Health Department creates vaccine waiting list

By Keith Taylor
Citizen Publisher

The Madison County Health Department is compiling a waiting list for citizens who are interested in receiving the COVID-19 vaccine.

The list allows the health department to record contact information for those who request a vaccine, classify persons in the appropriate phases for receipt of the vaccine, and place them on a waiting list. "Because of vaccine supply limitations and the distribution of the vaccine in phases, there may be a wait before you can be vaccinated," Madison County Public health director Nancy Crewe said. The vaccine is administered as it is received by MCHD in the order of the phases set by Federal and state guidance. "Everyone in Madison County will have access to a vaccine," Crewe said. "Watch our social media platforms for updates as to when vaccination phases begin." The recommended links for more information regarding the Madison County Health Department and for information about COVID-19:

Court adopts budget

Sheriff's $4.3 million spending plan adopted

By Andy McDonald
For The Citizen

The Madison County Fiscal Court approved the budget for the county sheriff's department on Tuesday, unanimously approving a $4.3 million spending plan for 2021. Sheriff Mike Coyle presented the budget during the virtual meeting, updating county magistrates on the services provided for the year.

Mike Coyle

Overall, the department responded to approximately 31,000 service calls in 2020, and the provision of some services was impacted by the COVID-19 pandemic. The number of court papers served went down from 3,728 to 2,386 because court was out of session for an extended period of time. Evictions were down as well, from 784 in 2019 to 439 in 2020, Coyle said.

The number of emergency protection orders was also down, going from 126 in 2019 to 83 in 2020. Coyle reported that DUI arrests remained about the same, with 67 in 2020 compared to 68 in 2019.

Regarding the effort to reduce drug trafficking in Madison County, Coyle noted that drug overdoses went up slightly in 2020, rising to 59 compared to 52 the previous year.

The department opened 212 drug cases last year, resulting in 365 drug arrests, Coyle said. Meanwhile, the five canine units used by

Plant begins destroying VX munitions

■ It has been 12 years since VX nerve agent has been destroyed in the United States chemical weapons stockpile

The first munitions containing VX nerve agent were destroyed at the Blue Grass Chemical Agent-Destruction Pilot Plant (BGCAPP) Jan. 10. This marks the third of five munition destruction campaigns to begin at the Blue Grass Army Depot.

"It has been 12 years since VX nerve agent has been destroyed in the United States chemical weapons stockpile," said Dr. Candace Coyle, site project manager, BGCAPP. "This achievement is a tribute to the hard work, dedication and teamwork across the mission - from employees, partner organizations, community members and advisory groups, especially during a global pandemic."

"This milestone marks another significant step in the total elimination of nerve agent at the Blue Grass Army Depot," said Col. Stephen Dorris, depot commander. "I am confident that all safety and environmental compliance measures will be adhered to as professionals all work in tandem to successfully continue the mission, helping rid our nation and the world of these toxic, life-threatening agents from our past."

county law enforcement officials were deployed 73 times last year.

Coyle's 2021 budget proposal came after a year of steep budget and personnel cuts that were made more difficult with the COVID-19 pandemic. Nine officers had to be isolated for possible COVID-19 exposure after coming in to contact with infected citizens, and 12 MCSD employees tested positive for COVID during the months of November and December. Nonetheless, Coyle noted his department managed to assist other departments during 2020.

In other business, the court unanimously approved the second reading of a zone change at 2761 and 2725 Lexington Road from U7 agricultural to U3 commercial. A hearing by the Madison County Planning Commission ruled the present zoning designation is inappropriate for the area, which has experienced an increase in commercial development on surrounding parcels.

Concerning Madison County roads, the court approved a budget amendment to accept $223,019 in discretionary funds from the Kentucky Transportation Cabinet. The money will go to pay for asphalt for slide repairs on Stoney Run Road and Carver's Ferry Road.

Meanwhile, Madison County Clerk Kenny Barger announced his offices, including the Berea annex, will be opening for foot traffic on January 19, the day after Martin Luther King, Jr. Day. Barger cautioned citizens not to come into the office if they feel sick, noting that an outbreak of COVID-19 could set his office's work schedule back for weeks if county employees had to be quarantined. Earlier in the meeting, the court unanimously approved a budget proposal submitted by Barger, who noted that the county is fortunate in that property transfer and vehicle transfer numbers and revenues continue to go up.

The Fiscal Court also passed a proclamation honoring the members of the Madison County School Board in line with school board recognition month in January. Officials thanked school board members for the job they have done during an especially difficult year.

Concerning the future of the Central Kentucky Regional Airport, the court unanimously approved a resolution of support for state legislation that would allow Eastern Kentucky University to add representatives to the Madison County Airport Board. The measure is up for consideration in the Kentucky House of Representatives. The resolution contains the same language as one that was recently passed by the City of Berea, and which is expected to be passed by the City of Richmond.

Two contracts were approved for the CSSEP program. Hepburn Consultants

Inc. was granted a maintenance contract for multiple CSSEP generators, and Bullpen, Inc. was granted a contract extension for $45,000.

In other business, Johnny D. Webb was reappointed to the Northern Madison County Sanitation District Board.

Tuesday's meeting closed the same way it began, with a tribute to the late Larry Combs, who served as First District magistrate for 38 years. The meeting began with a moment of silence in tribute to Combs by Roger Barger, who also offered up a prayer for Combs' family. As the meeting wound down, Magistrate John Tudor and Barger paid tribute to their late colleague by using the phrase Combs often uttered to close a meeting: "I'm just glad to be here."

The next meeting of the Madison County Fiscal Court will be on January 19.

The Golden Rule is still a guiding tool

Growing up, my parents taught me not to discuss politics and religion, because it was best to keep the peace and see the value in the fact that everyone doesn't possess the same opinion as you do.

To this day, I follow this rule. I have my own convictions and keep those to myself rather than try to convince someone else they are wrong or attempt to make a personal persuasion based on my own convictions just to prove that I am right and someone else is wrong in my opinion.

The older I get, the more I understand what my parents tried to teach us while growing up and that is to respect other and differing opinions and treat others as you would want to be treated, otherwise known as the Golden Rule.

In this technology age, it's a lot easier to make your opinion known than ever before. Everyone has an opinion and that's why we have the freedom of speech. We can offer an opinion on any subject. However, where do you draw the line of respect especially on Facebook, Twitter and other internet platforms.

That's where the Golden Rule comes in. I don't always agree with Rhonda, but we are husband and wife and we often comprise and agree to disagree. I bend a little and she bends a little and we both give, which leads to a healthy relationship.

Why can't that same principal be applied within society?

The person I am today, didn't come down to whether I was raised a Democrat, Republican or Independent for that matter. My upbringing was based on treating others as I would want to be treated and to love my neighbor as myself.

We only discussed politics in the home - amongst ourselves - and never asked anyone who they voted for in the last election. We didn't snub our nose if anyone offered to tell us their political affiliation or if their views were different than ours.

Dad always told us to vote for the person we feel like is best suited for the job and align with our belief system, whether it was a Democrat, Republican, Independent or whatever. The party didn't matter and didn't define who we were. We do our duty, vote and move on.

That's why each individual has the right to believe what they choose and differing opinions are to be expected within a free society. I'm glad my parents taught me to respect the opinion of others, no matter how different they were from our own viewpoints.

I've also come to realize that my convictions aren't going to be the same as someone else. I rely on God to guide my footsteps and not a political party or another human being. I pray daily for guidance and follow the Golden Rule as best I can each and every day.

Word on the streets

“Which do you think is the best overlook on the Pinnacle Trails, East Pinnacle or Indian Fort Cliff?”

Mark Klumper

“We're headed up there now. It's been years since I was up there. We plan on going to East Pinnacle. It's a beautiful day to hike.”

Ed Halcomb

“I think Indiana Fort is. You can see Davis Hollow and both Berea and Richmond.”

Amelia Fitch

“I would say Indian Fort. I think it's a breathtaking view.”

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Hack: Public Works deserves praise

Dear Editor: As a new resident in Berea, I wanted to share a recent experience with the City's Public Works Department that reinforces my firm conviction that the government of, by and for the people is the government that works effectively for its citizens. In all the deafening noise generated by the partisan divides in our federal and state governments, it can be easy to forget just how effective government is on a daily basis in working for the benefit of its citizens. My early experience as a Berea citizen is proof positive that government is, far more often than not, a force for positive change.

I purchased a house that happened to have a street sign in the front yard mounted on the same metal post that holds a stop sign. The street sign had been bent over the years, and it bugged me having a bent sign in the front of the house that I had just purchased. One Sunday evening around 10:30 p.m., I sent a note via the Public Works website asking that either the sign be repaired or that the Department give me permission to make the repair myself. The next day, less than 12 hours after I sent my request, a Public Works team member was in front of my home replacing the bent sign.

The team member, Donnie, was pleasant, thorough and clearly committed to the task. Donnie's friendly demeanor was consistent with all the other City employees with whom I have had contact in the process of moving to a new place, including those in the City's finance office and at Berea Municipal Utilities. All of them made paying the fees required for establishing new services much easier to pay because they were good at their jobs and friendly in their conversations.

A former President once famously uttered that “Government IS the problem.” This phrase has been taken out of context numerous times and used to create in the minds of some American citizens the idea that we are somehow separate and apart from our government, that citizens and government in our country are adversaries. In fact, our's is a government of, by, and for the people. If the former president was correct (and I believe he was dangerously wrong), then it's us as citizens who are the real problem. In the United States, in Kentucky and in Berea, citizens are our own government and government is of, for and by its citizens. The taxes and fees we pay to make government work effectively are our patriotic duty, the modest costs of living in a truly great country, state and community.

I suspect that Abraham Lincoln would be glad to know that the government of, by and for the people that he envisioned when he uttered those words seems to be alive and well in Berea, Kentucky. I know I am.

Grateful to be a Berea Citizen,
John-Mark Hack

Cameron joins FDA opioid fight

FRANKFORT (KT) – Attorney General Daniel Cameron has joined 47 of his counterparts in asking the U. S. Food and Drug Administration

tion to report progress in the fight against opioid abuse. The bipartisan coalition wants information on the FDA’s recent steps to combat the opioid crisis, and given the new authority, Congress granted the agency in 2018. In the letter to FDA Commissioner Stephen Hahn, the attorneys general contend the report will help reduce prescription opioid abuse and accidental deaths. They seek clarification of how the FDA is using and plans to use powers granted under the Substance Use-Disorder Prevention that Promotes Opioid Recovery and Treatment for Patients and Communities Act, known as the SUPPORT Act.

The plant will destroy 155mm projectiles containing VX nerve agent through a process called neutralization. Automated equipment takes the munitions apart and drains the chemical agent. The agent is mixed with water and caustic to produce hydrolysate. The hydrolysate is tested by an on-site laboratory to confirm agent destruction. Remaining metal parts from the munitions are thermally heated to more than 1,000 degrees Fahrenheit to destroy any residual chemical agent and then are safely recycled.

“As always, safety is our top priority,” said Ron Hink, Bechtel Parsons Blue Grass project manager. “The team is ready to safely complete this next step in our mission to destroy Kentucky’s chemical weapons stockpile.”

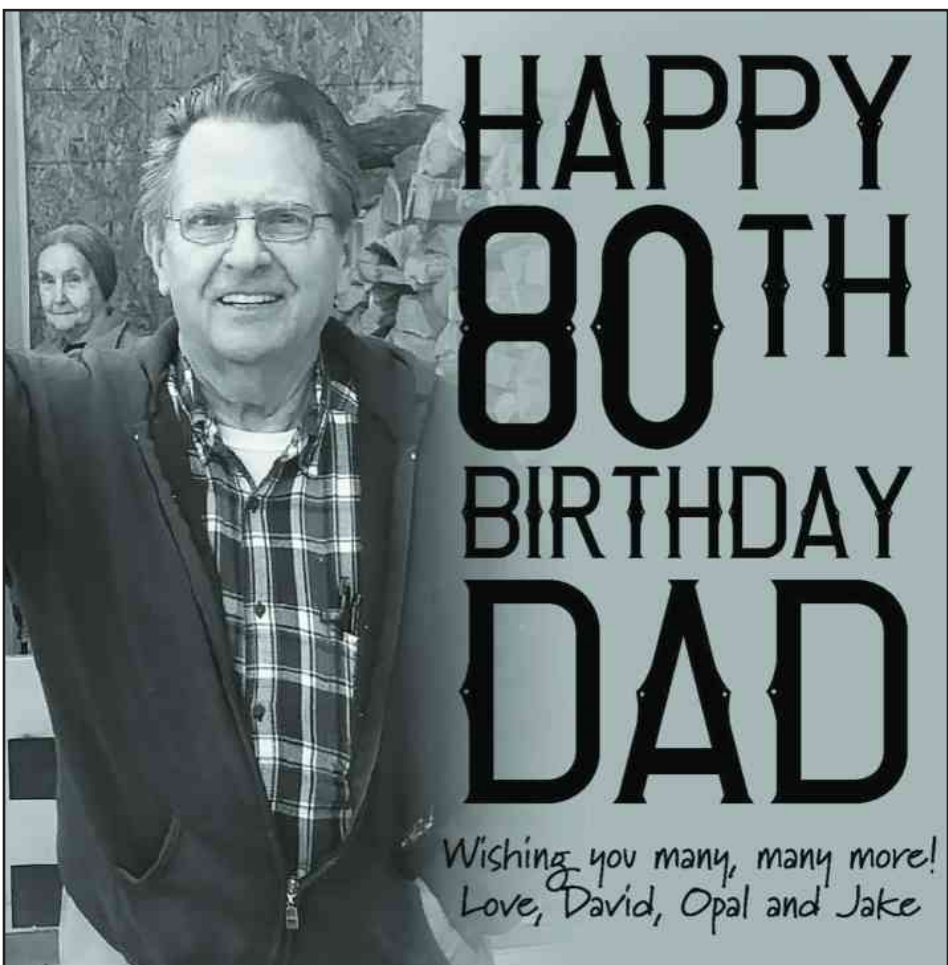

The chemical weapons stockpile at the depot originally consisted of approximately 523 tons of chemical agent configured in 155mm projectiles containing H mustard or VX nerve agent, 8-inch projectiles containing GB nerve agent, and M55 rockets containing GB or VX nerve agent. On May 11, 2020, BGCAPP completed its first destruction campaign by destroying all 8-inch projectiles containing GB nerve agent.

In June 2019, the Static Detonation Chamber, an explosive destruction technology, began destroying the mustard stockpile. To date, more than 64% of the mustard agent has been destroyed. As of Jan. 1, 2021, more than 87 tons of chemical agent have been destroyed in Kentucky.

Throughout the campaign, BGCAPP personnel will coordinate with the Blue Grass Chemical Activity (BGCA) on transportation of the projectiles to the plant.

“I am proud of our contribution to the successful start of the VX campaign,” said Lt. Col. Edward Williams, BGCA commander.

“Our crews safely strapped and loaded the first VX projectiles for delivery to the plant, which marked the beginning of this operation. Our team is honored to be part of this historic milestone.”

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

States, internet options in Kirksville and Poosey Ridge is limited. According to the United States Census Bureau data collected from the American Community Survey (2013-2017), there is a considerable digital gap between urban and rural areas. Residents have complained that the service options many have available to them are not conducive to students' needs or those working remotely. Some also pointed to the prices they must pay for such limited services creates a strong desire for more options in availability. A point of significant discussion on the community Facebook group page, several people have expressed their frustration in the extremely limited internet options and availability in the area. Resident Kyle Wooton started a Change.Org petition for Spectrum in hopes the company might provide broadband services to local residents in Kirksville and Poosey Ridge. The online petition is seeking 500 signatures and has acquired 240 thus far. A Spectrum representative shared that interested customers should also call (800) 892-4357 and provide their physical address with the request to fill out a service connection form. The form is completed by a Spectrum representative and forwarded on to construction crews who may come out to complete a site survey to determine if the area is eligible for continuing service lines from the nearest customer's address. The representative shared the more people who complete these forms and phone calls, the better the chances of gaining some attention.

New Pontiac Given Berea College

Madison County Schools Superintendent H. D. House reported there were approximately 210 more students enrolled during the 1963-64 school year than there was the previous year. Current enrollment at the eight schools during this period was 4,434. Madison Central High School had 1,022 students. Enrollment at the seven elementary schools were: Kit Carson, 385; Silver Creek, 540; Kingston, 606; Daniel Boone, 520; Waco, 443; White Hall, 342 and Kirksville, 576.

Electricity was interrupted to a section of East Berea for approximately two hours on Saturday, January 12, when a utility pole was damaged at the corner of Prospect and Forest Streets. The damage was a result of an out of control car driven by Billy R. Johnson. According to Berea Patrolman Donald Tudor, Johnson's car went out of control striking another car before hitting the pole. A passenger, Donald Pigg of Berea was treated at Berea College for a head injury.

The Berea Board of Education formed an advisory committee related to physical education as well as the athletics program was authorized at the board meeting last week. This committee would assist the board in determining the physical education program at the school and would be able to recommend actions to be taken by the board futuristically. Board member W. R. Isaacs was chosen to represent the board on the committee. Other members represented the school faculty, the Boosters Club and the PTA. The recommendation to establish the committee was made by Guy Duerson, who stated that others schools were using this type of organization. Mrs. John Chrisman stressed the need for a physical fitness program and as well as an increase in physical education activities for girls.

Berea College was awarded a $5,000 grant by the E. I. DuPont Company of Wilmington, Delaware. This grant was one of 168 grants totaling $1,800,000 awarded by DuPont during 1964. Berea received the grant to improve excellence in teaching. Half of the grant was used for chemistry teaching and the remainder was used to improve the education of scientists and engineers.

Anyone who attended the Jean Ritchie concert at Berea College on January 7th will never forget the natural, unaffected style of folk singing she brought. The audience was moved by her simple, clear, pure voice and instinctive sense of rhythm. Jean Ritchie was born and raised in Viper, Kentucky. She was the youngest in her family of 14. Historically, James Ritchie became one of the first families to establish themselves in the Viper area of the Appalachian region in 1768. Throughout hard times, the Ritchie family would entertain themselves with ballads handed down from their British Isles ancestors. A change began to take place during Jean's generation. She recalls the first radio, the first movie house and the first television. Her older sisters remember when the first railroad pushed its way through the mountains and the first load of coal was taken from the new mines. Jean went on to graduate from Viper High School and from Cumberland Junior College in Williamsburg, Kentucky. She went on to study social work at University of Kentucky, graduating with high honors. After graduation, Jean went to New York to gain practical experience at the Henry Street Settlement. With her dulcimer, she taught family songs and games to the children of New York's Lower East Side. In addition to teaching the children her songs, she also took it upon herself to learn their songs and games as well. Soon her friends were asking her to sing at parties as well as at the school. She was introduced to Alan Lomax through a friend at the Settlement. He recorded her songs for his collection and for the Library of Congress Folk Songs Archives. Soon after Jean was asked by Oxford Library to write the history of her family. Her book Singing Family of the Cumberland's was the resulting work and was published in 1955. In 1962, Jean won a Fulbright Scholarship, which allowed her to travel to the British Isles in order to trace the history of her families songs. She also made several appearances while she was there. In 1953, Jean attended the International Conference of Folk Music in Biarritz-Pamplona as the sole representative of the United States. During her life, Jean Ritchie made numerous appearances on major television and radio networks. Many folk-song collectors visited the Ritchie Family over the years and notated their tunes and lyrics in books that have come to be known as "The Singing Ritchies" because of their knowledge and love of the old songs.

SSI approval is easy as finding the right paper

You may recall the story about the old fellow who had a routine of walking around the Social Security office, picking up every piece of paper he found. He'd examine the paper closely and say, "No, that's not it." He'd then throw it back down.

Roger Alford

He did this same thing day after day, week after week, picking up any paper he came across, then throwing it down, muttering, "No, that's not it." The odd behavior finally caught the attention of the Social Security office's manager who arranged for the old fellow to undergo a psychological exam. The psychologist concluded the old fellow had "decreased mental capacity," and prepared a paper granting him a monthly SSI check. The psychologist handed that piece of paper to the old fellow, who smiled broadly, and said, "Yes, that's it." Sounds like the old fellow with "decreased mental capacity" had outsmarted both the office manager and the psychologist. Have you ever been scrutinized by others? Perhaps at work, when you were being considered for a promotion? Perhaps when you were applying for a new job? Perhaps when you moved into a new home with lots of curious neighbors? Perhaps when you applied for a loan and the bank was trying to determine whether you could be trusted to pay it back? All of us of every age group may be scrutinized from time to time, but it seems to me that senior citizens are scrutinized almost constantly by people watching for signs of "decreased mental capacity." I was really struck recently by a Psalm that was apparently written late in the life of King David, a man who in his prime was strong and powerful. "Cast me not off in the time of old age; forsake me not when my strength faileth me. For mine enemies speak against me; and they that lay wait for my soul take counsel together, saying, God hath forsaken him; persecute and take him; for there is none to deliver him. O God, be not far from me. O my God, make haste for my help. Let them be confounded and consumed that are adversaries to my soul. Let them be covered with reproach and dishonor that seek my hurt" (Psalm 71:9-13). What a shame that our seniors have to live under microscopes. In my experience, you don't have to search for dementia or senility or some other form of "decreased mental capacity." If it's there, it will absolutely slap you in the face. It's unmistakable. And it's heartbreaking. You'll know it when you see it. You'll be able to say, without any doubt, "Yes, that's it." Until then, stop analyzing the senior citizens around you. Instead, learn from them. Benefit from their wisdom and experience. Just maybe they'll show you how to pull one over on the Social Security guy.

Berea Rotary Club

Monthly meetings resume under Zoom format

Special to The Citizen

Following nine months of literally no in-person meetings due to COVID-19, Berea Rotary has opted for the path of many other organizations, zoom.

The usual service activities have been replaced by donations from members to support community efforts where needed.

The first meeting by the new format involved sharing a review of an article from the Rotary magazine.

However, members expressed an interest in returning to the speaker program.

Having weekly meetings has been resumed with the first speaker being Tony Crachiolo, new director of the Berea Food Bank.

Because of the difference in meeting format members agreed to find connections that will assist other members who are less comfortable with zoom.

Those who are interested in “Service Above Self” and wish to be part of this altruistic club can contact one of the current members or the secretary, Charles Hoffman, Charles.hoffman.law@gmail.com

KRFDC offering energy assistance

RICHMOND — The KRFDC is continuing to provide energy assistance through the crisis component of the Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP). Applications can be made from Jan. 4 through March 31, 2021 or until available funds have been expended. The program assists households in a heating crisis and will run until the funds are expended.

Individuals and households that have already received assistance this year are eligible to receive additional help if they haven't used their entire assistance amount of $400. Benefits may take the form of bulk fuel deliveries or pending utility disconnect. Crisis relief will be provided within 48 hours or 18 hours if an emergency.

A household is considered to be eligible for energy assistance when the household meets the basic eligibility criteria which includes:

1. completion of an application;
 2. is responsible for home energy costs, directly or as an undesignated portion of their rent;
 3. have a combined household income, for the calendar month prior to the month of application, not in excess of 150% of the federal poverty level as listed in the Income Eligibility Guidelines; and
 4. live in Kentucky when the application is made and apply in the county of residence;
- In addition to the above mentioned criteria, only those with a past-due balance / disconnect or eviction notices or who are within 48 hours of being without heat can receive assistance during the crisis component.

A household shall be considered to have a home heating crisis situation when it meets the basic LIHEAP eligibility criteria and:

(1) the household is within four (4) days of running out of fuel if bulk fuel (coal, fuel oil, propane, kerosene, or wood) is the heat source; (2) the household has received a past due / disconnect notice if natural gas or electric is the heat source; or (3) the household's home heating costs are included as an undesignated portion of the rent, and the household has received an eviction notice for non-payment of rent from the landlord. Applicants who participate in a Pre-Pay Electric Program must bring a statement from the utility company that shows they have 10 days or less of pre-paid electric service.

All assistance provided with LIHEAP funds must be directly related to resolving the household's home heating crisis situation. A household may not receive more than the household's allowable crisis maximum in combined benefits, through the Crisis component. The allowable crisis maximum is determined by the household's primary fuel type.

Sophomore provides a calming presence

Keion Brooks just wanted to have fun in his return to the court Saturday and it showed.

Brooks had a blast and so did his teammates as the Wildcats stretched their winning streak to three games with a 76-58 victory over Florida Saturday in Gainesville.

The sophomore forward finished with 12 points, grabbed six rebounds, and dished out four assists in his first game since coming back from a leg injury. Brooks missed the first nine games of the season because of a leg injury and wanted nothing more than to just ease back into the lineup against the Gators.

"I've always believed in my ability to come back and play well," Brooks said. "... what did I have to lose? I hadn't played a collegiate game in almost a year and I was out for two months and I was just thankful I was able to go back out there and play. I didn't want to add any extra pressure on myself and try to play so well that ended up messing up during the game.

"At the end of the day (I just wanted to) have fun and do what I had to do and enjoy the game, enjoy every second that you're out there."

Kentucky coach John Calipari said Brooks was poised throughout the contest and he was glad to have him back on the floor.

"It's just nice having a steadying force (out the court)," Calipari said. "... He's a leader by example. He's not a confrontational guy, that's not who he is. You saw the athlete that he is and he's way physically stronger than he was and way more patient mentally and the game has slowed down for him. ... It's a big deal. We've been playing without him."

Kentucky guard Davion Mintz said Brooks was a difference-maker despite his absence during the first nine games.

"He gave us a whole different element to the game," said Mintz, who tied teammate BJ Boston for team-high scoring honors with 13 points. "It was amazing today and it was super fun. I'm speechless really and it was just amazing. Not to discredit his practices, but it was nothing like the game and in the game, he just turned to a different switch. That was amazing. We knew he could play well, but didn't know that he would make as big of an impact that he did. ... he just fell right in and he was rolling."

Mintz added that Brooks was a calming presence on both ends of the court.

"Keion makes an impact on this team and it was huge," he said. "With him out there, it just makes everything so much easier. It gave me a comfort soon out there when I passed him the ball."

In addition to taking pressure off his teammates, Brooks gave Calipari another experienced voice in the court, allowing the Kentucky coach to breathe easier on the sidelines.

"He can calm (the team) down on the court," Calipari said.

"That takes the pressure off our staff. That's what makes it amazing at Mississippi State how we pulled that off (last week) without him out there. He's a special young man, a great human being, great teammate and a skilled basketball player."

Now with three straight victories, Calipari said the Wildcats are trending in the right direction.

"I know there were probably people that put dirt in the coffin, pushed the coffin open and, we said 'you're not putting no dirt on this.' That stuff was out there, but I kept saying, 'we've got good kids, I'm proud of these kids and they just need time.'

"I'm not changing that thought. They just need time."

Lucas has Texas game marked on calendar

Kentucky assistant coach Jai Lucas remembers and respects his time at the University of Florida.

Although Lucas chose the Gators over the Wildcats during the recruiting process, Lucas finished out his collegiate playing career at the University of Texas and later became an assistant coach for the Longhorns.

Lucas made a return visit to Gainesville last Saturday and watched as the Wildcats posted a 76-58 win over the Gators for their third straight victory, inching the Wildcats closer to .500 with a 4-6 overall record.

Although Lucas knew a trip to Gainesville was on the schedule, he's also got Jan. 30 marked on his calendar.

That's when Kentucky takes on Texas in the Big 12/SEC Challenge at Rupp Arena.

"That will probably be the tougher one (emotionally) at the end of the month. This one (was) not as bad. It's a whole new staff there," Lucas said. "... I kind of see myself more as a Texas alum because that's where I graduated from. But Florida does still hold a place in my heart, but it's not the same kind of feeling as it would be going back to Texas or something like that."

Allen arrives

Former Pendleton County standout and Kentucky Mr. Basketball standout Dontaie Allen scored 37 points in his first two Southeastern Conference games and is starting to get more attention from opposing defenses. He scored six points on two 3-pointers in the Wildcats' win over Florida last weekend.

"In high school I was getting triple-teamed, so there's not much really different," he said. "It's on a different level so it's going to be an adjustment and I'm going to have to work harder to get open.

"I'm just going to do anything to help my team win, to be honest."

Although Allen has been in the spotlight lately, his brother Tredyn Allen scored his 1,000th career point for Pendleton County last weekend.

Hitachi plans to expand

Company to add 200 jobs

By Keith Taylor
Citizen Publisher

Two-hundred new jobs are coming to Madison County as Hitachi Automotive Electric Motor Systems America Inc. is establishing a new operation in Berea to manufacture motors for electric vehicles.

Leaders of the newly formed Hitachi subsidiary are renovating part of sister-company Hitachi Automotive Systems America's plant at 1150 Mayde Road for the operation.

Electric motor production could begin between April 2022 and March 2023, in part based on the pandemic's impact. The operation currently employs about 20 people and is expected to grow to approximately 200 in 2023.

"We are very happy about Hitachi Electric Motor Systems America's decision to make Berea the home of their first electric motor manufacturing facility in the United States," Berea Mayor Bruce Fraley said. "They will be building the state of the art, electric motor with the most advanced technology available in the world for the Honda Accord and Honda CRV right here in Berea."

Fraley said the company fits exactly into the city's development strategy.

"On behalf of the City of Berea, we extend a hearty

'Total loss'

Fire destroys Bittersweet Woodworking Studio

By Keith Taylor
Citizen Publisher

An early afternoon fire destroyed Bittersweet Woodworking Studio owned by Steve Farmer late last week.

The entire studio, equipment and inventory inside the structure at the time was destroyed in the blaze.

The Berea Fire Department responded to the fire at approximately 1:50 p.m. last Thursday.

Brent Billings of the Berea Fire Department said the structure was "fully involved" upon arrival.

"No one was injured in the fire but the structure was a total loss," Billings said. "Because of the contents of the building, the fire burned very rapidly and produced a lot of heavy smoke that could be seen from miles away."

Billings added the cause of the fire was likely because of "sparks that came from a piece of machinery inside the workshop while workers were working inside."

According to Billings, crews cleared the scene at 5:30 p.m. Thursday.

Fraley calls for civility in community

By Andy McDonald
For The Citizen

Mayor Bruce Fraley has called for community civility, asking citizens to examine how they can help make Berea a more tolerant and better place. Fraley raised the issue during the mayor's comments section of Tuesday's Berea City Council meeting, noting that the rancor of national political discourse has negatively affected the tone of political dialogue at the state and local level.

Fraley expressed concern about the violence in the nation's capital on Jan. 6, and called for citizens to work for mutual respect and understanding, and to turn away from violence.

"I've spoken with many citizens, and many of you individually, and those conversations bear out that much of the negative politics that we've seen in the past at the national level that have even made their way down to the state level and the local level," Fraley said. "Many ask: What can we do to make this situation better? What can I do right here right now? In my view, we can take action at the local level, and that starts with all of us. Real change must come from each of us individually."

Fraley also called for people to be tolerant of different “reviewed all information possible” before making a final decision on continuing a learning from home system through zoom before returning to the classroom on a flexible basis.

The school system based its decision on four factors, including the fact that Madison County’s case number was the highest in the state on Monday and the incident rate is higher than any other county in Central Kentucky.

Last weekend, local and regional hospitals are at or near capacity and the school system won’t be returning to in-person learning until after “our employees have received the first dose of the vaccine.

“This additional time will allow some additional time for our community’s case numbers to decrease (and) allow some time for our hospitals to recover from the increase in strain, and allow our employees to receive some level of protection from the spread of the virus,” the school system said on its Facebook page.

School officials said they have been officially assigned a vaccinator by the Kentucky Department for Public Health.

“This means we will be receiving our doses of vaccines for employees who requested it in the near future,” school officials said. “We are awaiting word from our vaccinator as to when our doses will arrive and when we will be administering the first doses to our employees. As soon as we know more about the timeline, we will share that information with our families.”

Berea update

Berea Community Schools are hopeful to begin a small targeted group instruction (A/B schedule) on Monday, according to Berea Superintendent Dr. Diane Hatchett.

“We have received approval of our plan from the health department and are excited to have students and staff return to the building,” Hatchett said. “No one will be on campus on Fridays except food service and our custodial staff. The district will conduct thorough cleaning and fogging on Fridays.”

Hatchett added that the online option will still be available to students.

“We want all of our students to excel,” she said. “Providing options allows us to more readily meet the needs of our students.”

Want a repeat customer? Get the order right

I love eating out, maybe too much. Before I became a journalist, my first job was at a fast-food establishment. In between basketball practice, basketball games, high school classes and church, I spent my teenage years working at Hardee's in Richmond. I can still remember the late Jimmy Coomer showing me how to work the french fry station at the South Keeneland Drive location. It didn't take me long to find out how hot the grease is once those potatoes are finished in the commercial deep fryer.

Keith Taylor

I cooked hamburgers, toasted buns, swept floors, took orders, ran the drive-thru, took orders and made sure customers left the parking lot and the front door with a smile on their faces. Aside from working in a factory for two weeks, I returned to the Hardees on the Richmond Bypass and became a supervisor, attended classes at Eastern Kentucky University and focused on becoming a journalist. For many years and during college, I would get up at 4:30 a.m., open the store, count the money, take care of inventory and run the back line, making biscuit sandwiches on those made from scratch biscuits, which are homemade and indeed made from scratch. I can still see the late Emma Cochran in the back of the kitchen preparing biscuits every day of the week. When I wasn't in the kitchen, I was manning the front line, including the drive-thru, where we had one of the best teams ever assembled back in the day. We took pride in our work and we made sure the customers were happy. Although I have been out of the restaurant business for 25 years, I still pay close attention to restaurants and how I'm treated a customer. The City of Berea and Richmond have some fine restaurants, but some of them need to rededicate themselves to customer service. Make sure there are napkins in the bag and the order is correct. That's the most important thing for any restaurant, whether it be fast food, sit down or a fancy establishment. Recently, Rhonda and I have encountered a few instances where our order has been totally incorrect and it's annoying, especially when we do most of our orders via drive-thru. It's still very important to make sure the order is correct and as if it just came off the grill or the deep fryer. Not only does it make the customer happy, but it will result in a better impression.

Letters to the editor

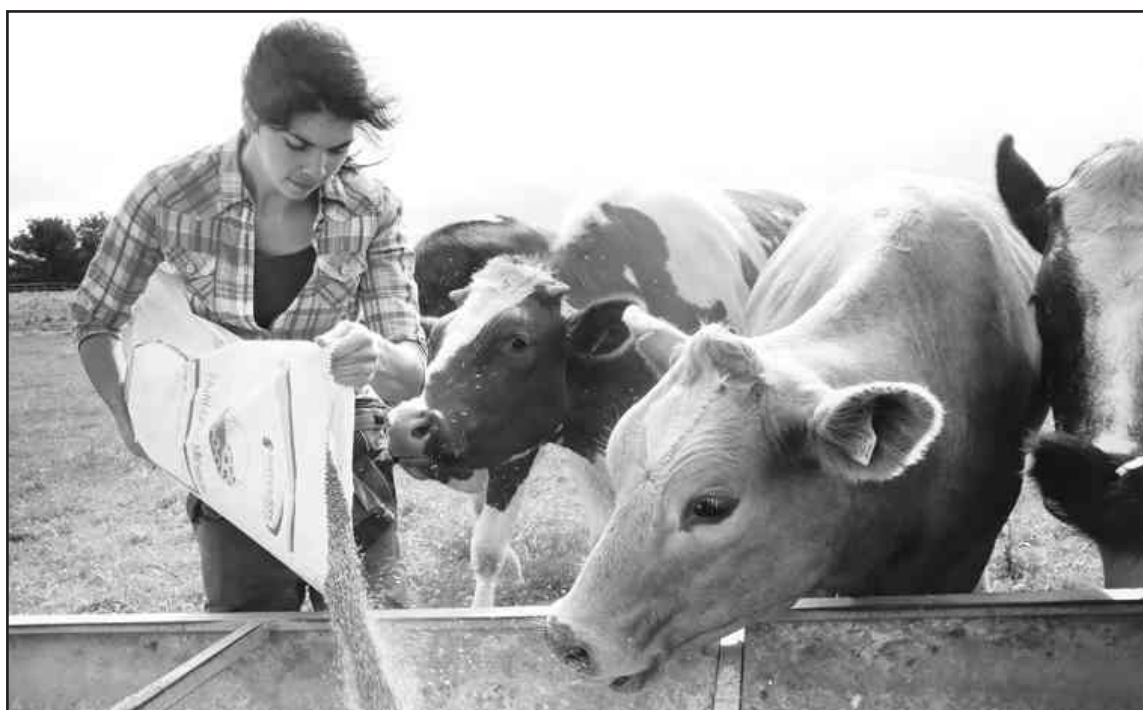

Walters: Believe in others, yourself

Many of us are searching for clues to understand the current state of affairs. The COVID-19 virus has upended the routines of our lives. The riots have created fear and dismay about the security of our country's foundations. I recently found hope in two stories I wish to share: an historical fiction book, "The Cellist of Sarajevo," (Steven Gallo-way) and a documentary movie, "The Dawn Wall." Both are based on real events. I challenge Madison County readers to examine each for the meaning of "Believe" and "Do what YOU can do." The message of the power of believing in others and in oneself is so strong that I predict your heart will be touched long after you close the cover on the last page of the book. I predict you will be inspired to the depths of your being by the mountain climbers' story. It just may be worth your time during these troubling times.

Respectfully,
Barbara Walters

Berea College Farm celebrates 150 years

By Lyle D. Roelofs
Berea College President

The Berea College Farm began as a garden and a few dairy cows in 1871. Today, it stretches across 500 acres and includes beef cattle, hogs, poultry, field crops, horticulture crops, and honey bees. All year long, Berea will be celebrating our sesquicentennial—the 150th anniversary—of one of the nation's oldest continuously operating educational farms.

Lyle Roelofs

In the early days, the Farm provided food for boarding houses and work for students. Over time, it became a place to demonstrate the latest farming techniques and a field of learning for students of various majors, but especially agriculture and natural resource students. Today, the Farm continues to be a resource to the region and offers students practical opportunities to apply what they learn in the classroom. This includes the recently established Berea College Farm Store, where our students apply lessons in marketing and value-added food processing. The Farm's longevity is special, but it has not come without challenges. Each generation of College farmers have navigated the limitations of the land and the fluctuations of the market. What makes the College Farm unique is that each challenge, and sometimes failure, became an opportunity to learn. Students learned to adapt the Farm to adversity, experiment with new techniques, and in doing so took knowledge with them out into the region.

The Farm's present and future being driven by students also make it unique and special. In the late 1990s, when students became concerned about industrial-scale farming, the College Farm transitioned to raising certified organic crops. Students also led the transition from feedlot-finishing of cattle to grass finishing and ended the practice of hog confinement. Students, working just 10 to 15 hours per week, ensure our honey bees are pesticide-free.

Our students learn all aspects of Farm operations, from feeding animals and weeding gardens to more complex challenges like analyzing and adjusting crop rotations and testing new ideas with research projects. In that sense, not only is the Farm a learning laboratory for students that instills an uncommon work ethic within them, it also becomes a place to demonstrate new ideas. We take these ideas into the community through partnerships with area organizations such as Madison County Cooperative Extension, the Madison County Soil and Water Conservation District, and the Natural Resource Conservation Service. Most recently, the horticulture operation, managed by Janet Meyer, hosted a virtual field day with the Organic Association of Kentucky. This is in addition to hosting school groups and regional Future Farmers of America chapters—before the pandemic.

The Berea College Farm will continue in its primary role as a learning laboratory where students, staff and faculty test, evaluate and demonstrate a variety of farming methods. It will also maintain its focus on improving and developing sustainable and appropriate agriculture for the region. The recent advent of large-scale greenhouse facilities in our area by AppHarvest represents interesting possibilities for scholarly interactions and collaboration, and we look forward to such opportunities.

This year we will be celebrating 150 years of a truly unique and special farm operation, much of it virtually. Be on the lookout for virtual farm tours and alumni happy hours, as well as special merchandise that will be available through the Farm Store's online ordering form.

May the next 150 years of the Farm be as "fruitful" as the last.

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

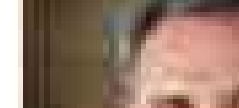

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Reflections

Berea Citizen Archives: Jan. 23, 1964

Plans for construction of Interstate 75 in Madison County had progressed to the point where the acquisition of the right of way between Berea and Richmond would be started during the spring. The State Department of Highways said that the plans were in place to begin the development of the 25.6-mile stretch between Kentucky 52 at Richmond and U.S. 25 near Mt. Vernon. Four consulting engineers had contracts and these all called for completion of the stretch between April 16th and May 24th of 1964. The statement from the Frankfort office stated, "Right-of-way activity on the I-75 portion between Kentucky 52 (at Richmond) and Kentucky 21 at Berea will begin just as soon as the right-of-way plans are developed to a point where acquisition can begin, which will probably be this Spring." At that time I-75 in Madison County was open northward from the interchange north of Richmond to the Athens-Boonesboro Road near Lexington. Contracts had been awarded for the construction of the Richmond By-pass and extension of I-75 from the then interchange of the By-pass interchange at Barnes Mill Road. Rights of way were being acquired for I-75 from Barnes Mill Road to Kentucky 52 near Richmond.

The Maternal Health League raised over $6,000 during a recent fund raising campaign. According to league president Dr. Louise Hutchins, this was much more than usual. At the time the league was buying contraceptives for 22 counties in Eastern Kentucky and public health nurses and physicians were prescribing them to those in need. According to Hutchins, nearly 700 women had been served and there would be more because not all records had come in yet. A nationwide campaign kick-off program for Planned Parenthood-World Population Organization began on January 22, 1964 in New York City. A total of $1,386,991 was raised in the advance campaign. Speakers at the two-day event included Ambassador John Galbraith and Senator Joseph Clark. Ambassador Adlai Stevenson presented the Lasker Award to Cass Canfield.

The Berea High School boosters recently met for a financial report as well as to begin planning additional fund raising activities in order to meet their goal of $2,100 for new band uniforms. Mrs. Marshall Platt, treasurer, reported the organization had a current balance of $390.75 and that all outstanding balances had been paid. Most of these funds had come from the sale of advertisements in the basketball program, sale of programs at the local games, sales of booster buttons as well as whisk brooms donated to the organization by L. Lindbert. The balance also included revenues from a recent chili supper. The chili supper netted approximately $100 and was manned mainly by 7th and 8th graders who sold tickets to the event in advance. Special recognition went to Herbert Burke and Nancy Bowman who sold the most tickets to the event. Recognition also went to Mrs. Minnie Williamson, a cook at Berea High School, who prepared the chili for the first 200 people served. The band had acquired a new bass drum, cymbals and others necessities from last year's sale of candy "turtles" and from the Booster booth at the Halloween Carnival. It was the hope of the band booster's organization that the whole community will back the band and they urged everyone to be a band booster. With this in mind, the Boosters solicited the support of all local civic and service organizations.

Construction of the 24-room lodge at Natural Bridge State Park near Slade, Kentucky was well underway and was slated for completion in time for the 1964 opening season. The cost of the project, which included a lobby, lounge and a 200 person capacity dining room, was $639,400. Lane, White and Congleton of Lexington were the contractors in charge of the project. This building replaced the old Hemlock Lodge with makes a total of eight new lodges and room additions at two other Kentucky State Parks in the past two years. A new lodge was also under construction at Buckhorn Lake State Park near Hazard.

The Berea Forest Research Center announced the addition of new staff member, Dr. William Striffler. Dr. Striffler a water research specialist joined the strip mine area restoration project that was currently underway. Striffler's role in the project was to better learn how utilization of better mining practices and forest restoration of forests would affect water runoff from stripped areas. He looked for ways to construct ponds safely as well as researching other ways to control water over the rough terrain of the Appalachian coalfields. Other concerns addressed through Striffler's research were how strip mining could be executed with the least erosion, silting of streams, and the least change of quality of stream water. Striffler came to Berea from Cadillac, Michigan. There he had been studying stream bank forestation and other measures aimed at reducing erosion, silting and water impurities. His work at Cadillac was for the U.S. Forest Service's Lake States Forest Experimentation Station in cooperation with the Department of Conservation. He belongs to the Society of American Foresters, Soil Conservation and he was a member of the Cadillac Rotary Club, Michigan and Northwest Michigan Symphony Orchestra. He was married to Marilyn Striffler and they had four children: David, Brian, Peter and Karen.

Kingston Memories

Potts Building full of history

Todd Moberly indulged my curiosity about the Potts Truck Service building, at the corner of Old US 25 near Kingston Elementary School. (Actually, at that time, the road was named, The Dixie Highway)

According to Todd, the building was preexisting when the business began in 1926. It was an ideal spot for a garage/wrecker service since it was a high traffic area. (US 25 had not yet been constructed) It also served as a meeting/loading space for farmers with chairs, benches, and a heating stove.

Louis Todd Potts operated the business along with his sons, William Nixon "Bill" Potts, "Peck" and "Ike" (Robert H. Potts and Louis Todd Potts, Jr.) Louis was gifted mechanically. He had prior experience being a mill operator. His sons inherited this talent. Peck and Ike both served in the Army where they likely picked up additional skills. Peck and Ike kept the business going after Louis T. Potts died in 1983.

Peck was well known for a couple of things. One was the cigar that was often in his pocket. The second was his large hand fabricated wrecker. The original was a surplus purchased in 1947 from the Army Depot. Later he constructed others that were similar in size but had more features. While it was not known to be a fast or quiet vehicle, it was widely acknowledged to be the most powerful. It could easily tow a semi out when needed.

Todd relayed a humorous story about a prank played on Peck. Supposedly a circus manager requested his services to lift an elephant that was down and could not get up. Peck headed off only to discover it was a prank.

Sadly, the business closed in 1996 when Ike died unexpectedly. Peck lived to the ripe old age of 93, dying in 2016.

Still many locals have memories of those days and the building still stands as a reminder of their ingenuity and work ethic.

Kirksville Chronicles

Fire Department a staple in area

The Kirksville Volunteer Fire Department has always been a staple within the Kirksville community. In the past few years, the fire department has undergone some changes but still serves the residents in the area in the ways they always have.

As a child, I can remember the KVFD leading the Kirksville Day parade. One year, I was able to ride on the leading firetruck with Mrs. Fannie Noe Hendren when she was the Grand Marshall of the parade as the oldest member of our community and I the youngest. The KVFD has always been there to support community events like this and others, but their most important job has been caring for our community members (and sometimes others) in their most urgent times of need.

The KVFD has a rich history from the time of its inception around 45 years ago. My grandfather, Bill Grant, was one of the original members of the KVFD. Since its founding, Ms. Juanita Estes has served on the board for the volunteer fire department and continues to do so today as treasurer. Current fire chief Logan King explained that the fire department was founded out of a need for fire protection for the Kirksville area. Mr.

King stated their coverage area "includes Paint Lick, Kirksville, Round Hill, Poosey Ridge, Curtis Pike, Lancaster Road and Barnes Mill Road" from the end of the city limits to those areas.

Mr. King shared that 2020 was a unique but successful year for the fire department. They added a 1987 Mack tanker truck to their fleet, capable of carrying 2,000 gallons of water-bringing their carrying capacity to 3,750 gallons. The fire chief shared, "The KVFD responded to 117 calls for action. These calls varied: injury accidents, structural fires, a cat in a tree, lost children, and many others."

Currently, the KVFD comprises 20 Eastern Kentucky University students and seven full-time firefighters alongside multiple veterans and Emergency Medical trained professionals. Almost all of the current volunteers have prior fire fighting experience/training. Anyone interested in serving as a volunteer is welcome to contact KVFD via their Facebook page, leave a message on the station door, or reach out to Chief Logan King.

The Kirksville Volunteer Fire Department currently has a stock of fire detectors they are willing to come and install for anyone in need. They are also always grateful for and accepting donations as they work on a limited budget.

Lady Pirates earn All ‘A’ three-peat

By Mike Moore
For the Citizen

The Berea Lady Pirates will again represent the 11th Region in the state All “A” tournament thanks to a 58-45 win over Frankfort Saturday afternoon.

Berea jumped on top of Frankfort in the first half by grabbing a 34-15 lead, then fended off a few minor runs to capture its third straight All “A” region title.

“We were in pretty good shape at the half — and if we hadn’t been, then we might be having a different conversation right now,” Dammian Stepp said.

Madison Howell scored 19 points and grabbed eight rebounds in the win. Alexis Newman finished with a double-double, scoring 15 while securing 10 boards.

Chesney Lovins also tossed in 10 points, while Mati Stepp added 8.

The state tournament is scheduled for Feb. 15-21 at EKV’s McBrayer Arena. Game times have not been announced as of press time.

On Monday, the Lady Pirates dropped a tough one to Franklin County, 63-58 in overtime. Howell led Berea with 23 points and six rebounds. Lovins added 12 points and six rebounds, while Newman finished with eight points and seven boards. Abigail Beard chipped in with seven points.

Southern falls to Devils, rips Garrard

The Madison Southern Eagles were on the losing end of a one-point ball game, falling to Henry Clay, 77-76 last week.

Trent Devries led the Eagles with 22 points, including a 5-for-9 effort from behind the three-point line. Jayden Adams finished with 15 points, while Jay Rose ended the contest with 10 points and five rebounds. Zach Hudson added 9 points in the loss.

The Eagles snapped its two-game losing streak Tuesday night at Garrard County, winning 80-59.

Jay Rose paced Southern with 23 points and eight rebounds.

Hudson added 20 points to go along with six rebounds, while DeVries finished with 18 points.

Lady Eagles still soaring

The Madison Southern Lady Eagles knocked off East Jessamine (59-35), Boyle County (48-35), and Letcher County Central (66-63) this past week.

Against East Jessamine, Samantha Cornelison finished with 15 points and five rebounds. Lacie Parks added 12 points, while Reece Estep ended the contest with nine points and 11 rebounds.

Cornelison finished with 22 points, including 10 in the fourth quarter.

Daniels added 12 points in the win.

The win wasn’t an easy one as Southern trailed at halftime 26-18.

In the second half, Southern clamped down on Lincoln, outscoring the Lady Patriots 30-7.

The Berea Pirates did not play last week because of COVID-19 protocols.

viewpoints. “So, no matter how many times we have to say it, let us also realize that we must be persistent in our message that all viewpoints and opinions should be respected whether we agree with them or whether we don’t agree with them, and that we can truly disagree without being disagreeable. I hope that you will join me in asking yourself: What can I do individually to be a part of the solution, and then take action to do your part.”

Council members thanked Fraley for his remarks, with some encouraging citizens to meet that challenge. “Love your neighbors and treat each other with respect and kindness,” said Steve Caudill. “We’re all here for the same reason, we don’t always agree on the paths, but we always know that the destination is the same and we all want Berea to be as strong as it can be as a city. Just always remember that. We all have the same goal in mind.”

In other news, the council unanimously adopted an ordinance allowing the mayor to apply to the Kentucky Infrastructure Authority (KIA) for a loan for the Central Kentucky Regional Airport (CKRA). The application is part of the process of securing funds for a $1.3 million water and sewer extension project for the airport. The loan would be for $256,200 to pay for 20 percent of the cost of extending water and sewer lines out to the airport. Proceeds from the newly installed airplane hangars would be used to pay back the loan. The remaining $1,024,000 would be paid for by a grant from the Appalachian Regional Commission (ARC), the application for which is under review. Mayor Fraley noted that the other two local governments, Madison County and Richmond, have already adopted measures in support of the project.

Madison County Airport Board Chair George Wyatt said the assistance of the three governments has allowed the airport to secure larger grants to fund airport expansion, which has included the construction of 90 T-hangars and building a new ramp.

“We are moving along. We are using your funds very wisely in that we are able to take the local funds we have and leverage them to get large grants so that we can expand our airport with a minimum amount of local dollars,” Wyatt said.

Wyatt noted that future plans may include beginning construction of a new terminal by the end of this year, funded mostly by ECU, as well as working to lure corporate flight operators to make their home at CKRA.

Also passed unanimously was a joint resolution for economic development projects. The measure, which will be adopted by Madison County’s three local governments, endeavors to promote intergovernmental cooperation in the effort to retain some of the 1,400 skilled workers who are currently employed at the demilitarization project at the Blue Grass Depot. Where possible, the three governments will cooperate to help keep much of that workforce in Madison County, which could promote economic development, officials said.

In other business, the council heard the second reading of an ordinance that would raise fines imposed by the Code Enforcement Board, and to designate the Planning and Zoning administrative assistant as the custodian of that department’s records.

During Council comments, councilmembers Jim Davis and Teresa Scenters asked for work sessions to discuss future projects.

Davis asked for a discussion of the proposed mountain bike/running trail near J.C. Chambers Lane, while Scenters asked for a session to include an update on the proposed dog park.

Next meeting is scheduled for Feb. 2.

welcome to Hitachi Automotive Electric Motor Systems America Inc. We are very pleased that they have chosen our city to be the first location of their newly formed company. One of our goals over the last two years has been to attract state-of-the-art, advanced manufacturing to our city, and Hitachi MS is the perfect partner,” Fraley said. “We also appreciate the efforts of the Cabinet for Economic Development in working with Hitachi MS and bringing them to Berea. “We look forward to a long term working relationship with Hitachi MS.”

Madison County Judge/Executive Reagan Taylor welcomed the new expansion to the county. “Madison County is fortunate to have so many wonderful corporate partners, and without a doubt, Hitachi is one of those,” said Judge/Executive Taylor, who also serves as president of the Kentucky Association of Counties. “Hitachi’s commitment to Berea and Madison County has been unwavering. Their decision to expand operations once again highlights the fact that Madison County’s location, quality workforce and community culture make it a great place to grow a business.”

Established in Kentucky in March 2020, Hitachi Automotive Electric Motor Systems America will supply motors to Honda of America Mfg. Inc. “We are pleased to establish this new business in Berea, where Hitachi Automotive Systems Americas has forged a robust, ongoing relationship with the local community and state officials over the years,” said Shingo Nakamura, president of Hitachi Automotive Electric Motor Systems America.

“The new venture is a critical piece in strengthening Hitachi’s foundation in the fast-growing electric vehicle market and supporting the revitalization of the economy in Kentucky through job creation in response to COVID-19.”

In Kentucky, Hitachi Automotive Systems Americas operates four facilities. Those include two manufacturing plants in Berea making brake and suspension components, as well as manufacturing and warehousing facilities in Harrodsburg, producing electronic control systems, actuators and fuel system components.

The newly formed Hitachi subsidiary joins more than 500 other automotive suppliers and four automotive assembly plants operating in Kentucky.

“This new venture, along with the jobs and wages it will create, adds true momentum to our economic recovery and points to a bright future as we build a better Kentucky,” said Kentucky Governor Andy Beshear.

“From an automotive workforce and industry perspective, it’s also crucial that Kentucky continues to attract these kinds of forward-looking projects. The auto industry is in a years-long tectonic shift to electric vehicles.

“Throughout this, we must advance the Commonwealth’s role and reputation as a major player in this hugely important economic sector.”

Fraley added the recent expansions, including Tesla provide and economic boost within the city.

“With Tesla and other electric vehicle companies, we are seeing the way to the future of the automobile industry and it is a tremendous development for our city to be at the forefront of this advanced manufacturing process,” Fraley said. “This development will have a positive impact on our community and surrounding counties by providing high quality jobs that pay very well, and this will have a “generational” impact on our citizens, our young people and generations to come.”

Fraley praised the all parties for their help in the expansion.

“It has been a pleasure to work with the Hitachi MS management team, including President Shingo Nakamura and Human Resources Director Simon Mortimer, throughout the start up process,” Fraley said.

“I must also compliment our economic development team, including David Gregory, Lucas Witt (MWM Consulting), Donna Angel, Amanda Haney and GIS manager Tom Moreland, who have worked with me shoulder to shoulder in support of this project.

“With this announcement, the recent expansion of Hyster-Yale, and the announcement of the AppHarvest investment in our industrial park, the future looks bright for our city and our citizens.”

Food Bank director Crachiolo addresses Berea Rotary Club

Submitted

After repeating Rotary's 4-way test and taking a vote to purchase the 'pro' version of zoom, President Rita Davis introduced the first "zoom" speaker of the new year, Tony Crachiolo.

When long-time director of the Berea Food Bank, Jerry Workman, made the decision to retire in March, Crachiolo, who had been shadowing Workman, had a clear picture of the responsibilities.

However, everything changed with Covid-19 because it brought many restrictions to the operation procedures. In addition to limiting the number of volunteers required for distributions and collections, there was an increase in the number of citizens needing the services of the Berea Food Bank.

Crachiolo found that monetary donations gave the organization more 'bang' for the buck allowing purchases from God's Pantry along with control in offering a more balanced diet.

The overall changes created a doubling of the number of times people could come and doubling the amount of food.

A program called "Reach Out" provides for fresh fruits and vegetables, serving 86 clients in three affordable housing units.

The third prong of the services involves some support for the homeless.

With the increase in the food and the decrease in workers, Crachiolo noted the physical difficulty moving the food. He was seeking some help with fund raising to secure a powered pilot jack.

Through an offer from St. Clare Catholic Church through Father Gary Simpson, Berea Rotary have joined forces and will be providing equipment for the Berea Food Bank in the near future.

The link for the Tuesday noon zoom Rotary Club meetings can be secured from club secretary, Charles Hoffman at Charles.hoffman.law@gmail.com.

Cats seeking consistency

By Keith Taylor
Berea Citizen Publisher

John Calipari isn't giving up on his squad despite their recent struggles that have left Kentucky limping going into the heart of the Southeastern Conference schedule.

Although the Wildcats dropped two games last week — a blowout loss to Alabama, followed by a single-digit setback at Auburn — the Kentucky coach said he will never “stop tweaking and changing.”

In order to have success in the future, starting with Wednesday's game at Georgia, Calipari said the Wildcats (4-8, 3-2) have to become an unselfish team to the point that it “clicks in their minds,” especially on the offensive end of the court.

“They have to feel all of this and how we have to play for each other,” he said. “We aren't good enough to go run by people.”

Calipari believes the Wildcats have to “create space” on offense and produce more assists, which has been lacking in the past two games. Kentucky has produced just seven assists in each of the past two contests.

“We should be averaging at

least 18 assists on our baskets, maybe more,” Calipari said after the loss to the Tigers. “Everyone was trying to score instead of creating shots for each other. We are one of those teams that are trying to figure it out.”

Jacob Toppin added an ideal offense is sticking to the basic fundamentals of basketball in order to produce more asissts.

“We have to drive and find the open man,” he said.

“Once we buy into team basketball and finding the open man, that's when we will start winning games.”

The sophomore forward said the Wildcats have bought into what Calipari wants but added that inconsistent play at times has been a stumbling block.

“I think everyone is dialed in, but we have to become more consistent,” he said. “Sometimes when we are playing, some players will go off and play ‘me’ basketball, and that's what we don't need. We will figure it out and stay consistent.”

Typically this deep into the season, Calipari's teams usually have a clear direction moving forward. This year, however, the Wildcats haven't yet discovered a go-to player and can't “just ride one or two guys.”

“It may be game to game (as to) who's getting more looks and shots,” the Kentucky coach said.

While Calipari and the Wildcats are still seeking consistency, Toppin said they have shown what kind of team they can be, especially during a recent three-game winning streak.

“We know what kind of team we are and we have shown it in a couple of games,” he said. “We have to be more consistent and play team basketball. We have to become more consistent and we will start winning.”

Calipari: Outside noise ‘poision’

By Keith Taylor
Berea Citizen Publisher

Kentucky coach John Calipari admits he doesn't spend much time on social media and expects his players to use good judgment when they are on various internet platforms such as Facebook, Twitter and Instagram.

“You almost have to shut it down,” he said. “What I tell them is, if you're going to read the good stuff, you need to read the bad stuff. You can't just shut it down because all of a sudden they're attacking. If you're going to shut it down, you shut it down. I call it poison, all that stuff, from all forms of media or outside people. It's poison. ... When you're at Kentucky, it's 10 times that. It can be the best then, and then it can turn on you and be the worst thing – if you let it. If you ignore both the good and the bad, you just keep marching on.”

Calipari has been under fire this season mostly because the Wildcats have opened with a 4-7 record and in jeopardy of missing the postseason for the first time in his 12-year tenure as coach of the Wildcats. The other issue was his team's decision to kneel during the national anthem at Florida on Jan. 9.

“There's always people who are going to question,” he said. “That's what coaching is. It doesn't mater what you do, there's people going to say you can do it better or do it a different way. ... I don't respond to that kind of stuff that's out there – the core of who I am is caring about kids, and when that is questioned I've got to, you know. Anybody that knows me knows what I stand for and knows my beliefs. And it doesn't matter if I'm living in California, Texas, Kentucky, Florida, Boston, my beliefs are what they are. I made the statement, ‘I stand by these kids. I believe in these kids.’ And they know that. You just, again, you march on.”

“You do what you think is right. Normally what's right isn't always popular and doing what's popular is not always right, and that's why you've got to fall back on your faith and your belief system.”

Kentucky stood for the anthem during last Saturday's 66-59 loss at Auburn.

“We stand for what we believe in. There was no discussion. We decided to lock arms because we are going to stay united and we will fight for what we believe in even if it looks different from what we did before.”

Bubble life

Most of the teams in the Southeastern Conference are having success on the road this season and three of Kentucky's seven setbacks this season have been at home.

“For us, our building you just don't win many games in Rupp Arena, opponents don't,” Calipari said. “Now, even though we have 3,000 the building is a 24, 25,000 people and you're down to 3,000. It's a big difference. The same with Florida – it's different. But the other side of it is every game we play is a Super Bowl.”

Kentucky forward Jacob Toppin agreed.

“Definitely having fans at the games brings a lot more energy,” he said. “We get a lot more hype. But with the year that we've had so far with no fans, with limited fans, even having a little bit of fans adds something each game. It helps a little bit. I'm not really worried about the fans, but they definitely help in some way.”

Short-handed

The women's basketball team was without four players, including standout Rhyne Howard in an 80-73 win over Vanderbilt Sunday at Memorial Coliseum.

Juniors Robyn Benton, Jazmine Massengill and senior Kameron Roach also sat out because of COVID-19 protocols. Junior Blair Green picked up the scoring slack with 22 points, a career-high for the Harlan County native.

“Our message was consistent all game,” Kentucky coach Kyra Elzy said. “You know, we have to dig in. It's going to take everybody. We cannot panic. We had to get some stops on the defensive end, one shot and out, push the ball in transition. But, the biggest message, do not panic.”

“We have been here before, we are battle tested, we have enough players on the floor that can make plays, and that showed.”

Elzy said Howard is listed as day-to-day as she recovers from an ankle injury.

The Wildcats are off to a 10-3 start this season, including a 3-2 mark in the SEC.

Virus strikes Pirates

By Mike Moore
For The Citizen

Headed into the 2020-21 basketball season, coaches and players knew the possibility existed that schedules would be up in the air because of the pandemic.

With that in mind, Berea Community announced Tuesday that all sports are suspended until Feb. 3 because of ongoing issues related to COVID-19. "With the many quarantines going on right now within our athletic department, our administrative team has decided to shut down all practice and game activities for all teams," Athletics Director Jerry Bingham said on the boys' basketball Facebook page. "Activities can resume on Feb. 3."

That means Friday's double-header at Madison Southern has been canceled. The girls' team suspended practice and play in the days following its 62-42 win over Model on Jan. 21. Coach Dammian Stepp said the decision wasn't fun to make, but it was in the best interest of the team's health and safety. "That is just the type of season we are all playing through," he said. "I feel like we were hitting our stride, and we will have to regroup after some time off."

Bio-tech firm has eyes on county

By Andy McDonald
For The Citizen

Madison County may be gaining a bio-tech employer in future, which may initially employ up to 70 people, officials said. At Tuesday's meeting of the Madison County Fiscal Court, officials approved a resolution permitting the county to enter into the Kentucky Business Investment program through the Kentucky Cabinet for Economic Development, Department for Business Development.

Madison County Judge/Executive Reagan Taylor read the resolution, which identified Project Neuron as the prospective employer. The resolution further states that the company would be located within the county, but not within the city limits of any city.

The vote came after the Fiscal Court retired to a 30-minute executive session to discuss the matter, and when they resumed the regular business session, gave Taylor permission to enroll the county in the KBI program, in which Madison County would forego 2 percent of its occupational license fees for a period of seven years as an incentive to attract the business. Taylor said the bio-tech firm is considering Madison

Bulletproof

Madison County Judge/Executive Reagan Taylor announced this week that Madison County is the recipient of $14,980 for bulletproof vests thanks to the Bureau of Justice Assistance (BJA). The award, which is from the 2020 Patrick Leahy Bulletproof Vest Partnership (BVP), will enable the Madison County Sheriff's Office to purchase approximately 14 vests for officers. Madison County was one of only 33 recipients and one of only two counties to receive funding in the 2020 grant cycle.

County for its corporate headquarters.

In other business, the court voted unanimously to engage Perfection Group for a $7 million energy efficiency contract to upgrade facilities throughout the county in an effort to save money. The contract will include repair and placement of various roofs, including that of the Madison County Detention Center, upgrades of electrical, heating and cooling services, as well as replacement of some 12,000 bulbs with energy efficient LED lights. Officials said the upgrades will result in a savings of approximately $8 million in energy costs over a 20-year period. The county will be paying the project off over 15 years, Taylor said.

Madison County Jailer Steve Tussey said the upgrades are long overdue, and that the Detention Center's roof, for example, has been in need of

Fraley updates Rotary Club on status of city

In its third zoom meeting of the New Year, Rotary hosted Berea Mayor Bruce Fraley as speaker.

The focus of the talk was updating members on the status of the city. Fraley organized his topic into three general areas: economic development, city hall, and the pavilion project. He expressed praise for the larger businesses as AppHarvest, Hitachi, and the Hyster Yale expansion while his greatest concern is for the small business element as affected by Covid-19.

The newest business, AppHarvest, located across from Farristown Middle School, is a supply chain for tomatoes that will reach two-thirds of the nation.

Hitachi is developing an electric motor system for Honda's CRV and Accord. With respect to small business, Fraley has learned owners want local support from top officials.

Berea City Hall, open for business since June, has followed all pandemic restrictions. Due to the uncertainty of the total financial effect, the city leaders have taken a conservative approach with tax dollars.

The Pavilion project, which is mainly for the Farmers Market, is under way, being supported by grant monies.

In the Q&A period, Fraley acknowledged that revenues are a little below normal but better than expected under COVID conditions. He said he has no information on the Rash Road Health Department's vaccine availability.

The job as mayor has exceeded all his expectations as well as his cognizance of the breadth of the responsibilities and the need to be studious and willing to listen. President Rita Davis will secure the next speaker.

The link for the Tuesday noon zoom meetings can be secured from club secretary, Charles Hoffman at Charles.hoffman.law@gmail.com.

Sanders meme has us all feeling the ‘Bern’

Bernie Sanders was busy last week.

The former presidential candidate attended President Joe Biden’s inauguration and gained national attention with his mittens. A photographer spotted Sanders in the crowd and there he sat with his legs crossed, adorned with a puffy coat and his arms crossed with his comfy mittens.

The photo not only went viral, but a meme of Sanders spread like wildfire and his image has been photo-shopped into other pictures and shared on social media sites such as Instagram, Snapchat, Facebook and other internet platforms. Some of the memes are downright hilarious and the expression, the dress, the posture and the mittens of course make the perfect meme. Bernie has been spotted everywhere, on the street near a business, in a car, in a stadium, in a business at Berea City Hall, next to a police cruiser in front of the Fire Department, with athletes, at Rupp Arena. He has even been spotted in sitting in a tree hanging out with birds. He went out of this world and visited the moon.

Santa Claus is no match for Bernie these days.

Sanders told CBS News that his main priority, as with others who attended the inauguration, including Richmond Mayor Dr. Robert Blythe, was to simply keep warm during the ceremony. “In Vermont, we dress warm, we know something about the cold,” he said. “And we’re not so concerned about good fashion. We want to keep warm. And that’s what I did today.”

The mittens were sold out in a matter of hours and sweatshirts that were made with the meme printed on the front were donated to charity. They also sold out within hours of hitting the market.

The mittens were made by Vermont native Jen Ellis, 42, a second-grade teacher. She made the famous mittens from gloves from repurposed sweaters and recycled plastic.

She told the Jewish Insider last week that she doesn’t have any more mittens on stock and doesn’t plan on ending her teaching career any time soon.

“I am a second grade teacher, and I’m a mom, and all that keeps me really busy,” she said. “There’s no possible way I could make 6,000 pairs of mittens, and every time I go into my email, another several hundred people have emailed me.”

Although the mittens are sweaters are not longer in stock, the meme is still around and Bernie is still making his rounds.

Like the rest of you, I have laughed at some of those memes over the past few days. A fun fact is that no matter your political affiliation and whether or not you agree with Sanders’ political beliefs, you can agree the memes are what society needed in wake of the political unrest that has gripped our country.

It’s exactly what America needed to help heal itself from the political wounds of hate that has infiltrated our society on both sides of the isle. Who would have thought Sanders, ironically an independent Senator from Vermont, would have had a had in the political healing process?

Thank you, Bernie. We all have felt the Bern.

History lacking tradition

Nearly everyone predicted last Wednesday’s Inauguration of President Joseph R. Biden Jr. and Vice President Kamala Harris would be the most unique in American history. In many respects, it was.

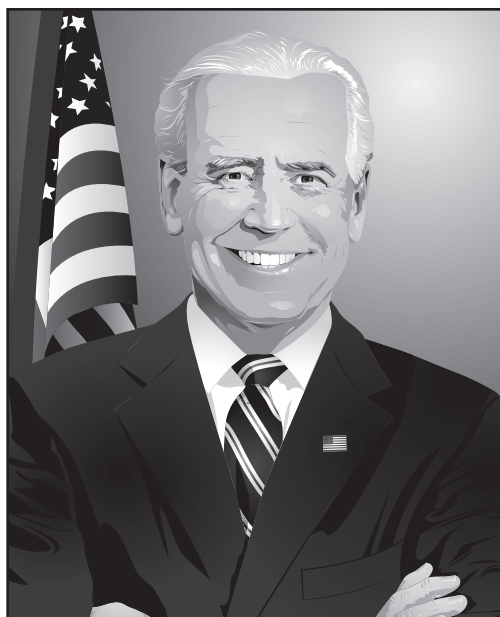

Necessarily downsized as a result of the COVID-19 pandemic and held on the U.S. Capitol’s West Front against a backdrop of never-before seen security, it had a very different look than inaugurations past. Yet, somehow it managed to go off on time, as scripted, and with the same style, substance, and even normalcy that the country associates with this very special day that comes only once every four years.

Yes, the crowd was the smallest ever for a West Front Inaugural, but that number must be marked with an asterisk (*). That’s because just over 1,000 tickets were issued by the Joint Congressional Committee on Inaugural Ceremonies (JCCIC) because of the need to limit attendance due to the pandemic. Typically 200,000 tickets are distributed for the event with the bulk going to Members of the House and Senate and President-elect. Members this year received just two tickets—one for themselves and a second for a guest. The crowd estimate does not include the more than 25,000 armed National Guard troops along with federal, state and local law enforcement agencies present for security purposes.

Despite the extraordinary circumstances, several Inaugural traditions prevailed. As customary, the ceremony was held outdoors on the Capitol’s West Front despite security concerns. The legendary Marine Band, which has performed at every inauguration since Thomas Jefferson’s on March 4, 1801 was there in full force with a 13-song prelude between 10-11:30 a.m. As in the past the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court administered the Presidential oath. He finished at 11:48 a.m., a full 12 minutes ahead of when President-elect Biden- under the Constitution—officially assumed office at noon.

Mike

A number of other traditions did not happen for various reasons. They included:

No Outgoing President In Attendance: President Donald Trump was the first since 1869—and only the fourth in history—not to attend his predecessor’s inaugural ceremony. Andrew Johnson, the 17th President and first to be impeached, skipped the 1869 event. John Adams, the nation’s second President, and John Quincy Adams, the sixth, also were not present for the inaugurations of their predecessors.

No Congressional Escort to the Capitol: Another longstanding tradition is for members of the inaugural committee to go to the White House mid-morning by motorcade and formally escort the President-elect, Vice President-elect and their spouses, along with the outgoing President and spouse, back to the Capitol. Following a brief White House reception, the procession departs 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue and up Constitution Avenue to the Capitol grounds.

No Post-Inauguration Presidential Sendoff: Immediately after the ceremony concludes, the new President and spouse, led by the JCCIC, typically walk with the outgoing President and spouse from the Inaugural platform to the Capitol’s East Front. Final farewells are exchanged. Then the outgoing President and spouse depart either by helicopter or car usually to Joint Base Andrews to leave for their post-White House destination.

No Inaugural Luncheon: After the East Front farewell event, the new President and spouse are escorted to Statuary Hall in the U.S. Capitol for the “Inaugural Luncheon.” Invited guests typically include the President and Vice President and their families along with Congressional leadership, members of the JCCIC and their spouses. This tradition dates to 1897 when the Senate Committee on Arrangements hosted a luncheon for President William McKinley and several other guests at the U.S. Capitol. This year’s event was cancelled due to COVID-19 considerations.

No Congressional Pre-Ceremony Hospitality:

Inauguration Day usually finds many House and Senate members hosting morning receptions in their Hill offices for guests from their respective districts and states.

No Kentucky Society Inaugural Ball:

The Kentucky Society of Washington cancelled its traditional Bluegrass Ball that commemorates the Presidential Inauguration. Like all other 2021 inaugural balls, the Kentucky Society also was a casualty of the pandemic.

One Kentucky tradition has endured: Last but not least there was one other Kentucky-related tradition that endured. Starting with the late U.S. Sen. Wendell Ford in 1981, a Kentuckian has been on the prestigious six-member JCCIC for eight of the past 11 inaugurations.

Ford was on the committee in 1981, 1985, 1989, 1993 and 1997. Senate Republican Leader Mitch McConnell was a member of the committee for this year’s ceremony as well as in 2017 and 2001.

Since 1901, the Joint Committee has been responsible for planning and conducting the inaugural ceremonies of the President-elect and Vice President-elect at the U.S. Capitol.

No other state in recent history has been represented on the committee as many times as Kentucky.

Mike Ruehling served as press secretary for late Kentucky State Senator Wendell Ford for part of his time in office and was heavily involved in planning a Presidential Inauguration.

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Berea Citizen Archives: Jan. 30, 1964

A fire destroyed a barn on the Farris Botkin farm off of Wallacetown Road on Wednesday, January 22nd. The barn caught fire from a grass fire that encompassed an approximate 50-acre section of the farm. The barn was valued at $2,500. A nearby out building belonging to J.R. Tevis was also destroyed as a result of the grass fire. Paint Lick Volunteer Fire Department as well as the Blue Grass Army Depot responded to the incident. On Thursday, January 24th, Berea Fire Department responded three different times to U.S. 25 North. The first call, at 3:35 p.m. was for a grass fire that has spread from a trash fire behind the Sinclair service station. At 4 p.m. and again at 4:30 p.m., fire crews were called to the Glenn Pennington residence in Meadowlark. The first was to extinguish a grass fire that has spread from burning trash. The fire reignited causing fire crews to have to return to the scene to extinguish the fire. The Blue Grass Army Depot Fire department responded to a grass fire at the farm of Lloyd Anglin on Haiti Road. The fire, which started about 1:30 p.m. on Monday, January 27th caused damage to a barn and some fence posts but was quickly extinguished by fire crews.

For many years the citizens of Berea have had the privilege of hearing a wide variety of musical performances ranging from local amateur to highly skilled musicians. On Monday, February 10th, they were treated to an extra special treat when the Rotary Club presented Rubinoff and his Violin. Rubinoff was a graduate of the Royal Conservatory in Warsaw, Poland. He knew the famed George Gershwin and heard him perform his "Rhapsody in Blue" for the first time in 1924. Mr. Rubinoff worked with composter Richard Addinsell in preparing the "Warsaw Concerto" for the violin version. Mr. Rubinoff and his Stradivarius violin have enchanted audiences for years. Recently, at Chicago's Grant Park he performed for a crowd of 225,000 spectators. Tickets for the Berea event where to go on sale soon.

Madison County farmers saved a collective $346,000 through sponsored programs offered by Farm Bureau last year according to James Deaton, eighth district field representative. Deaton spoke at a recent membership drive breakfast in Richmond. According to Deaton, Farm Bureau members saved $17,000 alone through the organization's insurance programs. The membership drive was the kick off to a membership campaign in hopes of adding to the approximate 500 current Farm Bureau members. Deaton, who was an alumni of Berea College and Eastern Kentucky State College said that the voluntary, non-governmental organization helped farmers accomplish what "they could not do themselves." Harold Turpin, membership chairman outlined benefits of having a Farm Bureau membership. He mentioned the rural electrification and telephone systems, rural roads, reductions in truck licenses, the tobacco program, the gasoline tax refund, sales tax exemptions, an agriculture center, insurance services and farmer education. He strongly urged farmers to become Farm Bureau members. Approximately 20 members and guests attended the event including Berea Mayor C.C. Hensley.

Miss Barbara Gunkler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Gunkler of Berea, recently returned after a six-month stay in France. Her trip also included additional trips to England, Italy, Holland and Denmark. Since September, Miss Gunkler attended a course on French Civilization at the Sorbonne University in Paris. Miss Gunkler departed for France on June 28, 1963 as a part of a trip planned by Experiment in International Living. "I spent the first four weeks in Bordeaux in Mid-France, two weeks with a middle-class family and two weeks with a wealthy family," Miss Gunkler said. "Both families were very hospitable and made my stay in Bordeaux a great experience. At the same time I got a valuable impression of French family life." From Bordeaux, Miss Gunkler accompanied a group of 15 young Americans on a 14-day bicycle trip that ended at the French coast in Bretagne. "From here we went by train to Paris for a week's sightseeing. The rest of the group soon returned to America, but I visited England and Italy and stayed a week in each country. A girl accompanied me from Massachusetts, Tay Thomas, who attends Cornell University and together we saw London, Florence, Pisa and Rome. Before starting the studying at Sorbonne University, I visited again my French parents in Bordeaux. At Sorbonne I attended the first semester's lessons of course that included French language, culture, politics and history." Said Miss Gunkler. Before leaving Europe, Miss Gunkler visited Holland and Denmark. "I spent Christmas in Amsterdam and New Year's in Copenhagen. I was in Copenhagen about a week but would have liked to have stayed much longer. Denmark is a wonderful country and the people have a certain amount of spirit and artistic sense. From Copenhagen, I made a short trip to Hamlet's castle in Kronbourg, in Elsinore." Miss Gunkler enrolled at Berea Colleg and majored in French.

Thyroid Awareness Month brings attention to condition

This month is Thyroid Awareness Month and I have personal experience with a thyroid condition. My sister was diagnosed with hypothyroidism (thyroid does not produce enough thyroid hormones). After I had my levels checked, I was also diagnosed. I started my prescribed medicine. Through the years the dosage increased, but I seemed to be doing okay.

Years later at a checkup, the doctor noticed a lump in my neck. After undergoing some additional tests, I was informed I had papillary thyroid cancer. Most doctors will tell you it is the best kind of cancer to have. It is still unnerving to hear the "C" word.

Tammy Whittamore

I was scheduled for thyroid surgery. I had talked to some ladies who had part of thyroid removed only to repeat surgery later to remove the remainder. I hoped to have my entire thyroid removed if medically reasonable. This turned out to be the case. I received a follow up treatment of radioactive iodine. This is supposed to destroy any remaining thyroid cancer cells. It is very isolating because you must stay 6 feet away from people for several days. I had some soreness after the treatment. The hoarseness was more of a problem. I continue to have yearly monitoring. My advice is to check your family medical history. Unfortunately, women are more likely to have these disorders. Follow the directions for your medication exactly. (Iron can interfere with absorption.) Check your neck for lumps (nodules). Notice if you are having trouble swallowing pills or food. Pay attention to your health. Heart disease, osteoporosis, and infertility can occur when patients go undiagnosed. Read about hypothyroidism, hyperthyroidism, and Hashimoto's thyroiditis symptoms. There are many online resources for information. (thyroid.org, mayoclinic.org, womenshealth.gov).

Kirksville Chronicles

Springtime just around the corner

Spring is about 52 days away. While Winter brings its own joy, recreation, and challenges to our community — spring and summer months are always a favorite for residents of Kirksville and Poosey.

Carrie Grant

It's the time of year when we can finally break free and take our 4-wheelers, side-by-sides, and other recreational vehicles to the creek and enjoy the sounds of the season: the cool water washing away our worries and the laughter of friendship and family.

Paint Lick Creek, Silver Creek, The Green Hole, the Kentucky River, and Jigg Water all hold fond memories for those of us who have grown up in the community.

Many of us have built lifelong friendships on the banks of these places. Some have found love, and some have just had fun.

A few of my favorite stories that my grandparents, Bill and Louise Grant, used to tell me as a child were about the time they spent together at Paint Lick Creek.

Papaw fished and swam in the creek and always convinced Granny to join him, though she laughed when he told these stories and added, "there were snakes everywhere in the water! I always ended up on the bank watching your papaw."

I am sure that stories about these places continue to be told from years past in households across our area, and kids look forward to the days when they can make similar memories with their family and friends.

After the Christmas Eve snow, I drove down to the Green Hole and waded through the waters in my Muck boots just for a break from my everyday norm. But, it isn't the same in the winter months.

During the summer, you're sure to see someone you know if you visit any of these places. There are families on picnics, taking a break from the heat of the day, riding through the water, just creating good, old-fashioned memories. This pandemic may have impacted the lives of many and created change throughout the world- but these trips to the creek still remained for many of us throughout the summer months. In a time of isolation and grief, it is nice to know that the promise of spring will bring our favorite days back around.

Time in these places truly does tend to bring people together. A good friend of mine, Paige Mills, grew up on Burton Lane in Poosey.

She said, "Poosey in the summer was like a paradise to a kid. Life was slow, and summers took forever. There was always a trail to ride, a creek to swim in, a friend to stay the night with, all night fires to dry off around; all of us kids ran together all summer. No one had to worry about us because where we lived, we had full reign over our summers."

As a child, I can remember watching my dad and his cousin, Ricky Grant, go to the river to catch catfish and taking us kids to go creek wading and fishing at Silver Creek. Growing up in this area is a blessing every day, but especially in the spring and summer. Kirksville and Poosey are more than just dots on a map; living here is a different way of life than many experience in today's world. We've learned to be better friends because of our time together. We've learned to be self-sufficient because of our grandparents and parents.

We've learned that a little time at the creek is all it takes to refresh us enough to make it through another work week.

Growing up in this area is a blessing every day, but especially in the spring and summer.

Walking the old paths again

I have always enjoyed the story about the man who watched his wife prepare a ham for Sunday dinner. As she got it ready to go into the oven, he was struck by the fact that she cut about three inches off each end of it.

"Why did you do that?" The man asked. "Don't you know that's a waste of good ham?" "That's just what you do," she replied. "That's the way my Mom taught me to prepare a ham for baking."

"But why?" the husband asked. "I'm not sure," the woman said "But I'll call Mom and ask."

Her Mom said, "I'm not sure why we do that. I learned it from your Grandma. Call her, and let her explain why."

Grandma explained, "My baking pan is a little small, and that's the only way I can fit a ham into it."

Can you imagine that, people doing things a certain way for generations without knowing why or bothering to ask why?

I wonder if the way we do church would change if we were to examine the things we do and ask the "why" question. "Why do it that way?" "Is there a better way to do it?"

When COVID-19 became dangerously widespread in the local area, we began to ask, "is there a safer way to do church?" At our church, for the past 150 years, we had been gathering in the sanctuary, singing praises and listening to sermons. But we realized continuing to crowd into the sanctuary could put our most vulnerable church members at risk. We asked ourselves what we could do to protect them without shutting down altogether. The answer we came up with was drive-in church.

We bought an FM transmitter that allowed us to broadcast a signal that covered the church grounds. That allowed our folks to drive in, point their front bumpers toward the church, turn their radio to a specified frequency, and see and hear everything from a pulpit that we had set up on the porch.

Roger Alford

As you might have suspected, attendance went up immediately. We saw people on the first Sunday who we hadn't seen since the pandemic started. We also saw many first-time visitors who appreciated an approach to church that kept them protected from COVID-19.

What we had done, in a sense, was to go back in time to pioneer days, when folks didn't worship inside church buildings, when there were no church buildings, nor padded pews, nor theater-style seating. It was a time when families drove in on wagons, wrapped themselves in warm blankets in cool weather, and heard the Gospel proclaimed.

Turns out that by doing drive-in services, we were worshipping in much the same way our forefathers did. We had run smack into Jeremiah 6:16, which admonishes us to "ask for the old paths, where is the good way, and walk therein, and ye shall find rest for your souls."

serious repair. Tussey mentioned that during Monday’s heavy rains, staff had over 20 buckets set up around the facility to capture water leaking from the roof.

“We’ve been putting band-aids on this for several years,” Tussey said of the facility’s problems. “This is a critical need for the detention center.” The court voted unanimously to approve the project.

In his first meeting as First District magistrate, Paul Reynolds asked if the county had been thorough in comparing the various cost proposals offered by the vendor. Reynolds raised the question because only one firm, Perfection Group, had submitted the bid for the entire project. Judge Taylor assured Reynolds various facets of the project had been bid out in the past, and that the county was getting a good deal.

“At the end of it, we’ve actually saved money. Over 20 years, you’re going to get a significant amount of savings,” Taylor said, adding later: “This is good for the Madison County taxpayers. It’s really a good way to spend tax dollars.”

In other business, the court approved an application for the Assistance to Firefighters Grant from the Department of Homeland Security for fiscal year 2021. Some $319 million in funds are available for fire department across the country, and the county intends to apply for a grant to cover the costs of cleaning and sanitizing equipment.

Meanwhile, the court unanimously approved a resolution to continue the Rocket Docket Project. Madison County Attorney Jennie Haymond asked for $50,000 to continue rocket docket programming, which limits the time some inmates have to spend in the detention center, thereby reducing costs to the county. The average Rocket Docket inmate spends 19 days in jail awaiting processing, compared to the average 180 days of inmates not in the program. Last year, the project saved the county nearly $1 million in incarceration costs, Haymond said.

Madison County Coroner Jimmy Cornelison gave a brief report, noting that there were 59 drug overdoses in 2020, compared to 52 during the previous year. Cornelison said there have already been eight overdoses in 2021, with three pending further test results.

Cornelison noted he sees an uptick in overdoses when government assistance checks are released.

“Where I see the difference is anytime we have a stimulus, it goes up,” Cornelison said. “That meant that people were getting a check, and then another check, and I see our numbers go up.”

In other business, Dustin Heiser of the Madison County Emergency Agency addressed the court, gaining approval for a $2.1 million contract to ASC Mass Notification Solutions to replace the outdoor warning system in Madison County. Under the contract, the county will go from having 90 notification sirens to 70, since fewer will be needed when the demilitarization project is completed at the Bluegrass Army Depot.

Additionally, Heiser noted he is working with the National Weather Service in order to make severe weather alerts more targeted in Madison County.

For example, if severe weather is projected for only Richmond and not other areas of the county, only alarms in Richmond would sound.

The next meeting of the Fiscal Court will be Feb. 9.

of the biggest hurdles for the Pirates (1-3). Through the early part of the year, the Pirates have played four of the eight games scheduled because of Covid-19 issues with other schools.

“It’s been hard on the kids,” he said. “But like I said before the season began, our number one goal is to play as many games as possible.”

Valentine, who was hired shortly before the season, joked, saying his first year will be one for the ages.

“What a great way to start a coaching career,” he quipped. “I just have to remember there are many more (years of coaching) to come.”

Before the cancellations, the Lady Pirates defeated Model behind a 19-point effort from Alexis Newman. Newman also secured five rebounds. Newman knocked down five 3-pointers in the victory. Chesney Lovins pulled down 18 rebounds while adding seven points in the win.

The Pirates fell 78-63 to Frankfort on Jan. 23. In the game, Jaylen Dorsey scored his 1,000th career points in a 13-point effort. Jayden Smith led the Pirates with 20 points and 11 rebounds, while Trenton Wilson finished with 19 points.

Eagles rip Harrison, drop pair

It was feast or famine for the Madison Southern Eagles (3-5) last week as the team played road games at Somerset (71-47 loss) and Harrison County (78-47 win) and a home game versus North Laurel (82-58 loss).

The Eagles struggled mightily against Somerset, in a game that Coach Austin Newton said was an attention-getter.

“Somerset beat us soundly, and it was a huge wake-up call for us,” Newton said.

Trent DeVries led Southern with 15 points, while Zach Hudson recorded a double-double (10 points, 10 rebounds) in the loss. Jay Rose added seven points.

Southern bounced back the next day by hammering Harrison County. DeVries and Brett Erslan each scored 17 in the win. Jayden Adams added 16, while Rose recorded a double-double (11 points and 10 rebounds). Hudson added eight points in the win.

On Tuesday, Southern tangled with one of the top teams in the state in undefeated North Laurel. Hudson lead the Eagles with 15 points and nine rebounds. Rose added 12 points, while DeVries finished with 10.

Overall, Newton said the team has experienced some early season bumps but feels the Eagles are on the cusp of putting it together.

“We are trending in the right direction, even though our record would not indicate that,” he said.

Lady Eagles stumble against Mercer

Mercer County snapped the Madison Southern Lady Eagles’ 4-game win streak with a 75-40 win.

Samantha Cornelison led Southern with a 17-point effort. Lacie Parks added seven points, while Reece Estep finished with five points and five rebounds.

Through eight games, Cornelison is averaging 18.1 points a game. She sits just 213 points shy of the school record of 2,133.

Barring Covid-19 cancellations, Southern has 17 regular-season games remaining, plus at least one 44th District Tournament game.

Cornelison needs to average 12.5 points a game to eclipse the record.

On top of the loss, The Lady Eagles (6-2) have dealt with the distractions of having games canceled due to Covid-19.

Coach Josh Curtis said the team has remained healthy, and knows this season will be filled with potential change to the schedule, often on a moment’s notice.

“They know what to expect,” he said. “I know it has to take a toll on the girls when they wake up and don’t know if they will be playing or not that night. We have a veteran group that has shown great maturity and has taken the mindset of taking it day-by-day, and being appreciative of every opportunity we have to play this season.”

Clarke closer to making his return to court

By Keith Taylor
Citizen Publisher

Terrence Clarke was a starter in six of Kentucky's first seven games but hasn't played since a 62-59 loss to Louisville on Dec. 26.

The freshman guard has been hampered by an ankle injury and likely won't be back in the lineup until at least the first week of February.

"I don't believe he'll play this week," Kentucky coach John Calipari said after an 82-69 win over LSU last Saturday night. "I don't believe so. But he is now being able to run around. He hasn't been in practice. He's been at practice but hasn't practiced. Hopefully he will be an addition that will help us."

What role will Clarke fill when he returns? Calipari has already addressed that question the freshman guard.

"What I've said to him, 'What can you add to this team?' Don't tell me what you want to do. Look at us. Where do we have deficiencies and where can you help us?" he said. "What do you add to this team? He's been great."

When Clarke does return, Calipari jokingly plans to petition the NCAA for more time on the clock.

"We're going to petition the NCAA to add 20 more minutes to the game so we have time for everybody," he said. "The typical 200, we're going to see if we can petition for 220."

What are the odds of that happening?

"I got better luck asking my wife for 20 than them giving us 20," the Kentucky coach said. "When I ask her for 20, she says, 'You're 20 dollarating me to death. I said, 'You're kidding me, right? I would say no. That means it's going to put in the best guys. Cream rises to the top. I've always said it. You want guys to play comfortable.'"

Tough times

Freshman guard Devin Askew has scored just 10 points in the past four games and was scoreless in the win over LSU last weekend that ended the team's three-game losing streak.

Askew had scored double figures in three of Kentucky's first four SEC games, including 12 in a home loss to Alabama on Jan. 12. Although Askew is in a slump, freshman classmate BJ Boston isn't worried.

"Everything will fall into place," Boston said. "I feel like everyone needs those encouraging words when they're going through tough times."

Size matters

Kentucky's size and length at all positions has been a strength this season and LSU coach Will Wade said it bothered his squad in a loss to the Wildcats last weekend.

"I thought their length bothered us a little bit. It took us some time to adjust to their length," he said. "We didn't finish some things around the rim. They were closing out pretty quick on a couple guys, so it took us a little bit of time to get in rhythm and play against their length."

Kentucky out rebounded the Tigers 46-31 and freshman Lance Ware said rebounding has been a point of emphasis for the Wildcats.

"It's important for us to dominate the backboards for us to be in games and for us to win games," Ware said. "We kind of stepped away from it the past few games and that's partly my fault, but we are just trying to get back to dominating the glass."

Fun fact

The Wildcats are 5-0 when they score 76 points or more and 0-10 when scoring 65 or less.

Stepping up

Boston giving Cats a much-needed boost

BJ Boston is doing all he can to get back on track and appears to be on his way back.

The Kentucky freshman guard has been spending extra time in the gym after coming off the bench for the first time in his career earlier this week in a 63-62 loss at Georgia. He was working out past midnight last Friday with teammate Cam'Ron Fletcher.

"Basketball is really all that's on my mind, so it's really the only thing that helps me escape reality," Boston said Friday. "So, I just went in there at midnight (Friday). I left around 2:30 a.m. just putting up shots ... I've been struggling, but I've just been staying positive and staying in the gym working my tail off and just keeping up good spirits knowing that I've been having a rough start. But everything is going to change."

In the past two games, Boston has scored 18 points each and helped the Wildcats snap a three-game losing streak in last weekend's 82-69 win over LSU. In the loss to the Bulldogs, Boston came off the bench and led all scorers with 18 points.

Although it was the first time in his college career Boston didn't start, the freshman guard said it proved to be a learning experience 13 games into his collegiate career. He returned to the starting lineup against the Tigers last weekend.

"I feel like I could see the game before it happens just watching my team go out there and start the game and just cheering them on and bringing the energy when I got on the court," he said.

"But it really didn't affect me coming off the bench or starting. I still bring the same energy and same confidence with me."

Boston leads the Wildcats in scoring with 12 points per game but has struggled at times. He admitted it wasn't the kind of start he envisioned to open his collegiate career.

"This season has been a rough season, a rough start," he said. "(It's) not really what we wanted, but it's the cards we we've been dealt. We're working hard every day. Cal is on us every day just trying to teach us to be better and a better group of men and a better team. We've just got come together and fight every game now."

Boston said he's making the adjustments and getting used to the faster pace of the college game, especially when it comes to dribbling.

"(I'm) just taking extra dribbles when I don't have to," he said. "(I'm working on) just getting downhill and finishing strong. Don't flip the ball. Just try to dunk it every time I go in there and just go in there and attack the rim hard."

Boston scored 26 points in the first two games and matched that feat last week in two games. He added that he doesn't pay attention to his statistics and is more concerned about his overall confidence on the offensive end of the court.

"I don't really pay attention to the numbers," he said. "I just have a lot of confidence in myself that I know the next shot I shoot is going to go in."

And for good luck?

"The dollar bill stays in my sock every game," he said.
