County, city schools prep for in-person return

By Keith Taylor
Citizen Publisher

Madison County Schools has released its plan for the upcoming school year and a full return to in-person learning is a top priority for the district.

"We know the value of face-to-face, in-person learning and our goal is to maximize those learning opportunities this year," Madison County Schools Superintendent David Gilliam said in a message on the school web site Monday. "In order to do this, we must have students and staff in attendance every day. We will continuously monitor many sources of data for our state and community, but the piece of data that will be most relevant to us during this school year is the impact of COVID infections and quarantine on student (and) staff attendance in our district."

Gilliam said the district will require masks on regular bus routes and will recommend, but not require masks for all persons "while indoors in all classroom and non-classroom settings, unless otherwise exempted."

"We will start the year by continuing with many of our mitigation strategies, but leave masking as a personal choice as long as attendance remains strong," Gilliam said. "If we should see a decrease in attendance during a time when community transmission numbers are high, then we will begin to phase in additional mitigation strategies that will include mandatory masking, increased social distance, and restrictions on group gatherings."

• Berea Community Schools unveiled its plans for re-opening and all students, administrators and staff will be expected to wear masks.

The same policy will apply to those riding on school buses and other methods of transportation.

Owlsley Fork Dam project hits 'milestone'

By Keith Taylor
Citizen Publisher

The Owsley Fork Dam project reached a big accomplishment when 90 percent of the design plans were submitted to state and national officials for review in April.

"That was an important milestone achievement," Berea Municipal Utilities General Manager Kevin Howard said during a Berea City Council meeting Tuesday at the Berea City Annex. "We were really pleased to finally get to that point."

On June 24, Howard received feedback from the submitted designs and was "surprised by the numerous comments that came back," although he was expecting a "thorough review." The review included 194 comments, including six that were deemed critical. Because of the high volume of comments, Howard met with state officials on July 22 to review the comments and requested a meeting with the national officials to "seek clarification" on some of those requests.

Howard and the state officials determined that 91 of those comments were "relevant, productive and needs to be considered and addressed in a re-submittal." He added there were eight comments officials disagreed with and will seek variance on those in the future.

"We're confident that we will get cooperation from the state and federal agency to where this is not going to be a big hindrance on the timeline .... that's a very important project to Berea and the future water supply."

"Every single one of us riding in this ride is a first responder. We know the risks that we face every day. Fortunately, we have all come home and are able to participate in this ride to honor our brothers and sisters who paid the ultimate price and weren't able to come back home to their families. We do it for them and their families and communities to let them know that Kentucky will never forget their loss. It is our honor and our privilege to ride for these families."

Brent Billings

The Kentucky Brotherhood Ride made a stop at the Berea City Hall on Saturday to honor late Rockcastle County Sheriff's Deputy Ronald Bradley.

Bradley was one of 12 first responders from the state of Kentucky who passed away in the line of duty last year.

Bradley's wife Brenda, son Ronald Bradley Jr. and daughter-in-law Angela Bradley greeted the bicycle riders at Berea City Hall Saturday. The Bradleys received a gift from the Brotherhood. Berea Fire Chief Shawn Sandlin and Barry Manley of the Berea Police Department also were honored.

The group, featuring 35 first responders, began its journey last Thursday in Lexington, the beginning of a four-day, 400-mile journey. The Brotherhood will be making stops at 18 counties, including eight hometowns of fallen first responders.

Owen Franklin "Frank" Yeager

Owen Franklin "Frank" Yeager, 75, died on Monday, July 26, 2021 at his home in Burgin. Frank was born on May 31, 1946 in Richmond. The son of the late Joseph B. Yeager and Virginia P. Yeager, he grew up in Irvine where he attended Irvine High School. After a brief service in the United States Army, Frank enjoyed surveying land for several years, a period of time he enjoyed reflecting on, before starting work at Rockwell in Winchester in 1968. He lived in Winchester from 1978 to 1992 before transferring to Meritor (Rockwell) in Oshkosh, Wisconsin where he lived and worked until retiring in 1998. He enjoyed boating on the waters of Lake Winnebago during his years in Oshkosh.

Upon retirement he returned to Winchester for more than a decade where his sons enjoyed visiting him in the town where they grew up with him. In 2013 he moved to his final residence in Burgin where he enjoyed a breathtaking view overlooking Herrington Lake and the beautiful farmland surrounding it. He spent many hours in his last years enjoying the natural wonders of this scene and observing the joy of the recreational boaters and fishermen with his beloved dog, Sissy, and cat, Fatty Kat. He was a lifelong golf enthusiast and fan of the Cincinnati Reds and Green Bay Packers, and one of the world's most devoted TV watchers and coffee drinkers.

"Dad"/"Grandpa" had a deep bond with his animals. It is comforting to know he is once again with his beloved dogs Sissy and Bullet. Pursuant to his wishes, his ashes will be combined with those of Sissy (pictured with him) and scattered overlooking the scene they enjoyed during so much time together. There will be no public services. A later private memorial for family will be announced.

Frank was preceded in death by his loving parents and his brothers Joseph Patrick Yeager and Thomas Bennett Yeager.

Frank is survived by his sons, Frankie Lee Yeager (Rhonda) of Georgetown, Joseph Patrick Yeager (Sherry) of Irvine, and Lance Owen Yeager (Kathleen) of Louisville, his grandchildren Stephanie Reynolds (Charlie), Alicia Danielle Blanton (Adam), Crystal Yeager LeMaster, Ivy Lee Yeager, Lance Owen Yeager, Layne Frances Yeager, and Elliott Aloysius Yeager, and five great-grandchildren.

Frank is also survived by his sister Mary Anne Schmitz, of Loveland, Ohio, who he loved so much, and a person who was very special in his life, Sue Taulbee of Winchester.

Frank loved his family and friends. His passing leaves a hole we cannot fill, but his love and thoughtful ways will always be carried in our hearts. He lived life on his own terms and always wanted the best for everyone. Dad, we loved you beyond words. We'll see you again.

Protect yourself and others with or without vaccine

There has been a renewed call for those unvaccinated to get the COVID-19 shot during the past few weeks and mask recommendations — not mandates — have been made by Governor Andy Beshear to help curb the spread of the Delta Variant.

Because of my personal experience with the virus, my mom’s passing and my respect for others, I was vaccinated in April and it wasn’t a political debate, either. It was a personal decision to protect myself and others. Life and death decisions should never, ever be political, but rather personal.

The delta variant reportedly hasn’t been known to be as aggressive than COVID-19, but rather easily transmitted. The vaccine, on the other hand is producing the right response for protection and preventing hospitalizations and deaths in many cases. The spread of the delta variant in Kentucky and the United States has been because of the high rate among unvaccinated citizens.

While I am a firm believer in the vaccines, I’m also a proponent of freedom and our ability to make choices based on the information that’s available. What I do know is that COVID-19 is a deadly virus and we must do everything we can to prevent the spread — in this case — of the delta variant if we want to become a normal society again.

Like many of you, I have longed for a return to pre-2020 and for some like myself, it has been and will continue to be an adjustment because of damage this virus has inflicted on many families all across the globe. My life has been and will always be different since Oct. 5, 2020 when mom took her last breath after the virus did its damage.

I’m tired of mask recommendations and even the mention of the virus and its variants, but in order to move forward, we must do everything to ensure it disappears and that includes getting vaccinated. If you choose not to receive the shot, at least wear a mask and protect yourself as I did in the months after mom’s passing and prior to receiving the vaccine.

It’s the best hope we have at overcoming this seemingly never-ending pandemic.

Fair embodies best of state

By Ryan Quarles

It’s time. After a year and half of shutdowns and extreme social distancing, Kentucky will have the opportunity to come together at the 117th Kentucky State Fair, Aug. 19-29 at the Kentucky Expo Center. The Kentucky State Fair is one of our state’s oldest events, one that truly embodies the best of Kentucky.

In a time when we seem to be so divided, the state fair presents an opportunity to unify as one. In a true spirit of unity, the state fair will kick off with a bipartisan moment: the Constitutional Officers, both Democrats and Republicans will roll up their sleeves to serve breakfast to fairgoers.

At the State Fair, people from all ages and backgrounds come together to share in some of our greatest traditions. The Great Kentucky Cook Out Tent (over by the West Wing of the Expo Center), is home to a number of delicious Kentucky Proud food items that our farm families hope you’ll enjoy. In the South Wing, AgLand welcomes each person to get better educated about the basics – and the science – behind agriculture. Each evening, free concerts are offered for fairgoers, including one of my personal favorites, The Oak Ridge Boys, who will perform for the 46th time.

The State Fair also represents a chance to connect with some of the sights (and smells) of a bygone era for too many Kentuckians. It is no secret that our agriculture industry is changing, and more and more Kentuckians are removed from farm life than ever before. But odds are many Kentuckians still have a connection to a farm in one way or another, either through a memory or a story from a relative. By closing your eyes and taking a deep breath in the livestock barn or the tobacco room, you find yourself instantly transported to a Kentucky farm.

By walking through the numerous exhibits, you can connect with families who are still carrying on the traditions that helped build Kentucky.

You might even have a chance to talk to a youngster all about how he or she cured that prize-winning country ham.

And let me tell you: if our county fairs are any indication of how excited people are to be back to normal, then this signature summer event will likely be one of the largest attended state fairs in the history of the commonwealth. It will also be one of the most affordable. Thanks to steps taken by Kentucky Venues President and CEO David Beck, early bird tickets are on sale from now until Aug. 5 for $8 (and that price includes free parking). The fair is also paying tribute to our veterans and our seniors once again, with dedicated days for both to explore the fair free of charge.

Despite a lawsuit from the Governor challenging a state fair board reform bill passed by the General Assembly this year, the show will go on.

We won’t let that suit put our fair in jeopardy. The state fair board is committed to putting on a spectacular event, one that respects our tradition of bringing both urban and rural Kentucky together to celebrate what makes our state great: farming, family, food, and fellowship.

I look forward to visiting with Kentuckians of all ages and backgrounds Aug. 19-29 in Louisville. For full details and tickets, visit kystatefair.org.

Ryan Quarles serves as Kentucky’s Commissioner of Agriculture.

Letters to the editor

Blankenship: Open leader to BCS school board

As a concerned parent of five children currently enrolled in the Berea Community School system, I write to ask you to reconsider your recent decision not to require masks for the upcoming school year, in light of new CDC guidance issued today.

As CNN reports, “CDC recommends that everyone in K through 12 schools wear a mask indoors, including teachers, staff, students and visitors, regardless of vaccination status.” This view is shared by the American Academy of Pediatrics. “[T]o make school safe for all students, teachers and staff,” they recommend “that everyone older than age 2 wear masks, regardless of vaccination status.”

This issue has no doubt brought you frustration to the point of exhaustion. The politics of masking has outlasted all our patience for it, and I recognize that I am asking you to make a tough call. We all hope that schools will not be places where conflict and social problems manifest in ugly ways.

But I believe the troubles that may result from optional masking will outweigh the benefits: children will lose their parents, their grandparents, and even their friends if you do not reconsider your decision. In my view, stewardship of our community requires that reconsideration.

Each of you serves the public by voting your conscience.

As a mother of children too young to be vaccinated, as a friend to a woman whose autoimmune problems make vaccines useless to her, and as a citizen who feels her community has suffered enough, I ask you to review the new CDC guidance and vote your conscience again.

Rebecca Blankenship

Here’s How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Graffiti not part of the glory on Hagan's Mill Road

Recently, Kentucky in Pictures, a page on Facebook, posted photos of the bridge at Hagan's Mill Road. The post details the bridge and its location. Then the poster boasts that the graffiti is from "local youngsters keeping a tradition going" and asserts that "Names and Greek symbols indicate that a lot of sorority and fraternity kids from local universities may make their mark on the bridge." They then encourage a visit to the bridge from others. Hagan's Mill is one of my favorite and probably most traveled roads since I have had a driver's license. It's one of the few roads in this county that remains beautiful no matter the season. During the spring and summer, colorful wildflowers grow on the roadside; during the fall, the changing leaves cover the road like something you'd see in a magazine, and the Winter is the most amazing. If it snows and the creek is just a little frozen, you can watch deer and other animals stand on the snow, leaving their tracks to be seen until it melts away. The winter drive across Hagan's Mill is one that leaves picturesque memories with you. The graffiti on the bridge is not part of the glory on

Carrie Grant

Hagan's Mill as this post makes it out to be. It's not something all of us "local youngsters" felt was a tradition, except for a few troublemakers who may have participated. In fact, I would argue that it isn't tradition at all. The graffiti on the bridge has only become bad in the last 10 or so years. When I first started driving on the bridge, there were some tagged areas, but spray paint did not cover it as it does now. A few years ago, I remember it being painted over in an attempt to cover the graffiti. The graffiti is not the attraction the post makes it out to be. For many of us locals, the appeal is the scenic beauty of the area. Frankly, the curse words, slang terms for anatomy, and lewd drawings only detract from that. Visit the area, but not because the bridge is tagged. Visit because it's a beautiful place, and leave it as you found it.

Reflections

Berea Citizen Archives: Aug. 6, 1998

Bradley attends FFA leadership Conference

Breanna Bradley of the Madison Southern High School FFA Chapter, recently attended the 1998 Washington Leadership Conference in the nation's capital. The weeklong program helped FFA members improve their leadership roles within their chapters. Participants attended sessions on developing key messages, personal and leadership development, teamwork and making a difference within their chapters. The highlight of the week was a visit to the office of Kentucky Senator Wendell Ford.

Landmark city's possession

At a Tuesday night meeting, the Berea City Council voted unanimously to purchase the building would soon become the former location of the Berea Post Office, at a cost of $135,000. The actual purchase of the building would not happen until September or October of 1999. The United States Post Office had planned for a new facility to be built on Glades Road. However, construction had not yet begun. The City will not formally take possession of the building until the new USPS facility was completed and ready for occupancy. City Administrator Randy Stone said that the council had not made any decision's as to how the building would be repurposed at the time.

Newspaper boxes stolen

Three juveniles were arrested and charged with theft by unlawful taking over $100, after they allegedly stole two newspaper display boxes earlier in the week. According to Berea Police Department, the three teens allegedly stole a coin-operated Lexington Herald Leader newspaper display box from Dinner Bell around 4:45 in the morning on August 3rd. The juveniles then allegedly took the box into a field in the area, broke into the change box and removed the change, which they supposedly spent at a nearby Shell Food Mart. The juveniles then allegedly returned to the Dinner Bell and stole coin-operated display. They then took the box to a field and broke into the coin box of the Wall Street Journal, taking an undetermined amount of money. Police recovered bot newspaper boxes. Both sustained serious damage. The value of the two boxes was between $350 and $375 each, making the crime a felony.

Educators attend tour

Three local educators from Berea College were among those who recently attended the United States Army Recruiting Battalion Nashville's final educator tour of the year. The tour brought together educators from five southeast states. As with previous tours, educators received a view of Army life, viewing displays meeting soldiers serving in various occupations and soaring over the post on a Black Hawk helicopter. Educators viewed displays ranging from small arms used by the Screaming Eagles soldiers to some of the field artillery, aiming systems and weapons, while others had the opportunity to try their hand in nearby flight simulators. Educators were able to tour the home of the post's primary Leadership Development course. The course schools' young soldiers in their quest to become non-commissioned officers. Participants had the opportunity to rappel down the school's 40-foot tower. Educators finished their tour with a visit to Fort Campbell's education center and hospital. Each of the local educators said they were previously unaware and were now impressed about what the Army had to offer young people.

Oldest Citizen found?

The (Berea) Citizen has been a part of the lives of Tom and Florence Davis for a very long time. Married in 1934, Florence said that Toms family subscribed to the weekly newspaper at that time. To prove her claim, she dug out a photo album containing clipping containing amongst other things, a clipping of the couple's wedding announcement from the 1934 edition. Florence had a box filled with old issues of The Berea Citizen, the oldest one dated back to October 2, 1941. She donated that issue to The Berea Citizen staff who were, at the time, looking for the oldest surviving issue of its paper as a part of the upcoming 100th anniversary. At the time, the oldest existing copy of The Citizen the staff was aware of was from the 1950's. At the time of the original article publication, Tom and Florence were still subscribers of The Citizen.

For everything there's a season

Thankfully, the seasons of parenthood have built in stages to prepare us. You have nine months to adjust and learn about newborns. You will also get lots of advice, helpful or not. The last month of pregnancy will certainly prepare you to easily and frequently awaken because of those frequent bathroom trips, being mostly uncomfortable in any position, and the pregnancy dreams. You will long for the delivery day to arrive even though you are scared, but you know your friends and family will be there to support you and celebrate your new baby.

After the baby arrives, the first needs are basic. You only need to feed the baby, change the baby, and love the baby. It's trial and error at first. There is not only one perfect way. You will settle in and learn your baby's signals.

As you get more comfortable with the basics you will face more advanced issues. Meanwhile that little baby starts working from day one to build neck muscles. Soon it is grabbing your finger, holding its head up, smiling, rolling over, sitting up, crawling, talking, walking, and potty training.

Then it's time for school. From the beginning of the school year when you attend the boo hoo breakfast for parents, it is the start of letting go. You may not realize it at the time, though. As you watch your children grow and develop, you will be filled with pride, gratitude, and love. You will spend your time, effort, and money nurturing them.

Before you know it, your kids are graduating high school. They will want to be on their own then. They will be moving into dorm rooms or apartments using the skills and values you have taught them.

You will be the empty nester then. It's not that you want to keep your kids at home forever. You're happy when they're having an active social life, paying their bills, working, taking classes, and being an adult. They just give your life some zing, and you will miss it when they are gone.

• Kingston Elementary will be having Back to School events on Tuesday, Aug. 10 for Grades 4-5 from 4-6 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 12, will be grades 2-3 and from 4-6 p.m. Monday, August 16, for grades K-1 from 4-6 pm. The event allows you meet your teachers, drop off school supplies, and pick up your car rider tag or bus information. This year you can even complete the new year's paperwork online. You can follow this link <https://bit.ly/Kingston-forms2122>. Paper copies will also be available at Back to School night. First day of school is Wednesday, Aug. 18.

A problem these days: No mountains to conquer

I can't help but laugh when I think of the story I heard long ago about the young preacher's visit with an elderly widow who, upset about losing her dentures, needed to be consoled.

The preacher sat on the sofa and nibbled from a dish of peanuts on the end table while he tried to cheer her with the latest news about her church friends. Before long he realized he had made a real pig of himself and apologized to the woman for having eaten every last one of her peanuts.

She responded: "It's OK honey. I had already sucked the chocolate off of them."

You know, many people approach life the way the woman in that story approaches chocolate-covered peanuts. They try to avoid the hard parts.

We can learn much from a great hero of the Old Testament named Caleb. He was a Godly man who thrived on challenge. He also was a man's man who refused to duck, dodge, flinch or back up in the face of adversity. When the Israelites entered the Promised Land and began to divvy up the property, Caleb, a key leader, could have had any tract he wanted in a country so desirable that it was described as flowing with milk and honey.

But Caleb looked past the fertile flatlands perfect for growing crops. He ignored the expansive vineyards and olive groves. He cast his eyes upon a steep, rugged mountain occupied by huge enemy warriors.

Caleb stood before Joshua, the leader of Israel, and made his request: "Give me this mountain."

I can imagine a determined Caleb, around 80 years old at the time, standing there with his shoulders back, chest out, chin held high, hungry for another challenge. The man still had fire in his belly. He wasn't going to kowtow to any sons, daughters or grandchildren who might have wanted to relegate him to a rocker. He still had giants to slay.

Roger Alford

Sometimes I wonder why people are in such a hurry to hustle Grandpa or Grandma off to the retirement home. Some of our best years are our elder years, when we have a lifetime of wisdom stored in our noggins. Yet, we allow people with far less life experience to dictate where we can go, what we can do, and when we can do it.

I doubt that Caleb would have put up with that kind of thing for even a moment.

What was the secret to Caleb's can-do attitude? The Bible tells us he wholly trusted God, and that allowed him to press ahead with an assurance that's unknown to most people in the world.

Sure, we can live life like the lady with her chocolate-covered peanuts and just enjoy the sweet parts, when we're young and strong and in our prime. Or, we can be like Caleb, and square our shoulders back and find another mountain to conquer.

Henderson addresses Berea Rotary Club

Vallorie Henderson is adding a new dimension to Rotary’s speaker list and to the City of Berea as its Director of the Center for a Creative Economy. Henderson is a graduate of Berea College and Miami University of Oxford, Ohio. Prior to moving to Berea she worked with the Kentucky Arts Council and the Small Business Development Center.

She stated that choosing Berea for this funded project under the supervision of the University of Kentucky was a natural direction since the legacy of Berea is Art. Henderson, a practicing artisan in the textile arts, learned from her own experiences the need for training and consultation to aid artists in promoting the products of their talents through business. Her office is in the Small Business Center but is not a financial organization. Her purpose is to serve as a business coach, providing one-on-one management consultation, market research, and feasibility studies along with networking opportunities. She described herself as a “matchmaker” with lenders to help artisans organize and promote their start-up needs.

With a mantra of “Berea is my community,” she recognizes that what she does is more about community development than business development. However, the two are intertwined with each being an asset to the other.

Recently, due to her work with a specific client, she represented the creative sector of Kentucky’s economy with Governor Andy Beshear in New York.

Guests attending the meeting were Helen Eden, Rotary partner, and President Rita Davis’ grandchildren, Jenny and Reed.

This past Tuesday the club met at the Berea Farm Store, which is now open for lunch.

This acquainted members with the offerings of the Farm Store along with its goals and strategies as a community resource.

Acting president Doug Fritz reported that the meeting room previously used by Rotary at the Artisan Center is being re-purposed. Therefore, for the time being meetings will continue at the Smokehouse Grill. Treasurer Marty Wayland reported $295 profit from the Silent Auction. (Submitted)

Eagles ready to hit links

By Mike Moore
For The Citizen

The Madison Southern Eagles golf team is ready to hit the links in 2021, with a new coach Austin Newton.

This year’s squad features 12 returners from the 2020 team, and Newton said there is plenty of veteran leadership to help guide Southern.

“We have some really great seniors,” Newton said. “Samuel Bingham, Jace Hayes, Davis Pingleton, Blake Simpson, Walter Smith and Jonah Ferguson are all seniors. They are experienced and great young men and will lead the way for the younger guys. Clifton Scully is only a sophomore but is our best player and has great leadership ability and positivity.”

While Bingham and Scully have established themselves as Southern’s top two golfers, Newton said he has been impressed with the development of Ferguson over the summer.

“He is another young man that has been at GSP all summer that we will rely on,” Newton said. “There are several guys that could jump in that mix.”

As the regular season approaches, Newton’s focus is getting the squad ready to be competitive in all phases of the game.

“I think we have a chance to be very competitive,” Newton said. “Clifton Scully will go down as the best golfer to come through Madison Southern history and we also have some nice pieces around him and guys that can shoot good scores. We just need more consistency.”

So far, during preseason practice, Newton has been pleasantly surprised at the talent assembled.

“I have good golfers, but I have great young men that are respectful and really want to get better at golf and enjoy being around each other,” Newton said.

That camaraderie will play a pivotal role once the season begins.

Southern began its season July 31 in the Big Daddy Cardinal Classic in Campbellsville. The team will play its home matches at Berea Golf Club.

Victims, alleged shooter in double homicide identified

Two victims and alleged shooter in a double homicide in Richmond on Tuesday have been identified.

According to WBON-TV9, Chris Hager, 54, and Gracie Hager, 52, were shot and killed at an apartment complex on Keystone Drive in Richmond. The Hagers were the landlords of the complex and owned and operated the University Shell Station on the Eastern Bypass.

The alleged shooter, Thomas Birl, 51, barricaded himself into an apartment following the shooting and is in police custody after a long standoff with police.

The shooting was reportedly during a confrontation concerning a possible eviction from an apartment located near the 200 block of Keystone Drive. Witnesses reported to police that Birl shot the Hagers numerous times outside of the apartment before barricading himself in the building for nearly four hours.

— Susan, Cancer Care Success Story

Prompt care and a close partnership with her hometown doctor paid off for a retired healthcare leader. When Susan began feeling a new breathlessness while exercising, she had a nagging feeling something was wrong. After tests showed lung cancer, her doctor referred her to Baptist Health Richmond for treatment. The early diagnosis qualified her for a clinical trial, and today she is cancer-free. “I didn’t know Baptist Health had that component of clinical research, but was surprised and excited to be part of that. If what I do can help other people, then that’s wonderful,” she said. Learn more about our network of advanced cancer care services at BaptistHealth.com/CancerCare.

Jackson to begin NBA career with Pacers

LEXINGTON (KT) — Isaiah Jackson heard his name called in the opening round of the NBA Draft Thursday night.

The Kentucky forward was selected as the 22nd overall pick in the draft by the Washington Wizards, following a trade with the Los Angeles Lakers. After making the pick, the Wizards traded Jackson to the Indiana Pacers.

"It's a surreal moment," Jackson said Thursday at the Barclays Center. "Just growing up, just wanting, like having the dream of making it to the NBA, it's just crazy. So, this is surreal moment for me and I'm enjoying it."

"It lived up to everything, just having my name called, getting drafted. It's just, it's mind blowing. ... It just feels like a dream in a way. Like, it's just crazy right now. I'm just trying to bottle all my emotions and it's just crazy, man."

BJ Boston was the 51st overall pick in the second round and was taken by the Memphis Grizzlies. He was later traded to the Los Angeles Clippers.

Boston made 24 starts in 25 appearances for the Wildcats last year. He averaged a team-high-tying 11.5 points per game and his 4.5 rebounds per outing led the guards. The Norcross, Georgia, native paced the squad with 33 steals and had six games with three or more swipes. Boston reached double figures in 17 games and had two 20-point performances.

"BJ is going to use tonight as fuel and I going to have a great NBA career," Calipari said. "I am sure of it, just as sure as I am that teams are going to look back and wish they would have taken him sooner. BJ has length, an ability to score that few have and a high ceiling."

"He has landed with a great franchise that will give him time to grow, and my guess is we will look back in a couple of years and realize how much he was hurt this season by his hand injury and the COVID year. I know he is a special player."

Jackson averaged 8.4 points per game last season and was named to the Southeastern Conference All-Freshman team and the league's All-Defensive team. He led the Wildcats with 65 blocked shots and collected at least three rejections in nine contests last year.

"I am so happy for Isaiah Jackson and his family," Kentucky coach John Calipari said. "He is just scratching the surface with his talent and is another one of our guys who is going to make a lot of teams regret passing on. Isaiah had an unbelievable spirit with us and I can't wait to see him continue to grow at the next level."

It marks the first time in Calipari's tenure that just one player was selected in the first round of the draft.

Olivier Sarr wasn't taken in the draft, but likely will get an opportunity as a free agent.

"I am disappointed for Olivier that he did not get selected tonight, but not discouraged," Calipari said.

"Olivier is a mature kid with great skills and range for a player his size. With the right opportunity, I think Olivier is going to find a spot and will have a successful career. I am looking forward to seeing who gets him because it will be a steal."

The Detroit Pistons took Cade Cunningham as the top pick in the draft.

Clarke honored

The NBA honored late Kentucky player Terrence Clarke by calling his name following the first 15 picks of the draft. Clarke's mom, sister and brother were in attendance.

"I want to thank Adam Silver, Mark Tatum and everyone in the NBA office who gave Terrence's family and all of us who loved him a special moment tonight," Calipari said.

"It shows the true heart of the league and I thank you all."

Calipari still thinks about the former Kentucky guard who was killed in a car accident last April.

"Not a day goes by that I don't think about him, his mom, Osmine, and their family," Calipari said. "I can only imagine how wide that smile of his would have been hearing his name called."

Oklahoma, Texas to join the SEC

LEXINGTON (KT) — The Southeastern Conference will be expanding in four years.

The league announced Friday that Texas and Oklahoma will officially become members of the conference on July 1, 2025. The addition of the Longhorns and Sooners will expand the SEC to 16 teams. Both schools submitted requested an invitation to become members on Tuesday.

The Conference's Presidents and Chancellors voted during a meeting conducted by videoconference on Thursday to extend invitations to the two universities. Both universities' Boards of Regents officially accepted the invitations last week.

"This is an important moment for the long-term future of the Southeastern Conference and our member universities," SEC Commissioner Greg Sankey said.

"Oklahoma and Texas are outstanding academic institutions with two strong athletics programs, which will add to the SEC's national prominence."

"Their additions will further enhance the already rich academic, athletic and cultural legacies that have been cultivated throughout the years by our existing 14 members. We look forward to the Sooners and Longhorns competing in our Conference starting in the 2025-26 academic year."

Oklahoma's board of regents "authorized proceedings that allow the university to join the Southeastern Conference (SEC) in 2025 after the expiration of the Big 12 Conference's current media rights agreements."

Paschal eager for normalcy

LEXINGTON (KT) — Josh Paschal can't wait to begin his final season at Kentucky.

"I'm looking forward to being back to a normal season," the senior defensive end said. "I'm just thankful to get back to a regular season, to get back to full capacity with fans, to get back to a full schedule."

A year ago, the Wildcats maneuvered through a 10-game Southeastern Conference schedule while enduring a pandemic that gripped the state, nation and the world. Kentucky didn't skip a beat and played all of its games, defeating North Carolina State in the Gator Bowl. The Wildcats dealt with adversity following the loss of offensive line coach John Schlarman near the end of the regular season.

"We've been through a lot, not only in Kentucky football but in our athletic program," Paschal said. "We took a lot of losses in our athletic program, especially with Coach Schlarman and the football program, and of course with (the injury to) Chris Oats. Playing lightly is something that we don't do, so I think we're all good with that."

Paschal added the Wildcats don't want to put Schlarman or Oats in the rearview mirror, "because you want to keep them next to you."

"He was going through the most difficult time of his life, but at the same time, he did it all for the team," Paschal said of Schlarman. "He showed up to every practice. No matter what he was going through health-wise, he always put the team first. And that's something we always want to keep next to us and keep on our mind."

During his career with the Wildcats, Paschal has overcome a cancer scare and wants to be a "light" to others within the program because of his experiences.

"It could be a time or it could be a moment where a player could be going through something where all they can see is darkness," Paschal said. "You want to be able to shed a light to someone. That's what I try to do. I try to bring the energy wherever I go. We could be running sprints and be dead tired, but you're going to see me smiling and see me having fun. That's something I take personally. I just want to be able to be the light to guys on the team."

Paschal has shared his testimony and experiences throughout the nation and even appeared on the "Today" Show where he met Jennifer Lopez.

"We (made) complete eye contact and she winked at me," he said. "I hope that wink was real because I've been telling this story ever since it happened. When I tell you I melted, I melted."

Kentucky was picked to finish third in the SEC East and Paschal believes the Wildcats can compete with Georgia and Florida for bragging rights this season.

"We just have to execute," he said. "We put in the work this off-season, and we're going to continue to. During camp, we're going to continue to preach our goal, which is to get to Atlanta, and we're going to compete. That's the thing that we have to do. We have the players, we have the talent, and now we just have to execute our goals and execute what we have to do."

Masks required in schools

Due to the exponential rise in COVID-19 cases in Kentucky, especially with the delta variant affecting children more, Gov. Andy Beshear announced Tuesday he has issued a mask mandate for all schools in the state.

"We are now in an alarming place," he told a Capitol press conference. "I am signing an executive order that requires that all individuals, teachers, staff, students and visitors, in K-12 schools, childcare and pre-K, wear a mask. This is how we make sure that we protect our children, but this is also how we make sure that they stay in school."

Berea Community Schools began in-person classes on Wednesday and Madison County Schools opens its doors to students next Wednesday.

Berea had already had a policy in place requiring all students, faculty and staff to wear masks. Prior to the Governor's mandate, Madison County Schools gave its students and staff an option regarding masks in class.

Frankfort Independent Schools Superintendent Houston Barber said he supports a mask mandate.

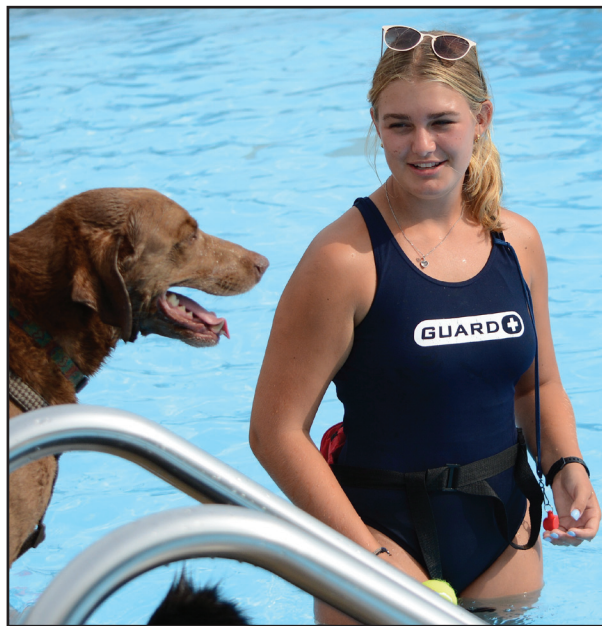

"It has been highly effective," Barber said. "We have seen an extraordinary ability to prevent spread, and we have seen it happen as we have been in school for about two weeks. What's remarkable is that we have had a limited number of cases, no evidence of any spread." (Kentucky Today)

County experiencing growth spurt

Bob Flynn
For the Citizen

The rapidly changing area of northern Madison County around the Boonsboro Road interchange near White Hall State Shrine could soon see some more growth in the area.

At its regularly scheduled meeting Tuesday in Richmond, the Madison County Fiscal Court approved the first reading of a proposed zone change for four parcels of land just south of the four-way stop on Lexington Road.

The Madison County Planning Commission approved, and recommended to the court, that the roughly 60 acres located at 3276, 3278, 3280 and 3292 Lexington Road be rezoned from UC4IC (Urban Corridor Interstate Commercial) and UC1 (Urban Corridor Single Family Residential) to UC11 (Planned Unit Development or PUD).

Chris, Gracie Hager were 'pillars' of our community

I didn't know Chris and Gracie Hager personally, but I knew of this couple.

Nearly each week it seemed, Chris and Gracie acquired property and their names appeared in the weekly property transfers that appear every week in our newspaper. From what I have heard and read during the past week, they were pillars of the community and worked hard to make Madison County a better place to live.

They owned University Shell in Richmond and purchased several properties in Madison County. They bought them, sold them and rented them out. One of their tenants — Thomas Birl — was charged with murder last week after he allegedly took their lives near an apartment complex they owned last Wednesday in broad daylight.

Keith Taylor

No one knew the Hagers were the victims of such a sad, senseless crime until hours later after Birl set his apartment on fire after barricading himself into the apartment for hours during a standoff with police.

It was later revealed that Birl allegedly used a stolen handgun from West Virginia to commit the double homicide, leaving the Madison County in shock and complete disbelief that someone could commit such a crime in a community that's not accustomed to such crime and violence.

A week later, we are still shaking our heads and wondering why those horrific acts were committed.

I attended a community prayer service at Eastside Community Church and listened as Pastor Virgil Grant and Jerry and Mendi Goble spoke of the influence Chris and Gracie had within the church and within the community.

Bowden lived out his faith

Longtime Florida State football coach Bobby Bowden died at the age of 91 on Sunday, leaving behind a legacy of faith on and off the football field. (Keith Taylor photo)

Bobby Bowden left an impact on hundreds of young men during a coaching career that spanned more than six decades. The testimony he left behind is evidence of the influence he had on and off the field.

Bowden passed away Sunday at age 91 after a short battle with pancreatic cancer. Until the end, he remained active in using his platform to spread the gospel.

During a speaking engagement at Eastside Community Church three years ago, I had the opportunity to spend 15 minutes with the legendary coach and it was an interview that I will never forget. We talked football, but the conversation was mostly about his faith.

“I don’t know of any football player that played for me who didn’t know about Jesus,” he said at the time. “Talk about getting their attention, every Friday night before a football game, they were going to listen to you. I would read Scripture to them. I get letters from (former) players and not one of them mention football. Not one of them. They say, coach, ‘Thank You.’”

After Bowden retired at Florida State 12 years ago, his audience changed as he traveled the country sharing his testimony to people from all walks of life.

He limited his engagements to one per week and was a witness to “the world, talking to people no matter if it’s a football player or a lawyer” and “it’s the same story no matter what.”

To Bowden, spreading the gospel was the same concept no matter the audience and wasn’t shy about sharing the message regardless of the negative feedback he received at times.

“The thing that people wouldn’t understand, it’s not politically correct to do what I do,” he said. “To go into a state institution like Florida State University and talk about your religion and it’s frowned upon. They (probably) would have liked to fire me if they wanted to, but they never did.”

“I was always determined that if they made me stop doing it, I was going to go down in the basement and do it, but I’m going to do it. I felt like God wanted me to (witness). I do understand it’s not politically correct, which I don’t care anything about, by the way.”

Bowden knew coaching was in his future long before he became a player or a coach.

“I really feel like God wanted me to coach. I feel like I was called to coach,” he said. “The first five years of my life, I lived behind the football field at Woodlawn High School in Birmingham, Alabama. All I heard was football, football, and football. ... That’s all I knew.”

Once he figured out his path of life following his playing career, God charted the course he followed for the duration of his coaching career.

“I had six jobs, I didn’t apply for one of them,” he said. “You say that’s a coincidence, but six times?”

He used his platform to not only coach, but to witness.

“Football is what God gave me to witness,” he said. “I thank him for that. ... I would tell other coaches, don’t make football your life. God is No. 1.

Keith Taylor

Your family is No. 2, education is next and other people are next.”

During his speaking engagements, Bowden’s testimony was simple, yet effective.

“A lot of times when I speak, one of the first things I will say is that I’m a Christian, but I’m no better than anybody else and I’ve done wrong, but I’ve been forgiven,” he said. “So many people are going to think they’re going to heaven because they’ve been good, that ain’t going to get them there. You’ve got to believe in Jesus. If you could go to heaven by earning it, we wouldn’t have known that we would need a Jesus or you can go without him. No, you can’t. You’ve got to go with Christ and that’s the story that a lot don’t know and what God wants told.”

When he was healed of rheumatic fever as a young child, Bowden vowed to serve God “anyway I can” and his coaching career exemplified his faith. During his career, Bowden compiled a 377-129-4 mark and won two national championships at Florida State. Bowden was “thrilled” after the Seminoles captured the national title in 1993 but didn’t get all caught up in the excitement of winning it all.

“Once you get to the top, like my daddy always said, there ain’t nothing up there,” he said.

“There is only one thing is this world that is everlasting and that’s Jesus Christ. That’s the only thing that will work. When you accept Jesus Christ as your savior, you will live forever.”

The life and testimony he lived assured Bowden of that eternal promise he was given Sunday morning.

Life learning, commitment & hard work

Dr. Glenn Mollette

We are always learning. Life is filled with education. We learn all the time.

Every day we receive new information about health, the planet, communication, medicines, the universe and more. Life is a process of learning and developing.

Education is more than grades one through twelve, college, and beyond.

There are many aspects to every job we do that we never learned in school. We learn from parents if we will listen. We learn from coworkers. We learn from our failures. We learn how not to do something because we tried it once and it failed. The good thing about failing is that it doesn’t haven’t to be final. Some things are final but not everything. Just because your first marriage failed doesn’t mean your second marriage will fail.

Hopefully you learned from your first marriage and you won’t make the same mistakes the second time around.

You may have a business failure. This happens to a lot of people. This doesn’t mean your business efforts will fail in the future. Hopefully you learned from your first efforts and can avoid the same mistakes again in your next endeavor.

Possibly you tried a lifestyle that did not work out for you. Maybe you abused alcohol or even drugs or pursued a negative lifestyle that greatly diminished your life to the point where your life seemed hopeless.

This doesn’t mean you have to stay this way. With a dedicated decision and often help from others you can turn your life around and do better.

We can learn from mistakes. They are educational and usually expensive. They set us back in life. They aren’t fun and can be tormenting.

Remember, you can’t live in the past. Don’t totally forget what past failure did to you because you don’t want to repeat your mistakes. However, the past is over. Live your life forward.

As you go forward there are easier ways to learn.

Study the lives of others. Research what they did and read. People all around us are either succeeding, failing or at least stable.

Study others whose lives intrigue or impress you. Study their careers, work ethic, their values and how they make them work to achieve the life they are living.

You can learn a lot by observing and studying others. You can also learn from the failures of others. What were some of their obvious mistakes?

Volunteering or taking an entry level job with someone you would like to emulate is a great way to learn their success principles.

There are cases where nothing seems to make sense. Life is not always fair. We all have different interests, physical abilities, backgrounds and lifelong developed skills. Take all these into consideration and bring them together to work for you.

Success always has new twists, turns and innovative ways. However, they are not accomplished without some form of life learning, commitment and hard work.

Glenn Mollette

HAGERS

Bill Fort pastored the Hagers for many years while he was at the helm at First Baptist Church in Richmond. Fort, who is retired from pastoring, but still very active in ministry, presided over a Celebration of Life at the Ravine at Eastern Kentucky and officiated the funeral for the couple in Belfry.

Fort recalled the Hagers as "wonderful people with sweet and honorable hearts."

When Fort began his pastorate at First Baptist, he recalled Chris "taking the time to pray over me when I got to Richmond."

"He wanted to make sure we felt welcomed and part of both the faith and Richmond communities quickly," Fort recalled last week. "They were both mentors."

During their time at First Baptist, Fort said Chris and Gracie were involved with the youth ministry, taking the youth of the church and "consistently took people under their wings and gave them guidance, encouragement, instruction, and second chances."

"They opened their hearts and homes to countless kids who were made to feel part of their family," Fort said. "They were ardent followers of Jesus and lived their lives fully under His authority."

In business, Fort said the Hagers had an old-school work ethic and were loved by their patrons in the community.

"People would stop by University Shell just to have their day brightened or to get some incredible morsel that Gracie had made," he said. "Gracie knew that I liked Red Velvet Cake. She made Red Velvet Bites once and called me to come over and try some."

"I went over and talked to Gracie and ate all I could and Gracie sent the rest home with me."

The Hagers made an impact in the community and left a legacy that never be forgotten.

SUDOKU

Level: Intermediate

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Turtle Derby raises funds for hospital auxiliary

Now in its 2nd year, the Community Fun Day and Turtle Derby did not disappoint as it attracted race goers of all ages from throughout Berea. According to Kent Gilbert, “This year it doubled in size.” While exact fundraising totals were not available by press time, Berea Hospital would definitely have enough funds to purchase much needed equipment according to the Berea Hospital director of community relations. The Turtle Derby was the idea of Mary Nash, past president of the hospital auxiliary. Why searching for fund raising event ideas that would attract community families, the turtle races held in Kingsport, Tennessee, which had been a tradition for 58 years, delighted Nash. Despite a less than enthusiast reaction, businesses, community volunteers and families made the 2003 inaugural event a success. Turtles were gathered from hatcheries in Morehead and Frankfort. The 2004 field was comprised of primarily “red ears,” along with 2 painted turtles and a couple of snapping turtles. In addition to the turtle races, the Community Fun Day also treated families to a petting zoo, games, a raffle and live music.

Police pursuit

The scene on Friday, August 13, 2004 resembled an episode from the television show, “Cops,” as Berea Police officers became involved in a 46-mile pursuit that ended with a Florida man facing multiple charges. According to Berea Police, Khalid R. Bryant, 21 of Miami, Florida was arrested at the 31 mile marker near London after a pursuit that reached over 100 mph. Berea dispatch received a complaint of a white Chevrolet Impala traveling at a high rate of speed in the vicinity of the 77-mile marker at approximately 12:42 a.m. According to Sgt. Ken Clark, Officer Jason Ray was dispatched to locate the vehicle in question. Sgt. Billy Beavers joined Officer Ray. The pursuit began when officers realized that Bryant was not going to stop. Rockcastle Sheriff’s Office and Kentucky State Police were notified as the chase proceeded down Interstate 75.

Libby Horn

KSP attempted to stop the vehicle, (which had been reported stolen from the Cincinnati area) using a spike strip. This first attempt failed. A Mount Vernon police cruiser sustained damage in the attempt. The second attempt occurred around the 41-mile marker. This attempt flattened Bryant’s tires but failed to end the chase. Eventually Bryant ran out of gas around the 31-mile marker. Berea Police charged Bryant with 2 counts of 1st degree wanton endangerment, receiving stolen property, reckless driving, and speeding. KSP added additional charges of driving under the influence, 1st offense, no operator’s license, fleeing and evading police, prescription drugs not in proper container 2nd degree, criminal mischief and an additional charge of 1st degree wanton endangerment. Bryant was lodged in the Laurel County Detention Center before being transferred to the Madison County Detention Center.

Late start at Kingston

Students at Kingston Elementary School had their summer vacations extended a bit this year as a result of construction delays with the new school building. The remainder of Madison County students had already made their return to the classrooms but Kingston students would not return to school until Wednesday, August 25th. According to Madison County School officials, construction had wrapped up and the extra week was to allow for the set up and preparations of classrooms. A date for parents and the community to tour the new facilities was held at a later time.

Tribal history

The Berea Business and Professional Women met on August 4th in the Oak Room of Boone Tavern. Susan Mullins of the Jewel Box in Berea, spoke to the group about being born into the Mohawk tribe. She told about how she learned to mark what was needed. She brought with her several articles of clothing, pictures, drums, etc. She sang songs for the group during the session. The group was impressed with the amount of history she imparted about the tribe.

Procrastination can be a problem

PROCRASTINATION: To put off intentionally and habitually the doing of something that should be done.

Tammy Whittamore

Do you ever have this problem? I was giving it some thought as it related to myself. I thought it could be related to time. These days people tend to live longer, so we think we will have time to get to it someday. Then, I thought it was technology related. We know that we can quickly research and send articles if needed. So, why should we allot too much time on a project? I also thought of all the entertainment that lures us away from tasks. Could it be from lack of positive response? Your homework doesn’t get a good grade. No one notices your clean house or eats very much of your homecooked meal. I was surprised to see that there was actually a list of four types of procrastinators online at businessinsider.com/main-types-of-procrastinators-how-to-avoid-accountability-coaches. The first type listed is the “performer.” This person believes they “work well under pressure.” Do we do this to experience a thrill when we just barely manage to accomplish our task? No one can live under pressure all the time. Your health will suffer. They may also be a perfectionist. The limited time available does remove the ideal of perfection. Quick decisions must be made. The article recommended setting a start date instead of thinking so much about the due date.

The second type listed is the “self-deprecator.” This person may believe that they are lazy or stubborn instead of realizing it could be fatigue. It often includes males. A suggested solution was to take a break and recharge before taking on the project. How many times have you experienced this yourself? You get a burst of energy or inspiration that helps you finish your task. The third type is the “overbooked” person. The excuse is “I’m so busy.” Although it is absolutely true that busy people usually get the most accomplished, sometimes the busyness equals avoidance. Chaos helps people avoid facing the project. We should ask “What am I really avoiding?” It might also be wise to learn to delegate and prioritize. Just saying “No” can be very liberating. The fourth type is the “novelty seeker.” This type of person is easily distracted by new ideas and new projects. They might have great ideas, but “do not take consistent action in one direction long enough to see results.” This may include entrepreneurial types. All effort should be directed at the current project. New ideas should be documented but must be ignored until the project is completed. Did you fit into one of these categories? Procrastination can be a problem. It’s especially important to avoid it in our personal relationships. Spend time with your family and friends. Show them how much you care about them. Our lives can end suddenly. Would we have any regrets?

“If your actions create a legacy that inspires others to dream more, learn more, do more and become more, then you are an excellent leader.”

Parrot that knew five languages should have spoken up for itself

I love the story about the homesick son who wanted to buy his mom the perfect gift. He searched through every store but nothing struck a chord until he walked into a pet shop and found a parrot that spoke five languages.

He immediately paid big bucks for the bird and shipped it home to his mother. A few days later he called and asked her how she liked the parrot. His mom responded, "It was delicious."

The son was perturbed that his mom had eaten a bird that spoke all those languages. Her response: "Well, why didn't it say something?"

I've noticed an interesting phenomenon among many Christians in modern America. They, like the fictional parrot, aren't using the wonderful gift of language, at least not when it comes to telling others about Jesus.

That's so very different from the men and women of the early church. The Book of Acts tells us about two of the first preachers, Peter and John, boldly witnessing to the people of their day. They made no apologies. They stood before sometimes hostile crowds to proclaim the death, burial and resurrection of Jesus.

The anti-Jesus crowd threatened Peter and John to try to make them stop. Their response can be found in Acts 4:20: "We cannot but speak the things we have seen and heard."

It didn't matter to the people of the early church that the gospel was unpopular. It didn't matter that some among them were beaten, jailed and killed simply for sharing the good news. They felt compelled to tell the world, and they did just that.

Christians in the U.S. face no such consequences, at least not yet. But even so, far too many are largely silent about Jesus despite his great commission that says, "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature."

I'm so grateful that people cared enough about me and were courageous enough to tell me about Jesus all those years ago. Those dear ones made an eternal difference in my life. And, in turn, I've tried to tell others about Jesus, hoping that I might make the same difference in someone else's life.

Like that fictional parrot, all Christian everywhere need to break their silence because, as the song writer says, "We've a story to tell to the nations."

12th annual Celtic Fest planned for Aug. 19-22 canceled

The Folk Circle board has decided to cancel all live interactions at The 12th Berea Celtic Fest and Gathering slated for Aug 19-22 due the worsened pandemic situation throughout Kentucky and especially in Berea and Madison County that are now in the red zone. It is our hope that some online activities will take place. It is also our hope that all people will do their utmost best to help us, themselves and America to find the best solutions to fight the virus and its variants.

commercial properties within the same developments.

“I think this is the way we are going to have to do in the future because you have your commercial development out on your main road and behind it you can have residential developments,” Bert Thomas, Director of Planning and Building Codes for the county told the court.

The planning commission ruled that the proposed zone classification was appropriate for the property because it is consistent with the county’s Comprehensive Plan because of the character and area of the property due to the continued residential and commercial development in the Urban Corridor where new development is encouraged.

The property also possesses the proper infrastructure for the development.

“This is the first PUD we’ve done in Madison County.

“It’s a vehicle that’s developed to use and take a contained piece of property like this and have multiple different types of developments within the boundary for that property without having to come back in and get a zone change approved for each section you want to develop in there,” District 3 Magistrate John Tudor said.

In other business, the Court:

- Approved the CSEPP Fiscal Year 21 funding contract. The Department of the Army provides funding to insure maximum protection to Chemical Stockpile Emergency Preparedness Program communities. Madison County CSEPP is the Region 4 recipient of this funding. The funding supports CSEPP operations and preparedness activities in preparation for and in the event of an emergency from the release of chemical agent at the Blue Grass Army Depot.
- The Court awarded a certificate of recognition to Kayden Lawson, a 12-year-old student at Berea Elementary School, for her generosity, thoughtfulness and love for animals.

In lieu of Christmas and birthday gifts, Kayden asked her family and friends to make donations to the Madison County Animal Shelter. She also organized a donation drop-off at the Berea Ace Hardware and encouraged Madison Countians to donate as well. Kayden personally delivered the donated food, toys and supplies to the animal shelter.

Kentucky Wildcats

A12

2021

Joey Gatewood, left, and Will Levis, right, are of three quarterbacks who will be battling for the starting job this fall. Levis is a transfer from Penn State and Gatewood began his collegiate career at Auburn. (Keith Taylor photos)

Arms race under way

Battle for QB job begins as UK opens camp

Mark Stoops is in no rush to name a starting quarterback. Neither is offensive coordinator Liam Coen.

As Kentucky begins fall workouts this week, both coaches are on the same page when it comes to a quarterback competition that appears to be a two-man race between Joey Gatewood and Beau Allen. Throw in transfer Will Levis and it could be a three-way battle this fall.

"It's more important to get it right than to be in a hurry," Stoops said during the team's Media Day last Friday at Kroger Field. "Is there a benefit? Yes, I believe there is. There's a benefit to getting reps. That's part of the negative to having a lot of talented players at any position, but it seems like it's obviously much easier to rotate guys in throughout practice and preseason at other spots than quarterback."

"We do feel like there is quality depth maybe for the first time. You go all the way down and have four or five guys that you feel confident that could play football at this level, and getting them reps is a concern, and we will work that as best we can."

Gatewood, an Auburn transfer, has impressed Stoops and Coen, while Allen also has shown signs of running the team's revamped offensive unit that Stoops hopes will spread the field and become more balanced under Coen, who spend last season as quarterbacks coach with the Los Angeles Rams.

Regardless of who emerges as the starter, Coen said the Wildcats will have plenty of depth in the pocket.

"I think it's a great opportunity to build the depth that we have in the room, but also we're not in a hurry," Coen said. "We want to make this decision right and pick the best player to lead our offense and ultimately your quarterback should be the face of your program. It's a process, but we'll see. It'll be fun to watch."

The coaches didn't get their first glimpse of Levis in action until last Saturday, but veteran wide receiver Josh Ali has already been impressed with the Penn State transfer.

"He's my neighbor right now, we've been hanging out," Ali said. "He's cool, he is a great quarterback. I can tell that he's ready to come in and compete right now."

When it comes to looking for a starter, Coen said each player's "tape is your resume as a football player."

"As coaches, it's our job to evaluate tape," Coen said. "At the end of the day, I think it takes care of itself in a lot of situations, but if it is close and it is tight, who gives us the best chance to not turn the ball over? To keep the chains moving. Who's been more successful in the red zone during training camp?"

"What about on third-down situations? Did we move the sticks when these guys were in on third down or did we not? It really comes down to some of those ultimate situational football parts of the game that probably will determine who the quarterback is."

Although it's not clear who will open the season under center, Coen isn't a fan of rotating quarterbacks.

"I haven't really thought about that one, to be honest," he said. "I'd prefer not to."

Cats good as gold in Olympics

Three former Kentucky men's basketball players are gold medalists.

Devin Booker, Bam Adebayo and Keldon Johnson helped lead Team USA to an 87-82 win over France in the gold medal game late Friday night in the 2020 Tokyo Olympics. The feat was an accomplishment in such a short time for the Americans after falling to France in the group stage of the Olympics and dropping a pair of exhibition games prior to departing for Tokyo.

"To win the game is very satisfying, because they are such a wonderful basketball team," Team USA coach Gregg Popovich said. "So, I give them a lot of credit, and, of course, we're thrilled and honored to be able to represent the country the way we did. The team progressed very rapidly in a very short period of time, under some difficult circumstances, which I think made this win all the sweeter. So, we're glad it's over."

Kentucky became the first team to have at least three players to win a gold medal on the squad since members of the Fabulous Five — Cliff Barker, Ralph Beard, Alex Groza, Wallace Jones and Kenny Rollins — guided the Americans to gold in 1948.

After leading Phoenix to the NBA Finals last month, Booker averaged 9.3 points and shot 42.2 percent from the floor in the Olympics. Adebayo chipped in with 6.3 points per game, grabbed a team-high average of 5.7 rebounds per contests and collected seven blocked shots.

"Surfside," Adebayo said. "Mission accomplished."

The Heat plan to unveil an Olympic banner for Adebayo.

Five freshmen golfers to lead Lady Eagles

By Mike Moore
For The Citizen

Youth will be teeing it up for the Madison Southern Lady Eagles golf team as five of the six returning players are freshmen, according to first-year coach Derek Hicks.

Despite the many underclassmen, Hicks is optimistic about his squad. "Even though we're young, I think our biggest strength is the fact that over half our team are returning from last year," he said. "They all get along well and know each other outside of school and golf. The others who came out for the team this year fit in great and are learning quickly."

Hicks acknowledges that he isn't sure who will wear the leadership crown, but he feels strongly about lone sophomore Kasey Cameron.

"Even though she's only a sophomore, she has been playing competitively for quite a few years and plays at a high level," Hicks said. "She fell short of making it to the state tournament last year by only a single stroke."

Looking over his young squad, Hicks said the ceiling is high for the entire group and uses the word "coachable" when describing his bunch.

"Aysia Brock is ultra-competitive and has a solid game," he said. "Cadence Rose can hit it long as well and has started playing in competitive junior tournaments and getting valuable experience."

"Kylie Burns has the experience and competes each time she comes out," Hicks continued. "Twin sisters Ayley and Haley McClure are returning from last year and have shown they are willing to work hard to get better. Peyton Gabbard joins us new this year, and she has a great swing and wonderful attitude. Hailey Allen is new this year and our youngest player.

"Hailey is just going into the seventh grade, but she has a great swing and incredible potential. Natalie Davis and Maci Northern are both new this year and new to golf. They have both improved so much already this year and have the work ethic needed to get better."

Among the 2021 team goals, Hicks wants the team to be competitive every time they hit the links.

"I want us to be competitive in most tournaments and possibly finish in the top half of the region," he said.

Hicks said the team has focused on being consistent and fine-tuning areas of each individual's game during preseason practice sessions.

"We have focused on short game as a team and reducing our strokes inside 100 yards," Hicks said.

"That should translate into lower scores and chances to be competitive."

Southern's 2021 schedule began Aug. 3 at Gibson Bay in the Madison Central Golf Tournament.

Surging COVID-19 cases concerning

By Keith Taylor
Citizen Publisher

During the past five weeks Madison County has witnessed a surge in COVID-19 cases and 336 cases were reported from Aug. 9-15.

A total of 156 cases were reported last Wednesday-Thursday and the number declined to 31 last Sunday.

The Madison County Health Department says

“being in the red zone should be taken very seriously.”

“Due to a higher number of cases, it may be a few days after a person’s positive COVID-19 test before MCHD calls about your isolation,” Madison County Health Department Director of Nursing Ava Wright said. “Please isolate and follow the instructions on our website. If individuals have questions or need information that is not covered on the website, please call the health department.”

The health department said getting a vaccine is the best weapon available against COVID-19 and its variants. There’s still a chance a fully vaccinated person can get COVID-19, symptoms will likely be less severe and the need for hospitalization is much smaller.

Gov. Andy Beshear warned Tuesday cases of COVID-19 in children are at an all-time high, hospitals are nearing capacity, and that the process is being established for some Kentuckians to receive a booster shot of the vaccine.

“More than 1,900 kids in the United States currently are in the hospital for COVID,” he said during a

Fiscal Court receives clean report in state audit

The Madison County Fiscal Court received a clean bill of health from State Auditor Mike Harmon Monday.

In a letter addressed to the court, Harmon office stated that the auditor’s letter to communicate “whether the financial statement presents fairly the receipts, disbursements and changes in fund balances of the Madison County Fiscal Court in accordance with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America.” Harmon found that the fiscal court’s final statement

“did not follow this format.”

“However, the fiscal court’s financial statement is fairly presented in conformity with the regulatory basis of accounting, which is an acceptable reporting methodology. This reporting methodology is followed for 115 of 120 fiscal court audits in Kentucky.”

Harmon “noted no instances of noncompliance” and added that “no matters involving internal control over financial reporting and its operation that were considered to be material weaknesses.”

Schools need support

School is back in session. Berea Community Schools began last week and Madison County Schools opened its doors to its students, faculty and staff on Wednesday.

It was the first full in-person return for both school districts in two years as teachers, staff and students juggled in-person and virtual learning. The pandemic forced our school districts to use creative ways to make a connection for students and teachers.

It created scheduling issues and emotional stress. For the most part, students, faculty and staff adapted to the changes, some of which occurred in the last minute, requiring making tough decisions rather quickly.

We haven't fully recovered from the global health crisis just yet, just as the delta variant has proved during the past couple of weeks. Students, staff and faculty are now required to wear masks on campus in an effort to curb the spread of COVID-19 and its variant that has made things even more complicated in our society.

It's important that our students are given an opportunity to return to the classroom and get settled into a routine of normalcy as soon as possible in a semi-recovery from a pandemic.

Virtual learning has proved to be a viable alternative, but shouldn't be used as a long-term solution.

It's also a priority that our society returns to pre-2020 standards, but it will take time and patience to get there. For that to happen, it will take a team effort.

Our administrators, teachers, students, faculty and staff deserve our upmost respect as they navigate through this crisis. Although we have fought this pandemic for at least the past 18 months, it's still requiring patience as we battle the virus and its variants.

Regardless of your stance on the mask mandate in our schools, it's important that we think of everyone involved and support them.

Focus on cooperation not competition

By Clint Patterson

Foresters are taught, right away, how forests become established on vacated land first through light-seeded wind and water-dispersed "pioneer species" like black locust, Virginia pine, and tulip poplar quickly occupying the site, stabilizing the soil, and forming a dense thicket where each species competes for resources. Eventually, the understory of this early succession habitat becomes populated by heavier-seeded species like oak and hickory that are dispersed by animals as they inhabit the area. Finally, most of the shorter-lived pioneer species are replaced by the dominating oak-hickory forest, as shade tolerant species like beech and sugar maple that can grow under them become established. In the absence of fire, which the oaks are adapted for, but the thinner barked beech and maples are susceptible to, the forest gradually becomes dominated by beech and maple and becomes what is called a "climax forest." Old growth.

Forestry, as a profession, became established in order to manage forests for sustained yield of desired forest products and is only beginning to be as interested in biological diversity and ecosystem services such as water quality and non-game wildlife habitat as in producing wood fiber. Typically, the species most useful or valuable for wood products, as well as for the game species of animals desired for hunting, are those which fall within the early succession or intermediary stages of forest development. Native Americans used fire to maintain the stages and thwart them from becoming a closed canopy climax forest, and the forestry profession has largely used harvesting... especially clearcutting... to maintain these stages.

The early succession and intermediate stages of forest development are characterized by intense competition between species and individual trees within each species. It's a "survival of the fittest" scenario, and foresters seek to maximize the volume and value of the forest by hurrying along this process. The climax stage... which is more stable, long lasting, and beneficial for many wildlife and herbaceous species now rare or endangered, is characterized more by cooperation.

Elisabet Sahtouris, an evolution biologist, futurist, speaker, author and sustainability consultant, has become well-known for criticizing Darwinian evolution's emphasis on "survival of the fittest" through competition, while ignoring the cooperation that is taking place everywhere at the same time:

"Seeing that other species matured out of a youthful competitive phase into a mature cooperative phase means everything to us now. The Darwinian story only goes to the adolescent part where there's hostile competition. You take all you can get. You fight your enemy. You try to out-do him or try to bump him off and that's what makes you survive.

Clint Patterson

I tried to explain this in my book "The Heart of Forestry in America" by saying that it shouldn't be called "survival of the fittest," it should be called "survival of the fitting-in-est."

I think we would be wise to adopt a more cooperative model for human society than the intensely competitive model which has served us up with wars and corporate "Wolves of Wall Street." Dr. Sahtouris explains it this way:

But that's not what sustainability is all about [competition]. Sustainability happens when species learn to feed each other instead of fight each other. You get mature ecosystems such as rainforests and prairies where you have far more cooperation than you have hostile competition. You can still have friendly competition, but that's very different. So I see humanity doing exactly this right now. We of the western culture who divorced ourselves from nature saying "We're separate. That's nature out there. Let's see how we can exploit it to our purposes." Interestingly, we're the species who invented the concept of entropy and we're the one who creates it, who deteriorates eco-systems while the other species are building them up. So we have a great deal to learn from nature and by recognizing that our conscious experience is of other beings, is of teachers in nature that we can learn from and gain hope from. If bacteria could do it without benefit of brain, can't we [do it] as humans with big brains? (After Darwin, Dr. Elisabet Sahtouris, 30 August 2003, Wasan Island, Canada)

Dr. Sahtouris explains, in a

TEDx Talk called "Celebrating Crisis" that she believes humanity is nearing the end of the "Empire" phase, with globalist trans-national corporations now acting as the final empire over humanity. As we find ourselves on the precipice of this empire achieving global hegemony, I think it is wise to examine our "trust" in the "science" we have been fed since the convenient "survival of the fittest" Darwinian theory. It became an excuse for both imperialist and corporate rule simply by being more "fit" than those deemed "less than" or "non-essential" by those who proclaim themselves "more equal." An economy and a politics which seeks to enslave nature also enslaves Man.

Science is catching up with the concept of cooperation that is so inherent in nature. Berea College, founded by ardent abolitionists and radical reformers, lead by example in this effort when they took a stand against slavery.

While both Darwinian evolution and the Bible was used by some to justify slavery, both nature and the Bible attest to cooperation, to harmony, to stewardship and to love more so if we only look for it. We need to use our "big brains" as Dr. Sahtouris implores, but also our hearts. Berea College's website still claims that it is: ...firmly rooted in its historic purpose "to promote the cause of Christ." Adherence to the College's scriptural foundation, "God has made of one blood all peoples of the earth" (Acts 17:26).

I look for a day when, soon, science and politics agree to focus less on competition and more on cooperation.

Ulmer an ultimate role model for our community

When the news broke that the NCAA relaxed regulations on student athletes having a personal brand using their name, image, and likeness, Will Ulmer immediately came to my mind.

Most anyone from our community knows Will. He is the grandson of Susie and the late Doug Tussey, the former proprietors of Tussey's Roundhill General Store. Will left our small town a few years ago to play football for Marshall University, where he is now a senior.

Will is an offensive lineman on the Marshall football team, but he's also a talented musician. In the past few years, Will played at some venues under the stage name "Lucky Bill," however, because of NCAA regulations, he was not able to accept payment for those appearances.

Carrie Grant

When the change was made, Will released a song he wrote about our small town where he mentions his grandparents' store, four-wheeling, and many of the other things that are commonplace in our community. The song is entitled "Back Home Kinda Thing." I truly enjoyed listening to the song, and other videos that Will has posted of his performances in the months since the change.

Will was also interviewed on "Good Morning America" with other student athletes, and dozens of articles have been written about him in the time since. Watching a member of our community thrive in success gives a lot of hope to high school students who wish for college athletic scholarships and opportunities to play within the NCAA for one sport or another. I can't imagine a better role model for them to look to than Will Ulmer.

Reflections

Berea Citizen Archives: Taken from Aug. 12, 1964

ATTEND CHEERLEADERS CLINIC—These six Berea High School cheerleaders were among the more than 500 who attended the annual Kentucky Association of Cheerleaders Clinic last week on the University of Kentucky campus. Their sponsor, Mrs. Martha B. Shrout, accompanied them on the trip. The girls are from left, bottom row: Jane McKinney, a junior next year, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil McKinney; Louise Van Winkle, sophomore, daughter of Mrs. Reba Pearson; Carla Johnson, senior, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Johnson. Top row: Anga Jennings, sophomore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Jennings; team captain Jennifer Williamson, senior, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Williamson; Jackie Upton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Upton, and Mrs. Shrout.

Berea lists faculty changes

Berea College had six faculty members who returned from leaves of absences for the 1963-1964 school year. Thomas Fern, assistant professor of art, had been studying for the previous two years in New York. Fern had been a member of the faculty since 1957. Joseph Firszt returned from a one-year stay in Poland. Firszt, was an assistant professor of music and had been a member of the Berea College faculty since 1953. Charlotte P. Ludlum, professor of ancient languages, returned after a one-year trip to Europe. She had been a faculty member since 1928. Fred Parrot, professor of English in charge of dramatics, returned after a one year trip of teaching overseas for the University of Maryland. He had been with the college since 1953. Noel Stephens, assistant professor of agriculture, had been studying at the University of Kentucky for the past year. Harriet Doull, instructor of English for the Foundation School has returned following a year visiting Australia and studying at the University of Kentucky. Doull had been with the Foundation School since 1959. In addition to the return of these faculty members, two others will be taking a leave of absence. Edd Hogg, assistant professor of poultry husbandry since 1953, will be taking leave to study at the University of Tennessee. Warren Lambert, instructor in social studies at the Foundation School since 1953, planned to study at the University of Kentucky. The college also announced the retirement of several faculty members. Mildred Hines, catalog assistant in the College Library would be retiring from her position but would be staying on for the school year working under a special agreement. Mildred Miller, a special teacher at Knapp Hall, would be retiring but continuing to reside in Berea. Hilda Wieringa, assistant in the labor office since 1943, announced her retirement to Penney Farms, Florida. Grace Wilson, instructor in reading and English of the Foundation School retired this year. During graduation exercises held in June, she was presented with an unnamed award. She had been with the Foundation School since 1946. Marvin S. Lowe, a member of Berea College faculty for 2 years as an instructor of art left Berea College to become an assistant professor of art at Bucknell University in Lewisburg, Pennsylvania. Rockwood Chin, professor of economics since 1947 left Berea College to teach economics at Wheaton College, in Norton, Massachusetts. College physician, Jane Shutt, resigned from the staff of Berea College Hospital and relocated to Cincinnati, Ohio where she became a psychiatric resident at General Hospital. Kathryn Scott, an instructor in the music department, departed Berea College to teach at Wells College.

Hootenanny to feature Bereans

"Hootenanny," the magic word for a folk singing gathering where everyone gets into the act - is being staged near Murray, Kentucky and two Bereans and one former Berean, are in the act. Coach C. H. Wyatt appeared on Sunday afternoon, August 2th along with former Berean Billy Edd Wheeler. Wyatt achieved some attention from large numbers of crowds in Pakistan, India and Iceland when sang music of our mountains in those countries, sponsored by American Embassies. Billy Edd Wheeler, producer of the show said it felt like home on the Kentucky Lake stage when he performed nightly in the outdoor drama, "Stars in my Crown." He sang "Desert Pete and other selections in his hit list. He portrayed the part of Mr. Rivers in the outdoor drama. Capacity crowds of at least 1,200 were anticipated at the event.

Planning and zoning

Reasons why a planning and zoning program would be good for Madison County was discussed by Walter Shouse of the State Department of Commerce at the Richmond Rotary Club luncheon held last week at the Madison County Country Club. He told the attendees that under the law, zoning is flexible. It could be as strict as Fayette County or as lenient as in Shelby County. The interstate system was certain to bring change whether it be guided or left to just happen.

With I-75 running the entire length of Madison County, it was anticipated to have a large impact on the county, as large as the railroad system was predicted to in it's time. Shouse said that an attempt should be made to make the county, Richmond and Berea as attractive as possible to lure tourists from the interstate to utilize local facilities within the county.

He pointed out that a state park would be established t Boonesboro and it was anticipated to become a significant tourist attraction. It was emphasized that the area surrounding the park should be planned and controlled to prevent the park from being surrounded by hot dog stands and unsightly structures. The hunting preserve and dog field trials area (1,200 acres) that was being developed by the Fish and Wildlife Department was anticipated to attract hundreds of sportsmen.

He stressed the importance of controlling the area as to preserve the unspoiled rural characteristics of the region. Citing Shelby County as an example of a rural area, Shouse said that zoning is very lenient as far as farms are concerned. He estimated that 95% of the land outside of Richmond and Berea would be zoned for agricultural purposes.

"This means that the farmer could carry on farming activities just as they had done previously and not be concerned about being required to get permits for buildings on the farm. The purpose of zoning in a primarily rural county is to protect the farmer from developments that would prove detrimental to his farm."

Counting blessings

I was in a local drug store waiting briefly for a prescription to be filled. It was a Saturday morning and both counter employees were busy. I observed other customers picking up prescriptions. I noticed that most people had multiple prescriptions. I noticed other customers picking up prescriptions for several family members with multiple bottles each. This really brought it home to me how fortunate I am to be blessed with good health and to only need one prescription. Don't take your health for granted.

There has been a baby boom among four of my former co-workers. Three men and one woman have all announced pregnancies. A baby boy and girl have already arrived. I really enjoy seeing the baby pictures on Facebook. Each one of these couples will be ideal parents. These parents have demonstrated their hope and belief in the future They will be shaping the next generation with the upbringing they provide for their children. So proud of them all. Babies are such a blessing. They make the world a better place.

I was also thinking about the blessing of a full-time job with benefits and a steady income. I was blessed that my dad worked at Hyster. He worked there many years as a welder. Hyster insurance made it possible for his family to see the dentist, doctor, or eye doctor. It covered hospitalizations for one appendectomy, the flu, and maternity care. There was well care for immunizations. There were a few ER visits, too. It is such a blessing to be able to afford needed medical care.

Hyster was good for others in my family, too. My brother, sister, and my husband have all worked there.

They built friendships and learned new skills. The workplace will be changing with the retirement of older employees. There have also been several retirees that have died this year.

I am so very thankful for the safety and stability of Berea. When I see the instability of the government in Haiti and the recent earthquake, it makes me appreciate my birthplace more and more. When I see the coverage of wars in overseas countries, it makes me thankful that my entire family can live in a peaceful place.

Count your blessings, too. It's good to focus less on what you think you lack and more on what you already have.

You just might be surprised at the amount of blessings you have received.

Life is fleeting: If you're going to ride a bull, do it quickly

Maybe you remember the old joke about an elderly couple who took a trip to Gatlinburg. While there, the husband wanted to take a helicopter ride through the Smoky Mountains. But his wife, more than a bit tight-fisted when it came to money, said the $50 price tag was too steep.

"I know you'd like a ride," she said, "but fifty bucks is fifty bucks."

"Listen Dear, I'm 85 years old, and if I don't ride that helicopter while we're here I may never get another chance," the husband pleaded. His wife wouldn't relent, saying again, "fifty bucks is fifty bucks."

The pilot overheard the conversation and made an offer to take them both for a ride for free if they could stay quiet while in the air. But if they said one word, they'd have to pay the $50. They accepted the offer.

The pilot did all kinds of dare-devil stunts, zigzagging through a series of frightening maneuvers. Not a word was heard.

After landing, the pilot, quite impressed, turned to the husband and congratulated him for being able to keep quiet.

"Well, to tell you the truth," the husband said, "I almost said something when my wife fell out. But you know, fifty bucks is fifty bucks."

Did you ever know anyone like this fictional couple who hold so tightly to their money that they miss lots of opportunities to enjoy life.

The Bible warns us that life passes swiftly, like "a vapor that appeareth for a little time and then vanisheth away." (James 4:14)

With this in mind, we'd be wise to make each moment matter.

Country music singer Tim McGraw sings a song that challenges us to "Live Like You

Roger Alford

Were Dying." You may remember the lyrics. They're about a man told by his doctor that he was dying. So, what did he do:

I went skydiving
I went rocky mountain climbing

I went two point seven seconds on a bull named Fu Man Chu

And I loved deeper
And I spoke sweeter

And I gave forgiveness I'd been denyin'

And he said some day I hope you get the chance

To live like you were dyin'

Truthfully, we should all strive to make each moment memorable.

And, it may not be such a bad idea to let your spouse enjoy an adventure now and again, perhaps even a helicopter ride. Just remember to buckle up if you go along.

Expanding internet access remains a priority

FRANKFORT (KT) – Gov. Andy Beshear is urging broadband providers to complete their applications and submit proposals that support Kentucky’s expansion of internet access to unserved communities across the state.

The governor, through a bipartisan agreement with state legislators, aims to create 14,500 new jobs and help the state lead in the post-COVID economy through his Better Kentucky Plan. The bills, passed at the end of the 2021 legislative session, will direct American Rescue Plan Act of 2021, or ARPA, funds to boost the state’s economy by building new schools, delivering clean drinking water and expanding access to broadband.

“In today’s technology-dependent society, access to reliable, high-speed internet can no longer be considered a luxury available only to those who can afford it. In fact, broadband is foundational to our future economic growth, particularly in areas of the state previously deemed unprofitable to serve,” Gov. Beshear said.

He noted, “Over the last 18 months, we have seen just how critical reliable internet access is for all of us to stay informed, safe and connected to work, school, health care, friends and family. And now, we look to our broadband community to tell us how they would use the funds available to support the construction, development or improvement of broadband access across the commonwealth, with our unserved communities receiving first priority.”

The Finance and Administration Cabinet has issued a Request for Proposals, or RFP, for $50 million in federal ARPA funds allocated to bring internet access to those who need it most through the Kentucky Broadband Deployment Fund.

The RFP will remain open until Oct. 25, 2021. Beshear and the General Assembly agreed to allocate $300 million of the State Fiscal Recovery Fund portion of the ARPA money to expanding broadband. The first $50 million of the broadband deployment funds are available to award by April 2022.

The state is soliciting bids from broadband networks owned, operated or affiliated with local governments, nonprofits and cooperatives, as well as private providers with a focus on serving entire communities. Proposals will be evaluated based upon the applicants’ ability to meet defined conditions, in order to receive funding.

Infrastructure, teamwork lessened impact of power outage

As bad as it may have been to suffer a power outage on a hot summer day, the impact on Berea Municipal Utilities customers was considerably less than it might have been, according to city officials.

Berea Municipal Utilities Manager Kevin Howard recently briefed city leaders on the July 26 power outage and its aftermath, in which Kentucky Utilities (KU) electrical transmission to Berea was knocked offline through no fault of the city.

During the August 3 Berea City Council meeting, Howard explained that because of interruption of service from KU, the city had to drop the load on both the Oak Street and Rash Road substations. For nearly three hours, BMU and KU worked together to resolve the problem until KU temporarily switched the city over to a backup transmission line.

There were positive developments from the crisis, officials said.

The various city departments worked together to field over 500 calls from citizens, the police department directed traffic as stoplights were offline around the city, public works put up signs around the city for traffic control, and the fire department fielded numerous calls.

Pavilion near completion

The Chestnut Street Pavilion is mostly complete and is slated for a grand opening at the end of this month. Berea Mayor Bruce Fraley reported on the latest developments of the project during a Wednesday meeting of the Berea Tourism Commission. Fraley noted the main structure is complete, as are the shade structures and the parking area.

The pavilion will be the home of the Berea Farmer's Market, but it is also expected to be available to the public as a performance space, a venue for classes or seminars, and as a space that can be rented by citizens for events like family reunions. In the meantime, Mayor Fraley expressed hope that the facility will ready as a venue for an upcoming community concert.

Much of the funding for the Chestnut Street Pavilion is coming from the Berea Tourism and Convention Commission, which budgeted $250,000 for the completion of the facility. Tourism's budget allocation for the pavilion is coming from the restaurant tax. The total cost for the facility was estimated at $565,000.

The effort to build the pavilion on Chestnut Street, located next to the former Mitchell Tolle building, began when the city rallied support from local citizens and interest groups, thereafter winning a $250,000 grant from the Kentucky Office of Agriculture Policy (KOAP). An additional $100,000 was secured from the United States Department of Agriculture Rural Development division, and $10,000 in funding came from the Kentucky Agricultural Development Committee of the Madison County Extension Office, Fraley noted.

Fraley spearheaded the effort to lobby county, state and federal officials on behalf of the city. He has expressed hope the project will spur economic revitalization of Berea's commercial district on Mt. Vernon Road, and may also serve as a gateway that will lead to the revitalization of Chestnut Street and Old Town as well.

The Chestnut Street Pavilion is just the latest endeavor by the Berea Tourism Commission to put restaurant taxes to use to build attractions that can serve local residents and draw prospective tourists.

The commission is also funding the mountain bike/running trail project on J.C. Chambers Lane as well as expanding the city's network of shared use paths and trails.

In related news, Berea Business Development and Tourism Director Donna Angel revealed that the Berea Tourism Commission has now paid off the debt for both the former Tolle Building as well as the Berea Hotel. Commissioner Charles Arnold strongly advocated retiring the debt to allow the commission to save money on interest.

BREWER

Brewer also served in the Richmond Police Department, and at one point, rose to the position of interim chief at the BPD.

Berea Mayor Bruce Fraley and other city leaders echoed Sandlin's sentiments about Brewer, expressing gratitude for Brewer's contributions to the police department and his community. "Not only is Danny a good police officer and a good citizen, he's just a good human being. He's a good person and we'll miss him, but we know he's going to be involved in the community. Danny will not sit still. I can guarantee that," Fraley said.

In other news, Dr. Louisa Summers and her research team from Berea College's Health and Human Performance Department presented the second half of a report evaluating the quality-of-life impact of the Stephenson Trail and the Short Line Pike Trail. While they concluded that the number of trail users is projected to be slightly down from 2020, since traffic on the trails was peaked during the height of the pandemic, 60 percent of residents living near the trail report the trails have positively impacted their physical activity habits, including taking more walks and longer walks, and running and biking with greater frequency.

Summers also noted the study's conclusions that shared use trails enhance the quality of life in the community, since they are used by citizens of all ages, and thus bring people together. With that in mind, Summers encouraged the city to continue investing in sensors that will accurately tally the traffic on both Berea's shared use trails and the mountain bike trail, which is tentatively slated to open in September. Summers said keeping an accurate count of trail users will help the city measure the return on its investment in the trails.

Also Tuesday, the Berea City Council unanimously adopted a resolution allowing the mayor to apply for intergovernmental funds allowing the city to be reimbursed for costs related to the pandemic.

The council also unanimously adopted a change order allowing for the milling of Jefferson Street from Lewis Street to Morning View. The change order was for approximately $82,000, bringing the total cost of the road improvement project to $270,128.

On the topic of public records and transparency, the council heard the first reading of an ordinance giving the city five days to comply with open records requests as opposed to the existing deadline, which is three days.

During mayoral comments, Mayor Fraley asked citizens to keep in mind a free concert at Fee Park on Saturday, August 25, featuring the local group The New Developments.

The event begins at 6:30 p.m. Fraley also asked citizens to begin thinking ahead to the Spoonbread Festival, which runs September 17-19. "Now is the time to be inviting your friends and relatives to enjoy the Spoonbread Festival," Fraley said.

Concerns about wearing masks during the recent surge of the COVID-19 variant came to the forefront at Tuesday's meeting. Councilmember Teresa Scenters noted there is confusion about the nature of the virus in the wake of recent COVID-19 breakthrough infections. She also said she keeps a mask around her neck to put on in case people feel the need for added protection. Scenters also added she is relying on her faith during this time of uncertainty.

"I think I have to abide by a scripture that we've all learned in childhood," Scenters said. "Though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil. Jesus is with me, and he can be with you, too. And I trust that he will."

In response to Scenters' remarks, Councilmember Cora Jane Wilson called for citizens to be tolerant of others. "A friend of mine, Lesha Gay McIntosh wrote something and put it on Facebook, and I thought it was so appropriate. It said if you wear a mask, I love you. If you don't wear a mask, I love you. If you get the shot, I love you. If you don't get the shot, I love you. I will love you either way. You are welcome to hug me or not. Why? Because I respect your decision either way. I think that's what we have to do. It's called respect. We need to learn to respect that it's your choice. You make it," said Wilson.

COVID

Capitol press conference. "Far more than we had ever expected, more than we have ever seen, and this number continues to grow. What this means is that with the delta variant, your kids are at a greater risk than they have been."

State Public Health Commissioner Dr. Steven Stack noted, "Small numbers don't really make a big headline, but 17 pediatric patients in the hospital in Kentucky with COVID is an all-time high. 12 was the prior record in December."

Stack explained that is important, "Because the only two facilities the Commonwealth of Kentucky has to take care of seriously injured or ill children or adolescents is Norton's Children Hospital in Louisville and the University of Kentucky. When those places are full, there is nowhere else to send them, and the other hospitals are way less prepared to be able to take care, for an extended period of time, these sick children or adolescents."

Beshear said hospitals in the South are running out of ICU beds, and is now reaching western Kentucky.

"Jennie Stuart Medical Center in Hopkinsville says their hospitalizations due to COVID are up 500% over the last two weeks," he stated. "Vanderbilt Medical Center in Nashville, where many people in western Kentucky have to go when things get serious, is full. Baptist Health Paducah, Baptist Health Madisonville, both warning online that their cases are significantly rising, while their resources are rapidly diminishing. Mercy Health reports a 21% positivity rate. The Bowling Green Medical Center ICU is full, with 47 patients hospitalized with COVID-19, 11 on ventilators."

But it's not just in the west that is affected by COVID, Beshear said.

"The delta variant continues to burn through our population here in Kentucky, with the most severe escalation in cases that we have seen to date. We have lost 7,400 people, so me now saying we are experiencing the most rapid rise in cases right now, ought to alarm everybody."

Third vaccine doses will soon be available in Kentucky for people with these conditions:

- Active or recent treatment for cancer/malignancy.
- Solid-organ or hematopoietic stem cell transplants.
- Moderate or severe immunodeficiency (such as DiGeorge syndrome or Wiskott-Aldrich syndrome).
- Advanced or untreated HIV infection.
- Active treatment with high-dose corticosteroids, alkylating agents, antimetabolites, tumor-necrosis (TNF) blockers and other immunosuppressive medications.

"This is for individuals who may not have received adequate protection from their initial primary vaccine series," Stack said. "People with normal immune systems are not advised to receive an additional dose at this time. Anyone with questions about their eligibility should talk with their health care provider."

Both continue urging Kentuckians to wear a mask when indoors away from home and to get vaccinated.

Numbers rising

There was another large number of new COVID-19 cases reported in Kentucky on Tuesday as the delta variant continues its dangerous surge, not only in the state, but across the nation and around the world.

A total of 3,276 new cases were reported to state public health officials, making it 19,737 cases during the last seven days and 522,209 overall since the pandemic began.

Nine Kentucky counties reported 60 or more new cases: Jefferson 417, Fayette 304, Hardin 109, Warren 107, Laurel 95, Pike 94, Kenton 67, Boone 65, and Madison 63.

There were also eight new deaths, which raises the number of Kentuckians lost due to COVID-19, to 7,459. The positivity rate also continued its month and a half climb, reaching 12.47%, which is 1.25% higher than seven days ago. On July 17, the positivity rate was 4.76%, and only 2.06% on June 17.

A good number that is rising is the one that indicates how many Kentuckians have been vaccinated against COVID-19. It now stands at 2,425,305, meaning 66% of all Kentuckians, 18 and older, have received at least one dose of the vaccine.

State Fair to bring Kentuckians together again

LOUISVILLE (KT) – The Kentucky State Fair opens its annual 11-day run Thursday, featuring more than 1.2 million square feet of space and more than 300 acres of outdoor space.

While the 2020 state fair was scaled back and admission limited to participants due to the COVID-19 pandemic, the 2021 version will have a more normal feel, but with health and safety considerations at the top of everyone’s mind, there will be some minor changes.

“The Kentucky State Fair is an important event for thousands of people around the commonwealth and the economic activity created by the fair will help Kentucky’s recovery,” said David S. Beck, president and CEO of Kentucky Venues. “While we will need to make adjustments to respond to COVID-19, we plan to produce as much of the fair as safely possible. We look forward to once again being where Kentucky comes together.”

The event will follow the recommendations of the Kentucky Healthy at Work and Healthy Events initiatives as well as the Centers for Disease Control and Jefferson County Health Department. Fairgoers will be required to follow all Kentucky guidelines at the time of the event. That includes wearing masks upon entering the Kentucky Exposition Center. Mask wearing is not required when outside.

State fair by the numbers:

- 75-plus unique daily activities.
- Up to 335 vendors offering a variety of food and items unique to the fair, including 60 food vendors.
- 24 performance locations with shows throughout the day.
- 45 unique bands with performances within tents, lobbies and at the Texas Roadhouse Concert Series.
- 21,000+ entries highlighting the best of Kentucky in agriculture and general, broken down as 13,889 entries in general and 7,398 entries in livestock.

This includes poultry, pigeons and rabbits.

- $15.3 million in estimated economic impact to Kentucky (2019 in direct and indirect spending).

State Agriculture Commissioner Ryan Quarles says the state fair represents a chance to connect with some of the sights and smells of a bygone era.

“Our agriculture industry is changing, and more and more Kentuckians are removed from farm life than ever before. But odds are many Kentuckians still have a connection to a farm in one way or another, either through a memory or a story from a relative. By closing your eyes and taking a deep breath in the livestock barn or the tobacco room, you find yourself instantly transported to a Kentucky farm. By walking through the numerous exhibits, you can connect with families who are still carrying on the traditions that helped build Kentucky. You might even have a chance to talk to a youngster all about how he or she cured that prize-winning country ham.”

He added: “If our county fairs are any indication of how excited people are to be back to normal, then this signature summer event will likely be one of the largest attended state fairs in the history of the commonwealth.”

CHI Saint Joseph raises minimum wage

CHI Saint Joseph Health, including Saint Joseph Berea and the CHI Saint Joseph Medical Group in the Berea area, has implemented a $15/hour minimum starting wage for all full-time, part-time and temporary employees starting this month. This move represents a more than $3 million investment across the organization.

“We believe that providing a reasonable and fair living wage is the right thing to do for our people,” said Tony Houston, CEO, CHI Saint Joseph Health. “We are committed to making continued investments in our employees to remain competitive in our market and continue to attract and retain top talent.”

“This increase to our minimum wage recognizes the critical role all of our employees play in caring for our patients,” said John Yanes, president, Saint Joseph Berea. “We value the contributions of each and every person who impacts the lives of our patients as they seek care in our facilities and physician offices.”

CHI Saint Joseph Health is the first health care provider in the Berea area to offer the $15/hour minimum wage. The change builds on CHI Saint Joseph Health’s moves over the past few years to raise the minimum wage for hourly employees.

Fraley to speak

Berea Mayor Bruce Fraley will speak at the Lions Club meeting set for 6:30 p.m. on Aug. 23 at the Smokehouse Grill.

The Madison County Fiscal Court awarded a certificate of recognition to Kayden Lawson, a 12-year-old student at Berea Elementary School on her project last winter. She donated food, toys and supplies to the animal shelter.

Recipe from the heart

This week’s recipe comes about from a former colleague of my husband’s. He had this dish on and loved it. He asked me to see if I could find it and make it for him. During rapelling trip to the Red River Gorge with a paramedic class that my husband and Jim were in, I happened upon the recipe while reading the Sunday edition of a newspaper. I made it and it was an instant hit. This is best when corn and tomatoes are in season. Hope you enjoy!

Chicken Maque Choux

Ingredients

- 3 pounds boneless, skinless chicken breasts
- 1/4 cup vegetable oil
- 1/4 cup flour
- 3 1/2 - 4 cups fresh corn cut from the cob (approximately 5 - 6 ears); use the dull side of the knife to squeeze as much milk as you can out of the cobs)
- 2 Tablespoons of milk or cream, plus extra if needed
- 3 cups chopped onion
- 1/2 cup chopped green pepper
- 2 large tomatoes, coarsely chopped
- 1/4 teaspoon thyme
- 1/2 chopped fresh basil
- 3 teaspoons salt
- 1 teaspoon ground black pepper

Directions

Trip chicken breasts and cut them in half crosswise. In a heavy pot, heat oil over medium heat. Lightly dust chicken pieces with flour, shaking off excess. Brown chicken in oil, turning frequently to cook evenly. When chicken is golden brown, reduce heat and add corn and milk/cream. Mix. Add remaining ingredients. Cook over low heat 30 - 40 minutes or until chicken is tender, stirring occasionally to prevent sticking. If it seems too thick when chicken is done, stir in an additional 2 to 3 Tablespoons of milk. Serve with french bread.

— Susan, Cancer Care Success Story

Prompt care and a close partnership with her hometown doctor paid off for a retired healthcare leader. When Susan began feeling a new breathlessness while exercising, she had a nagging feeling something was wrong. After tests showed lung cancer, her doctor referred her to Baptist Health Richmond for treatment. The early diagnosis qualified her for a clinical trial, and today she is cancer-free. “I didn’t know Baptist Health had that component of clinical research, but was surprised and excited to be part of that. If what I do can help other people, then that’s wonderful,” she said. Learn more about our network of advanced cancer care services at BaptistHealth.com/CancerCare.

Coach Jon Clark was beaming about his 2021 Madison Southern Eagles football team. “We have a lot of experience returning on the offensive side of the ball,” Clark said. “We have eight or nine starters coming back.” Quarterback Cole Carpenter will return as a sophomore with a year’s experience under his belt. Last year, Carpenter threw for nearly 1,200 yards and 12 touchdowns in eight games. “He had an outstanding off-season for us,” Clark said. “He is moving better and is the leader of the offense.” The Eagles’ offense will sport Mr. Everything in Walter Smith, whom Clark calls a potential Mr. Football candidate. “Walter Smith is probably one of the best players in the state,” Clark said. “He will be lining up and playing everywhere for us.” Last year, Smith accounted for 499 yards rushing on 60 carries and 399 yards receiving on 29 receptions totaling 10 combined touchdowns on the ground and through the air. He also excelled on special teams, going 11-for-14 on his extra-point attempts. Jayshaun Ethridge should also be a valuable target on the outside for Carpenter. “He is a huge weapon on our offense,” Clark said. Last year, Ethridge hauled in 19 passes for 284 yards and two scores. He also rushed for 135 yards and three scores. The Eagles welcome a couple of newcomers into the nest as Brett Erslan and Hezekiah Fogle will provide much-needed size and athleticism at the tight end position.

“They are basketball players who came out this year,” Clark said. “They are 6-foot-5 and 6-foot-6. They have come a long way during practice. We have missed that big receiver type of player in recent years, and those two will give us that this year.” The Eagles have Zach Hess, Sam Grinstead, Caleb Johnson, and Keaton Miller returning on the offensive line this year. That should be solid in 2021, Clark said. Carson Livers, Paul Mills, and Logan Stewart will also see action on the offensive line, according to Clark. The Eagles’ defense will be anchored by the Whitehead brothers, Rocky, a junior, and Stephen, a sophomore. Both will man the inside linebacker positions. “The heart and soul of our defense will be our two inside linebackers, Rocky and Stephen Whitehead,” Clark explained. “Rocky is one of the top wrestlers in the state in his class, and Stephen is in the top 10 in his class. They are going to hold it down for us in the middle.” Anchoring the defensive line will be Isaac Moore. “He is a junior who has really stepped up for us,” Clark said. “Lane Brockman is also in line for a big year for us on the defensive line.” With the talent on both sides of the ball, Clark said the team goals remain the same. “We want to beat Central and then win the district and region,” he said. The Eagles will embark on their 2021 season on the road at Southwestern, Aug. 20. Their first home game is scheduled for Aug. 27 against George Rogers Clark.

Parks era set to begin at Berea

After an 0-8 2020 season, first-year Coach Frank Parks said his Berea Pirates are not dwelling on the past but instead looking toward the future. “We’ve been talking about a mindset shift,” Parks explained. “We’re leaving the past in the past. We’re going to have a new mindset and outwork everyone. The players have done a great job of receiving that message and applying it.” Parks said the team is in the process of grasping the new system on both sides of the ball, but he has been impressed with their dedication. “We have a core group of guys that work hard,” he said. “They’re like sponges, as they have absorbed everything we’ve been teaching them.” Parks said much of the off-season has been getting to know one another and learn a new offense and defense. “Defensively, we’re going to be a little simpler as far as our fronts,” Parks said. “On offense, we’re still getting familiar with a lot of the concepts, calls, and signals.” Parks said his defensive line is a strong suit for the team, citing the play of Jaiden Cunningham, Ty Thompson and Connor Gilbert. Offensively, Parks is looking for quarterback Jayson Coburn to take the reins. “He needs to be our leaders and coach on the field on offense,” Parks said. “I want him to take the initiative to lead.” “He has a nice skillset, and we’re just looking for him to take some ownership of the offense.” Last year, Coburn threw for 697 yards and five touchdowns. Jaiden Cunningham will provide the power for the running attack. Last year, Cunningham ran for 488 yards and three touchdowns. “This should be a great year running for him,” Parks said. “It’s going to be a more dynamic scheme, which will allow him to see more gaps and make some big plays. We should have more success, especially running downhill.” Rebounding from an 0-8 season is not an easy task, and Parks said it would be a process. “We want to be the best team we can be,” he said. “We’re going to take it one game at a time. It’s going to be a step-by-step process. We’re preaching getting better each day. The wins and losses will take care of themselves once the players understand what we’re doing, and they execute as they should.” The Pirates begin the 2021 campaign at home on Aug. 20 versus Harlan at 7:30 p.m. Overall, the Pirates will play six home games, with the first three games at Duerson Stadium.

Tailgating tips:

Tailgating involves hosting a gathering with friends or family from the back of a vehicle. This social gathering typically features an informal meal and refreshments. Tailgating usually occurs in the parking lot of a sports stadium, but it also is commonly seen preceding concerts or other large events. Tailgating gets its name from the fact that people set up chairs around the rear of the vehicle, or actually sit on the tailgate itself. For many people, tailgating is a lifestyle, and they’ve honed their skills to deliver parking lot parties that are tough to rival. With some advanced planning and know-how, anyone can throw a successful and memorable tailgate party. Follow these tips to get started.

- Create a mobile tailgating kit. Turn a toolbox into an essentials collection for tailgating. Fill a metal toolbox with necessary gear, such as barbecue basics, bottle openers, condiments, trash bags, zip-baggies, and paper towels. Then simply grab the toolbox and set out for the tailgate party location.
- Prep the night before. You’ll want to get the best spot in the lot, so do the bulk of the work the night before the event. Pre-chill beverages so they will stay at the right temperature in the cooler. Sort out recipe items and ensure that all the food staples are well secured and ready to put in the cooler. Pre-purchase ice so it’s ready to go.

- Pack smart. Store plates and silverware in a plastic bin with a lid. Dirty dishes and other soiled cooking tools can be kept securely inside and toted home for washing.
- Choose menu items wisely. Keep in mind that foods that are portable and eaten out of hand are best at tailgates. This limits the trash and how many utensils will need to be discarded or washed. Burgers, hot dogs, kabobs, sliders/sandwiches, and the like are ideal tailgate foods.
- Label coolers. Make sure guests know where to find the items they need. Label coolers to differentiate between beverages and other supplies. Freeze water bottles to use in place of ice in the coolers so that the cold water can be consumed as the bottles thaw.

- Create a warming oven. Coolers insulate warm or cold items. Grilled foods or foods cooked at home can be kept warm until eaten.
- Establish a washing station. A clean, rinsed out, spigot-style laundry detergent container can be transformed into a washing station.

The most important tip is to make sure others can find your location. Tie balloons to the car so that guests can spot it in the crowd. Then have fun before the game or concert.

Crowdus injury not serious

LEXINGTON (KT) — Kentucky football coach Mark Stoops was all smiles after his team wrapped up the first full week of fall camp with a scrimmage Saturday at Kroger Field.

Stoops provided an update on freshman wide receiver Dekel Crowdus. Stoops said the injury wasn't season-ending and expects the former Frederick Douglass High School standout to make a return in the next few weeks.

"He does not have a torn ligament," Stoops said. "He has a strained ligament (and) there's a good opportunity he'll be back soon. ... We are optimistic."

Junior receiver Wan'Dale Robinson also was pleased Crowdus will return sooner rather than later. Robinson recalled Crowdus was upset about the injury the day it occurred and both players expected the worst.

"At first, we thought it was going to be much longer than we expected," he said. "It's just really good to know he's OK and will be able to bounce back and be healthy again."

Stoops also focused his attention on tight end Izayah Cummings, who continues to make strides at his new position. Stoops said Cummings made a "one-handed catch to keep a drive going."

"Here's a young man that always had a great attitude, works, does everything. And I think he's a difference maker at tight end. He's just so natural. It's so friendly to quarterbacks, somebody that's that athletic with that kind of catch radius and is so smooth. Those big guys sometimes they're stiffer than you think. To have a big guy that's that athletic makes a big difference. Now all of a sudden you're looking at a young man out there and saying 'wow, look at his athleticism' instead of maybe at wide receiver where you know he can catch the ball, but maybe doesn't have the top-end that you're looking for."

Will Levis makes a pass during Kentucky's fan day open practice last Saturday at Kroger Field. Levis was named the starting quarterback on Sunday. (Keith Taylor/Kentucky Today)

'He won the job'

Levis named UK's starting QB

LEXINGTON (KT) — Will Levis has already made an impression on Kentucky's coaching staff. On Sunday he was named the starting quarterback by Kentucky coach Mark Stoops.

The Penn State transfer won the job a week into fall training camp, beating out returnees Joey Gatewood and Beau Allen. Upon hearing the news, Gatewood informed the team that he was entering the transfer portal. Allen will officially be the No. 2 signal-caller on the depth chart and Gatewood will no longer be working out with the team.

"We wanted the best decision for our football team to win games," Stoops said. "We were ready (to name a starter) and it was the right time. If I knew this was the decision we were going to make, I wanted to give people like Joey the opportunity to transfer and go somewhere else. If you wait another week, then he's trapped here. I thought it was the right decision to let him know where we stand. He appreciated that."

Levis played in 15 career games at Penn State and completed 61 of 102 passes for 644 yards and three touchdowns. He also rushed for 473 yards, including 260 yards and three touchdowns last season for the Nittany Lions.

"He's been extremely efficient at running the offense," Stoops said. "His first throw in the stadium was a 65-yard touchdown strike, off his first live play."

"He has a lot of talent and he has been doing some things very good and very efficient. He has unbelievable arm strength and he's a big strong guy. He won the job."

Stoops said all three players had been doing some "really good things" in the preseason, but said Levis stood out in a scrimmage Saturday, giving the staff more reason to believe he would be the team's starting quarterback in the opener in less than three weeks.

Stoops added that giving Levis more time to work with the revamped offense will be beneficial going into the season opener.

"It is important to build continuity with the offensive players and the receivers, tight ends and running backs," Stoops said. "I would never be pressed into that situation, we want it to be the right decision, first and foremost, over rushing it. Once we came to that conclusion, we felt there was no reason to delay this decision."

Stoops said Allen was "steadfast" in his reaction to the news.

"That's one of the great qualities that Beau has," Stoops said. "He always steady — he does not ever get too high or ever get too low. For him, it was very business-like, just like always."

County to lower tax rate

Bob Flynn
For the Citizen

As required by law, the Madison County Fiscal Court approved adoption of the 2021 Ad Valorem Rates for the county during its regular scheduled meeting Tuesday.

Magistrates approved accepting the compensating rate for real property and the tangeable personal property and inventory rates based on the compensating rate.

The compensating rate for real property will be set at 7.6 cents per $100, down from last year's rate of 8 cents per $100.

The tangeable personal property and inventory rates for 2021 will be set at 9.5 cents per $100, while the motor vehicle and watercraft property tax rates will be set at 10 cents per $100.

The compensating rate is based on the overall assessed property values in the county.

As property values increase, the compensating rate typically goes down.

The Madison County property tax rate is approximately 1 percent.

That means that if a resident owns a property valued at $100,000, they would pay $1,000 in property tax to the

County to lower tax rate

Bob Flynn
For the Citizen

As required by law, the Madison County Fiscal Court approved adoption of the 2021 Ad Valorem Rates for the county during its regular scheduled meeting Tuesday.

Magistrates approved accepting the compensating rate for real property and the tangeable personal property and inventory rates based on the compensating rate.

The compensating rate for real property will be set at 7.6 cents per $100, down from last year's rate of 8 cents per $100.

The tangeable personal property and inventory rates for 2021 will be set at 9.5 cents per $100, while the motor vehicle and watercraft property tax rates will be set at 10 cents per $100.

The compensating rate is based on the overall assessed property values in the county.

As property values increase, the compensating rate typically goes down.

The Madison County property tax rate is approximately 1 percent.

That means that if a resident owns a property valued at $100,000, they would pay $1,000 in property tax to the trying to “hog tie” her during a domestic dispute. Goforth, a former gubernatorial candidate, submitted a letter to the governor’s office and the House speaker’s office announcing his immediate departure. “At this time, family and personal circumstances demand my full attention and focus,” Goforth wrote in the brief message.

Goforth faces strangulation and assault charges stemming from the domestic dispute. Authorities said he faces accusations of choking a woman with an ethernet cable and attempting to tie her up. A pretrial conference is set for Dec. 16.

He pleaded not guilty and was reelected by a wide margin to another two-year term last year in his rural district, a Republican stronghold that covers Jackson and parts of Laurel and Madison counties in southeastern Kentucky.

His legal turmoil prompted a citizen’s impeachment petition seeking his removal from office. A House panel dismissed the petition after determining that impeachment doesn’t apply to legislators under the state’s constitution.

Goforth was a relative newcomer to the legislature when he challenged then-Gov. Matt Bevin in the 2019 GOP primary. Goforth won nearly 40% of the vote, exposing Bevin’s political weakness despite the governor’s backing from then-President Donald Trump. Bevin never fully recovered from the lackluster showing, and he lost a close race to Democrat Andy Beshear.

Goforth was known as a strong social conservative with a populist tone, backing funding for public education and workers’ rights issues.

In his resignation letter, Goforth thanked his constituents for electing him and said it was with a “heavy heart” that he was leaving the legislature. He wished the governor and his now-former House colleagues “the very best.”

The governor will set the date for a special election to fill Goforth’s seat.

After tests showed lung cancer, her doctor referred her to Baptist Health Richmond for treatment. The early diagnosis qualified her for a clinical trial, and today she is cancer-free. “I didn’t know Baptist Health had that component of clinical research, but was surprised and excited to be part of that. ## Collecting baseball cards was ‘Topps’ while growing up

I don’t remember when I began collecting baseball cards, but I was young and bought a pack nearly every time I went into a store. Whether it was at the Roundhill General Store, Winn Dixie or Thornberry’s Super Value, I put them in the buggy even when mom wasn’t looking. One pack soon ended top being two packs, which meant two sticks of bubble gum and increased the odds of getting by favorite players. Some people collected an entire set of baseball cards for any given year, but I was more interested in collecting my favorite players and of course the “Rookie Cards” which nearly always were worth more according to whether or not that player was going to make it in the Major Leagues. I collected hundreds of baseball cards and traded them with friends and made sure I kept them in “mint” condition by putting them in a sleeve in a binder especially made for baseball cards. Topps were the best baseball cards on the market and they were the exclusive card maker for Major League Baseball. I had hundreds of Topps cards and marveled at those — including my dad’s best friend Wayne Kindred — who had baseball cards I would only dream of, such as a Pete Rose rookie card, Johnny Bench rookie card and Mickey Mantle, Hank Aaron and hundreds of other cards produced by

Topps in the 1950s-1970s. To my surprise, my dad began collecting baseball cards sometime in the mid-1980s and he became a heavy hitter in the community. Our cards became intertwined and we had our own collection that I pretty much turned over to him eventually because teenager things became more important at that time. Our time was mostly spent at Wells’ Barber Shop in Richmond and a baseball card shop was located adjacent to the shop. Eventually dad purchased the shop and suddenly, “The Dugout” was full of cards and complete sets that I only dreamed about when I was a child. We had cards galore and was the best shop in Madison County. I helped dad run the shop and Mr. Ramsey also was one of dad’s employees.

We traded cards, bought cards, sold packs of cards and attended baseball card shows around the region, especially at the Richmond Mall. We were doing the baseball card thing when it was booming and it was fun as I watched and witnessed cards of such value trade hands. We sold various brands of cards, but mostly the ones of most value were Topps. Thankfully we had the shop in operation when mom was on strike at Gibson Greeting Cards. Dad also had a full-time job at Richmond Utilities and was also pastoring a church at the time. The shop provided us more than enough income to overcome mom’s loss from her full-time job. Mom worked various jobs until she went back to American Greetings, which bought out Gibson Greetings at some point during or after the strike. Dad eventually sold the shop when card collecting went downhill somewhat. I no longer have a collection of cards, but a few boxed sets that dad gave me a long time ago. As announced last week, Topps will no longer be the official card of Major League Baseball, but instead a new company, Fanatics will claim that right in the near future. Although adulthood and responsibilities have kicked in during the past three decades, collecting baseball cards provided a lot of fun and excitement in my childhood and early teenage years thanks to Topps. Those were the simple times and we didn’t even know it.

Summer reading program shifts to student learning

As the long days of summer begin to grow shorter, I’m reminded of how the month of August brings about a sense of both endings and beginnings. When I was growing up, August meant it was time to finish up my summer activities and start gearing up for the next school year. August, for that reason, was always among the most exciting months of the year. I loved school. I was not one of those kids who longed for summer break or a snow day (which is a good thing, since at my school snow days didn’t exist). Instead, my preferred place to be was in the classroom. Learning new things was an exciting prospect. I remember the restless sleep the night before the first day of school, wondering who my teacher would be, what subjects we’d cover, who would be in my class. Even with the adrenaline rush of anticipation, the routine of school was always more comforting to me than the summer free for all. I liked having my days planned out in 50 minute intervals. Now, I won’t pretend that I loved going back to school only for the educational aspects. I enjoyed being around my friends all day, of course. Plus, the beginning of the school year meant basketball practice would soon resume, followed by spring sports. August, even as a kid, always brought a sense of normalcy — a time to get back into regular habits. At the Madison County Public Library, August still has a similar effect. Our Summer Reading program, which ran from June 1-July 31, is always our busiest period. For those two months, we direct the majority of our resources towards supporting a continuation of learning over the summer. This year, over 3,000 children participated in our summer reading challenge! I’m here to tell you - no matter what you’ve heard, kids do still read. To keep this momentum going, each August we shift our resources from summer learning to supporting students in the classroom. Our Outreach Coordinator, Brandon Thompson, hosts book clubs at Silver Creek Elementary, Farristown, Foley, Clark Moores and Madison Middle Schools, as well as Madison Southern

High School. At Kingston Elementary, Brandon visits the Kindergarten Pods each month to read a story and lead an activity. Along with traditional book clubs, Brandon also engages students through a drama club program at both Farristown and Foley Middle Schools. He hosts career preparedness sessions at our local high schools, as well as STEM and arts activities. Beyond the classroom, the Madison County Public Library also supports student learning on site at each location. Last year, we purchased Chromebooks for students to check out and use at the library. We offer access to online databases, such as EBSCOhost, Learning Express Library, and Newsbank, which are accessible even at home with a library card. This comes in quite handy for those inevitable last minute research assignments that tend to pop up through the school year. The library, of course, has student reading lists covered as well. Our Youth Services Manager, David Payne, has developed a collection of suggested reading materials for both kids and teens. Many of these titles are available in our Libby app, which conveniently provides access to thousands of downloadable books and audio books. Students who need titles that are not on our shelves can also utilize interlibrary loan, a service that allows us to borrow materials from other libraries. With a successful summer coming to an end and the new school year set to begin, August remains an exciting time at the library.

Reflections

Penny Loafers

The Penny Loafers, an all-male quartet, performed at Berea College in the Phelps Stokes Chapel on Sunday, September 11, 2005.

The event was co-sponsored by the Campus Christian Center. Blending a variety of musical sounds from 1950's doo-wop to contemporary gospel, the "Loafers" combined impressive vocals, original material, new arrangements of traditional favorites and provided a unique sound that appealed to the ages.

The four-man ensemble formed in 1985, when four Berea College students appeared in a campus talent show singing an acapella version of "Happy Trails." Members of the group came and went over time until the "Loafers" went on the road full-time in 1989.

They had performed at various events and venues across the country.

Although no longer on the road full-time, the Penny Loafers continued (at that time) to perform nationwide.

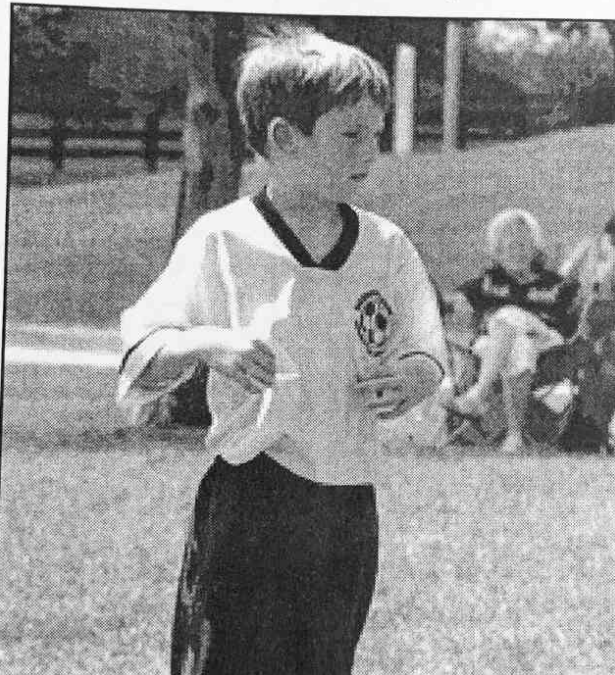

All members of the group served as churches in both pastoral and music ministry.

Volunteer Speaker

Berea Volunteer Fire and Rescue Squad member Mike Anderson spoke at last week's meeting of the Berea Kiwanis Club. The volunteer department began in 1967 to replace Berea College students who used to fight fires prior to that time. The squad had grown to 25 members since then and now has its own building and equipment. Their station is located on Melody Lane.

Fall Soccer Season Begins

Some like it hot

Members of the Berea Fire Department were joined by the Madison County Fire Department, Berea and Red Lick Volunteer Fire Departments for a training exercise on Scaffold Cane Road. According to Berea Fire Chief Randy Rigsby, "It's the best kind of training you can get. It's hands on, it's controlled and it's close to the real thing." The exercise was no simple task. First, the EPA and the state must approve the exercise, then all furnishings, carpet, shingles and any trash must be removed from the area. Then the structure must be deemed structurally sound. The home used for this particular training was ignited and extinguished a total of 20 times, using pallets and cardboard. By the end of the day, the structure was completely burned to the ground. Five teams of firefighters made their way through five stations at the training, while under the watchful eye of instructors. These teams practiced entering the structure on an attack line, then moved to the rehabilitation area, staging area, exposure area (defending the exterior of the home) as well as the backup line. Firefighters who participated in the live burn scenario received eight hours of training toward their certification and required training. According to Rigsby, training for fire crews is an ongoing thing.

Visiting carillonneur

On Monday, August 29th, Malgosia Fiebig of Gdansk, Poland performed a concert on the Berea College carillon. The concert was the last of the summer carillon series for 2005 featuring international Carillonneurs. Fiebig's program include selections from Vivaldi's "Four Seasons," and pieces by Chopin, Argentine tangos and Polis folksongs. There was a monitor that allowed anyone to be able to view the performer in action. Feibig had been city carillonneur in Gdansk since 1999. She holds a master's degree in organ performance and choral conducting. As a carillonneur, she had given concerts in The Netherlands, Germany, Belgium, Portugal, Ireland, Lithuania, France and Norway and earned 1st price in the International Carillon Competition in Enkhuizen, among other awards.

New signs

At a meeting of Old Town and College Square artisans and gallery owners at Boone Tavern, held in July, Mayor Steve Connelly established several volunteer committees to address concerns about a severe drop in tourist traffic - and sales - in Berea. The task for the sign committee was deceptively simple. Their job was to direct prospective visitors off I-75 and into the "arts and Crafts Capitol of Kentucky."

Eight people formed the committee's core: doll maker Lindy Evans, served as chairperson.

Jeanette Rowlett served as secretary, First Christian Church pastor Ed McCurley, served as acting consultant; Old Town merchants John Burton, Connie Adams, Dinah Tyree; College Square gallery owner Kathy West; Diane Kerby, Berea College liaison and artist and writer Tanya Stewart finished out the committee.

In a meeting that happened over several months following the establishing of the committee, they worked out the type of signage needed both in town as well as on the interstate locations as well as with the complex task of wording all of which had to conform to stringent guidelines of the state's Cultural and Recreational Supplemental Sign program.

In September, barely two months after its inception, the committee presented signs to the Berea City Council for approval.

The projected cost of the project was $10,000 and was approved by the City Council a month later.

These signs were also approved by the state in February and install in August.

Common sense still applies to our small town

Small town living is different. It's not southern living, the expectations are not the same as city living, the social norms are sometimes unique, and it will spoil you after a while of living in it. Small town living produces a pride in your soul about who you are, where you come from, and how you were raised.

The general expectation we all have of one another, in my eyes, has always been that your word is your bond, your manners reflect your raisin', and you shouldn't do anything that you're gonna regret come Sunday morning. But, as I grow older and am more interactive with those who were not blessed to grow and learn here in Kirksville, I realize that some people are losing touch with these things in a lot of ways. Or, perhaps, maybe our town is one of the last of its kind.

Carrie Grant

In columns prior, I've shared sentiments about how wonderful it is to live here and be part of this community, but it occurred to me this past weekend that so much of what we do is truly unique.

When our kids get together down here, parents talk to each other and thank one another for letting their child join the festivities. People here still feed one another when it's supper time and the visit lasted a little longer than we thought. Many of us have open doors to our homes for our friends and family to come visit any time, and we mean that open invitation with the utmost sincerity.

When someone says they are going to be at an event, or somewhere to work or help, they go and they're on time - because the value of their word is that important to them. For me, my house never feels big enough for all the people I want to come in and eat supper with me on the weekends.

I will always want to introduce myself to new people and make them feel welcome in my presence. I will always want to bring a meal to a friend when they're having a good moment or bad - I'll celebrate with you or cry with you. There will never be a day when I just lower my head and not socialize - if I don't know you, I will before I walk away. It's just not in my blood. I was brought up to believe that the way you welcome people, the love you show them, and the promises you keep with them reflect your raisin' - those are your manners and it's who you are.

There aren't many things that define us in this life. But, the way you treat those around you, even the strangers, is everything. If we are called to love our neighbor, we should do it right. Sometimes love means honesty when it brings a change for the good, or forgiving someone even when it's hard. Loving a neighbor may also mean being more than welcoming to a new person, bringing a neighbor a bowl of soup beans just because you were thinking of them, or praying for someone because you don't know why they're struggling, but you know that they are.

Loving your neighbor is mostly treating people the way you want to be treated, even when it's hard to do.

I hope our community never loses those values and the ability to be a great neighbor. I think we exude the best manners around, and I wouldn't want to live anywhere else.

For many of us, these things are just common sense, but lately it seems some of the world is in short supply of that.

Kingston has plenty to offer

I was out driving around Kingston, and of course, driving around now can be expensive. I was pleased to notice that the Shell Mart in Kingston has low prices on gas. Their prices are lower than some stations in Berea. Another draw is the sandwiches, snacks, and pudding available in their dining area. Their cooks have a reputation for making tasty food. I noticed the sign out front advertising pies. This might need further investigation. I can remember stopping at the Shell Mart before or after school for drinks and supplies when I had children attending Kingston.

I had never been inside the Thompson Pharmacy either, so I dropped in there.

The pharmacist himself greeted me. Clint Creekmore was his name. I thought this was unusual because in most drug stores it is hard to speak with a pharmacist without waiting several minutes. (Brittney Bowling is also listed as a pharmacist for this location.) I was also impressed with the cleanliness and orderliness of the OTC medications on the shelves. The pharmacy smelled so clean! If you have any concerns about physical contact during the COVID-19 outbreak, there is a convenient drive through you may use.

Clint told me a little about the history of Thompson Pharmacy. It was founded in London in 1986 according to their website.

The owner is Britt Thompson, and the co-owner is Randy Windham. Twenty-five years later it is a true family endeavor with their children joining them in the pharmacy business. They have expanded to eight locations including the Kingston location.

Right next door is the Chi Saint Joseph Medical Group Primary Care location where you can make an appointment with Dr. Jessica Pennington. For local folks, this is very convenient.

There is no long travel time. It is also very accessible. No struggling with wheelchairs down ramps and into elevators.

Don't put off your routine medical care because of Covid. Many people have not been to the doctor for heart checkups and needed testing. Although you may be able to use telehealth for some consultations, you may need labs or other tests. Your doctor's office will inform you about the safety procedures in place.

Moving on down the sidewalk, there is a hair salon called Jennifer's Hair Dimensions.

I believe it is owned by Jennifer Bailey. I love the cheerful décor out front.

I finished at The Pop-Up Market, which I mentioned in a previous column.

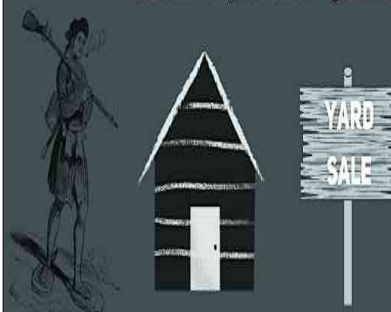

You can check their Facebook page for hours, events, and pictures of inventory.

All in all, it was a great day to be out and about in Kingston.

Instead of the whole world stinking, it could just be us

We certainly could learn a lesson from the grumpy old man caught napping by his mischievous grandson.

The boy sneaked off to the refrigerator and got a chunk of stinky Limburger cheese and quietly rubbed it into Grandpa's beard. Soon enough the stench awakened the old man who fussed that the house stinks.

He walked outside, took a whiff and complained that the yard stinks.

He walked out on the hillside, drew another breath and declared that the whole world stinks, when, in fact, it was only that old man who stunk.

Did you ever know people who think the whole world stinks? Those with the bad attitudes? They're certainly not much fun to be around. They can drag others down with their continual fussing and quarreling.

God wants better for us, and He even warns us that we should choose carefully the people we spend our time with. In fact, the Bible warns that we need to carefully choose our spouses because it's better to live up on the roof than inside a house with a quarrelsome mate (Proverbs 25:24).

But it's not just at home that we can be exposed to bad attitudes. We may have to work around people who constantly nitpick. We may have them as neighbors. Sadly, we may even go to church with them.

During his public ministry, Jesus had sharp words for the fault-finders of this world, calling them hypocrites in Matthew 7:5. Jesus said those rascals needed to take the big log of their eye so they could see the tiny speck in their brother's eye.

That reminds me of the story about the businessman who would stand in his store and gaze across the street through his competitor's windows and complain about the dirt and grime on them. "Why, they are the dirtiest windows in town," he'd exclaim.

Fellow business owners grew tired of the man's continual complaints until one day, in a fit of honesty, a friend told him he should get his own windows washed. He followed the advice, and the next day he told his friend "as soon as I washed my windows, the competitor must have cleaned his too. You should see them shine."

Sandlin: Saving lives a priority for BFD

Instead of the “Little Engine that Could” Berea Rotarians learned about the “Big Engine that Can.”

After introducing his team, Berea Fire Chief Shawn Sandlin, described the process of securing a custom fire truck that can meet the needs of the 56 square mile coverage needed for southern Madison County.

He noted that the No. 1 goal for firefighters is saving lives. He detailed the work schedule that involves maintenance, testing, and cleaning.

That is the work of the 23 employees who manage the 2-3 calls per week plus participating in more community service.

After the Q&A period in which he discussed shifts and training, Sandlin provided a first-hand look at the new truck for the Rotary members.

The following week those members learned in greater detail one of the community efforts by Berea Firefighters.

Information concerning the Kentucky Brotherhood Ride was given by Brent Billings. The Ride, which was 400 miles in four days, was a project to honor and recognize fallen first responders. Kentucky is one of six states which makes this effort. After watching a video showcasing the ride, Rotary members had an abundance of questions relevant to details of the bike, the road safety, weather conditions, travel food, and resting locations. Billings displayed the bike as he emphasized the need to stay in shape to be ready for the ride.

Guests attending the Sandlin meeting were Rotary partners, Helen Eden and Nancy Scarlett, along with four members of the Berea Fire Department.

For the Billings presentation there were two guests visiting from Ithaca, New York --Noah Back and Della Walters, former scholarship winner. With the current increase in COVID-19 numbers, the Berea Rotary Board is considering cancelling a few meetings or returning to a zoom format.

Berea tops Harlan to end 9-game slide

By Mike Moore
For The Citizen

The Berea Pirates shook off a shaky first half marred by penalties and turnovers to knock off the Harlan Green Dragons, 29-8 last Friday night. The win was sweet for a team that went 0-8 in 2020.

Berea had scoring chances in the first half but kept shooting themselves in the foot.

“We were not disciplined enough to finish off drives in the first half,” first-year Coach Frank Parks said. “We killed ourselves with penalties and mistakes.”

The second half was a different story as the offense found its rhythm.

“We executed much better and limited our mistakes,” Parks said. “That allowed us to finish off drives and score points.”

Berea’s offensive effort was highlighted by the play of Yamil Cruz, who found the end zone three times, twice rushing and one receiving. Cruz accounted for 154 total yards (78 receiving and 76 rushing) on the night.

In the ground game, Jaiden Cunningham was the Pirates workhorse, rushing for 77 yards on 18 carries, including a touchdown. In all, Berea rushed for 153 yards on 27 attempts.

Jayson Coburn threw for 122 yards and a score.

The Pirates were tight on defense, limiting Harlan to 170 total yards offense, while forcing three turnovers.

The defense was led by Ty Thompson, who recorded five tackles and recovered a fumble. Connor Gilbert and Koty Roberts finished the game with four tackles.

Both Clayton Martinez and Cameron Thompson came up with an interception to halt Harlan’s advances.

The Pirates return to action Friday night when they host Nicholas County at 7:30 p.m.

Eagles grounded

Things started out on the right foot for Madison Southern in its season opener at Southwestern as quarterback Cole Carpenter hit Walt Smith on a 62-yard scoring pass on the first play from scrimmage. But after that, it was all Warriors as the home team rolled the Eagles, 55-14.

The Eagles had difficulty running the ball, amassing 60 yards on 26 carries as a team. Stephen Whitehead was Southern’s leading rusher, managing 37 yards on 10 tries.

Carpenter finished the game by completing 64 percent of his passes (16-for-25) with 207 yards and a score. He also rushed for a touchdown late in the game.

Smith was Southern’s leading receiver as he caught four balls for 99 yards and a touchdown. Jayshaun Ethridge hauled in five passes for 50 yards.

Southern was led by Steven Perkins, who finished with 17 tackles, including seven solo stops. Rocky and Stephen Whitehead finished with 11 and 10 tackles, respectively, for the Eagles.

Southern returns to action Friday night when it hosts George Rogers Clark at 7:30 p.m.

Recipe from the heart

This recipe is a relatively new favorite that my mother happened to try a couple of years ago at a restaurant in Paris, Kentucky. Unfortunately, I don’t know the name of the restaurant. However, someone that worked there told her it was a Southern Living recipe and we looked it up. Hope you enjoy as much as we do! BTW, it can be made with a store bought pie crust but homemade is ssssooo much better!

Old Fashioned Tomato Pie

Ingredients

Pie Crust

1 1/4 cup all purpose flour
1/4 cup cold vegetable shortening, cut into pieces
4 Tablespoons cold unsalted butter, cut into pieces
1/2 teaspoon fine sea salt
3 - 4 Tablespoons ice-cold water

Filling

2 1/4 pounds assorted heirloom tomatoes, thinly sliced
1 1/4 teaspoon kosher salt, divided
1 sweet onion, chopped
1 1/4 teaspoon freshly ground pepper, divided
1 tablespoon canola oil
1/2 cup assorted chopped fresh herbs (such as chives, parsley, and basil)
1/2 cup freshly grated Gruyère (can substitute swiss)
1/2 cup freshly grated Parmigiano-Reggiano cheese
1/4 cup mayonnaise

Prepare crust:

Process first 4 ingredients in a food processor until mixture resembles coarse meal. With processor is running, gradually add 3 Tablespoons ice-cold water, 1 Tablespoon at a time until dough forms a ball and leaves the sides of the bowl. Adding up to 1 Tablespoon more of water if necessary. Shape dough into a disk and wrap in plastic wrap. Chill for 30 minutes.

Preheat oven to 425 degrees. Press dough into a 9 inch pie plate. Trim dough 1 inch larger than the diameter of the pie plate. Fold overhanging dough under itself along the rim of the pie plate. Chill 30 minutes or until firm.

Line pie crust with aluminum foil and fill with pie weights or dried beans (This will keep crust from bubbling up). Place on an aluminum foil-lined baking sheet.

Bake at 425 degrees for 20 minutes. Remove weights and foil and bake 5 additional minutes or until browned. Cool completely on baking sheet on a wire rack (about 30 minutes). Reduce oven temperature to 350 degrees

Prepare filling

Place tomatoes in a single layer on paper towels and sprinkle with 1 teaspoon of salt and let stand 10 minutes

Saute onion and 1/4 tsp each of salt and pepper in hot oil in a skillet over medium heat 3 minutes or until tender.

Pat tomatoes dry with a paper towel. Layer tomatoes, onions and herbs in prepared crust, season each layer with pepper 1 teaspoon total. Stir together cheeses and mayonnaise. Spread over pie.

Bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes or until lightly browned, shielding edges with foil to prevent excessive browning. Serve hot, warm or at room temperature.

agency. He symbolizes what a police officer is and what we all strive to be,” Scott said. “Danny has worked in every capacity within our career field and has done so with respect and pride. Danny will be missed not only for what he does while in uniform; it’s the mentoring, positive attitude, and love for the City of Berea.” Scott added that Brewer, who served as interim chief of police, was also a steady influence in a time when the department was in transition two years ago, and that he has since become a valued friend.

Scott went on to remark that Brewer’s example will be missed, especially among younger officers whom he mentored. “Danny truly is a man who leads by example. He never stopped working. Danny has taught me so much about Berea and the challenges ahead, but also the amazing city and department we have,” Scott said. “When Danny leaves, we will truly feel his absence. It’s hard to go wrong when you make it a point to live life with hard work and love. Danny is truly the definition of work and love. He did both endlessly.”

Brewer was honorably discharged from the Marine Corps in 1983, which led him to a dispatch position in the Richmond Police Department for the sum of $3.14 an hour, supplementing his income by cutting tobacco and putting up hay. He attended Eastern Kentucky University and went on to the police academy, serving the Richmond Police Department until 2000. Approximately a year later, he came out of retirement, hired by the Berea Police Department for then-Chief Ray Brandenburg.

Berea Mayor Bruce Fraley not only worked with Brewer for four years, but was also a school mate and team mate of Brewer’s since the first grade. Even in his youth, Brewer was one who stood up for other people and had a generous spirit, an element of Brewer’s personality that remained over the decades, Fraley said.

While serving as a police officer in Richmond, Brewer was publicly lauded for saving an elderly woman from a burning home in 1994, and he was selected as Kiwanis Club’s 1987 Officer of the Year for his commitment to public service.

“He’s still the defender; still fearless, and he still stands up for what is right,” Fraley said. “He’s always been about doing good for other people and not necessarily about doing what was best for himself. We are stronger because of Danny. We’ll miss him, but I know we haven’t seen the last of Danny.”

Retirement, for Brewer, won’t mean the end of work. He said he will continue his part-time position in security at a Richmond retailer, and he looks forward to more time with his family, especially his wife, Misty, who he says was one of the main reasons for his success in law enforcement.

“I couldn’t have done it without people behind me. I have so much respect for my wife being there through this. I couldn’t have asked for a better person or love her any more for what’s she’s had to put up with,” Brewer said. “She’s been the best as far as that goes. She’s my guiding light.”

When asked what advice he would give to younger officers, Brewer was adamant. “I tell them to be community-oriented and be true to yourself. If you can be those two things every day that you put that uniform on, that is a blessing,” Brewer said.

An avid Kentucky Wildcat and Dallas Cowboys fan, Brewer was honored by his fellow officers with a Cowboys jersey bearing the number 36 – signifying his years of service in law enforcement. Still, Brewer hinted he’s not done just yet. In accepting the honors, Brewer said he intends to stick around, offering his support to his fellow officers and continuing to serve his community. Said Brewer: “I’m not going very far, and who knows what the future holds?”

Madison County Sheriff’s Office.

That $1,000 is then divided between six taxing districts in the county, Fiscal Court, Madison County Schools, the health department, library, ambulance, extension office and the State of Kentucky.

Under the adopted compensating rate, Fiscal Court will receive $76 of the $1,000 of paid taxes. “Last year, for every $1,000 individuals paid in property tax, the county received $80. This year, based on increased property valuation, the county will receive $76 per $1,000 paid in taxes,” Judge/Executive Regan Taylor said. “So, the rate is actually going down.

“The compensating rate is compensating based on the total amount of revenues the county received the prior year. It doesn’t give more revenue, it gives the same amount.”

“The property tax equation is very complicated and is hard to understand.

I sympathize with tax payers and residents that it’s very hard to understand,” Taylor added.

The Court also approved the second reading of a zone change proposal to change property located at 3276, 3278, 3280 and 3292 Lexington Road be rezoned from UC4IC (Urban Corridor Interstate Commercial) and UC1 (Urban Corridor Single Family Residential) to UC11 (Planned Unit Development or PUD).

Planned Unit Developments contain varied types of uses, such as housing and commercial properties within the same developments.

The Planning Commission, nor Fiscal Court received any community feedback, for or against, the proposed zone change for the property.

This was the first Planned Unit Development approved in the county.

Stoops letting burglary proble play out in court

LEXINGTON (KT) — It was business as usual for the Kentucky football team Saturday, but it wasn't without some distractions. The Wildcats were without six players during a scrimmage Saturday at Kroger Field. Reuben "RJ" Adams, Robert "Jutahn" McClain, Andru Phillips, Earnest Sanders IV, Vito Tisdale and Joel Williams face burglary charges after being charged with first-degree burglary last Thursday following an incident that occurred last March. The school conducted an internal investigation following the incident and cleared the six players to return to the program in the summer. Tisdale also was charged with wanton endangerment for pointing a handgun at a victim. Stoops added "anytime there is an issue, there is a concern" but he isn't worried about his team's overall morale going into the season opener against Louisiana Monroe in two weeks. At the same time, Stoops is taking the charges "very serious" and is interested to see if there is "new information that we have to look at." "We take great pride in the culture of this program — where we're at and where we've been and the positive things," the Kentucky coach said. "You never want to take a step back. Am I concerned? I'm not. (Will the outside) perception take a hit? I'm not sure ... everybody can come to their own conclusion. "We feel strongly about the culture of this team ... anytime with people and things happen, we address it. "We try to do the best we can. Every situation is different and you're always concerned when things happen to people. They're all human beings, human beings aren't perfect. When these things happen, we address it, to improve and move forward." Kentucky senior Josh Pascal said the routine has been normal since the charges were released on Thursday. "As for the team, we're getting ready for the season," he said. "... the culture around here is great. We're looking forward to the game and we're getting ready for that." The players weren't with the squad during an initial investigation by the university last spring, which took 11 weeks to complete. They weren't with the team Saturday and Stoops isn't sure if they will return pending the outcome of the investigation by officials. Stoops said the players "deserve an opportunity to defend themselves." "There is a process that needs to play out and to see in this discovery if there is something that we didn't know about," Stoops said. "We don't have all that information and the attorney's don't have all that information yet. When they receive that info from the (potential) discoveries, then we will go from there. We'll let that process play out."

Scouting report: Warhawks seek to aim high under Bowden

LEXINGTON (KT) — The University of Louisiana Monroe went winless last season and the Warhawks revamped their coaching staff and hired Terry Bowden as coach. Bowden hired former Arizona coach Rich Rodriguez to be his offensive coordinator. Bowden has served the past two seasons as a graduate assistant and offensive analyst on Dabo Swinney's staff at Clemson. Last year: Lousiana Monroe lost all 10 of its games and nine of those contests were by 10 points or more.

The Warhawks finished last in the Sun Belt Conference in scoring, total offense and rushing. Outlook: Offensive coordinator Rich Rodriguez to be his offensive coordinator and the veteran coach brought along his son, quarterback Rhett Rodriguez, who will have to beat out returner Colby Suits to win the starting job in fall camp. Rich Rodriguez filled in for Bowden following the death of Bobby Bowden on Aug. 8. Bowden's first schedule at ULM features road games at Kentucky and LSU, along with independent powerhouse Liberty at home. The road slate also includes Coastal Carolina and Appalachian State. Coach Quote: "Energy and enthusiasm are a part of my DNA. I still like to be the first one in the office every morning and the last one out at night. I want to make the coffee. I guess you would call me a grinder. I depend on hard work, instead of superior intellect (laughing). I absolutely love coaching and I love to win. I didn't go to Clemson to find a way to hang on in this profession.

I chose to go to Clemson because I wanted to be around the top head coach and college football program in America and continue to 'study and learn' how to be a better coach myself." Series: Kentucky leads the series against Louisiana-Monroe 4-1. Last meeting: Kentucky 48, ULM 14, 2014 at Kroger Field. Game time: Louisiana Monroe at Kentucky, noon, EST, Sept. 4. TV/ Radio: SEC Network, UK Radio Network.
