

Pool capacity set at 185 per shift

Berea city officials are working toward a May 29 opening of the city Pool with some health precautions mandated by the governor’s office.

The Berea City Council’s Parks and Recreation Committee addressed the rule changes during a meeting last week.

Parks and Recreation Director Priscilla Bloom said that in line with health and safety regulations set forth by the state, the capacity of the pool will be initially set at 185 persons at a time. Berea City Administrator David Gregory said the tentative plan is to have the first group of 185 admitted from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. A one-hour break will follow to sanitize the facility, and then a second pool session admitting 185 people will run from 3 p.m. to 6 p.m.

“Things can change, but as of now, that looks like our capacity,” Bloom said. “The governor may change things and allow more people, but we may not be able to do that comfortably. Right now, 185 is a comfortable but steady number.”

Bloom said she consulted a number of Kentucky cities to determine how they have handled the pandemic.

The City of Richmond, which has a normal pool capacity of 1,100 customers at Paradise Cove, will be limiting their capacity to 300, Bloom said.

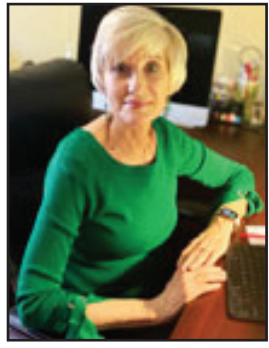

No pool passes will be issued this season, and officials are considering charging $3 for adults, $2 for children 3-17 years old, and no charge for children two years old and under.

The fee during a non-COVID year is typically $5 for adults and $4 for youths.

Pool rules

- Groups of 185 people will be admitted 11 a.m.-1 p.m. and 3-6 p.m.
- The pool will be cleaned and sanitized from 2-3 p.m.
- Splash pad will be open
- Customers may bring their own food and snacks, provided they don’t bring glass bottles or glass into the facility.
- Customers will have to bring their own chairs and towels to reduce the possibility of infection and help ensure public safety.
- The concession stand will not be operating this year, however, the pool will provide drinking water and healthy snacks in cooperation with Martina Laforce of Berea Kids Eat.

Depot reaches big feat

25 percent of chemical agent now destroyed

On April 25, the Blue Grass Chemical Agent-Destruction Pilot Plant (BGCAPP) team reached a significant milestone in the destruction of 25% of the original 523 U.S. tons of chemical agent stored at the Blue Grass Army Depot (BGAD).

“It’s been a busy and exciting time for us, as we are currently involved with two of the plant’s five destruction campaigns, as well as systemization of the new rocket-processing line and construction of the Static Detonation Chamber 2000,” said Dr. Candace Coyle, BGCAPP site project manager. “I would like to recognize and applaud the Blue Grass team for safely reaching this milestone,

OBITUARIES

Brian Edward Isaacs

Brian Edward Isaacs, 60, husband of Teresa Wescott Isaacs, left this world to be with Jesus on Sunday, May 2, 2021 at the St. Joseph Berea Hospital after a brief illness. Brian was born in Middletown, Ohio, the eldest son of James and Louise Gillie Isaacs and the beloved big brother to five siblings. Brian was preceded in death by an infant brother David Isaacs as well as by both sets of grandparents.

After an adventurous youth that had him in working in Texas, Florida, Washington, DC, and in the Vice President's mansion, Brian settled down to follow Jesus and form a family, working quietly but ever diligently with his wife by his side. They were two parts of one whole in every way. Even in his last moments, he looked at her with his warm brown eyes, took her hand, and said, "You and me, just you and me."

Brian passed on his love for chocolate, pictures, and details to a baby girl who watched daily for him to get home from work and his love for music, family, and old cars to a little boy who always followed in his shadow. Now his spirit shines on in the face of his one granddaughter, whom he lovingly called "the most perfect grandbaby."

Brian was employed by the Bluegrass Army Depot where he was well-known for his kindness and superior work ethic. Whether on the job or at home, there was nothing that Brian could not learn to do, as witnessed by so many things that he leaves covered with his fingerprints. His interests were many and he loved to share his projects with everyone.

Brian is survived by his wife Teresa Lynn Isaacs, his parents James and Louise Isaacs, and his children: Kendra Nicole Isaacs and her husband Francisco Carmona Sosa, their daughter Camila Nicole Carmona Isaacs, his son Brian Adam Isaacs, and his siblings: Sheryl (Keith) Glenn, Jimmy (Kim) Isaacs, Billy Isaacs, Jennifer (Jason) Coyle, and Flora (John) Shepherd, as well as by so many dear relatives and friends.

Brian will forever be remembered for his sincerity, kindness, and generosity. He leaves a void that will never be filled in the hearts of all that had the privilege to know and love him, including the little gray cat who sat on his lap every day trying to make him well.

Funeral services will be May 7, 2021 at 1 p.m. at Lakes Funeral Home with Pastor John Shepherd and Pastor Travis Jackson officiating. Burial will be in the Madison County Memorial Gardens. Pallbearers will be Jimmy Isaacs, Billy Isaacs, Gary Coffman, Robyn Isaacs, Paul Isaacs, Mike Abner, Keith Glenn and Brad Jackson. No ordinary Joe Sometimes it's the little things that make a difference.

Several years ago, Joe Blankenship began sending out text messages each morning with a Bible verse attached to a group of people who received a scripture almost daily. I looked forward to those texts and they helped me immensely.

I considered myself blessed to be a part of his daily devotional, considering the hundreds of young men Joe coached during his long coaching career that spanned nearly two decades at Eastern Kentucky University. Joe passed away last Friday at age 79 following a lengthy battle with cancer and, just as he played and coached, Blankenship worked until the end and didn't give up without a fight, because that's what coaches do, even in retirement.

Blankenship was part of two national championships as an assistant coach under Roy Kidd at Eastern in 1979 and 1982 and remained on Kidd's staff until he retired in 1995. Unlike coaches of this era, Blankenship remained a loyal Colonel and remained a faithful follower after turning in his whistle and clipboard. He later served as president of the Colonel Club from 1998-99 and could be seen at most football games at Roy Kidd Stadium years after retirement.

It was at the end of his coaching career that I forged a friendship with Joe. I even did the story announcing his retirement. It was a newspaper clipping, which to this day remains a family treasure. His son Troy said the article remains a family favorite, for which I am thankful.

Although Joe spent his life playing and coaching the game of football, his faith certainly stood out above all.

I experienced that first-hand when I played a round of golf with Joe and his wife Brenda in the Colonel Club Classic. I don't remember the score we posted that day or even what year it was exactly, but I do recall the conversations we had about our faith and how it played a role in each of our lives.

Much like his coaching career, Blankenship was an influence at First Baptist Church in Richmond, where he served as a deacon and was a trustee. Much like myself, Bill Fort came to know Joe when he was called to serve as pastor at First Baptist.

"We absolutely clicked," Fort said. "We've had countless lunches, have been together in more meetings than I can count, and have played numerous rounds of golf. My life has been better and my ministry has been stronger because of my journey with Joe."

Through his faith and simply just his nature, Joe made you feel loved and appreciated. Fort said he will "smile every time I think of him" for the rest of his life.

"His sayings will reverberate in my heart," Fort said. "After every lunch, he would say, 'Bill, when it comes to eating, you're first team.' When I would hit a good golf shot, he would say, 'You're stronger than eight rows of onions.'"

In retirement Joe and Brenda were able to spend time with their children and grandchildren and like Pastor Fort and myself, they got to know the kind of man Joe truly was.

"Joe was one of a kind, and I am abundantly grateful that God gave me the privilege of sharing the journey with him," Fort said.

My own moments on that journey with Joe will never be forgotten.

Time to reopen Kentucky

The Kentucky Derby showed that Kentuckians are ready to get back to normal.

Over the last year, we've seen how leaders around the nation have concentrated power in their offices as they've struggled to combat the coronavirus. Governors in New York, California, and here in Kentucky have used this power irresponsibly, ignoring their legislatures and, lately, the science on reopening schools and the economy. Our people have seen the coronavirus ravage our communities, the worst unemployment crisis in the nation, and a governor threaten to send police to follow churchgoers who violated his government mandates.

As the Commissioner of Agriculture for Kentucky, I have traveled the state these last few weeks listening to the pain in the voices of restaurant owners and other small business leaders as they have described to me the economic catastrophe they've experienced over the last year. One of the hardest hit industries in the United States has been the restaurant industry, a market for many of our small farmers. Some estimates show that as much as 10 percent of America's restaurants have closed their doors forever. Unfortunately, for many in Kentucky, their cries have fallen on Governor Beshear's deaf ears.

While strong, conservative governors like Tennessee's Bill Lee and Florida's Ron DeSantis have fully re-opened their states, Governor Beshear is holding Kentucky's economic engine hostage.

He recently announced that he would lift some restrictions (read: not all) if 2.5 million Kentuckians got a COVID-19 vaccine. A recent report from the Lexington Herald-Leader showed it is unlikely Kentucky reaches that goal before the end of June at the current rate of vaccination. Some estimate it could even be August.

That is absolutely unacceptable.

The Governor's response? Grocery stores should provide some free groceries and restaurants and other industries should explore whatever monetary incentives they can offer to get their customers to get the vaccine. You heard that right: his suggestion is for one of the industries hit hardest by the pandemic to distribute monetary incentives, like gift cards, to get people vaccinated. As if, they had the money after a year of economic strife! What a bonehead idea.

I've been vaccinated, and I tell everyone I know that I think it's one of the best ways to get things back to normal. But at the end of the day it is a personal choice. And with the recent halting and restarting of the Johnson and Johnson vaccine, it's reasonable to predict there will be more vaccine hesitancy. If Kentucky sees vaccination rates dip lower than our current rates, it's possible Kentucky will still be closed by the time of California's reopening date of June 15. Restaurants in New York City will be able to be open at 75 percent capacity starting on May 7th. You read that right – there is more certainty about business in New York and California than there is in Kentucky right now, even with our coronavirus numbers at incredibly low levels.

The longer Kentucky refuses to open up, the longer we will lose jobs and workers to other states. Several restaurant owners have told me that they are experiencing a huge labor shortage as workers have access to pandemic unemployment benefits or they move to states that have already reopened.

It is unrealistic to think that this Governor is going to reopen the state and lift restrictions immediately. That's why I am challenging the Governor to set a full reopening date to give our people certainty and the ability to plan for a responsible reopening.

At the end of the day, we know more about this virus than we did last year and, thanks to President Trump and Operation Warp Speed, we have unprecedented access to therapeutics and vaccines.

I hope we can follow the science and get back to making Kentucky a great place to work and live.

In order to do that, Kentucky should reopen and we should reopen now.

Ryan Quarles is Kentucky's Commissioner of Agriculture.

Level: Intermediate

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

There when things go wrong.

Craig Loftis, Agent

Preserving rich history remains a priority

As many have likely heard, read, or noticed, the Kirksville Community Center has closed until further notice due to a Kentucky State Police investigation.

While the cause behind the investigation has never been shared, a drive past the building will reveal a boarded window. Surveillance in the area has increased recently by both the Madison County Sheriff's Department and Kentucky State Police.

While I do not know anything about the events that have transpired at the building that led to the investigation, I will say this: there are few portions of our community's history left to appreciate and we should work diligently to preserve whatever we can.

Our community has a rich history that we are fortunate to have a few buildings to serve as reminders to us of where we came from, and those are important to protect and maintain.

I grew up in an old farmhouse on Dog Walk Road that belonged to Jasper and Mabel Sebastian.

It was torn down several years ago, and I know that it was a sad moment for my dad — because he recognized and appreciated the history that the Sebastians and their home were part of in Kirksville.

He was close with them when he was a child and considered Mrs. Sebastian his grandmother. He and my mom purchased the home from her when they married and worked tirelessly for five years to renovate that home and then resold it.

The house and building near it were both a rich part of our community's history as Mr. Sebastian operated a mill producing flour and cornmeal.

Some part of me wonders

if it would have been good to provide upkeep to the property as opposed to just turning it into a parking lot that seems rarely used.

What some consider to be progress, I often view as a loss of history. I would hate to see the same fate for some of the other older buildings in the community — especially if it were due to mistreatment of the properties.

Madrigal Singers To Present Concert Tuesday

The Berea Madrigal Singers under the direction of Prof. L. D. Nuernberger will present a program of secular songs from the Renaissance at 8 p.m. Tuesday, May 12, in Gray Auditorium. Compositions will be sung in French, German, Italian and English. The songs to be performed were once sung mainly by the nobility as after-dinner diversion. The courts of Elizabeth I, the Medici, Francis I and Emperor Charles V were frequent scenes of this type of entertainment. The lyrics often refer to love, war or death, but many also relate of humorous subjects. A madrigal transcribed into modern music notation by Dr. Nuernberger will be among those featured. This performance of the work may well represent the first in over three centuries. Among the composers represented will be De Rore, Weelkes, Monteverdi, Desprez, Janequin, Lassus, Isaac and Morley. One of the madrigals to be sung is based on a text by Shakespeare and another on a text by Martin Luther. Over 25 college music students including several from Berea will be singing in the program. A number of other people from the community will also participate. The public is cordially invited to attend.

The Berea City Council unanimously adopted a so-called "payroll tax" in Berea to provide funds for additional city services at its last meeting. The tax would become effective on July 1, 1964. This tax was estimated to generate $54,000 annually. The ordinance stated that the "license fee shall be measured by one percent of (a) all salaries, wages, commissions and other compensation earned by every person in the City for work done or service rendered in City; and (b) the net profits of all businesses, professions, or occupations from activities conducted in the City." The lengthy ordinance, which took City Attorney Guy Duerson 30 minutes to read to the council, was published in full the following week. The document did specifically exempt domestic servants working in private homes and ministers of religion performing their duties from the tax. While the ordinance did not specifically state how the money from the new tax would be spent, it was clarified that the revenue the tax generated would be going into the City's general funds. Projects mentioned at the council that were possibilities were city hall, the fire department, a garbage disposal plan as well as the creation of a recreation department. Under the recreation department, the City Council could operate certain athletic facilities at the Berea City School. This would release some of the Board of Education funds for facility needs and other purposes. The finance committee was directed to proceed with the setting up of the operation of the withholding tax collection and to select a director of finance to oversee the program. This committee was also asked to work with the Berea Board of Education.

According to Vernon Hooper, Madison County Health Department sanitarian, rabies scares were again becoming prevalent in the county. There are 47 reports of potentially rabid dogs in Madison County during 1963. Only one case proved to be an actual positive case. All dogs over six months of age must be vaccinated against rabies and the law can be severe for dog owners who failed to comply. In order for a dog to be legally vaccinated, the owner must produce a certificate provided by the State Department of Health and signed by a qualified veterinarian. If a person was bitten by a dog, the owner was to confine the animal for a period of 14 days, during which time the animal would also be under the observation of the Health Department as well. In the event the dog is a stray and no owner could be found, the dog was impounded by the Madison County Dog Warden and kept under observation for the 14-day period. At the end of the 14-day quarantine period, if the dog is still alive, the person who was bitten is out of danger. However, if the dog dies during the 14-day period, it would be taken to a laboratory in Frankfort to be examined for rabies. If positive, the individual bitten would still have sufficient time to take the necessary treatment. According to Hopper, under no circumstances should the dog be killed because it "looks" mad. Many dogs display certain symptoms of rabies from a variety of other causes and no one can definitively say if the animal is "mad."

The fifth annual Central Kentucky Student Craftsman's Fair was held at Berea College on Friday, May 2nd and Saturday, May 3rd, 1964. Berea and Eastern Kentucky State College were sponsors of the event. The purpose of the fair was to promote better industrial arts education programs in Kentucky secondary schools. Approximately 1,000 high school projects along with 25 commercial exhibitors showed their latest products, machines and process. These were featured in the Danforth Industrial Arts Building. Douglas Ferguson of, Pigeon Forge Pottery in Pigeon Forge, Tennessee was a featured speaker and gave a lecture illustrated with slides on outstanding national and international crafts. This was held at Boone Tavern on Friday evening. Exhibitions were open to the public. Approximately 4,000 teachers, administrators, and high school students from all over Kentucky took part in the two day event.

The Harmonica Society presented "Showcase 64" at the Gray Auditorium. "Showcase" was a musical comedy based on an original script by T.J. Adams, a senior hotel management major at Berea College. It revolved around the live on a typical college campus somewhere in the United States. A young freshman girl, played by Martha Ulm, enters Wesleyan College and soon finds herself in the constant company of the "big man on campus," played by Jim Castlen. However, a bachelor professor attracts her attention, which causes several complications since the various deans become involved in the affair as well. The production featured a variety of famous Broadway melodies, under the direction of Rolf Hovey. Mr. and Mrs. Billy Best directed special dance numbers. There was one special dance routine by Mr. Harris and Miss Culbreth and another by Mr. Miller. About 100 students and faculty were involved in the production.

Motherly bond establishes family foundation

My granny Gladys came from a family of five children. Her younger sister died when she was little from pneumonia and it left Gladys the only daughter with three brothers.

This family lived in some tough times. Families depended on gardens and their livestock for food. Everyone worked hard.

My mother Daisy was born premature in 1941. She was born at home. The doctor was surprised later to learn that she had survived. Her own grandmother even said that she was the ugliest baby she had ever seen. (Her grandmother wasn't known for her optimism.) Her parents Charles and Gladys took care of her. I don't imagine that was easy. Daisy already had an older brother that was just born the previous year. Gladys was the only parent later while her husband served in World War II. The family was completed with one more daughter around

Tammy Whittamore

Gladys developed a rare disease that she dealt with the rest of her life. She also helped with her parents in their later years. Her father had a long illness before succumbing to cancer. Her mother broke a hip which started a downhill slide to her death. Later Gladys helped with two brothers that became housebound.

Mothers pass values and qualities down to their daughters. It is a chain linking us together. My grandmother had a great faith that she passed to my Mom. It grew more evident as time passed. It gave her a strength and assurance to cope. Gladys had a strong foundation. I hope to be a strong link in that chain. I guess only time will tell if that is true.

I meant to write more about my Mom, but perhaps it's all about building through the generations on that foundation that has been passed down.

If you sing in church, make sure you bring your own false teeth

A famous gospel singer once visited a church only to be recognized by the pastor who immediately invited him to perform.

"Well, I'd better not today," the singer said. "I forgot my false teeth when I left the house this morning, and I'm afraid I just wouldn't be able to sing without them."

A fellow who overheard the conversation walked over, reached into his pocket, and pulled out a set of dentures. "Here you go, try these," the man told the singer who put them into his mouth.

"Nope, they don't fit," the singer said.

"Well, wait a minute," the man said, reaching into another pocket and pulling out another set of false teeth. "See if these fit."

"What? Are you a dentist?" the singer asked.

"No, I'm an undertaker," the man said.

I'm always encouraged to see just how kind people can be toward their fellow man. In our neck of the woods, if someone has a need that's gone unmet, a friend will step forward to meet it. Whether people know it or not, they're following a key biblical principle by helping those around them.

"Be kindly affectioned one to another with brotherly love, in honor preferring one another; not slothful in business, fervent in spirit, serving the Lord; rejoicing in hope, patient in tribulation, continuing instant in prayer; distributing to the necessity of saints, given to hospitality" (Romans 12:10-13).

Of course, no one has ever embodied those traits as well as Jesus.

He loved people so much that he gave his very life for them, dying on that old rugged cross that we might live.

I love to think about all the many kind things Jesus did during his public ministry. He healed the sick. He restored sight to the blind and hearing to the deaf. He allowed people who were paralyzed to walk again. He even brought the dead back to life. And he did so many other incredible miracles that absolutely changed the lives of people who received them. And, lest we forget, he continues to this day to show kindness, providing for people's needs, answering their prayers, and, most importantly, changing their lives.

The undertaker in that story was well-intentioned, I suppose, in trying to provide a set of teeth to the visiting singer, but he fell short.

I can tell you with certainty, that Jesus has never fallen short and never will. He always provides just what we need, when we need it, and that makes us want to sing his praises, dentures or no.

Summer reading program returns

As I mentioned in my last column, I have the opposite of a green thumb - I do, however, enjoy working in my yard. I spent most of last weekend trimming my fence line, pruning, mowing and mulching. Few things remind me that summer is fast approaching quite like spending a day in the May sun distributing mulch among the various beds in my yard, then heading back to the hardware store to get more mulch since I misjudged the square footage.

Another, less outdoor labor intensive sign of summer is the Madison County Public Library's Summer Reading program. While we were unable to have our usual Summer Reading program in 2020, I am beyond excited that we are bringing in back in 2021!

Summer Reading is perhaps more needed this year than it has ever been. Library summer reading programs across the country exist to address the effects of "Summer Slide," which refers to a possible decline in kids' academic and literacy abilities while school is out during the summer. The Madison County Public Library offers a summer reading challenge and literacy-based programs for all ages, giving families a fun, accessible method to keep those literacy skills fresh.

Registering for Summer Reading will be a little different this year, but different is on brand for 2021. For in-person signups, we will have a selection of free prize books to choose from - these books range in reading level from "read to me" to young adult. Inside each book there will be a 60 day Summer Reading challenge card. Simply grab a book, and you're officially registered!

Adults can participate as well - pick up a Summer Reading challenge card at either library location to register. The Summer Reading card is the same for all ages, and includes 60 blocks that represent various activities such as reading and participating in the library's summer programs.

Speaking of programs - in-person events are back at the Madison County Public Library! This is the first slate of in-person, on-site programs the library has been able to offer in over a year. We are so excited to welcome you back! Beginning in June, the library will host story times, movies, craft, and STEM activities. Library programs will also take place outdoors. Our Outreach team is partnering with both Berea and Richmond Parks and Recreation to present outdoor movies this summer, as well as a new program called the Great American Campout at Camp Catalpa. All library programs are free and open to everyone.

If you prefer to stick with a virtual program, we'll have you covered as well. The library will continue offering our popular take and make craft kits and virtual story times. For virtual Summer Reading, we will again offer Beanstack, which you can access via its mobile app or our library's Beanstack website. Similar to a Summer Reading card, Beanstack allows you to track your reading time and log activities. Beanstack is accessible, user-friendly and convenient.

Adult, children, tween and teen participants will only need one card for the whole summer! At the end of the summer, bring your completed card back to the library so you can be entered into the Summer Reading grand-prize drawing. Virtual participants are automatically entered as well.

Beat the Summer Slide and grab a Summer Reading challenge card at either Madison County Public Library location. If you, too, enjoy pruning, mowing, and mulching, download the Libby app and listen to audiobooks while you work!

Six former UK players selected in NFL Draft

LEXINGTON (KT) — Kentucky had six former players taken in the NFL Draft that began Thursday and concluded Saturday.

Kelvin Joseph, Quinton Bohanna, Brandin Echols, Landon Young and Phil Hoskins joined first-round draft pick Jamin Davis among the six players chosen in the annual draft. It marked the second time in three years the Wildcats had more than five players drafted and the most Wildcats chosen in the draft since 1994.

Joseph, a cornerback, was the 44th overall selection and was chosen in there second round by the Dallas Cowboys. In addition to Joseph, Dallas also selected Bohanna (nose guard) in the six round of the draft and was the 192nd overall pick.

"This is going to be scary," Joseph tweeted Saturday. "Let's pick up where we left off."

"This is a dream," Bohanna added. "I'm a Dallas Cowboy. ... This is a dream. I can't describe it, I love it."

Eight picks after Bohanna, the New York Jets selected

Echols (cornerback) as the 200th overall selection. Young was announced as the 206th overall selection by the New Orleans Saints, while Phil Hoskins was the fifth Kentucky defensive player chosen where he was drafted by the Carolina Panthers in the seventh and final round as the 232nd selection of the three-day draft.

"I can't wait to get down there," Young said on Twitter. "Let's get to work."

Davis arrived in Washington on Friday and is ready to start his professional career.

"Now that everything happened the way it did," Davis said, "I'm just ready to show the world who I am."

Davis, a redshirt junior, was selected as the 19th overall pick by Washington after a stellar campaign last season. Davis collected 102 tackles, four for a loss, 1.5 sacks, three interceptions, forced a fumble, and also had a fumble recovery for the Wildcats.

"It's just an unreal feeling and a dream come true," Davis said in a conference call after he was drafted. "I'm just ready to get to work."

Davis had an 85-yard interception return for a touchdown in Kentucky's first win over Tennessee in Knoxville for the first time since 1984.

"Congratulations Jamin Davis on living your dream," Kentucky coach Mark Stoops said on Twitter late Thursday night.

During a pro day event in March, Davis had a 42-inch vertical leap and recorded a 4.49 time in the 40-yard dash, which impressed professional scouts.

"He can cover," NFL Draft analyst Mel Kiper said earlier this month.

"He has great range, He tested out very well. He's very instinctive. He's a really nice player."

Washington coach Ron Rivera is looking forward to working with Davis in the future.

"He understands our culture, he has a tremendous background, the kind of background that I look for," Rivera said. "Very smart and intelligent young man. ...He's what you look for in a football player."

Mintz opts for draft, but could return

LEXINGTON (KT) — Davion Mintz declared for the NBA Draft, but is leaving his options open for a possible return to Kentucky next season.

Following two months of "reflection and personal evaluation," Mintz decided to explore his future options beyond playing a possible second season with the Wildcats. Under current NCAA rules, Mintz can sign with an agent certified by the NCAA, while receiving feedback from the professional ranks before making a final determination on his future.

"I have spent a lot of time reflecting on this past season at Kentucky, a truly unique and unforgettable experience, while also trying to figure out what the next step is for me and my career," he said. "My ultimate dream has always been to play at the professional level. I believe at some point, whether that is now or down the road, that is where I will be."

Mintz led the Wildcats in total points (288), 3-pointers (56), assists (77) and double-figure scoring games (17). He averaged 11.5 points per game last season. He averaged 16.7 points per outing over the last six games. He shot 37.8 percent behind the arc and dished out 3.1 assists per outing.

"From his leadership to his shooting to how much he improved over the course of the season," Kentucky coach John Calipari said. "I really enjoyed coaching Davion this last season. I really believe if our team had been better and got into the NCAA Tournament somehow, his path would be clearer. As I told his mom and dad, he is a young man I could coach for 10 years. Whatever he ultimately decides, he has a bright future ahead of him."

Calipari added that he's in "total support of Davion testing the waters to find out what his options are based on how he finished the year."

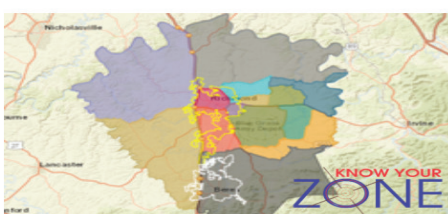

"He is doing the right thing by taking his time with his decision, going through the workouts and evaluations, and really getting all the information out there that is afforded to him through the NBA Draft process," Calipari said.

Mintz is the fifth player from to declare for the draft. Freshman guards Brandon Boston Jr. and the late Terrence Clarke renounced their eligibility and submitted their names for the draft. Senior forward Olivier Sarr will not use the extra season of COVID-19 eligibility and will pursue a professional career. Freshman forward Isaiah Jackson took a similar route as Mintz and has declared for the draft, but could return for a second season.

Last weekend, freshman point guard Nolan Hickman asked to be released from his letter-of-intent to play for the Wildcats next season. Hickman was rated the No. 4 point guard in the current graduating class.

SHERIFF

Two Deputies, Major honored

In addition, Deputy Ben Spaulding and Major William "BJ" O'Donnell received an ATF Honor Award and a US Attorney General's Distinguished Service Award for his hard work, dedication, and teamwork in a past joint criminal investigation.

Sports Hall of Fame to honor county athletes

A local committee of men and women has been working behind the scenes since last June to establish a Madison County Sports Hall of Fame that will bring recognition and honor to individual athletes, coaches, administrators, media, supporters, and teams that have brought local, regional, statewide and national recognition to Madison County.

The idea was conceived by former Madison County resident Jack Frost in the fall of 2019 and gained momentum after local sports enthusiasts agreed it is time to launch a hall of fame in an area rich in sports history.

A 13-person "founding" Board of Directors, that includes an Executive Board led by chairman Bart Bellairs, vice chairman Karl Park, treasurer Jim Barnes, secretary Donna Lovell, and historian John Lovell, has approved a set of by-laws and established criteria for nominations. The remaining members of the committee include Frost, Tony Cox, Ralph Hacker, Eugene Estelle, Sylvia Powell, Hubert Broaddus, Glyn Green and Lee Ann Browder. Plans are being made to honor the first Hall of Fame induction class during a fall banquet which is dependent on COVID-19 protocols that are in place at that time.

The committee is also accepting sponsorships from individuals and businesses to help support the Madison County Sports Hall of Fame. Three levels have been established and each level affords a package of benefits which include banquet tickets, a listing on the website, and a listing in the banquet program.

The levels include: MVP Club ($500), All-Star Club ($250), and Fan Club ($100).

Members of the public can nominate deserving candidates by visiting the Madison County Sports Hall of Fame website at www.MadisonCountySportsHoF.com where they can find the nomination form and directions for completing and submitting the form.

Individual nominees must be a Madison County native or have earned deserving recognition while residing in Madison County. Categories and examples for individual nominations are:

ATHLETE (All-State, All-Conference, All-Region, career, single season or game record holder, MVP, college or professional career).

MEDIA (radio/TV, sportswriter/SID) (Professional awards and honors received, years of service, contributions to profession, etc.).

COMMUNITY LEADER / SUPPORTER (booster club organizer or officer, fundraising leader, youth league officer or coach, etc.).

TEAM (For a team to be nominated, it should have achieved a special recognition for capturing championships, or for historical significance. Examples for team nominations are: Has historical significance, State or Regional Championships, or set a school, state, or national record.

It's good to be out and about again

A year ago, the town was silent as city, county, state and national officials began combating an unprecedented pandemic that gripped the entire world.

It was unlike any other in our lifetime. The streets were clear, the restaurants had no patrons inside dining, and sharing a meal with family and friends.

Churches reverted to technology in order to continue Sunday services and Government meetings followed with special-called meetings via zoom.

The times were odd, eerie and very confusing. While struggling to adapt to a new normal, scientists were behind the scenes rushing to discover a vaccine to fight

COVID-19.

As you know, the coronavirus took my mom last October and many of you also lost family members and friends during this horrible pandemic. This past Sunday was the first time I didn't see my mom on Mother's Day and I endured on a roller-coaster ride just to get through the weekend. I made it, but it was hard.

More than a year later, things are starting to open back up and thankfully the virus appears to be heading on a downward trend. A big reason is because of three vaccines that have been granted emergency use during the past six months.

Mask mandates have been relaxed, especially outdoors. Capacity in restaurants, churches and other events are starting to increase from the much smaller numbers that have been imposed since the beginning of the pandemic.

A big part of my job as editor and publisher is being able to get out and meet people and be a visible figure in the community. During the past month I've been able to cover events and attend functions again and I will tell you, it's so good to shake hands, hug and simply see people again. It's all part of the human interaction and soothing to the soul.

Just last week, I attended and covered the National Day of Prayer service at Berea City Hall, and for the first time in more than a year, I left an event feeling good. I am a man of faith and I have always believed in the power of prayer, but this day was more than a routine and more than just sending up a prayer to our creator in one of the most crucial and trying times of our lives.

The ministers and other speakers were very sincere and very intentional in their remarks and prayers offered for various sects of society from our Government leaders down to the average citizen. Organizer Kenny Davis, pastor of Bethel Baptist Church, always does a phenomenal job of putting the program together, but this year's event was very touching and impactful.

I have always said that prayer never hurt anyone, and if anything, it always helps. Many of them were very inspiring and encouraging in the days prior to, the day of and the days that have followed since my mother's passing.

My prayer is that we are moving past this virus and resuming things that we considered normal less than two years ago. We are headed in the right direction, and hopefully we won't get sidetracked again.

Will light grow dim?

The Commonwealth of Kentucky had existed only 77 years when Sunrise Children's Services was organized. A group of ladies at Walnut Street Baptist Church in Louisville recognized a need to care for orphaned children living on the streets. Their focus was on providing care for children in crisis and Sunrise Children's Services was born.

Since 1869, Sunrise's mission has remained the same. For more than 150 years, this agency of the Kentucky Baptist Convention has cared for Kentucky's children and families through foster care, orphan care, and residential and therapeutic services.

In the late 1970s, Sunrise was approached by the state of Kentucky and asked to help with the increasing number of children in the state's custody. The request aligned with Sunrise's mission and they were eager to help.

Since then, the number of children in the state's custody has steadily risen and Sunrise has been a steady partner. According to the Kentucky Cabinet for Health and Family Services, there were 9,278 children in state care at the end of 2020. Dale Suttles, president of Sunrise Children's Services, says there are nearly 1,000 children receiving care and services from Sunrise. While not all of them are under the state's custody, many of them are. Sunrise has remained a faithful partner to CHFS.

Sunrise is now being forced into a difficult position. Governor Andy Beshear's administration has sent a contract to Sunrise that causes them to violate their deeply held religious convictions if they sign it. Former Governor Steve Beshear and every other governor since has respected Sunrise's religious convictions and offered an addendum to protect Sunrise's convictions.

Kentucky Baptist churches have welcomed the state into their congregation to connect with the potential foster parents they desperately need. Sunrise has worked to train these foster parents and placed thousands of children in these foster families. These caring Kentucky Baptist families have provided a temporary, stable home for children, resulting in nearly 600 adoptions over the last 15 years.

In addition, Sunrise is one of the last child services agencies to provide residential, therapeutic care. Operating multiple facilities across the state is costly, but many children have faced such deep trauma they need intensive care around the clock. Sunrise has not walked away from these children.

If Sunrise can't sign the contract with the state, who will be hurt most? Will it be Sunrise? Maybe the Kentucky Baptist Convention? Perhaps the Commonwealth of Kentucky?

No, it will be the children.

Last week, Albert Mohler, president of The Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, said it well, "But here's where you have to understand. Who pays the price then? It's not going to be the agency because the agency doesn't exist for its own sake, anyway. The persons who will be harmed will be the children who will not have placements, the children who will not be cared for in an agency with the sensitivity, and the effectiveness, and the care, and faithfulness of something like Sunrise Children's Services."

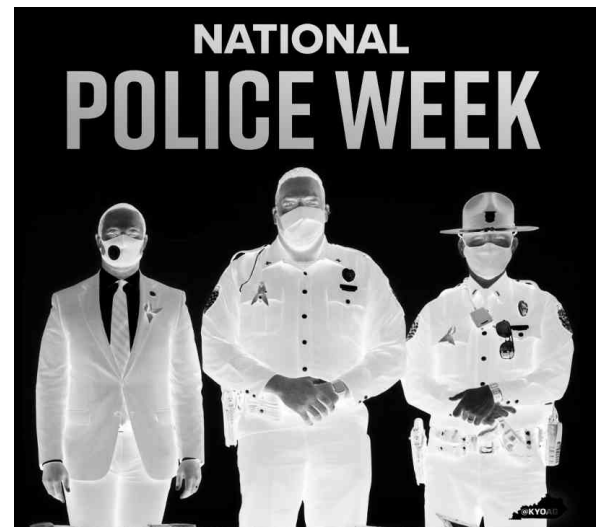

Sunrise recognizes it is not the right fit for everyone. They aren't trying to force their beliefs on people. If they recognize they aren't the right agency, they refer the potential foster parent to an agency that can serve them best.

Sunrise only wants to do what they've done for the past 152 years – care for children. Governor Andy Beshear and the Cabinet for Health and Family Services should be grateful for their help and give them the addendum they need.

SUDOKU

Level: Intermediate

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Prom a night to remember for seniors

Clean trucks, polished boots, and bedazzled gowns were warmly welcomed into Poosey Ridge Saturday evening. Madison Southern students danced the night away at Chenault Vineyards during their Prom. Many families from Kirksville, Poosey, and Berea posted photos of their teenagers with dates and friends decked out and ready to dance. Priscilla Winkler posted a photo of her daughter and two friends, with an interesting story behind it. In the picture are Sheyenne Winkler, Emma Farthing, and Rhiannon Harvey. Priscilla shared that the girls have “been friends since birth.” All three young ladies have strong family roots in Kirksville and Poosey and undoubtedly have formed a friendship that will endure the tests of time. Seeing bonds like these is a true testament to the families in our community and the excellent environment they’ve created by fostering lasting relationships.

On a personal note, my younger cousin, Grant Harrison, also attended. It is difficult to believe he is a Senior. Just before Prom, he purchased the Chevy Silverado truck he used to escort his date. The truck had a special meaning to Grant, and many others in my family, including myself, as Wilson Warren previously owned it. Mr. Warren passed away in 2010 and was a good friend of our grandfather’s. Often when I’d see Mr. Warren (even in my adult years!), he asked, “how many opossums am I holding?” with his fist outstretched, awaiting my guess. My heart beamed with pride at Grant’s accomplishment of purchasing his first vehicle and knowing how hard he has worked to earn it. It was also lovely to see many photos that included the green pastures and rolling acres surrounding Chenault Vineyards as their backdrop. It was refreshing to see prom held at a venue that showcased our beautiful landscape and gave the attendees a chance to be outdoors, enjoy sweet treats from The Side Porch Cafe and Bakery, and dance their hearts out.

Reflections

Berea Citizen archives: May 9, 2002

Charles Hardegree, owner of Superior IGA had been planning on how his store could better serve customers even before the threat of Kroger surfaced. Six months previous, his IGA started a plan to put a customer reward plan. Hardegree was planning on working with other local businesses to provide additional rewards with the program. Hardegree, who purchased the Berea IGA in December 2000, had owned the Brodhead IGA since January, 2000. He agreed that the future success of Superior IGA would be greatly affected by a Kroger. “When you add a store the size of Kroger – or any chain store – to an area the size of Berea, it will affect all businesses that sell the same products,” Hardegree said. Hardegree said, with the arrival of the Wal-Mart Super Center, two independent grocery stores went out of business. He added that Superior’s volume was cut in half as a result of the new store. When competition comes from chain stores, he said, it affects the independent store’s volume and profit, making harder to pay off debt. “Either Berea has to continue growing, or some (stores) will have to go,” Hardegree said. He said that Superior would be able to offer things that Kroger would not be able to provide. Being locally owned and having local employees allow the store to give personal attention to customers.

Dr. Joy Hager was recently bestowed with a Outstanding Alumni award from Eastern Kentucky University’s College of Health Sciences Department along with the Department of Exercise and Sports Science. Hager, who earned her bachelor’s and master’s degrees from E.K.U., had served as athletic director, chair of the Department of Health and Physical Education and coached several sports at Berea College. She was also a past president of the Kentucky Association of Health, Physical Education, Recreation and Dance.

Practicing their photography skills are Dillon Campbell, Quentin Rutherford, Justin Land, Kaylyn Campbell, Aleena Rutherford, Jerhi Land, Joshua Gonzales, James Willis, Katrina Isaacs, Samuel Sell, Elias Gonzales, Robin Willis and Kelsey Canafax.

Berea is home to some of the most talented artists and craftsmen in the United States, but being a part of the city’s arts and crafts community was a far cry from how some of them began. 2001’s Frost Award Winner Jimmy Lou Jackson focused her eyes on the wonderful swirls of color in her hand-made glass beads – much different from her former occupation of peering through a microscope. “I spent 35 years screening pap smears,” Jackson, said, “I trained at Harper Hospital in the mid 1960’s. The federal government paid people to train as a part of a cancer control project grant when pap screenings first began.” Being a Berea native and seeing the condition of women’s health care in Kentucky first hand, Jackson said, working in the lab wasn’t a job, it was a mission. Jackson saw life through the lenses of microscopes in Somerset and Lexington, which she said was physically exhausting considering the amount of concentration she had to use on a daily basis. Then she became fascinated with rocks and minerals. Her life of looking through a microscope was about to change, but not by much. A game she played as a child led her on a new path. “I always played with marbles as a kid and took of all the boys’ marbles. It seemed like you got lost in glass.” Jackson left the lab and took on making glass beads upon her return. “I had turned 55 in July and on August 1st, I was told I was no longer needed (in the lab),” she said, “I came home, used my carport and bought my equipment. Glass was my thing, and screening paps gave me the science I needed to make the glass beads.”

Brandon Campbell, a student at Madison Southern High School, has been named a United States National Award Winner in band. Band director, Barron Jones, nominated him for the award. Campbell is the son of Jeffrey and Sharie Campbell.

Dr. Bennett (Ben) D. Poage, executive director of the Appalachian Ministries Education Resource Center has been named chairman of the Mt. Zion Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) Sesquicentennial committee. As chair Poage, a Disciples of Christ Minister, will direct events and activities schedule for June, 2002, which marks the church’s 150th anniversary.

The Berea Arts Council and the Berea Housing Authority had recently concluded a program entitled, “Act Out” designed to encourage self-expression through various media by middle school and elementary school-aged children. The program, held on six consecutive Saturday mornings, attracted dozens of young people for such activities as theater games, photography, storytelling, papermaking by hand, and creating visual textures. The program was made possible by a project grant from the Kentucky Arts Council to the Berea Arts Council. It was designed to encourage self-expression, individuality and pride amongst young people. “These learning experiences will reward all of the children for the rest of their lives,” said Doris Wyatt, executive director of the Housing Authority of Berea. We appreciate the talents and time of the Berea Arts Council to provide this opportunity.” A different artist presented each program. Sarah Evans of the Regional Arts Education Network directed the session on theater games. She encouraged the participants to express their thoughts and emotions through movement, voice and acting out short scenes. Berea photographer, Sean Perry, helped participants to use disposable cameras to tell their own stories with clarity and effectiveness through pictures. Storyteller Mitch Barrett helped give the participants ideas for giving voice to their stories. Papermaking artists Teresa Libby and Heather Richardson taught the participants how to make their own paper for books. Art Council board member Sharon Huff-Carter led participants in a class on painting and texture to help them experiment with various ways to make textures using conventional art tools such as string and stamps. “It was a pleasure working with such creative enthusiastic young people. Project grants like this allow the council more opportunities to outreach more art experiences.”

Cool temps just keep on coming

Even though we are well into Spring, the cool weather just keeps on coming. We’re now getting into the pollen season. Get ready for those allergy symptoms! I am looking forward to warmer weather!

Funny story from my Mom. Her brother sometimes trapped rabbits for him and his Dad to eat. He went out one cold winter and found a skunk in his trap instead. It was about half frozen. For some reason he brought it into their house and put it by the fireplace without anyone noticing. Well, you can guess what happened when the skunk thawed out. The smell settled on everything in their small house. Mom said their mother didn’t speak to him for about a month. Their Dad said that he had wondered if his son had any sense and now realized that he didn’t. My Mom said she dreaded getting on the bus because someone would comment on the skunk odor. Instead of being ashamed, she said her brother would stick out his chest and say, “It’s me.” She would just about die of embarrassment.

It's not nice to be flicking your finger on a crowded bus

A woman had just boarded a crowded bus and was walking down the aisle to find a seat when a man kicked her in the shin.

"Ow, that hurt," she protested. "Pardon me, ma'am," he said. "I have a nervous twitch in my foot. I got it in the war."

As she walked on down the aisle, a fellow was winking continuously at her.

"Why are you winking at me?" she asked unapprovingly. "I'm sorry ma'am," he said. "That's a nervous tick I picked up in the war."

She walked on down the aisle, and saw a man flicking his finger over and over again. She asked, "Did you get that in the war?"

"No, ma'am," he said. "I got it out of my nose, and I'm having trouble getting it off my finger."

I'm sure you've noticed by now that we all have our quirks — those things that others might consider odd. I'd be afraid to count mine, but one I notice more than any other is that I say "um" a lot when I'm talking. I interrupt just about every sentence with "um," it seems like. But I'm just glad I'm able to talk at all. It was a gift I didn't have as a young child, and when I did begin to talk, I had a speech impediment that prevented me from saying some words. For example, I remember being teased by other children because I couldn't pronounce words that begin with the letter C. I pronounced "car" as "tar." A "can" was a "tan." A "cat" was a "tat." So, when I speak to people nowadays, and if they're bothered by my saying "um" far too often, I'm in my own mind thanking the Lord that I'm able to communicate at all.

In the Gospel of Mark, we read about a person who couldn't hear and who had an impediment in his speech. That person was brought to Jesus, who restored both his hearing and his speech. Jesus touched his ears and his tongue, "and straightway his ears were opened and the string of his tongue was loosed, and he spake plain" (Mark 7:35).

I hope all of us realize just precious a gift it is that we're able to talk to one another, and I hope all us choose to share gracious words with one another, as the Bible encourages us to do.

Whether our quirks are our nervous ticks, our stutters, or a peculiar physical trait, let's be grateful that our Lord has given us the gifts of breath and life. And let's be careful not to tick off the lady on the Greyhound bus.

COURT

Employees enrolled in the low, or high deductible plan, will see no increase in their costs this year. But the County’s HSA contributions toward costs for that plan will increase from $50 last year to $100 for employee and from $100 to $150 for the family plan.

The one area that did see and increase was the employee PPO, or low deductible plan. Employees enrolled in that plan will see an increase from $25 to $50 for individual coverage, and increase from $165 to $210 for spousal coverage and an increase from $351 to $425 for the family plan.

The Court also approved entering into an agreement with Alternate Health Solutions LLC with services delivered by BluMine Health, for assessing, charting, diagnosing, planning, counselling and providing patient care beginning on July 1.

The BluMine Health Clinic located on Boggs Lane next to Planet Fitness not only can provide urgent care services for county employees and their families but can also provide all the services a primary care provider can provide including lab services and referrals to specialists.

Deputy Judge Executive Colleen Chaney said the Clinic has already proven to be a valuable asset for employees.

“We currently have all our firefighters getting their physicals at BluMine and they also handled all of our flu shots this year for employees free of charge,” Chaney said. “They are open regularly so you can schedule appointments, they offer prescription services, counseling and we are partnering with them on a variety of wellness packages for our employees. We are paying up front for employees to have those things free to reduce the employee portion of cash they are paying out. It’s really been a good service for us.”

Judge Executive Reagan Taylor said the Clinic was a great benefit to the county and he and Fiscal Court will continue to bring awareness to how great a facility it is to ensure that county employees understand what a great value the Clinic is for them and their families.

In other business the Court:

- approved the first reading of an ordinance that would grant a land use zone change for property located at 2713 Robbinsville Loop from RC3 to RC4 to match the current zone designation for adjacent property on the road.
- approved an amendment to the Cares Budget in the amount of $1,072,305.71. The amount is the second and final allocation of federal funds for the current fiscal year. The first funds were received last October.

10,000 gallons of gasoline in their storage tanks. Lane said his next delivery is expected to be Monday.

The pavement at Lane’s location is being repaved, which Lane said could create some confusion because the resurfacing area is roped off and he urged consumers to be “courteous and kind” until the issues with the pipeline are fully resolved.

The biggest issue, Lane said, was a lack of truck drivers delivering product to various stores in the region.

“(The suppliers) don’t have enough drivers,” he said.

In Georgia, Gov. Brian Kemp suspended

state taxes on motor fuel through Saturday to help alleviate the possible rising costs. A State of Emergency was declared in 17 states, including Kentucky and the District of Columbia following the preliminary shutdown of the Colonial pipeline system.

The emergency declaration “provides for regulatory relief for commercial motor vehicle operations while providing direct assistance supporting emergency relief efforts transporting gasoline, diesel, jet fuel, and other refined petroleum products into the Affected States during the emergency from shortages due to the shutdown, partial shutdown, and/or manual operation of the Colonial pipeline system.”

Madison Southern High School Band presents spring concert

On Thursday, May 6th, the Madison Southern High School Band presented their first public performance since December 2019. The band program performed four pieces in an outdoor setting incorporating the MSHS Football Stadium. The outdoor setting allowed for a larger audience by its outdoor nature as well as allowing more space for social distancing through the larger seating area. The band set up on the running track close to the home side bleachers with the audience seated in the stands. The crowd was treated to We Meet Again by Samuel Haze, Ancient Flower by Yikiko Nishimura, Fanfare for a New Age by Michael Story and The Blue Orchid by William Owens. Long time Madison Southern Director of Bands, David Radliff shared in his comments to the crowd, “This event has been incredibly fun to put together. Being our first public concert since December of 2019, it has been an unprecedented length of time between performances for us and we are all super excited to get back to sharing music live and in person again tonight.” The band has been meeting in person two days a week since early March and completely virtually prior to that. Mr. Radliff continued with “the pandemic has been incredibly difficult on those of us that create art in group settings. So much of the music performance experience is based on listening to and performing along with other people. There are limitations to the online platforms like Zoom or Google Meets that makes playing together impossible. Those first few times we were able to get the band kids back in the band room all playing together was truly magically. None of us could stop smiling!”

The band program is looking forward to a return to a more “normal” approach this coming school year. If anyone has a child that will be attending Madison Southern this fall that is interested in participating in the band program, we encourage them to contact Mr. Radliff by calling the school or email at david.radliff@madison.kyschools.us. This fall will also have the return of the Madison Southern Marching Band performing in local KMEA Band competitions, home football games and local parades.

Ohio in the opening round in 2019.

"Morehead State has been a tremendous opportunity for me and my family, and my experience has been extremely positive," Todd said. "Having success is part of it but also the relationships I have built I will miss. This community and the support they show for Morehead State have been awesome. I am grateful for the opportunity I was afforded seven seasons ago and look forward to maintaining some of those professional relationships as I move to Eastern Kentucky University."

Todd also coached at Transylvania for eight years following a successful career as girls basketball coach at Berea Community High School and Lexington Catholic High School. He won three state championships while at Lexington Catholic and guided Berea to the Final Four of the Sweet Sixteen in 1998. During his seven seasons at Berea, Todd compiled a 166-54 record and won at least 20 games each season.

Eastern Kentucky athletics director Matt Roan said Todd is a "tested and proven" college coach and is coming home at the right time.

"At every step in our process, Greg Todd rose to the top as the ideal coach to lead us at this exciting time," Roan said. "He's a coach who has dedicated his entire coaching career to women's basketball, has experienced amazing success with each program he's led, has a wealth of experience and understands the landscape, and knows our state incredibly well."

"His love for his alma mater and desire to build a championship-contending program here are unmatched. He comes highly recommended from all corners of Kentucky and beyond, and those folks speak not only to his ability as a coach, but also to his quality as an individual."

Todd was officially introduced during a press conference Wednesday at McBrayer Arena.

Berea Rotary meets in-person for first time since pandemic

In its first in-person meeting since the pandemic, Berea Rotary heard from the President of the Berea Arts Council Board, Joshua Prentice.

He noted that, like many other agencies, the council board closed up shop during the days of COVID-19 restrictions.

There have been online services to keep kids involved in the arts. The mission is to be a strong presence in the community with three immediate goals: Reopen, take care of staffing, and integrate with all members of the Berea community.

There are currently nine board members with a part-time assistant. For funding the council relies on memberships and grants. Additionally, there are standard fund raisers, one being a plant sale May 25.

The council is partnering with Berea College radio in an effort to increase its audience. The main thrust of Prentice's conversation was to share his sense of responsibility to the community through art, such as Community Theater.

In the business session, President Rita Davis reminded members of the yard sale on June 4th. Members are asked to donate items of high quality to support the student scholarships.

The club will meet again next week at the Smokehouse Grill for its regular noon time meeting.

Recipe from the heart

With approach of warmer weather and Memorial Day, our minds turn to being outside. This is a time that more of our meals are prepared on the grill and eaten outside on the deck. One of my favorite and simple things to eat grilled are hot dogs. I like to add chili to these some of the time. I have chosen a chili dog sauce recipe that my mother and I have fixed for many years. It has been served to many of my daughter's friends who came to hang out over the years. Libby Horn

Hot Dog Sauce

Ingredients

3 pounds ground beef
1 - 12 ounce can of beer
4 Tablespoons of chili powder
5 Tablespoons of paprika
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1/2 teaspoon garlic powder
1 small (14 oz) bottle of ketchup

Directions

Mix beer with hamburger and cook for 1 hour, stirring often. Add all remaining ingredients. Mix well and cook for an additional 30 minutes over low to medium heat. Stir frequently to avoid scorching.

Antigua set for 2nd stint with Cats

Orlando Antigua developed a greater appreciation for his former boss during his time away from the University of Kentucky.

Since leaving the Wildcats seven years ago, Antigua spent nearly three years running his own program at South Florida and had been an assistant coach at Illinois under Brad Underwood for the past four seasons.

"I've got a better appreciation now having had the opportunity to sit in that seat (head coach)," he said. "To know, not quite know, but a better idea of what is coming at (John Calipari), what he has to do, and our jobs as assistants is to try and take things off his plate. We need to figure out tomorrow's news yesterday."

Antigua will serve as an associate coach under Calipari beginning next season. As he prepares for his second stint with the Wildcats, Antigua wants to help the coaching staff "get back too working really hard, working together and being a players-first program."

"We're looking to doing all of those things and just hitting the pavement and trying to find and identify kids that are going to want the pleasure of the pressure, which is what it is being at Kentucky," he said. "You've got to be able to want to take on that challenge, live up to that challenge and allow us to push you through so that you can go out and shine and chase your dreams, and in that process we go out and win a lot of games."

During his previous five seasons with the Wildcats, Antigua was part of a coaching staff that compiled a 152-37 record and made three Final Four appearances, including a national championship in 2012. He also served as one of the top recruiters in the Calipari era at Kentucky and plans on building on that success this time around.

"Will we get some? I hope so," he said. "Will we miss on some? Probably."

"The landscape has changed. We have all of these new dynamics that are in play. Well, we're going to try and manage it as best we can."

Unlike his previous two stops, Antigua said Calipari's reputation and the school's rich history help make the Wildcats an easy sell on the recruiting trail.

"We have a Hall of Fame coach that you can go out and talk about," he said. "When you have a program with the history and the success that we have here at Kentucky, those are all great things to talk about to kids and families."

The veteran coach added that he plans own "staying on the ground" and establish relationships with the players.

"(I plan on) staying connected with just people in the basketball world and our relationships, and doing those kinds of things so we can better serve him and make sure that (Calipari is) prepared for everything."

Antigua said his experiences in life helped prepare him for his future battles on and off the court. Antigua survived shooting in 1988, where he was shot near his left eye. He recovered and went on to play three seasons for the University of Pittsburgh and then played for the Harlem Globetrotters, where he gained the nickname, "Hurricane." Antigua is known for having an uplifting and positive spirit on and off the court.

"It's who I am," he said. "It's who I've been. Obviously, the things that I've experienced in my life has allowed me to have a great appreciation for life, for opportunities. And having gone through a lot of challenging obstacles being able to keep things in perspective, understanding that you want to be around good people, you want to surround yourself around good people."

Familiar face returns to Berea

By Mike Moore
For The Citizen

The Berea Pirates boys' basketball team will have a familiar face leading the program as former assistant Eric Fields was named coach last week.

Fields had served as an assistant to former boys coach Eric Swords during the 2018-2019 season and as assistant for the Lady Pirates from 2019-2020 before moving on to Montgomery County to coach the freshman boys' team last year.

When Swords departed for Williamsburg High School last year, Fields considered applying for the position but elected to honor his commitment to Montgomery County.

"The job came open last year, but I already committed to going to Montgomery County to coach with my high school coach, Steve Wright," Fields said.

"Last year, I don't think I was ready to accept the responsibility and lead a team, but I learned a lot of things last year at Montgomery County," he continued. "A lot happens over a year, and you grow up a little bit. I felt it was time to look for a head-coaching job, and I don't think there was a better place than Berea to do that. So when it came back around this year, it was almost a no-brainer."

Fields brings with him a wealth of knowledge about the game. In 2005, Fields was a member of the state champion South Laurel Cardinals and went on to play college basketball at NAIA powerhouse Georgetown College.

He got into coaching in 2014, with stops in Garrard County (2015-16), Williamsburg (2016-18), Berea (2018-20), and Montgomery County (2020-21).

As he embarks on his first head-coaching gig, Fields says he expects his squads to compete in every phase of the game.

"Hopefully, I bring experience as a player and as a coach," Fields said. "I feel like we're going to compete. We're going to be a fairly young team, but we're not going to lay down and quit. We have to compete night in and night out. We've got to compete at practice and in the weight room. We have to be a competitive team, and that is the way I was when I played. I always competed and didn't back down from anybody."

Returning to Berea, Fields said familiarity should benefit the team as he taught or coached many of them during his first stint as a Pirate.

"It's important to have that relationship with those kids in place," he said. "I do know the majority of the players. I may have taught them my first go-around when they were in the sixth and seventh grade, or I may have coached the juniors and seniors whenever they were freshmen and sophomores. With them knowing what I'm about and me knowing them and what they're about, it's going to be fun to get into the gym and get running with that."

As he looks forward, Fields is excited about working with his team in the gym, and once the summer arrives, seeing them in action during summer ball.

"It's a full go this summer," Fields said. "We're going to go down to Lynn Camp and Pineville and play a little bit at our place to get some games in. I want to get into the gym early on in the summer and get our stuff down and get used to the system I want to run."

Happy Campers

The Madison Southern girls basketball team hosted a one-day skills camp Saturday at Southern. Approximately 42 kids between the first and eighth grade participated in a variety of skills, including ball handling, dribble moves, passing and catching fundamentals, shooting techniques and drills and passing and cutting. In top photo, Madison Southern girls' coach Josh Curtis talks to the campers Saturday morning. The camp featured instruction from Curtis, his staff as well as current Lady Eagle players. KFC returns, Waffle House coming to city

■ The new franchises are to be located close to one another on Kentucky Highway 21, Paint Lick Road, west of interstate exit 76.

New restaurants are coming to Berea this year, including KFC and Waffle House, according to city officials. That development was announced by Director of Business Development and Tourism Donna Angel Monday evening during a meeting of the Berea City Council Economic Development Committee. The new franchises are to be located close to one another on Kentucky Highway 21, Paint Lick Road, west of interstate exit 76. Angel reported that while the franchisees are currently addressing other details related to their operations in Corbin and Somerset, KFC is definitely coming back to Berea, with construction possibly beginning as early as August. In other restaurant related news, Angel told the committee she expects an Asian restaurant will open at the former Wings, Etc. location on Jill Drive, and that the space is being divided so that it can house an additional restaurant in the same building.

On the other side of Highway 21, the building site next to Arby's will be a drive-thru restaurant to be named in the future at an 8,400 square foot building site. That space will also accommodate two commercial businesses in addition to the drive-thru restaurant, Angel reported.

Gregory's retirement a surprise

By Andy McDonald
For The Citizen

Shocked was the word most Berea City Council members used Tuesday night after hearing Berea City Administrator David Gregory will be retiring effective August 1. Gregory made the announcement at the conclusion of the City Administrator's Report segment of Tuesday's Berea City Council meeting. The meeting marked the first time the council met in person since the onset of the COVID-19 pandemic last March. Gregory told council members he revealed

A Doggone good time

The "Tillie Off Leash Dog Area" opened to the public last Saturday, giving dog owners a place to take their pets. The park, located on Harrison Road, near the Public Works Department, is named after Tillie, a late local canine who accompanied hikers to the Pinnacles. Tillie passed away in July of 2013 at the age of 13. She began living with Ron and Bhana Deaver in 2003, where the couple resided in a home near Indian Fort. The friendly canine was known to accompany hikers on their treks to the Pinnacles as much as 10 times a day. Tillie wore a golden tag that read: "My name is Tillie. I am not a stray. I live next door. Let's go for a hike!" Berea City Council member Teresa Scenters suggested the name Tillie Off Leash Dog Area and said the canine was "the most famous dog in my memory," she said. The park has been a project that has been discussed by city officials for more than a decade. Spring Clean a big success

The first “Spring Clean” sponsored by the Berea Police Department was a success last weekend. More than 60 people volunteered to clean over 500 pounds of trash — two truck loads — throughout the city.

“We got the great opportunity to mentor our youth, set the example of what servant leadership looks like, and lastly listen to many of our young people who are truly our future,” Berea Police Chief Eric Scott said. “I’m so very thankful to the citizens that came out.”

Volunteers included the Boys and Girls Scout troops (Troop 2086), the Madison Southern boys Basketball team, “Get Outside” Kayak rental team, the local nutritionist at Wright Nutrition, the Public Works and Codes Department for providing the resources, Berea Mayor Bruce Fraley and City Administrator David Gregory for always pushing and promoting community work. Scott also thanked his officers “who took time out of their busy lives to not only serve while on the clock, but also while off. Next year will be bigger and better. CEREMONIES will be honored with placement of a wreath at the grave site of Pvt. Horace Yates. Join us for an evening "in memory of the soldiers dead."

The Grand Army of the Republic and the Women's Relief Corps

The Grand Army of the Republic (GAR), a fraternal organization founded in 1866 was composed of Civil War veterans of the Union Army, Navy, and Marines.

Shared war experiences linked the GAR veterans. The GAR was one of the first organizations to support voting rights for black veterans; promote patriotic education; help make Memorial Day a national holiday; lobby to establish veterans' pensions; and to support Republican political candidates.

Its peak membership of 410,000 in 1890 was a high point of Civil War commemorative and monument dedication ceremonies. The G.A.R. was succeeded by the Sons of Union Veterans of the Civil War. Madison County was home to three additional G.A.R. posts: O.P.

Johnson #18 at Round Hill, T. D. Sedgewick Post in Richmond, and Marion Murphy Post in Kirksville.

Many descendants of these veterans still reside locally.

The Woman's Relief Corps Auxiliary #48 was composed of wives, daughters, and widows of GAR veterans and provided benevolent care for veterans and their families.

Three interpretive markers were funded by private donations with additional support from the: African American Veterans of Madison County; African American Genealogy Group of KY; Battle of Richmond Association; Berea Cemetery; Berea College Special Collections & Archives; Madison County Historical Society; Sgt. Elijah P. Marrs Camp No. 5; Sons of the Union Veterans of the Civil War and more.

It is suggested that attendees bring their own lawn chairs. Local and state COVID-19 guidelines regarding masks and social distancing will be observed. The gathering is open to the public without charge.

A year later, we are just getting started

It's been more than a year since taking over as publisher of this newspaper and we are just getting started.

I took over in an unprecedented pandemic and began weathering a storm that battered my personal life and turned my world upside down.

Despite the circumstances, I remained positive, upbeat and strived to put out a good product each week as we began to slowly emerge from COVID-19.

The road to recovery hasn't been easy, but I'm thankful I had a foundation to build upon that was established by my predecessor, Teresa Scenters. I didn't have to start from scratch and depended on my past experiences at two daily newspapers as clouds of uncertainty hovered over our city, county, state, country and our world.

I redesigned the paper to give it a modern look and began adding new weekly features.

Carrie Grant provides news and insights from Kirksville, a special place, where I spent most of my childhood, and my late grandfather Bill May farmed and lived his entire life.

Tammy Whittemore handles

the Kingston area and Libby Horn takes care of our weekly reflections column that reminds our readers of yesterday. Libby also is administrative assistant and takes care of circulation and daily front office duties. She is almost always the first voice you hear when you call the paper. If I answer the phone, consider yourself lucky to be on the receiving end of the call.

On the religion page, my friend Roger Alford, a former veteran Associated Press writer and Frankfort bureau chief, contributes a weekly column that is entertaining, fun and provides a unique Christian perspective.

We continue to honor our readers with our subscriber of the week, and as always, provide news stories that give you the facts without slanted opinion attached to create a narrative to help you formulate an opinion.

I also added a Kentucky Wildcats page, which has been a very popular weekly page that our readers enjoy that we have received positive feedback on since the page made its debut last December.

As we move forward and things begin opening up again, the plan is to bring back the community calendar.

In order to do so, we need your help. Although some community events are posted in social media platforms such as Facebook, not everyone gets their information through the internet and the local newspaper remains a valuable tool to place your ad or event one the weekly calendar in order to reach the community.

If you have an event, such as a yard sale, concert, civic or church event that you want to the community to know about, share it with us by calling (859) 986-0959 or by e-mail @circulation@bereacitizen.net.

My sleeves are rolled up and ready to begin year No. 2. As always, thank you for reading and our advertisers for their continued support.

Graduation traditions

Graduation is steeped in tradition. Come the day of graduation, many grads-to-be might be focusing on receiving their diplomas and then celebrating after the ceremony. The hard work students put in affords them every right to celebrate once they're officially anointed as new grads, but before the party begins it can be fun to reflect on the many traditions associated with graduation ceremonies.

Cap and gown

Graduation ceremonies simply wouldn't be the same without caps and gowns.

The tradition is anything but new, as Columbia University notes caps and gowns have been linked to academia since the 12th century. Back then, students wore gowns and hoods to emulate the clergy who taught them, but also to stay warm.

Many universities dressed their scholars in gowns from the 1700s onward.

In 1786, one school, Brown University, even mandated that degree candidates be clad in flowing robes and caps at commencement ceremonies.

Though educators and students may no longer wear caps and gowns when attending class or around campus, the tradition of doing so at commencement ceremonies has endured.

Tassel turning

The tradition of turning the tassel does not have the lengthy history of the cap and gown, dating back only decades rather than centuries.

Graduates typically turn the tassels after everyone has received their degrees during the ceremony. The turn is symbolic of their transition from student to graduate.

Tassels start on the right for high school students and college undergraduates and are then turned to the left, while recipients of master's degrees and doctorates keep their tassels on the left throughout the commencement ceremonies.

Tossing caps in the air

The tossing of graduation caps in the air is believed to date back more than 100 years.

Prior to 1912, graduates of the United States Naval Academy had to serve as midshipmen for two years before they were commissioned as officers.

As a result, they still needed their graduation caps. But beginning with the class of 1912, graduates were automatically commissioned as officers, so they no longer needed their hats. That led the graduates to throw them in the air, thus beginning one of the more fun and photo-worthy graduation traditions.

'Pomp and Circumstance'

This tradition marked by the playing of "Pomp and Circumstance" is rooted in the work of William Shakespeare, which makes it seem like a perfect fit for graduation ceremonies.

Sir Edward Elgar composed "Pomp and Circumstance" in 1901 and the title for the song was inspired by a line in the bard's "Othello."

Elgar received an honorary degree from Yale University in 1905, and during that ceremony "Pomp and Circumstance" was played.

The song apparently made a strong impression, as it soon began to be played at various commencement ceremonies, a tradition that continues today.

Word on the streets

“ What is the best thing about not wearing a mask?

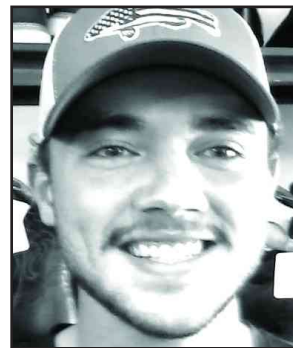

Henry King

“Just not having to worry about that virus so much is a great thing.”

John Iaacs

“I'm looking forward to not feeling controlled any more.”

Mike Lowery

“I can breathe better and I can see who I'm talking to.”

SUDOKU

Level: Intermediate

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Diary offers a glimpse of 1972

My brother Dwayne brought over some old pictures in a box from my Granny's house.

He was surprised to discover a small diary of hers from 1972 in there. He had never noticed it before since it was just a small notebook.

I'm guessing that my granny Gladys had more time on her hands then. Her youngest daughter Charlotte was attending Berea College while she lived at home. (From the sound of the diary, Charlotte had an active social calendar.) Gladys' other two children were already married and out of the house.

Church was an important part of her life. She taught Sunday school for many years at Glades Christian Church. She had listed attendance numbers in her diary. Her husband Charles served on the board.

With all the isolation of the COVID-19, I must admit I am slightly jealous of all the family meals Gladys had. My family even joined some of those meals, but since I was only around four, I have no memories of them.

Gladys also mentioned phone calls (some lasting two hours), written letters, and actual visits.

I am enjoying this brief snapshot of her life. I wish it had covered more, especially the difficult times she faced in her life.

• Gordon and Salter, Chartered, in Richmond are closing. The doctors there delivered both of my daughters.

• Congratulations on retirement after 45 years.

• Congratulations are certainly in order for the graduating seniors of 2021.

No class before has faced the continuing difficulties that have plagued you.

Whatever you may face in your future, just know that you will overcome it!

Berea native Mona Isaacs had been recently promoted to the Director of Information Technology and Delivery Services at Eastern Kentucky University. Isaacs, who joined the University in 1996, had served as the Interim Director of ITDS since 2004. With ITDS, she also served as software consultant, project manager for Banner ERP implementation and manager of the Information Services Division. According to James Chapman, Provost and Vice President for Academic Affairs, "she (Isaacs) bring to the position a wealth of experience, having overseen or assisted with EKU's various academic and administrative needs. I am confident she will continue to do an excellent job as she provides leadership, vision and direction for ITDS." According to Chapman, Isaacs had implemented collaborative work groups that had helped increase responsiveness to consumer needs, initiated the Academic Technology Advisory Committee, implemented a three-year equipment replacement plan for central IT and reorganized staff reporting lines to improve effectiveness and efficiencies among accomplishments. Isaacs, a Berea native, is a two-time graduate of Eastern Kentucky University, having earned a bachelor's degree (cum laude) in Computer Science and Mathematics Teaching and a master's degree in Computer Science Teaching.

The Letter Carrier's Association was able to collect 4,300 pounds in food contributions during the recent "Stamp Out Hunger" Food Drive. Residents were asked to leave nonperishable food items in their mailbox. Mail carriers collected the food and delivered it to local food banks. The Berea Post Office thanked everyone for their generosity.

Two southeastern Kentucky men were arrested by KSP and the Laurel County Sheriff's Office in conjunction with a home invasion that left a woman dead and a man seriously injured. Douglas Wayne Hall II of Corbin was charged with complicity to commit murder, criminal attempt to commit murder and first-degree robbery. He was booked at the Laurel County Detention Center on two $10,000 cash bonds and was also facing other criminal charges from two unrelated incidents. Tony Clayton Hodge of London was charged with murder, attempted murder, attempted manslaughter, and first-degree robbery. He was lodged at the Madison County Detention Center on $200,000 cash bond. The incident in which the two men were charged took place January 29, 2006 on McKee Road in Big Hill. KSP said that the two men kicked in the door of the home, and then proceeded to shoot and stab 58-year-old Martha Faye Jackson to death. A man in the home, 37 year old Mitchell Turner was attacked and left for dead. He was transported to St. Joseph Berea by Madison County EMS and later transported to University of Kentucky Medical Center in Lexington with

Recently Berea made national news when local activist, Craig Williams received the prestigious Goldman Environmental prize. Created in 1990, the Goldman Award was established to honor those whose work with environmental issues often goes unnoticed. One award is given to an individual on each of the six inhabited continental regions: Africa, Asia, Europe, Islands and South Islands, North America, South and Central America. Each prizewinner received $125,000, along with international credibility. Williams was the 2006 North American Award. In 1985, Williams learned that one of nine weapons stockpiles was planned to be burned at the Madison County Army Depot. Fearing for the safety of both community residents and the local environment, Williams took action to form the group Chemical Weapons Working Group (CWWG), a nationwide grassroots coalition to demand safe disposal solutions and openness with the Pentagon's program. Through the program, his fellow members have stopped incineration both locally and nationwide. B Another of Williams' accomplishments is his founding of the Vietnam Veterans American Foundation, which won the 1997 Nobel Peace Prize for it's in-

‘Odd’ name stuck even after fellow was dead and buried

A woman had lots of children, so when her last one was born, she had great difficulty in thinking of a name. She finally decided to just call him Odd.

Oh, he hated that name. He hated it so much that he left his children strict orders that, when he died, they wouldn't put that awful name on his tombstone. "In fact, just don't put any name on my tombstone," he told them. "Just leave it blank." Years later, a fellow was walking through that graveyard and came across the stone with nothing written on it. He bent down for a closer look and said, "Isn't that odd?"

The Lord has always put great importance on names, and, at times, he changed people's names. For example, Jacob was renamed Israel. Saul was renamed Paul. Simon was renamed Cephas, which, when translated, is Peter. In each of those men's cases, the Lord changed far more than their names. He gave them total make-overs.

Jacob was a deceiver, but Israel was devout. Saul was a persecutor of Christians, but Paul was the great apostle who, after meeting the Lord, spent the rest of his life urging people to become Christians. And Peter, the fisherman, became a fisher of men, rock solid in his faith, after failing miserably a few times.

You remember that followers of Christ weren't always called Christians. The Bible tells us "it was in Antioch that the disciples were first called Christians" (Acts 11:26). That name stuck because they were indeed Christ-like.

I recently moved to a new state into a neighborhood where no one who lives near me had ever laid eyes on me before. I hope it doesn't take long before those new neighbors are referring to me as that "Christian" who lives down the block.

They will see me walking to the vehicle with a Bible as I go to church on Sunday mornings. That will be a clue.

They will be greeted warmly with a friendly smile and a kind word when we meet on the sidewalk. That will be a clue.

Roger Alford

They won't hear loud, vulgar song lyrics emanating from my home. That will be a clue. They won't see me parading around in the yard half naked. That will be a clue too.

But I've found the only sure-fire way people will know we're Christians is to tell them about Jesus, to let them see we love Him, and that we have given our lives to serving Him, not in an obnoxious way but with kindness and humility.

The Apostle Peter described Christians as a "peculiar people" who have been called out of darkness into Christ's marvelous light.

In this day and age, living for Jesus indeed makes people peculiar, but in a good way. In fact, if you're sold out for Jesus, you might be like the fellow whose mother named him "Odd."

People might see how different you are from non-Christians, take a closer look at you, and say, Isn't that odd? Hopefully, they'll go on to say, "I'd like to be odd, too."

You can reach Roger Alford at 502-514-6857 or rogeralford1@gmail.com.

Future of Tolle building, train depot, Berea Hotel in Old Town addressed

There are no easy answers and opinions are varied when it comes to the future of Berea’s Tolle building, train depot, and Berea Hotel. Plans for the three facilities were discussed last week during a work session of the Berea Tourism and Convention Commission.

The City of Berea purchased the Tolle building approximately seven years ago with the intent of making it the home of Berea Tourism. Those plans stalled after events like the burning of the Gallery 123 space on North Broadway as well as the COVID-19 pandemic. Commissioner Rick Thomas said it’s now time to put those historic buildings to work to draw tourists to the city.

“I know there’s a lot of frustration about not using the Tolle building, and we have to be responsive to those people that are saying, ‘Why the heck did you guys buy this and waste it for so long?’” Thomas said.

“But I think we have to be strategic about how it fits with what we’re going to do with the train station, what we’re going to do with the Berea Hotel, so it’s a long-term strategic plan.”

Thomas alluded to the future of the Berea train depot once tourism has moved on to the Tolle building, suggesting the historic facility should be redeveloped to draw foot traffic to the area. Thomas, who is a successful businessman and restaurateur, suggested a restaurant/reception space could be a revenue source for the city. He noted that with the city’s recent success in securing grants, it may be possible to secure funds for a commercial kitchen for either the depot or the Tolle building.

Others, such as Commissioner Laura Carpenter, suggested the depot might be of better use as a museum or some type of gallery highlighting famous people who have come out of Berea. Berea Business Development and Tourism Director Donna Angel also weighed in, noting that that space constraints and the noise that comes with frequently passing CSX trains could make it difficult to operate a successful restaurant at the Berea depot. Others, such as Commission Chair Patrick Huston, said he favors keeping a tourism presence at the depot after the majority of the department moves to the Tolle building.

Ultimately, Commissioner Charles Arnold said the question may be moot, since it is the city, not the tourism commission that has the final say about the facility. Other commissioners said they would like to see if the depot could be deeded to the commission.

The commission discussed the Tolle building at length, but again, they were confronted by certain complications. They discussed converting the facility into a gateway to welcome tourists, however, the building’s restrooms still have to be renovated and made handicapped accessible. In addition, the commission previously planned to install an elevator to make the facility ADA compliant, but the price tag for a new elevator to the second floor was then $175,000.

Carpenter recommended that minor renovations, such as painting and flooring, could be done in the interim just to make the building functional. Commissioners Kristi Napier and Arnold agreed that converting the building for some kind of use should happen sooner than later. “It’s time that this building is occupied,” Arnold said.

his plans to Mayor Bruce Fraley last week. His last official day of service will be July 31, 2021.

“I want to thank the city for all of the opportunities given to me and my family over the last 23 years. I’m very grateful to have worked with some very talented people during my career. I’ve enjoyed my time as city administrator and police chief,” Gregory said. “My retirement is bittersweet. I’m looking forward to spending more time with my family, however, I will miss the people and friendships I have developed over the last several years.”

Mayor Fraley and council members praised Gregory for his approximately 23 years of service in the City of Berea, which began when he was a police officer, 10 years as chief of police, and approximately two and a half years as city administrator. Gregory took over for Randy Stone in October of 2019. Gregory said he will be glad to help in the search for his successor and he will be available to offer assistance and advice to the city after he retires.

Fraley reacted by thanking Gregory for his commitment to public service. “The most important thing I can say tonight is thank you to David Gregory, our city administrator, not only for his two years as the city administrator, but also over 20 years in the Berea Police Department,” Fraley said. “David has a true servant’s heart, he has a love for our community, and an enthusiasm for building a better Berea that will be missed by all of us, and really, David exemplifies what we all want to see in a public servant. It’s bittersweet to me, too, David. I’ve been working together with you side-by-side for nearly two years and even beyond that when you go back to the police chief days, but we’ll continue doing good things until that day [of retirement] comes.”

Council members were quick to praise Gregory’s service, which occurred during what was arguably the most tumultuous time experienced by a Berea city administrator.

“David I want to thank you for the good job you’ve done and it’s been a pleasure working with you,” said Councilman Jerry Little.

“I, too, was not ready for that announcement David,” said Councilman John Payne. “You’ll be missed.”

So it went with all of the council members as they thanked David for his service, with special thanks from Katie Startzman and Teresa Scenters, who said they were helped by Gregory during their first year on council.

In other news, the council unanimously tabled the second reading of an ordinance that would revise city procurement policies. The revision of city policy would have triggered the bid process for goods and services at $30,000, instead of $20,000 as is current city policy. During two previous work sessions, council members expressed concern about maintaining proper financial oversight and transparency with the proposed change.

Finance Director Susan Meeks and Audit and Finance Committee Chair Steve Caudill assured council members that the new rules would not compromise internal spending controls that are currently in place.

In other action, the council unanimously adopted a resolution commemorating National Public Works Week. Councilman Jim Davis remarked that the Public Works Department goes above and beyond its responsibilities in caring for city infrastructure, and they also do a lot to assist other city departments, such as Parks and Recreation. Councilmember Cora Jane Wilson agreed, noting Public Works staffers often work in less than ideal conditions, such as during last winter’s ice storms, to keep the city running. “They do a lot of things most of us wouldn’t do,” Wilson said. “I really appreciate what they do.”

In other developments, Gregory reported three line item spending overages that were still within the city’s budget. Under city ordinance, the city administrator must inform the council if a spending line item significantly exceeds the spending plan even if it is still within budget. Gregory reported an overage of approximately $8,000 for legal advertising for city projects, approximately $8,000 for legal services for the revised cable franchise ordinance, and approximately $5,100 related to building maintenance as it relates to health and safety pandemic precautions.

Meanwhile, Councilman Steve Caudill announced there will be a budget work session on Friday at 8 a.m. to discuss the 2021-2022 fiscal year budget.

Committee member Ronnie Terrill raised concern about the traffic in the area of that proposed businesses, noting there is significant traffic congestion near the Amish Store, Speedway and Burger King when motorists turn to go toward the Dinner Bell and Arby's. He suggested the city should work on securing funding to ease traffic congestion at that intersection.

Overall, Angel said 19 new businesses have opened in Berea since the beginning of the year, and more are inquiring about coming to town. New businesses include a possible book store/coffee shop, a new yoga salon, a new car wash, as well as a hair salon and ceramics gallery and studio, among others.

Additionally, more food trucks are starting to operate in Berea, including one from Kentucky Mountain

Deli, which had a brick and mortar operation before the onset of the global pandemic last year.

"We've had a lot of good businesses pop up and we are thrilled to have them all here in Berea," Angel told the committee.

Officials report there are also signs of life at exit 77, as there will be a new franchisee taking over the previous Huddle House location, reviving that franchise in Berea. With challenges in hiring restaurant staff, officials predict that restaurant might not open until the fall.

Georgia guard transfers to UK

Kentucky added another transfer to its upcoming roster.

Georgia transfer Sahvir Wheeler signed with Kentucky on Monday and will have three more seasons of eligibility remaining. Wheeler, a guard, averaged 11.3 points, 5.8 assists in 57 games for the Bulldogs and becomes the fourth transfer added to next year's squad. He joins Oscar Tshiebwe (West Virginia), Kellan Grady (Davidson) and C.J. Fredrick, formerly of Iowa.

"I chose the University of Kentucky because it gives me the best opportunity to make a run at a national championship and pursue my dreams of playing in the NBA," Wheeler said. "I can't wait to get to Lexington and get to work."

Kentucky coach John Calipari is looking forward to having Wheeler on the roster and said he's the type of player "that dictates the pace of the game, who gets easy baskets for himself and his teammates, and who can be disruptive defensively."

"He is what you look for in a point guard in that he puts his teammates in positions to score, yet he can score the ball in bunches when he needs to," the Kentucky coach said. "He was a second-team all-conference player as a sophomore and almost routinely put up games with double-digit assists, including setting the SEC Tournament record this last season with 13. I am excited for him to be a part of this program and my guess is our players will be too."

Last season, he was a second-team All-Southeastern Conference performer and led the league with 7.4 assists per game.

Former Iowa Hawkeyes guard CJ Fredrick made a move toward the basket against the Rutgers Scarlet Knights last year at Carver-Hawkeye Arena. (Brian Ray/hawkeyesports.com)

Fredrick set to make more memories at Rupp Arena

C.J. Fredrick has produced some memorable moments at Rupp Arena. The Iowa transfer hopes to add to his list of accomplishments with the Wildcats in the future.

Fredrick, who led Covington Catholic to the state championship in 2018 said his past Rupp Arena experiences were "super special" and can't wait to play on the floor again next season.

"I'm excited to do the same thing with this team, just come in and help this team do whatever it needs to do to win and create more memories at Rupp Arena," he said Tuesday.

Despite his status as a former in-state prep standout, Fredrick said he doesn't feel any pressure about playing in his home state for the flagship university.

"I just see it as a great opportunity for me to just come in and get better and help this team win," he said. "I love to win. So, I just see it as an opportunity. It's going to be great for my family to be able to be closer to the games. My grandma can come to the games, my mom, dad, aunts, uncles, all of my family kind of in the area. So, I just see it as a great opportunity for me."

Fredrick spent three seasons with the Hawkeyes and made 83 3-pointers during his career and averaged 8.8 points per game. Fredrick entered the NCAA transfer portal a month ago and was considered a target for Kentucky, since he played his prep career at Covington Catholic.

Fredrick enjoyed his time with the Hawkeyes, but "just kind of wanted something new" and decided to explore his options following the season.

"I loved my time at Iowa," he said. "I had three great years there. I love the people there. They were great to me. They made me feel at home when I first stepped on campus. So, I'm forever grateful for the opportunity they've given me and how great the fans and the people were to me ... They're going to hold a special place in my heart for that. But like I said, I just wanted something new. I felt like it was best for me and my career to make this move and just develop more as a player, a teammate, a person."

Growing up in the state, Fredrick considered Kentucky his dream school, but wasn't sure if the opportunity to play for the Wildcats would be an option after settling on his college choice following a stellar career at Covington Catholic.

"I never thought it would

Keith

happen," he said. "I'm just super excited that it did happen. But I knew that I was going to go to a team that needed me, and Coach Cal was actually one of the first people to call me when I entered the portal. The minute I talked to him I could feel the genuine need for me to come in and help lead the team and help make shots and help spread the floor. That was something that I really liked and enjoyed talking with him about."

During the recruiting process, Fredrick said the Wildcats didn't recruit him in high school, but added that he was "locked in on Iowa" during the Colonels' successful state tournament run three years ago.

"I was honored by that commitment and that opportunity, so I never really thought of a different opportunity," he said.

Now that he has three years of college experience, Fredrick said he's prepared to suit up for the Wildcats.

"My game has just evolved in so many ways," he said. "I'm just more mature on the court. In high school I kind of just went out and played, and now being in college I've kind of been able to read the game more. There's so much about the game that you just kind of have to sit back and learn more about. I feel just in control on the court."

Growth resulting in more property value assessments

Bob Flynn
For The Citizen

RICHMOND — If you own property in Madison County and you haven't received a property reassessment notice in the mail yet from the Madison County PVA office, there's a good chance one will arrive in your mailbox in the next couple of days.

Madison County Property Valuation Administrator Billy Ackerman told Fiscal Court members during their regular scheduled meeting Tuesday that about half of the 36,000 property owners in the county will receive reassessment notices which began being mailed out on Monday. State law requires property to be physically inspected and reviewed at least once every four years, but a parcel can be reviewed more often.

In a typical year, about 10 percent of the county's property is assessed, Ackerman said, but several factors over the past two years are fueling the increase in assessments.

“Most of the time when the market is going slowly up or staying relatively steady, once in a four-year period is pretty accurate to keep you in line with fair market value over that period,” Ackerman told magistrates. “But right now, we are seeing some extreme growth, which is a carryover from last year. Last year we were extremely conservative when we did assessments. We knew the market was up in 2020 and we were aware it stayed that way and we didn't

Veterans center opens its doors

The Madison County Veterans Center celebrated its grand opening Saturday in Richmond.

Sixth District Congressman Andy Barr attended the event and was impressed with the facility.

"(A) beautiful day for the Madison County Veterans ribbon cutting for their new building," Barr said. "(It is) amazing to see so many volunteers make this a special day for our veterans."

The center offers veterans in Berea and Richmond a place to gather for fellowship, congregate and reminisce. The center was scheduled to open last year but was postponed because of the COVID-19 pandemic. "What a wonderful resource for our veterans and asset for our community. Thanks to the City of Richmond for making it happen," State Representative Deanna Frazier said.

"Sgt. Johnson shared with me his incredible story from the Battle of the Chosen Reservoir," Barr said. "Sgt. Johnson and 1,500 Marines who were pinned down by the 150,000 Chinese Communist Party Soldiers miraculously fought their way out and back home. God bless Sgt. Johnson, who is an American hero, and all men and women in uniform."

Millstone Festival set for Oct. 9

The City of Richmond is moving forward with plans to host the inaugural Millstone Festival in the Downtown District on Saturday, Oct. 9.

The festival will be a one-day event that runs from 11 a.m. -10 p.m. It will feature vendor booths, food trucks, a beer garden hosted by Dreaming Creek Brewery, a car show, and live music throughout the day.

William Wray

William Wray, 65, Jonesboro, Arkansas passed away May 1, 2021.

When you passed away, it was a very sad day for your family: Your mother, Betty, your younger brother, James, your youngest brother, Thomas, and your younger sister, Ellen. Despite the efforts of the professionals at St. Bernard's Hospital, you just could not overcome the effects of acute pancreatitis.

For the last last 25 years you have lived and worked in Jonesboro, Arkansas. Your friends and colleagues in the St. Bernards Hospital IT Department will miss your camaraderie and your "The problem with that is....." way of wanting the best for everyone in the IT department. You will be remembered for times when helping hospital staff with computer problems, you might grumble "user error", but then laugh and happily fix the problem. Outside of work, even though you were not always very outgoing, you would gladly help your friends and neighbors the best way you could. You would make a point to say "hi" to your neighbors and keep an eye out for the neighborhood.

What were your passions? What made your eyes sparkle?

Remembering your past canine companions, Giotto and Thalia. They were a true source of joy for you and everyone they met. You were a chef, the best kind of chef, always glad to share of your vast knowledge and even your culinary secrets.

Vacations to the family cabin in the north woods of Wisconsin. Whether alone or with family, this is when you would truly relax and enjoy a simpler life.

Here's to you, our brother, our friend...

We have many more campfires yet to enjoy. Many more meals to share.

Many more glasses to raise.

Being your brother and friend for just one day more than fills my heart.

-James

When you moved away,

I borrowed your place at the table.

When I learned to play a musical instrument,

I borrowed your flute.

My memories of you—your gift to me,

Are all mine to be joyfully shared.

-Ellen

Fire ring, glowing coals

Brats and burgers spitting juice

Rippled lake sparkles

Blaine E. Van Winkle

Blaine was born on the first day of Spring, March 20, 1953 to Lorain Lisenby, in Richmond, Indiana. Although Blaine was born in Indiana, a part of him always stayed grounded in his proud Kentucky roots and heritage that he loved.

The first and foremost love of Blaine's life was Jesus Christ. From a very early age he loved the Lord, felt His call, and remained strong in his faith until he passed into His presence on May 4, 2021. If you met Blaine, he would take the opportunity to ask you "Do you know Jesus?". Whatever the answer, rest assured there would plenty of conversation over the answer to that question!

Blaine married Cleo (Brockman) Young in 1973 and together, they had three daughters; Stacey Lee (Tad) Schrock, Nita Kay (Paul) Gayheart, and Natisha/Dink (Mike) Ball. Blaine's love for his daughters was pure and true, and they were the apples of his eye. He married Linda (Alvey) VanWinkle on February 21, 2006 and they shared a wonderful life and partnership together. Blaine loved the outdoors. Camping, fishing, golfing, and being connected with nature was like being at home for him. He taught his daughters to love, embrace, and honor the beauty in these things when they were very young. He enjoyed playing Horse Shoes at his Grandma's house, and Euchre with anyone willing to pretend he wasn't cheating a little bit. His bible was always near by and he read from it everyday. He loved to dance, pick the banjo, and strum his guitar.

Blaine will be so missed by everyone that knew him. His simple outlook on life, his passion for Jesus, his humble demeanor, and deep love for those around him, was inspiring.

Blaine was blessed with three sisters; Fonda Wilds, Liberty (Marilyn) Tevis, Tami Blalok, his step-aughters Angie Alvey, Mary Alvey and his many grandchildren that share such endearing stories; Christian (Arielle) Thompson, Harley (Steven) Phillips, Natalie (Jacob) Payeur, Roxanne Schrock, Samantha (Evan) Melching, Alexis Lisenby, Jacob (Lexi) Lisenby, Chandler Newsome, Isaiah (Emily) Cureton, Reagan Cureton, and Riah Heitkamp, Cody Jablonski, Jonathan Jablonski, and eight great-grandchildren.

He was preceded in death by his mother and step-father, George and Lorain Lisenby.

A private family service was held at the Wilds Cemetery in McKee, Kentucky on Saturday, May 8, 2021.

Memorials in Blaine's honor may be directed to the family to assist with funeral expenses c/o Natisha Ball, 6715 Lynvale Drive, Fort Wayne, IN 46804, or Visiting Nurse & Hospice Home, 5910 Homestead Road Fort Wayne, IN 46814.

The sights of summer well within view

The signs and sounds of summer are showing. A year removed from an unprecedented pandemic that forced us all to stay mostly inside last summer, it's beginning to look somewhat normal again. This past week, I visited the Berea City Pool to get a preview of what things will look like once it opens back up to the public again on Saturday. Seeing the clear, blue water and the shiny slides made me happy for those who will take a splash to cool off once the sizzling hot temperatures settle into the region. While at the pool, I noticed the rims were back on the basketball court and children were enjoying the park again after the yellow caution ribbons were placed around the area to keep patrons away. It didn't seem right then and it sure doesn't seem right now, even though I totally understand the reasoning behind the idea at the time. Not only are our citizens getting an opportunity to get outdoors and enjoy the sunshine, but dog owners in the city have a place to take their pets. After more than a decade of discussion and debate, the city unveiled the Tillie Off Leash Dog Park and kudos for this sitting council and Mayor for getting this project done. It's good to see the city leadership taking charge and getting things done for the betterment of the community. Just last week it was announced that Kentucky Fried Chicken and Waffle House would be coming to Berea, a sure sign that cooperations are giving the community a second look when it comes to dining choices. A big thumbs up to Donna Angel for her hard work in getting more restaurants to locate to this community. While these new businesses are locating to the city, it's vital that the current and future establishments get support from the community, especially when they are looking for workers. As I have said before and I'll say it again, my parents taught me the value of work and we need teach our up and coming generation and others to take pride in earning a paycheck. When I entered the work force at age 16, I made $3.15 per hour and never complained. I went to high school, paid for my car insurance, played on the basketball team at Berea, worked nearly every weekend to pay for my lunch during the week. I also worked and took journalism classes at Eastern Kentucky University before becoming fully vested in my professional career. In addition, I have noticed young people taking an active part on volunteering recently and it brought a smile to my face to see many of our teenagers cleaning up the Bluegrass Memorial Cemetery last weekend. I also witnessed members of the Madison Southern boys basketball team volunteering to pick up trash during a city clean-up event. I'm glad to live in a city and county that's on the move.

Poll: Kentuckians split on vaccine requirement

Kentuckians are split when it comes to whether COVID-19 vaccines should be required for employees or students to return to in-person work and school. That's according to a poll by the Foundation for a Healthy Kentucky. Looking closer at whether it's a good idea that students be required to have the COVID-19, there is a divide based on whether children live in the household. Two-thirds of those living with children thought a school requirement was a bad idea. Meanwhile, more than half of those without kids at home thought it was a good idea for a school requirement. "It's expected for parents to have lots of questions and be concerned about their child's health," said Ben Chandler, president and CEO, Foundation for a Healthy Kentucky. "We encourage you to talk with your child's pediatrician, your doctor, pharmacist or local health department to get the facts about what the vaccine means for your teen. And, talk to your teenager about what they want to do." On the business side, political party identification, self-reported health status, and age show differing opinions on whether it's a good or bad idea for businesses to require employees to get vaccinated before returning to in-person work. "We still have a lot of ground to cover to help people become more comfortable with the COVID-19 vaccines," said Allison Adams, vice president for policy, Foundation for a Healthy Kentucky. "It's up to us all, from health care providers to family and friends, we need to make sure that family members, co-workers, and neighbors are reading information from reliable sources so that they may make an informed decision for themselves and their family." The Foundation has compiled a number of resources from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) and Kentucky health leaders here. The Foundation's Vaccines in Kentucky poll showed more than 70 percent of Kentuckian adults intended to or had already taken the COVID-19 vaccine. Meanwhile, half of those who did not intend to get vaccine said they were open to changing their minds with more information and time. (Download Brief 1) The poll also showed that 95 percent of Kentucky adults trust their physician or health care provider a great deal or fair amount when it comes to getting information about vaccines. Other highly trusted messengers include a person's pharmacist and local health department leaders. (Download Brief 2) The Foundation is challenging local health care providers, pharmacists and other health influencers to get the word out to their communities, clients, neighbors, friends and family by recording a video and posting it online, in local e-newsletters, and social media. The Vaccines in Kentucky – The Foundation for a Healthy Kentucky Poll was conducted February 11 – March 12, 2021 by the Institute for Policy Research at the University of Cincinnati. More than 800 adults from throughout Kentucky were polled by telephone. The poll includes a +/- 3.5 percent margin of error. It was funded by the Foundation for a Healthy Kentucky.

Letter to the editor

Helle: EMS staff deserve praise

Dear Editor:
Last week, we celebrated National EMS Week (May 16-22). It's the one week set aside each year since 1974 to celebrate EMS professionals and the work they do in communities across the country. The theme for this year's National EMS Week was, "This is EMS: Caring for Our Communities." And, EMS professionals have certainly shown over the last year just how much they care about the communities they serve: They've often been the first health care point of contact for so many COVID-19 patients. Working on those dangerous front-lines, they donned their personal protective equipment, comforted patients, treated patients and transported patients. And, they did it all over again when the next call came in. They did it without complaint. They often did it with a hint of fear in the back of their mind. But, they knew that you, me, our families and all of our neighbors were depending on them. They did what public servants do — they acted. Even before the public health emergency, the job of EMS professionals was a difficult one. There were the long hours. The sometimes low pay. The accident scenes that can never be erased from the mind. But, if you ask most EMS professionals why they do what they do, they won't hesitate for a second in their response. They do it because they want to help people. They do it because they love it. In fact, most couldn't imagine doing anything else. And so, during National EMS Week, the staff of the Kentucky Office of Rural Health want to offer our sincere thanks to the EMS professionals in this community and other communities across the Commonwealth who, day in and day out, respond to the calls and needs of their neighbors, no matter the hour. We're proud of the work you do, and we're forever grateful for your service.

Scott Helle, Rural Outreach Coordinator
Kentucky Office of Rural Health

SUDOKU

Level: Intermediate

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Simplicity another way to show gratitude

This is the best time of year in Kirksville. It's my favorite season. We are between Spring and Summer; It's warm but not too hot, rain has that earthy smell that reminds you of your childhood, gardens are being planted, and hay is being cut. Every day feels like a fresh start or a beginning to something great because daylight comes and stays so much longer. The sunshine brings a kind of happiness of its own with all that can be done in a single day, but star-filled skies bring hope.

Over the weekend, I watched residents working outside of their homes, adding touches that indicate their pride for what they have worked so diligently for through the years. An addition that I made to my home over the weekend was a firepit. As a child, I remember our version of camping was going out on the backside of the farm with some wood, cast iron skillets, and a tent for a couple of days. As I cooked on the fire pit Sunday, I was reminded of how much joy those times brought and the pleasure they still bring as memories can keep me happy even in the loneliest, lowest points of life.

It's truly amazing how something as simple as sitting next to a fire under a clear sky can allow you to escape from the problems of now to happier times of yesterday. I think in today's increasingly progressive world, we all seek the freedom of simple times. It seems as though when I make additions to my home that remind me of these times, I feel happier and somehow more appreciative.

For instance, I've seen neighbors plant their gardens this weekend or work in their hay fields, I've been reminded often of my grandparents and what my childhood looked like with them.

I think many of us in this part of the county probably still follow some of the same superstitions and guidelines our grandparents, parents, or even great-grandparents taught us. Putting those to use brings a different kind of peace to your life, because even if they aren't with you anymore, you still feel a sense of pride in how you're completing the task at hand, and even more so when you literally reap what you sow.

Incorporating pieces of the past into your current life shows pride for your roots and takes you back to the good ol' days. In a world that at times seems technology obsessed, politically crazed, morally unstable, add in a touch of your past life and see if there's a change.

A lot of us in Kirksville do just that, and I'll always think it's what makes us a little bit better off than the rest of the world. Simplicity isn't regression, it's just another way to show gratitude.

Appalachian Spice Day

Students at Silver Creek Elementary School got a taste of the way things use to be during the Appalachian Spice Day. Artists and craftspeople from the Berea area were invited to the school to share how the methods they use to create art were once a way of life. Blacksmith Bob Montgomery explained the factors involved with working with iron. Frank Jenkins used hand-powered shears to remove wool from a year old ewe. He explained that it took almost a half an hour to shear a sheep if they "don't jump around too much." Ele Workman demonstrated how tread and fabric can be dyed naturally. First the thread must be washed to remove the grease or the color may not take. Workman used dyes made from marigolds and poplar to make the tread a golden yellow color.

Teachers honored

Several local teachers were recently honored with the Excellence in Teaching Awards from Campbellsville University. Madison County teachers who were honored included: Denise Ann Rains; Christie M. Fain-Shanks; and Cherry Lynn Pinson. Thana Taylor Connelly from Rockcastle County (Berea Resident) was also honored.

Panama journey

Three teenagers were preparing to embark on a journey to Chitre, Panama for the summer. Justin Baldwin, Ashley Marcum and Sara Tomlin would be leaving for Panama on July 20 and would return on August 3. Their trip would take them to Garden Valley, Texas for a three-day training camp.

There with other teenagers, the three would learn their roll in a street drama called The Journey Man.

The drama was an interpretation of the way Jesus was crucified and how others and their feelings about it viewed the crucifixion. After their time in the training camp, they will leave for Panama where they will perform the street drama and then speak with people in the crowd by God and Jesus.

During their time on the trip, the teens were free to speak and play with the children in the streets as well as spread the word of God through personal evangelism.

Memorial Day traditions

Memorial Day is coming up. In the good old days, family would return from different cities or states to join local kinfolk to decorate graves. If you could not come, you would put in money for the flower fund. People would decorate several generations of family graves. Sometimes it would take two days to get to all the cemeteries. At the same time, they would enjoy visiting and catching up with everyone local. Maybe you even stayed with some relatives and enjoyed a home cooked meal. It was a good chance for the kids to play with cousins you rarely saw. It was also a good time to learn about your heritage. There really was so much good about those days.

I ran into Lloyd Maupin. (The Maupins have a long history in this area). Lloyd mentioned a bayonet that was kept in his family's attic for years. The triangular tip was broken off. He believes it was from the Civil War battle fought nearby at the Battle of Richmond. It was eventually donated to the Battlefield Visitor Center. Lloyd also told me a sad story about an old well that was near the current Shell gas station that was contaminated. After drinking the water, one person lost their life to typhoid fever. That kind of thing seems unimaginable now since doctors have come so far in understanding the causes of diseases.

Lloyd finished up with memories about some local businesses: Nick William's grocery store, a feed store, a doctor's office, possibly a second grocery store in the Pennington building. Kingston had a post office.

There was a gas station, some lodging, and Pott's Garage. It was a thriving community like so many others in Madison County.

Poster contest winners

Recently, the Humane Society Animal League for Live of Madison County recently sponsored a poster contest. Winners were as follows: Sara Walters (Kirksville Elementary) was the 5th grade winner of a $50 savings bond; Raven Shearer (St. Mark's School) was the 2nd grade winner of a $50 savings bond; Sara Thesing (St. Mark's School) was the 1st grade winner of a $50 savings bond; and Taylor Satterthwaite (Berea Community) was the 3rd grade winner of a $50 savings bond; Elizabeth Rison (Kit Carson Elementary) was the 4th grade winner of a $50 savings bond. Eva Adele-Cortes (Kirksville Elementary) was the countywide winner of a $200 savings bond and a 1-year membership to the Lexington Children's museum.

Search for fire chief

The search for a new fire chief during a personnel committee meeting during this week in 2003, may have began and ended in the same session.

Berea Fire Chief Bob Davis announced his retirement less than two weeks previous to the session and it looked as if Deputy Chief, Randy Rigsby was poised to fill Davis' position.

The committee, chaired by councilman Virgil Burnside, interviewed Rigsby as the only candidate to apply for the position. According to City Administrator, Randy Stone, the position had been advertised internally prior to the committee meeting. Rigsby began with the Berea Volunteer Fire and Rescue in 1982.

He was hired full-time with the city's fire department in 1988. He was currently serving as deputy chief after promotions in 1998 and 1999.

Rigsby told committee members that he currently organized training and maintained the department's records. His other qualifications included knowledge of the department's budget, extensive training on equipment (including the new aerial truck) as well as experience with personnel matters.

He was the author of the incident command system and procedures for "suspicious white powder" in the wake of the recent anthrax scares.

Council member Chester Powell said that Rigsby had the full backing of the fire department and the decision to recommend him to the position was unanimous.

Mayor Steven Connelly was expected to approve the recommendation at the June 3 council meeting.

Religion

It's amazing how high you can jump when a bear is after you

The old country preacher Billy Kelly used to tell the story about the time he was hunting and his dogs bayed a huge bear. When Billy got close, the bear saw him and took off after him.

"I took off running as fast as I could go, looking for a tree to climb," Billy said. "When I finally got to a tree, I tell you, the first limb was at least 10 feet high. I jumped and missed the thing. You know what I did? I caught it on my way down."

It's amazing what we can do with the right motivation. I'd imagine we'd be motivated to run fast and jump high with a bear chasing us.

Did you ever stop and examine your motivations for the things you do? Jesus told us that we need to be careful not to do good deeds just to impress folks around us, because if we do, we will have no reward with our Father in Heaven.

Jesus said there are people who want to sound a trumpet to draw attention to themselves when they do something for someone. Obviously, people who do that sort of thing don't have pure motivations.

Later, Jesus was watching as people put their offerings into the temple treasury. Many of them who were rich put in lots of money, and apparently made sure folks knew about it. Then, a poor widow dropped in two small coins. "And he called unto him his disciples and saith unto them, Verily I say unto you, that this poor widow hath cast more in than all they which have cast into the treasury, for all they did cast in of their abundance, but she of her want did cast in all that she had, even all her living" (Mark 12:43-44).

I envision that poor widow making no show whatsoever when she gave every bit of money she had in this world. She was not pretentious in any way. And Jesus memorialized her through the ages with the mention in the Scriptures. Why?

Because her motivation was pure. That widow gave from a pure heart.

This is what I know: People around here are generous givers. They always have been. When they see a need, they meet it. And no one will ever know anything about it. Our neighbors here are nothing like the hypocrites Jesus talked about.

They're more like the widow in that they always give from pure hearts.

We may be able to give generously. We may even be able to jump 10 feet into a tree with a bear behind chasing us. But, whatever great things we do, let's not seek the applause of men. Instead, let's be satisfied that the Lord knows and is pleased with us.

What's for dinner? 'Beef Day' proclaimed in county

By Bob Flynn
For The Citizen

RICHMOND — The Madison County Fiscal Court Tuesday officially proclaimed the fourth Thursday of each May as Beef Day in Madison County.

The proclamation recognizes the value of beef cattle production in the county and the effects it has on the economy.

It might come as a surprise to many, but Madison County is the second largest beef producing county in Kentucky, behind only Barron County.

Madison County is home to more than 71,000 head of beef cattle on 780 beef cattle farms, which produce more than $42 million of the county's $50 million of gross income.

The county also is home to Bluegrass Stockyards Richmond, one of the most active and up-to-date stockyards in the state, which sells more than 55,000 head of cattle annually.

In reading the proclamation, Madison County Judge/Executive Reagan Taylor said Madison County desires to "promote its leading agricultural commodity, beef cattle and wants to recognize the economic and nutritional value of beef promotion and beef consumption."

On Beef Day, Thursday May 27, Madison County residents will be treated to free hamburgers during a drive-thru event from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the Central Kentucky Ag Credit office located on the Robert R. Martin Bypass, near Save-a-Lot.

The 2nd Annual Beef Day event is sponsored by Central Kentucky Ag Credit, Madison County Farm Bureau, Madison County Beef Cattle Association, Bluegrass Stockyards Richmond, Madison County Cooperative Extension and the Kentucky Beef Council.

Milestone: 2 million Kentuckians have received one vaccine dose

FRANKFORT (KT) – Two million Kentuckians have now received at least one dose of the COVID-19, while new cases and the state's positivity rate have now dropped for three straight weeks, Gov. Andy Beshear said on Tuesday.

"Fifteen months after the first case here in Kentucky," he said during a virtual Capitol press briefing, "Not only do we have effective vaccines but two million Kentuckians already being vaccinated is really exciting."

The current number is 2,006,742, and Beshear noted with the opening up of the Pfizer vaccine to those ages 12-15, last week's vaccination numbers, the first full week younger people could receive it, were nearly double the week before. He also said there could be more vaccines available to younger folks, with vaccine news announced Tuesday.

"Moderna announced its COVID-19 vaccine in early trials is 100% effective in their study of adolescents ages 12 to 17," he said. "This is the age group Pfizer has already gotten emergency approval for and is currently the only vaccine for ages 12-17 that have been approved. Moderna says it is going to seek that FDA emergency approval in June to expand their use, so teenagers can have two options, and there will be more supply for them."

He added, "This is really important, as we try to get our kids vaccinated before they head into their next school year, so we can have a fully normal return to school."

Gov. Beshear said in-person visitation will resume at all state prisons and juvenile justice facilities, the week of June 20. Contact information will be posted on the Department of Corrections and Department of Juvenile Justice websites on June 4.

"The visits must be scheduled in advance of the visit," he said. "Each inmate and youth housed in custody will be allowed two visitors at a time, due to social distancing requirements. All visitors must provide proof of a completed COVID-19 vaccination card, wear a mask, and practice social distancing at all times during the appointment."

want to over assess."

Ackerman said that a majority of the county was hit this year because "most of the properties that we have looked at are not a lot low, there are some, but most of them are just slightly low."

Ackerman said that residents who receive notices and don't think they accurately reflect the fair-market value of their property have several ways of scheduling meetings with him and the PVA office to discuss the assessments.

"We are trying to be as available as possible and we want you to know that we are here to work and help you," Ackerman said. "If you get a notice and you do not believe they reflect the fair-market value, we do want you to contact us. There are four ways to reach us. You can go online at madisoncountypva.com and there are some instruction notices that will allow you to do a conference completely online and we will communicate by email. You also can call the office and set up either an email conference or you can set up an appointment by phone or in person."

The conference period which allows residents to challenge their assessments runs for two weeks, beginning June 1 and ending June 15. The June 15 date is a hard deadline set by the state for challenges. After that there is only a one-day window to file an appeal at the County Clerk's office.

Ackerman said he is often asked if the city or county are behind the reassessments, but neither are involved. "The state comes in every single year and they set what our assessment targets are. Sometimes I get asked if the County or City are pushing for the reassessments. They are not. It's the state that sets those levels that we have to meet in order to get certified."

Cats take two from Irish to advance to NCAA Super Regionals

Kentucky is going to the NCAA Super Regionals for the eighth time in school history. The Wildcats (43-14) swept Notre Dame in the Lexington Regional on Sunday, one day after the Irish defeated Kentucky to send the Wildcats into the elimination bracket. Kentucky forced a decisive Game 2 with a 7-0 shutout in the opener on Sunday and earned a ticket to the Super Regionals with a 4-0 win at John Cropp Stadium. Notre Dame (33-15) defeated Northwestern and Kentucky in its first two games before getting shutout in the final two games of the three-day event. The Irish managed just six hits off two Kentucky pitchers. Autumn Humes went the distance in the opener, and relieved starter Grace Baalman in the second game, facing the final three batters of the contest. The Wildcats set the tone early with a four-run outburst in the first game, while using a four-run explosion in the fourth inning of the finale to put the Irish away. "I thought today we dominated all phases of the game," Kentucky coach Rachel Lawson said. "We pitched well, we did a good job offensively, we created some pressure with base running, and overall, we played pretty good defense. So, I was really impressed with how we came out and we dominated from first inning of game one and then we continued through the second game." Lawson was especially pleased to see her squad rebound from a 12-3 setback to the Irish in five innings. Kentucky staved off elimination with a 7-2 victory over Northwestern Game 5 on Saturday. "We were just so bad on Saturday — I mean like I had talked about it," the Kentucky coach said. "We just like didn't even acknowledge it. It was like those things that you had to throw it out because if you didn't it would take weeks to analyze how terrible it was." Humes, who scattered five hits in two appearances on Saturday, smacked a solo home run in the second game of the doubleheader and said the Wildcats just wanted to forget about the first loss to the Irish. "We just tried to forget every single thing that happened in that game yesterday and start fresh — just because that wasn't us," she said. "That wasn't Kentucky softball. That wasn't me on the mound. I don't know who that was, but we just really tried to come back to ourselves and the way that we play the game. When we play the game the way we play the game, we're going to beat the other team." Kentucky, which collected 15 hits in the two games, including 12 in the opener, got a solid performance at plate from outfielder Tatum Spangler. Spangler had two hits each in the two contests, including a home run in the first of two games. "I think that I have been struggling a little the past few days and today I knew that I had to set my zone and not fish for pitches because these pitchers were good and had good off-speeds and spin with the ball," she said. "I just knew that I had to set my zone and have them come to me and they did."

Familiar foe

Kentucky will now face off against Alabama in the next weekend and Lawson said he team will know what to expect from the Crimson Tide. "The nice thing is we just played them, so we're not going to lose any sleep preparing necessarily for them like we did this weekend," Lawson said. "This is really tough on the athletes just having to know so many different pitchers and so many different hitters. We're a lot more familiar with them so that'll be nice going in. Now, granted we're still going to have to figure out how to beat them."

Transfer Wheeler brings experience, confidence to UK

Sahvir Wheeler is confident he will be eligible to play for Kentucky next season. A transfer from the University of Georgia, Wheeler is confident the Southeastern Conference will waive a rule that requires transfers from one league school to the other to sit out a year. "I wouldn't have made the move if I felt like I was going to have to sit out this year," he said. "But, I think that rule is going to pass. Hopefully it will. I'm pretty sure it will." In his two seasons with the Bulldogs, Wheeler developed a reputation as one of the top up-and-coming point guards in the SEC. Wheeler isn't afraid to pass up a shot and dish to his teammates, but also is known to take over the game in the scoring department. "I feel like I'm the fastest or one of the fastest Coach (John Calipari) is going to have," he said. "I'm probably up there with (De'Aaron) Fox. It's pretty ironic because Fox is from Houston (Texas)." Because of his size, Wheeler compares himself to former Kentucky guard Tyler Ulis and also doesn't mind "guarding the ball, being a defensive pest and being disruptive on that end." "If I'm getting that comparison, I think I'm doing some things right," he said. "Obviously, I have to continue to get better to live up to that, but I'm super excited. He was a successful guard in college. He was super successful here at the University of Kentucky and I'm really cool with that. I'm also cool with being the next, the one and only Sahvir Wheeler as well." Wheeler also considers himself a student of the game and studied past players at Kentucky, including Fox and Ulis. "I feel like this league was built for guards like me to play fast, to be up-tempo, to be productive," he said.

"They've had a lot of guards come through Kentucky, obviously, who were all those things. So, that's why I guess I consider myself a Kentucky historian per se a little bit. I'm just super excited to be here." Kentucky's newest edition on the roster also doesn't lack in self confidence and admitted "he wouldn't be here" if he didn't trust in his own abilities. "You've got to have a little bit of self-confidence and know what you bring to a team no matter who's there," Wheeler said. "But, Coach Cal was very straight-up and genuine from the beginning. Like, I knew that he was recruiting another guard and I knew that it would be a guard that we could complement each other. TyTy (Washington) is unselfish. I'm unselfish. He can score. I can score. He can really shoot it. That's something I'm working on and hopefully you all are going to be able to say that about me at the end of the year." Wheeler said the biggest reason he transferred to Kentucky is because of the platform. "The platform that Kentucky has, the stage that if you're excelling and you're competing at a high level and you're being productive, that puts you in a different atmosphere, a different environment than anywhere else," he said. "Also, just looking from a roster standpoint, I've never got to play with elite shooters like Kentucky has this year on its roster, especially in college." Going into his third season in the league, Wheeler considers himself a veteran. "I know what to expect. I know the different coaching styles and the different coaching staffs and what they like," he said.
