COVID-19: Small businesses focus on big picture

By Andy McDonald
For The Citizen

While Berea's small businesses are grappling with an unprecedented crisis in the wake of the COVID-19 lockdown, officials are encouraging retailers, restauranteurs and entrepreneurs to stay focused on what they can do to prepare for economic recovery.

The Kentucky Small Business Development Center's (KSBDC) Berea Director Vallorie Henderson said she is typically focused on mentoring prospective entrepreneurs and helping existing businesses grow. But with the economic disruption that has accompanied the pandemic, Henderson has shifted to helping business owners by offering advice and directing them to KSBDC and Small Business Administration resources, such as apps and websites, geared to help businesses stay open.

"We try to get them to look at the big picture and not what's in front of them today or this week. I try to talk to them about working not from fear, but from knowledge and from a good understanding of what they can do," Henderson said. "It's a down time for a lot of folks and they still want to be working on their businesses. So it's a good time to evaluate the business's

- Avoid close contact with people who are sick. Avoid touching your eyes, nose and mouth.

City creates call center

The City of Berea has created a "COVID-19 Response" one-stop-shop on the City Website for information and services related to the Coronavirus (COVID-19), https://bereaky.gov/covid19/.

The response page has contact information for food assistance, unemployment support and community support.

For those residents who do not have internet access or need information about services not listed on the City website, the City of Berea has established a call center hotline, (859) 756-6487. The hotline will be answered from 8 a.m.-4 p.m., Monday-Friday.

If your call cannot be answered immediately, please leave a message and a city employee will call you back.

Berea City Administrator David Gregory said establishing this call center "will give our citizens the opportunity to inquire about services, and hopefully we can provide information to assist citizens with resources and referrals."

Let's play Monopoly

Emily Brock recently played a game of Monopoly remotely with her sister on Facetime during the current quarantine. "We are physically distant, but socially together." There are various options available during the current COVID-19 crisis as many practice social distancing by staying "Healthy at Home." As of Wednesday, 15 cases of novel coronavirus have been confirmed in Madison County and one death reported. An 86-year-old Madison County woman died of the virus last week. Officials continue to stress practicing social distancing ahead of the Easter weekend. (Submitted)

First responders help Harrison celebrate 101st birthday

Phillip Harrison observed his 101st birthday last Friday and local first responders celebrated with the Berea resident.

According to City of Berea firefighter Brent Billings, the Berea Fire Department, the Berea Volunteer Fire and Rescue, the Kentucky State Police, Richmond Police Department, the Berea Police Department, Madison County EMS and the Army National Guard conducted a drive-by parade for Harrison at the Berea Health and Rehabilitation facility.

"On Thursday morning, we received a message from Berea Health and Rehabilitation about a resident they have who would be celebrating his 101st birthday on Friday," Billings said. "But due to the COVID-19, they had to cancel his birthday celebration that they had planned. They asked us if we could drive by in a fire truck and wave or something like that. I thought, 'no, we can do much more than that.' So we started reaching out to our contacts in the first responder community to come together and create a special parade-party for him, from 6 feet away of course."

Local sports leagues hit by virus

By Mike Moore
For The Citizen

The Coronavirus has forced many of us to postpone plans and live outside of the norm. It is true on the local sports scene, as recreational leagues have had to make tough choices in the wake of the virus.

MUSA cancels spring season

The Madison United Soccer Association (MUSA) decided Sunday to cancel the 2020 spring season because of the COVID-19 virus.

"The select season will be decided in consultation with KYSA and remains in place for now," the MUSA board said in a letter.

The decision boiled down to the uncertainty of the virus, the letter continued.

How the virus stole Easter with apologies to Dr. Seuss

By Kristi Bothur/With a nod to Dr. Seuss

This Side of Heaven Blog

Twas late in '19 when the virus began
Bringing chaos and fear to all people, each land.

People were sick, hospitals full,
Doctors overwhelmed, no one in school.

As winter gave way to the promise of spring,
The virus raged on, touching peasant and king.

People hid in their homes from the enemy unseen.
They YouTubed and Zoomed, social-distanced, and cleaned.

April approached and churches were closed.
"There won't be an Easter," the world supposed.

"There won't be church services, and egg hunts are out.
No reason for new dresses when we can't go about."

Holy Week started, as bleak as the rest.
The world was focused on masks and on tests.

"Easter can't happen this year," it proclaimed.
"Online and at home, it just won't be the same."

Maundy Thursday, Good Friday, the days came and went.
The virus pressed on; it just would not relent.

The world woke Sunday and nothing had changed.
The virus still menaced, the people, estranged.

"Pooh pooh to the saints," the world was grumbling.
"They're finding out now that no Easter is coming.

"They're just waking up! We know just what they'll do!
Their mouths will hang open a minute or two,
And then all the saints will all cry boo-hoo.

"That noise," said the world, "will be something to hear."
So it paused and the world put a hand to its ear.

And it did hear a sound coming through all the skies.
It started down low, then it started to rise.

But the sound wasn't depressed.
Why, this sound was triumphant!
It couldn't be so!
But it grew with abundance!

The world stared around, popping its eyes.
Then it shook! What it saw was a shocking surprise!

Every saint in every nation, the tall and the small,
Was celebrating Jesus in spite of it all!

It hadn't stopped Easter from coming! It came!
Somehow or other, it came just the same!

And the world with its life quite stuck in quarantine
Stood puzzling and puzzling.
"Just how can it be?"

"It came without bonnets, it came without bunnies,
It came without egg hunts, cantatas, or money."

Then the world thought of something it hadn't before.
"Maybe Easter," it thought, "doesn't come from a store.
Maybe Easter, perhaps, means a little bit more."

And what happened then?
Well....the story's not done.
What will YOU do?
Will you share with that one
Or two or more people needing hope in this night?
Will you share the source of your life in this fight?

The churches are empty - but so is the tomb,
And Jesus is victor over death, doom, and gloom.

So this year at Easter, let this be our prayer,
As the virus still rages all around, everywhere.

May the world see hope when it looks at God's people.
May the world see the church is not a building or steeple.
May the world find Faith in Jesus' death and resurrection,
May the world find Joy in a time of dejection.
May 2020 be known as the year of survival,

But not only that -Let it start a revival.

finances, or there are ways that they could be saving money when they do open back up. There are also ways to pivot and change their business model."

Perhaps the most pressing need for local business owners is getting financial relief until the lockdown is lifted, and Henderson has been steering people toward programs of other agencies, including the Small Business Administration's Economic Injury Disaster Loan program. In the meantime, the KSBDC continues to provide resources and guidance, including an online COVID-19 checklist for small businesses available at https://www.ksbdc.org/coronavirus

Another recommended resource is an online guide entitled "Managing in times of Financial Difficulty," which is also found on KSBDC's coronavirus website.

Though tough times have arrived, Henderson said the principal of strategizing and calmly planning ahead still applies. She suggests business owners can seize the chance to rethink their business model. In just one example, Henderson said retailers can reevaluate which products are likely to be most marketable in the months ahead, then focus their efforts accordingly. Here in Kentucky's arts and crafts capital, that principle can even apply to artisans, Henderson said.

"Now is the time to get ready for when our economy comes back and there's money out there to be used for buying art," Henderson said. "If they feel like they have a focus on something that's going to have a place in the new market, then that excites them and gives them hope. It gives them something to work towards."

Berea's restauranteurs have been hit especially hard by the crisis, with some opting to close, while others have tried to pivot to curbside, delivery and take-out service. Berea Business Development Director Donna Angel said that while business conditions are challenging for restaurants trying to stay open, she's been surprised at how much restauranteurs have been helping the community.

"I think it's just incredible," Angel said, noting some cases in which restaurants have given away food when some families were short on money. "I think everyone has gone above and beyond in wanting to volunteer and doing anything that they can."

For Angel, one of the most positive signs is local business owners seem determined to make things work, including seeking out government assistance. "I find that encouraging that people want to help themselves, and that they are reaching out to get help to start going in the right direction," Angel said.

There has been some initial frustration among business owners because some government apps and websites, which were launched quickly to address the crisis, have broken down early on, or that the information requirements for some applications are ever evolving. Angel said delays are especially difficult for small business owners who need money now to pay for rent, utilities or to retain their employees. "The frustration with the small business owner is they can't get what they need quickly enough to carry on with, and here in Berea, every penny does matter to our small businesses."

At press time, many Berea industries were still largely at a standstill, though Angel reported there are signs that factories are slowly coming back to life as they prepare for recovery. That, like many other factors, is a sign of hope. Said Angel: "I always try to end my conversations with 'This too shall pass.' We absolutely will get through this, Governor Beshear is right about that."

Fighting a virus with truth, transparency

By Ken Paulson

As the scope and threat of the coronavirus pandemic becomes clear, people all over the world hunger for two things: an effective vaccine and truthful information about the disease.

The former may be more than a year away, but the latter is critical to stemming the pandemic in the meantime.

Sunshine Week is a time each year when people like me write columns about some legislature's wrongheaded move to limit access to public records, and then try to make the case for greater access to public information and transparency in government.

But we're facing something far more dangerous than any state legislature could conjure up. It's a worldwide crisis worsened by governments whose impulse is to hide, control and censor news and information.

When a Chinese doctor shared with his colleagues his concerns that a mysterious new virus might be emerging, he was reprimanded and silenced. The doctor, Li Wenliang, died last month of coronavirus. After China mishandled and hid the virus from the public, the epidemic dramatically worsened.

The Chinese government "is now leading a sweeping campaign to purge the public sphere of dissent, censoring news reports, harassing citizen journalists and shutting down news sites," according to the New York Times.

Similar suppression has appeared in other nations, according to the Committee to Protect Journalists. In Thailand, the prime minister has threatened to arrest journalists who publish "fake news" about the virus and Iran detained a journalist for posts critical of the government's response, according to the CPJ.

But even a democracy is going to be tempted to manage the messaging, as the U.S. did by initially channeling the government's comments through a single spokesman – Vice President Mike Pence.

That has improved significantly over the past few weeks.

When the public is desperate for information, the government needs to maximize authoritative information from scientists and experts on the public payroll. That appropriately gives Americans what they need to know, and counters irresponsible pundits who have sought to minimize the threat to score political or ratings points.

Most encouraging, though, has been the response of state and local governments, schools and the private sector. Governments at every level resist disclosure and scrutiny, but this has been a refreshing change, with leaders saying: "Here's what we need to do, here's why we're doing it and here's how you can find out more."

Sports leagues and private businesses, not known for transparency, have been refreshingly transparent. How many emails have you received this week that began "Out of an abundance of caution…"? There are a lot of institutions making tough decisions these days, but they're largely doing it in partnership with the American people.

More than anything, else, though, this crisis reminds us of how wise the first generation of Americans was in demanding a free press. Despite the inevitable accusations by some that the news media were "hyping" this threat, traditional media have been measured and thorough in their coverage, making the most of their on-air medical and scientific consultants. Closer to home, local newspapers and broadcasters have devoted extensive resources to reporting how the virus will affect the communities they serve.

President Trump told the nation last week that "we are all in this together" and that's exactly what needs to happen: the government sharing what it knows truthfully and without spin or bravado, private and public institutions engaging constructively with America's most pressing challenge and news organizations keeping the public informed in a thorough and even-handed way.

In the end, science will prevail in curbing this virus. Yet the path to that victory can only emerge from true collaboration and collective sacrifice, fueled by a shared understanding of exactly what we're up against.

That can only come from the free flow of information.

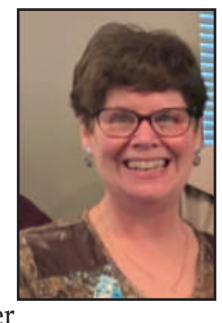
Berea Rotary Club
Spotlight

Marty Wayland, a member of Rotary International for over 22 years, will mark 10 years this September with the Berea Rotary Club. Having served the club as President, she currently is Treasurer and creates the weekly club bulletin.



As a graduate in Community Education and Art of Central Michigan, she taught K-12 Art and coached several high school sports before being laid off during the auto recession. After earning an M.B.A. from Indiana Wesleyan University, she enjoyed a successful career for 30 years in college and hospital auxiliary management in Michigan, Illinois, California, and Kentucky. Marty relocated to Berea, the perfect location to stay close to her son in Nashville and her family in Michigan. Before retirement in 2014, she worked for Berea College. Retirement has given her the opportunity to return to her first loves, art and writing. With a professional digital camera, a retirement gift to herself, she has become engaged in photographic art. She now is a Berea artist and a published writer in Kentucky. Presently she has a joint exhibit of writings and photographs with Libby Jones in the Gallery on Main in Richmond, Kentucky. She enjoys visiting her son, Nathan who is a graduate of Vanderbilt School of Medicine, walking Berea's trails with her two dogs, and gardening with the help of her cat. Evidence of fulfilling Rotary's motto of "service above self," she has served on the boards of the Berea Arts Council, Berea Urban Farm, and Habitat for Humanity as well as Treasurer and Secretary for Wallaceton Homemakers. She will be seen with the treasurer's money box welcoming citizens at the Rotary Pancake Breakfast on the next Election Day.

NOTICE TO CUSTOMERS OF KENTUCKY UTILITIES COMPANY

RECOVERY BY ENVIRONMENTAL SURCHARGE OF KENTUCKY UTILITIES COMPANY'S 2020 ENVIRONMENTAL COMPLIANCE PLAN

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that in a March 31, 2020 Application, Kentucky Utilities Company ("KU") is seeking approval by the Kentucky Public Service Commission ("Commission") in Case No. 2020-00060, pursuant to Kentucky Revised Statute 278.183 of an amended compliance plan ("2020 Plan"). Once approved, KU will begin recovering capital costs associated with new pollution control facilities in the 2020 Plan under KU's existing Electric Rate Schedule ECR (also known as the Environmental Surcharge tariff) through an increase in the environmental surcharge on customers' bills beginning in late October 2020.

Federal, state, and local environmental regulations require KU to operate facilities that produce energy from burning coal in an environmentally compliant manner. To do so, KU is seeking Commission approval to construct certain water treatment systems at the Ghent and Trimble County generating stations and to install a wastewater diffuser in the Ohio River and construct a Bottom Ash Transport Water recirculation system at the Ghent generating station. Each construction project is a component of the 2020 Plan.

KU is seeking an order approving the 2020 Plan to recover the costs of these new pollution control facilities through its Environmental Surcharge tariff. These projects are required for KU to comply with the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency's 2015 Effluent Limitations Guidelines Rule as amended. The estimated total capital cost of these new pollution control facilities is $252.3 million. Additionally, KU is requesting recovery of operation and maintenance expenses associated with certain projects in the 2020 Plan.

Beginning in late October 2020, the initial bill impact for KU's Group 1 customers is estimated to be a 0.04% increase with a maximum increase of 2.13% in 2025. Group 1 includes Rate Schedules Residential Service (RS), Residential Time-of-Day Energy Service (RTODE), Residential Time-of-Day Demand Service (RTODD), Volunteer Fire Department Service (VFD), All Electric School (AES), and all Lighting Rates (i.e., LS, RLS, LE, and TE).

RS, RTOD, and VFD customers using 1,139 kWh/month could expect a monthly increase of $0.05 up to $2.46. AES customers using 19,744 kWh/month could expect a monthly increase of $0.75 up to $38.88. LS and RLS customers could expect a monthly increase of $0.01 up to $0.33. LE customers using 3,573 kWh/month could expect a monthly increase of $0.10 up to $5.12. TE customers using 171 kWh/month could expect a monthly increase of $0.01 up to $0.39.

Beginning in late October 2020, the initial bill impact for KU's Group 2 customers is estimated to be a 0.06% increase with a maximum increase of 2.98% in 2025. Group 2 includes Rate Schedules General Service (GS), Power Service (PS), Time-of-Day Secondary Service (TODS), Time-of-Day Primary Service (TODP), Retail Transmission Service (RTS), Fluctuating Load Service (FLS), and pilot program Outdoor Sports Lighting Service (OSL).

GS customers using 1,717 kWh/month could expect a monthly increase of $0.11 up to $5.59. PS-Secondary customers using 33,725 kWh/month could expect a monthly increase of $1.45 up to $77.01. PS-Primary customers using 58,355 kWh/month could expect a monthly increase of $2.46 up to $130.68. TODS customers using 208,133 kWh/month could expect a monthly increase of $5.80 up to $308.49. TODP customers using 1,294,965 kWh/month could expect a monthly increase of $29.04 up to $1,543.53. RTS customers using 4,908,868 kWh/month could expect a monthly increase of $94.85 up to $5,041.26. FLS-Transmission customers using 51,873,999 kWh/month could expect a monthly increase of $859.76 up to $45,695.77. OSL-Secondary customers using 5,204 kWh/month could expect a monthly increase of $0.44 up to $23.50.

Reflections

from April 1980
Berea Citizen Archives

• The Berea City Council heard protests from angry parents concerning dogs roaming at large within the city.

"Too many people have too many dogs that they don't take care of," said Lowell Davis of Apple Grove. Davis said children in her neighborhood were chased in the neighborhood by large dogs.

Berea Police Chief Billie Moseley told the council that police responded to calls of that nature and would continue to do so in the future.

"I have a report on my desk showing that an officer was dispatched to the scene," he said.

Council members said the responsibility for dog control rests with the county government.

"The city of Berea can't afford to maintain a dog pound and the city of Richmond probably can't either," Berea Mayor Dr. Clifford Kerby said. "But the three of us (Fiscal Court included) could do it."

• The 50-cent parking meter citation stuck under your windshield may not mean anything to you the day you get it — but wait 72 hours. It will perform one of the most amazing tricks in the inflationary times and you will still owe the Berea Police Department $4.

The enforcement of higher penalties for unpaid tickets began in 1979 and according to Mosley, Berea citizens have only just begun to feel the bite.

If a ticket is paid within 48 hours, it will cost the violator only 50 cents. After 48 hours it will cost $2 and after 72 hours, each ticket will be $4.

If the tickets aren't paid the police department has the option of taking the violator to court, where the fine and court costs will be paid by the violator.

Summer events in jeopardy

Tourism officials weighing options on craft festival, learnshops

By Andy McDonald
For The Citizen

Berea's tourism officials are weighing whether to cancel upcoming summer events because of the COVID-19 pandemic. The issue was raised at a recent meeting of the Berea Tourism Commission when City of Berea Tourism Director Kerri Hensley told officials the city already cancelled April's Hands On Workshops due to travel and social distancing restrictions.

As pandemic-related restrictions continue, officials are now contemplating whether to cancel the Berea Craft Festival and the Festival of Learnshops, two prominent summer events. In a meeting held by video-conference last Wednesday, Hensley told tourism commissioners that more should be known about the state of the pandemic sometime by April, but that a final decision about whether to go forth with the events will likely have to be made in May. Staff is currently operating as if those events will occur, though spending on items such as advertising has been suspended.

"I can postpone this decision as long as we're not spending money," Hensley

MSHS students create thank you packages for teachers

By Mike Moore/The Citizen

Teaching is a challenging profession during a normal year. But this year, teachers have faced challenges like no other as COVID-19 has emptied schools and forced teachers to adapt to a new routine.

To show their appreciation for their teachers, a group of Madison Southern High School students with the school's Family, Career and Community Leaders of America (FCCLA) showed their appreciation last Wednesday by creating small thank you packages for the teachers.

"We do a teacher appreciation breakfast every year, and we're trying to come up with a quarantine edition," Family Sciences Teacher Emily Alexander said. "It's much harder to pull off since we can't get in groups. We had to come up with a concept that was easier for us to do from home."

Senior Aspen Glover said saying thanks is extra important during the pandemic.

"We are thankful for all the essential workers in the community, as well as our teachers," Glover said.

The FCCLA group passed out 80 thank you packages to Madison Southern teachers. Thank you items included homemade popcorn seasoning and gift cards.

"The club wanted to make sure that teachers knew they are not forgotten, and we realize how much work they are putting into NIT," Alexander said.

FCCLA officers put packages on teachers' front porches while maintaining appropriate distance presented the gifts.

Madison Southern Senior Aspen Glover, above left, presents teacher Lindsey Caudill a thank you package in her front yard last Wednesday. Madison Southern's Family, Career and Community Leaders Club made 80 thank you bags for teachers last week.

Madison Southern Senior Jayden Barnett puts items in a thank you bag last week. Madison Southern's Family, Career and Community Leaders of America club organized this event to remind teachers that they are missed while school is out.

OBITUARIES

Lake Moran (Spiff) Lake, 88, Somerset

It is with great sadness that we announce the passing of Lake Moran (Spiff) Lake, age 88. He died at the Lake Cumberland Regional Hospital Tuesday, April 7, 2020 in Somerset, Kentucky after struggling with hip surgery complications. Spiff was a lifelong resident of the Cartersville community in Garrard County near Berea, Kentucky, but most recently resided at Somerwoods Nursing Home after living with his son, Joe, for six years in Somerset, Kentucky. He married Edna Lucinda Belcher November 2, 1961. After 39 years of marriage, he lost his wife to cancer December 13, 2001. Edna was from Corn Creek Whitley County, Kentucky and was the daughter of George Washington and Nancy Wilson Belcher. Spiff grew up in and around Cartersville/Berea, Kentucky. He would often tell people that he lived within 100 feet of where he was born for 81 years and was heartsick to have to walk off and leave his home to live with his family in Somerset. Spiff was a 1951 graduate of Paint Lick High School. In 1962, Spiff became a faithful member of White Lick Baptist Church. He gave his life to the Lord at 30 years old and was baptized in Hot Shot Wilmot's Lake in Cartersville. As a member of White Lick Baptist Church, Spiff made many meaningful and lifelong friends. Other than his family, Spiff was most passionate about his horses and mules and found great joy raising and breaking Tennessee Walking horses and gated mules. In his lifetime, Spiff raised 211 horses and mules and was proud to say in all those years he only lost 13 foals. He also enjoyed being a member of and riding with the Trail Pleasure Saddle Club for many years.

Spiff was the first of nine children born to the late Bill and Delsia (Lakes) Lake October 9, 1931 at home in Berea, Kentucky. His wife, Edna Belcher Lake; one brother, Jack Lake, and a half brother, William (Booger Bill) Lake; three sisters, Vivian Guise, Lexa Kyle, and Sandra Alexander preceded him in death. He is survived by two sisters, Libby and her husband Don Pigg (Dayton, OH), and Yvonne and her husband Dean Huffman (Dayton, OH); two brothers, Billy and his wife Tammy Lake (Lancaster, KY) and Edsel (Pooch) and his wife Eva Lake (Cartersville, KY); his only son, Joe and his wife Deborah Lake (Somerset, KY); three grandchildren, Seth Lake, Joshua Lake, and Hannah Lake Crawford and her husband Philip (Somerset, KY); and one great-grandchild Benjamin Lake Crawford. His legacy includes being a story teller, the family historian, and a friend of many. Spiff will be fondly remembered by his many wonderful nieces, nephews, cousins, extended family and many good friends.

Due to Covid-19, A Celebration of Life service will be held for family and friends at a later date.

A graveside service was held for the immediate family on Good Friday, April 10, 2020 in the Berea Cemetery with Bro. David Bullock of Somerset officiating.

Lakes Funeral Home in Berea is in charge of all arrangements.

Briefs

Baptist Health adjusts staff

Buffeted by unprecedented medical and operational challenges related to the COVID-19 pandemic, Baptist Health is temporarily reassigning some staff, furloughing others and reducing pay for leaders.

"Like other hospitals across the country, Baptist Health is striking a delicate balance between maintaining a strong front line of skilled caregivers to battle the COVID-19 pandemic, while grappling with the resulting drain on resources," said Gerard Colman, Baptist Health CEO. "After much thoughtful deliberation, we are re-prioritizing and reassigning some staff to serve where needed most, which is at the bedside providing patient care, and in our communities identifying those at risk for COVID-19.

"Focusing on these two critical needs is allowing us to best care for our patients and limit the spread of the virus."

Baptist Health is also implementing temporary unpaid furloughs across the eight-hospital system, the Baptist Health Medical Group and the System Services Center (corporate headquarters).

Telecommunicators week

Telecommunicators at Kentucky State Police Post 11 in London and Richmond will be recognized along with more than 200,000 of their fellow communicators nationwide April 12-18 during National Public Safety Telecommunicators Week.

These silent heroes behind the headsets are more than just a voice on the other end of the line. They often save lives on a daily basis.

Captain Todd Dalton, Commander of Kentucky State Police Post 11 states that the dispatchers at Post 11 are the back bone of the agency. Every employee of the Kentucky State Police has a very important role in making our agency so successful. However, when you call the Kentucky State Police you aren't getting a Trooper right away. You're getting a voice that will calm you and help get the resources to you in your time of need. You might not ever see their name in the papers for doing what they are expected to do. It takes a special person to do their job and the dispatchers at Post 11 London are the best of the best.

KSP employs 180 telecommunicators at 16 posts throughout the state. In 2019, they answered 2.1 million calls resulting in 500,236 requests for assistance.

Census Saturday launched

Shaping Our Appalachian Region, Inc. (SOAR) has launched a Census Saturday campaign. The online event is intended to promote the completion of the U.S. Census application and to leverage social media to encourage others across Appalachia Kentucky to do so.

Census Saturday events will run every Saturday through the month of May from noon to 6 p.m.

"It is as important as ever for citizens to take the time to complete the Census application," said Jared Arnett, executive director of SOAR. "As we work to defeat the COVID-19 virus, communities, businesses, and healthcare facilities from across Appalachia Kentucky will need federal assistance, and the Census numbers are often used as a way to justify investments of federal dollars into a region."

The Census application can be completed via mail or online. If you have not received an application in the mail, you can complete it online. Every 10 years a census is taken and getting a complete and accurate count of the population is critically important.

Rotary Club Spotlight

"Things get done in this world by the work of others and by others working together."

These are words from a behind-the-scenes community contributor and 35-year member of Berea Rotary, John Gilliam.

With respect to holding an office, John said he "tried not to," but he supports the projects, with the Berea Food Drive being his favorite.

John migrated to Kentucky from West Virginia when he was in third grade.

Being motivated by sports, John switched from Kirksville to Berea to play basketball.

However, that plan was set aside after a serious bicycle accident which involved almost a month of hospitalization.

After high school graduation, he and a close friend formed a partnership for a barber shop that was located where the Farmer's Market is held today.

After 15 years as a barber, he attended auctioneer school in Nashville which led him to night school for his real estate license and broker's certification.

He and his haircut buddy then went into real estate together, followed by Economy Insurance. In the midst of these periods of growth and interest, his wife Paula was by his side as his "rock."

Even though John was not particularly fond of school, both of their sons, John and David, are professional educators.

Through the efforts of Paula, John saw the need for a high school located in Berea. To bring that to fruition, he became a member of the Madison County Board of Education where he served for 16 years.

His introduction to golf was through caddying for his boss when he worked at a service station. That began a lifetime love of golf.

After 52 years he still enjoys golf until dark sets in. He honors the four-way test of Rotary in all that he does.

This is evident in 25 years serving as a deacon at Fairview Baptist Church.

When the big sign goes up at the selected location for the Election Day Pancake Breakfast, you won't see who placed it there.

You can be sure it was Berea Rotary member John Gilliam, working behind the scenes as is his style.

Scenter Stage
Teresa Scenters, Publisher

Even though the date of my retirement has been in place for months, now that the time has actually arrived, it's not quite as joyous as I thought it would be. Covid-19 and all the shut downs and social distancing recommendations have completely squelched my excitement.

Don't get me wrong, I'm still really glad to be entering this next phase of my life. It's just that the current circumstances have altered the big plans I had. No celebrating. No travel. No shopping. No visiting. I feel like I'm dreaming we're in a Stephen King novel, hopefully I'll wake up soon. In the mean time, I guess I'll go clean out closets and pull weeds or something.

There's an often-repeated adage, "The days are long but the years are short." That's certainly true of the time I've spent running this newspaper. It's been an amazing journey. I've learned so much and have met and worked with remarkable people. I've made close and lasting friendships. While the daily grind has sometimes been monotonous, it has never been a boring business. No two days have been alike.

There have been unbelievable changes in the world of newspapers during my tenure. Technology has been both a blessing and a challenge for this business. When I started this job we were still using paste-up boards and hand cutting color. The pages had to be physically driven to London to the press. These days everything gets uploaded with a single keyboard command. The downside is that with the Internet and so much instant information, younger generations have begun to see newspapers as obsolete. That saddens me.

Walter Lippmann once said, "The news, as it reaches the newspaper office, is an incredible medley of fact, propaganda, rumor, suspicion, clues, hopes, and fears, and the task of selecting and ordering that news is one of the truly sacred offices in a democracy."

I can assure you that I never believed my job to be sacred but I have certainly felt it was a calling. I've always tried hard to be evenhanded in the content of The Citizen.

Berea is a very diverse place where folks often disagree on important matters. I've done my best to make sure all opinions were given voice in the paper.

It makes it easier to leave knowing The Citizen will be in good hands. Keith Taylor will be taking over my position and I feel confident he'll do a wonderful job. As will Deanna Tyler, who is new to the staff. She will be taking care of advertising following my buddy, Sheila Johnson's, retirement last month.

Exiting the newspaper doesn't mean I'm retiring from life. I want to continue to be productive and involved. While I'm not 100 percent sure what the next steps will be, I am hopeful that life will take me down a path that leads to helping others in some way.

I'm not sure what the future holds but I do know who holds my future and I trust Him to lead me to just where I need to be. May all of you be blessed, as you have been a blessing to me.

FROM OUR READERS

Horseman: We will prevail

In a photograph, used behind the 23rd Psalm taken in Big Bend National Park, just north of the Mexican border. Seen in it is a hard and unforgiving hot terrain where it is easy to imagine the "shadow of death."

In my memory I can also imagine the many people who, over time, passed through the hardships of this valley and lived.

They lived because they did not give up to the heat, lack of food and water or the stress of not knowing when or where they would find relief. They had to have the determination to survive and the faith that they could. From that they gathered the strength to forge on into what had become a new and changing reality.

Up until now we have primarily known that kind of drain on our resources second hand. We have only heard or read about the "great depression" and World War II, the two most life changing events affecting our country until now. In our lifetimes we have known situations that have been hard to get through but nothing as difficult as "Covid-19" promises to be.

We will get through all the upheaval that COVID-19 is threatening to bring as long as we keep faith in ourselves, our community, our country and our Christian and humanitarian beliefs. With faith and the American character of strength and determination to meet an challenge we will not only survive but we will prevail as Americans always have.

Much of what we will encounter in this struggle with Covid-19 may confuse us for a time and test us in new and unimagined ways. But together we will prevail.

Jeanie and Ike Horseman

Barnhill: Governor's decision is correct

I'm Alec with Boy Scout 51 in Berea. I'm writing today because I want to address my opinion on the coronavirus and how it affects my life.

The coronavirus and how our Governor, Andy Beshear, is handling the virus made my house turn into a nut house. My grandma and aunt are driving me crazy. Being inside my house and yard is kinda boring. Being home makes me want to go to school. I don't like this NIT stuff every day.

The coronavirus, I mean, COVID-19, can affect my aunt a lot. She's 58, I think, but she has COPD, Asthma, diabetes and practically everything. I agree with the Governor because I don't want to bring the virus home to her. Even though life is crazy and serious, I 100 percent agree with the Governor's choice of action.

Sincerely, Alec Barnhill,

Word on the "streets

What are you missing the most during all of this social distancing?

Angie Alexander and Sadie Ponder, Berea

"Seeing family and friends, especially on Easter."

Marilyn Chasteen, Paint Lick

"My grandchildren and great grand-daughters. I need to hug them."

Teresa Bussel, Mount Vernon

"I miss going to church, hearing the word of God and the fellowship. We must do our part during this troubled time. Pray and love one another. This too shall pass."

A Berea policeman was hospitalized as a result of multiple knife and gunshot wounds inflicted by two male assailants early Thursday, March 26. Patrolman Robert Conn, 27, of the Berea Police Department, was reported in satisfactory condition Tuesday at the Berea Hospital. He was suffering from gunshot wounds in the left foot and forehead, knife wounds in his left shoulder and left arm and leg, and several bruises about the head and face. Conn received the injuries while patrolling early Thursday morning on Short Street. Conn said that he had been watching the Short Street area because he had noticed several young men armed with clubs in the vicinity and he had noted a light red late-model car cruising the general area that morning. No arrests had yet been made.

said. Additionally, tourism will not be printing its annual seasonal guidebook.

Commissioner Charles Arnold expressed concern about whether either event would be allowed to take place. "I'd like to be hopeful, but I really doubt it's going to happen this year," Arnold said.

Already this year the Berea Tourism Commission voted to suspend the Arts Accelerator program, initially planning on allowing it to continue to until the end of the fiscal year. The program was to be reassessed with the possibility that it could be revived at a future time. Because shops were closed as a result of the COVID-19 crisis, however, officials decided to suspend the program completely in March. The city has also terminated its lease of the Hays Building on North Broadway Street and is scheduled to vacate the building by the end of April.

Another item under consideration was the status of the Tourism Commission's annual budget. Hensley noted the current revenue projection assumes businesses will be back in operation by August. The budget projects substantial decreases in transient room taxes and the restaurant tax, both of which feed tourism. Arnold, who said he has six restaurants currently closed, expressed concern that current revenue projections will fall short if the pandemic drags on.

"I'm hoping this will be the bottom line, but I have a feeling it won't be," Arnold said.

"It's going to be tough," Commissioner Dale Ballinger agreed.

Kentucky Tourism Cabinet officials project the hospitality industry will take at least a 33 percent hit in revenues this year, officials said.

The commission was slated to revisit the tourism budget again Wednesday at a special called meeting.

In other business, the commission discussed the future of tourism advertising, selecting two firms to move forward in the selection process for a new agency. Commissioners voted to select between Digital Tulip and Right Place Media.

While some commission members preferred Digital Tulip because the firm seemed to meet all of the city's state needs, Arnold questioned whether Digital Tulip was too expensive.

The commission discussed the choice again at Wednesday's meeting.

Rep. Barr supports more relief

This is the first of a two-part series with Sixth District Congressman Andy Barr on the current COVID-19 pandemic.

By Keith Taylor/News Editor

U.S. Rep. Andy Barr says the government's response to the coronavirus and economic emergency has been "robust and heroic." (Kentucky Today/Keith Taylor)

LEXINGTON, Ky. (KT) — An economic stimulus package passed by Congress will begin to fully kick in this week when Americans are expected to receive their checks from the treasury department and 6th District Representative Andy Barr said the plan is working.

"I think there are technical issues and obviously nothing is perfect, and I do think that, overall, this has been a robust and heroic response from the federal government to address not only the public health emergency but also the economic and financial emergency the coronavirus presents to the American people," the Kentucky congressman said Thursday.

Although the government and-most of the state is in shutdown mode because of the current COVID-19 crisis, Barr (R-Ky) doesn't think the temporary downturn will have long-term consequences on the economy.

"The way to think about this from an economic standpoint, it's not a recession, it's not a recession in the traditional definition of that word or that term," he said. "This is an intentional, voluntary shutdown of the U.S. economy by the government. This is not a business cycle phenomenon. This is done intentionally and deliberately shutting down the economy in order to respond to a public health emergency, whereas a recession will result in 10 percent unemployment (rates). This will result isna lot more because the government is shutting down in wide swaths of the economy."

Barr said relief provided by the federal government is the right thing to do, given the current state of the economy.

"It's all-together appropriate for the government to come back and compensate the American people, households, individuals, families, and businesses for the hardship the government itself has created for good reason," he said. "We need to provide that social distancing to kill the virus."

Barr praised early action by the Trump administration to take steps as early as January to slow the spread of the virus.

"I really credit the President for shutting down travel from China as early as January," Barr said. "That was huge and I really appreciate the fact that the president led with the travel restrictions on Europe when he did."

Barr added that prior to the pandemic becoming widespread in Kentucky and the United States, the President and Congress had already begun taking measures to deal with a potential national pandemic and ease potential long-term effects.

"There has been some criticism on the administration on testing and other issues but fact of the matter is, the Congress and this administration has actually increased funding for infectiousness diseases and the CDC over the last several years," he said. "The funding for the CDC actually increased Fiscal Year 2015, five years ago by 32 percent. The problem is, even though funding increased and we increased funding for the strategic national stockpile, this is an unprecedented and unforeseen pandemic."

Once the pandemic begins to lose its grip on society, Barr said China needs to be held accountable.

"When it is all said and done, there needs to be a robust investigation into the origins of this pathogen in China (and) there needs to be an investigation into the Chinese Communist party — their lies and their cover-ups," he said. "There also needs to be an investigation into what China has done the last few months, which is hoarding personal protective equipment and galvanizing the supply chain."

Another stimulus package is being discussed this week and Barr is in favor of taking more action to help keep the economy afloat going into the three quarter. Barr supports the $350 billion Paycheck Protection Program, which Congress is looking to expanding upon.

"I think it's a great program because it connects workers to their jobs and it will allow us to restart the economy as opposed to layoffs and forcing people into the unemployment rolls," Barr said. "The more we can see people connected to their work and their payrolls and their paychecks, the better off we will be."

For deck repair on a bridge on Angel Road, VanHooseCo Precast of Loudon, Tennessee won the bid for $40,323. VanHooseCo also won the bid to repair the Bogie Mill Bridge for $99,584. Hinkle Environmental Services won bids for four of the proposed jobs, including a two-part project for the repair of slide damage on Arbuckle Road. Hinkle's bid for job No. 1 was accepted for $125,760, while the company's bid for job No. 2 at Arbuckle Road was accepted for $106,203. Hinkle's proposal for slide repair on Hagan Road was accepted for $55,182, as well as rail and curb repair on Wheeler Road for $74,923. Magistrates voted unanimously to accept the bid recommendations after they were reviewed by county road department officials.

The court also heard the first reading of a solid waste management ordinance which would include new regulations. Madison County Judge Executive Reagan Taylor said citizens can review the ordinance on the transparency section of the county's website, and they can comment by email at comments@madisoncountyky.us.

Turning to the COVID-19 crisis, the court unanimously approved a resolution authorizing the judge/executive to execute an agreement to receive a grant from the U.S. Department of Justice. Taylor explained the grant for $58,008 enables the county to recover costs related to overtime, protective equipment such as masks and clothing, travel expenses related to the distribution of emergency supplies, and costs relating to the care of inmates during the crisis.

Moving on to public safety, the court then voted to approve a number of memorandums of agreement between the cities of Richmond and Berea, as well as Berea volunteer firefighters for the purpose of securing mutual aid agreements. The agreements pledge mutual assistance in providing emergency services, hazardous material containment, motor vehicle accidents and other emergencies between the Madison County Fire Department and the city fire departments of Berea and Richmond, as well as the Berea Volunteer Fire Association, Inc., and the Berea Rescue Squad, Inc.

In other business:

- The court adopted a resolution regarding a CDBG project to expand God's Outreach. The measure was approved unanimously and provides for the payment of a $58,000 invoice to Grant's Excavating. The project is funded with a $300,000 CDBG grant.
- Another resolution adopted Tuesday endorsed an agreement with Southern Health Partners Health Services for the provision of a psychiatric nurse to Madison County Detention Center. The county is required to provide court-ordered assessments of indigent individuals, officials explained.
- Turning to personnel, the court approved several promotions. Clay Kaylor was promoted to the rank of shift supervisor in the EMA/CSEPP, while Jacob Daniels, Robert Freeman, Logan King, and Austin Wilby were all promoted to the rank of firefighter III.
- During the Judge's Report, Taylor reminded people to continue to observe social distancing and he also urged citizens to take advantage of the county's four parks. Taylor said he appreciates that citizens have made an effort to observe the voluntary quarantine. Taylor also urged citizens to participate in the 2020 census, noting that the accurate count will impact state and federal representation for the community, school funding, road funding, and other critical facets of county life for the next decade.
- Magistrate Tom Botkin reiterated Taylor's point on the census, noting the census will determine the distribution of some $675 billion in funding. Botkin mentioned that citizens can also participate in the census online at 2020census.gov or by calling 1-844-330-2020.
- Magistrate John Tudor noted that Kroger and the state are partnering to provide drive thru COVID-19 tests at selected outlets. Tudor said priority is given to healthcare workers, first responders, and those suffering from conditions that compromise their resistance to the virus, such as heart, kidney disease, or diabetes. Tudor noted the tests will be administered from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. until 250 tests per day are administered. There was no information on when the program would start in Richmond.

Madison County Clerk Kenny Barger noted the Kentucky Primary Election has been moved to Tuesday, June 23. The final day to register to vote is May 26, he said. Barger said citizens can register to vote online at elect.ky.gov, and that voting by mail will take place in the June election. Barger said he expects the official results of the primary to be finalized one week after the election. Residents can also renew license tags online at drive.ky.gov, or call the Clerk's Office for more information at 624-4703.

Temporary suspension of restaurant tax tabled

By Andy McDonald
For The Citizen

The Berea City Council unanimously voted to table an emergency measure that would have suspended the collection of transient room taxes and restaurant taxes from May 1 through September 30 Tuesday night.

City Council

Ordinance 09-20 stated that because proprietors of local restaurants and hotels were struggling during the COVID-19 pandemic, the city would forgo the collection of those taxes until the fall. The city already delayed the collection of business profit fees until the summer. Businesses would be able to collect the fees, but would not have to remit them to the city, according to the measure.

Emily LaDouceur motioned to table the item, however, citing a need to first consult with tourism officials and the city's finance director before a final decision is made. LaDouceur's motion was unanimously adopted and the ordinance was tabled.

The council adopted a number of resolutions, agreeing to intergovernmental agreements with Madison County. The four resolutions committed Berea in the areas of public safety communication services, interagency fire protection services, animal control and a mutual aid agreement between the fire departments of the

Survival mode

Story and Photos by Mike Moore/For The Citizen

It has been more than a month since Kentucky Gov. Andy Beshear ordered all restaurants in the state to suspend dining in operations.

The impact of that decision has left Kentucky's restaurant industry reeling financially, according to Stacy Roof, president, and CEO of the Kentucky Restaurant Association.

"On average, Kentucky restaurant operators reported a 70 percent decline in sales during the period from April 1 to April 10, indicating an estimated loss of more than $550 million in sales in April if trends continue through the end of the month," Roof wrote in an email.

That is on par with what many Berea eating establishments are experiencing over the past month.

Terry Cheeks, owner of the Smokehouse Grill on Old Peggy Flats Road said his business had been walloped.

Tyler, a Berea native, is a 2004 graduate of Madison Southern High School and has been a realtor in Madison County since 2004. She currently also is an agent with Century 21 Advantage in Richmond. She also is a board member for the Madison County Home Builders Association.

She served as publisher of the Banner in Mount Vernon from 2006-2010 and serves as middle school girls soccer coach at Berea Community School.

"I am excited to join the Berea Citizen as advertising director and watch the paper continue to grow," she said.

"Deanna brings a wealth of knowledge to the position," Berea Citizen news editor Keith Taylor said. "I'm looking forward to working with Deanna and building on the success of this publication in the future."

"We've lost 95 percent of our sales because of this," Cheeks told the Berea Citizen. "We feel like we're doing nothing (sales-wise) compared to what we were doing."

For more than 12 years, the buffet has been one of Smokehouse Grill's calling cards, making up 60 percent of the restaurant's revenue, Cheeks said.

Since mid-March, the restaurant has been averaging between 50 and 60 tickets per day.

"It's been tough," Cheeks concluded.

A similar tale is told throughout Berea's restaurant community, including Papaleno's on Center Street and Hitz BBQ on Cooper Drive.

Papaleno's co-owner Jerome Lewis said that the Berea pizza hot spot had seen a 60 percent drop in revenue since mid-March.

"We were starting to enter into our extremely busy season," Lewis explained. "January and February are usually not as busy, but when March hits, it's like the floodgates are open."

Like many restaurants, dine-in is where the majority of revenue is made, and Papaleno's is no different, Lewis added.

"Our main source of revenue is dining in," he explained.

The same can be said at Hitz BBQ, where owner Dan Webb said business has also seen a drastic downturn.

"We've gone from upward of 200 or more people inside our business a day to none. It's a big difference," Webb said.

Many restaurants have attempted to compensate by promoting curbside picks up and delivery services, but even with the temporary change in the business model, the revenue isn't what it was, Webb said.

"It varies from day to day," he explained. "We have our days where we are swamped, and some that are not so busy."

Since the restrictions went into place, Webb said Hitz is seeing an average of 75 to 100 customers a day.

All three businesses have made the difficult decision to reduce staff, which isn't something any of them enjoy.

"I don't want it to drag on because I don't want to lose my good staff," Lewis said. "We've had staff members here 20 years."

Cheeks said he has had to lay off 15 employees, and a skeleton crew of four employees remain.

When things return to normal is anyone's guess, but the trio are grateful for a community that still shows its support by backing them during this difficult time.

"This community has helped us," Webb said. "I can't say enough. As a small business owner, it is greatly appreciated."

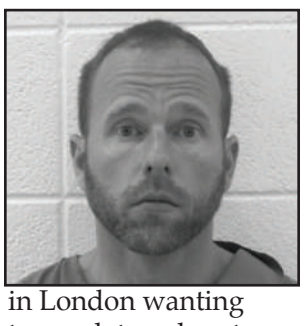
Lewis agreed.

"Our customers are wonderful, and they've been eating with us for the last 30 years, so we have gotten a lot of local support," he said.

Resilient is one way to describe the Berea restaurant scene, and Cheeks expects his business and others to weather the storm.

"We're all working together and trying to support each other, and I think that is what it is going to take," Cheeks explained. "All of us want to make it, and we've all pulled together, and I think we'll continue to go forward."

Rep. Goforth arrested on domestic charges



According to Laurel County Sheriff John Root, Rep. Robert Goforth, R-East Bernstadt, was arrested early Tuesday morning and charged with strangulation in the first degree, assault in the fourth degree, domestic violence with minor injury, and terroristic threatening in the third-degree.

Under state law, first degree strangulation is a Class C felony, with a punishment of up to 10 years in prison if convicted, while the other two charges are misdemeanors.

The Laurel County Sheriff's Office Facebook page states, "Deputies were dispatched to a complaint that a female subject was at 911 Dispatch Center in London wanting to speak to a deputy regarding an alleged domestic assault that had just occurred with three small children still in the home. When deputies arrived at 911 dispatch, and made contact with the female, they noted that she had visible marks on her forehead, neck and arms. They learned that allegedly there had been an altercation and during the altercation the female victim had been strangled."

The Facebook post says the deputies then went to a home off Blevins and Brown Road to check on the well-being of the children, who were found safe, and continued their investigation. "Deputies also noted there was bruising to the female victim's leg and that during the altercation the female victim stated that this subject stated he was going to kill her."

Goforth, 44, was arrested shortly after 3 a.m. and taken to the Laurel County Detention Center. He was later released after posting $25,000 cash bond, according to jail records.

The woman's name has not been released.

He is scheduled for arraignment on June 1.

History: Pestilence in America

Notes to Consider

G. S. Morris, Retired soldier, teacher

As I sat at the kitchen table typing this article on Easter Morning; news had been breaking over the weekend concerning the shocking illegal orders given by our commonwealth's boy governor and his fellow socialist, the Mayor of Louisville, to employ the state and local police against Christians attending Easter services.

Thankfully, a federal judge issued an order stopping the Louisville plot. I hope all my readers will seek out the text of that order (Google: On Fire Christian Center, Inc. v. Greg Fischer); it is well worth reading. Further, if you've been among the ranks of those gullibly mouthing, "Well I didn't vote for him; but I think Beshear's been doing a good…" and continue to do so after this stunt; shame on you.

Caused by bacteria contaminated water and/or food; Cholera fatalities result from heinous fits of diarrhea and/or vomiting which dehydrates the victims, leading to shock and death if not treated quickly by antibiotics. Lexington was subject to two infamous Cholera epidemics; one in 1833 and the other in 1849.

In this article's introduction, I detailed the facts concerning Gov. Beshear and Mayor Fischer's illegal actions under the guise of "protecting" public health. As the current China Flu hysteria begins to wind down; history will note the Trump Administration has remained true to the 10th Amendment's guarantees in that the administration has published suggested guidelines (which have been misguided and have unnecessarily paralyzed our economy) to the states; but the implementation of actions have been left to state and/or local leaders (again, depending on how each state sees fit). In response to the Cholera outbreaks of the nineteenth-century, state and local governments established laws and regulations to promote the separation of human waste from water and food sources (sewer/septic tank requirements, etc.).

Could, during a state of emergency, Kentucky's (or any other state's) Governor order an infected individual to be quarantined in their home until cleared by a medical doctor? Of course he could, given the general police powers reserved to the states. Could Kentucky's Governor order the Kentucky State Police to enter private property (all churches in the United States are private property); record the license plate numbers of church attendees; transmit that information to county health departments; and ORDER the imprisonment of those asymptomatic Christians in their homes for a period of two weeks (all the while retail stores, liquor joints, and his chief campaign contributor's abortion mill remain arbitrarily open)? Of course not. The fact the governor, an attorney and former Attorney General of the Commonwealth of Kentucky is either ignorant of these basic constitutional facts; or (more troubling) flouted the Supreme Law of the Land has only confirmed what those of us who have been warning our fellow Kentuckians about him and his daily snake oil show.

Respiratory viruses fade with warm weather and built up herd immunity. What will the result be of the previously un-tried strategy of sheltering the healthy (as well as the sick) when cool weather returns in the fall? If China Flu returns with a vengence (which this risky experimental strategy could very well cause); and your answer to that question is, "We'll just shut everything down again," you are economically delusional.

Finally, the CDC has lowered the projected US death totals from the China Flu from an original 2,000,000; to 200,000; to now...60,000. Does that number sound familiar? Yes, that's around the death total numbers from a high-average US flu season. The 1833 Lexington Cholera outbreak killed a full 7% of the town's population. As of the end of the third week in April 2020, the China Flu had killed but .0024% of Lexington's population. Like Uncle Delbert Marcum used to advise, "Always keep a cool head."

newspaper and that's what has made her and the newspaper successful over the last 20 years," he said.

Nolan Media Group founder James Nolan agreed.

"Teresa has been like family for the last 20 years and we're really going to miss her," he said. "We don't look at her as an associate, we look at her as family."

During her tenure at The Citizen, Scenters has been heavily involved in the community and taught Sunday school for many years and served on various clubs and fundraising committees. She also has served in the board of directors in the Kentucky Press Association and the Berea Chamber of Commerce.

"From the employees at the paper to the Berea community at large, it's been a joy meeting and working with so many wonderful people from all walks of life," she said.

As part of her retirement package, Scenters was given the title of publisher emeritus last week. Although she's in a new phase of her life, Scenters plans on remaining active.

"Retirement doesn't mean quitting for me," she said. "I'll be busy with Tex and our children and grandchildren. I fully expect to be productive in other ways too. That may mean other work or volunteering, but no matter how the next phase plays out, I'll stay busy."

Reflections

from April 1990
Berea Citizen Archives

The City of Berea turned 100 years old Tuesday to the fanfare of balloons, free parking, a special town meeting and national recognition from the Today Show's Willard Scott. At the town meeting, the city council, some employees and visitors dressed in period costumes. Mayor Clifford Kerby told the packed house at Berea Community School's theater that the past 100 years hint of what awaits Bereans in the next 100 years. "I think there are a lot of things people can look at that haven't changed," Kerby said. "I think in the next 100 years, people will find that some of those same things haven't changed."

• Berea Mayor Clifford Kerby was pictured slicing the city's birthday cake at the climax of Tuesday night's festivities, held at the Berea Community School. A crowd of over 200 people gathered in the school's theater to hear the reading of the minutes of April 3, 1890 and to reminisce.

• Gary DuBois was pictured carefully gluing a miniature house to the topographical map of 1890s Berea. The map, created by DuBois and several others from hand-drawn maps of the era, went on display at the Appalachian Museum.

• Kristin Baker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Baker of Dogwood Heights, was pictured helping to decorate downtown Berea with hundreds of balloons in honor of the city's centennial. The balloons were donated by the Berea Centennial Committee.

"Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you."

Rotary Club Spotlight

The primary focus of Berea Rotary is service.

Since the outstanding feature of the life and times of Jim Davis is service, it is no small wonder it began early in his life. At the age of 24, encouraged by his employer at Shannon Funeral Home, he first joined Rotary.

Jim was born and reared in Berea where he graduated high school, being the last class to finish at the old "fruit jar" location on Chestnut where People's Bank is now located. He went to Louisville to study what he had always wanted to do at the Kentucky School of Mortuary Science. After his internship with Shannon's he was asked to become part of the business there.

He remained there where he served in various roles of civic commitment. He is most proud of having served the Funeral Directors of Kentucky Association as its President with 25 years as its Secretary and Treasurer.

He served as both President and Director of the Shelbyville and the Berea Rotary clubs.

His inclination toward accepting leadership roles in service was instilled by his parents and fostered by his mentor in Shelbyville.

Even though he is in his fourth year as a member of the Berea City Council, he does not view himself as a politician. He sees that position as simply another avenue to serve citizens with his eye always on what is right for them.

He believes that in all paths of service there is a time to say "It's time to go home." This was his thought when he returned to Berea after nearly 30 years in Shelby County. He would like to serve at least one more term with the City Council, especially seeing Berea through its current crisis.

He says three steps to finding solutions are: (1) listen to advisors, (2) look at the science, and then, (3) hope and pray that you've done the right thing. He and his brother are partners in cattle raising on their great, great-grandfather's farm, which is three miles from Boone Tavern on Scaffold Cane Road.

He is married to the former Patty Calico, who spent a career as an elementary teacher, continuing in some leadership capacity after her retirement.

As his Rotary partner, she participates in many rotary functions. Jim has co-chaired the Election Day Pancake Breakfast with Larry Harrison for several years.

Together, managing both supplies and logistics, they exemplify Rotary's motto of "Service above Self."

COUNCIL

City of Berea and Madison County.

Under the animal control agreement, Madison County will provide services for the City of Berea for $30,000 annually. The arrangement had been in negotiation for the last year. Prior to the vote, Berea City Council member Emily LaDouceur asked for specific data about the county's animal control services, at which point Mayor Fraley said he would contact the county to get that information.

In the case of the fire services resolution, the Berea Fire Department agrees to provide emergency services to unincorporated areas of southern Madison County for $68,000, according to the ordinance. All four resolutions were unanimously approved.

In other action, the council accepted a recommendation from the Berea Municipal Utilities to accept a proposal from Catalyst Consulting, LLC for $30,000 for an electric rate/cost allocation study. The firm won the bid over two other companies, Utility Financial Solutions and NewGen Strategies and Solutions. Presentation of the study to the council could be as early as 90 days from now, according to Berea Municipal Utilities General Manager Kevin Howard.

Other items receiving unanimous approval Tuesday included the appointment of Ernestine Brashear to a three-year term on the Berea Board of Ethics and Althea Webb to a three-year term on the Berea Housing Authority.

Turning to the City Administrator's Report, David Gregory said the Allen Company is completing items on a punch list for the U.S. 25 N. improvement project. Additionally, the finishing touches are being put on guardrail projects on East Haiti Road and North and South Dogwood, Gregory said.

Gregory added that there has been no official word yet on whether the Berea Bypass Phase II received funding in the state transportation budget. In another item, Gregory reported he and Finance Director Susan Meeks will attend an April 28 virtual meeting concerning revenue forecasting for cities in the Commonwealth.

During Mayor's Comments, Mayor Fraley noted the passing of Peg Morrow, one of the founders of the Bereans United for Utility and Rent Relief (BUURR).

Concerning the COVID-19 virus in Madison County, Fraley noted there were no new reported cases in the last six days. Of 21 cases in the county, 14 are fully recovered, six are recovering at home, and there was one fatality. Fraley praised citizens for their efforts at social distancing and expressed hope that the positive trend toward recovery will continue.

During council comments, John Payne noted the passing of Joyce Henderson, who was active in the community, and who was a driving force in founding the Madison County Public Library. Payne also urged residents to wear masks in public, and to make sure to participate in the 2020 Census.

Cora Jane Wilson urged residents to support local businesses, Jim Davis urged residents to support the Madison County COVID-19 Fund, and David Rowlette thanked officials for their help on the transient room tax/restaurant tax measure, hoping it could be revisited again soon.

Road fund projects debated by court

By Andy McDonald
For The Citizen

The Madison County Fiscal Court approved expenditures for the Rural Secondary [road] Program and Flex Funds for road repair, but not before a spirited discussion on how the funds should be allocated.

The issue was raised Tuesday at a video conference meeting of the court, when officials addressed how to spend state road funds, which are derived annually from gasoline taxes. Madison County Road Department Administrator Scott Shephard said Crooksville Road and Dreyfus Road were evaluated to be the most need in repair, and his department recommended the court approve repair of those two projects for $733,059. Additionally, the road department

Spring sports season canceled

By Mike Moore
For The Citizen

Less than 24 hours after Gov. Andy Beshear announced Kentucky schools would continue non-traditional instruction for the remainder of the school year, the Kentucky High School Athletic Association declared the suspension of the 2020 spring sports season.

"This is without question the most challenging period I have seen or faced in 36 years in this office," KHSAA Commissioner Julian Tackett said in a news release. "This impacts so many people, but in the end, it is in the best interest of public health. We have been especially concerned with the graduating

In challenging times, we're all in this together

Over a month ago our entire world changed and The Berea Citizen changed with it.

Your newspaper took extraordinary steps to bring you local, impactful news involving the coronavirus pandemic in your community.

We have worked tirelessly to bring you essential news and information on the outbreak in Berea and Madison County. With a stay-at-home order issued, we made the decision to drop our website paywall to help bring you the information you needed in the comfort and safety of your home.

The Berea Citizen saw record amounts of digital readership for nearly the last month and a half. We were there for you, bringing you this vital information while we battled an economic impact like we've never seen before.

Now, we're asking you, our readers, to be there for us.

Many of our key local advertisers are closed and therefore have pulled back their advertising. Besides advertising, our other key source of revenue comes in the form of subscriptions, both digital and print. For a month and a half, we dropped our paywall on all stories in an effort to bring our community the vital public health information free so it could reach as wide an audience as possible.

Beginning Friday, the paywall will go back up on our website for nearly all of our coverage. But, for now, stories that address critical health and safety information will remain free.

If you already subscribe to The Citizen this won't affect you and we thank you for your support in bringing our community the local news it needs.

To help us to continue to bring you vital, local information that affects you and your family, we are offering a subscription special for the next 30 days. You can now receive the Berea Citizen in both print and digital for $31.99 if you live in the county. A digital only subscription is $19.95 in this extraordinary time and local journalism is more important now than ever before.

The Berea Citizen is here to serve our community and we'd ask that you consider supporting our continued work—now more than ever.

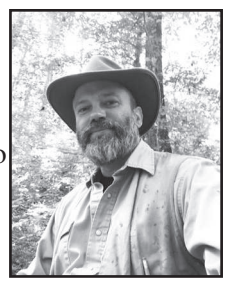
Prescribed burn a success



The Great Outdoors by Clint Patterson

Folks may have noticed, on April 7, smoke coming from near the Forestry Outreach Center. That was the Berea College Forestry Department, with help from Tom Edwards of the Kentucky State Wildlife Division, conducting a prescribed burn.

The purpose of the burn was to eliminate small maple and beech saplings from the understory and to control invasive species to help regenerate shortleaf pine and oak and to provide habitat for ruffed grouse.

We picked this location because it has scattered mature shortleaf pine trees; which will serve as the seed source for natural regeneration. Another reason this area was chosen for the burn, was it's a great location right next to our Forestry Outreach Center…so we can show off our prescribed burning management program to the public. Because of the response to the corona virus shutting down outdoor recreation areas, no one was around to see the burn unless by driving by.

I hope everything gets back to normal soon and folks can come check out the burn area. We plan to open the fire lanes…which are old, long abandoned logging roads…to hiking. First, we plan to build a walking bridge across an abruptly steep creek crossing and put up some interpretive signage.

This area will play a key role in our upcoming forest management interpretive trail system that is in the works. In the fall, our third annual Restorative Forestry Field Day; which we are beginning to promote as a Forest Festival, will feature a presentation of our prescribe burning efforts in relation to restoration of shortleaf pine and oak forests.

The Berea College Forest is one of the very few places where a working forest can be visited; where true multiple use occurs across a forested landscape. I believe this model serves a very important role in showing students, landowners, researchers and the public real-life examples of what a positive thing forestry can be.

The corona virus response may have closed the forest for a time; but I am hopeful that some good things come of this shutdown. It seems to me that more folks are planning to put out gardens this year. More people are realizing how important it is to keep our food, drug, and the manufacturing of basic needs local. When things open again, I hope shopping local; including catering to farmer's markets and local artisans, becomes the new normal.

The Forestry Department plans to lead by example by putting in a garden and a few apple trees at the Forester's Cabin in front of the Forestry Outreach Center.

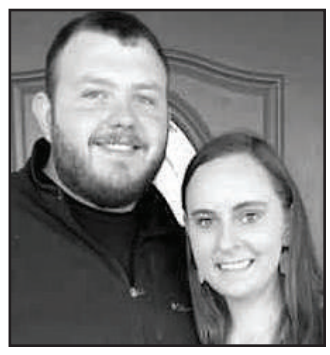
This was once an old farmstead and the parking lot was an apple orchard…so it is only fitting to pay homage to that heritage; while demonstrating that such ideas are not just nostalgic, but practical…perhaps, even vital.

Word on the Streets

"If we could bring or recruit one business or type of business to Berea, what would you want it to be?

Shawn Sandlin, Berea

"I believe Home Depot would draw customers from all over the county and surrounding counties. They have a very friendly work force that people enjoy."



Dillon Abney, Morgan Reynolds, Berea

"Bojangles. It's my favorite fast food chicken by far. Biscuits and fries to die for, and Bereans would absolutely love the down home style of this food."

Anita Bonny-Holman, Berea

"Kroger: I believe it will bring a lot of business to Berea. I love shopping there and it is so convenient to get right in and out."

publisher. Upon her retirement, Scenters was named publisher emeritus last week.

"I'm happy to be turning over the reins to Keith Taylor," Scenters said. "The Citizen is in good hands.

"The community can be confident Keith will put his heart into running the newspaper."

Taylor is looking forward to serving the paper in his new capacity.

"I'm excited to take over the helm of a fine publication," Taylor said.

"I want to build on the foundation that Teresa began and continue to produce a product the community can be proud of and enjoy on a weekly basis."

In addition to his duties at the Citizen, Taylor also covers the University of Kentucky athletics for Kentucky Today and has served as sports editor for the organization for the past three years.

He previously served as UK beat writer for Kentucky Forward and the Northern Kentucky Tribune, both online publications.

Prior to joining the Winchester Sun in 2001, Taylor began his career at The Richmond Register, where he was sports editor from 1995-2001.

Taylor has won numerous first-place awards in the Kentucky Press Association and currently is as a board member for the KPA, serving District 14.

Taylor is a 1989 graduate of Berea Community High School.

Tips for auto owners
- Keep it tidy – anything, even if it is trash in a store bag, could be seen as valuable to a thief, who doesn't know what's inside. Conceal all the evidence
- Hide your electronics and accessories, or bring it with you.
- Put shopping bags in the trunk as soon as you get in the car, not before you go into a store. You never know who is watching.
- Get an alarm.

Reflections

from April of 2000
Berea Citizen Archives

Calvary on horseback, ladies in hoop skirts, flags unfurled, sabres flashing, and cannon booms were all part of the Civil War reenactment that was held on the front lawn of the Foley Middle School. The event involved students from 6th, 7th, and 8th grades, parents and teachers. The reenactment was coordinated by Paula Hart, 7th grade social studies teacher, and Sandra Botkin, special education teacher, at the school. Botkin, reenactor, contacted several reenactors from the 1st and 6th Ky. Cavalries, and the Laurel County Home Guard and infantry artillery to take part in the event. Hart's students had recently studied a unit on the Civil War and she encouraged her students to wear period costumes for the reenactment and coordinated an effort to provide period foods for the reenactors before the reenactment in the school cafeteria. Following the reenactment, many of the students agreed that the event was "great!" Bobby Banks, a 6th grader said, "I didn't know about the use of guns and cannon before this."

• Mr. and Mrs. Holt Goodrich Jr. celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary on March 17, 2000. A reception was held in their honor on March 18 at the Emmanuel Baptist Church and was hosted by their daughters and their families.

• Members of the Madison Southern High School Science Olympiad squad were pictured. They had just competed in the Kentucky Regional Tournament of the Olympiad, placing third, which qualified them to compete in the State competition. Pictured were Jamie Smith, Matthew Turner, Jacob Kidd, Erik Wilson, Tony Austrew, Carleigh Jones, Jonathan Helmen, Graham Helmen, Angela McMullin, Angela Evans, Sarah Hogge, Sarah Emmett, Genevieve Hartley, Bill Harrison, Ryan

To you, Lord, I call; you are my rock, do not turn a deaf ear to me. For If I remain silent, I will be like those who go down to the pit."

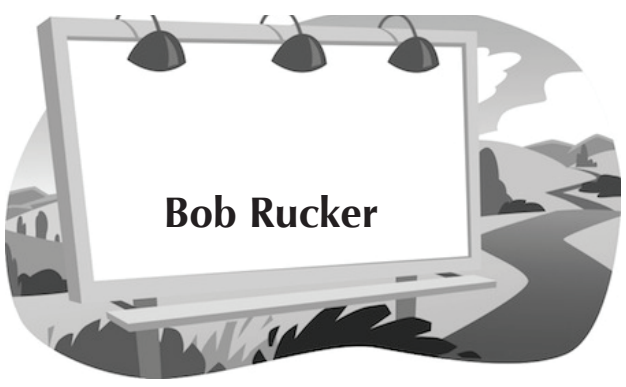
Rotary Club Spotlight



Bob Rucker

When young Bob Rucker finished college and returned to his hometown, Montecarlo, Argentina, in 1968, he saw the impact of Rotary International.

The group of newcomers to the town understood the need for banks and telephones as a way to improve life for the citizens. Because Bob's early education had been under the tutelage of German teachers, he found himself with knowledge of that language as well as English and his native Spanish.

Due to that skill, coupled with his degree in electrical engineering, he was hired by a German firm that sold baking equipment in the US. Since there were differences in the European electrical systems and those in the US he helped American bakers in 49 states manage operation of the equipment. It was his task to explain why this equipment was better than doing things by hand. To become a better instructor he attended Baking Schools in both Manhattan and San Francisco and actually became a baker to improve his explanations of how the equipment worked.

Knowing the skills of the baker assisted him in learning from them.

He traveled for forty years in this capacity but has used those baking skills to hone his specials, which are meat loaf and biscuits.

Even though immigration laws changed after WWII, he persevered until he gained his American citizenship. When he and his wife and Rotary partner, Mari, decided to retire they wanted a location less expensive and with more space than New Jersey. While traveling in Kentucky he saw that both of those parameters could be met. He was drawn to Berea in particular because of the philosophies of equality and justice for which Berea College is well known. One year after moving here he was invited to Rotary by Gary Scarlett, a fellow Catholic. Bob has served a term as Berea Rotary's President and favors the project which provides scholarship funds for local students. In Berea he saw again what he had seen of Rotary in Montecarlo—a group of people who want to do good things for a community.

Therefore whether stirring up smiles or stirring up pancake mix, Bob Rucker is dedicated to the motto "Service above Self." No doubt he will be seen in his baker's apron at the Election Day Pancake Breakfast, June 23rd .

Citizens form COVID-19 committee

By Andy McDonald
For The Citizen

A phrase that has become common during the COVID-19 pandemic is "We're all in this together." Now some local citizens are working to put those words into action by trying to help those in need.

The effort began last month when Berea College professor Meta Mendel-Reyes contacted Berea College President Lyle Roelofs to suggest a virtual committee of community leaders and volunteers. Mendel-Reyes, who also serves on the Executive Committee of the Madison County chapter of Kentuckians for the Commonwealth, said one main objective of the group is to share information and ensure help is reaching the entire community. In some cases, said Mendel-Reyes, certain segments of the public may not be getting the information they need.

"For instance, there are still a lot of people who are not doing social distancing, so we're discussing ways to reach them," Mendel-Reyes said. "One idea is a peer-to-peer program, such as a social media campaign, designed for teenagers in the community. Another is outreach to the Latinx community – are they aware of the services and resources available to them?"

So far, two video conference meetings have taken place, involving representatives from Berea College, the City of Berea, local schools, Madison County Public Library, as well as service, civic groups and church groups, including Berea Home Village, Berea Kids Eat, the Berea Food Bank, CHI St. Joseph Hospital Berea and Union Church. In all, there were about 25 people in on that first conference call.

Mendel-Reyes said the fact that so many in Berea would step up to serve demonstrates the spirit of community, a sentiment Roelofs shares. "I was struck by the generosity of so many busy folks to contribute what they might be able to do in an effort to support one another during this unprecedented challenge," Roelofs said, who cautioned he doesn't believe things will likely return to normal anytime soon. Because of that, he said there may be a need for citizens to continue cooperating in efforts such as the COVID-19 committee.

"In the even longer term, it would be very positive if this very broad group continued to work together," Roelofs said. "One challenge for non-profits is that often they tend to focus just on the agenda of their particular organization. If this work turns into a positive and productive experience, one might hope that this group of leaders will have learned habits of collaboration."

Because the City of Berea has been proactive in dispersing public information about the COVID-19 crisis, Mayor Bruce Fraley said the city administration was glad to join the effort spearheaded by Mendel-Reyes. The city has created a new webpage to address the COVID-19 crisis while also establishing a telephone hotline for those who don't have Internet access. Fraley said Mendel-Reyes' idea was of particular interest to the city because it helps the cause of spreading information. "I feel that's our job – to assist any citizens group in this situation that we find ourselves in," Fraley said. "And I think the more we can communicate the better."

Fraley noted the willingness of so many people to step forward is a bright spot in what has been a crisis for the community. "I think what you're seeing is there are a lot of local groups out there that have the best interests of the city and the citizens in mind," Fraley said. "I think that's one of the strengths of our city, that we do have people who are involved and who want to have a positive impact for the city and the citizens."

Mendel-Reyes, who has been a community and labor organizer, agreed the effort is a hopeful sign. "I've seen what people can do when they come together. Nothing justifies the pandemic, of course, but I think that the community could emerge even stronger after working together as a community," Mendel Reyes said.

Citizens interested in joining the effort can contact Mendel-Reyes at mendel-reyesm@berea.edu.

Stoops expects football this fall, fans in stands

By Keith Taylor

LEXINGTON, Ky. (KT) — Mark Stoops is proceeding with caution.

The University of Kentucky football coach is hopeful the college football season will start as usual and won't be delayed by the current COVID-19 pandemic. Many professional football teams in various states have taken steps to begin preparing for the upcoming season and Stoops thinks some form of normalcy will resume in the near future, but with some adjustments.

Stoops said he's not sure that playing games without fans in the stands is a "viable option."

"I think there are definitely some different challenges for us," he said on a video conference with reporters on Monday. "The first thing that comes to mind is there's going to be a lot of critics out there. The optics of it, to say you're going to have college kids allowed to play, line up six inches apart from each other, breathe on each other, sweat on each other, get in big piles and do all that but you're not allowed to have fans in the stadium? That's going to be the first thing you hear, right? The optics of it. That's the decisions people need to make."

Stoops added that the financial piece of the puzzle also is part of the equation.

"I think it's very important to have people in the stands. Universities are counting on that," he said. "We need people in the stands. Before this whole situation happened, you heard me talking about it, encouraging our fan base to pick it up and pick up season tickets and get in there because we need them. It makes a difference to us having them in there both financially and for their support."

Stoops said off-site and individual workouts will take a different course next month as teams slowly get back into a rhythm.

COURT

recommended the court use approximately $303,000 in state Flex Fund dollars, another state program, for repair of other roads in the county.

First District Magistrate Larry Combs objected, however, questioning whether his district was getting a fair share of the state's gasoline taxes. Combs noted a lot of gasoline is sold in Berea, adding the allocation of the gas tax should be based on population. Combs further suggested to Judge/Executive Reagan Taylor that if the road funds were not distributed fairly, it might have consequences in the next election.

Taylor took exception to the comment, calling it "brazen," then paused the meeting to retrieve information showing precisely how road funds have been distributed in recent years. When Taylor returned, he presented the following numbers:

District 1 has 72 miles of county road, and is therefore allocated 15 percent of road funds; District 2 has 114 miles, and is allocated 24 percent; District 3 has 159 miles and receives 33 percent of road fund proceeds, and District 4 has 126 miles to maintain, and thus receives 26 percent.

The court then voted on the Crooksville Road and Dreyfus Road projects, with Tom Botkin, John Tudor, Roger Barger and Judge Taylor voting in favor. Combs voted no.

The court then voted on how to allocate Flex Funds, which the road department can use on county roadways that have pressing safety issues. Again, Combs cast the lone dissenting vote. At one point, Combs asked why Chestnut Street in Berea has not been repaved, noting there are a number of potholes. Road officials responded that state government is in charge of fixing U.S. 25. Combs said he would be calling Frankfort.

In other business

• In other action, the court adopted a solid waste management ordinance that brings the current county law up to date. Officials noted the ordinance had not been updated since the 1990s.

• Also approved Tuesday was the first reading of an ordinance amending the 911 inter-local agreement. Madison County 911 Director Wendy Lynch explained that the amendment of the agreement between Madison County Ambulance Service, Kentucky State Police, Madison County Sheriff's Office, Madison County Coroner, City of Berea, KY, and City of Richmond, KY, stipulates that the Berea Police Department will be the responding agency when 911 services are audited every three years by the state, and every six years by the F.B.I.

The Berea Police Department would then pass on recommendations to the various member agencies, Lynch said.

• Turning to fire protection, the court unanimously adopted two resolutions concerning emergency response in rural areas. One was an agreement between the Madison County Fire Department and the Berea Fire Department stipulating that Berea will provide emergency response to unincorporated areas of southern Madison County for a cost of $68,000. Meanwhile, the court approved an aid agreement with the Cartersville/Paint Lick Volunteer Fire & Rescue Department stipulating those first responders will serve nearby areas of Madison needed.

• On the issue of animal control, the court unanimously adopted a resolution finalizing an agreement enabling the county to provide animal control services to Berea for $30,000 annually.

• The court also voted unanimously to purchase backup emergency power generators for CSEPP from Henderson Services, subject to further negotiation. The winning contract of $425,631 was selected from a pool of three bids. The two units will be for the EOC building and another for the county joint information center.

• Also Tuesday, the court authorized the county to receive a Kentucky Justice Public Safety grant for approximately $33,000 to be used for tasers for the Madison County Sheriff's Office.

• Additionally, the court unanimously adopted a resolution approving insurance rates recommended by Human Resources Director Rachel Thomas.

During her report, Thomas noted her department managed to secure better insurance coverage for county employees without an increase in cost.

The next videoconference meeting of the Madison County Fiscal Court will be on May 5 at 9:30 a.m. when the officials meet to consider the 2020-2021 fiscal budget.

class of 2020, those seniors who put so much into their athletic participation opportunities hoping for one last time to shine before the home crowds or at postseason events. We know for the vast majority of them, their plans are already laid out, with college and career final preparation as their next chapter. We are also keenly aware that per almost all metrics, 94 percent of the students who participate in high school sports and sport-activities are involved in their last organized competition while in high school, as the lion's share of participants will not play beyond this level. In the end, however, the health and safety of all individuals, participants, coaches, and spectators, is much more important than the various interscholastic activities."

The decision impacts thousands of student-athletes across the state, including those of Madison Southern and Berea Community high schools.

"It's a tough and unfortunate situation that we've all gone through over the last several weeks," Berea Community Athletics Director Jerry Bingham said. "We have so many student-athletes and coaches who have worked so hard to prepare for what they hoped would be wonderful seasons and life long memories."

Berea baseball coach Brent Billings said the decision is disappointing, especially for the seniors on the squad.

"I have spoken with my seniors, and I've told them that I'm sorry, and I'm proud of the work and leadership they have all shown throughout the years," Billings said.

Billings added that the players will always be a part of Pirate baseball, and while baseball is important, it's the game of life that counts when all is said and done.

"I've talked with them about their futures," he said. "I want them to be upstanding and successful men going into the world. I'm here to help and support them going into this next chapter of their lives and beyond."

First-year Madison Southern baseball Coach Jayson Langfels said though the news was tough to take, he came away impressed with the group of seniors mentality.

"These guys are so tough; they don't complain," he said. "I'm blown away with their maturity and passion for their school and team. They have taught me a lot with just the brief time I have spent with them."

Southern softball coach Abbey Stepp echoed Langfels' comments.

"My heart hurts for what could have been and our senior class," she said. "I am proud of them and how they worked during the offseason. I was proud of the way they played in our scrimmage to start the season. I know they will all do great things."

The KHSAA will continue to monitor the situation COVID-19 as the fall sports season approaches.
