and Crafts meets Fridays during the school year from 9 a.m. - noon in the basement Community Room of Union Church, 200 Prospect Street. Child-care is provided, and a healthy lunch is available for $1 every meeting.

involved if you include the people who build all the structures. Workers start building the props 3 – 4 weekends in advance. Church on the Rock has added a day that people can come see the Drive Thru Nativity, partly because of the huge numbers that come to see their Bethlehem. From Thursday through Sunday, Dec. 4 – 7, the Nativity will be open from 6 – 8 p.m. Last year, over 6,000 people came, despite the ice and rain. Often cars would get backed up on Hwy 25 both north and south as people waited their turn to drive through. This year, they are expecting 8,000 – 10,000 people from all over the state. To avoid long waits, Sarver encourages people to arrive around 5:30 p.m. When people drive either north or south on Hwy 25, and they get close to the church, they will see signs that tell them to turn on their radios to a certain station. The Nativity Movie will be playing on a 16 x 10” movie screen set-up by the church, so people can watch while they wait. “I felt we just really needed something for the community,” Sarver said. “There are some people who would not come into a church, but this is something they will come to.” Every year, people from COTR add a little more on to the nativity scene. There are three new scenes this year, including Caesar taking census, a weaver, and the part of the story where the Innkeeper tells Mary and Joseph there’s no room. When participants first drive into the Nativity, there are people to welcome them and give them hot cups of cider. Drivers and passengers will also be given a “coin” that will be required in order to travel through the census gates. The REACH food ministry will have receptor boxes located at the cider station for any canned food donations.

This quarterly meeting is sponsored by the governor-appointed Kentucky Chemical Demilitarization Citizens’ Advisory Commission (CAC). The CAC represents community and state interests to the U.S. Army and Department of Defense. The Chemical Destruction Community Advisory Board (CDCAB) is an independent sub-committee of the CAC made up of a diverse group of community leaders who organized to represent the views and concerns of the local community on issues regarding Kentucky’s chemical weapons disposal program. Join community members for an update on chemical weapons destruction in Madison County and share your views with community leaders.

This meeting is open to the public and accessible to people with disabilities.

Event Raises more than 30K for Hospice

Submitted to The Citizen

For the second consecutive year Donna Angel, vice president of Community Trust Bank on Walnut Meadow Road, hosted the Outstanding In Your Field event held at The Rock House on the Campus of Church on the Rock in Berea.

The Hospice fundraiser event was once again a huge success as hundreds gathered to honor people in Madison County who were recognized for their outstanding leadership qualities and to acknowledge the difference they have made in the two communities of Richmond and Berea. NOTICE

Notice is hereby given that, in a November 26, 2014 Application, Kentucky Utilities Company is seeking approval by the Public Service Commission of an adjustment of electric rates and charges proposed to become effective on and after January 1, 2015.

KU CURRENT AND PROPOSED ELECTRIC RATES
Residential Service - Rate RS
	Current	Proposed
Basic Service Charge per Month:	$10.75	$18.00
Energy Charge per kWh:	$ 0.07744	$ 0.08057
Availability of Service: Text proposed to be added to clarify that single phase service is for secondary service only.

Residential Time-of-Day Energy Service - Rate RTOD-Energy
Current – This rate schedule is not currently available.
Proposed
Basic Service Charge per Month:		$18.00
Plus an Energy Charge per kWh:
On-Peak Hours		$ 0.25874
Availability of Service: Service under this rate schedule is limited to a maximum of five hundred (500) customers taking service on RTOD-Energy and RTOD-Demand combined that are eligible for Rate RS. This service is also available to customers on Rate Schedule GS (where the GS service is used in conjunction with an RS service to provide service to a detached garage and energy usage is no more than 300 kWh per month) who demonstrate power delivered to such detached garage is consumed in part for the powering of low emission vehicles licensed for operation on public street or highways. A customer electing to take service under this rate schedule who subsequently elects to take service under the standard Rate RS may not be allowed to return to this optional rate for 12 months from the date of exiting the rate schedule.
Determination of Pricing Periods: Pricing periods are established in Eastern Standard Time year round by season for weekdays and weekends.
Summer Period - Five Billing Periods of May through September
Weekdays: Off Peak (5pm-1pm), On Peak (1pm-5pm)
Weekends: Off Peak (All Hours), On Peak (N/A)
Winter Period - All Other Months
Weekdays: Off Peak (11am-7am), On Peak (7am-11am)
Weekends: Off Peak (All Hours), On Peak (N/A)
Minimum Bill: The Basic Service Charge shall be the minimum charge.

Residential Time-of-Day Demand Service - Rate RTOD-Demand
Current – This rate schedule is not currently available.
Proposed
Basic Service Charge per Month:		$18.00
Plus an Energy Charge per kWh:		$ 0.04008
Plus a Demand Charge per kW:
Off-Peak Hours		$ 3.25
On-Peak Hours		$11.56

Looking at the year in the rearview mirror

For my last column of 2014, I thought it would be nice to reflect on the past year at the Madison County Public Library. It certainly has passed by in a flash, it seems. As we continued celebrating our 25th anniversary year, our library system hit many milestones, each one reaffirming that, despite tumultuous beginnings, the library is alive and thriving in the 21st century. Back in the 1990s, when the internet arrived, folks were forecasting it would spell the demise of public libraries. Yet here we are, coming up on two decades of widespread public internet access, and our library is posting record public internet and wifi use. Each month, we log 7,000-8,000 computer/internet sessions. Noticing that many of our customers were using their own devices in the library, we began tracking the amount of data transferred over our wifi each month. Close to 2,000 sessions are logged each month, with more than 500 gigabytes of data transferred. That blows my mind. 500 GB would store about 500 feature films in standard definition, 5,000 yards of plain-text books, and 100,000 MP3 songs. And that's just one month at the Madison County Public Library. When eBooks started coming into their own a few years back, again, folks saw them tolling the death knell for public libraries. Well . . . this past year, our library circulation (how much stuff we checked out) hit an all-time high of 547,502 items. Only 32,358 of those were eBooks, itself a record for the library and a 46 percent increase over the previous year. Our highest circulating type of material remains print books. And who would have ever thought people would check out seeds from the library to plant their gardens? We partnered with Sustainable Berea to start our first circulating seed library. Folks checked out beet seeds, arugula, spinach, beans, basil, kale, and Swiss chard seeds. Through the summer we added flower seeds. Then we thought folks might need tools for gardening and yard jobs, so we started circulating those, too. Was it successful? Absolutely. We quickly exhausted our seed supply, checking out more than 1,000 seed packets, and the tools are still circulating. In 2015, we'll build on that success and expand the seed/tool library even more. Our program attendance also reached an all-time high. Close to 46,000 adults and children attended Madison County Public Library programs this past year. New partnerships with the Madison County Health Department and Berea Arts Council have created some cool program additions in 2014. The "See the Art, Meet the Artisan" series with the arts council features a new artist each month at the library's Berea location. We display the person's work throughout the month, then he or she presents a talk about or demonstration of the work for the public. Our library continues to expand its role as an engaged community partner, working to serve our customers in many capacities. For example, we served close to 4,000 free lunches to kids over the summer. We recently served as a collection point for winter coats and jackets for a community drive. Organizers said we were one of the most popular drop-off points. And currently, we are in the midst of our annual "Food 4 Fines" drive. Customers can erase a dollar of fines off their accounts for every non-perishable food item they donate. The amnesty program runs through December 14, and all the food collected will be donated to food banks in Berea and Richmond in time for the holidays. So, in the rearview mirror, 2014 is looking pretty good for the Madison County Public Library. Thank you for being a part of making that happen. I hope to see you soon at the library!

Food 4 Fines is back! Now through Dec. 14th, bring in non-perishable food items to have fines reduced by $1.00 for each item! Contact any library location for more information and specific guidelines

HALEY BAKER
PIRATE Staff Reporter

Berea's very own Wellness Club, led by Cathy Jones, has paired together chosen high school health students with elementary students from Mrs. Riddle's kindergarten class for a new mentorship program.

Students were paired together by matching similar personalities together to get maximum help with in-class work and activities such as math and reading, and also do some educational and creative arts and crafts for this upcoming holiday season.

Students traveled to the local McDonald's on December 1 to create holiday inspired decorations to add some festive cheer to Berea.

Berea Kindergartener Kayleigh Thompson had a great time decorating the Berea McDonald's. "We had lots of fun, I was really excited. My buddy was really nice."

All student mentors, who are chosen from the grades of 9-12, are excited to work with their children from Mrs. Riddle's class and to do their own favorite activities with their new younger friends.

Junior Claire Sandberg said, "I love doing fun activities with my buddy. I really enjoy working with the kids and teaching them important skills that will help them with the rest of their schooling."

Not only the elementary students will be gaining from this experience, the high schoolers will be accessing important knowledge for their own future.

"The high school mentors will learn some great responsibilities throughout this process," said mentor leader, Susan Reyes.

Spotlight on Student Council

OBI OKUMU
PIRATE Staff Reporter

When you think of student council do you think of a group of students elected to serve as figure heads or advisors to administrators about policies impacting student relations? Homecoming parade, homecoming coronation, homecoming bonfire, SaraCare, Food Drive, Helping Hands, Graduation set-up, student hall of fame... These are just a few of the things that Berea's Student Council organizes, sponsors, or assists with throughout a school year.

Eef Fontanez, club sponsor and guidance counselor, said, "I like seeing the students making decisions and impacting their school." And impact their school, they do. Leadership at Berea is not a choice, it is an expectation.

The student council president is J.D. Lovell. J.D. Lovell, a high school junior, is an honor student, member of the high school band, pep club and drama club. So far this year, J.D. has helped to plan and budget this year's homecoming as well as organize the food drive.

"J.D. has done a wonderful job running the Student Council," said Mr. Fontanez.

Samuel McFarland, another junior at Berea, also has an important role on Student Council as secretary. "I really like participating in the food drive because it is a competition," McFarland said.

Other student council officers include junior Claire Hogg- Vice President, junior Greg Schloemer-Treasurer, junior Emma White-Parliamentarian, and junior Hunter West-Chief of Staff. Members make decisions that affect our school like deciding on homecoming and prom themes, conducting community service projects, suggesting school improvements, speaking at programs, and whatever else is needed.

"The club gives students a chance to have an impact on their school," Fontanez beamed. On student council, students are given the chance to vote on important school issues involving them in the school and improving their decision-making skills. This gives high school students the ability to positively impact their school.

The officers are just a few of the many hard working student council members. There are many other students who play big and small roles on the council, making Berea Community a better place.

Day of Hope

MAKI AVILLA
PIRATE Staff Reporter

Giving back is what this time of year is about. That is the mission of the Berea Men's Ministry, as they give families in poverty everything they wanted on a Thanksgiving Day. They give these families all they need: turkey, clothes, household supplies, etc. There are many charities like this one, however seeing one right in your hometown is inspiring, especially since Christmas is right around the corner. The volunteers that work hard during this event leave with a sense of happiness at the end of the day.

The Day of Hope is a celebration of helping families throughout the holiday season (Thanksgiving). The celebration is implemented by the Berea Men's Ministry as they started the Day of Hope several years ago. The Day of Hope is celebrated on the Saturday before Thanksgiving (Nov.

Preschool Literacy Night

Ms. Eiselt reads to a group of Preschoolers and their parents on Nov. 20 at Preschool Literacy Night.

GRACE BEAVIN
PIRATE Staff Reporter

Childhood literacy is one of the most important educational tools a person can foster. The task of ensuring that a child begins school with the best chance possible usually falls those adults with whom a child lives or spends time. The Berea Community Preschool's Literacy Night on November 20 was an opportunity to expose parents to strategies that improve literacy, as well as showcase the good work that the preschool students are doing. Two literacy nights were held in order to accommodate both the morning and afternoon sections.

During the actual event students and parents participated in a "letter scavenger hunt" using telescopes that students had made earlier in the week. Families were given a clipboard and went around the school hunting for letters, and checking them off as they were found. The telescopes were made out of toilet paper rolls, a clever idea that proved how easy learning can be: "We [Ms. Zastrow and Ms. Beaver] wanted to impress upon families that learning doesn't require purchasing special equipment, and that you can use everyday materials found in everyone's home." Over 50% of students attended, despite illness, and at the end of the night Ms. Zastrow and Ms. Beaver made sure that each child went home with a new book. They also provided information as to the benefits of early childhood reading, and ways the books can be tied to core developmental issues such as math, science, and social skills.

According to Ms. Zastrow, Berea Community's Preschool is planning two more events like literacy night this year, "one focused on math, and the other science." Hopefully these events will bring new ideas to families' relationships to math, science, and social skills, as this most recent literacy night had on reading.

Join us for the production of The Man Who Came to Dinner on Dec. 11, 12, 13.

Hours by the Lamplight

RHIANNON CONNOR
PIRATE Managing Editor

Every teenager knows who "those students" are at their high school. You know, the ones who get multiple scholarships with seemingly little effort or who get accepted into summer programs—like Governor Scholars and Commonwealth Honor Academy—simply because they're already at the top. But what few of these onlookers choose to acknowledge is the incredible dedication and countless hours "those students" pour into their applications.

"Those students" devote endless time and effort into an application without any guarantee of acceptance to the program. They spend those hours because their application is a representation of who they are. An administrator reviewing applications and determining who gets invited to the program doesn't see the students whose qualifications they're scrutinizing face-to-face—unless there's an interview process, which isn't uncommon. Those reviewing applications and deciding who gets accepted and who doesn't only have typed words on the paper in front of them. The ability of a student to recognize the importance of effectively advocating for him or herself, regardless of acceptance, often leads to the applications that attract the most attention, and earn a student a spot in the program. Students who acknowledge this persevere by continuing to apply to programs despite past rejection.

Ultimately, staying motivated to spend hours upon hours a week on an application hinges on one concept: deferred versus immediate gratification. Those who recognize their payoff, acceptance to prestigious programs, when and if that happens, continue tirelessly working on applications despite receiving no immediate gratification. The application process can span the course of many months. During this time, one's optimism towards acceptance might gradually decline. By understanding deferred gratification and using it to their advantage to stay motivated, any high school student, 4.0/Honors/AP type or not, can drastically improve the quality of their application. Junior Grace Beavin, who attended Commonwealth Honors Academy this past summer, exemplified this notion: "I think in some ways, immediate gratification is overrated. The older you get, the less immediate gratification comes your way. And applications are just another example of that."

Whether you're a student or the parent of a student that is will be embarking on the journey that is applying to competitive academic programs, the most important aspect to remember is that acceptance is the payoff of the tedious process. Regardless of if you get accepted or not, applying is an equally significant component of evolving as a person as the program itself.

Cheerleaders compete in Region competition

EMMA WILLIAMS
PIRATE Senior Editor

Berea Varsity Competition Team competed in the 11th Region competition at Bryan Station High School on Sunday, November 23.

Being such a small school, Berea Cheer does not have a large student body to draw from as some of the others in region 11. The team competed in the medium division against five other teams from schools as large as Madison Central and Scott County High School, and placed fifth out of six.

Middle School Drama Club performs Encounter at Heavenly Gulch

HUMBERTO CORREA
PIRATE Staff Reporter

Berea Community's Middle School drama department recently performed the play, Encounter at Heavenly Gulch on Nov. 21. This play was cute and very charming, and enjoyable for ages old and young.

Emy Lovell, student director for the play, greatly influenced the production of the play and delivered a great end result. She felt very pleased and stated that her favorite part of producing the play was, "Having fun with the cast and the laughs."

The play is about a ragtag group of individuals traveling by bus and end up stranded in the middle of the Arizona desert. After walking for miles, they come across the small town of Heavenly Gulch, where Mabel, the owner of the local hotel, her son Albert, Sheriff Tidbits and local resident Cyrus offer them refuge from the harsh desert sands until a rescue party can arrive. The play is sprinkled with humorous characters

The team did not do as well as they hoped but all of the team members had a positive attitude when they heard the results.

"It's all about making memories because years from now were not going to remember what we placed," said senior McKenzie Calhoun.

Coach Suzy Edmister was very proud of how the team did, and was not worried about their place overall.

You can watch the Berea Varsity Competition Team in their next competition, on February 17.

and an outlaw who turns the play into a mystery. Thanks to the wisdom of Mabel and Albert, some good sleuthing by Sheriff Tidbits and a wild chase ending in the old outhouse, the group is finally rescued and learns the true nature of this little ghost town in the desert. During their short visit, the passengers in this gentle comedy find their way, not just home, but in life as well (Pioneer Drama Service).

One character that received a lot of praise is Caleb Radar. His character's outbursts were very humorous, and really brought entertainment and laughs throughout the play. Another character who had a great performance was Emily Nigro. Emily said the most difficult part about the play was, "Having it flow and making the lines convincing."

In conclusion this was a very fun and charming production, in which performers and directors did a great job in delivering. Next, they will be performing Legally Blonde next spring. Don't miss their next production; come out and support these young and talented actors.

INTERSTELLAR: "Not your average Sci-Fi movie"

CAMERON COYLE
PIRATE Staff Reporter

Brilliant and unconventional directing makes Interstellar one of the most ambitious movies I've ever seen.

Interstellar is Christopher Nolan's latest film starring Matthew McConaughey, Anne Hathaway, Michael Caine, Jessica Chastain, and Casey Affleck. The movie is set during the future and takes place on a dying earth. Only twenty percent of the atmosphere is breathable and the only food people can grow anymore is corn. Cooper (McConaughey), a former pilot, is called upon by NASA to work with multiple other astronauts so he can lead a mission into space through a black hole to look for a new planet mankind can live on. Cooper, feeling that he has no other choice, leaves his daughter, son, and father-in-law behind on their farm as he accepts the mission.

Interstellar isn't your average "end of the world" sci-fi movie, though. It's a very deep film that has a lot to say about life, love, and what it even means to exist, but sometimes it doesn't know how to say it. It's definitely going to divide its audience. Like I said earlier, Nolan has given us something ridiculously ambitious, and some decisions the film makes will either work for you or they won't, there really isn't an in between. It's that simple. Before I get into what didn't work for me, let's focus on what the film got right.

The special effects and cinematography leave nothing to be desired. Interstellar is an absolutely beautiful movie to look at. The shots in space are jaw-dropping, and I was literally in awe at some points (the standout for me being when the crew travels through the black hole).

Interstellar also has a strong family aspect to it, making this Christopher Nolan's most emotional movie to date. The scenes between Cooper and his daughter, Murph, are powerful and even sometimes heartbreaking. These moments make you feel for Cooper and McConaughey does a great job of showing us that his decision to leave earth was his way of putting his family first. Saying that I was emotionally invested in Cooper would be a tremendous understatement.

Sadly, Interstellar has its flaws. First, the film does have pacing issues. Sometimes events just seem kind of strung together instead of being well thought out with smooth transitions. This sometimes makes scenes that should hit home with you just feel off, and that really sucks. Another Team Jayson: "We take care of our own"

KATIE OKUMU
PIRATE Managing Editor

We take care of our own. That is the message that has been spreading through the halls of Berea Community as of late. On November 7, 2014, BCHS football player Jayson Smith was critically injured during a playoff game. After taking two brutal hits on the field (one an illegal block to the back), the junior began exhibiting weakness to his left side, and his speech became slurred. He was quickly airlifted to the University of Kentucky Children's Hospital, where he was later diagnosed with Second Impact Syndrome (SIS or a double concussion), and through it a Mild Traumatic Brain Injury (TBI).

Second Impact is a syndrome that affects high school and college aged football players. While regular concussions have symptoms that usually disappear within 48 hours, Jayson's case was much more severe. SIS occurs in a young person who receives two concussions close together. Because the brain is not given time to heal, the damage with the second concussion is amplified. These concussions in turn cause a Traumatic Brain Injury, in which the negative physical and neurological effects can last for an undetermined length of time. The mortality rate for those who undergo SIS is a startling 90%.

Jayson by some miracle of grace, science, or assuredly a combination of the two, was a rare member of the 10%. Jayson is a survivor.

Upcoming ACT date: Saturday Dec. 13

Apology

In the last issue of The Pirate, there was incorrect information given about the Berea Cross Country team. The correct information is that Bailey Rosenbarker finished second in regionals and Sofia Saderholm finished third. Despite the fact that the piece was reviewed by myself and two editors, it escaped our attention. We regret the error.

He spends his days of recovery surrounded by his loving family. Jayson is the son of Jeanette Smith and Greg Adkins, the brother of Surya Smith, and the biological son of Kurt Smith. The support they have built up around Jayson is incredible to witness. The community on Facebook coined "Team Jayson" has amassed nearly 600 likes. The goal of the page is to encourage support for Jayson, as well as educate the community about Traumatic Brain Injuries and SIS.

One of the most touching posts on the "Team Jayson" Facebook community was as follows:

"My least favorite Bible verse is 'Be still, and know that I am God.' Waiting is hard. Being still is hard. Waiting for Jayson's headache to go away, waiting for him to take a full stride, speak and laugh at full volume, stop stuttering, be hungry, know what time it is, be ready to start rehab, remember things. All of it is so hard. God is teaching me patience. I have much to learn."

It is not surprising that the amount of condolences and prayers for Jayson and his family are great in number. The great care and support for Jayson's well-being is incredibly present in BCHS, as both students and faculty have voiced their support for Jayson's recovery. Eef Fontanez, Donna Lovell, Coach Coleman, and Jayson's football comrades have all visited Smith throughout his recovery.

Mr. Coleman, Jayson's coach has organized ways for his students to send supportive messages to Jayson. "We are all glad that he's back at home," Coleman spoke of his student and player. "Hopefully he'll be back with us soon."

BCHS Junior Greg Schloemer, one of Jayson's closest friends, is also a frequent visitor. Greg remarked in somewhat awe, "People have really been unified by their care for Jayson. He has friends in every grade, and group across the school."

Jayson's struggle with SIS and TSI is inspiring, and hard for those who have not gone through the battle alongside his family to fully comprehend. His is a lesson that current players if the sport, and even those of us who are somewhat less athletically inclined, can learn from. It is a painful reminder of the negative effects high-contact sports have on the younger generation of passionate players. TSI's in sports are most commonly attributed to not listening to what your body is telling you. If you have intense pain of any kind, get off the field. If you find yourself in a situation where you have to choose between your health, and having a good play, make the right choice for yourself, and your family.

Jayson's battle with SIS has touched countless people. The continuing support from his friends, school, and local community through prayer and donations is what really allows Jayson's story to impact others.

If you wish to contribute to Jayson's TBI recovery process please visit the following address on gofundme.com:

22nd). The Berea Men's Ministry also created a website for the special event. The group also reaches out to the Family Resource/Youth Services Centers in order to target those who are really in need.

Mrs. Diane Smith, Family Resource and Youth Services Director, knows the importance of hope for families. "It is amazing what this group does for families," Smith said about Beea Men's Ministry. She is one of the many volunteers who help out with the Day of Hope event.

The year's event included church worship teams that performed at the event. Also, the event featured a delicious buffet meal, making balloon animals, and having face paint for all the children to enjoy.

All-in-all, the Day of Hope is a celebration for the families that are in need to enjoy Thanksgiving with their family by giving out food, and fittingly leads into the next holiday that has always celebrated hope: Christmas.

It's the most wonderful time of the year- FINALS

PIRATE Lead Photographer

Finals week is approaching and the students of Berea Community School are hitting the books in preparation of this stressful week. Finals will take place Dec 17-19.

The way that the Berea finals week is structured allows for two finals a day over a three day span. This set-up is similar to the kind that students will go through in college and help them to become accustomed to the format they will be experiencing in the future.

Eef Fontanez commented, "Our finals week allows for two finals a day, and a reminder that the finals are worth 10 percent of our students' final grades so this can really help the students with their grades if they are successful."

Members of Girl Scout Troop #78 addressed city council Tuesday evening about their plan to pass out garbage bags to observers of the Christmas parade, and then asking them to pick up trash.

Burnside expressed concern about the affordability piece, in terms of what Spectrum estimates Berea residents could handle.

"Berea residents didn't quite meet the norm," Burnside said, referring to what houses could be sold for in Berea and how much residents could handle in terms of a monthly expense.

Council member Chad Hembree agreed, stating that the median income of Berea was $10,000 less than the state median.

"As a marketing tool, these numbers aren't very favorable," Hembree said.

Spectrum had listed a scenario where Bereans could handle paying an $80,000 entrance fee along with a $1,500 monthly payment.

Connelly reminded council members that the document wasn't a design plan, or construction of a particular program, and interested developers would have to do much more analysis themselves.

"This is an attempt to gather data of our community, with certain assumptions and certain baselines," Connelly said. "We may not have the golf course, or the game rooms."

City Administrator Randy Stone said, "This is a marketing tool. What we have to do is put this out now, we have to find someone who is willing to come in here and make an investment in the city based on the information that we have received."

Bob Shaffer was present at the meeting, and representing the group of people who would like a retirement community in Berea. He told the city council members that if such a community was built, they would be credited for bringing it in because of their authorization of the Spectrum report.

City council members agreed that they needed to look for different organizations and groups interested in retirement communities, and show them the Spectrum report.

Girl Scouts from Troop #78 addressed city council members about their desire to work on getting trash picked-up after the Christmas parade. This project would help the troop win their bronze award.

One of the girl scouts informed council that they would be passing out bags at the Christmas parade to observers, and would encourage them to pick up at least two pieces of trash.

Connelly asked the troop members if they would recommend that floats not throw out candy. A few of the troop members quickly said, "No!" but one of the girls said she thought the throwing of candy did encourage littering. Connelly suggested that someone could walk by the floats and hand out candy.

"You should hand it, not throw it, but you need to give candy from your float," one girl scout said firmly at the end of their presentation.

Finance Director Susan Meeks made a presentation on internal controls for city council during their work session. She gave different scenarios of possible embezzlement and mismanagement of money, and then explained what internal controls protected that from happening. Council member Ronnie Terrill and Jerry Little had several questions regarding the arts accelerator program, and what internal controls were in place for that program.

Meeks explained that the sales booklets were used for sales, and each numbered sales slip had to be accounted for, so they could reconcile that to the deposit daily. Inventory was also kept for all the art in the 123 Gallery.

Little brought up the business licenses or net profit statement that are now being required for all people working in Berea. He expressed concern that tax statements were being requested, since they contained confidential information. Meeks stated that only one person in the office looked over those, and they were destroyed after three years in storage.

There was discussion of creating a confidentiality agreement that staff would sign.

Little requested that their attorney prepare a report on how voting would be handled in Berea if the town was split into precincts or wards.

In other business:

- Five different bids were received for the painting of the Chestnut Street water storage tank. The bids ranged from $143,000 to $351,000
- Council members agreed to purchase a page in the Madison County Pictorial History book.
- The City of Berea is considering using LED lights on Hwy 25 in the redesign. They are first going to try them out from Estill to Ellipse.
- Christmas decorations are aging, so there should be money put in the budget for next year to purchase new ones.
- The transition of 4kW to 12kW in Dixie Park has been completed.
- Leaves will be picked up until Dec. 23.

Hospice Hosts Remembrance Tree Ceremony This Sunday

Hospice Care Plus is once again giving people in the community the opportunity to remember during the holiday season their loved ones who have passed on.

The annual Remembrance Tree ceremony will take place this coming Sunday, December 7, at the Richmond Mall at 2 p.m. The event, a long-standing tradition for Hospice and the community, gives people the chance to hang personalized memorial ornaments on a Christmas tree during the Sunday afternoon ceremony. After an opening prayer and holiday music, the memorial list of names is read.

"The Remembrance Tree is primarily a memorial service, and one that comes at a time of year when many of us feel the need to make a space for those we've lost," Gail McGillis, the CEO of Hospice Care Plus, said. "It has really taken hold in our community, with hundreds coming each year to remember."

Participants place their personalized ornament on a Remembrance Tree when they hear their loved one's name. If no one is present to place the ornament on the tree, a hospice staff member will do it.

The Remembrance Tree will remain on display at the mall throughout the holiday season. People who

"What's the most amazing weather you have experienced?"

Alick Green said, "Snow, because I'm from Jamaica and it was all sunshine or rainy there. So my first time experiencing snow was really amazing. It looked really white and pure."

Irene Morrison said, "When I was in the Navy I was assigned to a ship in Norfolk, Virginia. The ship, called the Shenandoah, was a destroyer tender. A hurricane came up and all the ships were ordered out to sea because they were less likely to sustain damage there. You could hear the stern lift out of the water and smack back down in the wind and the high seas."

Josh Guthman, with his son, August Bruder, said, "My mind flashes to this moment where I'm standing between bright sunlight and this incredible reef of dark stormy clouds over the Chicago skyline. It was like the sky was split in half between blue and black."

East Ridge Community Beautifies Berea

By Meg Wilson
Special to the Citizen

Berea became even more beautiful on the Saturday before Thanksgiving, as community members and members of the East Ridge Community Garden planted 25 fruit trees and hundreds of daffodil bulbs in Berea's newest community garden, which is located on Estill Street.

The tree-planting and soup bean party featured a picnic including cornbread, cookies, sweet tea and black bean soup made with beans harvested from the garden's communal pumpkin and black bean patch.

The air was autumn crisp, but not winter cold as a couple dozen people gathered together to plant, talk, and eat. Katie Startz-man, the community garden organizer, cooked the soup beans for the planting party's participants. She noted that the members of the East Ridge Community Garden had harvested 15 pounds of dried beans from their communal patch that year.

After eating soup beans and munching chocolate chip cookies, a couple doz-

Mullins Receives Wee Miss Renfro Valley Crown

Reagan Alexis Mullins, the daughter of Jeffery and Chrystah Mullins of Berea, was crowned Wee Miss Renfro Valley on October 25, 2014.

Reagan’s maternal grandparents are Tracy and Carol Short Dollins of Berea, and her paternal grandparents are Ricky and Sharon Mullins of Mt. Vernon.

Reagan loves Minnie Mouse, Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles, and going to Fitness, Friends and Fun.

White Station Homemakers Plan Holiday Season

White Station Homemakers held their November meeting at Middletown Baptist Church to plan for the Christmas season. Diane Lewendowski and Betty Eberle provided a delicious luncheon that included one of Diane’s delicious soups. It fed 19 members and one guest.

Joanne White, president, called the meeting to order with the “Thought of the Day”. Roll call was answered by saying “what I am thankful for”. Becky Knauer read the reading for the day. Jean Morgan read the minutes and they were accepted with a correction. The treasurer’s report was given.

Becky Knauer read a health reading on the “OOPS Disease”.

Attention was then given to our Christmas project, which is providing clothing for needy children from this area. It was agreed to pick from the Angel Tree to make four children, two boys and two girls. Betty Schiederman reported that the shopping for one child was complete. Several others volunteered to finish the shopping at Kohls with coupons and bonus dollars.

On December 9, a bus will take the members to Frankfort to tour the Governor’s Mansion. The itinerary will be the bus leave-ing at 9:30 a.m. from the church, a lunch and tour at 1:30 p.m., and return around 4 p.m.

On December 10 at 12 p.m. there will be a Christmas Potluck Party at the church. A $10 gift exchange will be held. Members should bring food for the food bank and wrapping paper for gift wrapping.

We were given a reminder stated to get the Care bears into the office by December 2.

A Quiz on Vitamins was taken by the members. A general discussion on vitamins was held.

Allums to Speak at Mid-Year Graduation

Vicki E. Allums, a 1979 graduate, will address 65 Berea College seniors for Mid-Year Graduates on Sunday, December 7. The event, scheduled for 3 p.m., will be held in Phelps Stokes Chapel. The Mid-Year Ceremony recognizes students who are expected to complete degree requirements at the end of January 2015

The service is open to the public and will be streamed live at: <https://new.livestream.com/accounts/5135608/Bereamidyearserservice>.

Allums is associate general counsel for intellectual property at the Defense Information Systems Agency, a component agency of the U.S. Department of Defense. She is a senior attorney with legal and policy experience in the government and non-profit sectors. Her areas of practice include domestic and international intellectual property, international trade, technology, e-commerce, information security and cyber law.

As a frequent speaker at conferences around the world, Allums has represented the United States in bilateral and multilateral trade negotiations and at conferences and training programs in Asia, Europe, Africa and the Middle East. She provides legal advice on intellectual property matters to the Defense Technical Information Center.

Allums recently completed an 8-year term as an alumni trustee on the Berea College Board of Trustees. Currently she is a member of IU SPEA’s Distinguished Alumni Council and the Alumni Advisory Board for the Washington Center for Internships and Academic Seminars (TWC), where she participated in an academic seminar on foreign policy in Washington, D.C., as a Berea College student.

Southern Madison Water Receives Bucket Award

The Southern Madison Water District was honored this past August by the Kentucky Rural Water Association, when they were recognized as one of ten finalists for the Wooden Bucket Award. This award is presented to a water and/or wastewater utility that has made lasting and substantial improvements in quality of water and high levels of customer service. From left to right are the employees at Southern Madison; in the first row are Celia Cotton, Gary Riley and Vicki Flannery; in the back row are Steven Waddles, Dale Miller, Steve Parker, Terri Robinson and Tommy Bussell.

From August 18 - 20, representatives of Kentucky's public drinking water and wastewater utilities gathered for Kentucky Rural Water Association's (KRWA) 35th Annual Conference and Exhibition held in Louisville. Each year, ten water and wastewater utilities are announced during Tuesday morning's Member Appreciation Breakfast as Wooden Bucket finalists and honored for their outstanding service during the past year. Tom Fern, state director, and Vernon Brown, community programs director, USDA-rural development, were on hand to present all of the honorees with plaques of recognition. Southern Madison Water District was among ten utilities honored.

The Wooden Burcket Award is presented to a water and/or wastewater utility that has made substantial and lasting improvements in providing high levels of customer service and high quality drinking water and wastewater services in its community, including having shown exceptional efforts in meeting the needs of their communities, enhancing their operations, and complying with regulatory requirements. Being recognized as one of the ten finalists is indeed an honor.

Berea College – Greenest, Most Affordable Choice

Berea College continues to turn the blue-grass state "green" and is getting national accolades for doing so. In rankings focused on 50 of America's "greenest" and most-affordable universities released by Best Choice Schools, Berea College was ranked Number One.

The "50 Great Affordable Eco-Friendly Colleges" cited in the article are recognized leaders in energy conservation and sustainability, and all charge tuition fees less than $25,000 per year. Students at Berea pay no tuition; the College promises to cover those expenses for every admitted student.

Sources cited in the article indicate "moderate" tuition fees for full-time degree programs in the U.S. currently amount to $22,826 per year. Berea College made the top spot for being the most affordable environmentally-friendly school since tuition expenses are covered and students are responsible for just the cost of room, board and books, which runs only $6,000. The most expensive school cited was Oregon State University in Corvallis, Oregon, which averages $23,991.

Reese Brady, editor of Best Choice Schools says, "More than 300 environmentally-conscious schools were considered for the article, but only the [50] most affordable colleges and universities made the final grade." The Best Choice Schools educational website helps individuals find degree programs with great reputations and value for the money.

According to the National Resources Defense Council, the greening of America's campuses has become a national obsession, and the trend makes good business sense. Initiatives on college campuses to conserve water and paper, reduce energy consumption and recycle waste are helping schools cut operating costs and encourage healthier communities. The 50 schools chosen for the article have all been formally recognized for superior levels of sustainability and commitment to the green movement. Besides Berea College, only one other Kentucky school was included. The University of Louisville was ranked 38. A list of the "50 Great Affordable Eco-Friendly Colleges" is available now on BestChoiceSchools.com at this URL: <http://www.bestchoiceschools.com/50-great-affordable-eco-friendly-colleges/>.

en people gathered around with shovels and gloves, as Richard Olson of Sustainable Berea explained the best techniques for planting and mulching the trees so they would thrive. Each tree had a site that had already been prepped for digging.

"Planting a tree is a 30 year decision," Olson said, "if you do it right you benefit for a long time. We've selected varieties of trees that will do well here, are disease resistant and don't take a lot of care."

The trees included a mix of mulberries, jujube, pawpaws, and sour cherries. Edd Easton-Hogg and his two children, Tyler and newborn Wren, planted a cherry tree.

Edd Easton-Hogg and his two children, Tyler and newborn Wren, planted a cherry tree.

"My grandpa helped plant the giant Christmas tree in front of Boone Tavern," Edd said, "It will be awesome to come visit this tree when I'm old."

"And pick some fruit," added Michael Startzman.

The trees were donated to the East Ridge Community Garden by the Berea College Community Sustainability Laboratory, and their planting is a big step forward towards the goals of the Community Garden.

Katie Startzman explained, "We want this to be a gathering place, make the neighborhood more beautiful, and grow more of our own food. We are hoping to share more meals with the neighborhood, and have more community events. Some of our plans for 2015 include adding more members, building more beds and picnic tables, and developing more perennial plantings like these trees, plus flowers, herbs and berry bushes."

She encircled the fruit tree she was planting with daffodil bulbs and covered them with soil. "Planting flower bulbs is a hopeful act," she said. "No matter how it feels now, spring will come."

FROM THE BEREA CITIZEN ARCHIVES DECEMBER 1954

The above photo of the Boone Tavern Hotel appeared in the Citizen in December 1954, to show the new pillared Main Street entrance to the left that was being constructed as part of their $450,000 renovation.

Boone Tavern Hotel was undergoing a $450,000 modernization program in December 1954; it was scheduled to be completed in May 1955.

The renovation included construction of 14 new rooms, an enlarged dining room, an additional entrance from Main Street, and a new kitchen. It gave the hotel a total of 75 rooms. An entrance from Short Street was also being constructed, so the hotel would have three total with the Prospect Street entrance. Around $80,000 of new furnishings were to be added by Woodcraft on the college campus.

Merchants in Berea arranged to have their stores

Students who made all A's at Berea High for the second six weeks were Bill Broadus, Betty Wilson, Kay Baker, David Singleton, Phil Ed Hammond and Patty Howard. Students who had GPA's from 2.5 to 3 were Shannon Bentley, Stanley Carmack, Julian Higgins, Judy Neuber, Frances Andrews, Joe Azbill, Don Lake, Joyce Lamon, Maurice Walker, Micha Belden, Don Croutcher, Fay Neeley, and Sandra Way. Students who had 2 to 2.5 GPA's were Keith Abrans, Yvonne Click, Tommy Lovern, Peggy McCollum, Delbert Prewitt, Judy Botner, Helen Gill, Betty Lou Lake, Don Mills, Pat Porter, Louise Todd, Norma Anderkin, David Cart, Steve Johnson, James Miracle, Irene Lamb, Charla Marcum, Roger Ol-

Berea Girl Scout committee members and troop leaders met at the home of Mrs. Ray Drukker in December 1954. Attenders were Gladys Wagers, Ruth Washburn, Mrs. Roscoe Giffin, Mrs. Richard Houghton, Mrs. Gordon Ross, Mrs. L. D. Bibbee, Mrs. Charles Fortune, Mrs. Robert Boggs, Mrs. Jerry Hughes, Mrs. Wilson Evans, Mrs. Paul Hadley, Mrs. Leon Sanborne, and Mrs. Litten Singleton.

The Key Club was organized at the Berea High School in 1954, under the guidance of Kiwanians. Bill D. Harrell was named sponsor for the chapter. Francis Boggs, Bill Broadus, Stanley Carmack, Julian Higgins, Charles T. Young, Dorse LeMaster, Maurice Walker, Mike Belden, Don Croutcher, Phil Ed Hammond, Steve Johnson, James Miracle and Johnny Stivers were the thirteen charter members of the teenage club.

Member of the Berea Kiwanis Key Club Committee were Pat Wear, Earl Stivers, Charles Reesor, Carlyle Moody, Lester Cass, Marion Oliver, Roy Walters, and Larry Bibbee. The activities of the Key Club were to include planning an active service program, an appreciation banquet for parents, and a model chapel program at school.

The West Union Homemakers Club met on December 10 with Mrs. Dave Parsons on Hanson Street. for their Christmas party. Mrs. Sheridan Bowman was the president of the group, and the Christmas program was presented by Mrs. Florence Swope.

The Christian Women's Fellowship organized the worship service at Berea Christian Church for "Woman's Day." Mrs. Estill Warford opened the service, and Mrs. Carl McCray presided for the remainder. The responsive reading was led by Mrs. Peggy Hawkins and Mrs. Stanley Powell gave the morning prayer. The Communion Service was conducted by Mrs. E. A. Bender and Mrs. W. B. Jones. They were assisted by Mesdames Jack Engle, Cecil McKinney, George Moore, Jr., J. J. Scott, Hugh Hahn and Hollis Sheats. Mrs. Hope Cox and Mrs. Lester Cass were ushers.

Christmas Time's a Comin'

Bereans enjoyed the 29th Twilight Christmas Parade last Saturday, which had better weather than many feared.

Several organizations and groups created floats for the parade, and girl scouts were seen passing out bags to observers so they could pick up at least two pieces of trash. Teresa Scenters, publisher of the Citizen, was the grand marshal this year.

Spotlight Acting School was first place for the business float, while Rite Aide won second; the Berea library once again grabbed the first place for nonprofits, while Hospice Care Plus won second. Pilot Knob Baptist Church won first place for the church float, and Lighthouse Baptist Youth Group won second. NACCO won first place for industry float.

Public Works Committee Reviews Sites with Possible Water Violations

By Beth Myers
Citizen Editor

Several different city road and drainage projects were discussed at the public works committee on Tuesday, including two problem areas regarding water quality in Berea that will be discussed with personnel at Kentucky Division of Water.

Dwayne Brumley from public works department and Paul Schrader from the GIS department brought up concerns both with Spring Circle Drive and Alexander Junk Yard off of Slate Lick Road. Brumley intended to take a streets department crew to clean out the drain on North Dogwood next to

County Considers Drug Testing for All Employees

By Beth Myers
Citizen Editor

A drug policy that would require random testing for county employees was discussed at the Madison County Fiscal Court meeting on Tuesday, partly in response to the increasing drug crisis in the county.

Judge Executive Kent Clark suggested that the Madison County Magistrates start the discussion, and the members of next year's fiscal court could continue working through the topic. Of the five current members of fiscal court, only two of them will be returning in January. Reagan Taylor will be replacing Clark as judge executive, and Tom Botkin and John C. Tudor will be replacing Billy Ray Hughes and Greg King, who did not run for reelection.

"I'd like to kick this off and get it started," Clark said, who pointed out that the newly elected fiscal court members were in the audience.

County Treasurer Glena Baker reviewed a drug policy that Lincoln County had just approved for their employees. KACO (Kentucky Association of Counties) suggested that they consider Lincoln's new policy when discus-

Madison County Pictorial Book Committee Accepting Photos, Orders

Time is running out for county residents to include their personal photographs in the upcoming Madison County Pictorial History Book. The deadline to submit your materials for the book is December 15, 2014 — there is no charge to have your pictures included in this historic book.

The Madison County Pictorial Book Committee reports that over 600 photographs have been submitted so far for the book. The photos capture all areas of community life from the late 1800s through today, from all points across the county.

Brochures with detailed information about the project are available at Hospice Care Plus in both Berea and Richmond, and scanning services are available; all photos will be professionally scanned and returned to their owners.

The hardbound, 8.5 x 11-inch library quality book will be published by Acclaim Press, a company which has published hundreds of county pictorial history books nationwide. Books may be ordered for $39.95 each, and book sales will benefit Hospice Care Plus of Richmond and Berea. All materials, photos and orders should be sent to the Madison County Pictorial History Book c/o Hospice Care Plus at 208 Kidd Drive, Berea, KY 40403.

Jim Wallace

Jim Wallace, 80, of Berea, passed away at 7:11 p.m. on December 3, 2014 at the Hospice Compassionate Care Center in Richmond, surrounded by family and friends. He was a retired superintendent of the Berea Community School System, and a retired nursing home administrator.

Jim was a member of Westside Baptist Church, Kentucky Retired Teachers Association, and the Masonic Lodge. Throughout his life, Jim was known for his kindness and compassion to others, his strength, and foremost his love of God.

For many years, his family and friends were blessed to experience life alongside him, to sing with him, to love with him, and to praise God beside him. He will be deeply and profoundly missed.

Jim is survived by his wife of 60 years, Jane Peace Wallace; two sons, David (Donyah) Wallace and Jon (Charlotte) Wallace; his sister, Betty (Don) Walker; four grandchildren, Nik Wallace, Jessica Cooper, Amanda Wallace and Kathryn Wallace; one great grandchild, Ella Cooper; nieces, Pam Walker and Robin (Ted) Norris; as well as many beloved and special members of the extended families.

He is preceded in death by his parents, Earnest and Lucille Rich Wallace, as well as his cousin, Bob Wallace.

Funeral Service were at 1 p.m. on Saturday, Dec. 6, 2014 at Westside Baptist Church with Pastor Allen Livingood officiating. In lieu of flowers, memorial contributions are suggested to Hospice Care Plus or Westside Baptist Church.

Reppert Funeral Home entrusted with arrangements.

Rev. Kale Parks Conner

Rev. Kale Parks Conner, 95, of Berea, passed away on Monday, December 8, 2014 at the Berea Health Care Center. He was born in Madison County to the late Garley and Sallie Curry Conner.

Kale was a member of Midletown Baptist Church and a WWII U.S. Army veteran. He was a skilled wood craftsman, and Southern Baptist minister.

Kale worked for several years with the Baptist State Mission Board of Kentucky doing mountain mission work in Eastern Kentucky.

He is survived by his loving wife of 70 years, Beth H. Conner; his two daughters, Peggy (Rev. Bill) Woods of Berea and Sarah (Earl) Botkin of Smithfield, N.C.; one sister, Macie Eades of Richmond; four brothers, Leo, William "Bill", Garley "Slick" Conner of Richmond, and Raymond Conner of Walton; three grandchildren, Matthew (Britta) Woods, Mark (Sarah) Woods of Berea, and Valerie Botkin of S.C.; and eight great grandchildren, Trevor, Hailey, Emily, Ethan, Eli and Evan Woods of Berea, and Trey and Cole Stewart of S.C..

In addition to his parents, he was also preceded in death by a sister, Mary Elizabeth Wall, and two brothers, Ernest and Joe Conner.

Funeral services will be at 11 a.m. on Saturday, December 13, 2014 at Lakes Funeral Home in Berea with Rev. Kenny Davis officiating. Burial will follow in the Berea Cemetery.

Visitation will be Friday evening from 6 - 9 p.m. at the funeral home. In lieu of flowers, donations may be to Clear Creek Baptist Bible College, 300 Clear Creek Rd., Pineville, KY 40977.

Robert "Cowboy" Dickerson

Robert "Cowboy" Craig Dickerson, 56, of Berea, passed away suddenly and went to be with the Lord on Saturday, December 6, 2014 in New Hampshire. Robert had a philosophy in his life to work hard and play hard. He was a major fan of NASCAR, enjoyed playing pool, and ultimately loved being around those who loved him most, especially his grandchildren. They were his pride and joy.

Robert was preceded in death by his mother, Linda Edwards, and his favorite uncle, Charles Dickerson.

Robert is survived by the love of his life, Cynthia Lynn Fetty; his father, Robert L. Dickerson; his brother, Michael Dickerson, and his wife, Barbara Dickerson; his sister, Alisa Duncan, and her husband, Scott Duncan; as well as several nieces and nephews.

He was also survived by children, Vickie and Troy Chastine, Michael and Tara McMillin, Amy and Jeff Harmon, Kristine and Ryan Griffin, Michael and Sydney Fetty, Forest Fetty, Jr., and Victoria Fetty; his grandchildren, Brenden Dickerson, Tyler, Sean and William Culpepper, and Sondra Mills, Hannah, Naomi, Isaac and Rebekah McMillin, Austin, Danielle and Payne Harmon, Landon and Logan Griffin, Grayson Brumfield and Holden Wiseman, and Braydon Fetty; and several great grandchildren as well.

Robert will be missed terribly by those who knew and loved him.

Services will be held at Lakes Funeral Home in Berea. Family and friends may visit and send condolences from 6 - 8 p.m. on Friday, December 12, 2014. Funeral services will be held on Saturday at 2 p.m. with Pastor Greg Humpert officiating. Services will be followed by burial at Berea Cemetery in Berea.

Orville F. Boes

Orville F. Boes of Berea died on Saturday, Dec. 6, 2014. He was born in Louisville, and was a decorated WW II veteran of the US Army Air Corps.

Professor Boes was a graduate of Louisville Male High School, Georgetown College, and the University of Kentucky. He taught at Berea College for 40 years.

In 1965, he was appointed by the US Dept. for International Aid to establish a department of business at Nyatsime College, near Salisbury Rhodesia.

In 1971 he was one of 35 college professors selected by the AACTE to help the Job Corps improve their teaching methods, and in 1982 he received the Outstanding Business Teacher Award from the KBEA. He was a visiting professor in 1987 at several colleges in Helsinki, Finland.

Professor Boes taught Sunday School, and was a Baptist deacon. He had a love for God, his family, his country, his students, model railroading and all railroads.

He is survived by his loving wife, Anne Boes; three children, Sheryl (Jim) Sutton, Laura Boes, and Mark Boes; a special daughter, Christina Baum; three grandchildren; and a great grandson.

The funeral service was on Wednesday, Dec. 10 at 11 a.m. at the church with Rev. John Ward officiating. Burial took place at Berea Cemetery. Lakes Funeral Home in Berea is in charge of arrangements.

In lieu of flowers the family requests memorial gifts to the Oneida Baptist Institute, P.O. Box 67, Oneida, KY 40972.

Robert Leeman Waddles

Robert Leeman Waddles, 46, husband of Jennifer Waddles, died on Dec. 5, 2014 in Chicago Ill. He was born in Louisville to Paul and the Late Oneida Singleton Waddles. He was baptized at the Cedar Creek Baptist church in Louisville.

Rob grew up in Berea and graduated from Berea Community High School. He attended Berea College and earned his BA in English and his MA at ECU. He attended Westminster Choir College, where he had the opportunity to sing at Carnegie Hall.

Rob loved music, cooking, and travel. He lived with Jennifer in Berea, Atlanta, Lexington, Toronto, and Chicago, and made friends easily everywhere he went.

Rob is survived by his wife of 21 years, Jennifer Conroy Waddles; his father, Paul (Darlene) Waddles; his sister, Paula (Steve) Davis; and his nieces and nephews, Hillary (Cody) Shepherd, Zach (Sydney) Davis, Hayley Davis, Zeb Davis, Hannah Davis, and great niece, Haven Shepherd.

Visitation for Rob will be Thursday, Dec. 11, 2014 from 5 - 8 p.m. at Lakes Funeral Home, with funeral services starting at 8 p.m. with Rev. Kevin Slempt officiating. Private burial will be in the Thacker Family Cemetery in Hindman.

In lieu of flowers donations in memory of Rob can be made to the American Cancer Society. Online condolences can be made at www.lakesfuneralhome.com.

BEREA POLICE REPORTS

Drug Arrest

• On November 28, officers stopped a vehicle on the I-75, 76 mile marker exit ramp for an equipment violation, assisted by Madison Sheriff K-9 unit.

The K-9 alerted police on the passenger side of the vehicle, and a search revealed a black bag with heroin and several items of drug paraphernalia.

Caitlin Cowan, 25, of Nicholasville, was the occupant of the seat where the items were. She was charged with first degree possession of controlled substance -- first offense, and possession of drug paraphernalia. Cowan was lodged in the Madison County Detention Center in Richmond.

Shoplifting Arrest

• On November 30, officers responded to Wal-Mart because of a shoplifter in custody. When searching, officers found three pills in a cigarette pack in the possession of the alleged shoplifter.

Kathy Todd, 35, from

Berea was charged with theft by unlawful taking -- shoplifting, third degree possession of controlled substance, and prescription of controlled substance not in proper container -- first offense. Todd said that she had a prescription for the pills (clonopin), which could not be verified by officers. The total amount of stolen items was $92.11.

Todd was lodged in the Madison County Detention Center in Richmond.

• On December 3, officers responded to Wal-Mart because of a shoplifter. Jeffery S. Todd, 34, of Berea was charged with theft by unlawful taking -- shoplifting and third degree criminal trespassing.

Todd had taken merchandise valued at $218.52, and tried to leave the store without paying for the items. He was banned from the premises because of a previous incident. Todd was lodged in the Madison County Detention Center.

• On December 4, officers responded to WalMart because of a shoplifter. Harley R. Tipton, 25, from Beattyville had taken items valued at $59.82 and attempted to leave the store without paying for the items. Tipton was lodged in the Madison County Detention Center.

Alcohol Arrest

• On November 30, officers responded to Curry Shell on Prince Royal Dr. in response to a woman who was intoxicated and causing a disturbance inside the business. Officers made contact with the woman in the parking lot who stated that she was the clerk, and had not observed anyone intoxicated or causing a disturbance. Officer, however, detected a strong smell of alcohol and slurred speech coming from the clerk.

Tracy Smith, 30, from Berea was charged with alcohol intoxication and possession of marijuana, when she gave the officer some marijuana and whiskey she had on her person. Upon lodging in the Madison County Detention Center, Smith gave a lortab pill and a marijuana cigarette to booking personnel. She was charged with second degree possession of controlled substance at that time.

Couple Arrested for Unlawful Activities with a Minor

On December 4, Berea police officers were called to Knight's Inn because of a 15-year-old runaway who was possibly at that location.

The police officers located the girl in one of the hotel rooms at Knight's Inn, along with a man and woman. The investigation revealed that the two subjects had been involved in sexual activities with the juvenile and that they provided her with methamphetamine.

Police located burnt spoons with residue on them inside the room.

Officers arrested Jordan Palmer, 26, of Berea and Andrea Baker, 23, of Berea. Both subjects were charged with first degree unlawful transaction with a minor and third degree unlawful transaction with a minor.

Palmer was also charged with third degree rape and Baker was charged with first degree sexual abuse.

This investigation is still ongoing and more charges are pending.

Chemical Weapons Advisory Groups Meeting Dec. 16

Chemical weapons destruction operations are planned to take place in central Kentucky. Army leaders want to keep citizens informed about the project and receive feedback from the community. Two citizens' advisory groups exist to represent the community and allow your voice to be heard.

The Kentucky Chemical Demilitarization Citizens' Advisory Commission (CAC) and the Chemical Destruction Community Advisory Board (CDCAB) will hold a meeting on Tuesday, Dec. 16, beginning at 1:30 p.m. in Rooms A and B on the lobby level at Eastern Kentucky University's Carl D. Perkins Building located on Kit Carson Drive. The event is open to the public and is accessible to individuals with disabilities.

The CAC, chaired by Doug Hindman, is a governor-appointed commission that represents community and state interests to the U.S. Army and Department of Defense.

The CDCAB, co-chaired by Madison County Judge-Executive Kent Clark and Craig Williams, executive director of the Chemical Weapons Working Group, is an independent subcommittee of the CAC. It is made up of a diverse group of community leaders who represent the views and concerns of the local community regarding Kentucky's chemical weapons destruction program.

For additional information, please contact the Blue Grass Chemical Stockpile Outreach Office at (859) 626-8944 or bgoutreach@iem.com. Visit the Program Executive Office, Assembled Chemical Weapons Alternatives website at www.peoacwa.army.mil for more information on the program to destroy the chemical weapons stored at the Blue Grass Army Depot.

*It's beginning
like...*

Whoow, what a hectic time it is. Nearly everyone I talk to lately is in the same frame of mind as I am. That's pretty much not knowing whether I'm coming or going. As of this morning, with only two short weeks before Christmas, the holiday decor at my house consists of a display of ceramic pumpkins and some fall candles. They looked nice for Thanksgiving but not so much on the tenth day of December.

Christmas is almost upon us and I want to say thank you to the Berea Chamber of Commerce for the wonderful honor of being named Grand Marshal for this year's Christmas Parade. I can think of so many people deserving of such a privilege but my name wouldn't be on the list.

I have to say, it was great fun, and my grandchildren enjoyed it too. The boys were especially impressed with Patty Coyle's black Mustang convertible that she and Greg graciously allowed us to parade through town in.

Keeley and Beth and I also enjoyed the festivities at the Chamber's awards banquet last night, where many deserving folks were recognized for their efforts. The county was well represented by elected officials in attendance but I was a little surprised to see only one elected member of Berea government there.

On a final note, I have to give the subject of geographic representation some more thought and research, as the current council apparently plans to do. As of now, I tend to disagree with Beth's premise that changing the way Berea's council is elected is unnecessary. More on that subject to come at a later date.

For now I need to get this paper to bed so I can get home and put up a Christmas tree.

If Not Broken, Then Why Fix It?

At the last city council meeting, the question of voting in Berea according to precincts or districts came up again.

Instead of the current law where everyone in Berea votes for eight at-large city council members, precinct or district voting would be similar to Madison County elections where voters are split up into four different magisterial districts. Our town would be split into a certain number of areas, and Bereans would then only vote for the council position(s) that represented their particular address.

In my opinion, there are several reasons why city council members would be making a big mistake if they ever chose to pursue such a structural change to our voting system.

First of all, they would be further complicating an already complicated, overburdened voting system. The county clerk's office is already dealing with Representative boundaries, magisterial precincts, and school board divisions.

Dividing the City of Berea up into equal voting districts that make some kind of geographical sense could be a nightmare of complications. And where complications exist, money usually follows, because of the need to hire or contract out the jobs to keep electoral matters running smoothly.

There's also a real danger of further dividing up the citizenry with such a move. We're still reeling from the aftermath of the Fairness Ordinance, and how that pitted neighbor against neighbor. Voting divisions or precincts may only increase that sense of division. I can already foresee people calling certain areas in Berea the "liberal district," the "southern Baptist district", or other designations based on socioeconomic status.

We also would not be assured of electing people who would get the popular vote – the position we're currently in as a nation. We could get someone really inappropriate, because he or she is the only one signed up to run from a certain area. There may be five people that the majority of town would really like to see serve on city council, but only three could be voted in because they all live in the same area of Berea.

The fact is, this is not a large town. How different can our concerns possibly be from north to south to east to west? Do we really want to divide up the 9.4 square miles of Berea?

Don't we all use the parks? Sidewalks? Skateboard park? (if we're willing and able).

Don't we all eat at the restaurants, even though we have to drive six whole miles to get a pizza joint on the other side of town? Don't we all worry about the drugs that have infested every neighborhood, the fact that our young people don't have safe places to hang out, and that there aren't more local retail businesses?

No compelling arguments have been put forth so far for why Berea should be split up into voting districts. I've only heard vague mumblings about the Berea College vote swaying elections, which this last election should have disproved. If anything, the more extreme liberals are getting the shaft as far as legislative representation on city council, but they're never the ones complaining about the current voting system.

What our non-partisan, at-large voting system has resulted in is a fairly diverse city council that stays very involved in all parts of the city, a citizenry that continues to be heavily invested in who is elected and what decisions are made, and a city government with a strong financial base that is more transparent than most municipalities. So to end with the old adage, if it ain't broke, why fix it?

Thank You for Sensitive Coverage

Dear Editor,

Thank you to Beth Myers for her excellent editorial about the automobile accident that took the life of Austin Tillery ("Experiencing the Loss of One").

Beth's sensitivity in the face of this tragedy is commendable. Yes, news must be reported: a death did occur, traffic was seriously affected in Berea. There were perhaps even some lessons to be learned from the event. But the Citizen did not sensationalize the disaster. You reported facts, provided appropriate photos that did not sensationalize, and left it at that.

I am very grateful that Berea has a newspaper that does not feature, as Beth called it, a "wreck of the week," nor indulge in yellow journalism. I want my news to be factual, not titillating, and our newspaper strikes just the right chord.

Thank you to Beth and the entire Citizen staff for bringing us news of our community that is factual and important, seasoned with common sense and decency.

Responding to Letter of Nov. 13 Edition

Dear Editor,

This is in response to Kevin Slemple's letter in the Nov. 13 edition.

I disagree with Pastor Kevin when he says that the proposed anti-discrimination ordinance is really about redefining marriage. The anti-discrimination ordinance that was being considered would harm no one, but would protect LGBT persons' rights in the three most basic areas of life: the right to equal access to shelter, employment and the use of public accommodations. However, I believe it is about both anti-discrimination protections and marriage.

As to redefining marriage, it's been evolving for centuries. Marriage is different now than in Biblical times, or 500 years ago, or even 100 years ago. I have been married to the same man for 48 years. We have worked hard to make our marriage last, to make it meaningful, to make it sacred. My friends who are in same sex marriages or relationships cannot affect my marriage other than in the positive way of being mutually supportive of marriage and commitment.

My marriage is the happiest most important thing in my life. I don't want to deny anyone the joys or marriage that I enjoy.

Like Pastor Kevin, I am a Christian and my Christian beliefs help form how

I live my life. I take "love thy neighbor as thyself" very seriously. It is why I am an active member of Bereans for Fairness.

When I read Acts 15, I came to a different conclusion. What I heard was the apostles and elders saying Jewish Christians should be tolerant of non-Jewish Christians and not expect everyone to adhere to their laws. As Christians, we don't all agree and should recognize that, but on issues of equality we need to have dialogue. So I think it would be a good idea to meet and discuss these issues, either with or without the shrimp.

sing adopting one of their own. If Madison County approved a drug policy through the Department of Workers Department like Lincoln did, Baker said, they would receive a 5 percent discount on Workers Comp. This would help offset the extra cost of drug testing.

The Lincoln County policy randomly tested all Safety Sensitive Employees, or any employee involved with safety work for the county for drugs and alcohol. Baker said this would include almost all of Madison County employees, such as their firefighters, police officers, 911 dispatchers, streets department personnel, and personnel driving Madison the truck stop and Spring Circle Drive, because there was stagnant, standing water with trash floating around. Once he investigated, however, he discovered that it had been a blue line stream that over time had been filled in with all kinds of debris. When Schrader checked it out, he found out that there used to be a pond in the area.

"Over the years, that drainage system has been filled in. The water has no place to go, so therefore it's stagnant sitting there," Brumley said. "We could clean the garbage out, but that still won't do anything about the water."

Brumley and Schrader discovered that when Kentucky Department of Transportation was working on I75, the property owner gave them permission to throw their fill into the pond.

"Obviously they didn't contact the Division of Water, because if they had, they would have discovered it was a blue line stream and the Division of Water would have told them you can't dump it there," Brumley said. "So that's the problem we have today." City council member Chester Powell, who was present from the public works committee along with council members Jerry Little, Ronnie Terrill, and Diane Kerby, said he remembered when there County vehicles. Currently, only county employees of the road department and the 911 operators are randomly drug tested, because of state statute.

"This would include almost everyone except for positions such as secretaries," Baker said.

The other type of drug testing that Lincoln County had was the reasonable suspicion testing. Under that category, employees could be picked out for testing as several different guidelines were followed. All county employees in Lincoln were subject to the reasonable suspicion testing.

King questioned the random drug testing, stating that he had been tested three different times under that system.

"That could be a cost to the fiscal court, and it can be inefficient testing some-business.

They procure as much of their food as possible from local farms, Kentucky Proud sources, and locally-owned businesses. Meat is from Three Fold Meats, buns and pastries are crafted by Clementine's Bakery, bread is from the Old Town Amish Store, black beans are grown at Berea College Farm, and vegetables are from local growers or Mills Produce. They look forward to serving food from the new Berea Urban Farm across the street.

One of the community events they are a part of is a new network of entrepreneurs in Berea. Ben Ibershoff, another of the worker-owners, and Blair, took a 10-week entrepreneurship class through MACED. The group so ap-had been a lake on Spring Circle and people would back up to dump dirt in it.

"It's got everything in it from shorts, an old dump truck, to millions of tires and Volkswagens," Powell said, who remembered the property owner being brought before city council years ago because of what was being dumped. "I've seen it gradually get filled and filled."

City Administrator Randy Stone said the only obligation the city had was to report it to the Kentucky Division of Water.

"I don't see any other option than to notify the Division of Water," Schrader said, who stated that it was just "oozing out" at the toe of the fill, "but I want people on this committee to know that this will be quite a deal when Division of Water comes in."

Schrader informed committee members of what employees had observed at the Alexander Junk Yard as well, regarding trash and toxins around streams.

"We've got a similar problem, though it's out in the county, but right on the edge of the city," Schrader said of the junkyard. "They've got stuff pushed up right to the creek bank. You've got all these junk cars, and there's oil leaking."

Though the property is not in city limits, Berea can file a complaint since the activity is affecting the quality of the storm water in the city. Committee members agreed that Schrader needed to talk one three times," King said.

County Attorney Marc Robbins, however, pointed out that King getting tested three times showed that the process was truly random.

"The randomness is the true deterrent for people," Robbins said, "because they really don't know when they could be tested. It could be tomorrow."

Drug or alcohol rehab would not have to cost the county anything, Baker said, even though the county could hold their jobs for them. The health insurance through the county would pay their part, but the employee would be responsible for the rest.

Hughes said he had studied the issue, and about 7 to 10 percent of the population had some kind of substance abuse.

preciated the cross-pollination of ideas, resources, and support they found in the class that they are trying to sustain it on a regular basis.

One of the most important ways they live out their mission is in their choice to operate as a worker-owned cooperative. This structure is emerging around the world as an effective way to get people out of poverty, create community economic development, and help restore civic engagement.

The hallmarks of a worker-owned cooperative are that the business is owned by the employees, with equal ownership (one member, one vote); and profits are distributed equally to employees based on hours worked, to the Division of Water about both situations.

Schrader informed the committee that there would be added costs to the Indian Fort Trail in the amount of $321,000, which is 13 percent over bid. The changes included beefing up one area of the trail after the rain caused the bottom to fall out, adding a railing on the bridge because of code requirements, and paving the two driveways near the beginning of the trail.

To get the easement for the Mehler's property, the City of Berea agreed to pave the driveway from the trail back to the highway. They ended up paving the next driveway because it looked strange to pave only one. The sections were on college property.

Schrader reminded committee members that they were still way below the engineer's estimate, as well as the other two bids they received for the Indian Fort Trail. The change order will be brought before the next city council meeting for approval.

In other business:

When Robbins was asked what he thought about approving a new drug testing policy, he stated that he thought it was a great idea to consider.

"I don't think you want to act too quickly on it, though," Robbins said.

County Clerk Kenny Barger announced that anyone who wanted to switch their party affiliation for the primary election in May should do it by Dec. 31.

King, who will not be present at the next fiscal court meeting on Dec. 23, stated that this was his "farewell meeting," and it had been good to serve the county. Hughes stated it had been an honor for him as well. Botkin stood up at the end and thanked both of them for serving, and Clark for his over 20 years of service to Madison County.

"We are one of only two worker-owned cooperatives in the state of Kentucky," shared Brett Hetzell, one of the worker-owners.

And while they are excited about their own business, the owners of Village Trough are equally excited about possibilities for community economic development in Appalachia. One dream is to see a network of worker-owned co-ops that string through Kentucky Trail Towns along the TransAmerica Bike Trail. They see worker-owned cooperatives as a model that is right for Appalachia, and would love to share what they have learned on this journey with others.

- New storm drains needed to be installed at the bottom of Boone Street. The utilities and streets departments will work together so that the paving of a road takes place after all the work has been completed.

- There have been a few complaints about vehicles bottoming out right before the entrance to the library. Bromley investigated the matter, and stated that the whole entrance would need to be completely reconstructed. This would cause the library to have to shut down the only entrance they have. Mayor Steve Connelly and Brumley will explain the situation to the library board, and what cost the library could incur for the project.

Appalachia Collective Showcases Talent

By Hunter Harshman
Special to the Citizen

"It all started out of common interest and a quarter life crisis," said Hunter Saylor.

The Appalachia Collective is a ragtag group of nine diversely talented young people who have come together to make their dreams a reality, and to help others in Berea's community do the same.

The premise of the Appalachia Collective was created by the three core members, Hunter Saylor, Brandon Hartman, and Brandon McCane. They wanted to start a group to showcase not only their talents, but anyone striving for success in the Appalachia area as well. Jake McCollum, Danielle C. Lovern, Morgan Faith Campbell, Laura Wilson, Josh Dye and Morgan Saylor soon followed creating the Appalachia Collective as it stands today. The collective writes, films, and stars in their own original productions.

This self-taught group has received praise and promising reviews online as well as in the local community. Their highlight thriller film entitled, Sa- myul -- a love story thriller shot in Berea -- received 600 views the day of its release on YouTube and made the front page of Reddit.com's subreddit, r/HorrorShort. The Collective premiered Samyul at Berea Library, and the turn out was more than expected.

"All the chairs were filled, and there were people sitting on the floor and lined up everywhere," Brandon McCane recalled.

Since the debut of Samyul the collective has released a strong of horror shorts for the Halloween season including such titled as Sportsguy98, Opal, Stranded, Geoslash, and Intruder. Don't think the Appalachia Collective is restricted to just short films, members are associated in multiple forms of art and media such as photography, novels, animation, sketch comedy, music, and a clothing line in which all proceeds will go to the Autism and Asperger's Foundation.

The Appalachia Collective is actively seeking up-and-coming people in the Appalachia area to showcase.

since she is in Florida right now."

Sawyer Wilson was trying hard to use every decoration in front of him, saying in a cookie monster voice, "I love them so much I want to eat them!"

The crafters took the graham crackers, marshmallows, pretzels, M&Ms, gummies, and candy canes and made a wide variety of creations. One house had a pretzel propeller on top and one included Olaf from Frozen. One mother/son team created a tent village with a fence around it.

Architectural skills were in abundance, especially among the adults. A-frames were the most popular, but plain rectangular houses with a flat roof proved stable as well. Some brave souls tried the classic walls-with-a-peaked roof structure.

Combs Share Life, Love & Music

By Beth Myers
Citizen Editor

When Pam first met Wayne she didn't like him. She stated that he seemed really, "uptight, and I just didn't know why I'd want to spend time with him."

Wayne, however, summed it up in this way. "I met her in February 1999 at Renfro Valley, and by May 1999, I had my first heart attack."

He stated his heart has been fine ever since, and with a sly smile at Pam, said, "My heart is not perfect unless it's beating for you."

The back and forth affectionate teasing is a hallmark of Pam and Wayne Combs' strong relationship, which has survived a divorce and her oldest daughter's death, as well as high-profile careers in musical performance. They met when they were both performing at Renfro Valley, married in October 1999, divorced the next year, and then remarried in 2003.

"Divorce didn't work out for us," Wayne said, with typical deadpan humor. "So we remarried. We were always together anyway; we probably only spent two months apart during our divorce."

Wayne stated that he is taking a type of sabbatical away from performing. He left Renfro Valley after 13 years to commit himself to the ministry – he is an associate pastor at WestSide Baptist Church in Berea – and also works for Lakes Funeral Home. Pam, who was on the national bluegrass and country music scene for a few decades, Pam and Wayne Combs from Berea performed at Renfro Valley together for over ten years, left at the holiday show, after singer/songwriter Pam was a name on the country/bluegrass national stage for a couple of decades, both with New Coon Creek Girls and Wild Heart. Pam now plays with the band Dove Creek while Wayne is pursuing the ministry.

quit Renfro Valley in 2011 after 20 years, and formed a new bluegrass/gospel and bluegrass band, Dove Creek.

"It's the most enjoyable music I've played in my life," Pam said, who plays the mandolin and guitar in the band. "We are so much in sync. One of us starts playing and the others can just join in."

Since the death of her daughter 11 years ago, however, Pam has not written any music. She has hundreds of songs that she had already written, and the band plays those as well as ones that the other three members compose.

"I really want to write a song for my daughter," Pam said, "and I haven't been able to, so I haven't written anything else. But I've been praying, and I think God is working with me, because I feel like the songs are coming back."

Pam and Wayne are also helping to raise their three grandchildren, since their mother was killed in a car accident, and they both

Word From Berea Streets

"What's the hardest decision you ever had to make?"

Beth Feagan said, "The hardest decision I ever had to make was leaving a comfortable job at a library in Virginia to go back to college. While I was out of school I fell in love and we had a son, but I needed to finish my degree. Now I'm almost done with my second masters degree. I could have continued working with half a degree, but I like engaging more deeply with books."

Jason Peerce said, "The hardest decision I've ever had to make was to say no to the Air Force. I got a direct commission as an officer. I was there for my final medical exam and I had a gut feeling that it wasn't what I should be doing."

Sharolyn Gregory, with her son, Matthias Gregory, said, "The hardest decision I've ever made was whether or not to get married. I was 19 years old and in the military. I was going to be deployed to Korea for a year and he was my best friend. The odds were against us, but now I'm in my 40s and we are still together."

MUSIC

want to make them a priority in their lives.

Both Pam and Wayne discovered music early on. Wayne started singing gospel professionally as a teenager, and Pam was inspired by stories of her musician grandfather. She taught herself music at an early age, and can proficiently play piano, guitar, and banjo. The mandolin, however, is her main instrument and love. Pam became a member of the New Coon Creek Girls in the mid-1980s, and they were able to get a music label with first Universal, then Capital. Later, she formed the all-girl country band Wild Rose with another singer from Coon Creek Girls, and they racked up two top ten hits, 3 CDs, and four videos. Pam and the band would tour around the world all year. She has performed in Europe over ten times, in Japan, and Brazil both in ensembles and as a solo artist.

"I am so blessed to have been able to do that," Pam said of her years performing around the world. "It's therapy for me. It lets me forget troubles for a while."

One of her regrets, however, was how much time she spent away from her daughters during those years. She settled down to work at Renfro Valley in 1991 so she could be with them during their teen years.

Her work as entertainment director at Renfro Valley could be very intense, however, and could require over 60 hours a week. Once she was responsible for her grandchildren, she decided to ultimately quit because she didn't want to repeat what happened with her children.

"I could see that cycle starting again," Pam said.

Wayne sometimes misses performing, though he occasionally sings with Pam at West-Side, and with Dove Creek. His time performing in music, however, he described as a bittersweet thing.

"There's so much enjoyment from it, and knowing you're making other people happy," Wayne said. "But the music business can be ugly. It can mess up relationships, mess up other career paths. It can be unhealthy."

Pam stated that she loves singing with Wayne, and Dove Creek members love when he performs with them.

"I'm pretty hard to impress," Pam admitted. "But I admire him so much as a singer and a performer."

Wayne also had words of praise for his wife, "I trust her completely as a musician. If she tells me to change something, I'll just do it. And she continues to be my favorite mandolin player. What she can do with a mandolin is just amazing."

Southern Wrestlers Battle

The Madison Southern Wrestling team placed fifth in a twelve team tournament on Saturday, January 6 at Harrison County High Schools, called the "Battle on the Hill-top."

Justus Williams at 220 pounds and Joey Scribano at 160 pounds both placed second in their weight class.

Logan Bertrand placed fourth in the 132 pound weight class.

Upcoming Deadline to Change Political Party

Madison County citizens wishing to change their political party in time to vote in the 2015 primary election must have their registration cards postmarked to the Madison County Clerk's Office by Wednesday, December 31, 2014. This deadline only impacts individuals who are currently registered to vote in Madison County and wish to change their political party affiliation. New registrants will be able to register up until April 20, 2015.

Individuals may complete voter registration cards at either the Madison County Clerk's office located at the Madison County Courthouse in Richmond or at the Berea Branch Office in Berea City Hall.

The Madison County Clerk's office will be closed on Thursday, December 25, and Friday, December 26, 2014 in observance of Christmas.

Please feel free to contact the Madison County Clerk's office at 859-624-4703.

Six Berea College Students Receive Gilman Scholarship

Berea College's Center for International Education (CIE) has announced that students Zakiyaa Ashe, Haleigh George, Jonah Rector, Faye Barry, Shelby Cansler, and Joseph Nance are six of 800 American undergraduate students from 356 colleges and universities across the U.S. selected to receive the prestigious Benjamin A. Gilman International Scholarship. Sponsored by the U.S. Department of State's Bureau of Educational and Cultural Affairs, the scholarships provide opportunities to study or intern abroad during the spring 2015 academic term.

The Berea College students will study in Japan, South Korea, Thailand, Australia, Italy, and the United Kingdom. Four Berea students were chosen as alternates -- Halley Boothe, Molly Rhodes, Mi Zheng, and Megan Devoto.

Gilman scholars receive up to $5,000 to apply towards study abroad or internship program costs. The program aims to diversify the students who study and intern abroad and the countries and regions where they go. Students receiving a Federal Pell Grant from two- and four-year institutions who will be studying abroad or participating in a career-oriented international internship for academic credit are eligible to apply. Scholarship recipients have the opportunity to gain a better understanding of other cultures, countries, languages, and economies -- making them better prepared to assume leadership roles within government and the private sector.

Congressman Gilman, who retired in 2002 after serving in the House of Representatives for 30 years and chairing the House Foreign Relations Committee, commented, "Study abroad is a special experience for every student who participates."

Reflections

FROM THE BEREA CITIZEN ARCHIVES DECEMBER 1964

Amahl and the Night Visitors was performed at the Tab in December 1964, by the Play Production class and the music department of Berea College. It was directed by Ellen Carpenter. The three kings, above, were played by (l - r) Paul Hager, David Reber and Tom McClure. John Drake was Amahl and Mrs. Gerritt Levey played his mother. Other actors in the show were James Castlen, Edward DeRossett, Polly Downs, Joann Hopper, Curtis Jones, Alice LeMaster, Phyllis Long, Judy Ritchie, Dennis Snapp, Diane Watson, Helen Hovey, Garnette Slone, pianist Mrs. Marjory Flint and recorder Mrs. Richard Drake.

The Citizens Committee held an organizational meeting on Dec. 17, 1964, in the Berea High School cafeteria. The group was established to recruit a broader base of Berea citizens into decision-making for the community. It was to function in an advisory capacity to the city council. A Merger Feasibility Study Committee was organized on July 6, 1964 to check out the possibility of Berea College and Berea High School collaborating together on a new community school. The group of ten on the committee were Dr. Dwight Blackburn, Litten Singleton, Mayor C. C. Hensley, Mabel Todd, William Hamilton, Donald Pennington, Dr. Pat W. Wear, James Bobbitt, Mary Lou Pross, and Dr. Wilson Evans. It was estimated that the annual cost for the school would be $323,000 for 1,000 students with 56 teachers. The City of Berea's garbage truck was delivered, and city collection of garbage was to begin on January 1, 1965. Pick-up routes and schedules had not been determined yet in December. The City of Berea was named a defendant in a civil suit regarding the location of a proposed new city dump. Residents against the new dump site wanted the courts to tell the City of Berea that they couldn't locate a refuse dump three miles out on Possum Kingdom Road. The plaintiffs were W. J. Hamilton, Tine Williams, R. F. Rowlette, Clarene Pingleton, Roscoe Lanham, S. B. Fowler, Kermit P. Cornett, James W. Guinn and Chester Elkin. At the regular girl scout meeting in December 1964, a Court of Awards was held. One new member, Jane Salsich, was invested. Drawing and painting badges were presented by Mrs. Tom Strickler to Connie Bowman, Rita Martin, Patsy Baker, Martha Chrisman, Michelle Farris, Barbara Gilbert, Barbara Hamilton Vicki Hymer and Jan Davis. Mrs. Ira Martin presented the health aid badges to Donna Smith, Francis Strickler, Swecia Webb, Rebecca Woodie, Joan Howe, Alice Curtis and Garnet Kindel. Individual badges were earned by Alice Curtis, Donna Smith, Frances Strickler, Michelle Farris, Vicki Hymer, and Jan Van Winkle. Mason officers were installed on December 18, 1964. They were Clarence Cox, Junior Stewart, Cecil Hylton, Loon Flake, James A. Shearard, Ester Thomas, Lloyd Gilliam, tiler, and Elihu Hylton, senior steward. A group of children performed at the Christmas Service -- Trip Hamilton, Bobby Grossman, David Pross, David Crandall and Billy May.

City Approves Purchase of Two Properties

By Beth Myers
Citizen Editor

The Berea City Council voted to purchase two pieces of property at their meeting on Tuesday -- 107 Parkway and the Nazarene Church on Hwy 1016 -- with a total price tag of $135,000.

The City of Berea was interested in the Parkway property because of its proximity to other city properties around Berea City Hall, and decided to purchase the Nazarene Church property because of its location in a waterway, and potential value regarding water retention in avoiding flooding in the area.

"The city in effect has a campus in the center of town," Mayor Steve Connelly said, when asked about the Parkway property. In that area, in addition to city hall, the city also owns the Municipal building, the old sewer commission property, the gas station, and the two houses across from the sewer commission.

"It makes sense for the city's efficient use of our campus to have that final piece to square off that property," Connelly continued.

The council first went into executive session to discuss the potential purchase, and once they resumed their meeting council member Chester Powell made a motion to purchase 107 Parkway Avenue for $100,000 from Linda and John Patrick. All council members except Ronnie Terrill voted for the purchase.

The property, which has also been known as "Fee Cottage," was once a bed and breakfast, and currently serves as a rental property for the Patricks. According to Connelly, the City of Berea decided to act on purchasing the property when it went up for sale. There have been plans to build a center for the police and fire de-

Tourism to Make Offer on Old Berea Hotel

By Beth Myers
Citizen Editor

Over a week ago, the Berea Tourism Commission decided to make an offer on the Berea Hotel Building in the Old Town Artisan Village. The commission discussed the option to purchase during an executive session last Wednesday, Dec. 10, and upon resuming the meeting, they approved a motion to make an offer.

The Tourism Commission has been discussing the possibility of buying the old hotel building for a few months. Charles Arnold, the chair of the commission, expressed concern at an earlier meeting that such a prominent feature of Old Town could be lost to the city. The building has been owned by Jean Horrar, who recently passed away, and is now part of her estate.

It was announced at the tourism meeting that Grow Appalachia and the Berea Farmers Market may be interested in renting space at the Hays Building in Old Town. The Artist Accelerator program is currently set-up in part of the Hays Building, but the upper part is not being used. Director Belle Jackson will invite Grow Appalachia to speak to the commission.

Radiant heat has been installed in the Hays Building, which will heat the workspace for the artists. The commission agreed to bid out for the insulation of the Hays building; bids for heating and cooling the front gallery space will occur before summer.

When Santa Claus Came to Berea

The Stratton family enjoys a visit with Santa Claus on Tuesday at the Welcome Center in the Old Town Artisan Village. Berea Parks and Recreation sent Santa to different locations all around Berea this week, including Tractor Supply, the Berea library, and the Parks and Recreation office. Parents and children could track his movements through Facebook. Above are (left to right) Molly Stratton, Miles Stratton, Maggie Stratton, Santa Claus, Liam Stratton, and Walter and Eli Stratton.

Celebrating Danish Traditions at Annual Christmas Party

By Kim Kobersmith
Citizen Reporter

This past Sunday, Bereans had the opportunity to celebrate Danish heritage at the 22nd Annual Danish Christmas Party -- whether they were Danish or not.

Some Bereans that attended have a connection to Denmark through their child's Danish gymnastics class. Others have a deeper connection.

Jenny Hempen shared, "I am a Christian Appalachian Project volunteer in Mount Vernon, and I saw a flyer for the party at the library in Berea. I am third generation Dane and it sounded fun to try some Danish Christmas traditions."

Many Danish traditions are part of the Christmas party. The ris a la mande is a sweet, creamy almond rice pudding that definitely had its fans. The crafts included a woven heart ornament and folded paper stars, plus puppets. Carol singing included traditional Danish and American songs.

Berea Police "Way Ahead of the Curve" with Body Cameras

By Beth Myers
Citizen Editor

While police departments around the country are scrambling to respond to increasing accusations of police brutality and discrimination toward the public, the Berea Police Department can continue business as usual, because of a visionary police chief and cooperative police leadership.

When he first became police chief in 2009, David Gregory introduced body cameras to the police force, before any other department in Kentucky. Several police departments in the state, including Richmond, Lexington, and Versailles, are just getting started with this equipment, five years after Berea saw the need.

"As soon as I became chief, I could see this coming," Gregory said, "because of the cell phones and the videos that were being taken. We needed to not only protect the citizens, but also to protect the officers."

Berea Mayor Steve

Connelly publicly congratulated the Berea police at the city council meeting on Tuesday for their foresight with the body cameras. Near the end of the meeting, Connelly read from an article that appeared in the Dec. 12 edition of the Lexington Herald-Leader about police departments in the Central Kentucky area.

"It shows the type of department we have, and that they're planning ahead," Connelly said. "Five years ago, they asked the council to support that, and the council was prudent and farsighted in moving in that direction."

Council member Virgil Burnside also praised the Berea Department, stating that, "it's a testament to the kind of leadership that we've had in this small town of Berea. . . they're really a very professional group and a group with a lot of vision. They help make it a joy to work here."

Gregory estimated that in 2009 the cameras for all the officers

Five Enforcement Agencies Check on County Sex Offenders

The Madison County Sheriff's office recently partnered up with four other enforcement agencies to conduct a sex offender compliance check in Madison County, in a action labeled Operation Whiteout.

On December 3, the Berea Police, Richmond Police, Kentucky State Police, and US Marshals Service went out with the county sheriff's deputies to check on the 65 registered sex offenders in the county. They discovered that 61 of them were in compliance, and issued warrants for the four who were not. Three of those four were already being investigated by the US Marshals.

"Sheriff Coyle came to me around the middle of November, and asked if there was something we could do with assisting in the sex offender issue," Deputy Willard Reardon said.

The US Marshals Service works with sex offender compliance, so Reardon contacted them to see how the sheriff's office could be of assistance. Operation Whiteout was born out of those discussions.

"I wanted to name it Operation Naughty or Nice, but that was shot down at the federal level," Reardon grumbled.

Officers from all five enforcement agencies visited the listed addresses of the 65 sex offenders. Sex offenders have to report a new address within a week.

The majority of the offenders were between the ages of 30 - 50, and around 50 percent had been convicted of crimes against children 12 and younger. One sex offender, Wayne Earl Smith, was missing, but the sheriff's department recently picked him up. Another of the sex offenders had a sawed-off shotgun, and he will be prosecuted for that as well as being non-compliant as a sex offender.

"It was important to Sheriff Coyle and the rest of us to make sure the sex offenders are abiding by the law," Reardon said. "Especially around Christmas, we need to make sure people feel safe."

To check on the sex offenders in the county, and where they reside, check the state police website.

Responding to Dec. 11 Editorial

Dear Editor,

In response to Beth Myers’ editorial “If Not Broken, Then why fix it”? I can only say that she was far too nice. I have learned from watching the rest of the country divide itself though the redrawing of district boundaries and gerrymandering, that whenever an elected official wants to change the rules or the boundaries in an election, it is about him/her, and not about us the voters.

The creation of precincts or wards for the voting of city council members would destroy whatever unity we have left in Berea. The simple fact that everyone gets to vote for any one of many people running for city council is what keeps the makeup of the council diverse and representative of all the people in Berea. To believe that splitting Berea into wards or precincts for city council voting will not lead to political gerrymandering to hold power and push agendas is politically naïve to the point of stupidity.

Berea is a wonderful small town because of its diversity and democratic process in dealing with its problems and issues. Berea has always taken pride in fact that we are different from other towns. If we start acting like everybody else in our political process, we are going to be like everybody else, cynical, divided and unhappy.

Dear Santa Claus

Scenter Stage

Teresa Scenters, Publisher

This is the week we are busily typing letters to Santa from school children to appear in next week’s Christmas edition of the paper. In any and every spare minute of the day, we get a stack and attempt to decipher the adorable handwritten notes. I’m pretty sure Sheila’s fingers are already worn down to nubs, since she has taken on the lion’s share of them so far.

Those Santa letters we get here at the paper are something I’ve come to treasure about the Christmas season. Some of them are a bit formulaic since they double as writing assignments for their classes, but there are always touching and poignant ones too.

Some of them make us cry and want to find the children and fulfill their wishes.

Most make us smile at the sheer honesty of the little writers.

I think I’ll just give a teaser to whet your appetites for next week’s letters. Here are some cute requests to Santa.

Dear Santa, Please give me a doll this year. I would like her to eat, walk, do my homework, and help me clean my room. Thank you, Jenny

Dear Santa, Thanks for the race car last year. Can I have another one, only this time one that is faster than my best friend’s race car? Ricky

Dear Santa, Would you rather I leave you cookies and milk or pizza? Dad says you’d probably like the pizza. Write back right away to let me know. Love, Lisa

Dear Santa, I wish you could leave a puzzle under the tree for me. And a toy for my sister. Then she won’t want to play with mine and I can have it to myself.
Merry Christmas, Cassie

Dear Santa, You can send me one of everything from the boys’ section of the Toys-r-us catalogue. But nothing from the girls’ section. I can’t wait for Christmas to come. Kent

Dear Santa, Could you come early this year? I’ve been really super good, but I don’t know if I can last much longer. Please hurry. Love, Jordan

Dear Santa, Mommy says that you only bring presents for the good little boys. That isn’t fair. Brian

I actually feel like sending a letter to Santa too. A thank you note to the Jolly Old Elf, or the Saudis or fracking technology or who ever is responsible for the $2.15 a gallon gas this morning. That’s something we can all appreciate.

Marketing Brilliance Behind Diamonds

Letters from Berea

Beth Myers Editor

During the holiday season, there’s always one advertising slogan that plays year after year after year – that of “diamonds are forever.” Throughout my childhood, I remember countless commercials where the man and woman sit by the Christmas tree, and he hands her a small box. She opens it (gasp) and pulls out the diamond necklace.

It’s a crude, but effective message, hidden in a beautiful package – guys who think they can’t buy love should throw more cash at the problem.

The dominance of the diamond in our culture is possibly one of the most outrageously successful marketing campaigns ever. For over a century, the international diamond cartel De Beers has controlled not only the production and sale of diamonds, but also their cultural identity.

De Beers worked almost like a diamond mafia through the 20th century. The company swallowed independent producers, and those that wouldn’t join their party became the recipients of some rather ruthless tactics. De Beers would flood the market with diamonds that looked exactly like their competitors’ to drive the price down, and then would buy up diamonds and stockpile them to drive the price back up. They limited the supply out on market, so the price would always stay high.

After World War I, and the Great Depression, people in the United States were moving away from the expensive De Beers stone, and younger people were less interested in purchasing an engagement ring. So in 1938, the diamond cartel started researching for a massive, multi-faceted campaign that ultimately convinced people that a diamond engagement ring was indispensable. They’re still convinced.

The idea that men should spend a significant fraction of their annual income for an engagement ring even originated from the De Beers marketing materials as part of their plan to increase the sale of diamonds. In the 1930s, De Beers created the idea that men should spend a month’s salary on a diamond engagement ring; they later changed that to two months.

The strategy was brilliant – they simultaneously appealed to the male’s insecurity about properly wooing his hoped-for bride, and women’s competitiveness with each other. Feminism, scheminism, for many women, it comes down to who has the biggest diamond. And yes, size does matter. Men may always want the ball, but women want the rock. And we’ll just leave these innuendos now before my column gets bounced to a PG-13 rating.

The hidden message of the De Beers engagement ring campaign is that you purchase a forever diamond for your forever love – it’s the promise of a fairy tale within a hard, cold rock. Unfortunately, the ring often lasts much longer than the marriage.

On our 20th anniversary, my husband and I put aside our gold wedding bands – mine had a tiny diamond in it – and bought titanium rings to wear instead. It’s always fun to see people’s reaction when I flash my gray, hard rock at them.

The poetry of these rings appeals to me, along with the metaphor. Flashy, pretty, fairy tale marriages get the diamond and the false promise. Tough, steely, enduring marriages? They get the unbending titanium ring – now that’s forever, baby.

partments on that strip on Parkway Street, so the city may end up tearing down the house and using the property as part of that design. No definite plans have been made, however, for the property, so for now the city will continue the rental situation.

The property has appraised for $84,000, while the taxable value is listed $65,000. Connelly said the City of Berea is willing to spend the extra $16,000 because of the significant improvements the owners have made to the property.

“The appraised value was only $84,000,” Terrill said, when explaining why he voted no, but later said he wouldn’t have voted for it even if the city could have bought the property at the appraised value.

“I don’t think the city needs to get into the rental business,” he continued.

The public works committee recommended that the City of Berea purchase the Nazarene Church property, which includes the church and an adjoining lot, because of its possible value as a water retention area. Powell expressed concern about the potential flooding of Dixie Park, especially when the work on Highway 25 occurs. The city will probably tear down the church, according to Powell, and water retention infrastructure could then be built.

The council approved purchasing the Nazarene Church property for $35,000.

City attorney Jerry Gilbert gave his legal opinion on the possible division of Berea into wards for council elections. Council member Jerry Little asked for a legal opinion on the legalities and mechanics of such an election structure at the last council meeting. Gilbert reported that state statute did allow cities to divide into the same number of wards as the number of legislative body members.

“Wards shall be nearly equal in population as practical, and their boundaries shall be fixed by the ordinance,” Gilbert said. “Members shall be elected in the regular November election at-large, but each candidate will reside in the area he seeks to represent.”

When Connelly asked if the council members wanted to pursue dividing Berea into wards, Little commented that the city was running pretty good the way it was.

There were several teary faces in the room when the time came to say goodbye to council member Virgil Burnside, who was serving at his last council meeting. All eight council members as well as City Administrator Randy Stone expressed appreciation to Burnside, who declined to run for another council term after serving 17 years.

“I want to say publicly that you’ve been a real asset to me in this job, and also to the general public . . . we greatly appreciate what you have done,” Stone said.

“It has been a pleasure and a joy knowing him and working with him,” council member Vi Farmer said. “He is the epitome of what a public servant should be, and I just want to thank you Virgil.”

“I really appreciate the wonderful compliments,” Burnside said, “but I’m the one who’s really been blessed . . . When I took this on, I had only one agenda, and that was to see the City of Berea be a really better place.”

A plaque was given to Burnside for his years of service to the City of Berea.

The storm water ordinance was approved by council, and language was changed so that private citizens wouldn’t be responsible for the maintenance of the larger streams in the city. The City of Berea adopted 12.7 miles of waterways to maintain, which includes Brush Fork, Silver Creek and Walnut Meadow branch.

Paul Schrader, who has been heading up the storm water program, stated that streams could always be added to the city-maintained map in the future. The consultant to the storm water program gave Burnside an award, for contributing his time and talents to the storm water program.

In other business:

- The council approved the bid from Scott Enterprises to repair and provide an overcoat to the west end water tank. Six bids were received, but Scott turned in the lowest at $143,790.

- The council approved a change order of $36,984 for the Indian Fort Trail, an increase of 13 percent from the original bid. Schrader explained that the extra funding went towards additional asphalt, rock, and concrete when the subgrade gave way, a railing on the largest bridge, and the paving of two driveways out to Hwy 21.

- The city council members and the mayor were sworn in at the end of the council meeting.

- A citizen requested that a street light be installed on the intersection of Herndon Lane and Highway 25N. Bluegrass Energy controls that intersection. It was approved, and the city staff will have to work with Bluegrass Energy to get it installed.

- Stone made a statement about the tax forms that are collected by the Berea Finance Office, since council member Jerry Little had expressed concern about the confidentiality of such information at the last council meeting. Stone said, “we have never had a problem with confidential information . . . one, maybe two people in the finance office see the tax forms, and it’s never discussed.” Burnside asked that a sheet explaining the retention policy of these forms be distributed to people.

- A special called meeting of the city council will take place on January 15, 2015, where department heads will be speaking on how their work is done.

cost around $25,000. The city council was very receptive to the idea, however, and he didn’t have to push for the approval. Officers in the department, however, were not as welcoming of the change.

“I had some turnover at the beginning,” Gregory said. “They were around three officers who left, and went to other departments that didn’t require body cameras. It’s taken five years, but I think the light has gone on for the department. They’re getting comfortable with it.”

In the Lexington Herald-Leader article, Captain Ken Clark was quoted as stating, “One of the things we had to do was say, ‘This is not spying on you. If you’re a bad officer, yeah, you should worry. But if you’re a good officer and a bad person makes an accusation against you, it can save your butt,’” Clark said.

The body cameras are clipped to each officer’s chest at the beginning of the shift, Gregory said,

“and when they come off their shift, they download it.”

The officers are required to tape “law enforcement action,” which Gregory stated included traffic stops, arrests, warnings, and other actions to address some type of crime. If the video is needed in a court case, the police department will keep it indefinitely; otherwise, the video is deleted after 90 days. Gregory stated that the court system “loves” being able to use the cameras.

“Only myself and another captain can download the video,” Gregory said, “and the officers aren’t able to delete anything off the cameras.”

Gregory has found over the last five years that the body cameras serve as a type of preventative measure for the police officers, to assure that they treat people fairly. The use of force by the Berea Police has decreased quite a bit since the cameras have been in use, including actions with a Taser.

Officers have often been cleared of suspicion because of the body cameras. Gregory estimated that they receive two or three complaints a year, and many of them were dropped once they realized there had been video of an interaction or arrest.

“The key is the relationship with the community, and hiring the right people,” Gregory said. “I try to look at the police department as a business, with the citizens as our customers. We have to treat customers with politeness and respect.”

Gregory has recently started a program called “Predictive Policing,” in Berea. Officers in the department use crime analysis to see where crimes are currently taking place in Berea, such as break-ins. Officers are then required to spend a minimum of 15 minutes per shift in those targeted neighborhoods.

“If they see someone out in their yard, or kids playing football, they are told to get out of their car and talk to them,” Gregory said. “They tell the residents about the Predictive Policing, and that there’s been trouble in their area. They let them know they should call us if they see anyone.”

At the close of the evening, everyone joins hands to dance around the Christmas tree and welcome Santa Lucia, a girl with a wreath of lit candles on her head. Revelers are welcoming both the light back as the days begin to get longer, and the Light of Christ who is born on Christmas.

The seeds of this interest in Danish folk traditions dates all the way back to the 1920s. Oscar Gunkler, a Berea College professor, spent six months at a Danish folk school and became intrigued by their cultural view of sports. In the Danish manner, what is important is that everyone participates, not that anyone wins.

The start of the Christmas party in 1992 marks the beginning of a formal relationship between Berea and Denmark that continues to this day. Hans and Karen Rosgaard, a couple from Denmark, spent two years in Berea and shared many Danish folk traditions, including the Christmas party. The next year, the Folk Circle Association of Berea and Berea College entered a partnership to annually welcome a visiting Danish professor to teach college students and youth from the community.

One visiting professor in the early 1990s stayed to make his home in Berea (meeting his wife Barbara had something to do with it). Sune Frederiksen still enjoys his Danish heritage and, fortunately for Bereans, is still inspired to share it by helping organize the Danish Christmas Party every year.

and charged her with theft by unlawful taking -- shoplifting.

DUI/Drug Arrest

- On December 12, officers received a call about a reckless driver on Interstate 75. They located the vehicle, saw it weaving in the roadway, and conducted a traffic stop. The driver of the vehicle had slurred speech and smelled like alcohol. Inside of the vehicle, they located a clear plastic bag containing a crystal substance which tested positive for methamphetamine.

Officers arrested River Pomeroy, 33, of Knoxville, Tenn., and charged him with operating a motor vehicle under the influence -- first offense, careless driving, possession of open alcoholic beverage container in a motor vehicle, and first degree possession of controlled substance -- methamphetamine.

Drug Arrests

- On December 12, officers were called to the 76 Truck Stop because of a possible drug transaction. Two men were located, and officers began speaking with them. They eventually located powder -- cocaine -- inside of a vehicle and inside one of the men’s wallet.

Officers arrested Joshua Willis, 33, of Berea and Michael Hudspeth, 26, of Langley and charged them with first degree possession of controlled substance. Hudspeth was also charged with drug paraphernalia possession.

- On December 14, a traffic stop was conducted on Haiti Road for a minor traffic offense. The driver got out of his vehicle, and kept putting his hands in his pockets after being asked not to. Inside of his pants pockets were several different hydrocodone tablets.

Officers arrested David Gamble, 37, of Paint Lick and charged him with first degree possession of controlled substance and prescription of controlled substance not in proper container.

Fleeing/Evading Arrest

- On December 13, officers were called to the 200 block of Herndon Street because of a disturbance. When the police arrived, one of the parties involved fled on foot and disobeyed orders to stop. He was eventually located inside of a neighboring apartment; he had several active arrest warrants.

Officers arrested Kyle Garris, 27, of Richmond and charged him with second degree fleeing or evading police.

Huge Changes for Berea Community’s Family Resource Center

By Beth Myers
Citizen Editor

When the grant was first written for Berea Community to acquire a Family Resource Youth Services Center (FRYSC) in 1995, twenty percent of the students at Berea qualified for free and reduced lunches, Diane Smith, the Berea FRYSC director, reported. Now in 2014, the school has around 64 percent of students qualifying.

“There has been a huge change over the years,” Smith said.

Smith gave a report on the Berea Community FRYSC program to the school board at their meeting on Monday night, and emphasized the fact that she was dealing with more severe issues than at the beginning.

“We have students dealing with more self harm, like cutting,” Smith said, “and ones that struggle with mental health issues and suicide ideation.”

Smith pointed out other changes, such as sexual issues coming up at earlier ages, and technologycreated problems such as cyberbullying. From July until December, Smith reported 1,264 student contacts, 197 parent contacts, and 58 home visits.

“That reported number is low,” Berea Superintendent Mike Hogg informed the board. “She doesn’t record all the times that she works with a student. When I walk around with her when she does one circle around the building, she’ll have 15 student contacts just in that time.”

While the State of Kentucky requires that FRYSC programs work with mental health/counseling, academic support, and health care referrals in the schools, Smith finds that a lot of her time is taken up by the “optional” activities for FRYSC such as assistance with clothing, food, and school supplies.

“The great thing about FRYSC in Kentucky is that they allow schools to designate what they see as needs to be addressed,” Smith said.

The creation of FRYSCs in Kentucky came about with KERA (Kentucky Education Reform Act). FRYSC’s purpose was to reduce barriers for students so they could learn.

“The fact that Diane is willing to cooperate with other agencies and within the school, and not work in a silo, has really contributed to the program’s success,” Hogg said.

Smith reported that there are 67 Berea Community students who receive backpacks of food every Friday, so they’ll have food over the weekend.

“We’re the only school in the county that does it every week,” Smith said.

Hogg reported that attendance had not been good at Berea, because of illness. For the last couple of weeks, the school had 92.9 percent attendance; anything below 94 percent, Hogg reported, was not good for the school.

Tom Sparks, an accountant from Summers, McCrary and Sparks, reported on the school’s audit. The school received an unqualified, clean report.

School board member

The Berea Middle School students above all scored at least 95 percentile in one or more content areas on last year’s state normative test -- the KPREP. They were recognized at the school board meeting this past Monday, and have been listed for the Duke Talent Search.

Happy Holidays from the Pirate!

BCMS/HS band and choir perform annual Christmas Concert

RHIANNON CONNOR
PIRATE Managing Editor

During the festivities of the holiday season, Berea can begin to seem reminiscent of a quaint, dreamy town you'd see in a Christmas movie. Between the telephone poles adorned with Christmas-themed lights and the decorated pine trees on college square, one can't help but feel excited for this time of the year. Partaking in the cheer last Tuesday was Berea's band and choir, who performed at their annual Christmas Concert on Dec. 9.

First to perform at the concert was the choir, who performed in the Kennedy Theater. Those performing were a mix of middle and high schoolers, directed by Amanda Thacher, Berea Community's choir teacher. The choir began preparing for the concert at the beginning of this school year and rehearsed on a weekly basis up until the performance. According to Ms. Thacher, the most challenging song for her students to master was the "Nutcracker Jingle."

Immediately following the choir was the band performance, in which middle and high school played separately, in the Conkin Gym. The performance was conducted by Matt Barnhill, Berea Community's band teacher. To prepare for concerts, Berea band members rehearse around five concert songs in class on a daily basis. Mr. Barnhill noted that his band classes had had a particularly difficult time learning to play "We Three Kings," for the middle school, and "Sleigh Ride," for the high school.

Thacher and Barnhill mutually agreed that concerts give students the opportunity to showcase their dedication and mastery. "Learning to play an instrument is all about performance. You have to go through daily rehearsals and become better, but it doesn't amount to much unless you get a chance to perform in front of people," Barnhill noted.

BCS celebrates holiday themed Spirit Week

GRACE BEAVIN
PIRATE Staff Reporter

Well, it's that time of year again. Students and teachers are impatiently waiting for tomorrow when those double doors will close behind them and they will have (hopefully) two weeks of freedom. As part of a now annual tradition, Mrs. Samarin and the Pep Club are sponsoring a mostly Christmas themed Spirit two week celebration.

Last week Monday began the festivities with , Tuesday was , Wednesday was Ugly/Tacky Christmas sweater day, Thursday was " Nose and Bows" day, and Friday was Mrs. Samarin's favorite "Frozen Friday" each student and staff member was encouraged to come up with the most unique costume to commemorate last year's Disney hit, Frozen. This week there Monday was Christmas Pajama day, Tuesday Candy Cane day, yesterday was Elf Day, Today is Red and Green Day, and tomorrow will be Spirit Day. Students and staff will arrive decked out in their Berea Pirate attire.

"Just be as festive as possible; we want to have a good time before finals..." Mrs. Samarin urged students and staff. Christmas spirit weeks certainly break up the monotony and seem to get most people who participate excited for the holidays coming up. Merry Christmas, Happy Kwanza, and Happy New Year.

Junior Class visits Career Fair

PIRATE Staff Reporter

It is never too early for high school students to get a head-start on their career path. The career each student dreams of can be experienced through adults who have spent their life in that career. The experiences that those adults share can help a student determine what his/her future will hold, and that's what the Career Fair is all about.

The Career Fair can give high school juniors a chance to narrow down their options for potential careers in the inevitable future. Being an annual event in the fall, the career fair gives students a chance every year to figure out what kind of career path they want to choose. The event, which takes place at Eastern Kentucky University, also gives the students from Berea and other schools a chance to feel, sense, taste, hear and smell college first-hand.

The work for the Career Fair begins early and at each school it starts with each student taking a career survey. The each student is matched closely to what type of career path they want by numbering their list from 3 (being the least) to 1 (being the most). Then, they are put in three 25-minute sessions with the professions they chose. Also during the presentation that the adults give, the students can ask questions and learn what it takes to get to that career path.

Eef Fontanez, who is in charge of coordinating the event, said, "The earlier you start knowing your career the better. [The career fair] helps you confirm and eliminate your career choices, especially in the near future."

As juniors, the high school years are almost over it is crucial to know who you are going to be and what you hope to accomplish. Whether it be college or going straight into a career (or job) students should know what their obstacles are so they can easily overcome them.

Elizabeth Grimes's memory alive in Helping Hands

OBI OKUMU
PIRATE Staff Reporter

Elementary, middle and high school can be difficult for financially troubled students, as they might not have all necessary tools or motivation to succeed. Helping Hands is an event that strives to help alleviate this, and ensure that struggling students get a little help in school.

The group is sponsored by faculty member Diane Smith, director for the Berea Family Resource and Youth Services Center, Smith takes Helping Hands seriously. "I love the way the community comes together to support children in need," Smith commented. The annual Helping Hands event was founded to help children in need receive warm clothing and gifts for Christmas. Donations of items which are necessary (clothing, school supplies) and also items that entertain or help the students enhance a hobby (balls, art supplies, etc.) are collected and then distributed to those who are struggling financially during the holidays. The community of Berea is amazing and work so diligently to ensure that Berea students are cared for... whether it be food, clothing or toys for Christmas.

The group was founded in 1993 by elementary school counselor Cindy Richardson. Richardson founded Helping Hands after seeing a need for a few children that required help. Mrs. Richardson created Helping Hands to solve this problem, but did not have time to expand it.

Within just a couple of years of the Berea FRYSC center opening, the program did expand. One of the reasons is due to a special young lady who was a Berea Pirate for many years. Barbara Grimes lost her daughter, Elizabeth Grimes, during her freshman year at Berea Community. Mrs. Grimes wanted to commemorate her daughter's caring nature and was looking for something that would impact the community; she found it in Helping Hands. With Mrs. Grimes support, and the support of her church, approximately 75 children were sponsored just this Christmas season alone as gifts flooded in in memory of Elizabeth's joyous life,

"I love seeing kids' needs being fulfilled when they couldn't be filled otherwise," said Smith. Helping Hands is truly a wonderful cause, helping struggling students become successful young adults. "I once helped a family whose life was bleak, it touched my life to see their life improve," Smith beamed. If you are interested in making donations to Helping Hands, you can contact Ms. Smith at 859-986-1021.

Defense key in win

PIRATE Lead Photographer

The Berea Boys High School Basketball Team officially started their season this past week and came into their game against Bath Co. with a 1-2 record.

The Pirates looked very impressive against Bath Co. jumping out to leads as large as 27 points. They were able to go very deep into their bench and spread the playing time out with a comfortable lead. Junior Bradley Atkins led in scores with 20 points.

The key to this lead was the gritty, smothering defense that the Pirates played throughout the night. They held Bath to a gruesome 21% from the field.

They seemed to have their way with Bath Co. on the defensive end of the floor and it translated into offense. The Pirates only allowed 50 points as they took the game 61-50.

Coach Cameron Jackson commented, “We learned we have the killer instinct to put teams away, and if we continue play solid defense, with energy, we can beat anybody. A game like this really helps with our team’s confidence going forward.”

Senior Dustin Kates also commented, “I feel like we played well, our defense was very active and it helped us to get some easy buckets on the other end.”

The Pirates will be back in action tonight at home against Lynn Camp. Come out and support your Pirates!

Injuries create havoc for Lady Pirates during home opener

PIRATE Staff Reporter

The Berea High School Girls’ Basketball team played their first home game this past week. Although it was a very heartfelt game against the Estill County Girls’ team, with a big portion of the girls’ starters not being able to play due to several injuries, Berea was not able to come out on top.

The injured starters caused complications and a difficult situation. With vital players not being able to play, this called for younger players to step up and in fill in the gap.

Coach Calhoun had this to say about the game: “With many of the starters on the bench, the performance has been good. The young players have stepped up and done what I’ve asked them to do.”

Cherish Simpson was one of the players who was called up to play in the Estill County game. She shared her thoughts about the overall performance and effort given by the team: “We gave quite a bit of effort, but we could of given more.”

The high school girls show a lot of promise and will most likely have a successful year, if they continue to strive to get better and play well. The girls will be in action again on December 31 at JP Deaton Classic at 6 and 7:30 in Breathitt County.

MS Basketball falls to Model

DALTON GADD
PIRATE Managing Editor

The Berea Community 8th grade Pirates basketball team (2-8) played Model on Monday, Dec 8. The team fell in a hard fought game 47-44.

“Overall tonight I thought the boys played hard and battled with a competitive spirit the entire game. Each game we play I am seeing improvement, especially in the areas of being competitive on every play, A+ effort, and teamwork,” Steven Bailey said.

Henry York had a solid game rebounding and defending the basket, Zane Brown and Dylan Hanney excelled in hustle and defense.

Ben West has excelled in driving to the basket and finishing the past few games. Blake Maupin got injured in the third quarter and was not able to complete the game, he will return the next game.

Alex Hartman and Jarred Whitaker came in off the bench and provided solid minutes in the game.

Coach Steven Bailey said, “We still have a lot of work to do to get better. However, we have improved tremendously in the areas of teamwork, effort, rebounding, defense, and focusing on what our team needs to do in order to win. We still need to continue to improve on our teamwork, defense and shooting. Also, after the performance against Model at the free throw line, we will be working on free throws in practice.”

“I would say our biggest improvement has been just understanding what it means to have a fighting, competitive spirit and a desire to win. At the beginning of the season this was almost non-existent, but now you can see this spirit evolving and growing in each and every one of the players on the team,” Coach Bailey said.

The Pirates next game is today against Estill Co. at Berea, starting at 5:00.

Students visit morgue

KENZI DAUGHERTY
PIRATE Sports Editor

The Berea High School Health Class had the opportunity to visit the Madison Co. Detention Center, Davis & Powell Funeral Home and morgue, and a court proceeding as an educational field trip on Thursday, Dec 11. The trip showed students that drugs are not just temporary, that they can damage people in the present and future. Students were shown the first hand impact of drug use, and taught the precautions against them.

“It was really amazing to see all these people sacrificing their time to help us -- make sure we don’t fall into that trap,” quoted Freshman Clay Beavin.

It is also a great chance to learn about career choices. The students had a chance to meet an actual judge and others who they considered had interesting occupations.

“I found it really cool that the deputy at the jail said that, ‘There are good people in jail, some people just get into the wrong crowd,’” said Sophomore Jordan Adams.

The trip is an annual one that health teacher Cathy Jones takes students on and each year the students herald it as one of the best learning experiences off campus they have.

Creative Clubs Spotlight

KATIE OKUMU
PIRATE Managing Editor

Berea Community High School has for quite some time been known as a district-wide supporter of the arts. Annual band and choir concerts and high school play production are often lauded just as much as basketball games. Alongside this increasing support for extracurricular events is the rapid increase of extracurricular clubs at Berea Community. These clubs are often home to the more creative students of BCHS. It is in these environments that students of all types can really enjoy themselves and grow, creating the overall healthy atmosphere that we have come to expect at Berea Community.

The clubs that fit under the categorization of artistic include Film Club, Anime Club, Comic Book Club, and Guitar Club. While each maintains a required sponsor’s supervision, the clubs are mainly student ran.

“It’s a refreshing change of pace...It creates a more positive environment for all types of students,” said Abner Krouse, a junior, and member of Guitar Club. “In school we don’t always get to be creative...It’s always fun to jam out with people who also love music, but I’ve also learned a lot from my peers.”

Reagan Hester, the president of BCHS’s newly formed Anime Club, is excited about the future of the arts at our school.

“These types of clubs bring people together. They allow students to be themselves in a place where they don’t always feel like they can,” said the sophomore.

One of the newly popular clubs at BCHS has been the Strategic Card Gaming Club. With the growing popularity of the card game Magic: The Gathering, students have rushed towards a timeslot where they can pull out their decks and bond with their fellow students.

Although many students believe that joining more education-based clubs will better themselves and their college chances, it must be remembered that colleges are looking for well-rounded individuals, who have passions and dreams beyond the classroom setting.

If you wish to get involved in some of the following clubs, many of them allow individuals to visit, or take part in their events. If you have any questions about what this would entail, please contact Berea Community High School.

The Man Who Came to Dinner

Juniors Emma White and Sam McFarland on stage during a performance of The Man Who Came to Dinner.

CAMERON COYLE
PIRATE Staff Reporter

From December 11 through the 13, the Berea Community Drama Department produced The Man Who Came to Dinner.

The play follows Sheridan Whiteside, played by sophomore Samuel McFarland, a pretentious, yet excellent writer that likes to keep himself in Thomas Pynchon-like seclusion. When Whiteside injures his hip, he becomes wheelchair-bound and must stay in a home with a family in which he cannot get along. He brings his secretary, played by Emma White, and a nurse, played by Grace Beavin, as the two groups clash and try to keep order in the house.

What follows is a play that is very upbeat, very charming, and very funny. The acting in The Man Who Came to Dinner is truly what makes it shine. McFarland controls your attention and delivers many laughs. It’s one of the best performances I’ve ever seen in a high school play. His scenes with Emma White are tremendous as the dialogue snaps back and forth between the two characters, causing the play to have an absolutely roaring pace.

Other characters pop in and out of the story, with Claire Hogg and Daniel Montoya delivering the most notable performances that involved a smaller role. The play peaked when Austin Jennings’ Beverly arrives to the house and steals the entire scene with his rambling, stuttering, and wisecracking attitude. Watching this, alongside McFarland’s witty and cynical dialogue, caused the entire theater to roar with laughter.

J.D. Lovell did an excellent job as the student director. All of the actors were on cue with their lines and choreography. I didn’t see any mishaps or miscommunication among the cast or crew, which is very impressive.

The only problem I had with The Man Who Came to Dinner was that the play’s pace would slow down abruptly, making it seem as if it had come to a sudden halt compared to the racing speed it was using. This caused some scenes to seem a little drawn-out, but every time this happened, it was quickly put out of my mind with by an incredible following scene.

Winners of Writing Contest to be Announced

The winning entries in the Snowy Day writing contest for area elementary and middle school students will be featured at the Berea Writers Circle on December 20, 1:30 p.m., at the Madison County Public Library in Berea.

The prize-winning stories will be read, and the authors will receive certificates recognizing their achievement. The Berea Citizen will print the top stories in upcoming editions.

"We are pleased that the children who entered took a simple idea and produced imaginative and entertaining stories. We want to encourage writers of all ages to read, write, and share their work," said Joyce Hunsucker, a member of the Berea Writers Circle.

Berea Writers Circle invites everyone interested in the craft of writing to attend its meetings on the third Saturday of each month at 1:30 p.m. at the Berea branch library. For more information, links to local writers and bloggers, and a calendar of writing events, go to www.BereaWriters.com.

Wood Carving and Live Music at Artisan Center

On Saturday, the Berea Welcome Center Carvers will demonstrate carvings and the musical trio Raison D'Et're will perform holiday selections.

The carvers will demonstrate holiday carvings that show a range of wood-carving styles and techniques from 10:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Carving that day will be Jack Gann and John Lister of Berea, and Ron McWhorter of Richmond.

Visitors can also enjoy live music performed by the musical trio Raison D'Et're, playing holiday favorites from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m.

An Independent Grocers Alliance (IGA) opened in the Shoppers Village Shopping Center in Dec. 1974. The manager of the store was Chris Parsons.

A regional jail was discussed at the Madison County Fiscal Court. Jim MacLaren suggested that Madison County could be a site for a jail serving several counties, for prisoners sentenced to periods longer than 30 days.

Paul Durham won the Most Valuable Player award at the Pirates' 1974 football banquet. Stuart Hamilton won Most Improved Player, Steve Carter won the 110 Per Cent Award, Clark Connelly won Best Defensive Line-man, Lee Kemp won Best Defensive Back and Best Offensive Lineman, and Durham also won Best Offensive Back.

The Berea Hospital held a big breakfast in December 1974 for the Christmas festivities. David E. Burgio, the hospital administrator, presented the awards. Wanda Anglin and Nora Wade Lamb both received pins for 20 years of service. Ellen Collins and Margaret Reppert both won ten year pins.

Nearly 40 members and around 15 guests of the Woman's Club enjoyed "Christmas Music," a program presented by Mrs. Curtis Jones. The guests were Mrs. R. O. Belt, Mrs. John Chrisman, Mrs. Warren Davenport, Mrs. James A. Durham, Katie Heckman, Evelyn Muncy, Mrs. George F. Thomas, Mrs. Roland Wierwille, Dr. Luther Ambrose, Dr. Donald Farley, Mr. A. C. Hounshell, and Dr. Ira J. Martin.

Over 100 women and children attended the Annual Christmas Program and party held by Woman's Industrial in December 1974. Mrs. Nannie Rice played the prelude, and Mrs. Ethel Martin was the leader of worship.

Waitresses were Mrs. Aline Arnold, Mrs. Nora Chapple, Mrs. Nannie Gentry, Mrs. Carol Griffin, Mrs. Opal Long, Mrs. Frances Mullins, Mrs. Sylvia Robinson, Mrs. Bernice Rucker, Mrs. Elizabeth Thomas and Mrs. Louise Williams.

Coach Visits Paint Lick Elementary as Guest Reader

Coach Greg Mason was a career guest reader at Paint Lick Elementary School recently. He read the book, Mooseltoe to students and discussed the importance of reading.

Coach Mason talked about his job as a basketball coach at Centre College with students asking him questions about his career.

To promote the importance of reading, the school has an ongoing Readers Are Leaders theme to promote the importance of reading. Special guest readers are invited throughout the year to read and talk about the importance of reading in various careers.

Stay Warm All Winter With A Natural Gas Furnace

Natural gas heat brings your family together in total comfort. When the outside temperature falls, electric heat pumps struggle while natural gas furnaces bring a steady flow of warm air. Over half the homes in the nation are heated with natural gas, and natural gas is gaining in popularity every year.

There are several good reasons for this, starting with dependability. The natural gas pipeline system ensures the safe and reliable delivery of energy to your home. It's comforting, in more ways than one, to know you and your loved ones can depend on natural gas.

Natural gas makes a house feel like a home with warm, comfortable heat no matter how cold it is outside. When it comes to value, natural gas is clearly the choice. Natural gas is also the cleanest fossil fuel. With the need to reduce the amount of pollutants being emitted into the air and water, natural gas is better for the environment than other sources of energy.

You're probably doing your part. Bundling newspapers, saving gasoline, recycling glass and more. You are concerned about costs and saving our earth's valuable resources. Using natural gas helps to conserve our natural resources for future generations. It's interesting to note that most of the new electric generation projects being planned in the the U.S. will be powered by natural gas. It's an available and abundant fuel that takes a vital place in our society today... and in the future.

So the next time you want to heat things up choose natural gas. For this and generations to come.

Merry Christmas, Berea

A few different homes around Berea were decorated for the holidays, though there wasn't enough participation in the Berea Chamber's home decorating contest this year to declare winners. One of the winners would certainly have been the house on Holly Hill, left, with its animated, lighted display to music. Lights are turned on at 6 p.m. every night.

Generosity Pours Out To Berea Food Bank

By Beth Myers
Citizen Editor

While a record number of people have used the Berea Food Bank this past year, there has also been record-breaking generosity.

"This is the hardest year we've ever had," Jerry Workman, the volunteer director of the food bank, said, "and this year we've also had the greatest contributions."

In keeping with the season of giving, the food bank has also had a large number of people volunteer their time this month. Workman estimates that he has around 30 regular volunteers right now, and both high school students and college students from the community have been volunteering during their Christmas break.

The Berea Food Bank, Workman said, is one of the few true community organizations embraced across the board. An unbelievably large number of groups and individuals offer time and resources to the food bank, including the City of Berea with free rent and utilities, as well as churches, ECU and Berea College, schools, family resource centers, civic clubs, individuals, and sports teams. There are several food

Berea College Named to Kiplinger's "Best Value"

Once again, Berea College has been named to Kiplinger's Personal Finance's list of 100 best values in private colleges for 2015. The ranking cites four-year schools that represent Kiplinger's definition of value: a combination of academic quality and affordability.

Since 2010, Berea College has appeared on Kiplinger's list multiple times, a testament to the consistent value it provides.

Lyle Roelofs, Berea's president said, "I am pleased that Kiplinger has recognized the amazing value of a Berea College education for the equally amazing students who attend. What is especially striking about that value, in the case of Berea, is that it is offered solely to those students who otherwise could not afford to obtain a college degree."

Kiplinger's assesses quality according to measurable standards, including the admission rate, the percentage of students who return for sophomore year, the student-faculty ratio and the four-year graduation rate. Cost criteria include sticker prices, financial aid and average debt at graduation. Two other Kentucky schools, Centre and Transylvania, also made the list, but Berea is recognized as the most affordable and its graduates have the

For 50 Years, St. Clare Church Organizes Christmas Baskets

By Kim Kobersmith
Citizen Reporter

Last Sunday evening, St. Clare Catholic Church was bustling with volunteers organizing donations of food and gifts.

For 50 years, the St. Clare Christmas Basket project has shared the hope of the holidays with up to 120 families. Each family receives enough food for breakfast, lunch, and dinner for their own family, and extra for any guests. In addition, the parents are able to "shop" at the Christmas Store to choose 2 - 3 gifts for each child.

Ellen Burke has been volunteering with the program for 40 years, and is integral to its organization.

"We are trying to offer a light for people, to give them the chance to celebrate Christ's birthday and not have to worry for one day. As I think about the story of the loaves and fishes in the Bible, the miracle was not that Jesus created more food, the miracle was that he moved people to share what they had. This is one way we do that," Burke said.

Some volunteers, like 19-year-old Olivia Jacobs, have been volunteering with the program her entire life.

"I have definitely gotten more helpful than I was in the beginning," she quips.

St. Clare Parish is rooted in service to the community. Priest Father Beiting was assigned to about 1,000 square miles of east central Kentucky in 1950. There were no Catholic churches around, and only about 40 Catholics. Two important ideas influenced his ministry - that all people and not just Catholics were part of his ministry, and that the gospel called him to meet both spiritual and physical needs.

A trip to the mountains of eastern Kentucky in 1946 planted the seeds of a vision for Father Beiting. He began dreaming of helping people in Appalachia to help themselves out of poverty. Upon his assignment in Berea, he initiated a volunteer program to help meet their physical needs.

drives a year now in addition to the Hunger Hurts and Post Office Food Drive, including the Food for Fines from the library, and the Berea Basketball Tournament where teams compete to donate the most food.

A very new contributing group to the Berea Food Bank have been the 70 to 80 gardeners in the community that donated fresh produce.

"We had a wonderful group of gardeners," Workman marveled, "from the small gardens to the college. We had so much fresh produce."

They received the most requests during January of this year, Workman said, partly because of the extreme cold. December has also been a month where many come for help, partly because of rising heat bills, increased food costs with children home, and the extra costs of Christmas. The Berea Food Bank has been helping an average of 100 families a month.

"We've been able to give out hams and other meat and fresh fruits," Workman said, "so people could have that at Christmas. The price of food has really gone up as well, so people are struggling more with basic costs."

Items such as milk, eggs, and bread are bought at local food stores with the cash that is donated, and God's Pantry out of Lexington offers good deals as well.

With an all-volunteer staff and board, all cash and food goes directly to help those in need. The only cost the organization incurs is the printing of their annual report every year.

Workman recently won the Volunteer of the Year Award through the Berea Chamber of Commerce for his work, and the food bank itself won the Chamber's Community Award.

Some items they have started to give out are toilet tissue, soap and dish detergent.

"When I ask people what they really need, toilet tissue is at the top of the list," Workman said, "so if people are wondering what to donate, they should always feel free to give us toilet paper."

He encouraged people to check their Facebook page, Berea Food Bank, to find out the items needed that week.

"We could never have done any of this without the contributions of the community," Workman said. "This is so supported by everyone."

"We salute this year's top schools," says Janet Bodnar, editor of Kiplinger's Personal Finance magazine. "Balancing top-quality education with affordable cost is a challenge for families in today's economy, which is why Kiplinger's rankings are such a valuable resource. The schools on the 2015 list offer students the best of both worlds."

The complete rankings are available online at the Kiplinger website. The rankings will also appear in the February

St. Clare coordinates the Christmas Basket project each year, but they do not do it alone. They are grateful for the contributions of Union Church, Meijer, and numerous community members.

This is one more example of Bereans doing just that.

The Terrace Names December 2014 Employee of the Month

Angelica Thomas has been chosen as our December Employee of the Month. She is a State Registered Nursing Assistant. She has worked at The Terrace for a year and a half. Angelica says, "I love working at The Terrace because I love being with the residents and helping them with their needs." When she was asked what being named Employee of the Month meant to her she stated, "It's a real honor to be named Employee of the Month. I didn't expect it. It feels good to know that others appreciate my work." Her supervisor, Kelly Belcher RN, Staff Development and CQI Director, had this to say about her. "Angelica is always willing to help and do whatever is asked of her and she does it with a positive attitude. She is a great asset to the facility."

In her spare time she enjoys caring for her grandfather and spending time with her family and friends.

Congratulations Angelica Thomas, SRNA!

Burglary

• On December 15, a resident from the 500 block of Scenic View Circle reported items taken from inside of their residence. The estimated loss was $900.

• On December 18, a resident from the 200 block of Herndon Street reported that items were taken from inside of his residence. The estimated loss was $199.

• On December 18, officers were called to the Holiday Motel because of subjects refusing to leave one of the rooms. When they arrived to speak with the two of them, officers located several objects in the room including DVDs, tools, and collectibles. When the two were questioned about the property, they eventually admitted that they entered a nearby storage unit and took the items.

Officers arrested John Scalf, 49, of Mount Vernon and Shirley Scalf, 46, of Mount Vernon. Both were charged with third degree burglary, and John Scalf also had several active arrest warrants. Approximate value was $2,500.

Public Intoxication Arrest

• On December 18, officers were called to an empty lot on Plaza Drive because of a suspicious person sitting in a vehicle. The door on the vehicle was open and the driver was partially hanging out, but appeared to be asleep.

Officers eventually were able to wake the driver and observed that he had slurred speech and constricted pupils. Officers told him that he was under arrest, and then he attempted to pull away from them.

Officers arrested Jacob Hannon, 37, of Berea and charged him with public intoxication and resisting arrest.

DUI Arrest

• On December 18, officers were called to Interstate 75 because of a reckless driver. The vehicle was located, and a traffic stop was conducted at Exit 76. The driver smelled like alcohol, and said he had been drinking. He stated that he had also taken two lorazepam tablets earlier in the day.

Officers arrested Christopher Jones, 42, of Richmond and charged him with operating a motor vehicle under the influence -- first offense.

Shoplifting Arrest

• On December 22, officers were called to Walmart because of a female shoplifter. Store employees saw the woman place several items in her purse before attempting to leave the store. The total value of the items was $37.20.

Officers arrested Nancy Haycraft, 59, of Berea and charged her with theft by unlawful taking -- shoplifting and third degree criminal trespass.

Celebrate the One

In the midst of flu and hectic early deadlines and candy still not made and gifts remaining to be wrapped, it’s easy to feel overwhelmed. I wouldn’t have chosen to be under the weather in order to get perspective but still, it’s good to step back and think about what this season of wonder should truly be about.

I am so very thankful for the Christ of Christmas. My wish for each of you is that you too know Him in a very personal and intimate way.

Once again, this Christmas week I share the Biblical account of the first Christmas.

And it came to pass in those days, that there went out a decree from Caesar Augustus that all the world should be taxed. (And this taxing was first made when Cyrenius was governor of Syria.)

And all went to be taxed, every one into his own city.

And Joseph also went up from Galilee, out of the city of Nazareth, into Judaea, unto the city of David, which is called Bethlehem; (because he was of the house and lineage of David:)

To be taxed with Mary his espoused wife, being great with child.

And so it was, that, while they were there, the days were accomplished that she should be delivered.

And she brought forth her firstborn son, and wrapped him in swaddling clothes, and laid him in a manger; because there was no room for them in the inn.

And there were in the same country shepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flock by night.

And, lo, the angel of the Lord came upon them, and the glory of the Lord shone round about them: and they were sore afraid.

And the angel said unto them, Fear not: for, behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people.

For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord.

And this shall be a sign unto you; Ye shall find the babe wrapped in swaddling clothes, lying in a manger.

And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God, and saying, Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men.

And it came to pass, as the angels were gone away from them into heaven, the shepherds said one to another, Let us now go even unto Bethlehem, and see this thing which is come to pass, which the Lord hath made known unto us.

And they came with haste, and found Mary, and Joseph, and the babe lying in a manger.

And when they had seen it, they made known abroad the saying which was told them concerning this child.

And all they that heard it wondered at those things which were told them by the shepherds.

But Mary kept all these things, and pondered them in her heart.

And the shepherds returned, glorifying and praising God for all the things that they had heard and seen, as it was told unto them.

As you celebrate the birth of the Savior wherever you are, with family and friends or by yourself, I pray that you are happy and healthy and filled with the peace that comes only from knowing that One who came to save us.

Ask Public Service Commission to deny KU rate hike

Dear Editor,

Once again, KU has filed with the Public Service Commission asking for a 9.6 percent increase. The average family cannot shoulder all the utility increases lately, and KU files a request nearly every year. It just stands to reason that with gas prices going down and predicted to stay down through 2015, everyone will benefit, including KU.

Please ask the PSC to deny the request based on a boost to profits from lower oil/gas prices and any other reason you’d like to give. The number to call with your comments is 502-564-3940.

Thank you and please share this message.

Angels Among Us Story

Dear Editor,

I grew up and lived in the Berea area for a long time. After getting involved in drugs and really making a mess out of my life, I ended up being responsible for the death of someone else and was put in prison in North Carolina with a 16 year sentence. And prison is where I have been for the past 12 years.

After being in prison for over six years, the greatest experience anyone can have, happened to me. I was born-again and saved by the grace of God. Not that jailhouse religion, but the real thing.

Right after, God put it on my heart to write to most of the local churches in the Berea area. I was seeking fellowship with other believers and to connect with people from back home. I did not hear back from many people, as you can imagine, because I’m in prison. But I did hear from a few, and they have been angels to me. Retired pastor Ronnie Evans and his wife Ruth. Jesse and Tanya Teabo. And Philip and Lora Shouse.

While I have been blessed to get to know several Christians over the years, these three couples have been a true gift of God to me. They did not just respond to my call for fellowship, but have shown the love of Jesus Christ to me in ways I could never have imagined. God has used them all in my life in their own special way. Pastor Ronnie Evans has been a mentor and father figure in Christ that I needed very much. The Teabos and Shouses have loved me and made me a part of their families, like I always belonged there. They all have provided me with everything I have needed to study God’s Word and grow in Christ. They all have encouraged and blessed my life in so many different ways.

God has changed my life and made me a totally different person than I was 12 years ago. But He has used these special angels among us to make me the man I am today in Christ. I have not met any of these three couples in person yet. But they have let nothing stop them from treating me like a son and brother. They are a true picture of the love of Jesus Christ in action and I love them all very much.

These special saints have been angels in my life and I can never tell them thank you enough.

All of the regular employees at the newspaper are in different stages of the flu. I’m not kidding -- we all have the flu. As the exasperated character in My Cousin Vinny said, “the whole shop has the flu!”

The concertos of raspy coughs, sneezes, and moans have been the background noise as we have put this paper together. Sheila was the first to get it -- leading my husband to dub her “typhoid Mary” -- then I fell on Friday, and Teresa and Keeley were taken down this weekend. It would be funny if we didn’t all feel so terrible. Tim showed his profound sensitivity to our suffering by fleeing the office on

This has been one fierce, nasty virus. I have never taken more than four days to kick anything, and I’m about on day five still feeling fairly yucky. But we all come to work anyway, because the paper must go on. Floods will rise, kingdoms will fall, but the newspaper, God willing, will keep being printed.

My family is planning on traveling down to Mississippi for the holidays, which may have to be rescheduled since both of my children caught the flu bug a few days ago. Our whole house is full of tissues, wrappers from cough drops, half-drunk cans of ginger-ale, and Ibuprofen bottles. I just want to take my whole house and dump it in a crater full of

Compromised health does have a way of helping you set priorities, however. Here in the office, we have all been moaning about all those tasks we do before Christmas, whether cleaning, or writing a particular Christmas story, or decorating, or preparing for the meal. When you feel like this, you quickly sort through all the things that were on your “must do,” list, and realize the majority of them were on the “would really feel better about myself if I did them, and would not have a nagging guilty feeling,” list.

Being present at my son’s birthday party on Saturday was important; baking him a homemade chocolate cake, not so much.

So may all of you enjoy the holidays, and discern carefully what’s truly important, and what can be left off the list.

“Let us not be weary in well doing, for in due season we shall reap if we faint not.”

Azbill, Thacker, and Spivey Win “Snowy Day” Writing Contest

Special to the Citizen

Peyton Azbill, a fifth-grade student at Berea Community School, wrote the winning entry in the “Snowy Day” short story contest; Melody Thacker, the second place winner, is in eighth grade at Foley Middle School; and the third place winner is Grace Spivey, also from Berea Community fifth grade. Peyton and her family attended the December meeting of the Berea Writers Circle. Her story was read and her First Place certificate presented.

The Berea Writers Circle, a fairly new group in Berea, partnered with the Berea Citizen on the short story contest. The winners, it was decided, would be printed in The Citizen once they were announced. The two organizations both wanted to encourage young writers, and give them a chance to be published.

Entries came from second through eighth grades, from Berea Community, Foley Middle School, and home-schooled students. The judge, who teaches middle school composition and English in Jackson County, noted that Peyton’s tale had all the elements of a classic story: a clear beginning, middle, and end as well as increasing tension and suspense. Second place writer, Melody wrote detailed descriptions painting images of a fun day. Grace, third place, created a contemporary story with strong dialogue.

“I had a lot of fun judging the contest entries; it’s really inspiring to know that today’s kids are actually writing and are working to hone their craft,” Lindsey Wilson, the judge of the writing contest, said. “All of the stories were good in their individual way as there were many age levels represented. Overall, what set the winning stories apart from the others was the presence of a plot from beginning to finish, supported by character development and punctuated by elements like imagination, word choice, and varied and unique sentence structures.”

Emily Roche, judging coordinator for the Berea Writers Circle, said, “The young writers showed they have talent and imagination. We’re looking forward to reading more stories in next year’s contest.”

Joyce Hunsucker of the Berea Writers Circle, left, presents Peyton Azbill, a fifth-grader at Berea Community Elementary, with the first place certificate for winning the “Snowy Day” short story contest.

The Magical Snow Day

by Peyton Azbill

One day four kids and their dog went outside to go sledding. There was a girl named Stacey, a boy named Tom, a boy named Pete, and lastly a girl named Mack. Oh, I can’t forget the dog named Stanley. When they got on the sled, they started off good, but then there was a giant hill! So when they tried to stop, it didn’t work and then they flew off the cliff and went into a portal and it locked them all in. So they all started to talk about where they were and the magical appearance of the place.

At that moment, a note floated into the direction of Stanley, the dog. Stacey picked the note up and read out loud to the group. “If you want to get out of Winter Wonderland, you will have to find all four crystals. You will have until midnight to complete the task and help save Winter Wonderland and defeat the Snow Monster! Sincerely, Gloria.”

All four children and Stanley began the work of finding the crystals. At first they thought of dividing into groups, but felt that would be too dangerous. So they started out together and the first place they came upon was a small house with bright lights on the roof. Gently, Pete opened the door and yelled, “Hello,” but there wasn’t an answer. In the corner next to the small kitchen was a beat-up chest.

Tom carefully opened the chest and there was a beautiful crystal laying in the bottom. They grabbed it and took off for the door. As the four exited the small cottage with Stanley leading the pack, a small woman dressed in bright blue was standing at the end of the sidewalk. Stanley ran to say hello to the woman. As he did, the woman swiped Stanley in her arms and magically she lifted off the ground as if she could fly and disappeared into the sky. Mack, Pete, Tom, and Stacey were in shock. Their beloved pet was missing!

At that same moment, another note floated from the sky. It was from the woman who had Stanley. It said, ‘If you want Stanley back, you must find the remaining three crystals and bring them to me.’ On the back of the note was a map with five locations marked with an X. The children recognize one of the X’s as the cottage they just left. So the children quickly set out on finding the other three crystals.

The closest location to the cottage is a place called

Black Forest. As they start to walk in the direction of Black Forest, the clouds become very dark and it makes it difficult to see. Finally they enter the forest and are able to make their way down a path. At the end of the path is a basket. Located inside that basket is the second crystal which Tom grabs and puts in his pocket.

They study the map and realize they are close to the second X called Windy Mountain. As the four children start in the direction of Windy Mountain, the wind starts to blow making it almost impossible to walk. The children fight through and find the third crystal laying at the base of a massive tree. Mack gently places into her pocket.

They look at the map and the third X is marked Gloria’s Place. Pete says, “I wonder if this is the woman who has Stanley.”

Mack says, “Well, we will find it out. Let’s go!”

They start in the direction of the cottage as time is starting to tick away. Gloria’s Place is located on Snow Peak and the children realize that they are running out of time to save their dog Stanley. As they start the long walk up the Peak, a glimmer catches Stacey’s eye. She realizes that it is a light shining through a window. The children yell, “It’s Gloria’s Place!”

At that moment the door opens and out runs Stanley. The children are so happy to see their furry friend. Standing in the door is the woman. She says, “You completed the mission?”

Pete says, “We don’t have the fourth crystal!”

She asks, “How many do you have?”

“Three,” is the reply from Tom.

Gloria states that they have finished the job as she has the fourth crystal. The children jump up and down and so does Stanley.

At the back of Gloria’s cottage was a door that almost glowed. She said, “Open the door and walk through. You will find your way back home through there.”

All four kids and Stanley walk through the door. They find themselves sitting on their sled in Tom’s back yard. Attached to Stanley’s collar is a note. Mack opens the note and reads aloud. “Thank you for helping me defeat the Snow Monster of Winter Wonderland. Gloria.”

At that moment the back door opened and Tom’s mom was standing there. She said, “I hope you all have had a wonderful time sledding on this magical day! I have some hot chocolate ready for you. It is just what you need after a day of ex-

Winter Love

by Melody Thacker

Winter. Days get shorter, nights get colder, and the world enters a state of white bliss. It was Selena’s favorite time of year, with all the time to spend with family and the amazing colors when it was near time for Christmas. But the most amazing part was getting out of school because of snow! She was always excited for it to be winter.

Yawning, Selena rose her arms up and stretched as she got out of her warm bed. The black-haired girl rubbed her eyes and checked her alarm clock. 7:48, it read. “Oh no! I’m going to be late!” Selena rushed to get ready for school, and ran downstairs to go out the door and get on her bus. But as she began to leave the warmth of her home, her mother stopped her.

“Um, no...” she muttered as she walked towards the living room window. Peeking out, all Selena could see was white with some red specks from her car in the driveway, hidden like a rose in the snow.

“Nathan! Wake up!” Selena screamed at her brother, who was not a morning person at all. She knocked on his door after getting dressed, hearing a groggy “I’m coming,” from behind the door. Selena excitedly ran out the door, immediately jumping into the snow.

The rest of the day, Selena, Nathan, and the rest of their family spent all their time in the cold, white snow.

“Winter is the best season,” Selena happily thought to herself as she closed her eyes to sleep at the end of the day.

A Snowy Christmas Day

by Grace Spivey

At the end of the day everyone in the classroom was chanting “Jingle Bells”. Everyone except Charolette. Charolette was a girl with a very poor family and didn’t have friends. “You’re all dismissed. Have a wonderful break!” said Mrs. Camry. It was Christmas break and everyone was in a rush to get to the bus and go home!

On the bus, there was no more room. So Charolette had to sit with Rebecca. She was in Mrs. Camry’s class, too. “Hi, I’m Rebecca. I have seen you in my class before. You’re Charolette, right?”

Charolette looked at her and kinda frowned. “Yeah, I’m Charolette.”

“I love your hair,” said Rebecca.

“Um, thanks,” said Charolette.

Just then the bus driver said, “REBECCA!”

“Oops. Well, this is my stop. I’ll see you when we get back from Christmas break.”

That next week the kids were all walking into the classroom telling their friends what they got for Christmas. To stop the fuss, Mrs. Camry told the class to put their chairs in a big circle so that way everyone could share what they got for Christmas. Mrs. Camry started with Claire. She got a new phone. Then another kid went and he said he got some Legos.

It was Charolette’s turn. When she got asked the question what did you get for Christmas, she said, “I didn’t really get anything. Just a trip to the McDonald’s play place and then to the homeless shelter to play in the snow for the very first time.”

The whole class started laughing, except for Rebecca. Charolette started to cry, and then Mrs. Camry yelled at the class and said to stop! Rebecca told them to stop, too.

Then it was time for recess. It had snowed and Charolette was very excited! Rebecca asked what she was going to do for recess, and Charolette said, “I’m going to play in the snow!”

Rebecca asked, “Do you mind if I join you?”

“Not at all!” said Charolette. The girls had a great time at recess, because they made snow angels, built snowmen, and had a snowball fight!

On Friday, the girls made a plan to spend the night with each other. Their parents made an arrangement for them to stay with each other. Charolette stayed the night with Rebecca and they played in the snow the whole time and they became BEST FRIENDS!

Alewine, Howard to Wed

Brandy Alewine and Anthony Howard would like to announce their engagement to be married. They will be getting married next summer, on June 20, 2015, at Lighthouse Baptist Church.

Gary and Gina Alewine are the parents of the bride-to-be, and Christine Brown is her grandmother. Wilma and Paul Howard are the parents of the groom, and the grandparents are Everett and Evelyn Rogers.

Howards Celebrate 25 Years

Betty Howard, who is from Kentucky but lived in Columbus, Georgia, met Darrell Howard, who is also from Kentucky, when he was in the military, and stationed at Ft. Benning, Ga.

They married on December 23, 1989, and are now celebrating their silver anniversary.

Retired veteran Darrell and Betty Howard now reside in Berea.

Letters to SANTA

Thursday, December 25, 2014 Page B1

Maggie Stratton enjoys talking to Santa about her wishes for Christmas on December 16, when he visited the Welcome Center at the train depot. Berea Parks and Recreation sponsored the event.

Word From Berea Streets

"What are you looking forward to the most this Christmas?"

Jennifer Combs said, "Celebrating my savior's birthday, and spending time with my family."

Sharon Anglin said, "Spending time with my family and relaxing, and celebrating Jesus' birthday."

Sheila Johnson said, "Celebrating my savior's birthday."

Dear Santa, I bet you and your elves are busy. I will leave you milk and cookies. My brothers and me have been good. I wish for three gifts. I want make up, jewelry, and an xbox 360. Sincerely, Sarah Tipton

Dear Santa, I love you Santa and your raindeer and I hope you like making toys for the kids this Christmas. I have been a very good boy and I love you. I want a green machine this year. Also I want a laptop this Christmas and a pair of shoes this year. Sincerely, Taylor Parker

Dear Santa, I hope you have a great Christmas and Mrs. Clause too. I hope your elves have a great Christmas and are doing good. I have been good all year and my brother has too. I have been really good to my family. I will leave milk and cookies for you I will leave carrots and water for your raindeer. I want a laptop. I want a puppy. I also want an iphone 5. Sincerely, Dylan Payne

Dear Santa, How are you? I hope that you are good. I have been good.

For Christmas please bring me a present. I would like a Super Mario game because I love Mario. I would like some Legos because they are fun. I want Just Dance game because I love to dance. I will leave you milk and cookies. Love, Johnny Whetstone

Dear Santa, I hope you are doing well at the North Pole. Please tell the elves that I said thank you for making us toys. I hope you are doing good on Christmas eve so you can deliver presents to the good children. I hope you have a great Christmas. I hope I have been good. I think I have because I try not to fight but I do. And I try to be nice to Karlee but I don't like her messing with Vinny. I am only asking for three things for Christmas. I hope I can have an iphone, an American Girl doll named Caraline, and last of all American girl doll clothes. Tell Mrs. Clause that I said hi and stuff. I am looking forward to you delivering presents to the children. I will leafe you cookies and milk. Sincerely, Reagan Kurz

The Bluegrass Area Development District estimated in 1974 that Berea would grow in population by 6,000 within the next ten years. They estimated that someday, Berea would have 40,000. Keeping those numbers in mind, Don Burrell from Bluegrass Area addressed the city council about future planning, and the planned interstate interchange north of Berea. The Berea Parks and Recreation Commission heard about an environmental education park on the area called the open spaces. Eight guests, including Berea school superintendent William Bennett, school member Robert Johnstone, and city councilman Jack Farmer all attended. Mary Anne Johnstone and Vi Farmer, representing the students and teacher at Berea Community School who were interested in the park-laboratory, presented the plan for the park, which would include a 1/2-acre shallow pond, a large bird feeder, log seats and a bird-watching station.

quirements.

Hostesses at the tables for the Annual Christmas program given by Woman' Industrial were Mrs. June Fisher, Nell and Rexie Gill, Mrs. Mary Hill, Mrs. Ethel Hounshell, Emily Reed and Mildred Roberts, Mrs. Janet Spring, Mrs. Theda Strunk, Mrs. Nola VanderMeer, Mrs. Anne Weatherford, and Mrs. Mossie Wyker. The lunch committee included Mrs. Catherine Bateman, Mrs. Alice Dick, and Mrs. Mary Walker. Mrs. Kay Orwig was in charge of the dining room.

Dear Santa,
How are you? I hope you and your elves ate good and everyone at the North Pole is good. I have been a very good girl. I help my friends. I am very helpful. I want a puppy because I can have fun with it.
Love, Larkin White

Dear Santa,
How are you? I hope you have a good Christmas. I have been good this year. I want nerf guns, airsoft guns and trucks. I will leave you cookies and milk. I will have carrots and water for the reindeer.
Sincerely, Kaydon Grant

Dear Santa,
How are you? I hope that you and your elves have a good Christmas. I bet your elves have worked very hard. I hope they do very good. I will leave you some milk and cookies and some carrots for the reindeer. I only want three things this year. I want an Elsa skating toy, some clothes for my dolls, and a calesta pony.
Love, Kailey Halcomb

Dear Santa,
I hope the elves are doing fine. How is Mrs. Clause? I hope your reindeer are ready to run. I have been a very good girl. I make up my bed and help my mom make marshmallows. I am only putting three things on my Christmas list this year. I want an ipod because it is fun to play with. I want an American Girl doll because I like to play with its hair. I want makeup because it is fun to put on my face.
Sincerely, Claireece Barnes

Dear Santa,
How are you doing? I hope you are having a good time with your reindeer. I have been good this year because I kept my room clean. I took care of my baby sister and listened to my mom. I want a laptop so I can use it to learn. I also want a touch screen phone so I can do math on it. I want a babydoll that walks and has a high chair. I will leave cookies and milk. Sincerely, Patricia Warren

Dear Santa,
How are you? How are the elves doing today? Do you remember when my mom took a picture of you? I bet that the elves are very busy. When you come to my house I will put oats on the grass for the reindeer. I have been a good boy this year. I have been listening to my parents, doing chores, taking care of my baby sister and taking care of my three dogs. I am only asking for three things. I want a psp minecraft game because I like minecraft games. I also want a phone because I want to call my granny. I will leave you milk and cookies.
Sincerely, Jayden Bell

Dear Santa,
How are you? I wish I can see you. Are you real? If I could see you we would have fun and play with each other. I was good at school and at home and with my friends. I listen and get on rainbow at school. I stay with mom at church so I don't get in trouble. What I want for Christmas is a transformer game because its awesome and I only have transformers game. I want a UK basketball uniform because basketball is my favorite sport. The wildcats are my favorite team. I want a basketball because it bounces. I will leave you milk, cookies and cupcakes.

Dear Santa,
When will you come our town?
How is Frosty? How is Rudolph doing/ why did you send us a reindeer instead of an elf? I would love ot have an Xbox 1 and Horizon2. I was good this morning. I helped my cousins mom move into her house. Also,
I do all my chores at home. I hope you read my letter. Tell Rudolph I said hi.
Love Evan

Dear Santa,
How is Mrs. Claus doing? Is Mrs. Claus sick and are the Elves doing well is one of two of the Elves sick this year I would love to have a ipod and a pupp. I think I should get this because I went to dollar great and bough some toys for little kids that don't have any toys. I hope you have a save trip!
Love Sierra

Dear Santa,
How is Mrs. Claus doing this year? I have a question for you. How did you make the cookies? Do you know if I am on the naughty list again this year? This year I hope I am on the nice list.

Dear mommy and daddy.
Thak you for teaching me about Christmas. What to you wont for Christmas? This year I wolde love to have a puppy. I deserve this because I do my chors and take care of myc at evry day. Onnother resing. Is I gave a lady my gummies to eat the last resing I deserve this I have to go to school every day and get up early Have a good Christmas.
Love Shailynn

Dear Santa,
How are you and Mrs. Claus
Feeling today. Is Mrs. Claus feeling well. How did you become Santa. This year I would love to have a guitar. I feel I deserve this because I help my mom with the groceries list.
Another reason I deserve this I listen to my mom. The last reason I shold get this is I be good I hope you are safe on Christmas night.
Love, Matthew

Dear Santa,
How is the sleigh doing? How do you go around the world giving presents in one night?

How do you get the May dust for the nanedeerrs thirve. I would love to have a lego movie set lord buissness. The first reason I should get this gift ie bcasue
I helped my brother. Another reason I shall get this gift is because when my mom was at the store she forgot what she needed from the store so I told her thaht you for hedding my letter so I hpe you have fun on the big night.
Love Spencer

Dear Santa,
How is mrs. Claus doing? Is she feeding you yummy cookies? How did you become Santa claus? How are you? Is mrs. Claus fixing you cookies? I hope the raindeers ant sick for the trip? This year I would love some dance stuff? I feel like I deserv this beacas
I washed the dishes. Another thing is I'm good at scool the last thing is I killed some bugs thank you for reading my letter.
Love Maycee

Dear Santa,
How is Mrs. Claus doing? Has she been feed you too many cookies this year? This year I want a WWF Game. I want a AK47 BeBee Gun. I have been cleaning my room and feeling and hamsters. Have a nice trip.
Love Reece

Dear Santa,
How are you this year? This year I would like a xbox 360 and minecraft. I deserve this becues. I been good at aschool.
Another reson I should get this becues I use good mamers. The final reson I should get this becuese I sad pleas and thank you. I hoep you get this letter.
Love Anthony

Dear Santa,
How do the reindeer fly? Do you Sprinkle magic dust on them. This year I would want Lego jek14. I feel like I dezerv him because I got a 100 on my test. The second reason why I deserv him is because I feel the dogs. The last reason why I deserv him is because I take the dogs out. I hope you have a safe trip.
Love, Justin

Dear Santa,
Do you now if I am on the naughty or nice list? I'm almost positive I'm on the nice list. This year I would love to have a American girl doll.
I feel I deserve this because I cleaned my room for a weelh. Next I wash the dish for a week. Finally I cleaned my dog's bed for two weeks.
Thanks For your time to read my letter. I hope you have a good time giving perentes out.
Love, Taylor

Dear Santa,
How is Mrs. Claus doing was she being mean or nice this year?
I would love to have monstes High walkie talkies because I clen my room. Because I clen my mom room. Because I clen my baby bather up. I would love to have a zoomer dog.
Love Alexis

Dear Santa,
How are the reindeer? I wish you a Merry Christmas Santa!
I love you. I want a Zoomer Dino. I've been very good today. There will be a supriz for you. Stay warm.
Love, Daetan

Dear Santa,
How are you and the raindeer doing? I know you are busy this time of year. I don't want much this year all I want is a star was lego kit with Anikin and his ship. I deserv this because I helped my sister with cleaning up her room, I vel-enterd to take out the trash and I ceaned my room. By and have safe trip.
From Justin

Dear Santa,
When will you come to our town on your slay and will you give me a ride on your slay?
This year i would love to have a hunger games for xbox 360 minecraft. I feel Id deserv this because I used my good man-ers when I was on the phone.
Another reason for getting this is I have to geve my sister a bath ervy day due to her durty feet. Think you for taking time to read my letter stay warm and have a safe trip.
