Ordinance a ‘game-changer’ in telecommunications field

By Keith Taylor
Citizen Publisher

Competition is good and an ordinance approved by the Berea City Council Tuesday night will give city residents and businesses a choice when it comes to choosing a telecommunications provider in the future. The council voted unanimously to adopt the ordinance, which will provide a free market to telecommunications providers within the city. Those providers also will have to abide by franchise license guidelines and fees before it can provide services within the city. Future franchises also will have to abide by pole guidelines listed in a separate agreement.

“This ordinance will create a franchise that not only cable providers, but also any communications providers who come to the city of Berea in the future,” said Linda Ain, an expert in drafting and preparing telecommunication documents. “This will be an ordinance that would be one stop shopping for Berea. So any new entrants would have to comply with these requirements. What it does, it puts everyone on equal playing field. Anyone who provides any type of communication services, including cable services, will be required to obtain communication services franchise and receive comments from charter on this document.”

Ain said the rules adopted by the council are modeled after a similar ordinance in Louisville. Ain estimated there are currently between 30-50 providers in the Louisville market.

“They have dozens of providers in their right of way,” she said.

‘New Chapter’

Berea PD adds innovative body cams, two new Teslas to its fleet

By Keith Taylor
Citizen Publisher

The Berea Police Department entered a new era on Monday when Police Chief Eric Scott unveiled new body cameras and the addition of two new vehicles to its fleet.

The City of Berea and Scott displayed two 2021 Model 3 Long Range Teslas the police force will use that is estimated will save the department at least $6,000 per vehicle in maintenance and fuel costs. Once out of fleet, Scott said the vehicles will be purchased by Enterprise at market value, providing a big return on the initial investment.

Completely electric-based, Scott said the new fleet will provide safety and reliability on the road.

“They are on one of the safest vehicles on the road,” he said.

The Berea Police Chief also introduced “Body Worn” cameras that will be worn by officers while on duty. They are attached to the officer’s uniform and that also can be picked up by cellphone and Bluetooth technology, which provides much faster transmission under duress.

The cameras provide a reliable safety net for officers and automatically activate when an officer pulls a weapon, chases a suspect, activates their lights, arrives at the scene of a call or opens a door.

Mayor Bruce Fraley praised Scott for taking the initiative to upgrade the body cameras and vehicle fleet.

“We have to be on the leading edge of technology,” Fraley said. “We have to be forward thinking and we have to be aiming for the future.”

“As I tell my team. Trust the process as we enter this new chapter of police vehicles, and watch BPD as we continue our push to have the safest city and most capable officers this side of the Mississippi.”

Berea Police Chief Eric Scott

Ex-UK player indicted on wire fraud charges

LEXINGTON (KT) – A former University of Kentucky basketball player has been indicted on federal charges for failing to report income while he was playing overseas.

A federal grand jury in Lexington returned an 11-count indictment against Randolph Morris, 35, alleging wire fraud and with making false statements on his federal tax returns, while playing in the Chinese Basketball Association between 2010 and 2017.

According to the U.S. Attorney's office for the Eastern District of Kentucky, Morris earned $13 million during that time.

The wire fraud counts allege that Morris submitted false income information to the Kentucky Department of Revenue, for the 2015, 2016 and 2017 tax years, while he was playing for the Beijing Ducks. The alleged failure to report any of his earnings from his Chinese team during those years, deprived the state of Kentucky of more than $400,000 in tax revenue, according to the indictment.

The remaining eight counts allege that he failed to report his earnings from the Beijing Ducks on his federal 1040 and 1040A forms, for the years 2010 through 2017.

Morris faces up to 20 years in prison and a fine of $250,000 on each of the three wire fraud counts. For the counts of making false statements on tax returns, he faces a maximum prison sentence of three years.

Past future leader Cahill gives back

Rotary Club

The Rotary Foundation and clubs invest in future leaders by funding scholarships for both undergraduate and graduate studies. Dr. Richard Cahill, Director of the Center for International Education at Berea College, was the fortunate recipient of one such scholarship in the early 2000s.

This allowed him to spend time in Cairo to study Arabic. While there he was active with the Rotaract Club in Cairo and later a full Rotarian himself as well as a Paul Harris Fellow.

His background with the years he lived in Cairo found him well prepared for the position he now holds with Berea College as a professor who works with international students. During the over 130 years Berea College has supported the philosophy of education for "all peoples of the earth," 156 different countries have been represented. International Education at Berea College is able to do this through generous endowments rather than fees. This is particularly impressive since the majority of the students come from distressed countries with low economic conditions. Choosing the students for the program is a highly selective process which produces candidates who have a high drive and "grit" for academic success and who have learned to maximize their resources. Out of 3000 applicants only 30 are chosen.

The program has four major missions: offering educational opportunities abroad, providing services for the international students, sponsoring co-curricular programs with the international community, and assisting with curricular and faculty development opportunities. Currently, in spite of the pandemic restraints, there are 70 countries represented with all students being fully funded. The KIIS (Kentucky Institute for International Studies) program has survived for 45 years.

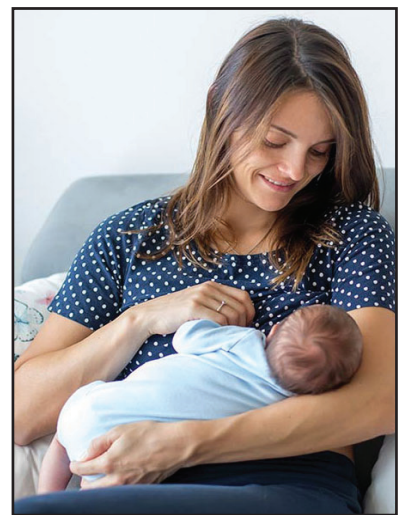

The next speaker for Rotary is Blue Grass Energy, hosted by member Doug Fritz.

The ordinance will give various franchise providers such as Metronet, an opportunity to provide services within the city. Metronet, which already has already forming a network base in Richmond and Lexington, is already making plans to provide services in the City of Berea. The company provides services in more than 100 communities in nine states.

"Bringing in Metronet (in the future) gives city residents another option," Berea Mayor Bruce Frally said. "Competition is good for everybody."

Kathy Scheller, director of Government Affairs for Metronet, gave council members an insight of what the company offers to businesses and consumers.

"This is going to be a game changer, a game changer for those that work from home, but a game changer for every business, every student, every family that lives in the city," she said.

Once the company starts building its infrastructure within the city, Scheller said a project manager will be overseeing the project to ensure it follows safety and installation protocols.

"For the city, I'm so excited because it is such a lovely city in that I look forward to working with the city on communicating to residents in coming months," she said.

City cleanup

Berea City Administrator David Gregory provided an update on repairing potholes within the city following the recent ice and winter storm. The city also is cleaning storm drains that overflowed during flooding last weekend.

He reminded city residents that some streets in Berea, such as Chestnut Street, are maintained by the state and not the city.

"The (state has) federal funding that provides that maintenance," he said. "Hopefully they will begin that process (of repairing potholes) very soon. We don't have a timeline of that, but we know that they'll drive it every day. We all experience a lot of these potholes, especially on Chestnut Street. We're hopeful very soon that they will begin that process."

Flooding wasn't as severe in Madison County as opposed to neighboring counties such as Rockcastle and Estill County.

"Most of the major flooding that's left is along the Kentucky River," Fraley said. "We need to keep those folks in our thoughts and prayers as they are dealing with some pretty difficult times."

Bypass update

Gregory said the Allen Company received the contract to complete construction of the Berea Bypass and a pre-construction meeting with members of District 7 of the Kentucky Transportation Cabinet was scheduled for Wednesday.

"They have already begun staging some of their equipment," Gregory said. "I'm hopeful that I can provide you all with a more updated timeline, because my understanding is this project is scheduled to be done at 360 days is the timeline. But as we know, weather and just things can prolong that."

"Let's hope we can get that done in a year. My understanding from this type of project where there's not many intersections, you're not coming to town, it's just the way they get started. They're moving and shouldn't take long. There is a bridge area, but all in all, it's kind of in farmland and it shouldn't be that bad."

Other business:

- Rick Thomas was re-appointed for a second term to the Berea Tourism Commission and Heather Resor and Greg Lakes to the Berea Industrial Authority.

- The council heard first reading of an amended budget and a zone change at 765 Scaffold Cane Road from R-2 (two-family residential) to R-3 (multi-family residential).

- Berea Fire Chief Shawn Sandlin announced the hiring of Shelby Bryant as Berea's first female firefighter.

Crooksville Road (KY 499) and Jacks Creek Road (KY 1156) in Madison County were partially closed because of high water.

During his COVID-19 briefing on Tuesday, Gov. Beshear brought in officials to talk about dealing with the ongoing situation statewide.

"What we have seen is some of the worst rain in western Kentucky in parts of Calloway County, to parts of cities underwater in eastern Kentucky. So many of our people are struggling right now," said Gov. Beshear. "We have the National Guard out in force working with numerous local officials who are providing great leadership."

Kentucky Division of Emergency Management Director Michael Dossett said 49 cities and counties have declared states of emergency.

"We have reached out to the Federal Emergency Management Agency and asked FEMA Region 4 to send their lead investigator to the state of Kentucky to look at the homes that were damaged and those that have been inundated," Dossett said.

"This is truly a record-breaking event. The water is still high, and this is not over."

The governor announced several state agencies, including the Kentucky National Guard, are responding to a levee breach in Jackson, Kentucky, providing emergency transport for around 1,000 Kentuckians to high ground using high-axle vehicles.

Local emergency management personnel issued evacuation orders for residents in the affected areas, Lakeside Estates and Brewers Trailer Court, out of an abundance of caution, after officials noticed reports of water running through a roughly 25 foot long "pop-out" slip beneath the embankment.

Recent heavy rains have elevated the North Fork of the Kentucky River, creating pressure that is pushing water through the dam that sits below Kentucky-15 in Jackson, and connects to Panbowl Lake.

The lake was impounded in the early 1960s when the current alignment of KY 15 was built.

The Energy and Environment Cabinet has two inspectors and a dam safety supervisor on site. Sandbags will be placed along the areas that have eroded in an attempt to stop the flow of water under the highway.

"Transportation officials and representatives from partner agencies have been on the scene monitoring the situation to ensure every appropriate action is taken to keep Kentuckians safe," said Chief District Engineer Corbett Caudill.

Transportation Cabinet geotechnical and engineering experts are en route from Frankfort to survey conditions and advise on next steps.

"The corrective action that is being taken as we speak is to place sand bags in the area that has been erode eroded," said Transportation Cabinet Secretary Jim Gray. More than 70 Kentucky National Guard personnel are providing flooding response support across eight counties.

Taylor's Thoughts

Senior Day alive amid pandemic

I never had a chance to hear Albert B. “Happy” Chandler perform “My Old Kentucky Home” in person on “Senior Day” at the University of Kentucky, but did listen to nationally televised broadcasts while growing up in rural Madison County.

Keith Taylor

They were always both a treat and bittersweet.

Watching players such as Melvin Turpin, Sam Bowie and Kenny Walker take their final stand at Rupp Arena nearly always brought a tear to my eyes, not to mention some goose bumps. Knowing they would never play another college game after watching those past greats for four years was similar to watching one of your friends move off to another county, state or country.

The four-year players were just like family.

We all watched them grow from freshman to seniors and many of them went on to enjoy a successful career either in the NBA or the private sector. Watching Chandler put the finishing touches on their careers was something special as the late Kentucky governor, Major League Baseball Commissioner and elder statesman sang the state song with humbleness and sincerity. He had that special touch needed to deliver the perfect Senior Day ceremony.

Even late Marquette coach and NBC sports commentator Al McGuire called it one of the greatest moments in college basketball when he had the opportunity to call Kentucky's last home game of the year. I can still see the players and their parents swaying back and forth as Chandler sang our state song in front of a sellout crowd prior to the national anthem and tip-off.

Those moments are still special and it was just four years ago that former Madison Central graduate Dominique Hawkins and classmate Derek Willis concluded their four-year careers at Kentucky. I also can remember following Darius Miller's four-year collegiate career with the Wildcats after a stellar career at Mason County High School.

The ongoing pandemic we have been waver-ing through during the past year has presented its challenges and, as fate would have it, this year's senior sendoff at Rupp Arena last Saturday featured a unique twist. Because of a postponed game against South Carolina earlier this year, the game was rescheduled last week and will be played at noon Saturday, giving the Wildcats one last home game before competing in the Southeastern Conference Tournament.

This Wildcats honored graduate transfer Davion Mintz, senior Olivier Sarr and walk-on Riley Welch prior to a 71-67 loss to Florida. As usual, all three players broke through the hoop and were greeted by Kentucky coach John Calipari. Marlena Vanhooose knocked it out of the park in her rendition of “My Old Kentucky Home.”

Even though ‘By and By hard times came knocking at the door’ in the form of a global health crisis and a rare losing season, Senior Day was still special. The moment was especially special for Welch who made his first collegiate start, a moment he will never forget.

Moments like those keep the spirit of Senior Day alive at Kentucky.

Long-term health still a top priority

By Viren Bavishi

It's been nearly a year since the COVID-19 pandemic was declared and, while we have hope with the availability of vaccinations, we know things will not be back to normal for a while. Even so, it is still important to keep up with wellness checks and annual screenings to identify any possible health issues before they become too serious. Wellness exams are considered preventive care and are often provided as a low-cost, or no-cost, service for insurance recipients, including Medicare and many commercial plans.

This pandemic has shown us all just how important it is to make sure we are doing all that we can to stay healthy. That begins with establishing a relationship with a primary care physician. A primary care provider can help you stay on top of your overall health, especially during times like the current pandemic. Annual screenings are important to help you keep your overall health on track and detect any issues before they develop into a bigger problem. We've been using telehealth services to serve some patients virtually and limit the number of people in our waiting rooms.

But there are some services that call for an in-person visit to your health care provider, such as your annual flu shot, blood tests and other screenings, such as high blood pressure or high cholesterol.

Tens of millions of adults in the U.S. have high blood pressure, which can put you at risk of heart disease and stroke, according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. In addition, 93 million U.S. adults have high cholesterol levels, which also raises the risk for heart disease and stroke. Getting tested for these conditions annually is very important in helping ensure you are staying safe and healthy.

We recognize there may be some hesitancy due to fears of exposure to the coronavirus and we have taken steps to alleviate concerns. Early on in the pandemic, we established more stringent protocols to keep our staff and patients safe, and we continue to operate under those safety standards. Health care facilities continue to take measures to help protect patients from COVID-19, including screening health care workers daily and requiring temperature checks, and ensuring that patients are social distancing while visiting the facilities.

Staying on top of your annual wellness checks can also save money long-term.

The cost of an emergency surgery or hospital visit is much higher than an annual wellness exam, so delaying these important appointments is putting you at higher risk for a larger expense down the road.

Don't let this current pandemic impact your long-term health. While we encourage you to continue to take precautions recommended by the CDC, we also want to make sure that you are getting the help you need for other health conditions, and as quickly as possible. Call your primary care physician today to schedule a wellness check.

Here’s How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

‘Kirksville Days’ in need of a spark

One of the most prominent buildings within our community is the old school turned community center. Recently, a new neighbor inquired about the building, wondering what it looked like on the inside, when it was last used as a school and its current purpose.

The old school has been utilized as a community center since the new Kirksville School was built on Highway 52. I attended the old Kirksville Elementary for a few years before the new building and eventual transfer of students.

Since 1912, the school served as home to many other grade levels above elementary. It has hardwood floors throughout the building in an authentic classic design, coat closets outside of each classroom, a large library on the second floor, and an extensive cafeteria in the basement.

In its earlier years, the building had a different place for certain central portions of the school but would require the careful guidance of someone who had seen it previously to get to those areas within the building.

When the idea was first presented to Kirksville area neighbors about the building’s changeover to a community center, many had ideas and suggestions for its use.

Carrie Grant

Initially, it served as a host to some “sock-hop” style dances, live music, and of course, the beloved Halloween Carnival. It has also served as a venue for craft shows in the spring and fall and has been rented for various parties.

The building and parking lot also serve as the starting point for the “Kirksville Day” parade. Since its reinvention, the board members have added a playground and track in the property’s back.

Formerly, the playground was on the side of the building near the Kirksville

Volunteer Fire Department.

In the past few years, a discussion has been happening between some Kirksville residents about ways to improve the community center’s use and bring Kirksville Day back to its former glory.

In bygone days, Kirksville Days was a much larger event than it seems to be now. Many of us would enjoy seeing it go back to its peak.

My dad, Jeff Grant, put the parade lineup together for many years.

There was so much to see during the day! Bybee Pottery came out to throw pottery with the year and “Kirksville Days” engraved in the bottom, the Masonic Lodge held a country ham breakfast, the pie auction that my Uncle Donald Grant typically served as auctioneer for, churches hosted various events, the Christian church opened its doors and had someone playing the pipe organ, the Carpenters always served tenderloin sandwiches, and the school was open for tours and walk-throughs.

It truly was an all-day affair. As time has passed, it has dwindled to a parade and some yard sales, a far cry from its potential as a day of celebration for the community.

Berea Citizen Archives: March 6, 1997

The congregation of First Christian Church was set to have their annual revival during the week of March 16 – 18, 1997. Reverend Lester D. Palmer was chosen to be the evangelist for this event. Reverend Palmer was serving as the interim president of the Division of Higher Education of the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) and was president of the Denomination’s Pension fund until his retirement. He had also been the presenter for two Disciple Men’s Retreats in Kentucky during the fall of 1996. Palmer received his seminary education from the Lexington Theological Seminary and his Doctor of Divinity Degrees from Bethany College and Christian Theological Seminary. He was awarded the Doctor of Humane Letters in 1996 from Eureka College in Eureka College. The New Coon Creek Girls provided special music on Sunday evening of the event and Midway College’s “Midway Singers” provided special music on Tuesday of the event. The revival was free and open to the public.

A rainy, Sunday evening became a thing of beauty as the 85 member Richmond Choral Society performed their winter concert at Berea Baptist Church. Selections performed by the choir included “Goin’ Up to Glory” with Joyce Farris as soloist, “The Gift to Be Simple,” “Coronation Mass K. 317,” “Heartland,” “Set Me As a Seal,” and Mephistopiles.” Dr. David Cooper served as accompanist for several of the selections. Dr. Cooper has appeared upon several occasions as the accompanist for the Lexington Community Singers as well. Dr. Jefferson G. Johnson, the choral director for the Richmond Choral Society was in his 4th year with the ensemble. He was also director of the University of Kentucky chorus.

Byzantine crosses reflecting a ritual connection to Orthodox religion emerged one by one fro Bob Montgomery’s Wolf Gap Studio. The Middle Eastern, European and Russian influences in these large symbols spoke of ancient priests and ornate churches far removed from modern religions art, yet all of these pieces were born from forged iron as a result of Montgomery’s hands. From the same master cam a dragon-and-dame duo incorporating a female nude with one of Montgomery’s claw-bared dragons to represent the Biblical Adam and Eve. Arms outstretched toward a golden apple contained in the monster’s claw, the Eve figure communicates the work title, “Hey Adam, have you seen my clothes?” Montgomery did not begin his career in iron artistry. His experience came with 19 years of blacksmithing and 15 years as a farrier. His interest in iron led to a study of welding in Seattle and horse-shoeing in Mt. Eden, Kentucky, which eventually landed him, work on a Bluegrass horse farm as a farrier. Montgomery stated that he was raised with horses on a farm and decided to take his skills to both a functional and sculptural level. From this, he established his studio business, Wolf Gap Mountain Forge, just outside of Berea. His skills earned him membership into the Kentucky Guild of Artists and Craftsmen, as well as the Artist Blacksmith Association of North America.

Montgomery’s work caught the eye of Pam Corley of the Upstairs Gallery in Berea. As a result, his work was showcased at her gallery under the title “Wrought Irony.” 15 plus pieces were included in the exhibit and included functional items such as candlesticks and birdbaths to the purely sculptural such as religious pieces and a 180-leaf iron wreath shining on the gallery wall. Montgomery was at that time considered one of the few “veterans” in what was a whole new field of art known as “artist/Blacksmithing.”

The intersection of KY 1016 and Glades Road had recently been dropped as a “hazardous-elimination” intersection. As a result Berea City Council and Mayor Clifford Kerby were trying to find a solution to the problem to ease congestion at this intersection. Council members proposed several options, including connecting Kenway to Glades Road to open up Dixie Park as way to alleviate the traffic issues at the intersection. According to councilman Chester Powell, the state would consider that option too expensive. Council member Steve Connelly suggested building a bridge over a creek to link Kenway to Glades Road to permit extra access but he received little support for his idea. Connelly went on to state that just because there was no longer “hazardous intersection” funding, that was no reason to drop the idea of correcting a dangerous situation. Councilman Randy Stone was concerned that the pursuit of state funding could potentially slow the process of getting the city’s by-pass built but Connelly stressed that the city’s most immediate need(s) had to be addressed first. No decision was made on the situation at that meeting.

Around 1 a.m. on Saturday, March 2nd, Berea Police Chief Ray Brandenburg was called into work by communications staff. Winds moving in excess of 50 mph slammed the entire state and dropped 2 confirmed tornadoes in Powell County. When Brandenburg arrived at City Hall, he had been told that a tornado had been sighted in Garrard County and was headed toward Berea. Spotters were dispatched to the west end of the city to look for funnel clouds. In the meantime, Madison County Emergency Operations set off sirens to alert citizens to the pending severe thunderstorm. A tornado was never confirmed according to Brandenburg. However, one would have never known that based on the damage around town. A sign at Madison County Chrysler in Berea fell on a car on the sales lot. Streets and yards were waterlogged causing water damage to some homes. Apple Grove received minor flooding as a result of the narrowness of the Walnut Meadow Branch channel, which had been an ongoing problem. More than six inches of ran fell between Saturday night and Monday. The most damage was done to trees which were blown down as a result of the high winds. An extremely large tree at Berea College was toppled and damaged part of a sidewalk in front of Lincoln Hall. A house on Jefferson Street had an uprooted tree fall onto the left side and had not been removed as of Monday evening.

Yesterday’s treasured memories

With all the ice, there are lots of branches to pick up. It made me think of picking up branches at my great grandparent’s house when I was a kid. We called them Ma and Pa (Richard & Nannie Burnell). Their house was surrounded by big trees. I guess it was a little bit of a help for them.

My sisters and I would sometimes entertain them and our Uncle Raleigh by singing and playing with their canes on their front porch. We fortunate to have several relatives in walking distance that we could visit anytime.

Pa had several sheds that were either leaning or propped up. “Good enough is good enough” was his outlook in his older years. We always wanted a playhouse or treehouse in their backyard, but Pa was afraid we would get hurt.

One time someone was killing chickens to cook at their house. If you were raised in the country, you know what it is like when the chickens are beheaded. It seemed like those chickens could see us. They flopped around right behind us. The smell of chicken feathers in hot water will also stick with you.

Ma and Pa married when he was 18 and she was 16 years old in 1915. They had 60-plus years together and two sons. They met at Silver Creek church. Pa thought that she was the most beautiful woman he had ever seen in his whole life. He liked to do things for her.

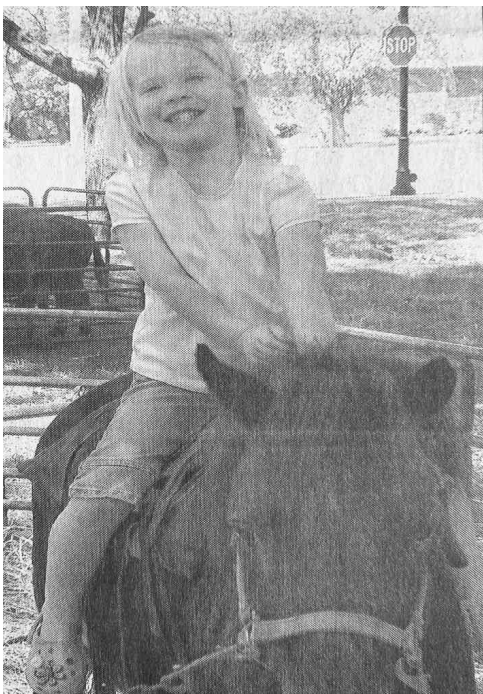

After my grandpa Charles passed in July 1977, Ma passed away in November of 1977. Pa had been battling some dementia issues. When Ma was gone, his mind was, too. His body was strong, though, and he lived many more years in long-term care. Otis Burnell was surviving son.

Saying goodbye to the coon hunting preacher

The story is told about a man who had an incredibly smart old hound. That dog would tree a coon just the size the man wanted. All he had to do was show the hound a stretcher board and the dog would go tree a coon to fit it.

"It worked well," the man said, "until the day my wife set the ironing board out on the porch. I haven't seen my dog since." I share that old story in honor of Larry Adkins, the coon hunting preacher. Larry graduated to Heaven in February after a long battle with cancer.

For Larry, hounds were both an enjoyable pastime and valuable tools that allowed him to share the Gospel with people out beneath the stars at night. He loved to be on the ridgetops bragging on the Lord to his hunting buddies while their dogs were roaming the countryside looking for coons.

You realize the Bible encourages us to use whatever tools we have at our disposal to accomplish the Lord's work. Samson used the jawbone of a donkey. Gideon used some clay jars and torches. And Larry used coonhounds.

You may recall that the Apostle Paul once used a false idol as an object lesson to present the Gospel to a group of confused worshippers on Mars Hill. Paul told them, "As I passed by and beheld your devotions, I found an altar with the inscription, 'To The Unknown God.' Whom therefore ye ignorantly worship, him declare I unto you" (Acts 17:22-23).

If the Apostle Paul could use an idol to launch a Gospel presentation, certainly Larry could use his hounds for the same purpose.

One of the kindest men you could ever meet, Larry served the same church for more than 30 years. It takes quite a man to accomplish that feat, because, typically, pastors manage to stay about three years on average in any particular church. Larry managed it because he truly was a Christian gentleman.

Theologian B.B. Warfield once said a pastor needs two qualifications: He must know the scriptures and he must be godly. Warfield said those are the two "legs" a pastor stands on. In that case, I can't think of a pastor with stronger "legs" than Larry's.

As much as Larry enjoyed following hounds, his true passion was serving the Lord. He loved teaching young Christians, and he was always ready to show non-believers the way of salvation.

We'll never find another preacher to fill Larry's shoes. If we tried, we'd be searching for a long, long, long time and still come up empty, like the hound searching for a coon big enough to fit the ironing board.

Sports and fandom bring us together

In the column last month, in which I introduced myself to you as the new Madison County Public Library Director, I mentioned that I was born and raised right here in Madison County. I was also born and raised into a fanatical Kentucky basketball culture. Some of my earliest memories are of gathering with my family in my grandparents' den and watching Kentucky basketball games. I was four-years-old and maybe Kenny Walker's biggest fan.

I remember exactly what I was doing when Christian Laettner hit "the shot." I was keeping a score sheet for myself while watching the game with my parents and baby brother, and when Laettner hit that turnaround jumper I cried real tears. This may seem like odd behavior, but I would venture to say I was not the only person in Kentucky crying that night.

While I am a Kentucky fan - UK is my alma mater, too, for both of my degrees - I am also an avid supporter of all Kentucky teams. For me, the first week of March is the beginning of the most exciting time of the year - the college basketball postseason.

There really is nothing like it: the anticipation of Selection Sunday, filling out a tournament bracket, defending your Final Four picks, watching as a Cinderella team knocks off a blue blood with a last second shot (as long as that blue blood is not your team).

The best thing about March, though, is the camaraderie of watching these games with fellow fans - people you may or may not know, but with whom you share a common passion. Sports and fandom bring us together. A few years ago, on a whim, I went to the Southeastern Conference Tournament championship game in Saint Louis. In that huge arena, I met fellow fans from all regions of the state, and some from other states. For a few hours, these people were my best friends - we high-fived, hugged, stressed, and celebrated together. That connection is one of my favorite things about being a fan. And my goodness, I am certainly missing this now!

Missing human connection is a serious side effect of this now year-long pandemic. College basketball is far from the only event limited by safety protocols — we have been unable to gather or meet with one another in person for quite some time now.

While the Madison County

Public Library reopened in June, we had to cancel in-person programs and greatly limit the use of our meeting spaces.

Before the pandemic, programs and community meeting spaces were two of our most utilized services; people want to connect, and we want to provide opportunities for those connections.

As COVID-19 cases continue to decline in Madison County and Kentucky, library staff have been working strategically to plan for this next phase of our new normal.

The first step in this is extending our hours.

Beginning March 15, all library locations will be open from 9 a.m.-8 p.m., Monday through Thursday, and 9 a.m.-6 p.m. Friday and Saturday.

On March 1, our meeting rooms became available to groups of 10 people or less.

Current COVID-19 masking and social distancing protocols remain in place in our meeting rooms.

Contact either library for information on reserving our rooms, or visit our website: www.madisonlibrary.org.

I am hopeful that resuming in-person programs is our next step.

When I was the library's Adult Programming Coordinator I was able to combine my passion for libraries and for basketball by airing the annual University of Kentucky versus the University of North Carolina basketball game in our Berea location theater.

Several times we packed the room with people of all ages who wanted to enjoy watching a game with their fellow Bereans.

While this March may be different, I am confident we can look forward to connecting again very soon.

Fiscal Court

Change affects private functions

By Andy McDonald
For The Citizen

The Madison County Fiscal Court heard the second reading of a land use ordinance regulating the use of agricultural property for commercial businesses.

Under the legislation, commercial businesses seeking to stage weddings or other events in barns or farms would be required to obtain a conditional use permit from the county board of adjustments.

Director of Madison County Planning and Building Codes Director Bert Thomas said in previous meetings that the effort to clarify the ordinance was prompted after a county resident sued a business that was staging weddings in private land. He added, however, that it is still legal for residents to stage weddings or other private events on their own property without having to secure a conditional use permit.

Thomas noted that staging weddings on farms or in barns has become something of a trend lately, which spurred county officials to revise existing laws.

In other news, Madison County Judge Executive Reagan Taylor said the county is doing a brisk business cleaning up storm debris from last month's Shelby Bryant has high expectations as she embarks on her career as the first female firefighter for the Berea Fire Department.

"I have to make sure that I set the bar high and for future female firefighters and set the standard for how we work," she said. "I've got to work really hard to establish a very good platform not just for female firefighters, but for our future firefighters."

The Jackson County native is no stranger to putting out fires and has aspired to become a firefighter since she was a child. Bryant's father, Lonnie Madden, is fire chief for the Sand Gap Volunteer Fire Department.

"With my father being a first responder, I just always wanted to be in that field," she said. "I just started pursuing it after I graduated high school."

Blitz set to tackle challenges

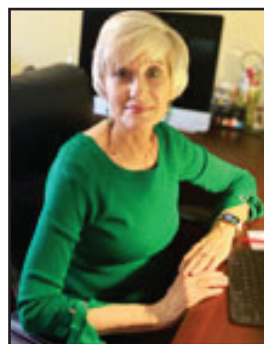

The Berea Victory Garden Blitz is gearing up for its 7th annual event but not without challenges and difficulties.

This year, almost every aspect of this large community project has been touched. The price of cedar boards increased by 33 percent over last year and the search for top-quality soil has taken organizers across the county and beyond.

This year marks the second year for the Blitz in the middle of a pandemic which also poses extra challenges

"We have designed our work to accommodate social distancing, mask wearing and volunteers working in teams of two. Also, two people cannot ride together in a vehicle unless they are from the same "bubble," said Ed Clautice, Team leader for the 2021 Blitz.

The pandemic hit just a month before the Blitz was scheduled to launch last year at the Berea Municipal Utilities parking lot. For safety reasons, the city closed that location for the Blitz and volunteers gathered on the Dinner Bell parking lot to build the first 60 beds. The remaining beds were built on the Berea Urban Farm.

"We learned a lot about how to manage the Blitz over weeks with fewer volunteers instead of during three days with 100 workers. We are organized this year and ready to go," Clautice said.

OBITUARIES

Alexandria Cowan

It is with great sadness that we announce the passing of Alexandria Cowan at age of 56. She passed in her sleep on March 5 in her home with her children by her side.

Ally was born on April 24th, 1964 in Sonora, Mexico, and raised in Lake Havasu City, Arizona. She went on to make a life and raise her 3 children in Berea.

Anytime you saw Ally, she was wearing scrubs, smiling, and was so excited to see you. She didn't know a stranger. Her entire life was built around caring for and helping people. She built lifelong friendships with all of her co-workers, was loved by the entire community, and will always be remembered as "little mama," everyone's favorite CMA.

She loved Spanish soap operas, the Dallas cowboys (well, football in general) the singers Selena & Keith Urban, walks around the neighborhood with her grandson, cooking for any and everybody, and up until this year because "they suck", she was an avid UK fan. She had the goofiest sense of humor, "that's what she said" or "your mom" were her two favorite punch lines. Her laughter and her jokes will live on forever.

Ally was a devoted mother, Nana, and friend. She loved everyone in her life out loud, you could feel it in the way she hugged you or offered you a plate of food. From working long hours to later attending and graduating college with a certificate in medical assisting, there wasn't a thing she wouldn't do for her kids.

As we all know, her grandson, Caden Anthony, left an everlasting impression on her heart. He thought she hung the moon and showed her love in a whole new light. He made her world brighter and gave her the strength she never knew she had.

Though she may have been little, she was fierce. She was still the funniest, sweetest, bravest woman we all knew her as despite her tough battle with cancer. There will never be another like her.

Alexandria is survived by her 3 children, Audrey, Phillip and Gabriela, 2 grandchildren, Caden and Noven, beloved dog Leo, her mother Susana, sister Ana, and brothers Tony, Sergio and Victor. She was a daughter, mama, sister, and a Nana. Some knew her as aunt Ally or mama Ally, she had an extended number of loving nieces and nephews along with an extended number of people who viewed her as a mother/sister figure. If she was in your life, she was family.

As we mourn for her, we take comfort in Heaven having another angel to shine so bright upon us. Gone but never forgotten.

Funeral services for Alexandria will be at 3 p.m. Thursday, March 11, 2021. Visitation will be from 12-3.

Ice storm: Cooperative effort overcomes historic challenge

Imagine scaling a 40 foot ice-covered utility pole to perform highly technical and physically demanding tasks in a dangerous environment knowing that countless people were depending on you.

That's a typical moment for the heroic electric cooperative line technicians who worked double shifts for weeks to restore power after ice storms devastated the electric infrastructure in much of Kentucky. More than 100,000 co-op consumer-members lost power at the height of the storms in mid-February.

Over an eight-day period, a large portion of the Commonwealth sustained a relentless assault of ice and snow with back-to-back-to-back winter storms. Two rounds of crippling ice were followed by heavy snow; then just as power restoration was complete, disastrous flooding struck Kentucky.

Natural disasters like this require determination and resilience, and thankfully electric cooperatives are blessed with a linemen corps who are committed to restoring power and keeping everyone safe.

Because electric cooperatives are led and owned by the people they serve, many of the local crews who responded to this crisis restored power to others while their homes were still without electric service.

Meanwhile, more than 425 mutual aid electric cooperative line technicians from other co-ops joined the recovery effort. Not only did other co-ops in Kentucky dispatch crews and equipment to the disaster area, but co-op crews from Georgia, Alabama, Indiana, Virginia and Tennessee bolstered power restoration. In all, more than 1,000 people worked more than 300,000 hours to restore power.

Even as sleet, ice and tree branches fell all around them, linemen exhibited uncommon resolve and professionalism to help Kentuckians suffering in the extreme cold. The day after Licking Valley RECC lineman Scott Spencer was seriously injured while restoring power, he took to social media from his hospital bed to encourage his colleagues to press on and be safe.

The crews didn't just repair the electric infrastructure, in many cases, they had to rebuild an electrical system that took decades to construct. Preliminary reports indicate at least 500 utility poles were broken by the tremendous weight of the ice and snow. Because electric cooperatives serve the last mile in the most remote and rural areas of Kentucky, much of the damaged area was not accessible by road. Crews had to use ATV's, track machines, drones and hikes through debris and snow to reach damaged areas.

Agencies, county and state crews, the Kentucky National Guard and local governments stepped up to serve during this crisis. Kentucky-based United Utility Supply made sure that co-ops had all the materials they needed to restore power as quickly as possible.

Despite one of the worst disasters Kentucky co-ops have ever seen, co-op crews exhibited and received the best of Kentucky. Co-op consumer-members greeted them with hot coffee and warm smiles.

Local churches and volunteers kept them well fed and appreciated. Children made signs and waved to crews from their front porches as bucket trucks labored through the ice and snow. Neighbors being neighbors the Kentucky way.

While linemen did their job, it's now our job to say thank you. It's the cooperative way.

Thinking ahead || BPD upgrades a bold move at the right time

The Berea Police Department recently made a decision to purchase Tesla vehicles and state-of-the-art body cameras in a move that has drawn praise and criticism from the general public.

The role of our local law enforcement agencies is to protect and serve its citizens. Who wouldn't want the best equipment and latest technology when it comes to providing the tools needed for those who put their lives on the line daily while on the call of duty?

The cost of maintaining the Tesla vehicles as opposed to gas-powered, traditional vehicles is a no-brainer and will save the department and taxpayers thousands of dollars in the future. The long-term projection also indicates the department and taxpayers will receive a return on their investment once the vehicles are deemed out of service and ready for an upgrade.

A contract has already made with Enterprise regarding future purchase of those vehicles, avoiding a possible loss on the return of investment. Because of high-mileage and other issues, fleet used by law enforcement agencies often don't generate a solid return on initial investment when they are put on the market to be sold to the highest bidder at an auction.

Keith Taylor

Berea Police Chief Eric Scott could have purchased traditional police vehicles for a cheaper price, but he looked at the long-term costs associated with wear-and-tear costs, such as gas, brake repair, engine maintenance and other costs associated with gas-powered vehicles.

He also did his due diligence when it comes to protecting his department.

Unfortunately we no longer live in Mayberry, where the town drunk could walk to the jail, grab the keys and lock himself into a cell until he became sober.

We live in a more dangerous society and our law enforcement officials need the best protection available to protect both citizens and themselves.

The updated body cameras provide unprecedented monitoring for our law enforcement officials and help provide adequate evidence when it comes to documenting incidents that could possibly be taken out of context through all forms of evidence, including public cell phone cameras and videos.

The updated cameras that will be worn by our officers could help clear up the “he-said, she-said” arguments when it comes to witnessing a crime and providing more details regarding shooting incidents involving an officer or possible suspect.

Many have argued that our streets should receive priority, considering the many potholes and bumps in the road, especially on Chestnut Street. City leaders have emphasized, and with good reason, those streets are maintained by the Kentucky Transportation Cabinet and not the Public Works Department.

That means the purchase of police cars and body camera equipment has nothing to do with appropriating that money to repair the state-maintained streets. They are two separate issues and addressed by two different Government entities.

In the long run, the purchases made by our police chief and city council are a prime example of fiscal responsibility and doing what's best to protect and serve our city.

Never doubt the work ethic of future generations

Small communities, like Kirksville, are typically filled with people who have known one another for several years. Many of the people that live around our area went to high school together, go to church together, played sports together, worked together, and their families have known one another for several years and a few generations. These ties bring simplicity to life in the rural part of the county. This structure provides a support system for the younger generation willing to carry on family values and traditions that might have otherwise been forgotten.

Some things Bill Grant left instilled within each member of our family is that hard work always pays off, and helping people is always the right thing to do. He loved seeing his children and grandchildren work on the farm and learn about the life he loved so dearly. Somehow, he always made time for the twenty-some-odd of us to always be on the farm when we wanted to be. We didn't have to ask; we didn't have to worry about permission; we just went out and worked when we needed to be productive or wanted to help. He was just pleased to see us working hard, and if we were helping someone else in the process, he was even happier.

The upcoming generation gets a bad reputation, sometimes without cause, regarding their work ethic. However, Kirksville makes it easier for kids and teenagers to jump in with both feet. After the ice, snow, and rain received over the past few weeks, a couple of teens worked together to go into the community and help with tree and debris cleanup.

Community members seemed eager to allow them to help out, and many thanked them for their hard work. My grandfather would have surely been proud of these two young men for working to help their community, and he would have supported them in that endeavor in any way he could.

When doubting the generation coming into adulthood, please keep in mind that many of these young people need an opportunity to be of help. Find ways to make that happen instead of being increasingly critical of them.

One of the joys of living in a rural, small-town is that most people understand this and want to support kids in learning productive adult habits.

Reflections

Berea Citizen Archives: March 13, 2014

Sunshine Friends Preschool student Jackson Kling (whose dad is an assistant football coach with Madison Southern) had a challenge on his hands trying to get his friends to get their heads into a playground game of football. Chalk drawings, toy trucks and chase games all proved to be problematic distractions to Jackson's efforts. However, he was persistent and was successful in getting off several plays, including a game-ending touchdown followed by the ever-important touchdown dance. Kling was able to put together 2 teams, get them to huddle and get them down into a 3 point stance (well, sort of) even though his offensive guards were often distracted with other playground activities.

On Saturday, February 22, Berea Community High School crowned their Winter Homecoming Court. The coronation ceremony was followed by the annual dance later that evening. Seniors Jacob Modine and Emily Keyser were crowned the 2014 Homecoming King and Queen. "I was very honored and shocked to win. I'm thankful for everyone who voted for me and Jacob," Emily said about being voted Queen. Jason Strong and Hayley Penn were named Junior Prince and Princess; Austin Philbeck and Griffin Roberts were named Sophomore Prince and Princess and Levi Saderholm and Katie Okumu were named 9th grade Prince and Princess.

The Madison County Library hosted one of Madison County's treasures on Saturday when 100-year-old Edna Oliver visited to share her century of memories from living and working in Madison County. With her mind still as sharp as a tack, she easily recounted how much the world had changed during her lifetime. Oliver said that technology was probably the biggest and most drastic changes she had witnessed. She said that at that time of her interview, she continued to read numerous books and at least 2 newspapers a day but she had yet to attempt to learn the computer. Oliver taught for over 43 years, most of them in Madison County. She attended teacher training at Eastern. From there she spent 7 years teaching 4 grades in a 2-room schoolhouse. She went on to teach at Red House School before becoming Principal. After 6 years, Madison County decided to remove all female principals and replace them with males. Oliver said, "We just accepted it. We didn't know what we could have done." Many of her former students attended this 100th Birthday celebration. Church also played an important role in Oliver's life and she commented that she thought it was part of the reason she had lived so long. Oliver stated, "I've had a good life and I have no regrets."

If all property in Madison County were to be taxed, regardless of religious, educational or governmental exemptions, it was estimated that approximately $157 million dollars of taxable property would be added to the 2014, tax rolls of the community and according to Madison County Property Value Administrator Billy Ackerman, that amount was likely a bit on the low side since exempt property does not receive the same careful updating of assessment value as taxable property. To assess these properties yearly would take the lion's share of his office's time and resources. With large property owners such as Berea College being exempt from property taxes with over 100 parcels, as well as those owned by religious organizations and governments, the City of Berea had a much larger percentage of untaxed property than what has been annexed from Madison County in previous years. The untaxed property in the Berea annex from the county was assessed at approximately $16 million. While the PVA's office keeps track of exempt property values, Ackerman cautioned that the dollar amount associated with each exempt property is far from exact.

A different kind of music was heard in Berea on Thursday, March 13, when Berea College hosted the band Pharaoh's Daughter at the Phelps Stokes Building. Pharaoh's Daughter was an American Jewish world music band from New York City. Their style blended a psychedelic sensibility and a Pan-American sensuality. This "cutting edge" New York City groove band" was lead by singer-songwriter, multi instrumentalist, Basya Schechter, had a mix of American Folk, Jewish Klezmer and Middle-Eastern sounds. The music of Pharaoh's Daughter, included swirling Hasidic chants, Mizrahi and Sephardi, folk rock and spiritual styling's filtered through percussion, flute, strings, and electronica blending traditional Middle-Eastern and Judaic melodies with Arabic. and African Rhythms.

Respect and remembrance

It was a beautiful weekend and I wanted to get outside. Since Covid-19 is keeping people from visiting much, I ventured out to a few family cemeteries. I started out with the Chasteen Cemetery. I had to check the internet to refresh my memory with directions.

The drive was long and scenic with lots of cliff faces, streams, hills, and curves. The cemetery was very peaceful with the sound of windchimes blowing in the breeze. I was surprised at how many graves had flowers, angel figurines, and other decorations. I took pictures of my relatives' headstones for my family history.

The Silver Creek Community Cemetery was my next stop. As before, I saw several infant markers next to their parents. Some couples had more than one. I am thankful that obstetric medical care has advanced, and there are fewer baby deaths. It still is heartbreaking to see the more recent baby headstones with toys placed about.

Berea Cemetery also contained some relatives. I read some touching grave inscriptions while walking around. "But O for the touch of the vanished hand and the sound of a voice that is still." I was not familiar with this poem by Alfred Lord Tennyson. I also read part of a poem by Benjamin Malacia Franklin about weaving on the stone for Anna S. Ernberg.

I finished with a visit to the Bluegrass Memorial Cemetery across from the Depot. I had never been there before. It is in the process of storm clean up now. There were many branches down. This cemetery had some stones dating from 1860's. There were many stones engraved "known but to God". With the age, many stones were difficult to read. Several others had fallen off their bases or were broken.

These family cemeteries are valuable for genealogy. I also felt like it was a lesson in history. We should visit more frequently. We should pay more attention to the condition of our relative's final resting places. We can all pitch in to pick up some branches, windblown flower arrangements, or contribute for maintenance.

Woodpecker takes credit for splintering tree with one peck

One of my favorite stories of all time is about the woodpecker that flew over to a huge, towering oak tree. At the very moment he made his first peck at the massive trunk, a bolt of lightning struck, splintering the tree from top to bottom.

The woodpecker flew over to his buddies, pointed toward the smoldering oak, and said, "Look there what I did."

All too often, people are like that woodpecker, taking credit for things they really have nothing to do with.

You may recall that an Old Testament king by the name of Nebuchadnezzar got into big trouble for taking credit for something that should have been attributed to God. He stood overlooking his kingdom and proclaimed, "Is not this the great Babylon, that I have built for the house of the kingdom by the might of my own power, and for the honor of my majesty?" (Daniel 4:30).

So, Nebuchadnezzar was feeling like a big stinking deal, ignoring the fact that the Lord is the one who allowed him to be king in the first place and that the Lord is the one who provided all the money and products that allowed Babylon to become what at the time was the showplace of the world.

Well, Nebuchadnezzar was about to learn a costly lesson. Because he took credit for himself instead of giving credit to the Lord, he went from being the majestic king of Babylon to the wild man of Babylon. He grazed in the fields eating grass alongside the cattle. His hair grew out long and matted together until it looked like feathers and his nails were like the claws of a bird. If Barnum and Bailey had found him, they'd have made him a circus act, selling tickets for people eager to get a glimpse of him. The good news is that, after living like an animal for a very long time, Nebuchadnezzar finally figured out that God deserved all credit, not him. When Nebuchadnezzar understood that, God returned him to the throne as the Babylonian king.

There's a lesson in that for all of us. It seems to be the nature of people to be prideful, saying look my home and my property and possessions that I worked so hard for and bought for myself. That's a dangerous attitude, because when we say that, we're leaving the Lord out of the equation and running the risk of Him delving out the same attitude adjustment to us that he handed out to Nebuchadnezzar all those years ago.

Let us not be like that little woodpecker, telling our buddies, look what I did. Instead, let's go to our buddies and say, "Look there what God did."

Shania Smith, a student in Professor Stephanie Woodie's Dance in Healing and Therapy class taught in fall 2020, shares her mask creation with the class for a mask-dance project.

Living Mindfully

Students take advantage of blessings and opportunities

By Libby Falk Jones

Students who come to Berea College are offered many blessings and opportunities," said Corey Carroll, a senior economics major from College Station, Texas. "But often they don't know how to cope with the changes college brings."

Carroll has learned that one way to cope is through practicing mindfulness. As a student in Dr. Penelope Wong's Adolescent Development class his sophomore year, he engaged regularly in a "mindful moment" to begin class—taking a minute to breathe silently, bringing awareness to the present. "Encouraging mindfulness is an important skill for teachers," said Wong, associate professor of education studies. "Students who are stressed are not capable of taking in information."

Beginning class with a mindful moment works to relax students, Wong says. The practice can be used outside class as well.

Dr. Shannon Phelps, assistant professor of health and human performance (HHP), invites a mindful moment during class when she senses students need to be more engaged. "Their body language shows they appreciate these moments," she said. "They sit more upright."

Mindful moments can build into a meditation practice, some students and faculty have found. In her senior year, Palkyi '20, began inviting friends to join her in a weekly short meditation, usually outdoors. "So many things distracted me," Palkyi said. "Meditation is useful in controlling the mind." As a nursing major, Palkyi also saw opportunities to use mindfulness techniques to give patients a non-pharmacological way to control pain.

Though Palkyi learned mindfulness techniques in her home country of Tibet before coming to Berea, other students have learned them through taking Koru, a four-week, non-credit class offered on campus since 2015. Koru was developed at Duke Counseling and Psychological Services at Duke University as a compressed course in the mindfulness-based stress reduction program created by psychologist Jon Kabat-Zinn and author of the very influential book, "Wherever You Go, There You Are: Mindfulness Meditation in Everyday Life."

Koru at Berea

Dr. Martha Beagle, retired professor of HHP, brought Koru to Berea in 2014 as a pilot program with the potential to contribute to dimensions of emotional and spiritual health. Support from the Academic Vice President's office has enabled 10 faculty and staff members to attend workshops and train to lead classes.

At Berea, teaching the Koru class is a volunteer activity. "I enjoy doing it," Wong said. "It gives me a chance to decompress."

Dr. Jeff Richey, professor of Asian Studies, notes the importance of helping students learn to care for themselves. "Is Berea producing whole healthy people who will go into the world making it whole and healthy?" he asked. "Students need this care and will use it. They are hungry for mindfulness."

Through fall 2019, the College offered two or three Koru sessions each term. Last spring, after the College ended in-person instruction in response to the COVID-19 pandemic, Richey emailed students about the opportunity to enroll in a free online Koru course offered by Duke University. To date, more than 100 students have completed a Koru program.

Dominique Jenkins '20, an Asian Studies major from Louisville, said he benefitted from the Koru class. He made use of dynamic breathing—"it wakes you up," he said—and body scans that allow him to feel an emotion arising and then decide how to respond. "I've gotten better at thinking collectedly," he said.

Koru can help students "make friends with their minds," said Jim Strand, executive administrative assistant to the academic vice president. He co-taught his first Koru class in 2019.

"Attention to breathing as a way to redirect the mind is a central piece in Koru," he said. "You can become more creative if you can move past reacting to responding."

Leading campus leaders

In addition to serving students, mindfulness education has been offered to faculty and staff. A fall 2015 dean's reading group explored essays on higher education contemplative practices, with discussions continuing into the following spring. Two faculty and staff Koru classes have been offered, one in spring 2017, led by Phelps and Dr. Sue Reimondo, director of Counseling Services, and another in fall 2019, led by Richey and Stephanie Woodie, associate professor of health and human performance.

"The biggest impact of that class was learning to live in the moment," said Dr. Mary Robert Garrett, associate professor of organic chemistry, a spring 2017 participant. At work and home, she tells herself that what she's doing now is the most important thing. "Mindfulness helps us get out of ruts," she said. "So many of us need a new lens."

As Berea's coordinator of advising, Garrett hopes to find ways to help advisors see the benefits of mindfulness for themselves and their students.

Koru instructors often incorporate mindfulness approaches into their other classes and work. Phelps teaches mindfulness in wellness and stress management classes. Woodie brings mindfulness to her wellness and yoga classes, including those conducted remotely. In wellness courses, she helps students understand the importance of reflection and understanding.

"They need to learn to be OK with not being OK—with being uncertain," she said. "It's a skill that's important to emotional health."

In yoga, a physical activity HHP class, and in her Dance in Healing and Therapy class taught in fall 2020, Woodie stresses body awareness. "We live our lives in our bodies, not our heads," she explained. "The body is an important teacher."

Reimondo agrees. In her counseling work, she urges students to use the Koru technique of meditative walking. That practice can bring about moments of joy, she says.

"Life is made out of ordinary moments—extraordinary if you pay attention," Reimondo said. "Opportunities for joy help us to change the narrative by which we run our lives."

Practicing gratitude

Koru students and others on campus have also benefitted from the mindfulness practice of expressing gratitude. In fall 2018, Dr. Jill Bouma, professor and chair of sociology, partnered with Judith Weckman, director of Institutional Research and Assessment, to study the effects of expressing gratitude among Berea College employees. About 100 staff members participated in the three-week program. Students in Bouma's senior sociology seminar analyzed pre- and post-surveys and interviews. Results showed participants experienced benefits in daily health and felt a stronger sense of community.

Learning-training coordinator Mark Nigro included these results in a staff development workshop, "Effectively Expressing Appreciation in Challenging Times," offered twice in the past two years.

"Effectively expressing appreciation benefits the receiver, the giver and the whole workplace environment," Nigro said.

The simplicity and brevity of mindfulness practices are a strength, say those who work with them. The breath is a powerful tool for altering consciousness and can make our lives more manageable, Richey noted.

Woodie agrees. "You can experience moments of serenity and peace regardless of your circumstances," she said. "Serenity is a choice."

EMS as a first responder, but she still had the burning desire to become a firefighter.

"I've always wanted to be a fire-fighter," she said. "It's never I've always wanted to be a first responder. I always wanted to be a firefighter. I was always drawn to be a firefighter, more than working for the EMS. I just finally decided that I wanted to reach that accomplishment and I went for it."

She obtained her EMT certification and passed her Candidate Physical Ability Test, known as the CPAT, which is a requirement for becoming a firefighter with the Berea Fire Department.

Berea Fire Chief Shawn Sandlin has been impressed with Bryant and said she possess the personality and skills needed to do the job.

"Shelby has been an absolute joy to be around," Sandlin said. "Her personality is infectious. We have watched her in the fire and battling and training.

"She is never one to quit or stop after the first, second or third evolution. She is always looking to make sure she knows the material, whether it's hands on or book work."

In an effort to jumpstart her future career, she joined the Junior Firefighters program at the Sand Gap Volunteer Fire Department when she was 12 and obtained the basic skills needed to reach her ultimate goal of becoming a firefighter.

"It's an amazing program," It's been it's been going on for years and it's just now starting to get recognized. It's very important to me.

"It's very near and dear to my heart because I was one of the lucky few that actually got to start the junior program."

From the beginning, Bryant received full support from her parents, but she also wanted to carve her own path toward her career as a firefighter.

"My dad has never stepped foot towards my career or try to influence my career," she said. "I want everything to be that I earned it and I didn't get it because people know my father."

Bryant's ultimate passion, however, is being a good neighbor.

"I love helping people," she said. "I think that every person in our community should try to be an asset to their community. That's very big for me. And it don't matter what you serve — if you are in the military, you're a nurse, a doctor or work in a clinic or work at the food bank — there's always something that someone can do to help benefit their community.

"This is just a way that I felt like I am being an asset to my community. That's what I'm passionate about. I want to help people. I found a way that I like to help people."

severe weather. Taylor noted that over 500 appointments have been met, and that the first two appointment periods have already been booked up. The scheduling period for the third round of pickup is April 1 through April 15, followed by debris pickup on April 19 through April 29. Debris must be set at the curbside by April 19. Call (859) 624-4709 to schedule an appointment, or visit madisoncountyky.us for more information.

In Related news, Madison County Fire Department Chief Tim Gray urged residents who are trying to burn their storm debris to exercise caution since there is a high risk of starting fires because of dry weather. Chief Gray reminded residents that controlled burns should occur at least 150 feet away from a woodland area or structure, and that it should be burned between the hours of 6 p.m. and 6 a.m. Gray urged residents to call the fire department at (859) 624-4776 to let the fire department know when they would be burning to help the department avoid being called out on false alarms.

In other business, the Fiscal Court unanimously approved a resolution for a mutual aid agreement between the Madison County Fire Department and the Blue Grass Army Depot Fire Department. The agreement allows the fire departments to help one another in the event of an emergency either at the depot or within county limits.

Also Tuesday, the court approved a slate of reappointments to county administrative boards, including Dr. Paula Maionchi and Cory Erdmann to the Madison County Nuisance Board, Mary Kerns and Ashley Combs Young to the Madison County Ethics Board, John Thomas to the Madison County Utilities Board, and Jill Cornelison to the Madison County EMS Board.

The court approved a CSEPP contract for virtual desktop enhancement software and hardware for 13 Layers and SHI.

In a personnel related move, the court unanimously adopted a measure to give part-time employees of the county coroner, sheriffs and fiscal court departments incentive pay. Judge Reagan Taylor said the employees were inadvertently omitted earlier in the year when full-time employees received a one-time $1,000 bonus related to their service during the pandemic. Under the ordinance, part-time staffers employed before July 1, 2020 receive $500 in incentive pay, while those employed after August 1 received $250.

Also Tuesday, the court approved a round of hires for the Battlefield Golf Course, signaling the beginning of a new season. Seasonal golf cart attendants hired included Carl McCrae, David Hall, Donnie Helton, James Collins, Timothy Freeman, as well as Caswell Patton, who was hired as golf shop attendant.

The court met in executive session for approximately 30 minutes to discuss a personnel matter, after which it was announced that a CSEPP employee was suspended for three days.

The next meeting of the Madison County Fiscal Court will be March 23.

staff at both Berea College and Centre College," said Cheyenne Olson, Blitz team organizer. "We are tapping into a new group to fill those slots where our regular workers are out of town."

Kara Crispin, Sustainable Berea board member and coordinator for volunteers said she has not received one single "no" to a request to volunteer. "People seem excited about the Blitz this year," Crispin said.

Pamela Corley, local artist and director of Kitty Inc, is in charge of the Blitz Chef's Team who will "create fabulous homemade food from 9 a.m. to 5 pm for the volunteers," Corley said.

The purpose of the Victory Garden Blitz is two fold: to get materials people need to grow food at home, and to strengthen the neighborhood by bringing people together around food.

The Blitz provides beds for anyone who wants them, but it focuses on supplying deeply discounted garden beds for low-income families.

"We can do that only because of people who provide financial support to the Blitz. We are very grateful for all the people who make the Blitz possible," Olson said.

Blitz organizers are hoping for dry weather from April 2 to April 17.

To order a garden bed or to sign up to volunteer, go to www.sustainable-berea.org/Berea-Victory-Garden-Blitz or call Sustainable Berea at (859) 985-1689. Deadline for ordering beds is March 20.

mittee. “We are, at this point, planning to move forward. We don’t have a lot of details at this time, but we are hopefully planning to open on time, on Memorial Day weekend,” Bloom said. Berea City Council Parks and Recreation Committee Chair John Payne confirmed the decision at Tuesday’s council meeting.

Bloom noted that health and safety guidelines are expected to be forthcoming from the Kentucky governor’s office in order to help the city operate the pool while exercising precautions against spreading the COVID-19 virus.

Earlier this month, the City of Richmond’s Parks and Recreation Committee announced they will explore ways to limit capacity to ensure public safety. That could include measures such as staggering customer entry times or cutting down on how many people are allowed in the facility at a given time. Bloom said the city will be developing plans to operate the pool safely in order to protect the public, and that the rules will be

College defends zoom forum

By Keith Taylor

Berea College has defended its decision to host a controversial zoom event on Wednesday by the Women’s and Gender Non-Conforming Center.

The zoom session is part of a spring “Gender Talk” forum on social media, termed as “White Citizenship as Terrorism: Make America, Great Again, Again.” The event was scheduled for Wednesday from noon-1 p.m. and was co-sponsored by Law, Ethics and Society at the college.

“This planned event by the Women’s and Gender Non-Conforming Center at Berea College has attracted a great deal of attention on social media, and resulted in several emails from concerned persons,” said Abbie Darst, director of publications and media relations at the college said in an e-mail to The Citizen.

National Vietnam War Veterans Day

‘Non war’ deserves recognition

War! What is war? Stop to think about it for a minute. Can you explain war? Is there a difference in wars? How many and which wars were fought in your lifetime? Were you or anyone in your family involved in a war?

There are many questions to be asked about a war. Did you have a choice to be involved with a war, or was that choice left up to some higher authority? Were you drafted into a war situation or were you a volunteer in support of your country? Did you lose a family member in a war?

There are many questions that we have to ask ourselves when we become entrenched in a war situation.

First of all why is there a war? It’s usually because of a difference in thought or ideology between two persons or groups or countries.

We have the capacity to live stream services

We keep shining the light on the news

We covered a City Council meeting this week. We cover Madison County Fiscal Court meetings.

Despite the ongoing pandemic that has slammed the door on in-person government meetings, we still gather the news in unique ways.

Keith Taylor

Why do we make an effort to cover those meetings? It's simple: To keep you informed on what is going on within the city and county government.

This week, as has been observed since 2005, in mid-March is Sunshine Week, used "to educate the importance of open government and the dangers of excessive and unnecessary secrecy."

It's our job to keep our readers informed of what transpires during those meetings, especially items that are specifically tied to the agenda, whether it's a resolution or an ordinance that was passed within the city and county. We also are required by law to publish those ordinances before they become law.

We are fortunate to have a mayor and city council that are transparent and willing to share what the public needs to hear.

We also have a judge-executive and four magistrates who are open and willing to be transparent when it comes to government-regulated topics.

We have an open democracy and the people elect those who represent the citizens in local, state and national government. They are to be held accountable to the public because "government functions best when it operates in the open."

In an era where news can be derived from a variety of sources, including social media, it's important now more than ever, to consider your source when it comes to the news. Seek to find journalists who strive to present the facts without tilting the scale.

Our role is to report the news to you, the reader, and keep you updated on the latest government decisions that will affect your life in one way or another.

If not for this paper you wouldn't know when the U.S. 25 widening project was complete and rely strictly on heresy or what someone posted on social media that may or may not be true, considering the source of the information.

There are more than 1,400 cities and towns across America that have lost a newspaper during the last 16 years, according to the Associated Press, based on analysis of data that was compiled by the University of North Carolina.

It's sad.

Imagine a community without a newspaper, whether it be online or print.

How would you know about what happened at the last government meeting? How would you find out what's going on this week-end to plan ahead?

Although The Citizen remains steady, the circulation numbers for most newspapers have declined in recent years.

The Internet has proven to be beneficial when it comes to getting the word out in a timely manner, especially if used efficiently.

When major breaking news occurs that warrants your attention now, rather than later, we will post the information to our website or Facebook page, to keep you up to date.

Waynesville (Missouri) lost its only newspaper – the Daily Guide – recently and the town didn't fully realize the impact until it was gone.

One resident, banker Keith Prichard, told the Associated Press that losing a newspaper "is like losing the heartbeat of a town."

We will continue to keep the sun shining as

Word on the streets

“Who is your favorite Rock band?”

Doug Hazelwood

“The Eagles. Everything they recorded was the good music.”

Chris Coleman

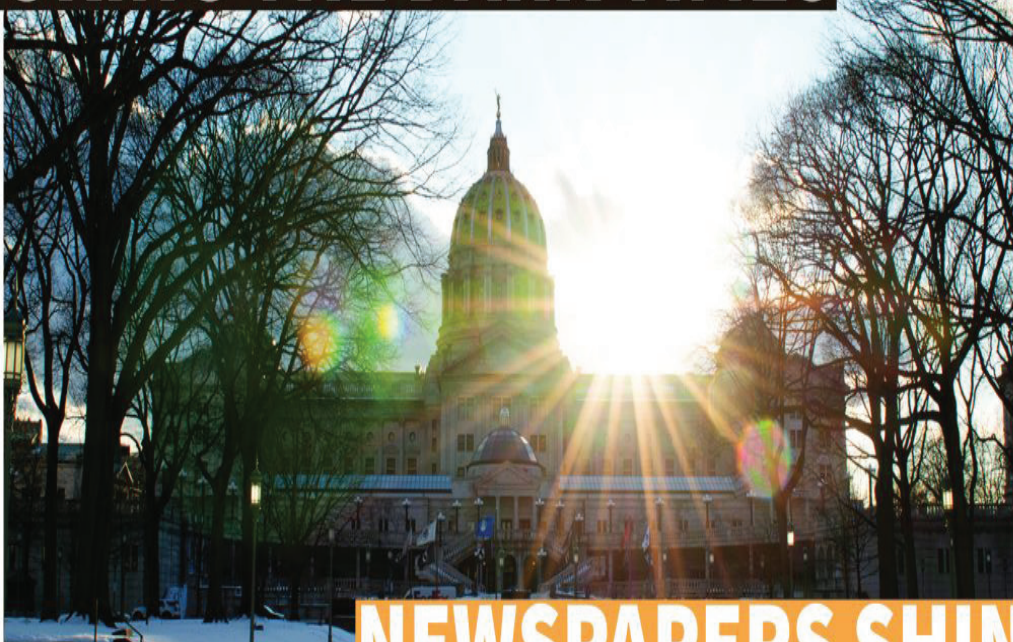

“Led Zeppelin. It's timeless Rock and Roll.”

Adalynn Coleman

“Queen. I like the beat and I like Freddie's vocals.”

DURING THE DARK TIMES

NEWSPAPERS SHINE THE LIGHT

As the news media industry celebrates Sunshine Week recognizing the importance of access to public information, we thank you for your continued support and patronage.

Newspapers provide sunshine in the darkness.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Bowling: What is Berea College Thinking?

Berea College, which was once the pride of Berea, has become the "armpit" of Berea. The armpit being the part of the body that secretes the poisons from the body. Poison being a person, idea, action or situation that is considered to have a destructive or corrupting effect or influence.

Recent events that are occurring or come to mind are students committing suicide, having pedophiles on their faculty, promoting gay and transgender lifestyles, supporting BLM movements and protests, having a play to "honor" Breonna Taylor, producing a video to show the killing of a black man over 50 plus years ago, supported a meeting of Planned Parenthood (a group that kills babies every day), have a speaker on campus that says, he, Willie Parker, is a Christian but also performs abortions and finally has faculty members and Former students who filed a petition to impeach a sitting Representative.

This bring us to the most recent event, hosting an event describing "white citizenship" and "Trumpism" as terrorism. How does this bring a community together? Berea is composed of approximately 97% white and 3% black population. This brings fear to both races and infuriates Trump supporters. Berea has always been a quaint and peaceful place to live. Now the college has once again brought shame and embarrassment to this city. They need to practice their "motto."

Let's look at Berea College, where students are housed-free, educated for free, fed for free and indoctrinated for free. Sounds very similar to a master and his slaves relationship.

The students are solely dependent on the college, making them continent or determined by financial, emotional or other support and unable to do without them.

As for me and my family, I will no longer support Berea College by suggesting students enroll in Berea College. We stopped supporting them financially a few years ago as we saw them drifting away from their commitment to Appalachia youth and their Christian values. If all other donors would follow suit we CAN make a difference.

SUDOKU

Level: Intermediate

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Kirksville Chronicles

Small communities produce big influences

When people consider small towns, it’s unlikely that “opportunity” is the first word that comes to mind.

Often, small communities like Kirksville are considered dead-end arenas. There is a stereotype that people only do what their parents or grandparents did, and they never strive for more because the environment is limited in chances for growth and change.

This has never been the case for Kirksville. People there have grown and thrived during times where hardship was more prevalent than opportunity. Our community has produced nurses, teachers, doctors, police officers, farmers, politicians, preachers, business owners- the list goes on. It’s more likely than not that these people come home after their successes to give back in some way to those who helped them.

James T. Coy III, M.D is undoubtedly one of the citizens of Kirksville who came home to give back to his community following his success.

Locals may appreciate the medical care provided by Dr. Coy to his patients during his time as an orthopedic surgeon. However, few may realize that Dr. Coy has worked diligently to preserve pieces of Kirksville’s history and is a historian of sorts. He and his son, James, also continue to maintain the farms that have been in his family for generations in such a manner that always provides aesthetic appeal for passersby. His younger son continues to provide medical care in the surrounding area, following in his dad’s footsteps as an orthopedic surgeon. Dr. Coy and his wife, Ruthie, were supportive and helpful to me during a challenging time in my life, and I am forever appreciative of their kindness and all that I was able to learn from them.

Recently, The Berea Citizen published a “throwback photo” of Gerald Smyth at Kirksville Elementary helping some students build lamps from pop cans.

If you know Gerald, you know he is a kind soul who works hard and is always willing to lend a helping hand. When I was a student at Kirksville Elementary, he pulled a tooth for me, wiped some tears away a few times, and served as a daily laughter source to all of us kids. He continues to work within the community and church to help in any way he can after having served at Kirksville Elementary for several years.

Our community has produced a number of successful people who continue to live in Kirksville and raise their families, and often their children end up raising families there too.

Small town does not always mean small chances. Sometimes, it means that there is a whole group of unrelated folks supporting each other and being the change they want to see.

Reflections

Berea Citizen Archives: March 15, 2001

The Madison Southern High School boys varsity cheerleaders took first place in the recent 44th District Tournament. Members are Teren Babb, Carrie Spangler, Asheley Rose, Amy Sutton, Kelli Wagers, Dana Withers, (second row) Lindsay Alcorn, Misty Brewer, Holly Daniel, Brandy Short, Gena Centers, Erin Caudill, (back row) Amy Agee, Candice Kelley, Casey Dillon, Ashley Upton and Angie Rose.

Berea Community School recently took 61 sixth graders and 15 chaperones on the school’s annual trip to Washington, D.C. The itinerary for the experience included the Smithsonian Museums, the Lincoln Memorial, the Capitol, Jefferson Memorial, the White House, Arlington National Cemetery and the Holocaust Museum. In addition, the group had the opportunity to tour Newseum, an interactive museum of news. Chandra Coy and Tyler Adams were selected by teachers and had the opportunity to place a wreath at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier. Numerous fundraisers were held to offset the cost of the trip.

Author and Appalachian Scholar, Loyal Jones presented a talk based on his award-winning book, “Faith and Meaning in the Southern Uplands.” The talk took place on March 15th in the Phelps Stokes Chapel of Berea College. Jones’ book was awarded the 1999 Berea College W.D. Weatherford Award for outstanding writing about Appalachia. Jones’ book dealt with traditional religion in Appalachia and addressed such diverse issues as the human condition, God, the world and the Devil, the world, Salvation and songs of praise in Zion. Jones used voices of the church members to illustrate the richness and complexities of traditional religion of the region.

Members of both the Berea and Richmond Chambers of Commerce were on hand for the March 8th ribbon cutting and grand opening of the new Hospice Care Plus facility. The new facility is located in Berea off of Interstate 75 on exit 77, on Kidd Drive. All of Hospice’s staff, with the exception of the Beattyville satellite office, would begin working out of the new facility now that it was complete. The Kidd Drive location would house the main office from Richmond and would incorporate the Berea satellite office formerly located on Jefferson Street prior to the completion of the new facility.

The “Johnson Jazz” jump rope team, comprised of 22 Shannon Johnson Elementary School students had brought new life to jump roping. Team sponsor and SJE P.E. teacher Kathy Todd said that when she first organized the team, most students were unable to jump rope. “And look at them,” Todd said, “It’s amazing how far they’ve come.” She said that in addition to time in her class, the school had added a concrete pad on the playground, which was specifically designated for jumping rope. The Kentucky Association of Health, Physical Education, Recreation and Dance (KAHPERD) and the American Heart Association sponsored the “Johnson Jazz”. School principal, Penny Begley stated that students on the team have excellent behavior, good grades and great attitudes. The group recently took their message of “Eat healthy stuff; Move around enough; and Live tobacco free,” to numerous schools around the area. A typical performance included a team performance set to music with jump ropes, an audience participation component and a competition component for school principals. When members were asked why they chose to join the team, the all answered, fun, fitness and health.

At a recent planning commission meeting, engineer Charles Black presented proposed changes to Boone Square Shopping Center. Property owner, Arlene Florence wanted to tear down approximately 160 feet of the existing structure and re-organize the entrance onto Glades Road. According to Black, “Kids hot-rod through there. That’s the reason for the change.” The change would allow Florence to sell two out-parcels at the sides of the proposed entrance. Florence asked the planning commission and city council to pass a regulation to allow the shopping center to continue operating as it had been with the exception of allowing individual ownership of the businesses located in the out-parcels.

Under the current zoning regulations at the time, each owner was required to have public street frontage and not all intended out-parcels would have that access. City Attorney J.T. Gilbert pointed out that the proposal was changing the regulation to permit a type of commercial development that was working other places.

Kingston Memories

Battlefield Park
a good place to take a walk

Looking for something to do? Take a walk at Battlefield Park, located at 1546 Battlefield Memorial Highway.

You can enjoy the outdoors and learn some Kingston Civil War history. There are paved trails of about 2.5 miles. You will start near the Pleasant View House. It was built in 1824 by Joseph Barnett, but the house is not currently open for tours.

You can take a left to Churchill’s Draw. There is a monument to Texas soldiers. It is a little difficult to read. You can see online at www.hmdb.org/m.asp?m=48147. One-part reads “Texas remembers and honors her sons. They sleep the sleep of the brave.”

Located nearby is the Barnett Cemetery. Some of the grave markers are quite unusual. There is a raised stone base with a large rectangular or coffin shaped marker on top. It is noted that they have their antecedents in the British Isle.

If you continue, you will eventually reach the Mt. Zion Church. It served as a field hospital during the Civil War battle. Unfortunately, there were few medical supplies on hand to treat wounded soldiers. The most common treatment was amputation. Other local houses also took in soldiers

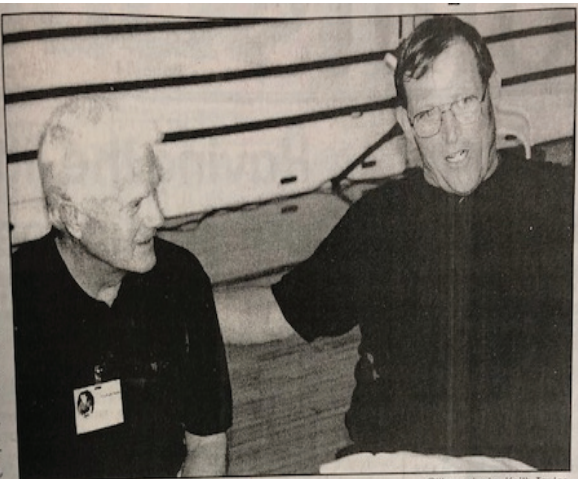

This is such a peaceful walk. It is hard to imagine the noise and chaos of that day. It was around 100 degrees. There was a shortage of drinking water. The echo of the artillery fire could be heard from a distance. Communication was difficult for both sides. Some of the Union forces were more inexperienced. Their sense of duty brought them there, and some of them would lose their lives. At the end, the Confederates would be victorious.

If you have any Kingston events, history, or characters give me an e-mail at whittamore@gmail.com.

Wife refused to follow doctor's advice, despite the consequences

You may have heard about the woman who went with her husband to his medical appointment.

After the examination, the doctor called the woman into his office to speak to her alone. "Your husband is suffering from a very severe stress disorder. If you don't follow my directions carefully, your husband will die."

"Treat him like a king. Each morning, fix him his favorite breakfast and serve it to him in bed. For lunch, make him a nutritious meal. For supper, prepare him whatever he wants. Don't burden him with chores. Don't discuss your problems with him. Hug him and kiss him each time you walk past his recliner. Massage his shoulders. Scratch his back.

Give him the TV remote and let him watch all the sports he wants. And, above all, don't nag him about anything. If you do this for the next 12 months, I think your husband will live."

On the way home, the husband asked his wife what the doctor had told her.

"He said you're going to die," she answered.

Well, the woman in that old joke simply didn't want to follow the doctor's instructions, even if it meant saving her husband.

You know, Christians have been given directions from the

Roger Alford

Lord that many choose not to follow. In his Great Commission to the church, Jesus said, "Go into all the world and preach the Gospel to every creature. He who believes and is baptized will be saved" (Mark 16:15-16).

It's one thing to ignore the instructions of a doctor. It's quite another to ignore the instructions of Jesus who very clearly told Christians to share the Gospel with everyone.

I admit laughing at the joke about the woman who didn't want to follow the doctor's instructions. But refusing the share Jesus' instructions is no laughing matter.

Southern sweeps Berea in district

The Madison Southern boys’ and girls’ basketball teams advanced to Friday night’s 44th District Championship games by knocking off their counterparts from Berea Tuesday night at Eastern Kentucky University’s McBrayer Arena.

Southern 61, Berea 45

In the nightcap, the Madison Southern (11-10) jumped out to a 30-16 halftime lead and held off a couple of Berea (8-8) second-half runs to capture a 61-45 win.

Southern Coach Austin Newton said, heading into the game, he expected his team to be rusty as his first unit had missed considerable time while in quarantine.

“We hadn’t played our main unit in two weeks, and I knew we might come out a little rusty,” he said. “We are happy we won the game.”

Southern dominated in the paint, outscoring Berea 26-10. A big part of that was Zach Hudson, who finished with a game-high 17 points.

Berea Coach Jerry Thacker said his squad had its hands full with Hudson, especially in the first half.

“I thought we played pretty well defensively, outside of guarding Hudson in the first half,” Thacker said. “We had 10 turnovers in the first half, and we didn’t rebound very well, and that helped them to a 14-point halftime lead.”

Berea cut the lead to nine with about two minutes left in the game, but an injury to Jaylen Dorsey took the air out of the team from that point, Thacker said.

“When Dorsey goes out, and it was a terrible situation,” Thacker said. “As soon as that happened, we were done.”

Before the injury, Dorsey scored 12 points for the Pirates.

Southern now turns its attention to Madison Central. The Eagles and the Indians squared off twice in the regular season, with Central winning both (72-67 on Jan. 7 at Southern and 65-61 at Central on Feb. 12).

Newton said the Eagles must come with its “A” game Friday night.

“Madison Central is playing well, offensively,” he said. “We are going to need to find a way to slow them down and guard the arc.”

Friday’s game is scheduled to begin at 8:30 p.m.

Looking back on Berea’s season, Thacker credits his team to play through a ton of adversary and never quit.

“I could not be prouder to be associated with them,” he said. “They represented Berea Community High School with resilience and courage, and they played with heart for their school. To go through what they went through with three coaching changes in six months, I am so proud of them, and I’m crushed that it is over.”

SOUTHERN (61) — Zach Hudson, 17, Trent DeVries 12, Brett Erslan, 10, Kyle Linville, 6, Walt Smith, 5, Jay Rose, 4, Blake Simpson 4, Michael Bannister, 3.
BEREA (45) — Quentin Morgan, 14, Jaylen Dorsey, 12, Jayden Smith, 6, Trenton Wilson, 5, James Brennan, 4, Rey Alejandro, 4.

Lady Eagles 46, Lady Pirates 41

Tuesday’s early game featured a back-and-forth battle with the Lady Eagles besting the Lady Pirates, 46-41. Madison Southern Coach Josh Curtis said his team battled through a tough shooting night, especially from beyond the arc (2-for-12 from 3-point range) and at the foul line (12-for-24).

“We were very fortunate to walk away with the win,” he said. “Berea is one of the best teams in the 11th Region, and we knew it would be a battle. We couldn’t have played any worse, offensively, between our three-point shooting and our free throws, but we were mentally tough, and we made the plays we needed to pull a tough one out.”

Samantha Cornelison was Southern’s workhorse, as she accounted for 16 points and 10 rebounds to pace the Lady Eagles. Not far behind was Lacie Parks, who finished with eight points, and Reece Estep, who finished with seven points and 10 rebounds.

Southern did a solid job limiting Berea’s leading scorer Madison Howell to five points. Coming into the district tournament, Howell had been averaging 14.4 points a game.

With Howell limited, Berea turned to Maddy King and Chesney Lovins, who scored 12 and 11 points, respectively.

King had averaged 3.5 points a game in the regular season, while Lovins contributed 6.8 points a game.

Up next for the Lady Eagles (16-6) is the 44th District Championship game versus Madison Central. Southern and Central met once during the regular season, with the Lady Eagles coming away with a 57-31 win on Jan. 8.

Curtis expects a different Central team on Friday.

“Central is a young team, but they have gotten better as the season has progressed,” he said. “We know the team we played (Jan. 8) will not be the team we will face on Friday. We will have to be prepared to play much better to give ourselves a chance to win against a good team like Central.”

Friday night’s game is scheduled to begin at 5:30 p.m.

Berea ends its season with an 11-10 record.

SOUTHERN (46) — Samantha Cornelison, 16, Lacie Parks, 8, Reece Estep, 7, Macie Daniels, 4, Morgan Flannery, 4, Bella Moberly, 4, Tara Wooten, 3.
BEREA (41) — Maddy King, 12, Chesney Lovins, 11, Abigail Beard, 6, Madison Howell, 5, Mati Stepp, 4, Isis Rodgers 3.

“To some, the provocative title of the event implies that Berea is not a welcoming place for individuals with differing political views. That is not true. At Berea, we strive to live out our motto: God has made of one blood all peoples of the earth. Berea accepts students of all faiths (or none at all), religious beliefs, ethnicities and political leanings, creating a diverse environment that encourages acceptance, respect and even appreciation across our differences.”

She added the college encourages “open dialogue on difficult topics.”

“Racism and white nationalism have been topics of great debate over the past five years,” she said. “The event planned for next week seeks to confront aspects of the political spectrum that relate to the difficult topic of race in America.

“While that may cause discomfort, it is a valid and important conversation in this time of political and racial division. It is our hope that these types of conversations will occur across the country. Open, honest dialogue is essential to understanding racism and moving toward an anti-racist society.”

A flyer promoting the event said, “the offer to make America Great Again, Again,” requires that we refocus on how the last four years of daily tweets (by former President Donald Trump) and administrative actions redefine whiteness” and adds, “if terrorism is defined as the use of violence and threats to create a state of fear towards particular communities and identities, then this is what Trumpism is at its core.

“This talk offers to restate Trumpism and white citizenship as forms of white terrorism enacted against the majority of people living within the borders of the U.S. and beyond.”

The session was scheduled to feature Amy Brandzel, a joint-appointed Associate Professor of American Studies and Women Studies at the University of New Mexico, and received her PhD in Feminist Studies with a minor in History from the University of Minnesota.

On the school’s web site, she describes herself as “a queer theorist, and was hired at the University of New Mexico to focus on gender and sexuality, my teaching and research is avowedly intersectional in that it utilizes and intervenes in queer, feminist, postcolonial, critical Indigenous, and critical race theories of subject-formations, institutional power, and coalitional resistance for marginalized and abjected communities.”

Berea College professor Mireille Pardon was scheduled to serve as a respondent during the zoom session. Pardon teaches courses on the medieval world from travel and translation to crime and confession.

VIETNAM

For instance, WWI and WWII were fought basically because of someone’s desire to be in control of the whole world, and there were people who were made to suffer and die for this person’s desire.

Philosophy differences

The Korean War was an example where a country who was your friend during the World Wars, suddenly become your enemy during the Korean War, such as the Chinese.

This war was again because of differences in philosophy and wanting full control of the lives of your countries people.

This all leads into what was called a “non war,” the Vietnam War. Those who involved with that war were told “it wasn’t really a war.” If it wasn’t really a war, then what was it? Was it a “conflict?” Is there really a difference?

In wars countries fight and people die. When over 58,000 American men and women die, is that not a war?

This week we celebrate and honor all those who participated, and some gave their life, for their country. Many were drafted, served their country in the fight against communism, and eventually gave their life for country. Many were career veterans who had served a number of years in support of their countries ideals of “all people are created equal” and free to determine the facets of their life.

Emerson McAfee

Many serve the required time in military service for their country and others make it a life career. This article is about just one of those, such patriots, Emerson McAfee.

Emerson joined the Air Force as an 18 year old out of high school during non- wartime, in January of 1960. War was the furthest thing from his mind when he qualified for a career in electronics. His desire was to follow in the footsteps of an uncle who was a “TV repairman.”

After some basic training, he was sent to Communications Electronics School at Keesler AFB, MS, where his position in the new arrivals line actually determined his life’s career path. He was to become a “Ground Radar Auto-track Repairman, whatever that was.

About four years after his enlistment along came the Vietnam War in 1964. He was assigned to Detachment 8 of the 1st Combat Evaluation Group at Blue Grass Army Depot. The war didn’t grab his attention immediately when some of his co-workers were selected to support the war in Vietnam by serving six month temporary duty assignments at radar sights deployed in Vietnam.

Eventually in 1968 he had no choice than to be involved in the war when he arose to the top of the list of individuals who had to go to Vietnam. But as fate would have it, he only had to spend three days in Vietnam, as he passed through his headquarters on his way to one of the radar locations in Thailand.

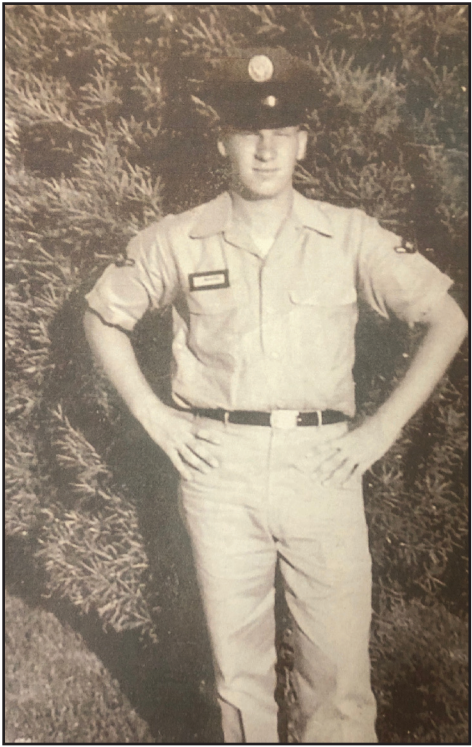

Two years later he volunteered to go back to Thailand in 1970 for another six months. He had another six-month tour to Thailand cancelled in 1972 when the location was closed.

New home

Jumping way ahead, and bypassing a lot of his 25-year career in the Air Force, where he also served as an Electronic Instructor and Quality Control Superintendent, he retired from the Air Force in 1984 to his new home in Berea. At that time, instead of putting his military involvement to sleep, Emerson McAfee reflects after being inducted into the Kentucky Veterans Hall of Fame in 2019.

he became involved in projects related to veterans.

He began organizing reunions for his Air Force group of veterans who had been assigned to the location on Blue Grass Army Depot. Those lasted for 31 years, with 19 reunions being held in this time. There was always a memorial service he arranged in honor of the men who were lost in the Vietnam War, as well as those who had died of other causes. He was the force behind the construction of three memorials in honor of these men.

Establishing Memorials

The first is a Kentucky Veterans Historical Sight located where the detachment was located on Blue Grass Army Depot for 31 years.

The second location is a memorial in the Barksdale AFB Museum in Bossier City, LA. This memorial honors the 19 men the organization lost during the Vietnam War. A CMSgt Richard Etchberger is noted as receiving the Medal of Honor for the rescue of three of his wounded comrades, before he was killed departing the area in a helicopter.

The third memorial that Mr. McAfee was deeply involved with the design and construction of was a beautiful black granite, eight foot stone at the National Air Force Museum on Wright Patterson AFB, OH in honor of all who served at these operating locations.

We have just scratched the surface of Mr. McAfee’s involvement with the veterans.

He was also involved with the planning and presentation of six Welcome Home Veterans celebrations held in Madison County. During these celebrations he was involved with bringing to the county numerous entertainers as well as two different traveling Vietnam Memorial Walls. He also brought the nationally acclaimed “Standin’ Proud” Ford 250 Desert War truck here for the community to see twice. It had some beautiful military scenes covering the truck as well as all the names of men killed in the desert wars up until 2008.

In 2012 he helped form the Vietnam Veterans of America Chapter 1066, and as president during this nine year period, has seen it grow from 25 members to the current total of 67 members. Under his leadership we have seen them present the “Missing Man” ceremony numerous times for Eastern Kentucky University Memorial/Veterans day ceremonies, as well as at county high schools and programs at Camp Nelson Veterans Cemetery.

Helping veterans

As part of the VVA Chapter’s activities, he has also received training as a Hospice representative for veterans. He visits with these veterans and their families to provide encouragement during their end-of-life needs. One such veteran was Chester Elkin of Berea.

McAfee sat with Mr. Elkin for 1 ½ hours every three weeks for a year expecting to help Mr. Elkin celebrate his 100th birthday. Alas, he passed a week before his birthday and the party was not envisioned as planned. Emerson had also nominated Chester for induction into the Kentucky Veterans Hall of Fame for his service during WWII and his continuing support of Berea. He was accepted into the Hall but his daughter had to attend to accept it for him.

This brings us to the KVHOF which besides Mr. Elkin, Marvin Farmer was also nominated by Mr. McAfee in 2020. He also was inducted into the KVHOF.

After seeing two of his nominees accepted for the KVHOF, McAfee himself was nominated, and was inducted into the Hall of Fame in 2019.

Still active at 80

Mr. McAfee has spent many hours and put many miles on his car traveling to 11 counties promoting the KVHOF.

He has talked with City Mayors and County Judge Executives in order to expand the coverage of possible veterans for this honor. In those 11 counties they are trying to find the veterans who are giving that extra work to improve the counties where they live.

Besides being the only president of Chapter 1066 of the VVA for it’s nine year history, Mr. McAfee is also the 2nd Vice President of the KY State Council of the VVA and a member of the Madison County Veterans Committee.

Just recently he celebrated his 80th birthday with his family of 16, including 3 children, 9 grandchildren and 2 great grandchildren.

During this celebration he passed out his recently completed, over 300-page, auto-biography of his life from 1941 to the present, which he wrote during the past year while he had slack time due to COVID-19.

Also at this celebration, he arranged for a renewal of the wedding vows, he and his wife Sue made on 14 June, 1964, some 57 years ago.

All of this is presented to show how support by just one person, for the military and veterans, can be a lifelong endeavour with many sweet rewards.

announced before the pool opens.

In other action, the council voted unanimously to accept a proposal from the Parks and Recreation Committee to construct a dog park at the end of Harrison Road, next to the parking lot of Berea Municipal Utilities.

Berea City Administrator David Gregory presented the plan to the committee Monday night, which includes three fenced off areas accessible with gates, six park benches, two animal waste disposal sites, as well as a water bottle filling / dog watering station. The cost is currently projected to be under $20,000. The three pens will be approximately one third of an acre each.

Berea City Councilman Ronnie Terrill expressed approval for the project, saying he hoped it would be just the first of more in Berea. “This is just the start. We’re going to have to put more dog parks around towns after we see how it works,” Terrill said.

The new dog park could be up and running in 30 to 40 days, Gregory said. Councilmember Teresa Scenters said the proposed project is a good start, and a good way to find out if the facility is a good fit for Berea.

“I don’t think we can go too wrong with this. It’s small enough to provide us with some data and we may totally change our minds six months from now, but I don’t think so. I think this is a great first step and this is a great first location,” Scenters said.

Also approved unanimously Tuesday was a municipal order launching the Small Business Reinvestment Program. The city program will allocate up to $50,000 in CARES Act funds consisting of a one-time payment of up to $1,500 for local businesses that had their operations interrupted by the COVID-19 pandemic. The application process begins on March 17 and concludes on March 26.

To be eligible for the one-time grant, businesses must have a brick and mortar location within Berea city limits, and residential and franchise-related businesses are not eligible for the payments.

Applicants must be current on all property tax and business license payments, must be in good standing with the Kentucky Secretary of State, and must not have more than 10 employees or have an income more than $100,000 annually. Eligible businesses include retail establishments, barbers or beauty salons, sit down restaurants, and other non-essential businesses forced to close down after March 16, 2020.

Additionally, the order stipulates that businesses that have already received pandemic-related financial assistance from the government are not eligible for the Small Business Reinvestment Program.

The next Berea City Council meeting will be April 6.

Mr. Clavere, father of Sebastian Clavere; Sebastian Clavere, winner of Madison County Children's Champion poster contest; Reagan Taylor, Madison County Judge Executive; Diane Smith, Family Resource Center Director; Wayne Short, President of the Kiwanis club of Richmond; Beth Mullins, Berea Community Elementary Principal; and Tina Williams, Art teacher at the Berea Community Schools.

Wally Campbell, Secretary of the Kiwanis Club of Berea presented a $100 check from the club to Tina Williams, Art teacher at the Berea Community Schools, and Diane Smith, Family Resource Center Director. The check was presented to Ms. Williams as the teacher of the winner of the Madison County Children's Champion poster contest for use in purchasing future art supplies.

Children's Champions Month celebrated

"March is Children's Champions Month in Madison County," said Phillis Adams, the President of Children's Champions of Madison County. She added that "Normally, we would have numerous activities scheduled during March' including the Kids Mall Madness." She said she regretted that most of those activities could not be held this year, but added, "Hopefully, the Kids Mall Madness and other activities will be happening this time next year."

Adams said, "The goal of the program is to encourage adults to help all children have more opportunities to be successful."

One of the activities that continued this year was the annual children's poster competition which encourages children to think about what adults can do to better support children.

The winner this year was Sebastian Clavere who created a poster which said "Be A Children's Champion: Light Our World With Kindness."

Wayne Short, President of the Kiwanis club of Richmond, gave a $100 check to Sebastian for winning the competition.

Wally Campbell, Secretary of the Kiwanis Club of Berea, presented a $100 check from the Berea club to Tina Williams, the Berea Community Schools Art teacher of Sebastian, for use in purchasing future art supplies.

Both the Berea Kiwanis Club (100 years old next year) and the Richmond Kiwanis Club (75 years old this year) have provided support of a wide variety of community activities and services, such as Children's Champions, for many decades.

Sebastian's winning poster and other finalist posters will be in the Richmond Register on Saturday, March 13.

The winning poster will also be on three billboards in Madison County in March and April. One billboard is in Richmond next to the railroad tracks. One is on US 25 next to Safety City. One will be at the intersection next to Kroger when the digital billboard is finished in March.

A large banner, provided by Sign Source, will be on display throughout the year at Berea Community School.

Adams concluded, "One of the values of the program is that the children are learning what a Children's Champion is. When they work on their drawings, the teacher talks about what it means to be a children's champion. Then when there are activities, the children can see the adults (children's champions) in action. Just this week one of the children said "I want to be a Children's Champion when I grow up." Learning in a positive way, at a young age, is so valuable to becoming a caring adult. Of course the fun times during activities, such as making special balloons by Kiwanis at Kids Mall Madness, is a positive experience that help children be successful."

State

KYTC to spray for weeds

FRANKFORT (KT) – Kentucky Transportation Cabinet crews will begin treating for noxious and nuisance weeds throughout the state this month.

According to Transportation officials, the treatments will aid in controlling the spread of undesirable plants along state highway rights of way, to improve driver safety and ensure efficient maintenance operations.

Under state law, the Cabinet targets Johnson Grass, Giant Foxtail, Canada Thistle, Nodding Thistle, Common Teasel, Multiflora Rose, Amur Hon-ey-suckle, Poison Hemlock, Marestail, Japanese Knotweed and Kudzu.

"Left uncontrolled, noxious weeds can grow so large that they interfere with a driver's line of vision on highways," said Transportation Cabinet Secretary Jim Gray.

"Weed maintenance is important in preventing potential damage to pavement and embankments, as well as clogged ditches and drainage problems."

Noxious weeds often invade and destroy the roadside turf grass, leaving these areas vulnerable to erosion.

They can also smother native plants through rapid reproduction and long-term persistence.

Property owners who are actively treating noxious weeds on private property may request the eradication of nuisance weeds found on adjacent state-owned right of way.

A written application must be submitted to the property owner's local highway district office.

To request an application, you can contact the appropriate district highway office.

Drivers are reminded to use extra caution when crews spraying for weeds are out on the roads.

Toyota Kentucky rolls off 13th millionth vehicle

GEORGETOWN (KT) – A special RAV4 Hybrid that rolled off the line at Toyota's largest plant worldwide in Georgetown, Ky., marked the 13th millionth vehicle assembled at Toyota Motor Manufacturing Kentucky, or TMMK, since production started in 1988.

"On one hand, it's hard to believe we have produced 13 million vehicles," said Susan Elkington, TMMK president. "However, when you consider the dedication and skill of our Kentucky team, it isn't so hard to imagine. It's incredible to think about our customers, their families and all the places they've gone in our 13 million vehicles. Looking forward, we are excited about the future of mobility and being able to take more people, more places."

TMMK, best known for producing the Camry and Avalon, began production of the RAV4 Hybrid in January 2020 as the result of investments by Toyota, totaling over $1.5 billion since 2017. This was part of a larger commitment by the company to invest over $13 billion in its North American manufacturing operations from 2017 to 2021. That goal was reached a year early while creating over 6,500 jobs.

The 1,300-acre Georgetown campus, Toyota's first plant in North America, represents an $8 billion investment and employs over 10,000 Kentuckians. It is also home to a powertrain facility on track to reach its own milestone this year, producing its 13 millionth engine.

"The engine is the heart of every vehicle and our powertrain team takes that responsibility very seriously," said David Rosier, TMMK powertrain head. "We're especially proud to be a part of Toyota's commitment to alternative fueled vehicles and the future of mobility in North America."

According to the company, Toyota has been the leading manufacturer of alternative powered vehicle sales in the United States for 21 consecutive years. By 2025, Toyota's goal is to have 40% of new vehicle sales be electrified models, and by 2030 expects that to increase to nearly 70%. Globally, this commitment to alternative fueled vehicles has resulted in the avoidance of an estimated 139 million tons of greenhouse gas into the atmosphere.

Toyota Kentucky is recognizing the milestones with a $1.3 million commitment to furthering STEM education and workforce development programs across Kentucky. Funds will be utilized to engage diverse and under-resourced youth by exposing them to great manufacturing career opportunities.

A few of the grant recipients include:

- Rise STEM Academy for Girls.
- Jobs for America's Graduates.
- -Black Male Working Academy.
- Prichard Committee.
- Partners for Youth.

It was a year of milestones for the automaker. In February, the company celebrated its 30 millionth North American produced vehicle, a Toyota Sienna produced at its Princeton, Ind., plant. Later this year, Toyota Kentucky will celebrate its 35th anniversary and the production of its 10 millionth Camry.

Stoops: No time to waste

Kentucky has time on its hands as it begins spring practice.

The Wildcats will have five weeks to install a new system implemented by offensive coordinator Liam Coen. Kentucky coach Mark Stoops said Coen has already “implemented some things for them,” but added there’s “a great deal to go through.”

The Kentucky coach said the staff and players will need to “use our time wisely.”

“Everything is going to be new obviously from terminology to formations to the operation,” he said. “From getting under center, different tempos, different cadences, there’s a lot.”

“There’s a lot to go into it, so we really have to use these practices wisely. The nice thing with the way our schedule is, it’s taxing on our players and our coaches, but we go for five weeks, so we have a long time.”

Stoops admitted the scheme is “fancy” but added football is still a “fundamental game and that’s what you can’t get away from.”

“There is so much big-picture things to get in and to get done and to install, but you also fundamentally always got to get better every time you take the field,” he said. “There’s a lot to do but it’s an exciting time.”

Stoops added the change in schemes means the battle for spots, especially on offense are “wide open.”

“You have to go out and prove it every day,” he said. “Obviously, we have some guys that we feel really good about who have proved themselves for a long time.”

“We expect them to be a really good player no matter what system they’re in. But there’s also a bunch of guys that we’re looking at that need to take it to another level.”

The Wildcats also will be looking for a new quarterback, a race that likely will be between University of Auburn transfer Joey Gatewood, Bau Allen and Nik Scalzo this spring.

Preston Spradlin and the Morehead State Eagles will play West Virginia in the opening round of the NCAA Tournament. (Morehead State Athletics)

Pulling for Preston

Calipari hopes Spradlin, Eagles spread their wings in NCAA tourney

Kentucky wasn’t among the 68 teams invited to the NCAA Tournament on Selection Sunday. Louisville was one of the first four teams out and will be the first replacement team if one of the invitees drops out because of COVID-19 protocols.

Only one team from the Bluegrass — Morehead State — will be part of the Big Dance this season and the Eagles have a connection to the Wildcats. Morehead State coach Preston Spradlin served five seasons at Kentucky where he worked as a graduate assistant and later as director of operations under Wildcats coach John Calipari.

The Eagles are soaring and carry a seven-game winning streak into the Big Dance. Morehead edged Eastern Kentucky 71-68 in the Ohio Valley Conference semifinals and rolled past regular-season league champion Belmont in the OVC finals by double digits. The Eagles not only easily defeated the Bruins in the tournament finale but beat Belmont 89-82 in overtime the week prior, giving Preston’s squad a boost of confidence going into the postseason.

Before he became interim and later head coach at Morehead, Spradlin dissected game film, was the point man when it came to running Calipari’s camps, both at home and throughout the state, and did so with a calm and collected demeanor.

“(He) was involved in all of our meetings, our staff meetings, video, really bright basketball guy,” Calipari said. “(He was) really a level-headed.”

As a member of Calipari’s staff, Spradlin also played a role in the development of Kentucky’s players on the court. He was often called on to guard the Wildcats behind the scenes because of his shooting skills.

“I put him in practice because he could still play,” Calipari recalled. “I mean, he was a really good shooter.”

Dominic Lombardi, who also served as an assistant video coordinator with Spradlin while both were at Kentucky, is in his third season as an assistant coach with the Eagles. Last week during a phone conversation with Calipari, Spradlin credited Lombardi for having a role in the Eagles’ success this season.

“He said, ‘coach, Dom has done unbelievable work, he has been just an absolute giant,’” Calipari said. “And that’s what he’s about. I mean, pushing the guys around him, not worrying about himself. I told him (that), he said, ‘My team was tough, coach. They were tough.’”

The Eagles will take on No. 3 seed West Virginia in the opening round of the NCAA Tournament at 9:50 p.m. Friday in Indianapolis. Morehead (23-7) is the No. 14 seed in the Midwest Region. Spradlin’s squad is on a roll and Calipari said teams such as the Eagles will be no easy match for lower-seeded teams to open the Big Dance.

“I told him you should go into this thing (to win it),” Calipari said. “Look, it doesn’t matter. No one is going to want to play them. You’ve got some teams out there that are mid-major teams that you’re like saying, ‘Sheesh.’ Who wants to play them?”

Past history suggests the Eagles are capable of pulling off an upset in the opening round despite the long odds stacked against higher-seeded teams such as the Eagles. In its last appearance in the Big Dance in 2011, the Eagles shocked No. 4 seed Louisville before falling to Richmond in the second round.

The Eagles were the only team Kentucky beat while ranked this season as the Wildcats defeated Morehead 81-45 in the season-opener for both teams last November.

It didn’t take long for the Eagles to regroup and find their stride.

Four months after his squad rolled to an easy victory, Calipari will be cheering on the Eagles once the prestigious tournament begins later this week.

“I’m happy that those guys have done what they’ve done, they’re in the NCAA Tournament and they won their league,” he said. “It’s just been good.”

Elzy, Cats savor bid

Kyra Elzy isn’t worried about her team’s mindset going into the NCAA Tournament.

The Wildcats (17-8) have lost three of their past five games but more than a week following a 77-66 loss to Georgia in the Southeastern Conference quarterfinals, Elzy said her squad is mentally prepared to start dancing.

“We have had some of our best practices of the year,” she said. “I like the energy, I like the focus and we are looking forward to going to Texas to make a run.”

Kentucky is the fourth seed in the Riverwalk Region and will take on No. 13 seed Idaho State at 2 p.m. Sunday in the opening round. Moments after learning their first-round opponent in San Antonio, the Wildcats began making preparations for the trip to Texas.

“The staff is already hard at work breaking down film,” Elzy said. “This team has been resilient all year. We’ve had our ups and downs, but I love together we are. We battle together and there is an overall excitement. This is what you play for — March Madness here we are.”

The top seed in Kentucky’s region is Connecticut. For the Wildcats to make a run, Elzy said her squad will have to “sell out defensively.” She added they also must “have a balanced scoring attack” in order to prolong the season.

“We need to have our heart on the floor, no matter what defense we are in,” she said. “When we are at our best, we’re pushing the ball in transition and we have three or four people scoring in double figures.”

No alarm!

Smell of smoke part of prep for bypass work

By Keith Taylor
Citizen Publisher

If you are smelling smoke in the air, don't be alarmed.

The Berea Fire Department has fielded calls from residents within the city about a smoke odor during the past couple of weeks.

The Berea Fire Department advised residents not to be concerned about the smell.

"This smoke is coming from the Allen Company doing construction on the new bypass," the Berea Fire Department said in a Facebook post. "They are just burning brush from trees they had to remove to clear the way."

The post added that "there is no trash or illegal products in their burn piles" and added that a recent increase in blowing winds has contributed to spread of the smoke.

"There should not be any concern about air quality or lack of safety. The wind has just picked up which has caused the smoke to spread over a larger area than expected."

The Berea Fire Department is working closely with the Allen Company "to ensure this controlled burn stays under control."

"We will do what we can to help control the smoke as well. (We all) apologize for any concern, scares, or inconvenience this may have caused. Rest assured, everything is under control and there is nothing to worry about."

The Allen Company has begun work on the Berea Bypass extension recently and is a project that has been several years in the making.

The project is expected to take approximately 365 days to complete. and will depend on the weather conditions during the next 12 months.

Engineers rendering of the multi-use pavilion/farmer's market, which the Berea Tourism Commission will recommend naming the Chestnut Street Pavilion.

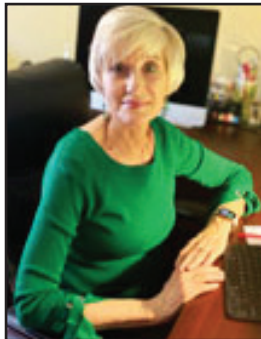

The Berea Tourism and Convention Commission voted to recommend a name for the multi-use pavilion and Berea Farmer's Market venue on Chestnut Street. In a close vote, commissioners opted to recommend to the Berea City Council that the facility be named Chestnut Street Pavilion.

At a recent tourism meeting,

Chairman Patrick Huston gave the commission three options from which to choose, which were the top suggestions offered by the public after a public call for proposals. The options included the Chestnut

Mary Beth Bevins

Mary Beth Bevins, 73, passed away at home after an extended illness on Wednesday, March 17, 2021.

She was born in Danville, Kentucky to the late John Cecil and Mary Elizabeth Dillon Adams. She was a member of Westside Baptist Church in Berea and a member/treasurer of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Mary Beth Bevins graduated from Berea College in 1969 with a B.A. degree in Mathematics. She earned an M.S. degree in Physical Education from Eastern Kentucky University the following year and, in 1975, Mary Beth joined the Berea College staff. Although she only stayed for a year in her part-time position in the Development office, she returned to College and had held various faculty and staff positions for 32 years. During her long service, she was an instructor, a coach, an office manager, an equipment director, and a program assistant for the physical education department. She also taught a wide variety of courses and coached women's field hockey, tennis, and a co-ed cheerleading squad. She held the position of secretary for the Kentucky Women's Intercollegiate Conference and tournament director for several KWIC tournaments. During this time, she also served the College as head resident for Pearson Dorm for two years, as the Secretary for the Director of Seabury Center and Dance Programs, as the Pool and Program Manager for Physical Education, Health, Athletics, and Dance; and, most recently, as the Director of Seabury Center and Aquatics from 1999-2008. It was as the director that she was able to incorporate her many years of experience into the complex management of a multi-faceted facility and its many programs.

Mary Beth was, of course, best known for her work in Aquatics. She had Red Cross certifications from basic level to Instructor Trainer and the majority of her professional career was devoted to teaching swim classes and certifying lifeguards. Mary Beth's many years of work with the swim screening process was about a great deal more than helping students meet the requirement for graduation - it was about having a passion for her work and having a true conviction to ensure that all Berea College students would know how to swim upon leaving Berea.

Besides her work at the College, Mary Beth was actively involved in 4-H for over 22 years, serving as a 4-H leader and in both the Vice-President and President roles for the Madison County 4-H Council. In addition, she was a Red Cross volunteer for 31 years and served on the Red Cross Board for 11 of those years.

Mary Beth Bevins was a dedicated instructor, administrator, mentor and friend. She will be greatly missed by her family and friends.

Mary Beth is survived by her loving husband of 51 years, Bob Bevins; her two daughters, Amy Lynne (Keith) Pinson of Berea and Julie Anne (Ryan Weir) Bevins of Easton, PA; her two granddaughters, Chloe, and Addison Pinson; five half-brothers, John, Lew, Orv, Brent and the late Darrel Adams.

Funeral services were at 11 a.m., Tuesday, March 23, 2021 at Lakes Funeral Home. Bro. Allen Livingood officiated. Burial followed in Madison County Memorial Gardens.

The effects of COVID-19 still linger one year later

It's been a little more than a year since the first COVID-19 case was diagnosed in Madison County and we are starting to see daylight at the end of the tunnel. In the 12 months that have passed since the first case was diagnosed, we have lost 103 of our friends and neighbors to this horrible virus. The reality of the virus hit close to home and walked through my front door last fall when I lost my mom at the age of 68. As many of you know, she fought the virus for approximately six weeks before losing her fight on at 3:30 p.m. on Oct. 5. To this day, I still struggle with not having the proper closure because of visitation restrictions and knowing we couldn't be there with mom when she needed us the most is a huge burden to bear. Most of my dreams about mom have been centered around her being within my reach, but not being able to get to her. Knowing that our hands were tied because of COVID-19 protocols is the most inhumane experience I have ever encountered. Just knowing my own mother was dying and we could not be there for her still hurts to the core. Badly. I have tried my best to use my platforms here as publisher of this newspaper, Kentucky Today and through television interviews in an effort to try to make sure other families don't experience the same kind of treatment, and hopefully the restrictions have loosened somewhat. Granted, I understand the seriousness of the virus, but also we have a human obligation to each other, especially our parents and children during a time of need.

More than two months after losing mom, the virus knocked at our door again. My wife and I contracted the virus last December, and thankfully for the most part, our symptoms were mild. Rhonda lost her sense of taste and smell. We have been recovered for approximately three months and have received the vaccine. I'm currently awaiting the second dose of Pfizer, which will occur before my birthday on April 10. One of my good friends, Dennis Campbell, was one of the first in Madison County to contract the disease and attributed his turnaround recovery to hydroxychloroquine, a drug commonly used to fight malaria. I'm glad the treatment worked for my former softball and basketball teammate and thankful he and his family survived the deadly virus. My dad received the drug after he contracted malaria while serving in Vietnam and it saved his life with no side effects. Thankfully, we are on the road to normalcy and three approved vaccines have been the biggest neutralizer since December. It has been a long, hard road, but we are getting there. Slowly, but surely.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Hensley: Zoom 'Gender Talk' was a well organized event

Dear Editor:
The Women's and Gender Non-Conforming Center in partnership with Law, Ethics and Society of Berea College went forward with a provocatively titled "Gender Talk: White Citizenship as Terrorism: Make America Great Again, Again," one-hour webinar featuring Dr. Amy Brandzel (they/them) of the University of New Mexico and Dr. Mireille Pardon (she/her) of Berea College's History Department. Dr. Brandzel justified the title of the event through their description of terrorism as the creation of a state of fear, distress and uncertainty through violence or the threat of violence. According to Dr. Brandzel, an imagined fear of persecution, or loss of racial power by whites compels white racial terrorism against Black, Indigenous and other People of Color in our society. They pointed to the recent and historic removal/withholding of civil rights on the basis of race, ethnicity, and religion as evidence of white citizenship as terrorism. Dr. Brandzel highlighted legal methods of exclusion from citizenship in U.S. History. They covered the Naturalization Act of 1790, the Page Act of 1875, the Chinese Exclusion Act of 1882, the Expatriation Act of 1907, and the 2013 U.S. Supreme Court case of Shelby County vs. Holder in their overview of citizenship. Dr. Brandzel brought attention to the many actions of the previous presidential administration to further restrict access to, and the rights of citizenship. The title, it seems, was designed to juxtapose these recent efforts with our well-documented national history of racist exclusion. Dr. Pardon contextualized Dr. Brandzel's contemporary view of citizenship with ideas of citizenship in Medieval Europe, focusing on the roles of religion and urban/rural placement in prescribing privilege and inclusion. The webinar concluded with a Question and Answer segment featuring respondents from the local community, the students of Berea College, and faculty member Dr. Roy Scudder-Davis of the Biology Department. According to the host Dr. M. Shadee Malaklou, there were over 300 attendees. The content was well organized, cogent, and informative. I appreciated the resolve of the presenters to continue even as they received threats from members of the public prior to the event, largely due to criticism in conservative media. The community of Berea is very fortunate to have access to the college's programs, and should take every opportunity to attend them.

Morris: Current leadership at Berea College questioned

Dear Editor:
In 1859, Republican abolitionist John G. Fee was famously driven out of Berea by slave holding Madison County Democrats riding on the wrong side of history. Today, we have evidence the ideological progeny of Fee's antagonists now run the very institution he founded. Berea College President Lyle Roelofs was quoted recently in various online media sources as saying (in reference to why the Rev. Gabriel Burdett had not received the attention Roelofs believed he deserved): "White privilege can be subtle that way." Those words constituted as unsubtly bigoted a quote as I've ever read attributed to a Berea civic "leader." We have further recently learned Berea College plans to play host to a play deifying a known accomplice to the criminal elements victimizing the black citizenry of Louisville; and has followed through with an online conference which had been billed openly libeling as racist terrorists the more than 74 million Americans of all backgrounds who espouse a color-blind society; ironically, the same philosophy correctly championed by Messrs. Fee and Burdett. Are we really surprised, though? We all know what the Reverends Fee and Burdett would have had to say about the horror which is infanticide posing as a woman's "choice." The current Berea College President has hosted on campus ghoulish butchers complicit in that genocide; an evil which makes the human bondage Fee struggled to abolish pale in comparison. John G. Fee's Berea College has devolved into a hateful, dystopian agent for disunity. Sides are once again being drawn, as surely as they were 160 years ago. My prediction is the forces of darkness will fare no better the next time around than they did the first. Finally, what would the Reverends John G. Fee and Gabriel Burdett's judgment be upon the college's current heretical "leadership?" We trust they actually believed in the words they preached: "Ye shall know them by their fruits." Matthew 7:16

Berger: Room In The Inn saved lives during winter storm

Dear Editor:
Now that we are able to see sunshine and hints of spring are appearing, it is easier to put the winter storms and heavy rainfalls behind us. The citizens of Berea have been fortunate that problems relating to winter were not more difficult. Having help via our local police and fire departments is always a great relief. I want to let the citizens of Berea know of a charity that actually saved lives during the winter storm. Homeless people were trudging in the area looking for a place to hide from the winds, ice and snow. Fortunately, the charity, Room in the Inn, was available to offer warm rooms and food for those without. The charity, with the outstanding help from Creekside Lodge, used a grant they received to make sure there were rooms available to protect needy people during the severe weather we experienced. Thanks to the Lodge, this included a hot breakfast in the morning. Most homeless people are not homeless because they want to be. Each has their own story. Many do work but cannot make enough money to pay the expenses of an apartment. Nevertheless, one person staying outside in zero weather for the night is one too many! I urge you to keep Room In The Inn in your minds and hearts. It is an entirely volunteer organization here in Berea and a good wish, thank you or donation is always appreciated.

Berea Citizen Archives: March 24, 2011

On March 11, 2011, the Kentucky Department for Environmental Protection issued notices of violations to Hitachi Automotive Systems Americas, Incorporated as a result of waste water contaminated with hexavent chromium 6 being released into the company’s storm retention basin. While the company was unsure of how much chromium leaked or where the origin of the leak was, they were taking protective measures to resolve the situation. Director of Human Resources, Jason McGinnis, stated, “We’re currently working with the state now and were fully cooperative. We intend to continue to work with them until it can be resolved. We’re fully committed to do what it takes to get it right.” The leak was discovered on February 4th when discolored water was found in the storm retention basin. Hitachi reported the discovery to the state who came and conducted tests which confirmed the leak. According to a press release from the Commonwealth of Kentucky Energy and Environmental Cabinet stated that the levels of chromium were not related to the discoloration, as a harmless coolant product caused it. Storm water did not leave the Hitachi property and the basin was plugged to prevent further discharge. Berea Utilities worked with Hitachi to treat and dispose of the contaminated water.

Several recent automobile thefts had occurred in Berea with the most recent of the year occurred on March 18, 2011, when a 2000 Dodge Neon valued at $1500 was stolen from a Baugh Street Residence. According to Berea Police Captain, Ken Clark, the keys had been left in the car. Although there were no solid leads, a car stolen that had been stolen from Boone Square Mall was discovered in Rockcastle County with very little damage. On March 5th, a 2001 Ford conversion van with a wheelchair lift, valued at $27,000, was stolen from the parking lot of Glades Road Christian Church. The police had no leads on the theft. On March 12th a 1993 gray Mazda, valued at $200, was towed away from a resident’s drive on Bluebird Avenue. The car had gone un-driven and unregistered for several years. Police suspected that the car was towed by someone and sold for scrap. Officer Clark stated, “I think because of the economy, they are not only stealing copper but anything they can get their hands on. Some we recover, some we don’t. I think people are taking them to drive where they’re going and leaving them

A flyover of Madison County was funded in 2011 by several different agencies including Eastern Kentucky University, the City of Berea, Berea College, Madison County PVA, Madison County Schools, Emergency Management Agency and Madison County Fiscal Court. It had been 3 years since the last flyover. Planes equipped with cameras flew above Madison County and used pictometry to gain accurate maps and images. Pictometry was an information system that was used that combined aerial imaging with a software system. This provided up-to-date information about roads, buildings and waterways in the Madison County area. Information gained from this flyover benefitted many Madison County agencies with the updated data and information it provided.

A one-stop-shop for gardeners of all levels was held at Berea College Gardens and Greenhouse located on Scaffold Cane Road. The one-stop-shop was sponsored by Sustainable Berea in partnership with Berea College’s Spring Plant Sale. Experts were on hand to answer questions and numerous local businesses were on hand, offering anything and everything one could need to start a garden. Local gardeners along with Amanda Sears from the Madison County Extension Office were on hand to answer questions people might have had about gardening.

Four Berea Community High School seniors were recently awarded prestigious scholar ships in various areas. Luke Ambrose, was awarded the PNC Bank / KHSAA 11th region Boys’ Basketball Scholarship. This award is given to one male and one female basketball player from each of Kentucky’s 16 regions. The scholarship is given to students who best represent academic success, leadership, and community service. The scholarship was in the amount of $1,000 that was applied to one year’s school expenses. Adelon French was awarded a scholarship from the Ohio Valley Technical Center at a previously held welding competition. The scholarship was for one free class at Bluegrass Community and Technical School in Lexington. Jesse Edwards received the Just Keep Dreaming Scholarship at a local dance competition. She had written an essay about how dance had helped her throughout high school. The amount of the scholarship was not known at the time of the paper’s publication. Wendy Price was informed that she was a recipient of a scholarship to Lindsey Wilson College. She received the John B. Begley scholarship for full tuition, room and board. To be eligible for this scholarship the scholar was required participate in at least two co-curricular activities and be a leader in at least one. He or she was required to display strong morals and fulfill a service component. Wendy was the editor of the BCHS newspaper and an active participant in drama and the local Berea Festival Dancers.

Blood not always thicker than water

People often use the phrase “blood is thicker than water.” It is almost cliché at this point, and it’s becoming increasingly irrelevant. It is no secret that in smaller, rural communities, the family dynamic is vastly different from larger, urban areas. However, despite the close-knit feel many families have in our community, blood isn’t always thicker than water.

A good friend says, “blood might be thicker, but sometimes water is there when blood isn’t.”

In small communities like Kirksville, where there is a Rockwell-esque feel, as if everyone is familiar, the people who may have been there for you at your most vulnerable may not be the people to whom you are genetically bound.

The person who helped your world to begin turning again might have been someone at Roundhill Store that you only see a few times a week, it might be a neighbor up the street, or it might be a passerby who only knows you by association.

In a world where “family” doesn’t look the same across the board, let’s normalize making family just equal love. When people love you enough to help you, isn’t that what a family is? All my life, I have heard these clichés that indicate only your family will love you enough to help you in your time of need, but as I get older and see our community grow, I realize this isn’t true.

People who love you will always be there for you in your time of need, and those people are your family- shared ancestor or no. If these clichés were true, what would it mean for our community members who have no biological family remaining? The widower with no children, the only child who never married or had children, or anyone else who has suffered tremendous loss and is left alone in the world? Do they truly lack family? Or do they just lack people who are biologically related to them?

When we overuse these clichés, it tells people who already feel alone that they have no one who genuinely loves them- no one who is willing to help them. In a community like Kirksville, that is simply not the case.

For several years I have heard my father say, “there are three kinds of people in the world: people who lie about doing, people who dream about doing, and people who just do.” There are so many people in Kirksville who are just “do-ers”; they do the right thing to help people with enormous integrity and never utter a word to make themselves shine because of their good deeds. Those “do-ers” are the people I want in my family- because, at the end of the day, biological family isn’t all you have. I think that my uncle, Earl Barnes, was probably the truest testament to this sentiment that I have ever encountered.

He had friends all over the map that considered him their family because he was in their corner in times of need- and any other time. Uncle Earl was willing to help them, love them, pray for them, whatever the situation called for.

The amount or type of people you have in your life directly correlates to the love you show to people and how much of a “do-er” you are willing to be. Kirksville is full of quiet “do-ers” who just want to help their fellow community members find a life they are proud of.

Growing up here means that I have a lot of family who aren’t required by biological ties to love me; they love me because they choose to ... and sometimes that is the best kind of family.

Home built in 1865 is filled with family, antiques

I was excited to meet a Kingston neighbor, Doug Luster.

I had first noticed a log cabin in his back yard while driving past it on Battlefield Memorial Highway. He was kind enough to respond to my interest. He showed me the log cabin building which used rocks for some of the chinking. He believes it was used primarily for cooking in the past and he will be tearing the building down since the condition has deteriorated.

Doug has owned the home for around five years. He was lucky enough to know the former owners. They gave him first dibs when they were ready to sell. He jumped at the chance to purchase it. Doug didn’t even ask the price. He was happy to move back home with Agnes, his wife of 52 years.

Doug was originally a local. He worked in Irvine in the grocery business at one time. He has lived and worked in Somerset and Florida. Even though he could be retired, he still works. He has many plans for outdoor home projects. I was impressed with his work ethic and energy.

Doug also let me view his home. He believes it was built around 1865. The front door is flanked by stained glass.

Tammy Whittamore

(Doug found a stamp with “1865 New York” inscribed).

It opens to reveal a curved wooden stairway. There are several rooms with lots of beautiful woodwork. Most of them have 12-foot ceilings and 10-foot doors. There are several fireplaces in the house, with each being unique.

The chimneys are still original. A kitchen was added in the 1960s to the back of the house. Doug has filled his home with family and beloved antique furniture.

If you have any further stories about Doug’s home, e-mail me. I know he would be interested.

When you go to visit Grandma, please don't go empty handed

When you go to visit Grandma, don't go empty handed. A man was planning to visit his grandmother in her new apartment, so he called her to get directions, which she gladly provided.

"Now, remember, when you come through the front door of the apartment building, you'll see an elevator. With your elbow, push the button for the third floor. When you get out of the elevator, look for apartment number 35. With your elbow, press the doorbell."

"That all sounds very easy, Grandma," the grandson said, "but why am I pressing all these buttons with my elbow?" "You're not coming empty handed, are you?"

That old story certainly turns the tables on grandchildren. Grandparents give and give and give and usually ask nothing in return. They enjoy supplying the wants and needs of their grandchildren.

You know, the Lord is like that, too.

The psalmist tells us that all people and all creatures turn their eyes upon the Lord because he meets their needs.

"Thou openest thine hand and satisfiest the desire of every living thing" (Psalm 145:16).

Perhaps there have been times in your life when you didn't know how you were going to be able to pay the bills, buy medicine or purchase food. Then, unexpectedly, you put your hand into the pocket of a coat your grandmother had given you last year and you felt something in there. You pull it out, and you now have in your hand enough money to meet the need.

You could wrongly conclude that you were just lucky, or you could turn your eyes upon the Lord and thank Him for meeting your needs.

Perhaps there have been times when the monthly bills took every penny you had, and now you can't even afford to fill your car with gas to get to work. Just then, Grandma sends an early birthday card with enough money in it to see you through.

You could say it was a lucky thing that the card came early, or you could turn your eyes upon the Lord and thank Him for meeting your needs.

Grandparents tend to be fantastic safety nets. The fact is they are the Lord's greatest helpers. So, when grandparents do something amazing for you, turn your eyes upon the Lord and thank him for meeting your needs, and for giving you such great grandparents.

Beshear signs insulin bill into law

FRANKFORT (KT) – Gov. Andy Beshear signed a number of bills into law on Monday and said he was vetoing several others.

One of the bills garnering the most attention was House Bill 95, which caps a 30-day supply of insulin at $30.

Rep. Danny Bentley, R-Russell was the main sponsor of the bill while Rep. Patti Minter, D-Bowling Green, was one of the co-sponsors. Bentley is diabetic himself, while Minter has a son with Type I diabetes.

“This is a day of hope for so many families across Kentucky,” Minter said. “Signing this bill does more today than just lower the cost of a drug, it will make life better for thousands and thousands of people in this state, and it will save lives.”

Bentley, who was also on hand for the virtual bill signing event, added, “The diabetics of Kentucky, who number of 500,000, needed this bill. This is a better bill than we started out with, because it’s $30, not $100, so that helps a lot more people.”

He also pointed that this year is the 100th anniversary of the development of insulin.

Beshear, a Democrat, announced he had signed a dozen more health-related bills, and vetoed five passed by the Republican supermajorities in the House and Senate, which he said violated the Constitution.

“They were not about moving Kentucky forward or were not about what is best for the people of Kentucky,” he said. “Rather, these bills were more politically related, violate the state Constitution, chip away at our strong separation of powers, simply because of who is sitting in this chair.”

He described what he saw with these. “They attempted to take appointments, duties and other things away from this Governor’s office. The same powers and duties that virtually every governor before me had, simply because of the last set of elections. That is not good for our democracy.”

The bills he says he vetoed and why include:

- HB 275, because it takes the executive power placed with the governor on excess funds, which had been with the Finance and Administration Cabinet, to the control of the State Treasurer.
- SB 228, which takes away the governor’s power to fill vacancies in the United States Senate, and gives it to the central committee of the party of the most recent occupant, who would send the governor three names from which to choose.

Downward trend: COVID-19 cases still on the decline

FRANKFORT (KT) – More good news on the COVID-19 front in Kentucky this week as new cases, deaths and the state’s positivity rate, all continued their decline.

A total of 294 new cases were reported to state public health officials Monday. That was 22 less than Sunday, and down 102 from last Monday. This raises Kentucky’s total number of positive cases during the pandemic to 416,610.

There were only four counties reporting more than 10 cases: Jefferson had 108, Knox 18, Warren 12, and Madison 11.

The number of new deaths that were reported as having gone through the entire system on Monday was 11.

Last week, Gov. Andy Beshear said an audit found 604 more deaths between November and the end of January, when the surge was at its peak. Because of that audit 50 more historic deaths were added to the list on Monday, making it a total of 5,799 Kentuckians who have been lost due to the coronavirus, since the first death took place in late March 2020.

“We continue to work to make sure that we have no unknown soldiers, that every family who is grieving is recognized, as we come out of the worst pandemic of our lifetime that we know it’s true toll,” Beshear said.

The latest victims ranged in age from 67 to 91. Two of them were from Franklin County; while there was one each in Carter, Crittenden, Fulton, Harrison, Hickman, Kenton, Letcher, Marshall and Perry counties.

The state’s positivity rate dropped to 2.93%, based on a seven-day rolling average. This is the lowest figure since at least last July, marking the second day in a row below 3%.

The governor commented on the progress made in the outbreaks at long-term care facilities across the state, where at one point, 67% of Kentucky’s deaths came from those centers. On Monday, there were only two new resident cases and five among staff members, and visitations have resumed.

“This progress depends on us,” he said. “As these facilities reopen their doors, they need us, everybody else in Kentucky to sign up for the vaccine. Individuals who don’t get the vaccine and then visit loved ones in these facilities, run the risk at a later point of spreading it and ultimately causing us to lose out on our gains and to lose more people.”

Hospitalizations also saw a drop on Monday. There were 434 people in the hospital due to COVID-19. Of them, 95 were in ICU and 63 on a ventilator.

“We’ve come too far and we’ve lost too much to mess this up now, so please continue to wear your masks until we get everybody vaccinated,” Beshear said.

Lady Eagles advance to region semis

Eagles' season comes to close with loss to Douglass

The Madison Southern Lady Eagles used a 12-2 run to close out Monday's 11th Region Tournament game against Great Crossing to advance to the region semi-finals with a 49-44 victory.

The trio of Samantha Cornelison, Reece Estep, and Lacie Parks paved the way to victory. Cornelison scored a team-high 19 points, while Estep added 14 points and 20 rebounds. Parks finished with 10 points.

Monday's game was the second time Southern and Great Crossing tangled in 2021. On Feb. 20, Great Crossing blew out Southern 83-44 as the Lady Warhawks shot 54 percent from the floor. Monday, Southern's defense stepped up and held Great Crossing to 27 percent shooting.

"I was more than happy because it was another tough game where we had to make plays at the end to pull it out," Coach Josh Curtis said. "That speaks to the mental toughness of our team to never feel like they are down and out."

Curtis credited Morgan Flannery and Parks's defensive effort as they held Great Crossing's duo of Braylee McMath and Timothi Williams to single digits. In February, the pair combined for 39 points. On Monday, the duo scored a combined 17 points.

Last Friday, Southern (18-6) captured the 44th District title with a 40-32 win over Madison Central. Flannery led Southern with 12 points, while Macie Daniels added 10.

Southern faced Lafayette (15-6) Wednesday night in the semi-finals.

In January, Southern defeated the Lady Generals, 52-36. Curtis said he expects a much different Lafayette team in the semi-finals.

Mike Moore

"They have gotten much better since we played them at the end of January," Curtis said. "They have been one of the hottest teams in the 11th Region since then. They have a dominant point forward in Anaya Brown, and they surround her with shooters. We will have to play really well to give ourselves a chance to win."

Tipoff time for the Lafayette game is 5:30 p.m. at Eastern Kentucky University's McBrayer Arena.

Eagles' season ends with loss in region

The 2020 season came to an end for the Madison Southern Eagles Tuesday night with a 62-50 loss to Frederick Douglass in the first round of the 11th Region Tournament.

The game boiled down to second-chance opportunities, according to Southern coach Austin Newton.

"They scored 45 second-chance points and off turn-overs," Newton said.

Southern was outrebounded 35-24 and committed 22 turn-overs in the contest.

Trent DeVries was Southern's top scorer in the game, finishing with 19 points and eight rebounds. Blake Simpson added eight points, while Brett Ersland finished with five points.

Despite the loss, Newton said his team battled the whole season.

"I'm proud of the fight of my team and the way we have persevered through this wild and crazy season," he said.

Last Friday, the Eagles lost the 44th District championship game to Madison Southern, 71-58. Jay Rose lead the Eagles with 14 points in that game. Ersland and Jayden Adams added 12 points each, while DeVries finished with seven points.

Madison Southern finished its season with an 11-12

Recipes from the heart

As a young girl, I can remember always being excited when my cousin would call and tell me that she was making lasanga and for me to come over and have some. She made my favorite! Later she told me that she got the recipe from a Delmonico lasanga noodle box. I was so glad to find out when I was older and married, that my mom had cut the recipe off of a box a number of years before. I have not seen Delmonico pasta in stores for years and I assume they have been bought out or went out of business. This is the recipe that my cousin used and my mother saved.

Home-Style Lasanga

Ingredients
 3/4 pound ground pork
 3/4 pound ground beef
 3/4 cup onion, chopped
 1 clove garlic, crushed
 2 cups water
 2 - 6 oz. cans tomato paste
 1 tsp dried basil
 1 tsp salt
 1/2 tsp salt
 1/2 tsp black pepper
 1 pound lasanga noodles
 4 cups ricotta cheese
 2 cups shredded mozzarella
 4 eggs, lightly beaten

Directions

In a large, deep pan, brown ground pork, ground beef, onion, and garlic. Drain well and return to the pan. Stir in water, tomato paste, basil, salt and pepper. Bring to a boil. Reduce heat and simmer 30 minutes. Prepare noodles according to package directions. In a large bowl, mix ricotta, and eggs. In a 9" x 9" pan (I recommend spraying pan with a non-cook spray) layer meat, pasta, ricotta then mozzarella. Begin and end with the meat mixture. Top with parmesan cheese. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes. Let stand 10 minutes before serving.

Tough loss

Cats can't stop Clark in loss to Hawkeyes

LEXINGTON — Kentucky couldn't stop Caitlin Clark. The Iowa freshman guard scored 35 points to lead the Hawkeyes to an 86-72 win over the Wildcats in the second round of the NCAA Tournament Tuesday in San Antonio.

"She hit some really tough shots," Kentucky coach Kyra Elzy said. "She's a phenomenal scorer. We could have been better defensively today."

Kentucky's season came to an end at 18-9. Iowa (20-9) advances to the Sweet Sixteen and will play the winner of the UConn-Syracuse contest next weekend in San Antonio.

Clark, the nation's leading scorer at 26.5 points per game, set the tone early for fifth-seeded Hawkeyes, scoring 24 points in the first two quarters.

"She was making tough shots," Kentucky junior Rhyne Howard said. "We made her take tough shots. She was just hitting and she was hot. She was making everything. Not much we really could have done (differently)."

Clark was 8-of-11 from the field and connected on six 3-pointers in the first half as she eclipsed the 30-point plateau for the 12th time this season.

The Hawkeyes scored the first 11 points of the contest and led from start to finish. The Wildcats missed their first eight shots and didn't score their first basket until Blair Green connected on a jumper at the 5:21 mark of the opening quarter.

Iowa outscored the Wildcats 26-11 in the second frame and led 49-22 at the break.

"I thought early on we had some good looks, at the rim," Elzy said. "They didn't go in and I think we let our offense affect our defense. We let them go on an (11-0) run, dug ourselves in a hole, and really never recovered from there."

Elzy added not getting stops in the first half played a role in her team's downfall that prevented her squad from making a run at the Hawkeyes.

"Our offense affected our defense early," Elzy said. "In the second half, I thought we turned it up in the third quarter and started to make a run, but we dug ourselves too deep of a hole. We won the second half, but it was too deep of a hole to come out of."

Rhyne Howard led the Wildcats with 28 points, followed by Dre' Edwards with 16 and Jasmine Massengill with 10. Howard added five rebounds and eight assists but managed just seven points in the first half and tallied 21 in the final two quarters.

"Sometimes the shot does not go in," Elzy said of Howard's slow start in the opening half.

"That's part of basketball, but I thought she continued to play hard ... she stayed the course."

Elzy closed out her first season as coach of the Wildcats with 18 victories after taking over for Matthew Mitchell, who retired prior to the season opener earlier this year.

"Overall, today wasn't our day," she said. "It was a disappointing finish. We have to learn from this and grow."

Boston joins Clarke, Jackson in declaring for Draft

LEXINGTON (KT) — BJ Boston has decided to forgo his collegiate career and pursue a professional career.

The Kentucky freshman guard is the third player to declare for the NBA draft since the season ended with a 74-73 loss to Mississippi State on March 11 in the Southeastern Conference Tournament. Classmates Isaiah Jackson and Terrence Clarke also declared for the draft this week. Jackson hasn't fully committed, not signing with an agent to leave the door open for a possible return.

Boston started 24 of 25 games and averaged 11.5 points per game and 4.5 rebounds per outing. He led the team by scoring double figures in 17 games and made 23 3-pointers in the last nine games.

"Being a professional basketball player has been my dream for as long as I can remember," he said. "I'm excited about this opportunity and I know that I will have the foundation to handle anything that comes my way because of my time as a Wildcat. With that being said, I will be declaring for the 2021 NBA Draft."

Kentucky coach John Calipari said Boston took a step forward as the season progressed.

"Brandon would be the first to tell you this season wasn't easy," he said. "It was tough and filled with challenges. But what impressed me with him is how he handled any adversity thrown his way like a professional would — with maturity and with a work ethic that some of our best guys in that league have had."

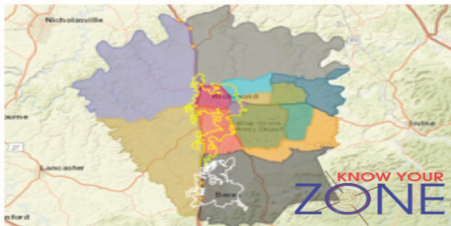

Calipari added Boston

made strides after breaking his finger last summer.

"He just kept working. BJ got so much better as the season went on and has only scratched the surface of who he is going to become as a player," the Kentucky coach said. "He has the mindset, the drive, and the skillset to succeed in that league. BJ and his family know they have my full support and I look forward to watching him chase his dreams."

The annual Easter Egg hunt sponsored by the Berea Kiwanis Club will feature a different look when it returns after the yearly event was canceled last year because of COVID-19.

The 84th edition of the annual event will be a drive-thru hunt Saturday from 10-11 a.m. at the Berea Skate Park, located on 400 North Broadway, behind the Russell Acton Folk Center.

The club will hand out a goody bag featuring eggs and candy, while following COVID-19 protocols.

Vehicles will line from the back entrance of the folk center and make their way toward the Berea City Park annex.

The hunt won't feature a "Golden Egg" this time, but Kiwanis member David Mayo is happy to see the event return this year.

"It will be a pared-down event, but we're going to have it."

In memory of Tillie Dog park to be named after late canine

The Berea City Council Parks and Recreation Committee voted to recommend an official name for the Harrison Road dog park, honoring Tillie, the late local canine who used to accompany hikers to the Pinnacles.

Councilmember Teresa Scenters suggested the name Tillie Off Leash Dog Area at last week's park's meeting, and the committee voted unanimously to recommend the name for approval by the Berea City Council.

In addition, Scenters recommended that the park include signage highlighting the details of Tillie's story. The sign could be like the ones used in the Berea Story Trail in

Tourism commission pursues USDA grant to help develop strategic plan

The Berea Tourism and Convention Commission voted to commit funds in the hope of landing a USDA matching grant. The money would be used to help in the development of a tourism strategic plan for Berea. In the special called meeting on Monday, Commissioner Rick Thomas said that Martina Leforce identified the grant opportunity available through the USDA Rural Development division, in which the city could be eligible for up to $36,000 in USDA funds, provided that tourism commits to approximately 25 percent of the cost, or $14,000, if the grant is ultimately approved. Thomas explained the grant presents an opportunity to shape a long-term vision for tourism in Berea, including bringing together all of the stakeholders, such as local merchants, artisans, Berea College, and other interested parties. "We think it's a good way to leverage limited tourism funds to accomplish big things," Thomas said, adding that the special called meeting had to be called Monday because the grant application deadline was Wednesday. Thomas noted that Berea Mayor Bruce Fraley recently met with Leforce and Vallorie Henderson, of the Kentucky Small Business Development Center in Berea. Having filled out the application for the USDA grant for $100,000 to help fund the Chestnut Street Pavilion, Fraley prepared the application for this latest grant, noting it will bring federal tax dollars back into Berea. "I think this will be very helpful. If this is approved it actually accomplishes a couple of different things. "It gets 75 percent of a detailed strategic plan specifically for tourism paid for with federal funds which, all of us pay our federal taxes, and it's bringing that back to the community," Fraley said, addressing the commission. "I think it will illuminate a step-by-step process for the commission in time for you to follow and it just looked like a really good opportunity for us to apply this year," he added. Officials said the USDA funds would be used for a Berea Tourism Comprehensive Strategic Plan facilitator. If the city lands the grant, officials are hoping the funds could be available at the beginning of the next fiscal year, with a tourism strategic plan done as early as the spring of 2022.

Berea City Park, Scenters suggested. "She's the most famous dog in Berea in my memory," Scenters said of Tillie when putting forward he recommendation. Other committee members noted the suggestion to honor Tillie has been met with great enthusiasm from citizens. Tillie passed away in July of 2013 at the age of 13. She began living with Ron and Bhana Deaver beginning in about 2003, where the couple resided in a home near Indian Fort. The friendly canine was known to accompany hikers on their treks to the Pinnacles as much as 10 times a day. Tillie wore a golden tag that read: "My name is Tillie. I am not a stray. I live next door. Let's go for a hike!" Last week, Berea

City Administrator David Gregory noted that fencing at the dog park is expected to be installed as early as Thursday, and that city crews from the Public Works Department have been installing a water line to serve the bottle filler and dog water bowl. Meanwhile, benches were installed on Monday. Berea Parks and Recreation Chair John Payne said he is relieved to see progress on the facility after years of discussing it. "It's been nice to see actual progress on this dog park that's been 12 years in the running," Payne said.

The dog park is projected to cost less than $20,000.

Easter signifies hope and a time of celebration

Easter has always been a special part of my life. Our family has always celebrated the resurrection, one of the most meaningful events for believers since the beginning of time. Easter signifies the death, burial and resurrection of Jesus Christ. The events of Holy Week were very well-documented in “The Passion of Christ,” which brought the scriptures to life. Since birth, mom and dad made sure we attended Easter services, and sometimes, we attended sunrise service.

We listened to sermons from pastors such as Rev. Tommy Masters, Rev. Owen Moody, and the late Rev. Milt King until dad began pastoring churches throughout Madison County. During those times, I thought Easter was a sad occasion because of the death of Jesus, but later in life, I learned the significance of Easter Sunday and the ultimate sacrifice the Savior made for the sins of mankind. Easter always meant a trip to JCPenny to get a new outfit to wear to church on Easter Sunday. Mom and dad always wanted us to look our best and going to the clothing store were like Christmas Day to my sister Taunya and I. We knew we were getting new church clothes and we couldn’t wait to try out the latest trends and styles. That trend has stood the test of time. I always make sure I look my best at Easter and try to wear the latest styles. Although I always wear dress slacks and a shirt, mixed with a tie and or a sport coat to Sunday services and have a closet full of dress clothes, I still make a trip to a clothing store to pick out a “new” outfit. Sometimes there are epic failures involved, such as the one year I wore a bolo tie, without cowboy boots. Now, I don’t claim to be a cowboy, but I do own a pair of boots and like to wear them every so often with blue jeans to create a different look. For the most part, I stick with dress clothes because mom and dad always wanted us to look our best on Easter Sunday or anytime we went to church. I realize the times have changed regarding what we wear to church, but I try to adhere to my traditional attire. Even if I don’t show up in boots, blame it all on my roots.

Bain: College commended

Dear Editor:
The recent event hosted by Berea College, White Citizenship as Terrorism, is an example of addressing controversial issues relevant to current affairs in our country. It encourages critical thinking and independent thought, which is a hallmark of higher education. Berea College should be lauded for events such as this, not criticized.

I would like to commend Berea College on its continued commitment to promoting education and growth by addressing controversial issues and encouraging discussion.

Since its inception, Berea College has always faced controversy and has persevered. It’s hallowed grounds welcomed African American students during the pre-Civil War era. They currently accept a diverse demographic of students from across our country and across the globe. This practice, by definition brings people together as opposed to “tearing them apart.”

As a person who grew up in Berea, I am encouraged by Berea College’s actions. It gives me pride that my hometown’s college doesn’t shy away from ideas that may be unpopular to the local area.

Embracing new and old Easter traditions

Holidays have been celebrated differently since the outbreak of COVID-19 in late 2019. Easter was among the first major holidays to be celebrated differently in 2020, and celebrations likely won’t return to normal in 2021.

Celebrations and social distancing make strange bedfellows. However, it’s possible for people to safely celebrate Easter with their loved ones.

- Watch virtual Mass together. Though it might not be the same as attending Mass in person together as a family, watching virtual Mass together can allow families to engage with their faith alongside one another. If the weather permits, use a projector and set it up outside so families can safely watch in the backyard. Make sure everyone wears masks and keeps their distance. If the weather is not cooperating, families can still watch Mass together, even if they’re not gathered in the same space. Set up a family Zoom call via a smartphone or laptop and then ask all on the call to watch a live stream of Mass on another device.

- Take Easter brunch outside. An outdoor brunch provides another way for families to gather this Easter without compromising their health.

Brunch makes more sense than dinner since it can be eaten in early afternoon when the weather is likely to be warmer than it will be at dinnertime. Heat lamps can add some warmth to outdoor Easter brunches.

- Host an egg hunt in the backyard. The Easter egg hunt is one tradition that need not be sacrificed during the pandemic. Easter egg hunts traditionally take place outdoors, and children can wear masks like many are already doing when going to school or participating in sports and other extracurricular activities.

- Host an Easter movie night. Families isolating and spending the day with only those in their own households can watch a movie that commemorates their Christian faith. Various films are set around Easter, including the classic “The Greatest Story Ever Told” (1965) starring Max von Sydow and Claude Rains and the more recent “Risen” (2016), which focuses on efforts by a Roman military tribune named Clavius (Joseph Fiennes) who is tasked with investigating what happened to Jesus Christ’s body after the Crucifixion.

Families can embrace some old and new traditions as they celebrate Easter in the era of social distancing.

SUDOKU

Level: Intermediate

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Splish, splash! Spring has sprung

Spring has sprung, and Kirksville is in full bloom. It has been very exciting to have warmer temperatures in recent days. While rain may have been a temporary annoyance, the way flowers and trees bloomed in the days after has been nothing short of a Godsend following the winter that seemed to linger forever. Driving through the community provides a colorful showing of Redbud trees, Bradford pear trees, buttercups, and daffodils. Soon enough, we will begin to see daisies sprinkled throughout fields and roadsides. My favorite place to visit in Kirksville during the spring has always been the farm my grandfather leased that belongs to Mrs. Fannie Noe Hendren's family. There is one hill on the very backside covered in daisies- so it became aptly named Daisy Hill. I will always and forever cherish the times I have spent riding through that field in late Spring and early Summer, even if I never get to see it again. After his passing, I'm even more grateful for the memories and fun times I shared with my grandfather that no one can ever take from me. As spring carries us into warmer temperatures and more sunshine, many have begun working outside: cleaning up yards, preparing gardens, and planning home improvement projects. During the initial shutdown of the pandemic last year, home improvement stores seemed inundated with people searching for ways to grow their own food and become more self-sufficient. Plants and seeds were, at times, challenging to come by because of the sudden interest in backyard homesteading. This past weekend, I traveled to some area stores to purchase seeds and plan for my garden. Many stores are prepared for the masses who wish to plant and grow their own. When it comes time to visit a greenhouse, I'll be visiting Williams' Greenhouse in Berea and Warren's Greenhouse in Poosey. They always have good selections, helpful advice, and shopping local is a perk of living in a small town. Don't become so busy with planning and working on various things around your home that you miss out on chances to make memories with your family — as my papaw did with us. At the end of the day, the memories you create with your family will keep you warm and happy in the coldest of times. Pass on the knowledge you have about gardening and home improvement to children, grandchildren, nieces, and nephews- any little one in your family. These are valuable skills that will only help them later in life, and the memories you make during the learning process will last forever. One of the greatest joys of my weekend was taking time with my husband and teaching our goddaughter, Gracie, how to tend to new baby ducks. I'll make a backyard homesteader of her yet — she's already a natural.

Since the beginning of February, approximately 35 Berea College students took part in seven work camps sponsored by Appalachian Volunteers. Projects included school renovations, school recreation, community case work with families in need and picture mounting. Camps took place in Estill County on February 8th (school renovation, in Jackson County on February 15th (school recreation), in Perry County on February 29th (case work), in Clay County on March 14th and 28th (school renovation, and in Berea on March 15 (school renovation) and again March 26th (picture mounting). Berea College received $1,000 from Pittsburg Plate and Glass foundation to assist in financing food and transportation for the camps.

Berea High School and Berea Foundation had a total of eleven participants in the State High School Speech and Debate tournament which took place on the campus of University of Kentucky, April 16-18. All eleven participants received superior ratings at the regional tournament held in Richmond the previous week. Berea Foundation had five students receive superior ratings. They were as follows: Beth Hall in editorial reading; Jackie Gunkler for dramatic interpretative reading; Betty Orwig in junior expository prose; Lee Hisle in junior poetry; and Miriam Pride in radio speaking. In addition, Berea foundation had five participants ranked as good and six rated as excellent. One participant rated as fair. Berea High School had six participants rated as superior. They were as follows: Pauline Smith in serious dramatic reading; Susan Kiteck in serious dramatic reading; Brenda Holt for original oratory; Jewel Gabbard in prose reading; Mary Margaret Abney in prose reading junior division. Berea High school also had 8 students receive excellent ratings and one student received a rating of good.

An aerial photograph and map showing the approximate location of Interstate 75 and the relocation of Kentucky 21 (Wallacetown Road) were on display at the Berea Citizen office. They were placed on loan by the State Highway Department to acquaint residents with the plans that were scheduled to be discussed at a hearing that was held on March 31st at the Madison County Courthouse. Citizens were encouraged to attend and express their views concerning the economic impact the project would have on the community. The hearing was focused on concerns surrounding the relocated section of Kentucky 21 from the intersection of West Chestnut Street at Hymer Food Sales to Interstate 75, about a half mile west of there, and then on to rejoin the present Wallacetown Road at the intersection of O'Possum Kingdom Road. The map showed that the relocated Kentucky 21 will go straight with Chestnut Street to the interchange, and curve southward to Wallacetown Road. The call at the time was for a frontage road to be built west of Interstate 75 between Haiti Road and Angel Road (West Jefferson Street).

A series of fires over the course of previous weeks had destroyed between 100 and 150 acres of forest in Madison, Estill and Jackson Counties. Most of the fires were believed to be caused by carelessness. According to ranger John King of the Berea Forest Division, "We have the same problem every year in the early spring. People want to burn leaves like from their gardens but they are not careful and lose control of the fire. Other fires are caused by the burning of tobacco beds." A five acre fire on Piney Branch seemed to be set on purpose. "It looked like the fellow had followed the road and used his matches at certain intervals. Furthermore, I found a partly burned matchbox behind a tree," said King. The damage was estimated at $500. A fire near McKee, which destroyed seven acres, was started from a tobacco bed as did a fire in the Dreyfus area. Approximately 100 acres in Estill County were destroyed in three fires.

The Berea Ministerial Association sponsored two community-wide services for the Easter weekend. The first service, a Good Friday observance, was held at 6:30 a.m. on the steps of Union Church. Dr. John R. Killinger, associate professor of Christianity and Literature and academic dean of Kentucky Southern College of Louisville was the speaker. His topic for the Easter Sunday service was based on Psalms 93 and was entitled "King of the Flood."

Full bloom!

It is so stirring to see the signs of spring. The white puffy Bradford pear trees, the yellows of forsythia and buttercups, and the colorful spring tulips. It seems to signal the hope of a return to normalcy.

Exciting events are ahead. Kingston Elementary School had a book fair through April 1. They also have a family storybook walk scheduled for April 22 from 5:30 to 7 p.m. An outdoor walk around the school, reading a book page by page. Registration is required at <http://bit.ly/kingstonstorybook-walk>. It sounds like fun. I would register quickly. I don't know how many of you participated in the St. Patrick's Day scavenger hunt in Berea, but I thought it was a lot of fun for families. Sadly, I did it alone) The clues were not too difficult to find. It was good exercise, too. I am looking forward to more local activities.

Be vigilant on April Fools Day! Don't get taken in, but if you do, just laugh about it! Enjoy your Good Friday and Easter Sunday services. I can remember the excitement of picking out Easter dresses for church. Getting those cute pictures taken. Parents making or buying Easter baskets. I hope the kids will be able to have some Easter egg hunts. Start stocking up on eggs, vinegar, and dye now. Get ready to create those masterpieces as a family.

Even if you don't have small kids, you can still dye some for fun. Get crafty. Crayons, stickers, tie dye effects, or glitter. We usually ate the ugly or cracked eggs first. When we were kids, we hid the eggs over and over. Sometimes we hid them indoors. It was always a problem if you did not find them all.

Teachers plant seeds that grow in the hearts of children

I couldn't help but smile as I read the story of the rural Kentucky teacher who took very seriously her job of teaching proper grammar to her pupils.

One day, a cute little first-grade boy looked up from his desk and said, "Teacher, I ain't got no pencil."

"No, No, my little darling," she corrected. "I have no pencil; you have no pencil; he has no pencil. Now, what do you say?"

Quick as a flash, the little fellow responded, "Then who in the heck has got all them danged pencils?"

I pulled that story from a book called "Small Town Tales" that Carolyn Towles of Wheatley, Kentucky, shared with me not long ago. Carolyn was a teacher when she was young, working for a while in one of Kentucky's smallest towns, Jenkins, and later in Kentucky's largest city, Louisville.

It's amazing the impact teachers have on their students. You may have heard the old saying: "Teachers plant seeds that grow in the hearts of children." The Bible says the words of a great teacher fall "as the small rain upon the tender herb, as the showers upon the grass."

Isn't that a beautiful description? I often think back to words from my first grade teacher, Mrs. Elsie York, who told every child in her classroom that they could be anything they chose to be in life. She said that to us with love and conviction in her voice. We couldn't help but believe her. Her words were a constant encouragement to me as I was growing up as a poor kid in one of the poorest regions in the country.

So, when I set my sights on being a journalist and considered some of the hurdles I'd have to get across, I recalled Mrs. York saying "you can do it."

When I finished college and started working for the New

Roger Alford

York Times Regional Newspaper Group, I remembered Mrs. York's words, and I remember thinking, she really knew what she was talking about. Later, when I was working for The Associated Press, the world's largest newsgathering operation, I recalled Mrs. York's words again and, again, I remember thinking, she really knew what she was talking about. Mrs. York planted seeds in the hearts of her students that would later blossom in spectacular ways.

When I'm facing challenges even now, I can almost hear the sweet voice of Mrs. York saying, "you can do it."

She truly believed, as I do today, that there's unlimited potential within all those little children across rural America.

Or, as the little boy who needed a pencil might have said, "Ain't nothing those little rascals can't do."

Woodman speaks to Rotary Club on move to Parker, Colorado

Beaming in through the technology of zoom, Adriel Woodman was able to share time with his Berea Rotary friends. Having relocated to Parker, Colorado, Woodman was eager to share the reasons he and his wife, Paula moved, along with the characteristics of Parker that fit with directions of life in the Berea environment. Being close to grandchildren is just one of the pluses for the Woodmans.

The pandemic with its restrictions increased citizen interest in many outdoor activities to the level that bikes were almost unattainable last year.

The trails around Parker are a great connection to urban areas, malls, and other trails with Cherry Creek being their favorite.

In fact, there are 30 miles of trails within town. These trails are well-lit with sidewalks along a waterway, green space, and parks such that all age groups can feel safe using them. There is ample room for bikers, hikers, those needing handicapped accessibility, or kids walking to school.

In Parker, residents can feel safe without cars. Woodman compared the public support in Berea similar to what he sees in Colorado where one-third of the state is part of the park system.

Even though Woodman’s transfer to Rotary in Parker was interrupted by Covid, his dedication to Rotary’s motto of “Service Above Self” has never faltered.

In fact, before he launched his talk President Rita Davis presented him with the certificate and pin recognizing him as a Paul Harris Fellow.

The award is given to those who have done exemplary work in community or helping those in need.

In the business session Berea members voted to make a donation of $250 to Appalachia Rises, the fund raiser for eastern Kentucky flood relief.

The link for the Tuesday noon zoom meetings can be secured from club secretary, Charles Hoffman at Charles.hoffman.law@gmail.com

Still falling: COVID-19 cases in state declining

FRANKFORT (KT) – The weekly number of new cases of COVID-19 continues to drop, according to Gov. Andy Beshear.

“I want to say congratulations, Kentucky,” he said during a Monday press briefing at the Capitol. “You have just had your 11th straight week of declining cases. That is amazing. It’s down this last week roughly 400 cases of COVID from the week before. That is wonderful for us, but a word of caution. Many other states are seeing their numbers increase. I believe the United States just saw their numbers for last week increase. That’s what happens if we stop wearing our masks.”

A total of 310 new cases of COVID-19 were reported to state public health officials on Monday.

“That’s up a little from Monday of last week,” Beshear said, “but it’s lower than the week before that, and the week before that.”

There were only six counties with more than 10 cases of the coronavirus. Jefferson had 60, Kenton 16, Carter and Harlan 15, Bullitt 14, and Boone reported 12. That raises Kentucky’s pandemic total to 425,333 since the first was reported in March 2020.

The state’s positivity rate was 2.89%, based on a seven-day rolling average of positive cases divided by the number of tests.

That was up 0.01% from Sunday, but still marks the eighth consecutive day below the three percent mark.

Beshear also announced that as of Monday, 1,319,323 Kentuckians have now received at least one dose of the vaccine.

“We’ve now vaccinated about 40% of Kentucky adults, a really exciting milestone. We also believe we’ve vaccinated about 70% of Kentuckians who are age 70 and up.”

He noted there are now openings to get the vaccines at the state regional clinics in Louisville, Lexington and Frankfort, as well as the Kings Daughters Pavilion in Greenup County. This, despite opening up vaccination eligibility to all Kentuckians 40 years of age and up as of Monday.

KSP promoting Trooper Teddy Bear for Easter baskets

Kentucky State Police have a last-minute gift idea for kids’ Easter baskets, a Trooper Teddy Bear.

Now through Sunday, the bears, which are regularly $19.99, are on sale. All proceeds benefit the Trooper Teddy Project, which provides teddy bears to children in traumatic situations such as a car crash, exposure to drugs or domestic abuse cases which frequently result in the arrest of a parent.

KSP Sgt. Billy Gregory says the ‘Trooper Teddy’ Project is designed to develop trust between officers and children.

Gregory says the program does not utilize state dollars and relies solely on donations and the sale of bears to sustain it.

Trooper Teddy Bears will be sold for $14.99 plus shipping during the promotion. To avoid a shipping fee, Kentuckians have the option to pick up their bear at KSP Headquarters in Frankfort or at any of the 16 KSP Post locations.

The Trooper Teddy Bear Project began in December 1989, after then-Kentucky first lady Martha Wilkinson hosted a Gala fundraiser at Red Mile Racecourse that summer.

Funds available to help families with heating bills

The Kentucky River Foothills Development Council is continuing to provide energy assistance through the crisis component of the Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP). Applications can be made through April 15, 2021, or until available funds have been expended. The program assists households in a heating crisis and will run until the funds are expended.

Individuals and households that have already received assistance this year are eligible to receive additional help if they haven't used their entire assistance amount of $400. Benefits may take the form of bulk fuel deliveries or pending utility disconnect. Crisis relief will be provided within 48 hours or 18 hours if an emergency.

A household is considered to be eligible for energy assistance when the household meets the basic eligibility criteria which includes:

- (1) completion of an application.
- (2) is responsible for home energy costs, directly or as an undesignated portion of their rent.
- (3) have a combined household income, for the calendar month prior to the month of application, not in excess of 150% of the federal poverty level as listed in the Income Eligibility Guidelines.
- (4) live in Kentucky when the application is made and apply in the county of residence;

In addition to the above mentioned criteria, only those with a past-due balance / disconnect or eviction notices or who are within 48 hours of being without heat can receive assistance during the crisis component. A household shall be considered to have a home heating crisis situation when it meets the basic LIHEAP eligibility criteria and:

- (1) the household is within four (4) days of running out of fuel if bulk fuel (coal, fuel oil, propane, kerosene, or wood) is the heat source;
- (2) the household has received a past due / disconnect notice if natural gas or electric is the heat source;
- or (3) the household's home heating costs are included as an undesignated portion of the rent, and the household has received an eviction notice for non-payment of rent from the landlord.

Applicants who participate in a Pre-Pay Electric Program must bring a statement from the utility company that shows they have 10 days or less of pre-paid electric service.

All assistance provided with LIHEAP funds must be directly related to resolving the household's home heating crisis situation. A household may not receive more than the household's allowable crisis maximum in combined benefits, through the Crisis component. The allowable crisis maximum is determined by the household's primary fuel type.

Applicants must provide the following:

- Disconnect / past due notice (if seeking assistance for natural gas or electric)
- Eviction notice from landlord (if utilities are included in rent).
- Metered utility bill if seeking assistance for propane / kerosene / wood / coal.
- Proof of Social Security Number or Permanent Residence card (Green Card) for each member of the household.
- Proof of all household members income from the preceding month.

LIHEAP operates on an appointment-based system. Schedule your appointment by calling 859-544-1713. Online at <https://foothillscap.org>.

Sustaining energy Homegrown Hideaways goes solar

On any given day, if you venture out Floyd Branch Road, chances are you'll find Jessa and Nathan Turner building something. Whether it be a dance floor, a chicken coop, or a new tree house, the pair always has something new going on.

Jessa and Nathan own Home-Grown HideAways, a farm, campground, and event space, in Berea.

Growing up, Jessa was inspired by the many carpenters in her family and how they could create such beautiful things out of raw materials. In 2007, she graduated from Berea College with a degree in Sustainability and Environmental Studies with a focus in Sustainable Building Design, and a head full of plans for their future farm.

The Turners purchased their land in 2009, and, since then, the farm has been many things to many people. Its several lodging options, all constructed by the Turners, have hosted thousands of families and individuals through its primary purpose as an Airbnb getaway.

They created their first listing through Airbnb in August 2016. Over the years they have added several types of lodging options. Today, they offer everything from treehouses and yurts to cabins and a tipi, along with camper hook-ups and plenty of field space for tents. They have also been a home to several music and workshop festivals including Holler in the Holler, the Whippoorwill Festival, PlayThink, and the Moonshiner's Ball.

Always striving to make the land and its offerings as sustainable as possible, they have worked with the Mountain Association's energy team for several years to make efficiency improvements to their buildings. In 2020, they made the big decision to build a new retreat and event space that will allow them to expand their ability to offer workshops and classes, as well as a place for Nathan to put his culinary degree to work feeding visitors and guests. Included in this latest endeavor is a major solar installation, completed in March 2021.

The Mountain Association

supported Homegrown Hideaways in submitting their applications to the USDA Rural Energy for American Program (REAP) and the Governor's Office of Agricultural Policy (GOAP) to gain as much as 75 percent grant funding for the project. W

The association also provided the Turners with a long-term low-interest solar loan, so they could start the project while waiting to find out about the grants and to spread out over time any additional costs. The solar is expected to bring $1,088 in annual electric bill savings for the Turners.

Ben Tatum, owner of Appalachian Energy Works, and a former New Energy intern with the Mountain Association, completed the installation.

Recipes from the heart

Easter has always been a holiday filled with traditions around our family. From the dying of eggs (which my now adult daughters still enjoy doing) down to the food that is prepared and served. Some of these recipes came about through my mother's education in home economics (and education) and others were added along the way. This recipe is one that was added along the way. My mother got this recipe from a friend she worked with at Kingston Elementary. Many of you likely know her. Ann Overbey was the cafeteria manager at Kingston for many years and is a phenomenal cook. This is a recipe she shared with my mom and it has become a holiday tradition at not only Easter but other holidays as well.

Calipari inks grad transfer

For the fourth straight season, Kentucky will be adding a graduate transfer to the roster.

The Wildcats announced the addition of Davidson guard Kelan Grady to the roster on Monday. Grady scored 2,002 points in his four seasons with the Wildcats and averaged 17.1 points per game each year. Grady will graduate from Davidson with a degree in sociology next month.

"I'm very excited to be a Wildcat again and play for coach (John) Calipari at the University of Kentucky," Grady said. "It is a tremendous opportunity to compete at the highest level and pursue my dreams. I'm grateful for the opportunity and eager to get to work."

Calipari said Grady has "established himself as one of the best players in the country" after connecting on 240 3-pointers while at Davidson and became just the sixth player in school history to eclipse the 2,000-point mark.

"His size, his skills, his scoring ability and his playmaking ability speak volumes to the player that he is," Calipari said. "Kelan played in a great program."

Juzang Final Four bound!

Johnny Juzang is living in the moment and soaking in his first experience in the NCAA Tournament. Juzang said after the Bruins defeated Brigham Young in the second round of the prestigious tournament earlier this month in Indianapolis. "These are the moments as players we live for and I just love to compete. I love to compete."

The former Kentucky guard, who appeared in 28 games and started in two of those in his lone season with the Wildcats last year, has played a big part in the Bruins' path to the East Regional finals. UCLA was one of the last four teams that received a bid to the Big Dance and the Bruins have extended their stay in Indianapolis with wins over Michigan State (86-80), BYU (73-62), Abilene Christian (67-47) and second-seeded Alabama, 88-78.

He scored 28 points in the Bruins' 51-49 win over top-seeded Michigan in the East Regional finals. The effort by Juzang helped propel UCLA to the Final Four for the first time since 2008.

Juzang scored a combined 50 points in the first two games, second behind former UCLA greats Lew Alcindor and Reggie Miller for most points scored by a UCLA player in their first appearance in the tournament. Juzang has scored double figures in every game in the tournament, including 27 in a win over BYU in the second round.

"I'm happy I've been able to contribute in that category, but we're not satisfied," Juzang said. "We're going to keep locked in and keep going and leave it out there as a team."

The Bruins will be making their first appearance in the Elite Eight since 2008 when they play No 1 seed Michigan in the East Regional finals at 7 p.m. Tuesday in Indianapolis and Juzang said the Bruins are planning on extending their stay even longer.

"Everybody on this team wants to win," he said. "We wanted to lay it out there every night to get that done. We've got some warriors on this team, and we're going to try to keep that going, playing with heart and leaving it out there, because any game could be your last one. So we know that. And we want to win. So (we're) just leaving it out there."

The Bruins carried a four-game losing streak into the tournament, but a win over Michigan State in their tournament opener provided a boost for the next three games.

"It's tough losing consecutive games," Juzang said. "We've got great coaches and a tough group of guys who everybody really wants to win. I think Michigan State was a nice reminder of that and what we're capable of."

Since then, Juzang said the Bruins have focused on winning a national title.

"This is what we live for," he said. "This is the height of college basketball, March Madness and playing for the Bruins, I'm from Los Angeles, playing with a lot of guys I've known and a lot of -- everybody we're all brothers. Putting on this jersey with my brothers and coming out playing for the home team. It's a great feeling to bring home wins for the UCLA Bruins. We have a great team."

Lady Eagles' run ends in 11th Region semifinals

By Mike Moore
For The Citizen

The season came to an end for Madison Southern last Wednesday as the LaFayette Lady Generals upended the Lady Eagles, 51-40.

The Lady Generals clamped down on defense, limiting Southern to 21.3 percent shooting from the floor.

"We couldn't hit shots when we needed to like we did in our first game," Coach Josh Curtis said. "We also didn't move and attack their zone the way we did (on Feb. 5)."

Curtis also credited LaFayette in doing what it had to do to win.

"LaFayette also made a few more shots than the last time during important possessions," he said. "They put the pressure on us in the fourth quarter."

In her final game for the Lady Eagles, Senior Samantha Cornelison led Southern with 20 points. Lacie Parks added seven points, while Reece Estep finished with seven points and 11 rebounds. Morgan Flannery chipped in with four points, and Macie Daniels added two points.

The Lady Eagles ended the 2021 season with an 18-7 record.

Post-season Recognition

Many Madison Southern and Berea boys and girls players received post-season accolades.

Eagles

Trent DeVries was named to the 11th Region All-Tournament Team. He scored 19 points in Southern's region tournament loss to Frederick Douglass. For the year, DeVries averaged 17.7 points per game and 3.1 rebounds a game.

Zach Hudson and Brett Erslan were named to the 44th District All-Tournament Team. Hudson averaged 11.5 points in the district tournament and 8.1 points and 4.4 rebounds per game during the season. Erslan averaged 11 points per game in the district tournament. He also finished the season with 7.6 points per game and 5.8 rebounds per game.

Pirates

Jaylen Dorsey and Quenten Morgan were named to the 44th District All-Tournament Team. Morgan finished with 14 points in Berea's tournament loss to Madison Southern, while Dorsey finished with 12 points. Dorsey was also named honorable mention to the All 11th Region Team. Dorsey ended the season averaging 18.2 points and 8.2 rebounds per game.

Lady Eagles

Samantha Cornelison was named 44th District tournament MVP. During the two-game tournament, Cornelison averaged 11.5 points a game. Reece Estep, Lacie Parks, and Morgan Flannery were also named to the 44th District All-Tournament Team. For the season, Estep averaged 7.4 points and 8.6 rebounds a game. Parks averaged 7.8 points and 2.4 rebounds a game, while Flannery averaged 5.6 points and 2.7 rebounds a game.

Cornelison and Estep were also named to the 11th Region All-Tournament Team. Cornelison averaged 19.5 points a game. Estep averaged 10.5 points and 15.5 rebounds a game during region tournament play.

Cornelison wrapped up her Madison Southern career as the school's second-leading scorer, finishing with 2,194 points, just 132 points shy of the record (2,326) held by Brianna Latham, who played from 2010 to 2016. During the Covid-shortened 2021 season, Cornelison finished with 419 total points in 25 games.

Lady Pirates

Maddy King and Chesney Lovins were named to the 44th District All-Tournament Team. King and Lovins scored 12 and 11 points, respectively, in Berea's loss to Madison Southern in the district tournament's opening round.

Madison Howell was named to the All 11th Region Team. Howell averaged 14.4 points and 4.6 rebounds per game.
