"It's been a very busy year, but a good year."

Fraley reflects on first 12 months as Mayor

By Keith Taylor
News Editor

It's been a busy first year for Berea Mayor Bruce Fraley.

"It does not feel like it has been a year," Fraley said. "It has really flown by fast, because I think when you're busy, it sometimes seems to fly the fastest. It has been a very busy year, but a good year."

Fraley, who is nearing the completion of the first year of a four-year term, said his initial 12 months has been a very "fulfilling experience" serving as Berea's fifth mayor.

Prior to being elected mayor, Fraley served a two-year term on the Berea City Council.

"It's everything that I thought it would be and then some," he said. "I think you can come in prepared, where you have been involved in city government before, but until you're actually in the position of mayor you don't really understand the breadth of responsibility that goes with that executive authority. There is a learning curve for anyone who comes in (to the position). I think a big part of that is learning the position just like anyone else coming in new."

Fraley has spoken to various groups and organizations in the past year and will continue to do that in the future and wants to be involved in the community. He also is on the board of directors of the Bluegrass Area Development District.

Leadership changes

Long time Berea City Adninistator, Randy Stone with his wife and granddaugher at a retirement celebration given by the city in his honor.

In addition to learning his new position, Fraley has made several appointments, including a new city manager, city clerk, and business development director. Former chief of police, David Gregory was hired to replace long-term city manager Randy Stone, who retired after serving the city for 22 years, while

City Administrator, David Gregory at the introduction of Eric Scott, newly appointed BPD Chief of Police, to City Council.

Robin Adams was hired to replace retiring veteran city clerk Cheryl Chasteen. Donna Angel was brought in from the private sector to lead the city's business development office. Eric Scott replaced Gregory as Berea's Police Chief.

Fraley took a three-prong approach to the business development office in an effort to attract and maintain businesses in Berea and said Angel "brings a wealth of experience into city government." He also has added a small business development center, which he said has a "wonderful reputation and is federally funded through the United States Small Business Administration." It will be led by Valerie Henderson. Additionally, the city has a contract with Fortune Solutions LLC to help with recruiting and retention of larger employers and industrial manufacturing facilities. They are skilled in coordinating with the Kentucky Cabinet for Economic Development in helping those businesses acquire available funding and state incentives.

Phase II of Hyster-Yale's expansion project is expected to be announced in the coming months.

In his first year, Hyster-Yale broke ground for a 171,000 square foot expansion in what Fraley said was the "biggest business development news that this city has seen in a decade or more." He indicated that Fortune Solutions played a key role in the manufacturing plant's first phase of planned expansion, helping ensure state funding for the project.

"They (Hyster-Yale) are doing this in two phases," he said. "The first phase is the construction of the 171,000-square foot (addition) and they will be making more announcements about phase II in the coming months. That's important to Berea. I think it signals the long-term commitment from the Hyster-Yale group to the city of Berea. It speaks well for the Taxes: The Madison County Fiscal Court passed an 11.4 cent property tax increase but a local tax watch dog group gathered enough signatures for a petition recall that would have placed the measure on the 2020 November ballot. The court later rescinded the increase and instead implemented a five percent insurance premium tax on county residents.

Expansion: Hyster-Yale broke ground on an expansion that will add to the existing facility and increase the plant size by 30 percent. The land was donated by the City of Berea and officials broke ground on the expansion last August.

Stone steps aside: Longtime City Administrator Randy Stone stepped down and retired last September following 22 years as the chief presiding officer of the city. Stone received the C.C. Hensley Distinguished Service Award and a red tie at his final City Council meeting.

The great outdoors

Clint Patterson, College Forester

Science and Truth Not Synonymous

The Eastern Forest Research Managers Conference last year, held in Tennessee, was the best conference of any kind I have ever been to. We toured the Forensic Farm at the experimental forest lands at Oak Ridge and learned how they use dousing (sometimes called "witching") to find human remains. Old timers knew how to find water this way, using a freshly cut forked twig, or a pair of wires. The researcher at the Forensic Farm, a scientist from Indiana with a PhD and top secret government contracts, used a simple wire coat hanger.

The second day of the conference, we toured the experimental forest and facilities at Arnold Airforce Base near Tullahoma, and heard a presentation by an engineer who works for NASA. His presentation was on their project to build a 3D printing factory on the moon by 2020. He showed us drawings from as early as the 1930s showing plans to colonize Mars and said that is the ultimate purpose of building the 3D factory, to get us to Mars. Well, it is now 2020, and how many of you have heard even a peep about such a project happening at all, let alone soon?

I rode in a van with seven or eight other foresters from around the country and enjoyed visiting with them. I had visited with the forester who had organized the TN trip a few times before, and he asked me to share some of my "haunted house stories" since we were on a trip which featured some pretty "far out" topics. I told about how I had raised my children up in a house where I had seen translucent orbs with my naked eye intelligently interact, move, appear and disappear; had heard and even recorded audible voices and taken photos with non-digital cameras which clearly showed people in the background who had lived there in the 1800's; and one photo with a mirror showed in the reflection of the mirror the wall before it was plastered. These occurrences were not common, but frequent enough that nearly every relative who came to visit over the years experienced something paranormal there at least once.

The foresters in the van were all intrigued and entertained by my true stories. A couple of them were total skeptics who just shook their heads, while another couple related similar experiences they had had and related how much they enjoyed hearing that others had experienced these things and took them seriously. Nearly everyone had known an "old timer" who planted "by the signs" and we began to discuss dousing and planetary movements together, combining to field day topics. I had such an "old timer" show me how to "witch water" many years ago and he even told me within three feet how deep the water was, and was proven right when the well was dug. He did everything "by the signs" as did many of the older people I knew growing up, and whatever they did always seemed to always turn out.

A man by the name of Raymon Grace, from southwest Virginia, has quite a following with his dousing for clean water and other purposes, even to help lower violence in schools and abuse on Indian Reservations. I don't know how such things work, or how to explain them, but I don't think such things are "not science". Everything is science, really. The truth is, we have a lot of science to figure out before we know how anything works, let alone everything. Quantum physics has a concept called "quantum entanglement" that postulates that everything that exists once was One, and blew up in the Big Bang, but continued to be connected in some mysterious way. Einstein called this "spooky action at a distance". Many of the greatest scientists of all time, including Max Planck, the father of quantum physics, were men and women of faith who did not see a separation between science and the matters of faith and Spirit. Nikola Tesla believed that when we begin to study matters of spirit as science, we will accelerate human knowledge exponentially. So, tell your weird stories and experiences and let your imagination run free, like a scientist.

Taylor's Thoughts

Keith Taylor
News Editor

Has it been two decades?

I remember at the turn of the 21st century we were all concerned about computer crashes, the unknown, and were just getting used to talking on cell phones. The iMac was relatively new and the iPhone was a few years away from becoming part of our everyday lives.

I have to admit I was a little concerned about what entering a new century would involve. We have elected three Presidents since then, survived an unthinkable attack on our great nation on 9/11 and elected Barack Obama as the first African American President in history following nearly a decade of fighting a war on terrorism nationally and globally.

Today's society is much different than the one we lived in 20 years ago and thankfully, I'm certainly not the person I was in 1999. Back then, I was single and had yet to meet my future bride. Now, Rhonda and I are working on our 20th wedding anniversary and we are living in our second home we have purchased as a couple. Rhonda is nearing retirement and I'm going to probably have to write until I can't write anymore.

Whether we realize it or not, we have set the tone for future generations to follow. We have technology at our fingertips and this generation has no idea what it's like to talk on a rotary phone, communicate without a cell phone and make use of quality time, especially when it comes to family gatherings.

Technology has been a good thing for our society, but sometimes too much of a good thing can be a bad thing. Sometimes I think it would be good to go back in time and reinsert some of the things we grew up with into our daily routine.

We could start by doing unto others as we would have them do unto you. The Golden Rule has been around for centuries and yet remains one of the most powerful things we can live by. Differing opinions have been part of mankind since the beginning of time, with one group claiming to have dominion over another group. You can always agree to disagree and there is nothing wrong with that, despite what today's society is dictating.

One of the things I have been trying to do recently is spend less time on social media and more time with people, things and causes that are more meaningful in my life. Because of the changing times, technology is a big part of my job as a journalist, but I'm doing my best to not let it consume me. I want to spend more time with God, family and things that matter in the next decade and make a positive difference in people's lives moving forward.

I challenge you to do the same and together we can make this town, county, state, nation and world a better place to live. The future generations deserve it and so do we.

Hello, 2020 and Happy New Year!

FROM OUR READERS

Workman: Leaders ignoring global warming

Dear Editor,

I recently read a quote from the writings of Wendell Berry. It is "The earth is what we all have in common."

A day or so after, I heard on a news program that the delegates from 250 countries to the conference on global warming could not agree on carbon market price so came to no agreement at all on cutting carbon emissions. The responsibility for that "leadership" seems to be given to the U.S., Saudi Arabia, and Brazil.

These "leaders" certainly do not think like Wendell Berry regarding living on this planet. Or, are they ostriches, denying reality? When there is no more sand usable it will be too late to say, "Oh, we should have done more to understand that we really are in the same boat, and no area is exempt from global warming catastrophe."

Well, it's 2020, so you know it's got to be done.

That's right – a proper list that both reflects on growth in the past year and looks forward to potential for the next year. So to start us out, I thought I would share the Top 20 Things You Can Do at the Madison County Public Library.

Almost all of the items on the list are offered at no additional cost (you already support the Library with your tax dollars). Some items require an MCPL card (also available for free), and many you can just stop by the library and do. A great starting point for all of these activities is our newly redesigned website, www.madisonlibrary.org.

First on the list is pretty much the most obvious: read a book or a magazine. What may surprise you a bit is the number of formats from which you can choose to read them: large type and regular print, CD and PlayAway audio, and downloadable and streaming eBook and eAudio.

The next item is also probably pretty predictable for a public library: watch a movie. Again, the surprise comes in the numerous ways the library offers you to do just that. Yes, we have thousands of DVDs available for checkout with your library card. And movies are shown several days a week in both locations. But you can also stream movies through the Hoopla app (access through our website) with your library card.

For you TV series bingers out there, particularly those fond of the British oeuvre, Hoopla lets you stream Acorn TV's catalog, including some of my favorites like Agatha Christie's Poirot, featuring the inimitable David Suchet, and Father Brown, starring Mark Williams. We currently have a limit of three downloads per user per month, but that number may increase in the next budget cycle.

Coming in at number three is something I'm sure all of you have heard about but few have actually tried it: Learn how to use a 3D printer. That's right. For the low, low price of zero dollars and a few hours of your time, you can complete the Maker Space Safety Class and then move on to learn the elements of design so you can create and print on your own.

Number four may surprise you by its sheer popularity: Play a game. Not only can you check out video games in a variety of platforms with your MCPL card, we also have gaming consoles in both locations where you can play onsite. But rising in popularity is the broad spectrum of board games and role playing games. In Berea, the Pokemon Club meets January 12 at 3:30. Each Sunday starting at 1 PM in Richmond, you can join in the Tabletop Adventurers' Society. And more groups form each week around common interests in Firefly, D & D, and many others. Check the library calendar on our website for up-to-date listings.

Number Five is a feel good option: Help out your community. For MCPL to provide the level of service it does, we rely on our faithful volunteers who donate hundreds of hours of their precious time each month. And the volunteer possibilities are wide ranging – shelving books, teaching classes, serving on the Board of Trustees, working a book sale organized by the Friends of the Library, helping plant and maintain one of our community garden beds, assisting with a story time for children – there truly is something for everyone.

If a path to better health is on your mind, Number six is right up your alley. Do Yoga (or Zumba or PiYo). Yoga classes this month are January 11 at 10 AM in Richmond and January 13 at 9:30 AM in Berea. The Richmond location hosts PiYo (a Pilates/Yoga hybrid) January 18 at 10 AM and Zumba on January 25 at 10 AM. Keep checking our website and Facebook page for additional opportunities added throughout the month.

Number seven is always fun: Get free stuff. The monthly Free Market – January 2 at 5:30 PM in Berea and January 18, 1-3 pm in Richmond – is a great exchange. Bring in items you can no longer use, and take away items that you can use.

Eighth on the list is cool and colorful: Create something with Legos. You can join the weekly Lego Club in Berea (Tuesdays at 3:30 PM) or just check out a box of Legos to use in the library to create on your own. The Richmond location is expanding your options this month with the new Master Builders program Wednesdays from 4-5 PM, adding K-NEX and Joinks to the mix with Legos.

Number nine will certainly surprise you: search for a Cryptid. That's right. The Kentucky Bigfoot Conference is coming to the Richmond location this April. Look for more details soon.

At number 10, it's time to get your tech on. MCPL offers a variety of technologies to explore in our new Digital Studio in Richmond, our weekly Technology 1-on-1 sessions in both locations, and classes for all ages on everything from coding to electronics.

Number 11 may not surprise you, but the variety of options just might: Do a craft. Various quilt groups meet on Saturdays in Richmond, Nifty Needlers meet Monday nights in Richmond, and both locations offer weekly projects for kids and teens. This month's offerings include perler bead art, paper fans, wire sculptures, paper snowflakes, and button making.

You may not want to start thinking about Number 12, but the time is fast approaching: Get your taxes done. Thanks to our wonderful partnership with AARP, free tax preparation is offered in both locations beginning in February. Staff in both locations will begin scheduling appointments within the next couple of weeks.

Number 13 may be humble in scope, but when you need it, it's a huge time saver: Make copies. We offer color and B&W copying and printing at a very low cost. You can even send your print job to the library from your home or phone using the mobile printing option on the website.

Number 14 is brand new: Sew. We are currently piloting a program in the Richmond Digital Studio that makes sewing machines available for use in the library.

Our Number 15 is already a celebrity, but some of you may not have yet had the pleasure of an introduction: Meet a bearded dragon. Our beautiful and much-loved MuShu resides in the Berea location, and when she is not busy warming herself in a sunny windowsill, she loves to meet new friends.

You can get your cozy on this winter with Number 16 on the list: Sit by the fire and read a good book. Both locations now have beautiful gas fireplaces surrounded by comfy seating and, of course, plenty of good books.

With Number 17, we'll keep it short and simple: Fax stuff. It's free and self-serve. Available all hours we're open, send and receive.

Number 18 is both practical and handy: Get something notarized. We have multiple notaries in both locations, and the service is free. Just make sure to call ahead to find out if a notary is available.

It's not too early to start thinking about Number 19: Get your garden on. MCPL offers more than 10,000 free seed packets each year, plus you can check out a variety of garden and yard tools with your library card.

Finally, at Number 20 on the list, you discover your ancestry without sending your DNA off in a box. Not only do we have genealogical and historical resources available onsite for use, we also provide free access to digital resources (you can use a library computer or your own – all you need is an MCPL card). Resources available to use anywhere include Heritage Quest and MyHeritage Library Edition. Ancestry Library Edition is also available exclusively at our Richmond and Berea locations.

The Madison County Public Library wishes you a very Happy New Year! We hope to see you soon at the library!

Reflections

from January 2000
Berea Citizen Archives

There was a second attempt in less than five months to burglarize the Peoples Bank ATM located on Chestnut Street. Thursday morning presented a similar sight as a morning in mid-August of 1999. According to bank sources, any attempt to gain entry to the vault did fail but the building did sustain over $1000 dollars of exernal damage and more damage inside. However, the automatic teller machine did remain in operation. An attempt of this type is a 3rd degree felony burglary offence.

Revelers at the Club Arena celebrated the beginning of the 40th year of roller-skating in Berea on December 31, 1999. Rink manager, George Wyatt stated, "We celebrated the New Year's party during the regular Friday evening session and this was officially the day we opened for business in 1960." Charlie and Polly Wyatt still enjoy the skating business and Charlie, at 89 years, is still skating. Polly worked at the ticket window until this season.

An official portrait of Fred Williams was unveiled at the Berea National Bank stockholders meeting on Tuesday. Williams retired after having served 19 years as the bank president, chief executive officer and chairman of the board.

Ora and Beulah Phelps as well as Chris (Andi) Cochran and Brandi (Scott) Douglas announced the marriage of their daughter/mother, Diana, to Jarvis Martin, son of Murphy and Eva Martin. Diana and Jarvis were married Nov. 13, 1999 in Pigeon Forge, Tenn. with Rev. Robert Parsons officiating.

YEAR

plant here, their management staff and their employees. The city has worked with them to do the best we can to support them."

He said the new business development approach will be to provide a "one stop shop" for business development services for all Berea businesses.

Donna Angel has been hired as Berea's Director of Economic Developement.

"We will (eventually) have all of our offices of business development on the second and third floor of city hall," he said. "You will have all three of them together (in one location). The way this has evolved has exceeded my expectations."

Mayor Bruce Fraley said Donnie Davidson, who currently heads Berea's Public Works divison, has brought new energy to the department.

Donnie Davidson is currently serving as the director of Berea Public Works. Fraley said he has "brought a new energy to the department."

"Donnie is a seasoned public works employee," he said. "He has ingenuity and know-how. Donnie is one of these guys who can do anything. He's a very good supervisor and he's very respected by his staff, his peers and everybody in the city. Donnie has been doing really good things and has been fun to work with."

Building relationships

In his role as mayor, Fraley said he has adjusted from being a policy maker to a chief executive officer of the city and said those two components are "separate but equal" parts of city government.

Mayor Fraley said it is important that he maintain positive working relationships with City Council members. Fraley and David Gregory along with council members manned the spoonbread booth at the 2019 festival. Pictured with Fraley and Gregory are Jim Davis, Emily LaDouceur, Ronnie Terrill and John Payne.

"What hasn't changed is having positive, working relationships with the people on the city council, whether you are here on the city council or are acting in a different role as the mayor," he said. "You still want to have good, positive, working relationships and that's one thing that I think that I have been able to continue. Also you have to have a healthy amount of respect for city council members who are the legislators elected by the citizens. You want to maintain that positive, constructive, working relationship with all of them and respect differences and points of view of each individual member (of city council).

"Ultimately whether you are on council or are the mayor, our job is to serve the citizens of Berea, Kentucky to the very best of our ability and to do what's in the best interest of the city and the citizens as a whole, not for individuals or groups. It's for the whole and you have to take it that way. I think the council does a good job of that."

Fraley has also developed and maintained a working relationship with Richmond Mayor Robert Blythe and Madison County Judge Executive Reagan Taylor. He has working relationships with many in state government including State Representatives Deanna Frazier and Robert Goforth, and state Senator Jared Carpenter, along with various other state government officials. He also maintains a woking relationship with Berea College.

At the 2019 City of Berea Industry Appreciation Luncheon, Berea College President Lyle Roelofs, noted the college generates an estimated $204 million in annual economic activity in Berea.

"Reagan, Robert and I meet regularly to discuss items in common," Fraley said. "I think continuing to have that relationship evolve in a productive and positive manner is important."

Fraley lauded the city's strategic plan that was presented at the last Berea City Council meeting on Dec. 17. The plan included input from the citizens of Berea and was put together by the Kentucky League of Cities.

Fraley with Madison County Judge Executive Reagan Taylor and Richmond Mayor Robert Blythe. The three leaders meet regularly to work on common projects.

Past, future projects

In his first year, the U.S. 25 project has been mostly completed with a few "punch list" items that need to be finished. The project was a state endeavor and took approximately two years to complete.

"I think it's a big improvement and long overdue," Fraley said. "I wish it could have gone faster, but these things take time and it's up to the state and the contractor on the timetable and getting it complete. But I think it's a big improvement in the north end of town."

He said the bypass project continues to be a focal point for his administration and that it is the only project in District 7 that is ready for construction. All rights of way have been purchased for the project and it's "ready to go."

"We have a new administration (in Frankfort) and a new transportation secretary," Fraley said. "What I would like to do as soon as possible is work with our local elected officials and leadership with the state House of Representatives and transportation committee to make sure we are moving the process forward. The project is approved. It just has to be funded. We want to make sure we keep that on the front burner. That's a major key to the growth of our city."

In July Berea Municipal Utilities drew water from Cowbell reservoir instead of Owsley Fork, part of preparations for raising the dam at Owsley Fork by six feet. The test was successful, according to BMU Director Kevin Howard. Testing has also commenced to draw the city's water from B-Lake.

Recently, Fraley has been involved in getting a grant for a pavilion that will be used by the local farmers market and for other events within the city. The pavilion would be located adjacent to the Tolle Building.

"You have to be cautiously optimistic in these things," he said. "We feel very optimistic that we have a good chance of landing the funding for the multi-use pavilion. I think that will be a catalyst for business development in the area around Hwy. 21 and U.S. 25 South."

Fraley says he will continue to work on projects vital to the city's future. They include various trails in the city, including Brushy Fork, the Owsley Fork Dam project, which is crucial to the city's water supply and is a top priority. He also is considering the impact to Berea and all of Madison County as changes come to the Bluegrass Army Depot.

Budget crisis strikes Sheriff's office

Shortfall forces Coyle to lay off four deputies, some services likely to be affected

By Keith Taylor
News Editor

The ongoing budget crunch has hit the Madison County Sheriff's Department, and as a result, fewer officers will be patrolling the roadways in the future.

At its first meeting of the decade at the Berea City Annex, the Madison County Fiscal Court approved Sheriff Mike Coyle's budget that is $300,000 less than last year. Coyle has been forced to lay off four officers and won't be adding additional fleet to his office during the next fiscal year.

Sheriff Mike Coyle

"A few months ago and a few weeks ago, this is definitely not the budget I would have thought (to have received) with all of our accomplishments and achievements we've been able to do. I wish there had been a little bit more priorities put on the sheriff's office. I don't like this budget. I'm losing four deputies, we're not able to replace cars that we need to keep our people safe and keep the calls that we get throughout the county.

Mayor, city council honors Club Arena Skating Rink for 60 years of good times

By Keith Taylor
News Editor

The Berea City Council ushered in a new year with a meeting that included a short agenda and a proclamation that honored the Club Arena Skating Rink.

The Club Arena Skating Rink was founded in 1960 by the late Charlie and Polly Wyatt and is now owned and managed by Doris and George Wyatt.

The business is celebrating 60 years this year and Berea Mayor Bruce Fraley recognized this month as Roller Skating Month in Berea.

Wyatt addressed the council and said building the rink was a dream of his late father to manage and added it even experienced some growing pains in the early stages of development.

The family of Marvin D. Farmer releases his newest book

Marvin's Lessons; A Devotional of Messages That Were Once Written for The Berea Citizen

A native of Berea, Marvin D. Farmer was a wonderful deliverer of God's word. From 1997 to 2000, Marvin wrote a weekly Christian column for this newspaper.

This became a devotional message in which he had an opportunity to share meaningful lessons to those in the community who looked forward to the weekly articles. The articles were printed every Thursday.

In 2017, Marvin gave a notebook of copied Berea Citizen articles to one of his daughters and asked if they could be converted into a book.

That book, Marvin's Lessons, was completed in December 2019 and is available for purchase. It consists of more than 80 lessons, at least half of the articles that were published during his time of service to the newspaper, and cover a range of topics addressing the Christian faith.

About Marvin D. Farmer: Marvin D. Farmer was a Beattyville, Kentucky native until he left there to serve in the Marine Corps in both the Atlantic and Pacific theatres during World War II. He was a resident of Berea, Kentucky since 1952 and was employed at the Blue Grass Army Depot in Richmond, Kentucky. He became the senior civilian there before his retirement in 1976.

His extensive community involvement included being a charter member of the Berea Rotary Club, club secretary for many years, and District Governor in 1976. He was a Deacon, Sunday School teacher and scout leader at Berea Baptist Church. Marvin also served as a trustee of Campbellsville College and a Berea Chamber of Commerce member and received numerous awards and recognitions.

Marvin passed away September 5, 2019, five months from his 99th birthday. He is survived by Virginia, his wife of 71 years, five children, nine grandchildren, and twelve great grandchildren. Marvin also wrote the autobiography Marvin's Story and the spiritual One Knee is Not Enough.

The heart of the matter

Taylor's Thoughts

Keith Taylor
News Editor

Rhonda and I celebrated New Year's in Charlotte, where I covered the Belk Bowl last week. It was a fun experience and the weather was ideal. Not summertime, of course, but the sun was shining and snow was nowhere to be found, especially while driving through Asheville, North Carolina.

The highlight of the trip was Kentucky's win over Virginia Tech. Rhonda doesn't get to travel with me very much because of differing schedules, but her presence made the trip even more enjoyable.

We laughed, cried, and got to spend time with nephew, Tyler Vickers, who is in the Air Force and stationed in Goldsboro, North Carolina. We hit a huge raccoon in the drive to Charlotte on Highway 74 and ate well, of course.

On the drive home, we listened to Sirius Radio. When you drive, the mind starts to wander and gives me personally an opportunity to spend time with God.

It was during that moment a thought crossed my mind. As we were driving on I-40, numerous cars passed by with Kentucky license plates and some of them were looking at me weird. It was then I realized our rental had Indiana license plates and the folks passing us assumed we were from Indiana.

However, little did they know that the person driving the car happened to be someone who covers the Wildcats and wrote about their team winning the Belk Bowl. They looked at the outside and not the inside.

That's the way it is with our lives. People tend to look at the outward appearance and not the heart. Be careful when you judge others.

The heart doesn't lie.

Current Events: Who Was Krusty's Goose?

Notes to Consider

G. S. Morris,
Retired soldier, teacher

Kentucky voters are once again subjected to a Democrat Amy McGrath political campaign. Oddly, very little mention has been made this go-round by McGrath concerning her service in the United States Marine Corps. When she ran in 2018 for Kentukucky's Sixth Congressional seat, she carpet bombed the airwaves with slick television commercials that led (at least this writer) to believe she'd been a Marine fighter pilot with scores of cigar chomping combat missions under her belt. Then, I began to research her service record.

To recap, I published a number of articles in multiple Kentucky newspapers exposing the fact McGrath had never piloted an aircraft in combat. My findings were not disputed by McGrath (I have now reached out to her campaign on a half-dozen occasions without receiving a reply) and the conclusions of my initial investigation were confirmed in the 18 October 2018 Edition of the Lexington Herald-Leader:

"So my flying missions, the 89 combat missions, I was a weapons systems officer," McGrath said last month. "That's why I was always very careful to say I was the first women [sic] to fly in an F-18 because I was a back-seater and I have always been up front about that."

I'll leave it up to each individual to decide for themselves whether or not her 2018 campaign ads were "up front" concerning what she did or did not do in the Marine Corps. However, let us assume she was perfectly clear about her combat service; what other questions arise concerning McGrath's flight record as a pilot?

The very first clue I had concerning what McGrath did or did not do in service was connected to the fact there's not a single photograph in existence of a Marine F/A-18D fighter jet stenciled with her name outside the pilot's seat. I believe further probable cause exists to establish that Amy McGrath has never piloted a military aircraft operationally (only "piloting" for training purposes). Why's that significant? It's significant because US taxpayers forked out more than a million dollars for her pilot flight training. If she ever piloted operationally, doesn't it stand to reason she would have had her own backseat Weapons Systems Officer (WSO)? Why haven't we seen or heard from this one individual(s) who could most clearly express to voters the content of McGrath's character? She can't offer the excuse of having never used other service members as props in her ads. There is also nothing restricting McGrath from making public all her USMC Fitness Reports for the years 2005 - 2011; the years (according to her US Naval Academy Staff bio) she alluded to having been an "operational" pilot.

Of course, the absence of a "Goose" to McGrath's "Krusty" (e.g., Top Gun's fictional F-14 WSO "Goose" to pilot "Maverick") could also indicate McGrath either didn't prove to be a competent front seater; or she was just one of the early props in the (on-going) Pentagon women "warriors" charade. If she was one of the latter, it would further support this old combat arms drill sergeant's long-held contention we should abolish all male/female sports classifications for a minimum period of one calendar year; after which time we may then have an adult conversation about the roles of men and women in uniform and the serious reality of its impact on our national security.

Developing.

FROM OUR READERS

Jett: The bumper sticker was right

Dear Editor,
The bumper sticker was right
Having just moved to Berea I needed to find a pharmacist and pharmacy I trusted and could rely on. I went to several of the big name pharmacies here in town over a two-month period and wasn't satisfied with any of them. Between having to wait for 45 minutes to get my medicines filled at every one of them and even longer at Wal-Mart and encountering people who could care less if I was a customer or not and pharmacists who acted like I was bothering them when I asked questions, I was about to go to Richmond. Then I saw a bumper sticker that said, "Shop Local". I checked out my phone book and saw there was a pharmacy here in town that wasn't a big name pharmacy. I went to Berea Drug here in town and was shocked at the difference. Everyone was super friendly, and Rob, the pharmacist, actually made a point to talk to me without me asking to talk to him! He took his time going over my medicines and even actually asked how I liked Berea and about my family. I was shocked he cared about me on a personal level after my experience at the other pharmacies! Everyone there was so friendly and actually cared I was a customer, especially a lady named Sally. Plus, I was in and out in less than 15 minutes! I was so impressed with the entire staff there. They all treated me like a friend. So whoever had the bumper sticker that said "Shop Local" thank you!

Eagles runner-up in Florida tournament

By Mike Moore
For The Citizen

The Madison Southern Eagles fell just short in their quest to return to Berea as Rock Holiday champ as they lost 67-65 to Riverdale County (Bronx, New York) in the finals of the holiday tournament in Coconut Creek, Florida.

One of the main benefits of the Florida trip was team building, Coach Austin Newton said.

"We had an almost near perfect trip, other than the last two minutes of the championship game when we couldn't close it out," he said. "It was so good for us to get some warm weather and get out of town together and enjoy each other's company. Hopefully, the bonds and trust that have been built will help us during the tough times the rest of the season."

Southern opened the tournament by defeating Manhattan (New York) Prep, 64-47. They followed that win up with a 60-51 win versus Lake Mary (Florida) Prep.

Chad Fugate and Nate Turner both averaged 18 points a game during the trip.

Southern will take on cross-town rival Berea Friday at 7:30 p.m.

The Berea Pirates went 2-0 during a holiday tournament in Knightstown, Indiana over the break.

The Pirates cruised past Williamstown, 78-53, in the first game, and followed that win up with an 80-78 win over Jackson City.

Jaylen Dorsey scored 21 versus Williamstown and dropped in 29 against Jackson City. Jayden Smith finished with 13 points against Williamstown while adding 13 points and 11 rebounds in the win over Jackson City.

Timmy Thompson and Trenton Wilson had 11 points each against Williamstown. Quenten Morgan added 13 points against Jackson City.

The Pirates will host the Madison Southern Eagles at 7:30 p.m. Friday.

Lady Eagles topple Cooper and Bryan Station

Samantha Cornelison scored 21 points to lead the Madison Southern Lady Eagles to a 54-46 victory in the Centria Metals/Penn Station Shootout held at Franklin County.

The two wins came on the heels of the Winterfest Shootout in Sevierville, Tennessee, where the Lady Eagles went 1-2.

Macie Daniels added 13 points, while Skylar Sparks finished with nine points against Cooper.

On Monday, the Lady Eagles returned home and knocked off Bryan Station, 71-64, behind Cornelison's 20-point effort. Sunni Walters added 16 points and seven rebounds in the win.

Coach Allie Turley said the holiday tournament atmosphere would help his squad down the road.

"It was a great team-building experience, and we played some good competition," he said. "I believe the experience will benefit us down the stretch."

The Lady Eagles will travel to Berea for a 6 p.m. game Friday.

Lady Pirates rout Washington County

The Berea Lady Pirates cruised to a 47-30 win at Washington County Monday night. Alexis Newman led Berea with 18 points. Madison Howell added nine rebounds and four points in the win.

The Lady Pirates went 1-1 in the City Between the Lakes Shootout over the holidays. The Lady Pirates defeated Paintsville, 51-40 in the first game before falling to Johnson Central, 54-26, in the second game.

Howell finished with 20 points versus Paintsville, while Newman and Sophie Brewer added 14 and 10 points, respectively. Howell led Berea with nine points in the loss to Johnson Central.

Berea will host Madison Southern at 6 p.m. Friday.

Legislation to raise the age from 18 passed Congress as part of the year-end spending bill and was signed into law by President Trump Dec. 20.

The "Tobacco 21" legislation, co-sponsored by Senate Majority Leader Mitch McConnell, R-Ky., and Sen. Tim Kaine, D-Va., gave the federal government up to nine months to develop and implement the regulation, but the U.S. Food and Drug Administration issued a statement on its website the same day the bill was signed into law to make the new age threshold effective immediately.

The statement said, "It is now illegal for a retailer to sell any tobacco product – including cigarettes, cigars and e-cigarettes – to anyone under 21. FDA will provide additional details on this issue as they become available." Dr. Stephen M. Hahn, the FDA commissioner, tweeted that "more details will be forthcoming as we update our regulations to carry out this provision of law."

Some health advocates have praised the change as a way to reverse the surge in teen use of e-cigarettes, but others said it's an important move.

time," Wyatt said. "Roller skating rinks, at that time, were just one level above pool halls and bars. There were a lot of people who didn't think that [roller rink] was a good thing for the city of Berea."

Berea city officials, such as the late Mayor C.C. Hensley and Bill Finnell, Fraley's grandfather, approved of the idea and the business has been a mainstay on Broadway for the post 60 years.

"We're very proud of what we've been able to do in Old Town," Wyatt said. "I don't know how much longer we'll continue to do it but we're still having fun and I hope we do it for many more years.

"We really appreciate this. This is a great recognition."

Wyatt was humbled by the recognition and was joined by his brother Terry Wyatt, as well as his wife Doris Wyatt during the presentation of the proclamation.

"This means more to us than you may know," he said.

times, but when we have to lay off people, and our people carry guns and they wear bullet-proof vests to go to work … our society is not a very good society right now. I know we don't suit everybody, but this budget coming down from last year's budget to meet this budget — $300,000 — has pretty much cut our legs out from under us."

Coyle added the cuts likely will extend beyond personnel and cruisers.

"I don't know what services we're going to keep providing," he said. "It's just devastating. … here we are, another year, another budget and things I have addressed before, such as overtime, pay raises for our employees, vehicles — we're still in the same dilemma with this budget crunch and financial situation that has hit our county."

Coyle added the department's obligation to the Administrative Office of the Courts, such as providing court security and the transport of prisoners from county to county and added inmate transport increased 20 percent, including a 40 percent rise in out of country transport from 2017-2019.

Madison County Judge Executive Reagan Taylor said most of the services provided by Coyle's department are "state mandated" such as serving papers that require 11 delivery attempts.

"There are a lot of rules and regulations that are set by the state that (Coyle) has to follow that ultimately cost money," Taylor said. "From a business mind and a business standpoint, I couldn't imagine in my years of business, getting up in the morning and having to go do a job, knowing that I am losing money. We are having to supplement some of (those costs which) is totally unfair. When we talk about unfunded mandates, a lot of times, that is what we're talking about. These are mandates that are passed down from the state government to us and it doesn't matter who the elected official is. We don't have a choice but to abide by those laws. A lot of times, that puts us in those tough situations."

Madison County Clerk Kenny Barger urged citizens to get involved at the state level to help make a difference by voicing concerns to local, elected state officials.

"Instead of putting deputies on the road, we have to choose to work with our state agencies that he has zero control over, that forces him to haul prisoners back and forth across the state. They haven't looked to modernize, they haven't looked at their fee schedule and this is my opinion, not an expert opinion in any way, shape or form, but they don't care. What came to a head (last year) with the tax increase, is going to be a positive, because people are now paying attention and they're starting to understand a little more as the old saying (goes), it rolls down hill and we're at the bottom. … we have to do what the law says."

Coyle assured the court is department will continue to be committed to public safety.

"I can assure you that our people, we're going to keep going on," he said. "I'm very proud to hold this position … We're going to go forward, we're not going to go backwards and I'm just proud to be a Madison Countian."

The court also approved Barger's budget for the upcoming year. Barger said revenues will increase because of an adjustment in recording fees for deeds and mortgages.

"The reason I'm able to bring a budget that is low in costs and high in revenue is because of the folks that I get to work with every day," Barger said. "I've got a group of co-workers that I would put up against anyone — not just government organizations but private organizations as far as being driven to do the right thing for the public and doing the right thing for the court and our office. They've been able to return these fees back to the court at the end of our term. "

• Entered into an inter-local agreement along with the City of Berea, City of Richmond as co-signers for a $500,000 loan needed to secure funding for the $1.3 million project for a T-Hanger at the Madison County Airport. FDA bans sale of most flavors in cartridge-based e-cigarettes

By Melissa Patrick
Kentucky Health News

The Trump administration has announced a ban on the sale of flavored e-cigarettes except for menthol and tobacco-flavored products for cartridge-based systems, like pods produced by Juul, the leading manufacturer. The ban does not include flavors in tank systems sold in vape shops.

The U.S. Food and Drug Administration said in a news release that it made these concessions to support adults who use e-cigarettes as a quit aide for traditional cigarettes.

The FDA has not approved any e-cigarette product as a smoking cessation method and the smokefree.gov website says, "So far, the research shows there is limited evidence that e-cigarettes are effective for helping smokers quit."

President Trump suggested in September that his administration would ban all flavors from the market except for tobacco, but backed off after protests from users, retailers and manufacturers.

On Dec. 31, two days before the policy announcement, Trump told reporters that the new policy would protect both families and the industry.

Vaping advocates have said a full ban on flavored e-cigs would put vape shops out of business, and hurt adults who are trying to use the devices to quit.

Health advocates are more concerned about the public health impacts of these products, especially related to the surge in teen use which has been driven by the flavors. They have urged the Trump administration to take all flavored products, including menthol, off the market.

The FDA release says it didn't ban menthol because a 2019 federal survey found that fruit and mint flavors were the two most popular e-cigarette flavors among teens, with menthol least favored.

The 2019 "Monitoring the Future" study found that menthol was among the least popular flavors among students, at less than 2.3% for eighth graders, less than 3% for 10th graders, and less than 6% for high-school seniors.

However, public-health officials worry that the absence of other flavors will result in a shift toward menthol products, citing the National Youth Tobacco Survey, which shows that youth use of mint and menthol e-cigarettes increased in 2019 after Juul restricted its other flavors.

More than 6 million U.S. middle and high school students are current users of tobacco products, and 5.3 million of them, or 85 percent, are using e-cigarettes, according to the latest annual National Youth Tobacco Survey.

The latest data for e-cigarette use by Kentucky teens, from 2018, shows e-cig use had nearly doubled from 2016, with more than one in four high-school seniors and one of seven eighth-graders reporting they used the devices, the Kentucky Incentives for Prevention study found.

The American Medical Association called the policy a step in the right direction, but added that it didn't go far enough.

A statement from the Campaign for Tobacco-Free Kids said the policy "falls woefully short of the bold action the administration promised" to address the youth e-cigarette epidemic. Further, it called the policy a win for the e-cigarette industry.

Reflections

from January 1960
Berea Citizen Archives

A new police cruiser was ordered for the Berea Police Department. Police Chief R.L. LeMaster said Britton Chevrolet Co. submitted the low bid of $875 as the price of the new car after the trade-in allowance on the old 1958 model was deducted. The new car was an eight-cylinder Chevrolet with heavy-duty accessories.

The Berea High Pirates ran up an impressive tally in a contest against the Madison Central Indians. Ahead 37-35 at the end of the third, the Pirates caught fire (perhaps because of the inspired cheering of the jammed gymnasium) and rolled up a 63-49 win when the final buzzer sounded. Hot-shooting Clayton Gabbard with 31 points led the Pirates, and Bill Watson collected 11.

Berea's New Year baby was William Denver Blanton, born to Mr. and Mrs. Paul O. Blanton of Lexington at 5:15 p.m. at the Berea College Hospital on January 1.

Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Harrison, East Street, announced the arrival of a baby daughter, Ronda Dee, on Dec. 26 in the Central Baptist Hospital in Lexington.

A baby son, Boyd Lee Ambrose, was born to Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Ambrose (Rina Thomas) in Pattie A. Clay Infirmary in Richmond on Jan. 10th. Mr. Ambrose is in Puerto Rico with U.S. Navy and Mrs. Ambrose has been staying in Richmond with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Thomas. Mrs. Ambrose and baby son will join Mr. Ambrose in Puerto Rico in the spring.

Marine Pfc. Charles W. Saylor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fusion J. Saylor of East Street, graduated Dec. 14 from the Aviation Radio Repair course at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot, San Diego, Calif.

It was on January 15, 1891, that Amanda Miracle became the bride of Carlo Britton Arnett. Now, 69 years later, Mr.

Berea Community Middle and Elementary awarded for High Attendance Day in Region 16

Berea Community Middle School and Berea Community Elementary School were both awarded certificates for High Attendance Day in Region 16 on September 17, 2019.

The awards are in recognition for having the highest percentages of students in attendance at school on this date. Every year the Kentucky Directors of Pupil Personnel select a date in mid-September as High Attendance Day across the State.

This campaign is an effort to raise awareness regarding the importance of attendance at school. It is estimated that across the nation, 8 million students are missing so many days of school that they are academically at risk.

Missing just 10% (approximately 18 days of school) for any reason, whether the absence is excused or unexcused, can translate into third graders being unable to master reading, sixth graders failing subjects, and ninth graders dropping out of high school.

This year Berea Community Schools have placed a greater emphasis on school attendance through identifying where prevention and early intervention are needed in an effort to get students to school. They are doing this through engaging students and families with the importance of what coming to school can mean for a student.

A statement from the administration of BCS said, "We are so thrilled that these efforts were recognized with these award certificates. So many including staff and students have worked really hard to make great strides this year with our attendance percentages. It takes a team to improve attendance and requires a systemic approach."

Berea Middle School was awarded the 2019 Region 16 Small Middle High Attendance Day Award with an overall 98.04% attendance (98.04% of students were in attendance). Berea Elementary School was awarded the 2019 Region 16 Large Elementary High Attendance Day Award with an overall 98.37% attendance (98.37% of students were in attendance).

Region 16 consists of several counties including Madison, Garrard, Estill, and Lincoln.

Berea College students to protest on Thursday

Thursday, January 9, 2020 on Fairchild lawn, Berea College students and student organizations, BRAID, and Socialists of Berea will hold a protest featuring student speakers to express opposition to the current president's recent military escalation with the Islamic Republic of Iran.

The protest will take place at 234 Scaffold Cane Road from 3 to 4 pm near Fairchild Hall on the Alumni Building Patio of Berea College. A release stated, "A portion of the student body felt driven to express absolute opposition to a potential war with Iran."

Students will be giving informative speeches and leading chants. Some posters will be provided, but attendees are encouraged to engage and bring their own.

By protesting, the students hope to discourage any escalation of war by those in power. They also seek to demonstrate the displeasure that the future leaders of America feel towards the possibility of war with Iran.

The release said, "You're encouraged by the organizers to stand with your fellow community members and express your personal feelings about the war."

King's impact 'huge'

By Keith Taylor
News Editor

Jackie Burnside has never forgotten the impact the late Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. had on her life and society as a whole.

How much of an influence?

"Huge," Burnside said earlier this week. "Capital H-U-G-E — huge."

Jackie Burnside said the late Martin Luther King Jr. had a huge impact on the civil rights movement.

Burnside, who grew up in Alabama and currently serves as a professor of Phsycology at Berea College and is an alumni of the school, said King remains a central figure in American society from the impact he had during the Civil Rights movement that brought an end to segregation in America.

"He was very peaceful in his approach and very caring about everyone," she said. "He really as we say, walked his talk about showing God's love for everybody. I like the way he worked with people of all different colors and he was very consistent in his message about how change needed to come in terms of segregation and that America was not the America it could be and was meant to be because of racial segregation."

As a child, Burnside attended a segregated school until the seventh grade.

Cara's Story

A very private woman speaks her mind; a story of sexual abuse, bullying, and mental illness

Publisher's note: In an attempt to change perceptions and shed light on mental health issues, Melissa Osborne shares the tragic story of her daughter, Cara Anne Gardner Roecker. As you read the account, which will be presented in installments over the next weeks, she asks that readers, "Please proceed with compassion."

By Melissa Osborne

For quite some time my husband, Randy Osborne, and I have discussed whether it would be wise for me to submit this story for publication. On the one hand I would like to highlight the devastating and far-reaching effects sexual abuse and bullying can have on a person for life and the contribution these horrible experiences can make to mental illness. I also want to tell my daughter, Cara Anne Gardner Roecker's, story in order to set the record straight. In the case of Cara's story, I have two options: not saying anything and letting people think what they will, or being transparent. I chose the latter because my desire to tell Cara's story—one of tragedy, but also of resilience and triumph in spite of many challenges—outweighs any embarrassment or discomfort I feel. I also want to heighten awareness of mental illness in general. After considering the possibilities, Randy and I agree the potential benefits of sharing Cara's story outweigh the drawbacks. Those of you who know how typically private I am must know how difficult this is for me.

I have lived in Berea since 1979. At that time my immediate

MCHD: Diabetes on the rise in Kentucky and Madison County

Diabetes comes with a higher risk of serious complications including blindness, kidney failure, heart disease, stroke and loss of toes, feet or legs.

Data from the Kentucky Behavioral Risk Factor Survey reveal from 2004 -2017, diagnosed diabetes rose from 7.4 % to 12.9 % in the adult population. In 2013 in Madison County, 6,623 known adult individuals were diagnosed with diabetes, which is 10.3 % of the total population. The Bluegrass Region of Kentucky has an overall adult prevalence of 11.8 % diagnosed diabetes.

Diabetes diagnosis numbers are 1 in 8 or 442,500 adults in Kentucky. But there is a high percentage of our population that has Type 2 Diabetes and are not aware they have this chronic disease.

Symptoms include the following: excess thirst, frequent urination, blurry vision, tired, hungry, headache, nausea, slow-healing wounds and possibly weight loss. If you are experiencing any of these symptoms, speak to your medical provider.

In 2017, the Kentucky Behavioral Risk Factor Survey revealed 1 in 10 adults or 288,000 (10.2%) have diagnosed prediabetes. As in diabetes, many members of our population are not aware they have prediabetes. At this stage, a great benefit to prevent or delay the development of type 2 diabetes would be to enroll in a prediabetes program that would emphasize reduction of 7% of body weight and 150 minutes of physical activity per week.

Madison County Health Department offers the following free programs:

- Accredited/Recognized Diabetes Self-Management Education (DSME) classes for individuals who have been diagnosed with diabetes. These classes are offered free of charge at the Madison County Health Department on Tuesday and Thursday afternoon in the odd months of a calendar year.
- National Diabetes Prevention Program from the Centers for Disease Control for those individuals who are at risk for the development of type 2 diabetes or have been diagnosed with prediabetes. The classes are offered free and help prevent the development of type 2 diabetes with weight loss and increased physical activity. Classes offered online beginning in January 2020. Email Lauram.nagle@ky.gov to register or to ask questions.

Council closely mirrors town

Scenter Stage
Teresa Scenters, Publisher

Politics is a pretty common topic of conversation around our office and the subject of the 2020 Berea City Council election came up recently. Speculation on who will and who won't run for reelection among the current members had us wondering how things will shake out come August and the filing deadline. I expect most, if not all, of them to file for a next term.

While our city elections are labeled non-partisan, no political race is really non-partisan these days. A banker friend told me years ago that although Berea sometimes has a reputation for being quite liberal it's not true. He contended that we're actually very much a conservative town.

Honestly, to my eyes, the current council, as a whole, more reflects the political make-up of Berea - left, right, and center - than any we've seen in years. There is one extremely left leaning council member who, like her counterparts in the community at large, is very much in the minority but is quite vocal and concentrates on steering Berea in a leftist direction by sheer will. Then there's the quieter, more thoughtful appearing member who also leans left and who has a congenial disposition. Each of them comprises twelve and a half percent of the Berea City Council. My guess is that a similar percentage of all Berea voters could also be counted either to the far left or just left of center in their political ideology.

There are also two members who seem to mostly fall into the middle of the road category, politically. One of them may be a bit more liberal and the other slightly more conservative, but both tend to be pretty much moderate in their views. Again, that seems to me to mirror the percentage of centrists in Berea's voting public.

The other four council members, 50 percent of the entire body, are clearly on the right politically. Once again, on local matters 50 percent seems a fairly accurate number of those who actually call themselves conservatives.

Local elections here are a horse of a different color in comparison to how we vote in national races. Analyzing the results in city precincts from the 2016 election supports the contention that most Berea voters are in fact conservative in their politics. Only one, Gay-Stephens, had a majority of voters cast ballots for Hillary Clinton in Novmber 2016, and even that precinct was closely divided.

I don't know anyone who isn't bothered by the divisiveness in the country and more particularly in our town. That said, I also don't know many, whether they place themselves on the left, right, or center, who are willing to compromise their convictions when it comes to voting for those who don't share their values.

Brings to mind a red letter Scripture passage, "Do not suppose that I have come to bring peace to the earth. I did not come to bring peace, but a sword."
- Matthew 10:34

Maybe all this division we're seeing shouldn't come as a big surprise.

A new subscriber and familiar face

Earlier this week, we had a visitor at the office. It was a familiar voice, one that I recognized very well and sure enough, it was someone that I knew.

My great uncle Billy May doesn't make many trips to Berea, but he wanted to subscribe to the paper and drove to our office to become a subscriber. Billy is special to me and I could sit and listen to him for hours and we can talk about anything from farming to the Kentucky Wildcats.

Despite my family's history with farming, I know very little about farm life, but Mom's family know plenty about farming and my late grandfather, J.B. May took care of the Coy Farms in Round Hill.

As a child, Dad would pack us up and take us to the Garrard County Stockyards nearly every Friday night. A lot of times we would see my grandfather in the stands with a number on a place card in his hand ready to make a deal on cattle. I can still see those cards dangling on a piece of wire in the stands that was sent to the office so the official transaction could be made.

I remember those long, winding drives on Ky. 52, but always happy when we arrived at the stock pen as cattle was auctioned off and sold. The best part was getting a hamburger and fries at the restaurant adjacent to the stockyards and that was always a treat. It was our Friday night dinner.

The beef we always bought ended up becoming our supply of meat for the year and it was always lean and so good. We also had hog meat, which also was equally as good.

The May family always had a hand in tobacco and I can remember helping my late grandfather and late uncle Jack strip tobacco in the barn. I didn't chop it or plant it. Stripping it was the extent of tobacco farming. Every time I see my uncle Billy, my mind goes back to the simpler times.

I remember visiting with uncle Billy a couple of years ago and we talked for hours about everything from A to Z. I asked him if he had a cell phone and he didn't have one. To this day he still doesn't have a cell phone.

He still uses his landline phone and has a little book where he stores his phone numbers. Technology has changed the way we communicate and to some degree has made our lives a little easier, but sometimes we are less productive and more complicated.

I told Billy he made my day by stopping by and subscribing to our paper and the first issue he gets in the mail is hopefully this one. He will know how much he means to me and his impact on my life.

Thank you, Billy for becoming a subscriber to our paper.

The atmosphere was electric as Madison Southern's boys' and girls' basketball teams traveled to Berea to square off against the Pirates last Friday. Fan support on both sides came out in full force to cheer on their respective teams. Madison Southern emerged victorious in a hard-earned sweep, with the Lady Eagles topping the Lady Pirates 47-43, while the Eagles put away the Pirates, 64-52 in a game much closer than the score indicated. (Photos by Mike Moore)

Rivalry party: Eagles sweep Pirates

By Mike Moore
For The Citizen

Berea's Jaylen Dorsey, above, beats the press put on by Madison Southern's Colby Sebastian in the first quarter of last Friday's game. Dorsey finished with 11 points and seven rebounds, while Sebastian finished with nine points and three steals. The Eagles defeated the Pirates, 64-52. At right, the Berea Lady Pirate defense converges on Madison Southern's Aleigh Richardson in the paint forcing Richardson to pass the ball to a teammate on the perimeter during third quarter action.

Electric.

That is one way to describe the energy emanating from Berea Community's gym Friday night as crosstown rivals Madison Southern and Berea squared off in a basketball doubleheader.

Eagles outlast Pirates

Playing in the nightcap, Madison Southern (8-6) and Berea (10-4) battled back and forth, with the Eagles pulling away in the final frame to pick up a 64-52 win.

Berea opened the game by controlling the first quarter action and led 12-7. Much of what Berea was able to do came from its rebounding game as the Pirates owned the boards, 44-29, including a 30-13 edge in the first half. However, the Pirates Achilles heel was turnovers as Southern forced 28 turnovers.

"I think the difference in the game was we were able to turn them over 28 times and score some points off those turnovers," Southern Coach Austin Newton said.

Berea Coach Eric Swords agreed.

"We shot ourselves in the foot with turnovers and missed free throws," he said. "But even with all of that, it was back and forth, and we lead for much of the game."

The back and forth play continued in the second quarter as the teams went into the locker rooms tied at 25. In the third quarter, Southern edged Berea outscoring the Pirates by five and took a 43-38 lead into the final quarter.

A Trenton Wilson three-pointer closed the gap to 55-51 late in the game, but that would be as close as Berea got as Southern converted free throws with Samuel Lee going 10-of-11 in the game, including 6-for-6 in the final minute. Lee finished with 14 points for the Eagles.

For the game, Southern went 22-for-29 at the foul line, while Berea connected on 21-for-36.

The Berea coach said his team is as talented as any team, but it needs to do better with protecting the ball.

"We have to work on some things, and grow from it," Swords said.

Nate Turner led Southern with 16 points and nine rebounds. Chad Fugate, Colby Sebastian and Hunter Buchanan each scored nine points in the win. Berea was paced by Jayden Smith's 16-point, eight rebound effort. Jaylen Dorsey finished with 11 points and seven rebounds. Wilson, Kobe Combs and Timmy Thompson scored six points each.

Lady Eagles hold off Berea

Playing before a packed house, Berea and Madison Southern girls' began the night's action with the Lady Eagles prevailing, 47-43.

"It was a great game to be a part of," Southern Coach Allie Turley said. "Both teams played extremely hard. The atmosphere was great; the energy and intensity that was in the gym are what you expect from a rival game."

The Lady Eagles controlled much of the first half tempo and powered by the play of Samantha Cornelison, Southern lead 28-17 at halftime. Cornelison led all scorers with 22 points in the game.

Momentum seemed to move to Berea's side in the second half, as Isis Rogers spearheaded the Lady Pirates' charge as the home team scrapped back and cut the lead to 36-32 at the end of the third period. Rogers led Berea with 20 points while pulling down eight rebounds.

Berea Coach Dammian Stepp said the game came down to shooting. Southern (9-5) did well in the first half, while his team found its stroke in the second half.

"I think the difference in the second half was shooting," Stepp said. "We were able to get back into the game, but just ran out of time. Madison Southern played well enough in the second half to keep their lead."

As Southern struggled to find its second-half stroke to deliver the knockout blow, Berea kept clawing back, but never managed to grab a second-half lead.

In the fourth quarter, Berea closed the gap to 42-40 after Madison and MacKenzie Howell combined for three foul shots with just over three minutes left in the game.

Turley said his team kept their cool and was pleased with how they closed the game out.

"When Berea made their run, I was proud of how our team did not lose focus," he said.

Though Berea's surge got them close, the Lady Pirates (7-8) never managed to get over the hump as Southern closed out the game by converting free throws.

Macie Daniels scored 13 for Southern, while grabbing eight rebounds and blocking seven shots. Madison Howell finished with seven points and five rebounds, while MacKenzie Howell added five points and four rebounds.

KING

FROM A1

"Even though I enjoyed school and had a great time in my childhood, we knew we weren't getting the same quality resources," she said. "The text books were used, and used in the white school system then given to the colored school system. Those were the conditions that his work really helped to change."

Burnside said King's impact reached beyond the color barrier and extended into the white community during his push for equality, especially in Alabama and the Bible Belt.

"A lot of white people who called themselves Christians (during that era)," she said. "They really were conforming to the racial segregation — the Jim Crowe aspect. King said we don't need to do that and invited them to work with the black people in the civil rights protests. That freed them to be more effectively who they were. That was a huge impact (in society)."

Burnside said King's vision for the country and racial equality has improved since his death in 1968.

"It has definitely taken a turn for the better," she said. "We found (that out) with the election of President Barack Obama (2008) for two terms and that was a huge symbol and huge evidence that people recognized a good leader when they saw one. That was a big plus."

Burnside said more work remains to be done considering the climate of today's society.

"When Dr. King was assassinated in Memphis, he was working with a group of sanitation employees who were underpaid and the other working conditions were just really bad. He was spearheading a multicultural, interracial group to help the people, the working class of the society. We definitely still need to make improvements on that."

Burnside said civil rights trails and museums in Selma, Birmingham and Montgomery are beneficial in preserving King's legacy and the Civil Rights Movement.

She also encouraged people to take part in a "Call to Action" movement to help bridge the gap in racial relations.

"EQUAL EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITY"

CARA

FROM A1

Cara Gardner, age four, happily displays a Christmas gift.

family consisted of Cara who was 3□ years old and Harold Gardner, my husband. We moved to Kentucky because both Harold and I were hired for positions at Berea College—he as Internal Auditor and I as Secretary to Willis D. Weatherford, President of the College. Also, Harold's parents, John and Sybil Gardner, lived in Irvine, Kentucky, so that was a primary consideration in our move to Kentucky. John Gardner pastored the First Christian Church in Irvine for several years prior to his retirement.

I begin by saying that no one has probably ever come from a more sheltered background than I did. My strict, ultra-conservative father was a Southern Baptist minister and he made sure that my three siblings and I were not exposed to anything much except for church, church, and more church. That said, I came to adulthood as a very naïve person.

Cara had many positive influences in her life over the years. One negative aspect of Cara's life is that her father began sexually abusing her when she was around 8 years old. I did not become aware of the abuse until Cara was in her early 20s. I believe her pain was so great that she repressed memories of the abuse. As I said, I had led a very sheltered life; I had no idea that there was anything as despicable as sexual abuse of children. During this time (early to mid-80s) there was not much information available about sexual abuse. This was well before the time of the internet for most of us. According to the research, being a victim of sexual abuse can set the abused person up for mistreatment by others—they are already used to the victim status at home before they ever venture out into the world. https://www.education.com/reference/article/bullying-child-abuse-sexual-domestic-violence/

When Cara reached the tough middle school years at a local school, she was severely bullied by several of the girls in her class. The bullying escalated to the point that teacher involvement was necessary. For the record, I have not revealed the names of the bullies, nor will I do so.

In hindsight, I realized that because she was an only child and didn't have the advantage of being toughened up by siblings, Cara probably took barbs and negative remarks from classmates (mostly female but some male as well) to heart, and I'm sure this showed in her mannerisms, which made matters worse. Another factor which probably contributed to the bullying was that Cara's two best friends moved away from Berea just prior to the 6th grade, leaving Cara without a friend group to buffer her.

The bullies didn't stop with their own class—they launched and promoted a "follow the crowd/mob mentality." Relatives of the main bullies were involved in influencing students in other grades/classes to shun Cara; also, a sports-related group was very involved as well. If someone wanted to be Cara's friend, their efforts were immediately quashed by one of the bullies; other students were more than likely afraid that if they were Cara's friend they would be targeted by bullies as well. Why was Cara bullied and made to feel like an outcast? Because a few popular girls decided it would be that way and nobody stood up to them to say that the behavior was wrong. One relevant article from https://nobullying.com/mob/ states:

When a person becomes the focal point of bullying abuse by a group of people, this is 'mobbing' according to the urban dictionary.

Peer Groups - One of the ways a peer group separates itself from others into cliques is by defining themselves as being different and superior to others. The students separate themselves into peer groups of "jocks," "nerds," "stoners," "cheerleaders," and so forth. For the dominant groups it is common for them to attack a weaker individual. There is a kind of reward system, which occurs when the crowd laughs at one person's humiliation. There is a negative vicarious enjoyment when watching a person under attack.

When a victim becomes a target, everyone in the crowd avoids the same type of attack on themselves.

A bright spot...when Cara attended various summer camps or the like, she always made friends and had a good time. The other participants at the camps didn't have preconceived notions about her.

While I shun the spotlight, my daughter was very comfortable in it; maybe she took after her two grandfathers who were both in the public eye a great deal due to their ministerial duties. In spite of many challenges and the rejection she experienced from bullying, Cara still participated in some school activities. I always admired her for that. She loved the band and played the flute and piccolo when she was in middle school and high school. During her freshman year she began high school at a different local school. The marching band at this school was much more competitive. Unfortunately, one of the main middle school bullies and other students also changed to this school at the same time, so the bullying continued somewhat and even bled over to community softball, as some of the students in both schools Cara attended were also involved in softball. Cara was "marked" as an outcast from middle school through her senior year. Fortunately, she started working at a local restaurant when she was 16 and also became involved in karate in Richmond, thereby building some new relationships.

Prior to the sexual abuse and bullying Cara endured, she was a happy, well-adjusted, sociable, and loving child. I have forgiven Cara's father and the bullies for their actions. While I don't excuse the behavior of the bullies, I realize that they were probably experiencing challenges of their own.

Cara became a freshman at Berea College in the fall of 1994. In August, 1997 she sustained a broken neck in a car accident. I was told late on the day of the accident that surgery would be required which could possibly result in her being paralyzed or walking with an abnormal gait. Fortunately, the surgery went very well. Cara walked normally the night of her surgery and was proclaimed a "miracle girl," requiring no physical therapy. The accident happened on a Monday, the operation occurred on Wednesday, and she went home on Friday of the same week thanks to wonderful providence of The Great Physician and Dr. Philip Tibbs, University of Kentucky Medical Center neurosurgeon. Cara experienced some head and neck pain following this accident but it was controllable via medication.

Cara was married in 1999 and in 2000 she graduated from Berea College with a double major in English and Music. In 2002, she entered the University of Toledo College of Law on a merit scholarship. Cara applied herself during her law school years—she was on her way to fulfilling her dream of becoming an attorney. The people of Toledo received Cara very warmly; without mean-spirited bullies around she was able to make many friends, entertain, and enjoy her life while she was in law school.

Graduation from law school fell on Mother's Day in 2005. Cara and I were both ecstatic when she graduated within a fraction of being number one in her class and was hired by a prestigious Chicago law firm where she had interned during law school.

Through the years, Cara had pain in her neck and some headaches from the 1997 car wreck, but the pain was manageable. She was able to practice as an attorney in Chicago for several years and especially enjoyed her pro bono work on behalf of the firm. In the Fall of 2008 on a rainy day in Chicago, Cara was riding in a cab which was rear-ended; the resulting injuries necessitated another neck surgery. After the surgery, she was free of head and neck pain for a time but the pain eventually returned and she became resistant to her usual medications. She had to go on disability due to chronic pain and migraines, ending her dream career.

Melissa with Cara at her graduation from law school on Mother's Day in 2005.

Cara's Story will be continued in next week's edition of The Berea Citizen.

Chasteen praised for service to the city

By Andy McDonald
For The Citizen

After serving 28 years and three mayors, retiring Berea City Clerk Cheryl Chasteen said serving the public remained her top priority during her tenure, though the nature of her job changed over the years. Chasteen said the opportunity to meet and serve people was one of the best things about her job.

"If you help someone solve a problem, you become their friend," Chasteen said. "Just that connection you make with people is something you can't put a price on. That is what I'll miss the most."

The project was one of 11 approved by the Kentucky Agricultural Development Board, chaired by Kentucky Governor Andy Beshear.

All 'A' repeat

The Berea Lady Pirates made a second consecutive appearance in the All "A" Classic State Tournament Wednesday morning at McBrayer Arena in Richmond. Berea dropped a 64-13 loss to Bethlehem in the first of eight games scheduled for the opening day of the five-day event. The appearance was the sixth for Berea, which lost for the first time in the opening round. The Lady Pirates advanced to the quarterfinals in their previous five appearances. In top photo, Berea varsity cheerleader Taylor Gillingham cheers on the Lady Pirates during pre-game introductions, while Lady Pirates guard Chesney Lovins, bottom left, dribbles toward the basket in the first quarter. Berea's Isis Rogers, bottom right, makes a move down the baseline in the first quarter. Lovins led Berea with five points. Berea managed six points in the opening quarter, but scored just seven in the final three quarters, including one in the final eight minutes. The Lady Pirates committed 27 turnovers against Bethlehem, which improved its record to 18-2 on the season. Berea captured the 11th Region All "A" title with a 35-31 win over Lexington Christian last weekend and school was dismissed on Wednesday so students could attend the tournament. Council mulls litter ordinance

By Andy McDonald
For The Citizen

The Berea City Council heard first reading of an ordinance that would impose fines on businesses and individuals caught littering.

Under the measure read Tuesday night, violators would be given the opportunity to clean up the litter, or possibly face a $500 fine.

Council member Emily LaDouceur expressed concern about the proposed ordinance, questioning whether the penalties would be unfairly imposed on what she called "marginalized" citizens, such as poor people. LaDouceur also questioned the effectiveness of what she called a "zero tolerance"

Cara's Story

A very private woman speaks her mind; a story of sexual abuse, bullying, and mental illness

Publisher's note: In an attempt to change perceptions and shed light on mental health issues, Melissa Osborne shares the tragic story of her daughter, Cara Anne Gardner Roecker. This is part two of Cara's Story. The first installment appeared in last week's paper.

Part II

By Melissa Osborne

In the last few years of her life, Cara began to show troubling symptoms and was diagnosed with Borderline Personality Disorder (BPD). Genetics can be a factor in the development of this disorder. (Cara's father also suffered from a diagnosed personality disorder.)

Signs and symptoms of BPD may include the following which are summarized below (Mayo Clinic https://www.mayoclinic.org/diseases-conditions/borderline-personality-disorder/symptoms-causes/syc-20370237).

• An intense fear of abandonment
• A pattern of unstable intense relationships
• Rapid changes in self-identity and self-image
• Periods of stress-related paranoia and loss of contact with reality
• Impulsive and risky behavior
• Suicidal threats or behavior or self-injury
• Wide mood swings lasting from a few hours to a few days
• Ongoing feelings of emptiness
• Inappropriate, intense anger

As with other mental health disorders, the causes of borderline personality disorder aren't fully understood. In addition to environmental factors - such as a history of child abuse or neglect - borderline personality disorder may be linked

Judge James Stouffer Chenault, 96, Richmond

Judge James Stouffer Chenault, 96, passed away January 16, 2020 in Richmond. He was born May 1, 1923 in Richmond to the late Joe Prewitt Chenault and Russell Stouffer Chenault. He was predeceased by his wife, Dorothy Neff Chenault, his brother, Joe Prewitt Chenault, Jr., and cousins that were raised with him as siblings, Mamie Hamilton Chaplin, Negia Hamilton Ward, and Russell Stouffer Hamilton.

Judge Chenault graduated Model High School and entered the United States Navy as an Apprentice Seaman in May 1943 during World War II. He served in the Pacific aboard the destroyer escort, USS Lamons, rising to Quartermaster, Third Class. He returned to the United States and attended USNR Midshipmen's School, was commissioned an Ensign, and returned to the Pacific serving aboard the cruiser, USS Topeka. He was honorably discharged from active duty in July 1946, having attained the rank of Lieutenant (j.g.).

He graduated from Eastern Kentucky University and the University of Kentucky Law School where he served as president of the law school Student Bar Association. After law school, he commenced solo practice in Richmond.

During this period, he served as Prosecuting Attorney for the City of Richmond and Commonwealth's Attorney for the 25th Judicial Circuit. He served as President of the Younger Lawyers Conference of the KBA, President of the Madison County Bar Association and President of the Commonwealth's Attorney's Association.

On September 30, 1966, Governor Edward T. Breathitt appointed him Circuit Judge for the 25th Judicial Circuit. He served with high distinction for 27 years, retiring on September 30, 1993. Judge Chenault was one of the drafters of the circuit court portion of the Judicial Article that was approved and adopted as part of Kentucky's Constitution in 1975, thus giving Kentucky the most modern and innovative court system in the United States.

Perhaps his major contribution to the improvement of the courts on a national basis was his introduction of video as the official trial court record in all jury trials in Madison Circuit Court in 1982. This was the first successful use of video as the official court record in the United States (and so far as can be ascertained, in the world!). The video use led to the awarding to the State of Kentucky a $100,000 grant by the John F. Kennedy School of Government of Harvard University for "Innovations in the Courts." He also placed all jury trials in Madison and Clark Counties on public access television as he believed openness brought respect to the court system.

Judge Chenault served five years as president of the Kentucky Circuit Judges Association and then as editor of its newsletter for the next eighteen years. He received various awards over the years, including Outstanding Trial Judge Award of the Kentucky Trial Academy of Trial Attorneys, Chief Justice's Special Award, Outstanding Alumnus of Eastern Kentucky University, and many other civic honors.

In 1998, he was inducted into the University of Kentucky Law Alumni Association Hall of Fame and in 2019 he was the first inductee into the Model Laboratory School Hall of Fame.

Judge Chenault was an avid EKU football and basketball fan, having attended games for more than 80 years. He was active in the Chenault Family National Association traveling each year to spend time with family and friends. He most enjoyed spending time with his grandson, James, his chauffer, bargain hunting buddy, and best friend.

He is survived by his daughter, Judge Jean Chenault Logue and her husband, Howard Logue, and his grandsons, James Howard Logue and Jordan Seth Logue.

Funeral services were conducted Wednesday, January 22, 2020 at The First Presbyterian Church, 330 West Main Street, Richmond with Dr. Curtis Christian officiating. Burial followed in the Richmond Cemetery.

Pallbearers were James Howard Logue, Jordan Seth Logue, Charles C. Hay, Dr. Stuart Tobin, Barry Metcalf, Ed Chenault, John Walton, and David Steidle. Honorary pallbearers were members of the Madison County and Clark County Bar Associations and The Richmond Exchange Club.

Memorial donations may be made to The First Presbyterian Church or The Humane Society Animal League for Life of Madison County.

The family would like to express their appreciation to Betty Fritz, Alberta Mooney, Mary Rogers and the staff of Telford Terrace.

News from Berea Rotary

Returning with the same positive spin as when he spoke two years ago, Tim Fyffe, a longtime investment manager with Central Bank, encouraged Berea Rotarians. Fyffe noted there are election year effects. He cautioned that a "middle of the road" strategy protects investments when things slow down. When asked what might happen because of the Presidential impeachment he said during the time Central Bank has collected relevant data two Presidents have been impeached—Richard Nixon and Bill Clinton. The market trend was downward before Nixon's impeachment and continued downward. With Clinton, the trend was upward before and remained upward. The conclusion is that the impeachment of President Trump will not affect the market trend. He reiterated the information he shared two years ago concerning the attraction of international money to the US market. China and Japan own more than half of bonds that have to do with the national debt. Interest rates are stable. Because of the rapid influx of financial information the most difficult task for financial consumers is simply sorting through what is important advice and what is not.

President Gary Simpson announced that Ruthie Maslin has information on the self-organized Rotaract Club for Berea College, where a minimum of five members is required. He reminded members there will be a Pancake Breakfast in May. The only guest was prospective member Sune Frederiksen. Berea Rotary meets each Tuesday at noon at the Artisan Center near exit 77.

Notes to Consider

G. S. Morris, Retired soldier, teacher

Current Events: Could local government action help ensure Second Amendment "Sanctity"?

The proposition our federal government was formed by the consent of the several states, and therefore the states may declare void or "nullify" a federal law is not new. None other than Thomas Jefferson and James Madison were among the first to define the concept of state nullification with their Kentucky and Virginia Resolutions in response to the clearly unconstitutional federal Alien and Sedition Acts of the late eighteenth century.

In the late 1830s, South Carolina attempted to nullify a federal tariff; and of course our Civil War was fought over slave state efforts to nullify federal attempts to curtail or end the Democrat institution of slavery. In more recent history, states have attempted to nullify federal civil rights laws and very recently; nine states have passed state laws which nullify federal gun laws within the borders of those states pertaining to firearms or accessories completely manufactured within the state. All the above efforts have failed.

Under the Supremacy Clause to the US Constitution (Article VI, Clause 2); the US Constitution is the supreme Law of the Land. With all this said, state and local governments do retain leverage against a federal government engaging in activities it has no constitutional authority with which to be engaging in the first place. Here's how.

For more than thirty years, some local governments have forbidden by ordinance the use of local resources for the enforcement of federal immigration laws. Before we go any further, allow me to point out the federal government has clear enforcement authority concerning immigration regulations under Article I of the United States Constitution. The federal government has no granted authority to violate the natural rights of American citizens guaranteed by the US Constitution's Bill of Rights. Where cities such as San Francisco are NOT acting legally is when they engage in blocking federal agents from enforcing federal immigration laws. However, local governments may NOT be commandeered by the federal government into enforcing federal laws.

Listen closely. The feds are more than happy (depending upon who's chief executive) to have state/local help in enforcing federal law. If you will recall; in the early twenty-first century, the then Jackson County Sheriff made news when he personally rounded up and placed under arrest several Mexican illegal aliens who had been brought into the county to be used as cheap labor by a local farmer. The sheriff then called the Immigration and Naturalization Service which immediately took the law breakers into custody; it was all perfectly legal.

What would also be perfectly legal is a county or city ordinance which forbade local officials from enforcing federal firearms laws which involuntarily infringed upon citizens' natural rights to keep and bear arms. The inclusion of "involuntarily" in any such ordinance language is key.

There are all sorts of federal (and state) laws which fly in the face of the Second Amendment's clear prohibition of government "infringement" upon the rights to keep and bear arms, yet remain on the books. As examples: "fees" (no different than "poll taxes," as you are compelled to purchase something in order to exercise a right you already possess) associated with the issuance of state concealed carry of deadly weapons permits; and the laughably unconstitutional federal provisions which require fingerprinting, a $200 tax stamp, and other harassments associated with purchasing specific firearms or accessories under the National Firearms Act of 1934. Yet, all those infringements are entered into "voluntarily" by individuals (even though such infringements are clearly contrary to the plain language of the US Constitution).

A county or city resolution aimed at the state legislature warning that body not to consider any new state laws which infringe upon the US Constitution's Second Amendment would be a good first step. Of course, resolutions have no legal effect (neither did the famous Kentucky and Virginia Resolutions) and only serve to raise "awareness."

What is required of local governments to preserve Second Amendment "Sanctity" is a binding county or city ordinance which would of course have no authority to void (nullify) any federal laws; however, county or city officials would then be barred from engaging in the enforcement of any involuntary federal infringements upon citizens' Second Amendment guarantees. Such county and/or city ordinances would also be in keeping with established federal case law based upon the US Constitution's Tenth Amendment guarantees (NY v. US, 1992 and Printz v. US, 1997). A county or city ordinance aimed at protecting the Second Amendment's sanctity would work in practice as described below:

"Hello, Sheriff's (City Police) Office."

"That Morris boy's out toting around one of those recently federally banned AR-15s!"

"Ma'am, we cannot engage in enforcing federal firearms laws which involuntarily infringe upon an individual's natural rights."

The response to the above complaint call would be perfectly constitutional and a very real way for local governments to undermine unconstitutional federal overreach. There's no way for local governments to prevent the federal government from passing patently unconstitutional laws if the enemies of individual liberties gain large enough majorities in Congress. Local ordinances respecting the sanctity of our Second Amendment though would require federal agents to come out into our sprawling continental nation and enforce all by their darned-selves any involuntary federal restrictions upon citizens' Second Amendment guaranteed natural rights; and good luck to them in coming up with the manpower necessary to make that happen.

CHASTEEN

FROM A1

One of the most significant changes in city government, according to Chasteen, is the impact of the Internet, for both better and worse. On the positive side the Internet facilitates the rapid transmission of information. That can also have a downside, she said. "Social media has changed the way everybody looks at things now, and sometimes it can cause the spread of assumptions that are wrong," she noted.

Since she announced her pending retirement, effective February 1, Chasteen has been training her successor, Robin Adams, who will move over to administration from the Codes and Planning Department. Since early December, Adams has worked beside Chasteen, learning the finer points of the city clerk's job. At the same time, Adams has been training her successor, Melissa Isaacs, who was recently hired in Codes and Planning.

When asked what advice she offers Adams, Chasteen said success in the job boils down to one important thing. "Organization. Every day is different, but you still have to have organization to meet all of the required deadlines over the course of the year. And a good memory," said Chasteen.

In the meantime, Chasteen has been introducing Adams to clerks around central Kentucky, and she has been helping Adams find new connections in the Kentucky Municipal Clerks Association. "She's already making connections through that, and that has always been an important tool in my job, to have a seasoned clerk to call upon for answers," Chasteen said.

Adams has already performed many elements of the clerk's job during her tenure in Codes and Planning, whether it is preparing meeting agendas, preparing minutes from public meetings, helping the city stay up to date on Kentucky statutes, or just greeting the public. Because of that experience, Chasteen said she expects Adams to do very well as city clerk. "She's already got a lot of this stuff under her belt, so she'll be alright," Chasteen said.

After retirement, Chasteen said she's looking forward to getting around to some traveling, as well as tackling projects in her house, garden and garage. She's also looking forward to spending more time with family. "I've got a long list of things I've been wanting to do that I've been putting off over the years, like things around the house, and I plan to garden more."

"Instead of her Honey-do list, she has her Cheryl-do list," Adams joked.

City Administrator David Gregory said Chasteen's support and professionalism is something he'll remember most about her tenure at Berea City Hall. "She's been very supportive of me in my new role and I couldn't ask for a better person to work with. It's a great loss to the city, and she'll be truly missed," Gregory said.

Chasteen drew praise from city officials Tuesday night since it marked her last meeting of the Berea City Council. All of the council members expressed appreciation for her contributions to the city, and congratulated her on her pending retirement.

"I want to publicly thank Cheryl for all of her hard work and dedication to the city and the citizens throughout her career, and especially during her service as city clerk," said Mayor Bruce Fraley. "Cheryl has been helpful to me in my first year of office as mayor, and I am personally grateful to have had such a knowledgeable, professional, positive and delightful person by my side over the past year.

"Cheryl, I will miss you and wish you all good things upon

Berea claims All 'A' region title

By Mike Moore
For The Citizen

Coach Dammian Stepp and his Berea Lady Pirates picked up three hard-fought wins to capture the 11th Region All A title last week and advance to the state All "A" Tournament at Eastern Kentucky University this week. The Lady Pirates opened the tourney with a 37-32 win over Sayre.

Madison Howell led Berea with 10 points, while Chesney Lovins chipped in seven points in the win. Berea followed up that performance with a 52-37 win over Frankfort. Lovins lit it up for 16 points, while Isis Rodgers recorded 13 points. MacKenzie Howell and Madison Howell added nine and eight points, respectively.

In the 11th Region Championship, the Lady Pirates got 11 points from Madison Howell and nine from MacKenzie Howell to top Lexington Christian Academy, 35-31.

The Lady Pirates knocked off East Jessamine, 47-45. Rodgers led Berea with 13 points. MacKenzie Howell added 12 points with nine rebounds, while Lovins finished with eight points.

Lady Eagles top Central, fall to LCA

The Madison Southern Lady Eagles edged out cross-country rival Madison Central, 45-43.

The Lady Eagles enjoyed balanced scoring as a trio of players (Macie Daniels, Samantha Cornelison, and Skylar Morgan), each finished with 10 points. Aleigh Richardson finished with 10 rebounds to go along with her four points.

On Saturday, Southern was finished upended by Letcher County Central, 74-58. Cornelison led The Lady Eagles with 18 points. Sunni Walters with 11 points, while Richardson added 10 points and six rebounds.

Fugate scores 1,000th point for Eagles

It was a milestone week for Madison Southern senior Chad Fugate as he notched his 1,000th career point in an 80-59 win over Garrard County.

He became the 12th player in school history to reach the 1,000-point plateau.

Fugate led Southern with 26 points in the win over Garrard. Nate Turner finished with 14 points, while Samuel Lee added 11 points and six rebounds. Jonah Wooten and Hunter Buchanan added nine points each.

Earlier in the week, Southern fell in a hard-fought game to East Jessamine, 66-65. Fugate led Southern with 21 points. Turner recorded a double-double with 16 points and 11 rebounds. Lee finished with 12 points.

The squad traveled to Somerset for the Iron Warrior Classic but came out on the wrong end of a 65-58 score to Logan County. Fugate finished with 19. Turner scored 17 points while pulling down seven rebounds.

Berea falls in opening round of Region All "A"

Poor shooting doomed the Berea Pirates in a 63-42 loss to Frankfort in the first round of the 11th Region All A Tournament.

Jayden Smith led the Pirates with 15 points and five rebounds. Timmy Thompson added eight points and six rebounds, while Jaylen Dorsey and Trenton Wilson finished with six points each.

As a team, Berea shot 25.6 percent from the field, and struggled at the foul line, going 17-30 (56.7 percent). Berea bounced back from the defeat with a 66-37 pasting of Evangel Christian.

Dorsey led Berea with 20 points, while Quenten Morgan finished with 13. Smith recorded a double-double with 11 points and 10 rebounds.

TRASH

ordinance.

Council member Steve Caudill disagreed, however, expressing confidence that police officers and code enforcement personnel would exercise discretion in enforcing the law. Caudill suggested more often than not, people will likely get warnings for the first offense. "I think it [the fine] should be stiff because this is for people who are being extremely negligent in their behavior, not in the circumstance where it is an accidental thing. I don't think a police officer in Berea is going to pull me over because something flies out of my truck bed."

"Yeah, you're a white guy and you might get a pass like that," LaDouceur responded. "There's other people that might not get a pass."

Council member Jerry Little raised a concern about the enforceability of the proposed ordinance, and he questioned whether the amount of the fine was excessive. Council member John Payne suggested the ordinance could be amended to state that the fine shall be up to $500, subject to the discretion of the court.

LaDouceur requested a work session on the issue to allow officials to discuss the matter further before a final vote. Most council members supported the measure, including Cora Jane Wilson and Jim Davis, who lives along a main highway and sees firsthand the impact of littering on his property. "People need to be educated," Davis said. "If they get caught, they need to pay."

Mayor Bruce Fraley concluded the discussion on the issue, noting the administration crafted the measure in response to strong public demand to do something about littering. "We have had consistent complaints about trash, illegal dumping in creeks, mattresses left on the side of the road, bags of garbage thrown out, you name it," Fraley said. "It's time for the city to adopt a comprehensive litter ordinance. We need to do something as a city. We have a responsibility to put an ordinance in place that we hope will prevent littering."

On a related note, City Administrator David Gregory said the city will have a work session that includes representatives of Waste Management, the city's solid waste contractor. The city's contract with Waste Management expires on March 1, then automatically rolls over to a one-year extension if the city does not cancel or reopen the bid process.

Gregory reported meeting with Waste Management representatives earlier this week after complaints from citizens that glass recyclables were not being picked up. The Lexington recycling facility that accepts glass was temporarily shut down last week, officials said.

Caudill suggested citizens were not even informed of the temporary change, whereupon garbage collectors simply left glass items rather than take them. Caudill suggested the company needs to develop a better procedure for keeping customers informed if there is a sudden or temporary change in policy. Little agreed, suggesting it may be time to re-bid the city's garbage contract.

In other business:

- In the public comment period Shane Morris spoke about ways the council could take action to affirm the Second Amendment to the US Constitution, the right of citizens to bear arms.
- During mayoral comments, Bruce Fraley announced the Governor's Office of Agricultural Policy Board of Directors approved a $250,000 grant to the city for a multi-use pavilion near the former Tolle building. Said Fraley: "This was a very successful conclusion of a cooperative effort involving the Berea Tourist and Convention Commission, the Berea Farmer's Market, and the City of Berea, and it took many months of hard work and dedication to get us to the point of approval. I want to thank everyone who was involved in this process and I look forward to beginning the design and construction phases of this project that will be an asset to our city and citizens."

Nerve agent destruction under way at Army Depot

Full-scale chemical agent destruction operations at the Blue Grass Chemical Agent-Destruction Pilot Plant (BGCAPP) on the Blue Grass Army Depot began Jan. 17 with the destruction of the first 8-inch projectile containing GB nerve agent in the main plant.

The plant will destroy munitions containing nerve agent through a two-step process called neutralization followed by supercritical water oxidation, known as SCWO. Automated equipment takes the munitions apart and drains the chemical agent. The agent is mixed with water and caustic to produce hydrolysate. The hydrolysate is then pumped from tanks to SCWO reactors where it is subjected to high temperature and pressure. The resulting products are water, carbon dioxide and a salt solution. Remaining metal parts from the munitions are thermally heated to more than 1,000 degrees Fahrenheit and can be safely recycled.

"Our highly skilled team is dedicated to the task of safely destroying the chemical munitions," said Ron Hink, Bechtel Parsons Blue Grass (BPBG) project manager. "We've trained extensively for this stage of the project and we're confident we can safely complete the mission."

Mayor Fraley has worked for the Social Security Administration for 34 years and spent the last 14 years of his career as the District Manager of the Richmond Social Security Office.

CARA

to:

• Genetics. Some studies of twins and families suggest that personality disorders may be inherited or strongly associated with other mental health disorders among family members.

• Brain abnormalities. Some research has shown changes in certain areas of the brain involved in emotion regulation, impulsivity and aggression. In addition, certain brain chemicals that help regulate mood, such as serotonin, may not function properly.

Another characteristic of BPD is "splitting" (also called black-and-white or "all-or-nothing" thinking) which creates instability in relationships because one person can be viewed as either personified virtue or personified vice at different times, depending on whether they gratify the subject's needs or frustrate them. https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Borderline_personality_disorder

Not everyone affected with Borderline Personality Disorder has every symptom noted above. Also, theory suggests that not everyone with the genetic predisposition for BPD will be diagnosed with the condition. Each case is different. Additional research reveals some very interesting data which follow:

The vast majority of research on personality disorders has shown that they are caused by a combination of genetics and environment. The American Psychological Association http://www.apa.org/topics/personality/disorders-causes.aspx> cites five factors which all work together to contribute: genetics, childhood trauma, verbal abuse, high reactivity, and peers. http://www.pdan.org/what-are-personality-disorders/can-bpd-be-prevented/ (Personality Disorders Awareness Network)

Education is key in preventing BPD as well as diagnosing and treating the disorder. According to the Personality Disorders Awareness Network website, the following is key in preventing BPD:

• Educate the public about the causes and symptoms of personality disorders.

• Teach parents how important it is to protect their children from verbal, physical, sexual and emotional abuse.

• Teach parents the skills to raise their children with nurturance, guidance and care.

• Help parents and children understand the damage caused by bullying.

As noted above, sexual abuse and bullying can both play a role in the development of Borderline Personality Disorder.

An article entitled "Hello, Cruel World: The Role of Bullying in the Development of Borderline Personality Disorder" from Psychology Today (January 20, 2012) is helpful in understanding how bullying can damage self-esteem and promote negative lifelong, life-altering effects.

https://www.psychologytoday.com/blog/being-patient/20CBS1201/hello-cruel-world.

Cara's development of BPD caused conflicts with those of us who were closest to her, primarily in the family and, especially in the last few years of her life, there were hard times as a result. Difficulties were made even worse due to chronic pain and all of the surrounding factors of the pain—strong medication which carried significant side effects, sleeplessness, and other issues.

Living with mental illness can be isolating and frustrating. On October 23rd of this year, CBS This Morning aired a special entitled "Stop the Stigma Why We Need More Conversations Surrounding Mental Health." Guests included "Queer Eye" star and licensed social worker Karamo Brown, who discussed his experience with depression, and Cynthia Germanotta, who founded Born This Way Foundation with daughter Lady Gaga, about how mental illnesses affect a family. Jane Pauley also appeared on the program and discussed her diagnosis of bipolar disorder at age 50. Dr. Sue Varma, a board certified psychiatrist and one of the experts who participated in the live audience event, told CBS This Morning that stigma has a "detrimental" effect on people's ability to get the help they need. "Stigma is about lack of education, lack of awareness, and sometimes even when people have both, it comes down to a lack of compassion and empathy," she said, adding, "When we have stigma, we are creating shame and we're creating blame. Would we blame somebody for having Type 1 diabetes? No, absolutely not. Would we blame somebody for having the flu? Would we blame someone for having a broken arm? This is no different."

https://www.cbsnews.com/news/stop-the-stigma-mental-health-symptoms/ Another point from the CBS special is that words have power. I'm hoping that my words, my voice, my pain will help others who might be dealing with mental illness.

Cara and her husband built a beautiful house on Lake Superior a few years prior to her death in November, 2016. She had researched information about treatment for Borderline Personality Disorder, and she had a strong desire to improve. She had a lot of reasons to live if she could have received the treatment that she needed.

The "Hello, Cruel World..." article previously cited provides some encouraging words:

"... the right diagnosis means you can finally get the right treatment... Dialectical Behavior therapy (DBT) is a type of therapy developed by University of Washington professor Marsha Linehan who recently came out about her own struggles with BPD... The evidence that we could recover from a disorder previously viewed as untreatable was nothing short of revolutionary."

Unfortunately, Cara's life ended before she was able to receive treatment for BPD. The medical examiner's report ruled her death an accident and indicated that a mixture of prescribed drugs was the cause. She was always extremely concerned about becoming addicted to any kind of drug and thus typically was always very careful.

As an adult Cara came across as being articulate and self-confident. She could easily "think on her feet," did well in oral presentations, had major roles in plays, gave voice recitals, and though she overcame the effects of bullying in her school years to some extent, the deep pain of rejection and isolation she experienced earlier in her life left scars that she carried with her until she passed away, especially during the last few years when chronic pain and Borderline Personality Disorder caused many serious problems for her.

The sweet child I longed for, for many years, is gone now. I have come to realize that I have two choices in my grieving process - either I can choose to live in the past and dwell on difficult circumstances or I can celebrate the resilience and achievements of a very special human being who, though she had many challenges, had a zest for life. I choose the latter.

In doing things that Cara loved—being a big tipper, having belly laughs, donating to cat rescue organizations, working hard but also playing hard by enjoying many forms of entertainment including movies, theatrical performances and opera, reading—and in my confronting issues which troubled her and impacted her life, I can just picture her smiling at me and that makes me happy. At some point I hope to be involved in anti-bullying efforts. I have already contacted several lawmakers about the possibility of passing a law that would make anti-bullying programs mandatory in all schools in the United States. As you are probably aware, bullying has been an underlying cause in many school shootings across the country.

Being the sentimental packrat that I am, I have never intentionally discarded any notes, letters, cards or emails from Cara; every room at home contains items that she gave to me. How glad I am now that my sentimental nature prevailed; I have many comforting memories to keep me company on my path forward.

God's grace and the love and support of my family and the wonderful Berea community have helped to sustain me through a very difficult period, and for that, I am very grateful. Cara's rededication of her life to Christ and being rebaptized just prior to going to law school bring me peace as well.

The article entitled "Life After Death" by Facebook COO, Sheryl Sandburg, gives useful advice about how to reach out to someone who is grieving. Ms. Sandburg lost her husband suddenly and she wrote this article during the months following his unexpected death. She references friends and co-workers "not acknowledging her pain," which made her difficult journey even harder. The article can be accessed at http://time.com/sheryl-sandberg-option-b/.

In my own journey of grieving, it has been very helpful to hear from friends and family, and I've come to realize that some people don't know what to say or do, and fearing an awkward moment, they say or do nothing. Through this experience I have decided to write a simple "thinking of you" note to someone who is going through a difficult time of loss. Kind words and lots of TLC sustained me through many hard days as I have been adjusting, so I know from experience how much they can help someone who is mourning a devastating loss. Another piece of wisdom I have run across in my reading is that it is a good idea to ask a grieving person how best to offer support since all of us have different needs.

I believe Cara would approve of this article; she was quite frank and direct, but with gentle humor, qualities which endeared her to many folks. She definitely didn't beat around the bush. Thank you for reading and for hopefully understanding. "To know all is to understand all, and this leaves no room for judgment and condemnation." (Clarence Darrow)

Madison County joins growing list of santuary counties

By Keith Taylor
News Editor

The Madison County Fiscal Court joined a growing list of Kentucky counties declaring the county a Second Amendment Sanctuary County during its bi-monthly meeting Tuesday in Richmond.

Madison County became the 48th of 120 counties in the state to adopt a resolution preventing state laws to infringe on the Second Amendment, which gives citizens the "right to keep and bear arms and shall not be infringed upon."

The resolution stated the court was "concerned about the passage of any bill containing language which could be interpreted as infringing on rights of citizens of Madison County to keep and bear arms" and expressed "its deepest commitment to the rights of all citizens of Madison County to keep and bear arms" and "express opposition to any law that would unconstitutionally restrict the rights of citizens of Madison County to keep and bear arms."

Members of the court present — Judge Executive Reagan Taylor and Magistrates Tom Botkin and John Tudor unanimously approved the resolution. Magistrates Larry Combs and Roger Barger were absent because of illness.

Following the adoption of the resolution, Taylor asked

Old hospital photos bind past with the present

It's been said a picture is worth a thousand words. When a group of retirees from CHI Saint Joseph Berea Hospital stumbled across boxes of old photographs during a 120th anniversary open house in 2018, they wanted more than just pictures from the past.

"They had boxes of pictures and they had no names on them," hospital retiree Pat Estep said. "Everybody from our little town was wondering (who) this is? Wonder who that

Life is fragile no matter your status

Taylor's Thoughts
Keith Taylor
News Editor

There's nothing like a Sunday nap. This one, however, was a little different.

Following Sunday services, Rhonda and I had lunch at Mariachi's before coming home for the remainder of our day of rest. Since covering sports is a full-time job for me, my Sunday routine consists mostly of no sports and generally rest for the body, mind and soul. I don't know what day God created sports, but I make sure the Sabbath is a day to rest from the writing.

When I awoke from my nap, my phone was filled with notifications regarding Kobe Bryant's helicopter crash, which was in the early stages of breaking on the major news and sports networks. I checked my Twitter feed and discovered some outlets were reporting hearsay before gathering the facts.

They were more concerned about breaking the story first as opposed to being responsible journalists. To be honest, I don't know much about TMZ, but they got everything right surrounding Bryant's helicopter crash that claimed nine lives, including his teenage daughter Gianna. Other networks were reporting that Bryant's other daughters were on the flight as well as one of his former teammates, Rick Fox.

When tragedies occur and for the sake of credibility, getting the facts right trumps breaking it first. That's always been my practice and will continue to be my policy in the future.

For a moment, I thought I was dreaming and to be sure, I scanned my Associated Press news feed on my laptop and sure enough an advisory on Bryant's helicopter crash was on the site dedicated for AP members.

Much like many of you, I was shocked and speechless and stayed glued to the television the remainder of the evening. I took a break to write a story for Kentucky Today on responses from John Calipari and other former players who had ties to Bryant.

Those aren't the easiest stories to write, but what others are feeling helps cope with a tragedy that caught much of the nation offguard. It also helps to keep in mind that we all have human feelings regardless of how rich or poor we are.

Bryant was only 41-years old, while his daughter was showing promise of becoming a future superstar on the basketball court, just like her father. She was 13 and a rising star in the travel basketball circuit.

A video on Twitter apparently posted last weekend showed the father and daughter enjoying a light teaching moment at a basketball game. They were laughing and enjoying each other's company. I watched it more than once and promised myself to spend more time with family than ever before.

Bryant's death should serve as a reminder that life is fragile no matter your status and to be prepared for eternity at all times.

Forestry as a Vocation and a Calling

The great outdoors
Clint Patterson,
College Forester

My favorite part of the Society of American Foresters National Convention in Louisville this last October/November was the plenary speaker's presentation: "Forestry as a Vocation and the Responsibilities of a Calling". The speaker, Marianne Patinelli-Dubay, leads the Environmental Philosophy program at the Huntington Wildlife Forest owned by the State University of New York College of Environmental Science and Forestry.

The presentation began with: "Do your work and I shall know you", by Ralph Waldo Emerson and compelled us to know ourselves, identify our work, and perform it with dedication that is akin to a calling.

She then took us through a tour of Greek reason and philosophy which brought us to ethics; concluding that ethics is a kind of thinking, not a prescription.

Character matters, she told us, because practical ethics is grafted onto the careful considerations that characterize what the Greeks would call "the good life": a life of righteous thinking followed by justified action.

Our goal should be, then, to become the thinking beings we profess ourselves to be. Thus, we might learn to generate an inner life that manifests itself in the world.

The importance of place-based knowledge, experience, and humility were all eloquently explained. Finally, toward the end of the hour-or-so long presentation, she concluded that Plato begins with love and encloses wisdom inside; describing it as a "simple turn that invites us into a life governed by love and guided towards wisdom". Therefore, she told us: "love wisdom".

"Forestry is a vocation enfolded within a geography of belonging, grounded in obligation and enriched by the wisdom native to woodsmen and women." This, she explained, was the heart of forestry. I was thrilled to hear this presentation as it paralleled, almost exactly, the course of my book, The Heart of Forestry in America: A Berea College Odyssey. I wrote the book to highlight Berea College's role in playing a leader in the American conservation movement while hoping to encourage the forestry profession to look back to its philosophical and spiritual roots.

Marianne's presentation opened the door within the forestry profession to discuss such things at the perfect time. I ended up becoming the new Chair of the History and Philosophy Working Group within the Society of American Foresters as her tenure expired at the end of the year. Also, as serendipity or providence would have it, the 2020 National Convention will be in Providence, RI, where Berea College's role in supplying white oak wood for the Mayflower II ship restoration project in nearby Plymoth, Massachusetts, will be prominently featured.

Eagles battle through tough schedule

By Mike Moore
For The Citizen

The Madison Southern Eagles split last week's games, falling to Montgomery County, 73-66, and downing Boyle County 77-51. Coach Austin Newton said his squad is in the thick of the schedule, and he hopes the stiff competition will pay off when the district tournament rolls around.

"We have played a tough schedule to prepare us for the postseason," Newton said. "Our goals are to win the district championship and win the school's first-ever regional tournament game."

Newton said several players have played vital roles and he is pleased with how the team is performing at a high level.

Against Montgomery County, Chad Fugate led Southern with 30 points. Hunter Buchanan added 12, while Nate Turner chipped in six points and seven rebounds.

Fugate paced the Eagles against Boyle County by knocking in 20 points. Turner added 19 points, while Buchanan finished with 12.

Lady Eagles edge Lincoln County

The Madison Southern Lady Eagles rebounded from a pair of difficult road defeats to North Laurel (69-60) and South Laurel (65-57) to knock off Lincoln County, 41-40, at Stanford.

"I am excited with the effort and intensity we have been playing with, especially with the tough stretch of games we have had," Coach Allie Turley said. "We are playing some great team ball, and sharing the basketball well. We are starting to figure things out at the right time."

Samantha Cornelison paced the Lady Eagles in all three contests, averaging 15.3 points a game. Against Lincoln, she recorded a double-double with 10 points and 10 rebounds.

Southern also had balanced scoring during the stretch, as Aleigh Richardson finished with 13 points against North Laurel. Maci Daniels added nine points in the same game, while Sunni Walters finished with 8.

Daniels finished with 13 points and seven rebounds against South Laurel, while Walters ended the game with 11 points. Richardson near recorded a double-double, finishing with nine points and nine rebounds.

Against Lincoln, Daniels finished with 10 points and seven rebounds, while Skylar Sparks finished with an eight-point, seven-rebound performance. Richardson hauled in 12 rebounds while scoring four points.

Sickness sidelines Berea hoops

Following the boys' 63-55 win over Jackson County, Berea Community officials postponed games and practices until this past Monday.

Berea boys' Coach Eric Swords said the unplanned layoff has been a challenge but feels his team will respond once a regular schedule resumes.

"It's been tough as we have not practiced since Tuesday, Jan. 21," Swords said. "Hopefully, we can get our legs under us the next few days in practice before we face Burgin. We also have to regroup and go to Model on Friday and turnaround and play Bellevue at home on Saturday. Our kids have been tough all year, so hopefully, we handle this head-on as we have done all year."

Cheerleading Showcase set

The Madison Southern Cheerleading team will host a Showcase Event on Sunday, Feb. 2, from 1-4 p.m. The team recently qualified for the UCA National High School Cheerleading Championships, which will be held in Orlando, Fla., Feb. 6-11.

is? I said, 'some of us older people need to get together and put some names on those pictures. We had boxes, boxes and boxes of pictures."

It took less than a year, but the group of eight core retirees put together 22 binders of photographs from the past, giving future generations a glimpse of history of the hospital. The binders are broken down by department, giving insights into the growth of the hospital.

"We had 21 (binders) but then we started finding more recent pictures," said Ruth Walker, also a retired employee of the hospital. "We (also have) two boxes of duplicates and they are the leftovers."

During their weekly Thursday luncheon, the group delved through the pictures and "started out by just taking them out of the boxes putting in departments."

"We started out by taking them out and putting names on them, but then we were getting duplicates of everything and so we started putting into departments."

Although the photographs provided some samples of the past, the group also poured through archives at Berea College and pieced together a chronological history of Berea Hospital, now owned by Catholic Health Initiatives. Throughout that process, more boxes of photographs were discovered.

"When we thought we were finished we could have boxes and more boxes," Estep said. "We found them in closets and in the attic, stuck here and stuck there. We went thorough thousands of pictures. We had multiple boxes."

The project proved to be a rewarding one for each member of the group.

"We loved it," Estep said. "We really loved it. We told stories and if one person knew the first name, but didn't know the last name, another person would know the last name."

The group also used social media as a source for information.

"We posted some (pictures) on Facebook and everybody loved them," Walker said. "Sometimes we would put pictures up that had no names on them that we didn't recognize and they would make comments (on the picture). We wanted to get as many pictures identified as we could."

Throughout the process, the group learned more about the history of one of Berea's oldest institutions.

"(In the past) the hospital had patients on bunk beds," Estep said. "We have pictures when the hospital was being built and it was built in 1918."

The binders are stored on the first floor and visitors can view the pictures on most Thursday's from 10 a.m.-2 p.m. The group also plans to offer the photos for viewing during a reception from 2-6 p.m. on Feb. 6 at the hospital.

the citizens in attendance if they wanted a picture and the crowd applauded the court's decision before leaving the meeting.

Berea resident Shane Morris later addressed the court during comments from the audience and advised the governing body to adopt an ordinance that he said would override a resolution and added that resolutions are not enforced and not "worth the paper they are written on" the Sanctuary County resolutions are "really aimed at placating people, satisfying people and they will go away."

"I trust my hometown's fiscal court is not doing that," he said.

Morris added an ordinance would bar local officials or resources from engaging in the enforcement of any federal involuntary infringement on the right to bear arms.

Madison County Attorney Jeanne Haymond updated the court on the rocket docket program and said as of last week (Jan. 21) the program — aimed at getting those charged with a felony drug offense to treatment in shorter time — had 102 cases expedited and 15 are pending. She said the program has saved the county approximately $500,000 during the post year.

The court voted to allocate $50,000 to Haymond's office to help with the costs of staffing and overseeing the successful program.

Madison County Jailer Steve Tussey gave an update on the Madison County Detention Center and said as of Tuesday, 454 inmates were in the possession of the county, with 369 in house, 43 in home incarceration and 42 being jailed in other facilities. He said the overall number was the lowest figure in approximately six months.

"The trend is going in the right direction thanks to a lot of things," Tussey said. "… while all of that sounds good, that is still double occupancy and that is still 180 people sleeping on the floor. But still, compared to a few months ago, that is a good number."

He added the trend is partly because of entities being aware of the overcrowding at the jail and the county's budget crisis.

In other business:

- The court approved removing Ralph Park West Road from the county maintenance plan.
- Rewarded a media monitoring system and radio alert system contract, both of which are fully funded by the CSEPP program.
- Hired Ancie Hatfield as a finance officer in the EMA/CSEPP office at a rate of $19.74 per hour.
- Hired Kinsey Rohrback and Elizabeth Cordle as office assistants in the Planning and Codes office for $12 per hour.
- Next meeting: Feb. 11, 9:30 a.m., Madison County Courthouse.

LEADERS

FROM A1

Angel began the presentations by revealing that since taking her post at the city in early January, she has consulted with approximately 18 local businesses, including contacting property owners on Chestnut Street. Angel said the city hopes to encourage commercial property owners along Chestnut to improve their storefronts with the goal of making that district more attractive to both consumers and prospective business owners. Angel noted the effort is consistent with the city's recently adopted Berea Strategic Plan, and that property owners have so far been excited about the project.

On the retail front, Angel reported there have been several requests to bring a Kentucky Fried Chicken franchise back to Berea, leading her to contact a representative of KFC. As a result of that meeting, Angel said the city will soon be making franchise ownership requirements available for prospective buyers.

In other developments, Angel reported showing two industrial spaces for lease, including warehouse space, and she consulted with a representative of Bluegrass Community Technical College about the possibility of obtaining funding for training classes that can serve clients in the Berea Industrial Park.

Highlighting the city's efforts to encourage small business growth, Vallorie Henderson, of the Kentucky Small Business Development Center, updated officials on her efforts to open a Berea office of the KSBDC in Berea. Henderson has been working in the Tolle building while the city prepares her office in City Hall. Having recently relocated to Berea from Louisville, the Berea College alumnus said she is focused on providing business development services to the region, but will specifically focus on ways to serve Berea's artisans.

"We will focus on Berea because we have said that the center is the first in the United States that serves creative entrepreneurs. But it's not the only people I want to work with," Henderson said, noting she has been contacted by locals who want to launch more conventional small businesses, like roofing and accounting. Henderson added she is glad to be back in Berea.

Lucas Witt and Lindsey Ransdell of Fortune Realty presented the industrial element of the city's economic development strategy, outlining how they will help local government improve relationships with existing industries while attracting new ones.

Both having worked in the Kentucky Economic Development Cabinet, Lucas and Ransdell noted that an important element of their job as consultants to the City of Berea is to make officials in Frankfort aware of Berea's desirability as a destination for prospective industries. They also aim to make existing industries aware of state programs that can benefit their operations. Additionally, Ransdell noted she has visited most local industries, and plans additional visits to touch base with companies to determine their needs. In cooperation with Berea Business Development, she will also help launch a Lunch and Learn roundtable series, allowing managers to discuss issues facing local industry.

Ransdell noted work will continue to make Berea more fertile for industrial growth, but that the city already has a good foundation for success.

"The biggest thing you have in your favor is that you have a thriving industrial park with lots that are full, and businesses like Hyster-Yale," Ransdell said. "If you can drive into an industrial park and see an existing business that's in the midst of construction, that says these people are happy. These people are making a million-dollar investment in your community and they're not going to go anywhere."

In other business, the Economic Development Committee retired to executive session to discuss a possible transaction concerning property. No action was taken, officials reported.

Bus tour stops are increasing

By Andy McDonald
For The Citizen

Visitors are coming into town by the busload, according to a report recently revealed by Berea Tourism. At a recent meeting of the Berea Tourism Commission, Director Kerri Hensley noted an unexpected boost in visitors coming into Berea on motor coaches.

Overall, 55 tour groups with between 30 and 50 passengers came to Berea from 17 states in 2019. Twenty-four of those groups stayed overnight, 50 groups ate one or more meals in Berea, four took in craft classes in Old Town, and 10 observed demonstration sessions by artisans, according to tourism officials.

That trend will likely continue into 2020, as 37 bus tours are currently booked for Berea, and companies are already making reservations for 2021. "It's good news because it's going to be a good year for group activity," Hensley said. "To have that many reserved now, we're very excited." In total, 1,970 motor coach passengers were officially welcomed to town last year by Berea Tourism, though the number of actual visitors is probably higher because some bus companies don't coordinate their visits with the city.

Three factors are driving increased bus traffic to Berea, according to officials. First, bus tours to Ashville, North Carolina, as well as the Smokey Mountains, are popular right now, and Berea is on the way. Secondly, Berea is building a reputation for being a tour-friendly destination. Tour facilitator Connie Mondine, for example, has begun arranging live music for tourists dining at restaurants which have the capacity to accommodate large groups. In December, Mondine also arranged to have wooden ornaments made for one tour group, which were presented to them by a Santa Claus in Old Town. That visit apparently made a strong impression, according to Boone Tavern Director of Sales and Marketing Patrick Huston.

"They had such a good time, they are already booked for next year," said Huston, who also serves on the commission. During a subsequent interview, Huston added Boone Tavern isn't the only business benefitting. "People often want to come to a destination and explore on their own, rather than be on a very strict itinerary. That gives other businesses more opportunity because you have many people coming in at one time. I think they [bus tours] will continue to be a benefit for Berea."

Hensley credits Mondine with adapting tours to traveler needs. One of Mondine's innovations is tapping into the resource of working artists and musicians.

Reflections

from January 1990
Berea Citizen Archives

It had been two years since Marshall Laws' home was destroyed by fire. The Catholic Church donated one month's rent that allowed him to live in a rented house. For a while he lived in a tent but was currently, in January 1990, living in a small trailer. He had no utilities and the roof leaked. He almost froze in the cold below zero weather. A family friend, Ira Thomas, was trying to build him a small house for better shelter and was hoping to receive donations of materials, labor or money from people who would like to help Laws. The spirit of neighbors helping neighbors is still alive in Berea. Praise God!

Five local scouts, Peter Willis, Jon Chadwick, Todd King, Kevin Fields, and Lance Long received the Eagle Award. Scoutmaster Jack Duerson along with Assistant Leaders Jim Fields, Gail King and Steve Campbell were present for the Eagle Court of Honor ceremonies held at Union Church. The Eagle Award is scouting's highest honor.

The January 1990 Berea Citizen recapped many stories from 1989, one of which was the closing of a local landmark. The Coffee Cup, which was opened by E.E. Gabbard in 1920, was open 24 hours a day and became a favorite gathering place for college students and local youths. After the restaurant closed, the building was later used as a sporting goods shop, pizza parlor and antique shop.

Ron Devere was elected as the Madison County Jailer in November 1989.

Noah C. Campbell completed basic training at Fort Dix, N. J. He is the son of Noah C. Campbell ad Lorraine Campbell, both of "Joshua said to them, 'Do not be afraid; do not be discouraged. Be strong and courageous. This is what the LORD will do to all the enemies you are going to fight.'"

--Joshua 10:25

News from Berea Rotary

The Social Services and Community Resources Coordinator, Zinnia Hensley, explained the scope of her position with the City of Berea. She addressed many of the tasks which were previously covered by police officers. Rotary member, Mayor Fraley, introduced Hensley as a person with the professionalism, expertise, and enthusiasm needed for such a job. With her background in CPS (Child protection services) she is able to recognize what is available as well as what is needed in various situations. She utilizes Facebook as a way of getting the word out concerning helpful programs. She is aware that there is some duplication with programs in Richmond but that the Madison County Services should be for both Richmond and Berea citizens. Her work involves dealing with several social agencies in the community. Two of her ideas are seeking input from participants at the Intergenerational Center and partnering with students from Berea College. Hensley has been nominated for the board of Hope's Wings.

Additionally, both Amanda Haney and Danny Brewer updated Rotarians concerning the work of their departments. Brewer mentioned that many restaurants have shown interest in "Coffee with a Cop." Haney presented an overview of the process for the city's comprehensive plan, noting that revision of such is required every five years. Major areas of preparation are building consensus, organizational planning, and studying development with respect to growth.

President Gary Simpson introduced new member, Sune Frederiksen, and announced that the February 4th meeting will be a tour of Berea College's new Science Building.

Members are asked to "brown bag" lunches. Guests at the meeting were Helen Eden, Amanda Haney, and Danny Brewer.

Danny Brewer, Zinnia Hensley, Mayor Bruce Fraley, and AmandaHaney from the City of Berea shared information with Berea Rotary.

$1 Million Grant for Mount Vernon Bus. Developement

Project expected to create 50 new jobs

To help a company in Berea's neighbor to the south, Kentucky Farmaceuticals, LLC, develop their business and aid in job creation Gov. Beshear and the Department for Local Government (DLG) have announced a $1 million Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) to Mount Vernon.

Kentucky Farmaceuticals, LLC specializes in storing and processing Kentucky-grown hemp for the purpose of cannabidiol (CBD) oil extraction and refinement. Mount Vernon will use the funding to purchase equipment to lease to the company so they can meet current industry needs and demands.

"It is always encouraging to see state grant funding come into Rockcastle County," said Judge Executive Howell Holbrook. "With every endeavor comes the possibility for employment opportunities. We have to keep reaching for growth and economic development."

The project is expected to create 50 full-time jobs over the first two years and the company's products will be 100% Kentucky made. Beyond job creation, the company is expected to widely distribute their products to manufacturers in-state and nationwide.

"Everyone should have access to good-paying jobs in their communities," said DLG Commissioner Dennis Keene. "Promoting opportunities for economic development, like this, is necessary to move our state forward."

Senator Jared Carpenter expressed enthusiasm about the opportunities the funding will provide.

"These grant funds promote state-wide economic growth, create jobs and strengthen local communities," said Senator Carpenter. "I look forward to Mount Vernon having the means necessary to be more competitive within Kentucky's booming hemp industry."

Health Department confirms case of rabies

Kelley McBride of the Madison County Health Department released information on Tuesday confirming a case of rabies in nearby Garrard County.

The Kentucky Department for Public Health (DPH) and the Garrard, Madison and Rockcastle County Health Departments, want to inform the public that a Garrard County dog tested positive for skunk variant rabies.

While the dog was not a stray, it was unvaccinated. Family members and vet clinic staff are receiving vaccinations to prevent infection. The rabies vaccine is very effective at preventing illness before or after exposure.

"Rabies is a fatal but preventable disease," said Dr. Kelly Giesbrecht, State Public Health Veterinarian for DPH. "Transmission occurs through direct contact with saliva or brain/nervous tissue with broken skin or mucus membranes and infects the central nervous system. Keeping pets vaccinated against rabies is a crucial step in rabies prevention."

Rabies can present with a variety of symptoms. Early symptoms can include lethargy and vomiting, progressing to weakness, seizures, aggressiveness, difficulty breathing or swallowing along with other symptoms.

In Kentucky, rabies virus is known to be present in skunks and bats. The easiest and best way to prevent rabies is to keep your pets up to date on rabies vaccinations. This will not only protect your pets but will protect you and your family as well. Although cost of human vaccination after exposure varies, it can cost several thousand dollars and insurance may not always cover it.

Rabies is easy to prevent. Here are some key things to keep you and your family safe from rabies:

- Keep your animals vaccinated against rabies.
- Do not approach or feed wildlife.
- Keep wildlife wild, do not attempt to tame them.
- Keep wildlife out of your yard by covering food and garbage.
- Report animal bites to your local health department.
- Wash any bite wounds with soap and water for 5 minutes and seek medical attention.
- Do not touch a bat.
- If a bat is in your house while you are asleep, safely catch the bat and submit it for rabies testing through your local health department.

Kentucky law states that dogs, cats and ferrets are required to be kept up to date with a rabies vaccine and to report animal bites.

If you have any questions, in Madison County contact: Marvin Dixon, Environmental Program Manager at the Madison County Health Department (859) 626-4249, or the State Public Health Veterinarian at 502-564-3418.

Members of Berea Independent School District Board of Education, Will Bondurant, Della Justice, Tom McCay, Jackie Burnside, and Van Gravitt.

Berea Community Schools Honor School Board Members

As Kentucky observes School Board Recognition Month in January, Berea Community Schools is joining in the celebration.

Mr. Van Gravitt, Dr. Jackie Burnside, Mr. Will Bondurant, Ms. Della Justice and Mr. Tom McCay are among the more than 850 school board members in the state's 173 local school districts being recognized this month for their service.

This is the perfect time to thank school board members for serving in a role that has become increasingly complex, said David Webster, president of the Kentucky School Boards Association and chairman of the Simpson County school board.

"Members of the Berea Board of Education are responsible for making decisions aimed at ensuring that every child in their district has a chance to be successful both in school and in life," Webster said. "To do that, members oversee a $21 million budget, keep up with changing education laws and policies and spend hours on professional learning and state-mandated training."

The voters in the Berea school district have elected these local leaders, who work to give every child in every classroom access to high quality teaching and learning," said Dr. Diane Hatchett, Superintendent.

"At a time when state and federal funding continues to shrink, our school board members haven't flinched in the face of the challenges or shied away from their responsibilities," she said. "Our community can be very proud of this team of board members, and I'm proud to be their partner in striving for education excellence for our children."
