City eyes property tax cut

By Andy McDonald
For The Citizen

The Berea City Council reviewed an ordinance Tuesday that will reduce the ad valorem tax rate in the city. Finance Director Susan Meeks said that because property values soared in the last year, the city can actually afford to reduce the ad valorem tax rate on real property, yet still continue to draw an increased revenue. "Berea topped $1 billion in taxable property. That's a milestone for Berea," Meeks said, adding that the value of property increased by $78 million, including a $26 million increased value in commercial property brought on by industrial expansion. In 2021, the council voted to set the ad valorem tax rate at 9.9 cents per $100 of assessed property. Under the new proposed rate, taxpayers will be assessed at a lower rate of 9.7 cents per $100. However, because more money is being collected because of increased property values, the city will collect an additional $91,000 in revenue over last year. "That's pretty exciting for Berea, and it puts us in a good position for our rates," Meeks said. "I personally recommend the 9.7 cents. It seems like a win-win. It's a pretty good place to be because we can maintain

Foul play not suspected in inmate's death

By Leslie Barlow
Citizen Staff Writer

The Kentucky State Police, Richmond Post, was contacted by the Madison County Detention Center July 31 just after 3:30 a.m. in reference to an unresponsive inmate. Madison County Coroner Jimmy Cornelison said William Martin, 58, had reported a shortness of breath and was transported to Baptist Health after becoming unresponsive. Martin was pronounced deceased by the Madison County Coroner. Cornelison and KSP Post 7 detectives responded to the scene. Martin's body was transported to Frankfort for an autopsy and a toxicology screen. Foul play is not suspected. Martin was lodged in the detention center July 28 due to a probation violation for a felony offense and failure to appear. The investigation is ongoing by KSP Detective Jonathan Walls.

More outdoor attractions could be in store in future

By Andy McDonald
For The Citizen

Berea's mountain bike park is a success so far, according to a recent survey, but officials say plans are in the works to add to the city's outdoor attractions, including more mountain bike trails and kayaking. During a recent meeting of the Berea City Council, Dr. Louisa Summers and her student assistants presented data projecting that the Berea Mountain Bike Park attracts approximately 4,000 visitors annually. Summers, a professor of Health and Human Performance at Berea College and chair of the Berea Trail Town Committee, stated the bike park is definitely contributing to economic development. Sixty-seven percent of survey participants said they planned to eat at Berea restaurants when they were finished at the bike park, and the average amount of money spent on the trip to Berea was $35, according

BEREA POLICE

Incident not a threat to community

We received a notice from the community in reference to an incident that occurred at Berea Hospital around 8:30 a.m. Friday. The incident was in reference to a female that was on property with a concealed firearm. Our officers responded quickly and were able to talk with the female. The female was advised of the hospital's policies, and she was released without incident.

There was no active shooter situation or imminent threat. Berea Hospital reminds the community that firearms are not allowed on property even if it is concealed. Let's continue to be safe Berea. Remember if you see something, say something.

Paul Edward Johnson

Paul Edward Johnson, 74, of Richmond Kentucky passed away peacefully at his home surrounded by his family on July 28, 2022.

Born in Richmond Kentucky on April 16, 1948 he was the son of the late Noah and Georgia Bell (McIntosh) Johnson. He graduated from Madison Central High School in 1967 where he played baseball, basketball and football and forever credited participation in sports as a positive influence in his life. He had the opportunity to attend college as a student athlete, but that ended when he joined the US Army Reserves in 1968. He continued his love of sports by playing in adult softball leagues, golfing, coaching, and supporting his grandchildren in youth athletics. Paul came from humble beginnings and learned the importance of hard work at a very young age. This work ethic continued throughout his 42 years of employment with Okonite Cable Company, where he was one of the first employees hired and a long time member of the Foremans Club. Paul accepted Christ in his life in December 2019 when he was baptized at Grace Bible Community Church in Jackson, Kentucky.

Paul lived his life working hard, supporting his family, enjoying time with friends, and always helping others in need. His greatest accomplishments were his children and grandchildren. He is survived by three daughters. Paula Johnson, and her children Madeline (Lee) Mills, Cannon McLin, Tess McLin. Robyn (Tom) Moreland, and her children Charlie, Noah, Sam and Whitney Moreland. Jessica (Derek) Tipton and her child Holden.

Son, Edward Vaughn and his children Dakota Lakes and Samantha Williams. This year he welcomed two great grandchildren, MaKenzie Green and Jude Mills. In addition to his children, he is survived by his brother Noah Johnson Jr. (Deborah) and sister Darlene (Bill) Noble and many nieces and nephews.

In addition to his parents, he was preceded in death by his loving and supportive wife of 23 years Teresa Roark Johnson, his in laws Ed and Helen Roark and siblings Susie Archie, Patsy Golden and Willie Johnson.

Funeral services were at 11 a.m. Tuesday, August 2, 2022, at the Oldham, Roberts & Powell Funeral Home. burial will follow in the Richmond Cemetery.

Pallbearers were Cannon McLin, Charlie Moreland, Dakota Lakes, Jonathan Johnson, Curtis Johnson, Noah Noble.

Honorary Pallbearers are Madison Central High School Class of 1967.

In lieu of flowers, donations can be made to financially support the youth of Madison County. You can donate to Richmond Little League at PO Box 457, Richmond, KY 40475 or The Matt Ross Foundation at 105 Boone Court, Berea, KY 40403.

Jennie Belle Shain Kiteck

Jennie Belle Shain Kiteck, 94, of Berea, entered her eternal home on Jan. 17, 2022 at the Hospice Plus Compassionate Care Center in Richmond.

Jennie was the oldest of four children, born October 2, 1927, in Louisville, KY to Arthur and Goldia Shain. She graduated from Shawnee High School in 1945, where she found her love for music and violin. Jennie attended Berea College as an adult student, graduating in 1981 with an education degree, and was a substitute teacher at Berea Community School. Playing violin and being part of the Berea College Orchestra led to her starting a strings program in Berea where she shared her passion of music with hundreds of children for over 36 years at Berea College and Berea Community School. The Berea Chamber of Commerce awarded her the Woman of the Year in 1998.

Jennie was a faithful member of Union Church in Berea, where she was an active member of the church choir. She was preceded in death by her parents; Arthur and Goldia Shain, her husband, Stephen P. Kiteck, siblings MaryAnn Shain Cubranic and William Shain, granddaughter-in-law Sierra Cahoon, and great-grandson Nolan Cahoon.

She is survived by her six children Susan Pfeifer (Patrick) of Louisville, Steve (Sally) of Somerset, Paul (Sharon) of Longmont, CO, Peter (Liz) of Carmichael, CA, Priscilla Cahoon (Jack) of Manteo, NC, and Mary Whitlock (Mark) of Duluth, MN; her sister, Marcia Purdue, of Louisville, 16 grandchildren, and 19 great-grandchildren.

The family appreciates her caregiver, Kim Bussey, volunteers, Berea Home Village, and friends from Union Church, who helped through her final years, and the staff at the Hospice Plus Compassionate Care Center in her final days. Memorial contributions may be made to the Union Church Nurture and Care Team fund. A memorial service will be held at Union Church on Saturday, August 13 at 2 p.m.. Special music beginning at 1 p.m.. The service will be live-streamed, please check the Union Church website.

Kentuckians stepping up in times of need

You’ve seen the images. The aftermath and the devastation. Our friends and neighbors in Eastern Kentucky have been recovering from heaving flooding that struck the region last week. A total of 13 counties have been declared as national disaster areas, including Breathitt, Clay, Knott, Letcher and Perry Counties. As of Tuesday, 37 deaths have been confirmed in those hard-hit areas and more are unaccounted as flood waters begin to recede, creating even more hardship on the region. Heartbroken families are dealing with the loss of their loved ones, thousands of area residents have lost their homes, some are still without power, making the recovery process even more difficult on those affected by the deadly flooding. In times of need, Kentuckians have been known to step up and help their neighbors and this time is no different. In the past week, businesses, civic groups, churches and their denominational headquarters, such as the Kentucky Baptist Convention, have already collected monetary donations and sent mobilization units to the region to assist in the recovery efforts. The Kentucky men’s basketball team, double-teamed with the American Red Cross and had an open practice on Tuesday night in conjunction with a telethon and raised thousands that will go toward the recovery efforts in the region. Kentucky Governor Andy Beshear has made sure our fellow Kentuckians are getting the assistance they need on a state and federal level to speed up the recovery process. Earlier this year, the Western part of our state was ripped apart by and our state stepped up and made sure those impacted by the deadly twisters got back on their feet as quick as possible. A total of 57 residents were killed and more than 500 were injured in the tornadoes that struck the region on Dec. 10. The work is far from finished, but the path to completion is fully underway. The recovery doesn’t happen overnight and takes time. I can remember driving through Ringgold, Georgia, after a devastating tornado tore through Catoosa County in 2011 that killed 20 people along a path that spanned 48 miles. Homes, businesses and schools were completely destroyed heavily damaged. The damage was easily seen while driving on Interstate 75. Today, things are back to normal in Ringgold as if nothing happened more than 10 years ago and time has a way of providing healing and recovery. Our thoughts and prayers are with Eastern Kentucky. May God give them peace and comfort as they recover from the deadly flooding.

FAQs

How much is the paper?

You can get a one-year subscription for just $30 per year if you live in the county and $40 per year if you reside outside of Madison County. A 10 percent discount is offered to senior citizens.

How much does an ad cost?

We base our rates on column inches and it depends on what size you want to run and the frequency of the ad that you are running. An ad that doesn’t run on the classified page is considered a stand alone display ad and our most popular sizes are half page and quarter page sizes. We offer multi-run discounts and will work with you to help fit your needs depending on your budget.

Losing everything, what or who is important?

What or who is important to you? The recent devastating flood in eastern Kentucky reminds us all that life can be swept away in a moment. Hundreds of families lost everything. One family lost their house and everything in it but lost their family – four children ages less than two up through eight were swept away by the raging flood. One woman who had also lost her house and everything in the house stated she and her family were alive and that’s all that mattered.

None of us want to lose our houses and everything we’ve worked for most of our lives. However, it’s all junk in comparison to our children and loved ones. From the fires of California to the floods of eastern Kentucky to the devastation by Ukraine by Russia, Loss and devastation can come to us all. We don’t want loss. We recoil from natural disasters, invaders or diminishing health. It takes a lifetime to pay for a house. Today, cars are often financed five years and more. People work hard to accumulate a few things. Little children, spouses and aging parents are not easy to come by. Most of the time we take everything we have for granted. When the floods of life literally wash away all that we have and love, the loss is horrific. We really don’t know the full extent of how painful loss is until we have lost it all. Recent flood victims in eastern Kentucky essentially lost it all. Many literally escaped with only the shirts on their backs. Cancer can eat away at our lives. Other forms of diminishing health can take us down to nothing. Financial losses can make us miserable. A fire can destroy everything. Life can change and in a moment. Sometimes we have warnings that life is on the way to changing. When it rains, we don’t automatically think the water will become so deep that we will all drown. Some people in eastern Kentucky will never be able to enjoy a long night of rain because of what it may bring. Overall, people would like to live out their lives quietly and safely. Avoiding floods, fires and other life-threatening crises. Food to eat, something to wear and the enjoyment of people we love are most meaningful to us. In the middle of life’s devastations, we often look to God and ask why? If he is really so great, so good, and so loving then why would he send or allow eight or nine inches of rain to fall on the hollers of eastern Kentucky and sweep away little children? Did he go to sleep? Does he not care? Is he detached from what happens in the world? Is he really out there? Yet, as many grieve, they will fall upon God as he is all they have left to get them through. An old saint of God who suffered through the storms of life once said, “I didn’t realize God was all I needed until God was all I had. Whatever or whoever you have today, don’t take it or them for granted. Be grateful, give thanks. Love on your loved ones and be kind to all. Consider taking some of your stuff and giving it to someone who may have nothing. It will be good for you both.

Recipe from the heart

Welcome to that time of the year when everyone is harvesting their “bumper crops” of zucchini. Sometimes it is hard to figure out ways to use it. Zucchini bread is one way of putting these to use. This is my personal favorite zucchini bread recipe and can be made with or without almonds.
Libby Horn

Chocolate-Almond Zucchini Bread

Ingredients

1 teaspoon butter
1 ounce unsweetened chocolate
1/2 cup vegetable oil
2 eggs, well beaten
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup finely grated unpeeled zucchini
1/4 teaspoon baking powder
1/2 teaspoon baking soda
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1 1/2 cups all purpose flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup chopped blanched almonds (optional) - I have substituted chocolate chips instead

Directions

Over low heat, melt butter and chocolate. Combine oil, eggs and sugar. Beat well. Stir in vanilla, melted chocolate, almonds (or chocolate chips), and zucchini. Sift together dry ingredients and add to the zucchini mixture. Stir only until all ingredients are well blended. Do not over stir. Pour into a greased 9 X 5 inch loaf pan. Bake on middle rack of a 350 degree oven for about 1 hour 10 minutes. Turn out onto a wire rack and cool thoroughly.

Here's How It Works

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9X9 grid, broken down into nine 3X3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

August 3, 2022 The Fair

The Berea Fair opened August 2, 2022, a little more quietly than had been expected. The people came in slowly and the look of discouragement on the faces of the “palmist” was almost enough to kindle sympathy. Before the day was over, however, the most hopeless had been reassured and that morning one older gentleman who had lived in Madison County for years said, “This is the best fair that I have ever seen at Berea.” The weather had been ideal and all morning the roads were lined with people in every variety of conveyance headed for the fair. The horse rings on the first day were excellent. The walking ring had 113 entries and after a long consultation between the judges, the blue ribbon was awarded to Jim Potts of Richmond. The better baby contest was perhaps the most interesting of the day. The award for the nearest normal weight and measure went to Mr. and Mrs. Fleming Griffith’s baby. William C. Lakes’ baby took the prize for being the best dressed for summer. Those who took prizes in the poster contest conducted by the Women’s Club were Mary Gay, first; Alice Lee Dix, second; Nora Coyle, third. The officers of the Berea Fair deserved much credit for the good work they had done, and it was hoped that by the next fair season, the Berea Fair grounds would be equipped with more suitable buildings for the women’s displays and a grandstand large enough to accommodate attendees.

August 7, 1947 4-H Camp Held

Approximately 300 4-H Club members representing the counties of Harlan, Bell, Knox, Laurel, Whitley, Clay, Jackson, Rockcastle, Southern Madison, and McCreary attended camp at Levi Jackson State Park in London for the club camp. Mrs. Helen W. Blanton and Mr. Earl Kilbourne, leaders in Southern Madison and Rockcastle counties said that the camp sent their full quota of thirty-five members and four leaders. Each camper was responsible for supplying their own bedding, cup, fork, spoon and lived in true camper’s style sleeping on straw ticks in the old CCC barracks and cabins that were part of the park’s equipment. Mrs. Wilma House, Agent of Laurel County was responsible for meals that were prepared by fulltime workers. These meals were served cafeteria style enabling participants to take advantage of the picnic groves. Club members were expected to bring most of the food as a way of paying in part for their general expenses. Members, leaders, and agents were assigned to one of four groups named for the four H’s, Head, Heart, Hand, and Health. At the conclusion of camp, medals and ribbons were awarded based on points gained in line-up, conduct, promptness, cleanliness, and program planning. The theme of the 1922 camp was “I Dare You,” which was taken from MR. William H. Danforth’s book by the same title. One of the classes that was offered was also entitled, “I Dare You,” and dealt with challenges facing youth of that time. Specific times were set aside each morning and afternoon for classes and special instruction. Topics for these were discussions of dairy cattle; instruction in making foot scrapers and stenciling letters for the boys, picture framing, personal grooming and handicraft for the girls and daily classes in recreational games for everyone. One boy and one girl from each county who had had four or more years in club work were able to attend a special class in leadership. The club song leaders from each county had a class of their own to learn new songs. In addition to the daily routine, there was a movie, stunt night, a different inspirational speaker each day, and Thursday night was devoted to a very impressive candle lighting ceremony which was open to visitors. Mr. Boyd E. Wheeler, Field agent in 4-H Club work was in charge of the camp and was assisted by extension workers from the counties in attendance.

August 2, 1979 Chapel ghost

When Berea College coed Janet Russell moved into her room at Phelps Stokes Chapel, she was not sure how Opal, the legendary ghost who haunts the building would react to another woman in her “house.” However, Janet and Opal got along well together, probably because they never met. Russell, a McMinnville, Tennessee native, had been the monitor at Phelps Stokes. Her job entailed the maintenance and security of the 1,600-seat center where campus movies, plays, convocations, and other college programs are held. As monitor, she supervised the five male janitors who kept the 15,737 square foot structure clean. “Sometimes it’s hard being a woman,” she said. She believed that her “woman’s touch” improved the appearance of the building. When Miss Russell started work at the monitor, she found that the janitors tended to only sweep the middle of the floor, neglecting dusty corners. “I understood that, thought. Some men aren’t accustomed to doing much housework.” When the original chapel burned in 1902, Miss Olivia Phelps Stokes of New York offered to pay for the new building with the provision that it be built with student labor and that her name as donor not be divulged until after her death. These stipulations were met, and Berea students cut the trees and made the bricks that were used to construct the building. In her position in Berea’s student labor program, Miss Russell was responsible for the care of one of the most historic buildings on campus. After two years of living in the large campus center, she did not regret her decision to move out of her dormitory. “Living in Phelps Stokes has its advantages.” She was often asked to meet campus visitors when the designated host was not available. She had the opportunity to meet with country star Grandpa Jones and psychiatrist Cornelia Wilbur. Meeting with tourists and returning alumni were almost daily occurrences. As for all those ghost stories, Janet had not seen any evidence to support them. Still, several legends claim that “Opal” inhabits Phelps Stokes. “Somebody told me Opal was a girl who was in the original building with her boyfriend who was the monitor. When that building caught on fire, Opal chose to stay and let him escape rather than risking a scandal about her reputation. Then when Phelps Stokes was built, she moved in.” Another story said that the original Opal hanged herself in the bell tower. “I’ve even heard that the ghost is a spirit of a student who was shot on campus,” Miss Russell said. “But I don’t listen to those stories. Especially at night.”

Religion

Saying 'Amen' in church gets country boy in trouble

The late great preacher W.A. Criswell used to tell the story about a country boy who visited one of those highfalutin big city churches.

When the preacher said something good about Jesus, that young man shouted, "Amen," and the preacher lost his place.

A little later, the preacher said something else good about Jesus, triggering a loud, "Praise the Lord" from that country boy. The preacher got so flustered that he had to stop to find his place again.

An usher walked over to the young man, patted him on the shoulder and said, "Shut up. Don't you see you're bothering our preacher?"

"But I'm just praising the Lord," the country boy said.

The usher said, "You can't praise the Lord in here."

"But I've got religion," the country boy protested.

The usher told him,

"Well, you didn't get it here, so shut up."

I have always loved churches filled with people who weren't afraid to shout "Amen" during sermons.

To a preacher, that's like saying "sic 'em" to a bulldog.

The word "Amen" is used throughout the Bible. In the Gospel of John alone, it is used some 25 times.

Typically, it's used in the Bible the same way that country used it in that highfalutin church.

In Nehemiah 8:6, we read, "Ezra blessed the Lord, the great God, and all the people answered, Amen, Amen."

In Psalm 89:52, we read, "Blessed be the Lord for evermore. Amen and Amen."

In Psalm 106:48, the Bible says, "Blessed be the Lord God of Israel from everlasting to everlasting; and let all the people say, Amen. Praise ye the Lord."

Roger Alford

In 1 Chronicles 16:36, we read, "Blessed be the Lord God of Israel for ever and ever. And all the people said, Amen, and praised the Lord."

If you were to do a search on the word "Amen" in the Bible, what you'd find is that people who offer a robust "Amen" or "Praise the Lord" are quite scriptural.

In our culture, we realize how important final words are. You can guess what God's final word in the Bible is. Yep, it's "Amen."

"The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you all. Amen" (Revelation 22:21).

So, if you ever have an usher pat you on the shoulder and tell you not to say "Amen," just tell him it's one of God's favorite words.

Writing project for women over 60 to begin in September “Coming of Age,” a free year-long writing project for local women over 60, will begin in September. The project aims to help older women develop and share creative work. This project builds on the successful program held in 2020-21.

Project leaders are Libby Falk Jones of Berea (retired faculty, Berea College) and Julianne Unsel of Irvine (retired faculty, Evergreen State University). They will offer writing tips and prompts at monthly meetings to be held in Madison and Estill Counties.

“We believe that older women have much wisdom and creativity to share with the world,” Jones said.

The women will choose subjects to explore and will be able to discuss their writings with each other. The program will end with a book publication of selected writings.

“We look forward to the group’s exploring a variety of life experiences as well as our Kentucky heritage,” said Unsel.

Covid-19 precautions will be in place at project meetings. Participants will also be able to join meetings remotely.

The program is free for participants. Partial funding has been provided by Kentucky Foundation for Women’s Arts as Activism grants program.

For more information and to apply to join the project, contact Libby Jones at libbyfalkjones@gmail.com (859-582-2348, leave message) or Jules Unsel at unselj@gmail.com. Application deadline is Sept. 10.

Lemetta Dause Memorial Bowling Tournament set for Aug. 21

The 10th Annual Lemetta Dause Memorial Bowling Tournament is scheduled for Sunday, August 21, at 2:00 p.m. at Galaxy Bowling Center in Richmond.

The tournament is organized by the Madison County Bowling Association in memory of Mrs. Dause, who was cared for by Hospice Care Plus. All proceeds are donated to Hospice Care Plus in her name. To date, they have raised over $60,000 and are planning their largest tournament yet this year.

The funds help Hospice Care Plus provide compassionate care to everyone, regardless of insurance status or ability to pay.

“We have always been so appreciative of the Madison County Bowling Association’s support of Hospice Care Plus,” said Stefanie Manes, Hospice Care Plus development coordinator. “This is one of the most beloved events in the community. We’re excited to see it back after two years.”

The entry fee is $20 at the door for the 3-6-9 no-tap tournament and is open to all bowlers of any age. Preregistration is not required. The fee includes three games, access to the silent auction, and a ticket for a chance to take home one of several door prizes.

For more information about how to participate, make a contribution, or donate to the silent auction, please contact David Norman at dnormanmcb@outlook.com.

Now celebrating its 40th anniversary, Hospice Care Plus was founded as a non-profit organization to support the quality of life of its communities through hospice, palliative and bereavement care programs. The organization serves Estill, Jackson, Lee, Madison, Owsley and Rockcastle counties and owns and operates the Compassionate Care Center in Richmond. Relying on contributions from individuals and groups, all care is provided regardless of insurance status or ability to pay. To learn more, donate, or explore career and volunteer opportunities, visit hospicecareplus.org or call (859) 986-1500.

Three-year-old River enjoyed creating his own caterpillar and photographing it as part of the Berea Builds Brains take-home learning kit featuring the book, “The Very Hungry Caterpillar.”

Playing with a purpose

Program focuses on early education for 3-year-olds

Berea toddlers are getting a chance to play with purpose.

Since Full-Service Community Schools (FSCS) at Berea Independent Schools launched the Berea Builds Brains program in February, 32 families have each received five kits that include books and activities for parents to explore with their child and for their child to enjoy independently. The activities connect with early skills three-year-old children need to develop in reading, math and writing to be ready for school.

The at-home early childhood initiative program follows two years of the FSCS team supporting families with three-year-olds through an initiative designed in Michigan called Math in the Mail. The positive feedback from parents about that program encouraged the team to draw upon local early childhood experts to develop its own materials. Tenant Kirk, former director of early childhood for Partners for Education at Berea College, led the creation of the kits.

“Parents are looking for activities to do at home with their young children. These kits give them more ideas and tools to use,” said FSCS Elementary School Coordinator Vanda Rhodes.

Jessica Wells told organizers she loved being able to use the kits for learning activities with her son, River.

“He is having a blast!” she said. “We read the book, counted all the food items, made caterpillars, then took them around the yard for a photo shoot. River is pretty good at taking photos.”

Berea Builds Brains is just one outreach effort coming from Berea Independent Schools. Dr. Diane Hatchett, superintendent, worked with Berea Mayor Bruce Fraley and Berea College President Lyle Roelofs to convene a group of people to talk about ways to support students entering school ready-to-learn. That group collaborated with Jessica Hart of the Regional Training Center to develop a comprehensive resource for children from birth through age five, which provides materials (like books, mazes, cooking toys) and ideas for parents, who are their child’s first teacher.

Jennifer Whitt, Berea Independent Schools director of exceptional children, said both kits “demonstrate how learning is interconnected and can occur at home.”

Parents of three-year-olds who would like to participate in the Berea Builds Brains program should contact Vanda Rhodes at 859-302-0341 or rhodesv@berea.edu.

Parents interested in learning more about the resource kits can contact Whitt’s office at 859-986-3249 or email at jennifer.whitt@berea.kyschools.us.

The FSCS program provides support for the planning, implementation and operation of schools that improve the integration, accessibility and effectiveness of services for children and families. Funding from a five-year grant secured by Partners for Education at Berea College from the U.S. Department of Education allowed FSCS Berea to begin programming in the Berea Independent School District in January 2019.

COVID cases decline

FRANKFORT (KT) – The weekly COVID-19 report issued Monday by the Kentucky Department for Public Health is one of the most positive ones in several weeks, showing drops in new cases deaths, and the state’s positivity rate.

A total of 14,654 new cases were reported to the state for the seven-day period ending Sunday. That was a decrease of 1,230 cases from the previous week and breaks a long string of weeks that had ever-increasing new case reports. There have now been 1,471,195 confirmed cases of COVID in Kentucky since the first one was reported in March 2020.

In the state, 35 counties reported over 100, which was more than double last week’s total of 15; and 12 counties topped the 200 new case mark. Jefferson had 2,173, Fayette 860, Hardin 450, Warren 433, Kenton 316, Daviess 281, Madison 273, Boone 272, Pike 241, Laurel 225, Bullitt 222, and Boyd 206.

There were 45 new deaths in this latest report, down from 59 last week and 49 the week before. This brings the number of deaths in Kentucky attributed to COVID-19 since the start of the pandemic to 16,397.

The current statewide positivity rate is 17.89%, compared with 19.11% last week, a drop of 1.22%, while the statewide seven-day incidence rate is 40.52 per 100,000 persons, compared with 42.88 last week, which is 2.36 lower.

Susan Dunlap, a spokesperson for the Cabinet for Health and Family Services, of which the Department for Public Health is a part, had this explanation:

“It is possible that the downward trend this week is due to disruptions in testing and reporting caused by the floods in eastern Kentucky. We should know more next week about the statewide trends.”

The current hospital census showed a slight increase this week.

There were 602 Kentuckians hospitalized this week. Of them, 89 were in intensive care units and 33 on a ventilator. That compares to 598 in the hospital last week, with 84 in the ICU and the same number on a ventilator.

a low rate.”

The proposed ordinance comes up for a final reading and vote at the August 16 business meeting.

In other business, the city council voted to accept a bid to mill and resurface city streets. Public Works Committee Chair Jerry Little reported the city received one bid from the Allen Company for street resurfacing for $423,944. The council voted unanimously to accept the bid.

Streets to be milled and paved include Highland Drive, Oakwood Drive, Ellipse Street from Laurel Drive to Highway 595, Forest Street from Jackson Street to Center Street, South Cumberland Street, Delancy Street, Rose Street, Plumb Tree Street, and Peach Tree Street, among others. Little noted the bid was below what the Public Works Committee projected it would cost.

On a related note, city officials said they expect work on Chestnut Street to commence before Berea College students return to town. The repair of Chestnut will stretch from interstate exit 76 to the intersection Ellipse Street and Chestnut Street.

In other action, the council unanimously voted to rescind a CDBG application to the Kentucky Department of Local Government, then reapply for another CDBG program that would allow the city to receive funds to upgrade the former Ford building located behind the Chestnut Street Pavilion.

Addressing the council in a work session before the regular meeting, Greyson Evans and Karen Leverenz of the Blue Grass Area Development District advised council members to withdraw an application to participate in a program that provides utility relief for individuals who suffered from the COVID pandemic. They told council members that the program actually replicates existing programs that are better suited to help citizens in need. Berea had been awarded $200,000 for the program, but finding citizens unable to pay bills as a direct consequence of the COVID pandemic has proved challenging, officials said. City officials said they will work on directing those in need to other existing programs for utility and rent relief.

As an alternative, Greyson and Leverenz advised the council to apply for a $100,000 CDBG grant that would fund the upgrading of the Ford building. Mayor Bruce Fraley said that the facility could be retrooled to be used as a distribution or health care providing center, or as a shelter in the event of an emergency or future pandemic. In the meantime, it could still be used for other city needs, said Fraley.

“One of my dreams is to bring extension to Berea, and ask the county extension office to come down and do classes on site. We have the LearnShops, and we always need more space for the LearnShops. It could be used for a meeting for a small group,” Fraley said. “It would be a true multi-use facility.”

The council unanimously adopted the resolutions to withdraw from one CDBG program, then enroll in the other for the Ford building grant.

In one other piece of business, the council reviewed a proposed ordinance that would revise the way in which towing companies would be called when the local police department needs a vehicle removed. Councilman Jim Davis said that under the current rules, some tow operators are benefitting more often than others. The new ordinance, which comes up for a second review and final vote on August 16, will help remedy that situation, Davis said.

Disaster Relief boots on the ground in EKY

WHITESBURG, Ky. (KT) – Ron Crow, the director of the Kentucky Baptist District Relief, is coordinating teams from eight different states as they work together in eastern Kentucky’s flooded areas.

He said the flooding is some of the worst he’s ever witnessed.

“It’s absolutely incredible, catastrophic. A lot of times flooding happens in a community or small section of town where the river is,” Crow said. “This is such a widespread area. Multiple counties are experiencing similar catastrophic destruction. The amount of water and depth of the water is beyond what I’ve ever seen in a community like this.”

He said Disaster Relief directors from other states who are more experienced have echoed similar sentiments. “They’re blown away by what they’ve seen.”

Crow has been busy placing states in areas through eastern Kentucky with feeding operations, flood recovery units and some laundry units. Kentucky volunteers will be station at First Baptist Church in Whitesburg where they began mass feeding on Tuesday. They also have showers for volunteers. Public showers and public laundry are set up at West Elementary School in Hazard.

Teams from Georgia (Calvary Baptist in Pound, Va.), Alabama, West Virginia and Ohio will be the Freida Harris Center; South Carolina at the GAP in McDowell; North Carolina at Allen Baptist in Prestonsburg, Tennessee at Montgomery Baptist in Carey and he hopes to bring teams into Jackson. Texas will be bringing laundry and a unit of chaplains. He said other states will also be called.

Crow’s responsibility is to send out the call to states and find them a place to operate and serve.

“That’s the beauty of the cooperative spirit,” he said. “We respond and coordinate our state and our volunteers. When I ask another state to come, I give them a site and they operate it their own way. I don’t have to supply them or coordinate the work.”

Crow already has Kentucky teams schedule for the next two weeks. He said it is only the beginning for an area that is so hard hit. They are assessing damage and will do what they can to sanitize homes that are still standing. He said making sure everyone is safe is the top priority and that includes being well fed.

“One of the biggest safety issues is the mold,” he said. “We will work to get that cleaned up.”

STUDY

to the study. “I was really pleased with this,” Summers said.

More importantly, Summers noted over half of the 50 people surveyed reported having a household income of $75,000 or greater, and that Berea could get a larger share of those tourism dollars.

“Mountain biking is an expensive hobby, and mountain bikers have money to spend,” Summers told the council, urging the city to commit to expanded cross marketing to draw more visitors into the city with the mountain bike and shared use trails, then ideally keep them in town for attractions such as the Levitt AMP Berea concert series.

The city, meanwhile, is exploring additional strategies for enticing tourists to stay longer. The first is a second phase of mountain bike trails. The second will be to find ways to expand kayaking opportunities on Silver Creek.

“The Kentucky Mountain Bike Association has expressed an interest in helping construct new trails, and actually providing the labor to create the trails,” Fraley said. “The city of Berea and the Berea Industrial Development Authority has land in the Menelaus Industrial Park near Silver Creek that is not suitable for industrial development or sites for businesses. I envision that we would want to do what we did with the original bike park: open up part of the land that’s not suitable for industrial development for use by the people who own it, which is the citizens of Berea.”

Fraley said no specific site has been identified as yet, nor has it been determined if it will be privately owned, publicly owned, or a combination of both. Whatever the case, the goal will be to benefit local residents while drawing new visitors, he said.

“To me, that’s what makes sense – to make sure the citizens can benefit from the city having that land and also attract people into town for sports recreation tourism, which in turn helps our local businesses,” Fraley said. “It particularly helps our restaurants, but in time, we hope we can help our lodging industry, including our hotels, motels and Airbnb’s, as well as our small businesses, retail shops, gas stations, and antique shops.”

Fraley also revealed plans to build on existing kayaking opportunities in Berea. Kayaking is currently available at Owsley Fork Reservoir, but last year, Fraley said he and former public works director Donnie Davidson kayaked on Silver Creek from the bridge at Highway 1016 to a fork near White Station bridge. That was inspiration for a new idea, Fraley said.

“There are segments of the creek that are gorgeous. This is something I would like to see if we can make a trail safely and efficiently, to open up the creek to residents and visitors who might want to kayak in conjunction with a bike trip,” Fraley said.

Having both of those new opportunities, combined with the city’s existing shared use trails and the Pinnacles, could entice people to stay longer, Fraley said.

“Maybe then you’d have someone who would want to come here for a weekend or maybe a week,” Fraley said. “Expanding those recreational opportunities is something I want to work on over the next mayoral term. My dream is to bring people to town for mini-vacations, where they stay, one, two or three nights, perhaps a long weekend, and maybe we’ll get to the point where maybe someone will come to Berea and stay an entire week for a vacation. We have a lot to offer. The history of Berea College, the student crafts, the Berea arts and crafts scene, unique restaurants, and outdoor recreation. With all of that, you have the real possibility of someone deciding they’d like to stay a week.”

Levis a leader

Kentucky quarterback Will Levis hasn't changed his focus during the off-season.

"I don't think my mind-set has changed too much," he said. "Ever since I've played college ball, I've really had the mind-set of going into the facility, and earning the starting job, whether I was last on the depth chart or first. I still have to fight for that and win that every day and I understand that."

Kentucky coach Mark Stoops has witnessed the same observation.

"The way we know Will, he hasn't changed at all," Stoops said. "He took the reins a long time ago and never gave them back up. He had a tremendous season and all he's really focused on is getting better."

A year ago, Levis was a relatively unknown signal-caller in the Southeastern Conference, but the Penn State transfer won the starting job over Joey Gatewood and current backup Beau Allen and led the Wildcats to a 10-3 season and a win over Iowa in the Citrus Bowl. He threw for 2,826 yards and 24 touchdowns, while rushing for 376 yards and nine scores.

Now that he's an incumbent starter, Levis admitted the off-season was more enjoyable as the senior quarterback prepares for his final season.

"It is a little bit of less stress on me," Levis admitted. "This is my first off-season as an established starter and someone that's not really competing for a job. It gives me more focus to worry about the leadership side of things and getting the guys together — working on the chemistry - and I think I've been able to improve a lot more throughout this off-season because of that."

With the starting job came more responsibilities, especially from a leadership perspective, and Levis has embraced the call to become more of a vocal leader on and off the field.

"I've always tried to be a leader, but I think how you lead changes a little bit when you are a starter," he said. "I've been able to be a little bit more vocal and I've been able to be more frank with dudes and be straight up with guys. I've earned the respect from everybody to be able to do that."

"I'm always going to lead by example like I always have and I think that's the best way anyone can lead. I'm never going to lose that about myself."

'Doing God's work'

Open UK practice, telethon raise more than $2.4 million for flood victims

LEXINGTON (KT) — Kentucky will be taking one of its intra-squad scrimmage games on the road this season to somewhere in eastern Kentucky.

The Wildcats will play their annual Blue-White game at a site to be announced at a later date it was announced during the Kentucky Flood Relief Telethon Tuesday night at Rupp Arena. The Kentucky basketball team had an open practice to raise funds for victims of last week's deadly flooding that has claimed 37 lives so far.

The event raised more than $2.4 million through the American Red Cross that will be used to help assist in cleanup and recovery efforts in southeastern Kentucky.

"This (idea) was from the minds of this group," Kentucky coach John Calipari said. "We planned this in 48 hours."

And there was another big announcement.

Gonzaga coach Mark Few addressed the team and attendees on the video board and expressed his appreciation for the efforts to help provide support to the flood victims.

"What you're doing right now is God's work," Few said. "That's coming from the son of a preacher."

"This is what it should be all about — giving back and making a difference. ... It's so cool that you guys are doing this."

During his appearance, Few and Calipari announced a home-and-home series between the two powerhouses. The Cats will play the Zags on Nov. 20 in Spokane, Washington, and Gonzaga will return the favor in 2023 by making a first trip to Lexington for a game in Rupp Arena.

This year's game will make for a big weekend with the Georgia-Kentucky football game on Nov. 19 and the UK-Gonzaga first-ever basketball meeting the following day in Washington.

The Wildcats, led by reigning college basketball Player of the Year Oscar Tshiebwe, practiced for an hour and a half and answered questions from fans in the stands.

Each player took part in the practice session with the exception of Lance Ware.

Former Kentucky player Jack Givens, color commentator on the UK Network, praised the Wildcats desire to reach out and lend a helping hand in times of need.

"It's amazing these players came up with this idea," he said.

Cassidy Rowe, a freshman on the women's basketball team, is a graduate of Shelby Valley High School in Virgie, one of the areas impacted by the heavy flooding. Rowe visited the region last weekend and was shocked by the devastation.

"It was heartbreaking to see people I love hurting," Rowe said.

"You just don't know (how much they are hurting) until you see it first hand."

The women's basketball team will have a camp from 9 a.m. to noon Saturday at North Laurel High School in London, with all proceeds going to the flood relief efforts in eastern Kentucky.

Calipari urged fans and others to keep eastern Kentuckians in their hearts.

"Please pray for those affected by those floods," he said.

Lower county tax rates set by Fiscal Court

"It helps the citizens by lowering their property taxes."

John Tudor,
Magistrate

By Leslie Barlow
Citizen Staff Writer

Madison County residents will notice lower Ad Valorem tax rates when bills are mailed out later this year. The Fiscal Court approved the lower rates during its Aug. 9 meeting at the Madison County Courthouse in Richmond.

The compensating rate formula for real property was set at 7.3 cents per 100, tangible personal property and inventory was set at 11 cents per 100. Motor vehicle and watercraft rates were set at 10 cents per 100 for 2023. Last year's rate for the compensating rate formula for real property was 7.6 cents per 100.

Magistrate John Tudor congratulated the court on lowering the rates, noting the rates had decreased 1% since County Judge-Executive Reagan Taylor took office eight years ago. In that time span, the rates have dropped about $10 per $100,000 in property value.

"It helps the citizens by lowering their property taxes," Tudor said. "Even though in some cases the value of their homes may have gone up and their taxes might be more, but it's not because the fiscal court percentage has gone up. It has actually gone down."

Taylor explained the compensating rate is based on compensating the governing body for the total amount of money received the prior year. "If our

Safety a priority

Real normalcy sought as students get set to return to classroom

By Leslie Barlow
Citizen Staff Writer

Students across the area are wrapping up summer break and preparing to zip up their backpacks and head back into the classroom. The first day for Madison County and Berea Community students is Wednesday, Aug. 17. The first day back can be an exciting and daunting time for students and parents. Not only does it begin a new chapter full of learning and growth for students, but it's also a very unique time to be a student following the changes to learning caused by the pandemic and amid safety concerns that parents have had to deal with lately. "We are really looking forward to this school year," said Erin Stewart, Community Education Director for Madison County Schools. "The past few school years have seen challenges and barriers that have been unprecedented for all of us. We are hopeful that this school year will be the beginning of a road to real normalcy for our students, our staff, and our families.

The first day of classes for students in the Madison County and Berea Community school district is set for Wednesday, Aug. 17. For a complete Back to School guide, see page A12.

Stewart cited the opening of the Ignite Academy North and the re-opening of Clark Moores Middle School following extensive renovations as highlights for the upcoming school year.

"Later in the fall, we are anxious to open the Ignite Academy South," Stewart said. "We are confident this will be another school year of wonderful opportunities for our students, our staff, and our families."

While facility progress and a return to normalcy is great news, parents can breathe an extra sigh of relief that the state of Kentucky is continuing to work with all school districts to make schools safer.

"Protecting Kentucky's future and its most important asset, our children, is at the heart of every decision made regarding school safety in the commonwealth," said Kentucky Gov. Andy Beshear.

Beshear, in April, signed House Bill 63 (HB 63) into law requiring all school districts to assign a certified school resource officer (SRO)

Fair a success despite rain

By Leslie Barlow/Citizen Staff Writer

The 2022 Madison County Fair, held July 29 through Aug. 6, was hailed a success despite Mother Nature trying to throw a few wrenches into the event at the end of the final week.

"Overall, I think this year's fair was a great success, despite attendance being down the last three nights due to the rain," said Chuck Givens, Madison County Fair Board president.

values go up, our rates go down,” he said. “Those that had their properties reassessed might go up and those that did not might be getting a deduction. It’s the PVA’s job to assess properties on a yearly basis.”

The county has an estimated 36,000 parcels of land combined with Richmond and Berea which must be evaluated by the Property Valuation Administrator, Taylor said. He added Billy Ackerman, PVA, assesses about 8,000 properties per year. In response to the devastating flooding in Eastern Kentucky, the court approved the donation of four surplus cruisers from the Madison County Sheriff’s Department to police departments in need. One cruiser is going to Perry County and one to Breathitt County. The county has two more cars available for counties requesting assistance.

Tudor said he was thankful that Madison County was able to help. “Anytime we can help our neighbors I’m pretty much in favor of it.”

The four cars were already listed as surplus vehicles and were scheduled to be listed on Gov Deals. Taylor said the cars were inspected and are ready to hit the road. He added the only issue with the surplus vehicles were batteries needed to be replaced. He added a local parts supplier stepped up and donated the needed new batteries.

Other business

In other news, the court heard from Morgan Elliston, Human Resources coordinator, that the Animal Shelter, Battlefield Golf Course, Madison County Detention Center, EMA, Planning, and Road departments were seeking to fill open positions.

“We are getting applicants in some departments but not in all,” Elliston said. “We have seen an influx after boosting our social media presence and using many different platforms to seek applicants.”

The court also hired and promoted several individuals in the fire department, EMA, and Animal Control.

Fire Chief Tim Gray recommended Joseph Mead and Jackson Rotor be promoted from fire fighter two to fire fighter three effective Aug. 17. Both will be paid $8.74 per hour.

The department also hired William Jordan, Shane Thorton, and Justin Harvey at the rank of firefighter one beginning Aug. 31 at a rate of $8.74 per hour. The new hires will complete 15 to 16 weeks at Safety City and be promoted to fire fighter three.

Benjamin Hall and Greg Lovett were promoted internally. Both were promoted to the rank of lieutenant effective Aug. 17 at a rate of $11.74 per hour and a yearly salary of $39,53.80. The salary includes mandatory overtime plus hazardous pay.

Logan King was promoted to Captain at a rate of $13.49 per hour with a yearly salary of $45,461.80. Greg Cox was promoted to Battalion Chief at a rate of $15.74 with a yearly salary of $50,550. Both pays include hazardous pay plus overtime. Hire dates are effective Aug.

17. EMA / CSEPP hired Katie Davis as Public Relations Specialist effective Aug. 18 with a salary of $40,000. Katie Banks was promoted to the role of Director of Animal Care and Control effective Aug. 17 at a salary of $44,000.

FAIR

“Sometimes Mother Nature just deals you the cards she deals you.”

Givens added the first Saturday night could have set an opening weekend attendance record with between 4,000 and 5,000 guests entering the gates. Rain and standing water on the grounds caused three events—truck pull, tractor pull, and demolition derby—to be canceled on Championship Saturday night.

The events geared toward the kids had a great response despite the weather. “All the kids’ activities went over very well this year,” Givens said. “Parents, grandparents, and kids were out in full force. Getting the families out is what the fairs are all about.”

Givens added the baby pageant had a record 86 entries and the sheep rodeo and greased pig contest attracted a lot of contests as well as spectators in the stands.

“There were a lot of positives this year despite the rain,” Givens said. “I would call this year’s fair a success.”

Rotary visits new restaurant

Berea Rotary Club, under the planning of Treasurer Martha Wayland, traveled to downtown Paint Lick for a recent meeting. Rather than hearing from a speaker, the members were introduced to a new restaurant, Solidago (pronounced solidago), in the area. This dining out opportunity is currently available only at lunch time during the week. Chef Baugh spoke briefly with the club concerning the menu of burgers, shakes, drinks, chicken, etc.

The restaurant is part of a streetscape project to save the history of the Paint Lick downtown through restoration.

The effort has come from Mark Gumbert and partner. The interior of the restaurant has many historical memorabilia and features a bar to complement table settings. In the business session, President Frederickson noted the passing of dedicated member Bob Rucker and the upcoming 90th birthday of member Truman Fields. Additionally, he discussed several possible projects for the club. Rotary partner Helen Eden was present to share in the information and fellowship.

• The next meeting, Aug. 16 and is hosted by member Jim Davis, whose speaker will be Rose Beverly, city administrator. The meeting, located at the Smokehouse Grill, will be at noon.

OBITUARIES

Jerry Ronald Powell

Jerry Ronald Powell passed away peacefully on August 5, 2022, in his home in South Carolina, surrounded by family. Jerry was born in 1942 in Berea to Glyndon and Georgia Johnson Powell (predeceased.)

His adventurous spirit led him to travel to nearly all 50 states and abroad. This lifelong passion navigated his career choices, including his service in the Air Force as a young man and his many entrepreneurial pursuits in Western Auto Stores and dry-cleaning businesses.

Later in life, he drove cross country with JB Hunt Trucking, became a water taxi driver at Lake Cumberland in early retirement, and a local driver testing Michelin tires in Greenville,

South Carolina. His recent battle with cancer was the only reason to hit the brakes on his passion for the road.

Jerry was best known for his quick wit and knack for brightening the days of everyone who crossed his path. His humor and kindness are greatly missed by his many friends and family, including his loving wife of 46 years, Carole Powell, his son, David Whisman (predeceased), his daughter and son-in-law Sara and Terrance Gogins, and his five grandsons, Damien, Devon, Gabriel, Kai, and Micah. Jerry is survived by his sister, Betty Sue Powell Croucher, sister-in-law Donna Royse, his nieces and nephews, Carrie Vargas and Brian Abney, and Mark and Elizabeth Royse. At his request, a private service will be held and his ashes spread at a special place on the beaches of North Carolina.

Back to school week brings back memories

The summer break is almost over. Starting August 17, students, teachers and staff in Madison County Schools and the Berea Community Schools will return to the classroom refreshed and ready to tackle a new year that will be filled with success and challenges. Some will step foot in the classroom for the first time ever as Kindergartners, while others will take their final tour of duty as high school seniors. It's a time of uncertainty, but in many ways a new beginning along the path of life. The start of a new school year was an exciting time in our household while growing up, and getting new clothes and shoes for the upcoming school year was always a treat. Our favorite place to shop for clothes was the old J.C. Penney location on Main Street in Richmond. The store had three levels and I can still smell the scent of old wood as you walked through the door. I believe Mom and Dad were just as excited as my sister Taunya and I were

when it came to school shopping. They always wanted us to have good clothes and shoes, but most of all, wanted us to be able to enjoy the experience while we shopped as a family. Mom and Dad worked in tobacco in the summer and in the fall to help provide a cushion for the family, although both of them held down full-time jobs. Mom worked at Gibson Greeting Cards, while Dad was a meter reader for Richmond Utilities and also pastored various churches throughout Richmond and Berea. At one time, he began a start-up storefront church where

Apollos is now located on Adams Street. It was there I can remember my late aunt Ruth teaching me the chords on the guitar on that small podium. It was there I can remember sitting next to my grandparents in church drawing on paper while pretending I was listening to one of dad's sermons. I still do not know how he juggled doing both jobs full-time and how mom ran us kids around all over the place. Before dad became involved in ministry and mom began working, they were part of a gospel group known as the "Happy Landing Gospelairees." From what I remember, they were very popular in the area and had concerts at many churches in the region and even recorded a project on an 8-track tape in Dayton, Ohio. A few years back I converted the 8-track to a CD. Although they were busy from the day I was born all the way through graduation, mom and dad made sure we went to school, made good grades and were involved in any kind of activity that we enjoyed. For that I'm thankful and I wish nothing but the best to our students, teachers, staff and administrators this upcoming school year.

Kentucky Governor Andy Beshear visits flood victims during a recent visit to Eastern Kentucky. The clean-up and recovery efforts are under way. (Office of the Governor)

Adjusting to a new normal

People who have lost their houses and cars and everything they've worked for all their lives may feel like giving up. Some do. After thirty or forty years they don't feel like they have it within them to rebuild and try again. Some have no choice but to live the life they've been handed. Financially they don't have an option. I was sitting in a hotel lobby in Pikeville last Sunday talking to FEMA workers. Several of them were preparing to go to areas devastated by the East Kentucky floods. One of the men said, "We are trying to get everyone registered. There is some assistance available but it is small and limited in comparison to what they need. These families have nothing. They have lost everything. Many of them have no means to rebuild what they have lost. 'Sadly,' he said this is their new normal." We all face and deal with the "new normals" of our lives. Aching knees, the death of a spouse, the loss of friends who have moved or died. Financial changes and health challenges force us to learn how to reset our lives. Resetting life is easier said than done. Too often, all we have is the energy to stare out the window, if we have a window. Life's disasters set us back. Mentally, physically, relationally, and financially such an event may require another lifetime of building your life back, if you have a lifetime. Your lifetime may be five or ten years, and if you are lucky your lifetime will be more. It's certainly a little easier to try to climb back up the mountain at the age of 35 than at 65, but to some extent you can if you have the will and physical ability to do so. There is a time in life when you either quit or dramatically change gears. You don't feel like standing and teaching a class another ten years. You can't go back into the coal mine another five years. You've stood in the assembly line for 35 or 40 years and you are done. There is nothing wrong with withdrawing from one life you enjoyed and resetting to do something else. This could simply be fishing, golf, traveling, walking by the river or local lake, or sleeping late every morning and enjoying your coffee late in the day. There's nothing wrong with that. The old Apostle Paul had been through a lot in his life. Shipwrecked, stoned and left for dead, escaped being murdered, whipped cruelly and placed in a jail cell. His life was often far less than glamorous. He once said, "Let us not get tired of well-doing, we will reap a harvest if we don't quit." Many years ago, a friend of mine restarted his life at the age of 50. He had nothing to show for his years of work and life. Old age was looking grim. He and his wife found an old abandoned hamburger stand in a small town. He rented the building for almost nothing and cleaned it up and he and his wife worked twelve hours a day for the next 17 years and he retired with a couple of million dollars in the bank. Even this would be out of reach for many today but keep in mind that if you have the mental wherewithal to think it and the physical stamina to put it into action, you can reset your life and try again. Your current normal doesn't have to be forever, if you don't quit.

August 10, 1922

The State Highway Engineer J.S. Boggs was in Richmond to meet with representatives of Madison and Jackson counties for the purpose of deciding upon definite plans concerning upon definite plans concerning the Richmond McKee Road project. The State Highway Commission had already agreed to make state and federal appropriations toward the construction of this road in 1923. The main question before citizens at the time was deciding upon a definite route for the road and what proportion of the cost Madison count would be willing to assume. A letter had been received from the Jackson County agricultural agent calling upon Berea citizens to be present in large numbers at the meeting in order to voice their interests in the road project and to assure the State Highway Engineer and Jackson County that Berea would be ready to share in the responsibility of this road project.

August 14, 1947

A Renfro Valley cast of entertainers played to an audience of approximately 400 people at Berea High School on August 8th. Emcee

Roscoe Buckland represents the Berea Kiwanas Club as he presents a check to Katie Heckman for the Berea Hospital Auxiliary. This gift was used to purchase bright red jackets worn by the gentlemen who volunteer at the hospital. Mr. Buckland was one of the first men to volunteer at Berea Hospital and he dubbed the men's volunteer group the "red-coats".

Smokey Ward introduced such well-known Renfro folk as his wife, Little Ella and their son Glen Pennington and the Jones sisters. Sponsored by the Lion's club, the proceeds from the show were used to purchase an eye screening machine. The machine would be donated to the school and the Lions brought in a operator for it. Those who needed glasses but were financially unable to purchase them, could receive financial support from the club. Arrangements had been made with Dr. L.M. Leonard of the Bluegrass Optical Company in Lexington for final examinations and glasses for school aged children.

August 10, 1979

The Berea Board of Education learned about over $100,000 worth of government grants to the school system at a specially called meeting held Wednesday night. Superintendent William Bennett took the board of a "tour" of the seven federal and justice department programs operating at the school. The total cost of these programs was $100,302 with only $2,505 falling to the responsibility of the school board. Already approved, the Justice Department-sponsored alternate learning program had been funded for $30,232. The funding provided for a director and other fringe benefits. Title 4B, a funding source for media centers, was expected to add $2,530 to the school system. A portion of the monies was used to pay for additional television equipment. Title 4C, a $4,000 grant would go to EKEDC, a school consortium for computer use. EKEDC handled pupil accounting, high school schedules, payroll, and financial accounting. Title 5B would pay for 100% of all travel expenses for the school's gifted and talented program. The school system was in the process of completing applications for Title 6 and Title I funds. Title 6 funds would help support handicap education. Title I funds were being delayed by the lack of an advisory board for the Title I program. This remedial reading program required an eight-member board of parents to advise the program. This would pay the salary for one elementary teacher and 1 ½ teacher assistant position.

August 6, 1992

The Madison County Habitat for Humanity affiliate recently dedicated the newly completed renovation of the Fred and Joyce Griggs' house located at 212 Logston Lane in Berea.

Habitat traditionally holds a celebration at the conclusion of each project. The owners are usually presented with a Bible and hammer to represent the love and labor that played such an important part in Habitat's effort to provide "decent housing for God's people in need," according to Habitat's slogan. Hundreds of people had contributed money and time to make projects such as this possible.

Proper church etiquette means hitting the spittoon

You may have heard the story from yesteryear about the preacher who grew tired of the menfolk getting up during services and spitting their tobacco juice into the pot-bellied stove.

The preacher decided to put spittoons in the church, so the men wouldn't be disrupting the service.

But after a couple of weeks, the preacher took the spittoons out.

One of the tobacco-chewing men complained, saying, "I miss the spittoons."

"That's exactly why I took them out," the preacher said, "because you missed them."

It's hard to imagine nowadays, but time was when spittoons were common in public gathering places to accommodate men who chewed tobacco in much the same way that there were ashtrays to accommodate smokers. And, as you might imagine, lots of people missed their targets with both their tobacco juice and cigarette ashes.

We can miss the target in lots of other ways, too, including spiritually. The Bible tells us that we all have sinned and come short of the glory of God. In other words, we fall short of the target.

I was reminded of Peter's great miss when he denied Jesus. Three times. Before the rooster crowed.

Peter had to feel like a colossal failure. Later, after Jesus' resurrection, He told to Peter to feed my sheep. In fact, Jesus told Peter that three times. Once for each of his denials, perhaps?

Peter dedicated the rest of his life to feeding the Lord's sheep. I was reading the first of Peter's two epistles the other day and realized just how deeply Jesus' words, "feed my sheep," had impacted him.

In fact, Peter repeated those words to the Christians of his day and to every generation since when he said, "Feed the flock of God which is among you" (1 Peter 5:2). It was a lesson hard learned for Peter.

Roger Alford

Perhaps Peter felt like such a failure that he had wanted to walk away from ministry altogether after denying Christ. Perhaps he felt like his failure had disqualified him. Perhaps he felt as if he had totally missed the target, and that it was time to return to his old job as a fisherman.

Perhaps you feel that way yourself because of a failure in your own life.

The Lord wasn't finished with Peter, and He isn't finished with you. You may have missed the target as badly as those old-time tobacco chewers in the spittoon church. But as long as you are drawing breaths, our Lord has work for you to do. He doesn't want you on a shelf someplace out of the way.

He wants you on the front lines. He wants you to feed his sheep.

to each school campus by Aug. 1.

“This will allow our schools to have someone on-site who is trained to respond in times of need, mentor to our children and be aware of critical needs,” Beshear said.

The law comes three years after the School Safety and Resiliency Act, 2019’s Senate Bill One (SB1), which implemented new school security programs and encouraged schools to hire an SRO.

The Department of Criminal Justice Training provides SROs with 120 hours of specialized training in addition to basic law enforcement response for working in schools, including mental health awareness classes, skills for working with special needs students, cultural diversity and active shooter response.

Critley King-Smith, Public Information Officer for the Department of Criminal Justice Training, explained the law further provides, “if sufficient funds and qualified personnel are not available for this purpose for every campus, the local board of education shall fulfill the requirements of this subsection on a per-campus basis, as approved in writing by the state school security marshal, until a certified school resource officer is assigned to and working on-site, full-time on each campus in the district.”

The state is about 600 officers short in fulfilling that goal of an SRO in every school.

That was the number the Kentucky Center for School Safety provided lawmakers during an Interim Joint Committee on Education meeting July 15.

HB63 is an unfunded mandate so it leaves school districts trying to figure out how to hire and pay SRO salaries.

schools safe for all students, teachers and staff is the number one priority of the Office of the State School Security Marshal,” said Ben Wilcox, State School Security Marshal with the Kentucky Center for School Safety.

“To our schoolchildren, parents, staff and neighbors, Kentucky’s schools are safe. House Bill 63 is an added layer of protection.”

King-Smith said the office of the state school security marshal is currently reviewing plans and collecting data from 173 Kentucky school districts regarding compliance with HB 63 to help ensure children in the commonwealth have a safe learning environment.

Madison County Schools currently has four SROs for its 20 elementary, middle, and high schools. The county’s SROs focus their attention on the high school and middle school campuses.

“At this time and with the addition of the Ignite Academy North and South campuses, the district would likely need to hire as many as 14 or 15 additional SROs,” Stewart said.

“Funding for salaries and benefits for that many additional resource officers will be very costly. Hiring those additional officers will involve working with our local law enforcement agencies.”

Stewart said Madison County’s current safety plan will remain in place for the upcoming school year while they work to hire SROs

“Our school safety plan has been a strong one for several years,” said Stewart.

“For example, each of our schools currently has a safety monitor that patrols the school and grounds regularly.

“We also have safety vestibules at the entrance for each school which keep visitors from readily accessing the school building. We have other measures in place as well and those will all remain in place again this year.”

Child Find for Children with Disabilities in Need of Special Education or 504 Services

2022 Child Find

The Berea Independent School District keeps educational records in a secure location in each school and Board office.

The Berea Independent School District obtains written consent from a parent or eligible student (age 18 or who is attending a postsecondary institution), before disclosing personally identifiable information to an entity or individual not authorized to receive it under FERPA.

For students who have been determined eligible for Special Education, educational records will be destroyed at the request of the parents when they are no longer needed to provide educational programs or services. The Berea Independent School District may destroy the educational records of a child without parent request ten years after they are no longer needed to provide educational programs or services. Parents are advised that data contained in the records may later be needed for Social Security benefits or other purposes. The Berea Independent School District may retain, for an indefinite period of time, a record of the student’s name, address, telephone number, grades, attendance records, classes attended, grade level completed, and year completed.

Children eligible for Special Education include those children with disabilities who have autism, deaf-blindness, developmental delay, emotional-behavior disability, hearing impairment, mental disability, multiple disabilities, orthopedic impairment, other health impairment, specific learning disability, speech or language impairment, traumatic brain injury, or visual impairment and who because of such an impairment need Special Education services.

Children eligible for 504 services include those children in a public elementary and secondary education program who have a current physical or mental impairment that currently substantially limits some major life activity, which causes the student’s ability to access the school environment or school activities to be substantially limited.

Children eligible for the State-Funded Preschool program include three- and four-year-old children identified with disabilities and four-year-old children who are at-risk, as defined by federal poverty levels up to 160%. Preschool children eligible for special education must have an Individual Education Plan (IEP) instead of a 504 plan to receive State-Funded Preschool program services.

The Berea Independent School District has an ongoing “Child Find” system, which is designed to locate, identify and evaluate any child residing in a home, facility, or residence within its geographical boundaries, age three (3) to twenty-one (21) years, who may have a disability and be in need of Special Education or 504 services. This includes children who are not in school; those who are in public, private, or home school; those who are highly mobile such as children who are migrant or homeless; and those who are advancing from grade to grade, who may need but are not receiving Special Education or 504 services.

The district’s “Child Find” system includes children with disabilities attending private or home schools within the school district boundaries who may need special education services.

The Berea Independent School District will make sure any child enrolled in its district who qualifies for Special Education or 504 services, regardless of how severe the disability, is provided appropriate Special Education or 504 services at no cost to the parents of the child.

Parents, relatives, public and private agency employees, and concerned citizens are urged to help the Berea Independent School District find any child who may have a disability and need Special Education or 504 services. The District needs to know the name and age, or date of birth of the child; the name, address, and phone number(s) of the parents or guardian; the possible disability; and other information to determine if Special Education or 504 services are needed.

Letters and phone calls are some of the ways the Berea Independent School District collects the information needed. The information the school District collects will be used to contact the parents of the child and find out if the child needs to be evaluated or referred for Special Education or 504 services.

If you know of a child who lives within the boundaries of the Berea Independent School District, who may have a disability, and may need but is not receiving Special Education or 504 services, please call 859-986-3249 or send the information to:

“Child Find” activities will continue throughout the school year. As part of these efforts, the Berea Independent School District will use screening information, student records, and basic assessment information it collects on all children in the District to help locate those children who have a disability and need Special Education or 504 services. Any information the District collects through “Child Find” is maintained confidentially.

Written Policies and Procedures have been developed which describe the District’s requirements regarding the confidentiality of personally identifiable information and “Child Find” activities. There are copies in the Principal’s office of each school, and in the Board of Education office. Copies of these Policies and Procedures may be obtained by contacting:

Cats gaining respect

Kentucky will open the season one of six teams in the Southeastern Conference ranked in the USA Today Preseason Coaches' Poll. The coaches considered Kentucky the 21st best team in the nation, grouped in with top-ranked Alabama, No. 3 Georgia, Texas A&M (No. 7), Arkansas (No. 23) and Ole Miss (24) from the powerful SEC. A decade ago, when Mark Stoops took over a program that had fallen on tough times following a successful stint during the end of the Rich Brooks era, the Kentucky coach envisioned taking the program to new heights. It took time and didn't happen overnight, but Stoops began establishing a culture within the program. The foundation was built on physicality and toughness, creating a winning culture.

"There's climate, and then there's culture," he said. "You can change a climate rather quickly, and a culture takes a long time to engrave, and if we do that and we do it correctly, then you can sustain the highs and the lows and the turnover, whether it's players or coaches or anybody. "So I don't look at it like that. I always look at it like it's an advantage, and I have great respect and appreciation for all the former players and coaches. But it just put us in a position to do what we're doing now." Every student-athlete who has played under Stoops has had a big part in laying the groundwork for other teams to follow. Stoops hasn't forgotten the sacrifices each team has made during a tenure that's nearing the end of its first decade. "(We have) very strong leadership on this team, and that has a lot to do with the foundation of the players in previous years," he said. Stoops admitted his tenure has "gone by very fast at times and very slow at times" but "I feel very privileged to be here for nine years, going on 10, and really excited about this football team." "I really feel like our program is in a position that we're very confident in what we're going to do," he said. Looking back at the previous nine years, Stoops has enjoyed several milestones and has guided the Wildcats to a pair of double-digit win seasons, feats that were unattainable by his five predecessors. "There are many good moments, many good moments. ... In football and probably in most businesses, we learn by mistakes. Those scars really stick out to us. So we try not to ever let those same mistakes happen again. I remember a lot of those. I seem to remember those more than the wins." Two wins away from surpassing Paul "Bear" Bryant as the school's all-time winningest football coach going into his 10th season, Stoops isn't satisfied and yearns for more. "We certainly know we're far from being where we want to be," he said. "We want to continue to climb, continue to push, and constantly grow the program and take steps in a higher direction. That's our plan, one day at a time." If the first nine years are any indication, the best is yet to come.

Pratt 'bled blue through and through'

Dan Issel and Mike Pratt weren't the best of friends when they arrived on campus in 1966. By the time they both graduated, they were almost inseparable. Pratt died following a long battle with cancer on June 16 at the age of 73. Issel was one of the keynote speakers who paid tribute to the late Kentucky Hall of Famer during a Celebration of Life for Pratt on Friday at Memorial Coliseum. Issel recalled Pratt as friend for life. "He truly lived his life by the Golden Rule," Issel said. "He treated everybody the way that he wanted to be treated. He always had time for everybody." Issel was joined by former teammate Jimmy Dan Connor and Kentucky coach John Calipari. Pratt's brother, Pat Pratt, and step-daughter Christina Stone also spoke, while Tom Leach served as master of ceremonies. "Mike loved the University of Kentucky from the moment he stepped on this campus in 1966," Calipari said. "He spent a lifetime giving himself for the betterment of this program and inspiring others who love this game and this program to succeed. He bled blue through and through." Known as an humble person, Pratt also was praised for his basketball skills by Issel. "What falls through the cracks is what a great basketball player Mike was," Issel said. "In my opinion, Mike Pratt is the best basketball player that ever played here that doesn't have his name and number hanging in the rafters of Rupp Arena. I think we all need to do something to change that. ... We need to get Mike's jersey up there in the rafters of Rupp Arena." Pratt was on a search committee that brought Calipari to Kentucky from Memphis in 2009 and the Kentucky coach hasn't forgotten the impact Pratt made on his coaching career. "There's not a day that goes by that I don't thank God for Mike's confidence in me to take over a program that was such an important part of his life," Calipari said.

The two forged a friendship that carried on from the day Calipari was hired as Kentucky's coach on April Fool's Day more than 13 years ago. "You felt better after you spent time with him, that was Mike," Calipari said. "The first time I met Mike, he was family ... I'm thankful we crossed paths." Calipari also praised Pratt's character. "Not one person has said a bad thing about Mike Pratt," Calipari said. "Not one. That's how special he was. That's what I remember most about Mike. He played with class, coached with class, he worked with class and treated everyone he came into contact with class." Leach, Pratt's partner on the UK Radio Network during the past two years, agreed with Calipari. "(He was) a Kentucky Wildcat legend, and an even better human being," Leach said. "We mourned his passing in June and today the color scheme is more blue and white, which Mike would have wanted. Mike was a (Ohio) Buckeye by birth, but a Kentuckian by choice."

A century of community building Kiwanis Club set to celebrate 100th anniversary

By Leslie Barlow
Citizen Staff Writer

A local civic organization is celebrating its 100th Anniversary of doing good for the local community. The Berea Kiwanis Club will host a celebration Aug. 27 at the Events Center commemorating the club's founding and longstanding service to the community.

The local chapter is a member of Kiwanis International, a global community of clubs, members and partners dedicated to improving the lives of children one community at a time. The club has more

Surplus vehicles donated to Hazard

By Andy McDonald
For The Citizen

In a unanimous vote, the Berea City Council adopted a measure to donate four surplus vehicles to the city of Hazard, which suffered significant losses in last July's floods.

The donated vehicles include a 2005 Chevy Trailblazer from the codes department, a 2006 Ford Escape, also from the codes department, a 2005 Chevy Blazer used by administration, and a 2011 Crown Victoria used by the police department.

Berea Mayor Bruce Fraley reported the delivered vehicles were immediately put into service in that flood ravaged city.

Tuesday's vote comes in the wake of other relief efforts coordinated by the Berea Fire Department and the Berea Police Department, both of which have been collecting supplies for the communities impacted by the

Celtic Fest returns

The last live gathering of lovers of the Celtic music tradition was in 2019. In 2020 and 2021, musicians from across America and Ireland participated in two successful on-line events that helped keeping the interest going and helped the organizers keeping in contact with many of the musicians.

Now the 13th Berea Celtic Fest and Gathering is slated for August Thursday-Sunday, and as usual it will be a city-wide event with educational presentations and workshops, open sessions and concerts at the Folk Center, the public library, Farmers Market, Union Church, Boone Tavern and the area around College Square.

The Berea Parks and Recreation Department had its fourth annual "Pool Poolooza" Tuesday night at the Berea City Pool. In top photo, Alexis Brock and Remi enjoy a fun time while in the pool, while Aaron Crawford and Toph, bottom photo, play a game of frisbee. The yearly event attracted 119 visitors and 55 dogs to the pool, which will be drained this week and is now closed for the season. Visitors donated pet food, collars, leashes, cat litter, shampoo treats and toys that will be donated to the Madison County Animal Shelter.

than 550,000 members from K-Kids to Key Club to Kiwanis and many ages in between in 80 countries and geographic areas. The work the clubs do are focused on the needs of the communities where they are located. Kiwanis empowers its members to pursue creative ways to serve the needs of children, such as fighting hunger, improving literacy and offering guidance. Kiwanis clubs worldwide host nearly 150,000 service projects each year. In the United States there are 5,001 clubs with 141,925 members. The Berea chapter has more than 20 members working to better southern Madison County. The Berea Kiwanis Club was founded in 1922 and led by president Marshall Vaughn, who was a Berea College staff member and the leadership has come full circle with current president Sharyn Mitchell being a Berea College alum and current staff member. Mitchell said 75% of the club's presidents have also been Berea College faculty, staff, or alumni. The club was originally sponsored by the Irvine/Ravenna and Winchester clubs, Mitchell said. In turn, the Berea club sponsored and organized Kiwanis Clubs in Richmond and Mt. Vernon. She added the club was the first male civic organization in Berea and was a forerunner to the Chamber of Commerce. It was also the first chapter in Kentucky or Tennessee to welcome a female member, as well as an African-American member. The work the Berea Kiwanis Club does in Madison County includes sponsoring the annual easter egg hunt, trash pick up along US Highway 25 North, Big Brother-Big Sister Bowl-a-thon, ring the bell for the Salvation Army, along with sponsoring a community-wide day care shower to distribute new toys to the city's day care. Since 1982, the group's largest fundraiser has been the TV and Radio Auction, which has seen $202,500 donated to local charities. The club donates funds to family resource centers at Berea-area schools, the children's program of Hospice of Madison County, Matt Rose Fund (provide athletic scholarships so that 'All Can Play'), Senior Citizens Center, summer reading programs at Madison County libraries, New Opportunity School for Women, and Habitat of Humanity of Madison County, among many other organizations. "A lot of what our Berea Kiwanis Club does is behind the scenes," said Mitchell. "I would like us to become more visible to the community. I feel that in recent years the Berea community is not as aware of us as an organization, not aware of what we do, we have become invisible." Mitchell said one the organization's priorities should be a needs assessment to better understand how the club could best use its resources and talents to better the community. "I would like to see our club sponsor more activities where the baby boomers, millennials, and gen-x's, interact and break down the generational divide," she said. "I would like for us to help provide more 'fun-while-you-learn' activities." Mitchell credited the longevity of the club, as well as its future, to the youth of the community. "Our youth are our building blocks and the secret to a strong and vital community," she said. "Our strength as Kiwanians has been and continues to be community building."

1. The New York Life Secure Term Choice Fixed Annuity is a single premium fixed deferred annuity with a number of interest rate guarantee/surrender periods to choose from. Available in jurisdictions where approved and subject to eligibility requirements. Guarantees based on the claims-paying ability of the issuer.

2. Withdrawals may be subject to regular income taxes and, if made prior to age 59½, may be subject to a 10% IRS penalty. Depending on the period chosen, withdrawals during the first 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, or 8 years of the policy may be subject to surrender charges. Rates are subject to change at any time. The interest rate is an effective annual yield based on a nominal rate that is compounded daily. Yields assume no additions or withdrawals made during the guaranteed period. After the initial guaranteed interest rate period, the policy will receive a renewal rate that is guaranteed for one year. The crediting rate will not be less than the guaranteed minimum interest rate (GMIR) stated in your policy. Please call your representative for current interest rates on premium amounts of $1.5 million or more. Policies with premium amounts of $1 million or more require prior NYLAC approval.

3. The "highest ratings currently awarded" refers to the highest ratings currently awarded to any U.S. life insurer, specifically: Standard & Poor's (AA+); A.M. Best (A++); Moody's (Aaa); and Fitch (AAA). Source: Individual Third-Party Ratings Reports as of 09/30/21.

The policy form number for the New York Life Secure Term Choice Fixed Annuity is ICC11-P113 in most jurisdictions; in some states, it may be 211-P113, and state variations may apply.

The New York Life Secure Term Choice Fixed Annuity is issued by New York Life Insurance and Annuity Corporation (A Delaware Corporation), a wholly owned subsidiary of New York Life Insurance Company, 51 Madison Avenue, New York, NY 10010.

Spotlight Playhouse theatre in full swing

The Berea Lions Club welcomed Chad and Letha Hembree, owners and directors of the SPOTLIGHT PLAYHOUSE, to speak at their August 8, bi-weekly meeting, at the Smokehouse Grill, Berea.

Accompanying Chad and Letha were 2 players, Sydney Hall, Dylan Maynard, both from Richmond, who put on a skit from a recent play. The SPOTLIGHT is a community theatre combined with an acting school, located at 214 N. Richmond Road in Berea. The theatre first began in 2004 and is now into its 18th season.

The acting school portion is for ages 4 - 18. The community theatre, now called Blue Grass Players, is for adult age actors. Chad said, "Our big goal is that we never turn anyone away, You know you're going to get in...Financially we work it out with the parents so that no kid is turned away, regardless of their ability to pay - as long as they're willing to put in the effort...The whole point is to bring the love of theatre to the Appalachian area...We're not here to make movie stars, professional theatre people - build a life-long love for live performing, whether that makes them a better audience member or someone that wants to be in things - it passes along to generations - that's our core focus as a theatre."

Letha commented, "We hear lots of parents say, 'I can't believe how much confidence & self esteem my child has now,' it teaches public speaking, not being afraid to get up in front of a group of people...That's not something everybody can do. So there's lots of life skills that come along with being in SPOTLIGHT. We also teach leadership having kids take on leadership roles as choreographers, directors, helpers, tech...every facet of community theatre."

Rehearsal schedules for the younger actors are on Saturdays. "That's kind of our tradition," said Chad, "The most talented kids are usually involved in many things...I want my students to play sports...I want my students to be in their school musical and have school pride...We're not an 'either or' type thing."

To be in a community theatre production doesn't cost anything.

"Come to an audition for a show... We try very hard to get everyone in the best we can," said Chad. One of the upcoming Fall performances, Sept. 16-18, will be Alice in Wonderland. Plays having more adult material are marked as PG13. Program listings include actor ages in performances. "I would put our 14- 18 year olds up against any community theatre, even though they're teenagers," said Chad Hembree.

Not a fan of labels

I’m not a fan of labels. Numerous things are distinguished between sizes. Large and small buildings, towns, cities, counties, states, restaurants, churches and yes, newspapers, are often labeled by their size and frequency of their publication.

It’s common to label things in our society. In athletics, there are conferences, Power 5 programs and mid-major conferences. The Kentucky High School Athletics Association labels its schools by class, which is determined by enrollment.

I completely understand that one size doesn’t fit all, but in the grand scheme of things, bigger isn’t always better and size doesn’t diminish the value of a product. Some of the best food I have ever eaten was discovered in a “hole in the wall” establishment, while some of the larger venues were a major disappointment.

Just last week, Kentucky men’s basketball coach John Calipari referred to the university as a “basketball school,” which didn’t sit well with football coach Mark Stoops. Since last spring, Calipari has been vouching for an updated practice facility, while other athletic facilities on campus are in need of upgrades.

Memorial Coliseum doesn’t even have air conditioning, but the women’s volleyball coach Craig Skinner hasn’t been complaining. Neither has women’s basketball coach Kyra Elzy. Despite the absence of an air conditioner, the volleyball won a national championship just two years ago. The track and field team has produced Olympic gold medal winners while using an outdated facility. Just recently, the women’s basketball team won the Southeastern Conference Tournament last spring.

The University of Kansas won the NCAA title last March and plays its games at Allen Fieldhouse, a facility that opened its doors in 1955. I don’t recall any of their coaches, including current men’s basketball boss Bill Self complaining of playing their home games in a building that is nearly seven decades old. The Jayhawks have embraced their home place and it provides a home-court advantage nearly unmatched in college basketball. Only Rupp Arena and Cameron Indoor Stadium provide a comparable environment for the home team.

Calipari’s argument that men’s basketball should take priority over other sports would have been a valid argument, and was used many years ago, but times have changed, especially in athletics. Renovations are targeted for Memorial Coliseum, which will give the facility an updated look. Other capital projects within the athletics department have higher priority.

Although Kentucky has a rich history in men’s basketball, that doesn’t mean Kentucky is a “basketball school.” The men’s basketball program is just one piece of an entire athletics team and each sport, big or small, is relevant to the success of the program.

Fund students, not systems

Kentucky’s education landscape has changed dramatically over the last five years. Nearly 100,000 students are now utilizing a non public school option, whether it’s a traditional private school, home school, or some form of blended learning. The families of these students are helping demonstrate a clear demand for more education options.

In a recent report for EdChoice Kentucky, I analyzed data from the Kentucky Department of Education on trends in non public education enrollment. The report shows that since 2017, the number of students participating in non public education has increased by 20,000, a growth of more than 26 percent. Students in non public schools now represent more than 15 percent of the state’s student body.

This change is not limited to larger districts but is instead spread across the state. Last year alone, 121 of Kentucky’s 171 school districts reported increases in students who were home schooling or attending private schools.

What should this mean for education policy? For far too long, policy makers have assumed that supporting education meant funding public school districts. Yet, nationally there has been a shift to student centered funding models. States like Arizona and West Virginia are adopting universal educational choice programs that ensure that no parent goes into debt just to give their child a good education. Over 30 states have a non public school choice program.

Kentucky took the first step towards a student first approach when it passed the Education Opportunity Account Act. The program will provide $25 million in private funding which can be used to cover a broad range of expenses, including tutoring services, therapies for students with special needs, career training and dual-credit college courses. The law also created a pilot program that would offer tuition assistance to help students attend PK-12 non public schools in counties with more than 90,000 people.

The EOA program is currently on hold due to a lawsuit launched by a group of public school districts hoping to prevent more families from choosing a non public school option.

Given that these types of programs have a perfect record in the courts nationally, it is likely only a matter of time before the Education Opportunity Account Act is reinstated and families can begin receiving assistance. In the meantime, families are voting with their feet. Many do so at an enormous cost financially, but willingly make the sacrifice because they are acting in the best interest of their children. For many more, this type of choice is out of reach even though their children would benefit from an option outside of their assigned public school district.

But all of them are likely asking why such a financial burden should exist at all for Kentucky parents simply wanting a good education for their children.

If education policy is about every child reaching their potential, why should they have to attend a public school in order to receive support?

Kentucky has a long way to go towards leveling the playing field for all families, but we can start by strengthening the Education Opportunity Account Act. This would include expanding tuition assistance statewide, increasing funding and removing the five-year sunset on the program. This move alone would help relieve a heavy burden carried by thousands of Kentuckians.

From a big picture perspective, policy makers should broaden their definition of what it means to support education. Education policy should be about funding students, not systems. To the fullest extent possible, every education policy that comes out of Frankfort should put parents in the driver’s seat when it comes to their children.

In a world of increasing choices, Kentucky’s education landscape still remains a largely one-size fits-all system. Parents are making it abundantly clear that the status quo is not acceptable. Change is coming from the bottom up as parents assert more control over their children’s education. It is only a matter of time before education policy starts to catch up.

Do what you enjoy while you can in a changing world

Life and the world are always changing. What you can do today is not guaranteed for tomorrow. Do what you enjoy while you can.

None of us want to face every day filled with fear. Worry about tomorrow only messes up today. Watching the news keeps our minds churning about what will happen next. When will China invade Taiwan? How much will it cost America in lives, money and hardship?

Russia’s invasion of Ukraine is of course, costing us. We have spent over 54 billion dollars on aid to Ukraine. Many of us want to help Ukraine. Yet, we struggle to cover the cost of our country’s government. Here we are again spending money we don’t have while we go into further debt to countries like China who is buying up our debt, land and businesses. Who operates a business like this? Only America.

The latest word is that thousands of additional IRS agents will be hired. Agents will need something to do and that means auditing your tax returns. Instead of hiring 87,000 new agents we need to hire some security guards for our schools. Further, the IRS needs to simplify the tax code. Americans need a few deductions like business expenses, interest paid on mortgages, healthcare and educational costs. Better yet, make it a 15% flat tax on everyone and eliminate all federal taxes on those earning under $50,000.

Does the prospect of being harassed by the IRS inspire you to work harder, make more money and be entrepreneurial? Americans are already beat down by the high cost of groceries, gasoline, housing and rising interest rates. Emotionally, this planet has been in a dark place for two years with Covid-19, now Monkey Pox, financial strain and always, always an ongoing war that we are involved in or supporting.

Finally, don’t live in despair. Life goes by quickly even if you are young. Study, work, make money, be innovative, love people and be kind to everyone. Do some things you think you might enjoy. If you don’t enjoy them, then move on to something else. Enjoy life and do what you can, while you can.

Here's How It Works

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9X9 grid, broken down into nine 3X3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

The largest crowd that had ever attended a session of the Madison County Fiscal Court to date was present Monday morning when the court voted to accept state assistance to build the highway to McKee. At the same time the court voted to recommend a road tax or bond issue for improvement of the other main highways in the county and for a citizen's committee to cooperate with the court in handling the road problems in the county. This action was taken only after extended debate in the county court room on Monday morning when the road question for Madison County was being thrashed out along every angle. The Citizens' Committee, named by the court, met at 2 o'clock in the afternoon and voted for a 20-cent road tax for a period of five years to be used for meeting state aid on every inter-county project that should be approved. A committee, composed of Messrs, Harvey, Chenault, County Judge J.D. Goodloe, and County Road Engineer J.G. Baxter were named to draw up and formulate submission of the road tax question to be presented to voters in November. The members of the special Citizens' Committee, as named by the Fiscal Court to cooperate with them were, Messrs, M.C. Kellogg, R.E. Turley, John Gay, Harvey Chenault, R. M. Rowland, Arch Hamilton, Walter F. Park and Rice Woods. The motion for acceptance of the McKee Road offer made by the state department was made by Magistrate Dave Smith of Berea. The motion carried, but a lively argument ensued before it was put over, the main contention being that Madison County was currently short of funds and the available money from regular taxation should be used for repairing roads that have long been built and were in a state of disrepair. After the vote of the Citizens' Committee for the 20-cent road tax, the general feeling toward the McKee proposition was much better and the people were ready to endorse the project. At the time, it was estimated that $300,000 would be a sufficient sum to take care of Madison County's part of all state-aid projects and that the 20-cent road tax for five years would amply meet the needs.

The Porter-Moore Drug Company located on Main Street removed the counter over which fountain services had been available for 17 years. This was replaced with a new streamlined Bastian-Blessing model. The front counter and the top of the back bar were constructed of baked enamel in the college colors of navy blue and white and the bottom of the back bar was stainless steel. The counter returned to the wall on the end next to the street and had room for eleven stools. The back part of the display window on the same side would be removed. No new fountain attractions would be added, but the same service would remain available in a larger capacity. According to Mr. G.E. Porter, the drug store was established in Berea 42 years prior and had been located at the current location for the previous 25 years.

Army officials began investigation into a strange chemical cloud that covered parts of I-75 and forced the evacuation of Peytontown Friday morning. Eyewitnesses reported that the cloud may have come from the nearby Bluegrass Ordinance. According to Assistant Fire Marshall, Gilbert Ellis, "We know (the depot) was burning material at about that time. It's part of a disposal process of obsolete materials." Depot commander Colonel John Munnelley initially denied that the could have come from the depot. However, a few hours later it was discovered that some smoke screen bombs had been destroyed on grounds at approximately 9:15 a.m. Thursday night. He said that the burning apparently ended about 2 hours later. Munnelley said that approximately three times the normal amount of the smoke screen canisters were burned on the depot on Thursday evening as a part of the army's munitions disposal systems. However, he wouldn't say that the burning caused the chemical cloud that passed over I-75. "We have suspicions (about the cause of the glass cloud) but nobody has pinned it down yet," Munnelley said. "There is enough unknown, not to hang the suspects." Samples of plants and scrapings from houses and autos were taken and sent to Frankfort for analysis. On Tuesday morning, a team of investigators arrived from the Department of the army to begin their own investigation. The investigation followed a letter sent by Senator Wendell Ford, who called for an Army investigation into the source of the gases. Spokesmen from the offices of Senator Walter "Dee" Huddleston and Governor Julian Carroll, said that the cannister burnings were "excessive and unauthorized." The smoke canisters contained grained aluminum, zinc oxide and hexachloroethane. Health Department officials had said that the smoke could be irritating to lung tissues. As the cloud slowly crossed the Madison County landscape, the weather conditions held the cloud close to the ground, not allowing it to dissipate into the air. It covered a section of I-75 around midnight and lasted into the early morning. State and local police blocked the roadway and detoured drivers off of the interstate. Visibility was low and those exposed to the gas complained of breathing difficulties. Three state policemen and about three others were hospitalized from the effects of the gas. Approximately forty others were treated and released from area hospitals as the cloud loomed over the Peytontown area into the morning.

Berea Hospital Administrator, David Burgio attributed the smooth handling of the emergency cases to the establishment of a disaster plan that had been developed three years prior. "It was all over by 4 p.m. said Berea Police Chief Billie Moseley. "I guess by then the sun had burned off the cloud like it burns off a fog." Berea suffered the loss of a cruiser and approximately $4,500 worth of equipment before the incident was over. Officer Ken Abbott, who was assigned to assist in clearing the interstate, parked his cruiser according to protocol across both lanes of I-74 with enough room for a vehicle to pass by on either side. His emergency lights were activated as he directed vehicles off of the road to U.S. 25 with a flashlight. According to the accident report, "At approximately 1:15 a.m., I (Abbott) had just directed a car off of the exit ramp. The next vehicle coming towards me was a tractor and trailer. As the truck got closer to me, I was using my flashlight to direct him off of the interstate. As he got closer, I could see that he wasn't slowing down any and I continued using my flashlight to try to gain his attention and direct him off of the exit ramp. As he got closer, I could tell he wasn't going to stop or go off the exit ram nor to attempt to go around the cruiser. At this point, I ran into the median and the truck struck the cruiser."

The cruiser burst into flames and was knocked onto the exit ramp. The tractor - trailer, locked his brakes and sild into the median and jackknifed. The driver was arrested for failure to yield right of way to a an emergency vehicle and reckless driving.

Fence isn't really necessary around the cemetery

Perhaps you heard about the lady who recommended building a fence around the church's cemetery, only to run into opposition from a tight-fisted old deacon.

"Do you know anyone on the outside that wants in, and do you know anyone on the inside who can get out?" the deacon asked. "Well, no," the lady said. "Then, why build a fence around a cemetery?"

As the story goes, that same deacon objected when the congregation was considering buying a chandelier for the sanctuary.

"First," the deacon said, "no one can spell it. Second, no one can play it. And, third, why would we waste money on a chandelier when what we really need is more lighting in this church."

We've all been in the company of one of those folks who seem to be negative about everything. They're certainly not much fun to be around, and they can be really damaging in a congregation, throwing cold water on every fresh idea, criticizing others, stopping progress.

I was reading through the New Testament in recent weeks, and got excited as I approached Third John, because I'd get to read again about one of those sour church members, the kind who make you think he must have been baptized in pickle juice.

The Apostle John knew that a fellow named Diotrefes was causing harm to the church.

"I wrote unto the church: but Diotrefes, who loveth to have the preeminence among them, receiveth us not. Wherefore, if I come, I will remember his deeds which he doeth, prating against us with malicious words: and not content therewith, neither doth he himself receive the brethren, and forbiddeth them that would, and casteth them out of the church" (3 John 1:9-11).

As I read about Diotrefes again, I cheered for John. I wondered what he had in mind for that sour rascal. I don't like guys like Diotrefes. Nobody does. I like to envision John walking into that church and setting him straight in no uncertain terms.

Then, I realize that all of us have our Diotrefes moments – those times when we want to be in charge, when we know we're right and everyone else is wrong, when we really need John to come and give us what for.

It's funny how we insert ourselves into Bible passages, and almost always see ourselves as the good guys when, if we're honest with ourselves, we might just as easily be the bad guys.

It's in those moments that we understand the meaning of grace. We are truly thankful for redemption and forgiveness. It's in those moments that another Bible verse penned by John means so much to us:

"My little children, these things I write unto you that you sin not. And if any man sin, we have an advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ" (1 John 2:1).

That obstinate old deacon who opposed the cemetery fence and the chandelier has an advocate with the Father. And so do you.

This year an opening concert Thursday evening has been added to the new Honeysuckle Dining at Churchill. The aim is to attract skilled local musicians who each will perform two-three songs.

In addition, The Missing Goats from Knoxville will entertain with popular pub songs, English-born John Skelton has promised to kick off the event as well together with Randy Clepper and John Sherman of Columbus, Ohio. The concert will begin at 7 PM, but the restaurant is open for business from 5 p.m.. Friday, Saturday and Sunday at 1 p.m., The Kentucky Artisan will host an hour of Celtic music Friday evening will feature a free concert at the folk center from 7 PM with very talented musicians including the fabulous fiddle players Bulgarian-born Bella Issakova of Atlanta, Georgia and Russell Hopper of Greenville, North Carolina, Dogwood Road of Columbus, Ohio, Jil Chambless and Two Big Boys from Alabama and Mississippi, Set Course of Lexington,singer Cathy Tully of Cincinnati and husband /wife duo Rebecca Baumbach and Skip Cleavinger of Bowling Green, who will also do a presentation of Celtic instruments Saturday at the public library.

Saturday is packed with top-notch events. To mention a few, there will be lively sessions at the Boone Tavern garden for five hours, cool presentations at the Boone Tavern Event Center, bodhran and Irish step dancing at the Union Church community room. The Saturday highlight is the very anticipated gala concert at the Boone Tavern Event Center the will feature an extraordinary array of talented, skilled and motivated musicians including Belfast-born Turlach Boylan and Eddie Jones of Kansas, Mrs Doyle of Louisville and many more. The admission fee is $20.

Sunday evening is allocated for an event at Boone Tavern that will feature Irish beef stew and sodabread and a two-set concert by Randy Clepper and John Sherman. Supper begins at 5 p.m. and live music at 7 p.m. in the Coyle Room.

The Folk Circle that is the presenting partner wants to thank all the in-kind partners and the fine partners who have contributed financially to make this quality event happen again, and also the many volunteers and hosts.

State Fair under way

LOUISVILLE (KT) – The 118th Kentucky State Fair began Thursday, launching an 11-day celebration of the state’s history, heritage and culture, featuring exhibits, livestock, food, rides, entertainment and concerts, as well as the 119th World’s Championship Horse Show.

Organizers say they expect a return to the normal crowd of more than 600,000 visitors this year.

It had been open only to participants in 2020 because of the COVID-19 pandemic, which also led to reduced attendance of 441,000 the following year.

disaster.

Fraley noted the council and citizens of Berea and Madison County moved quickly to help their neighbors in south-eastern Kentucky.

“I do want to thank for council for approving the donation of the police car and the three other vehicles to the city of Hazard,” Fraley said. “To say that they were greatly appreciated would be an understatement. They were thrilled because of the compassion and generosity that our city showed, and that’s not just one or two people, that’s all of us together. It involves the citizens of Berea and southern Madison County being generous and supporting the relief effort in eastern Kentucky,” Fraley said. “The outpouring from our community and our staff has been very impressive, so that it makes me proud to be a Berean.”

In other action, the council adopted an ordinance to set the ad valorem tax rate at 9.7 cents per $100 of assessed property. The rate is a reduction from last year, when city property taxes were 9.9 cents per $100 of assessed value.

Berea Finance Director Susan Meeks noted at a recent meeting that the city is in a particularly good position because increasing property assessment values in Berea mean the city can lower rates for citizens, yet still collect $91,000 more in property tax revenues over last year.

Also Tuesday, the council postponed a final vote on an ordinance regulating towing companies in city limits. Local businessman Russell McMahan addressed the council, noting that the proposed draft may put some companies at a disadvantage because of inappropriate regulations. The measure was introduced by Councilmember Jim Davis to discourage unethical practices by tow operators and enhance public safety.

Councilmember John Payne offered a motion to postpone Tuesday’s vote to allow for a listening session where local tow operators could express their concerns to council members, followed by work session. The vote was postponed, and the announcement of said work session is pending.

In other news, the council presented a proclamation congratulating the Berea Kiwanis Club for 100 years of service in Berea, and heard presentations from the Madison County Extension Homemakers group.

Concerning the Central Kentucky Regional Airport, the council ratified the appointment of Colleen Chaney by the Eastern Kentucky University’s Board of Regents to serve on the Madison County Airport Board. Chaney will fill a slot being vacated by Ethan Witt. The measure was adopted unanimously.

Meanwhile, Fraley announced Danny Miller has been appointed to the Berea Industrial Development Board, replacing Diane Zekind, whose term is expiring. Fraley expressed hope Zekind will be available to serve the city again in the future.

Emerson McAfee also addressed the council, urging officials to commit $5,000 for a monument to local members of the armed forces who died in service of their country. A Vietnam veteran, McAfee is also an advocate for the veteran’s hall of fame in Madison County. McAfee noted the city of Richmond has already committed to the project.

Planning and Codes Enforcement Director Amanda Haney updated the council on a number of projects in the city, including a four-story, 28,000-square-foot computer science building to start construction soon. A Berea College indoor athletic facility just off Mill Street, down by the soccer and baseball fields, is also in the works, according to Haney.

Haney reported AppHarvest has been granted temporary occupancy to operate one of the three greenhouses. “They are currently growing and harvesting lettuce. I have tasted their lettuce,” Haney said.

The city has approved AppHarvest for two of their five processing lines. They will soon be shipping out lettuce from their facility, Haney said.

Other projects include the vocational tech center next to Farristown Middle School, which is nearing completion, and Tractor Supply will be building a green house. An indoor practice facility is planned for Madison Southern High School, and there are 48 active permits for new single-family dwellings, most of them either at Vineyard or Stoney Creek subdivisions. Two new dental offices are under construction in town, as well as Popeye’s chicken near the Dinner Bell.

The next council meeting is set for September 6.

‘New Culture’

Eagles look to soar under new head coach

By Mike Moore
For The Citizen

Entering his first season at the helm of the Madison Southern football team, Coach Mark Payne is looking to establish a new culture for the Eagles.

“(We want) to establish a culture of hard work and discipline, preparing these young men for life outside of football,” Payne said. “Hopefully, that translates to some wins on the field.”

Last year, the Eagles fell on hard times, finishing 2-9, but Payne said that is in the past and the team is focused on what is ahead.

With a new coach comes a new way of doing things on both sides of the ball, and on the offensive end, up-tempo is the name of the game.

“We will run an up-tempo offense that will still play some power football out of spread looks,” he said. “We will try to get the ball into playmaker’s hands in space and run behind an experienced offensive line.”

To pull off the up-tempo style, Payne will hand the keys over to quarterback Ethan Woods, running backs Stephen Whitehead, Lukas Mullins, and Juan Rodriguez and wide receivers Jayshaun Ethridge, Cade Sullivan, and Ethan Moore.

In limited action last season, Woods threw for 82 yards. Whitehead led Southern in rushing with 794 yards and nine touchdowns. Whitehead also hauled in eight catches for 121 yards and a touchdown. Ethridge led Southern in receiving yards with 305 on 18 catches, including one for a touchdown.

Defensively, it will be all about the pressure, Payne said.

“We will play an aggressive brand of football,” he said. “We will bring pressure from multiple fronts and give offenses different looks in the secondary.”

Defensive linemen Eric Barnes and Caleb Johnson will be counted on Whitehead finished with 68 tackles, including 47 solo stops in 2021. Ethridge added 43 tackles, and 36 solo, while Rodriguez added 28 solo stops.

Payne has been pleased with the off-season practices and workouts, adding that his players have bought into the new schemes.

“But with installing a new offense and defensive scheme it is still a work in progress,” he said. “It will take some time before we’re at where we want to be.”

Payne also added that the team will have a special purpose as they will be playing for a teammate who is battling leukemia.

“We would like everyone to keep him and his family in their thoughts and prayers,” Payne said. “We know he would want to be on the field with us but he’s has his own battle right now.”

Southern’s season beings Friday at home versus Southwestern at 7:30 p.m.

Building blocks

Berea looks to build on firm foundation

By Mike Moore
For The Citizen

Coming off a 4-7 season in 2021, second-year coach Frank Parks said one of his goals for 2022 is to continue to lay a solid foundation for Berea Pirate football.

“(We want to) continue to build on the foundation we established last season,” he said. “This is the year we expect to win some district games and give ourselves a chance to be at the top of the district.”

To do that, Parks’ message to his team during the off season has been to grow as individuals so they can be the best version of themselves at the end of the season. He feels this is doable as Berea boasts a large senior class, so Parks is counting on them to lead the way.

Finding a balance of run and pass on offense will be important to Berea’s success in 2022, Parks said.

“We want to showcase a balance offense,” he said. “Last year we were a little more dominate with our run game and didn’t have the efficiency in the pass game we needed.”

In order to establish balance, Parks will rely heavily on running back Yamil Cruz, quarterback Jayson Coburn and wide receivers Isaiah Dorsey and Billy Strife.

Coburn threw for 663 yards and five touchdowns in 2021, while Cruz added 494 yards on the ground with five touchdowns and hauled in 11 catches for 119 yards and two touchdowns. Dorsey added 97 yards receiving and a score.

Defensively, the Pirates will be aggressive, Parks said.

“Instead of reading and reacting, our style will see us attacking more than last year,” he said.

Defensively, Berea will for Ty Thompson, Joe Collins, Koty Roberts and Ashton Music to have big years. Collins led the Pirates with 58.5 tackles, 25 solo, last season, including 1.5 sacks. Thompson added 44 tackles, 19 solo, while Roberts finished with 30 stops, 17 solo, and 2 sacks.

Berea opens the 2022 campaign on the road against Harlan on Aug. 19.

“(We want to) continue to build on the foundation we established last season. This is the year we expect to win some district games and give ourselves a chance to be at the top of the district.”

Berea man dies in head-on collision

The Kentucky State Police, Richmond Post, received a call just after 8:15 a.m. Wednesday morning of a two-vehicle head-on collision at the intersection of KY-627 and Daniel Drive in Madison County, and responded to the scene. The initial investigation indicated that a 2004 Ford Mustang was traveling north on KY 627 operated by Robert O’rear, 62 of Berea, when a 2021 Dodge Ram truck, traveling south, and operated by Jerry Johnson, 77, of Hurricane, WV, crossed the center-line and collided head-on into the Mustang. As a result of the collision, Johnson was transported to the University of Kentucky Hospital with non-life-threatening injuries. O’rear was transported to Baptist Health Hospital in Richmond where he died as a result of his injuries, and was pronounced deceased by the Madison County Coroner. The ongoing collision investigation is being conducted by Trooper David Hobbs. He was assisted at the scene by KSP Post 7 Personnel, Madison County EMS, Kentucky Transportation Cabinet, Madison County EMA, White Hall Fire Department, and the Madison County Fire Department.

CELTS:CommunityConnections

By Paula Keshderian
Berea College

At the Center for Excellence in Learning through Service (CELTS) at Berea College, it’s all about being part of the community.

“We are grateful to connect on multiple levels,” said Sarah Rohrer, CELTS associate director. “Berea is home, classroom and work site.”

CELTS is the home for Berea College student community engagement, offering students the chance to directly engage with the community through volunteer and service-learning opportunities like mentoring children and teens, tutoring, educational and outreach programs and collaborations designed to address specific needs of local and regional organizations.

During the height of the COVID-19 pandemic, CELTS adjusted their programming to virtual and hybrid formats, but despite the changes, they stuck to their mission.

“Berea Buddies is a mentoring program where we meet two hours each week with children,” said Cameron Brown, a CELTS student leader who is completing a degree in education studies. “Normally we had Berea Buddies program participants on campus, but with limits on in-person programming early in the pandemic, we sent boxes of activities to our participants and hosted virtual calls. This allowed us to continue serving kids and meeting their social-emotional needs. While our work did not look like it did before, it helped address the needs of the community at that time, even though at times it was virtual or distant.”

Do you remember Students for Appalachia?

The Center for Excellence in Learning through Service (CELTS) traces its programming roots directly to Students for Appalachia (SFA). In the mid-1960s, Berea College began outreach programs including adult literacy tutoring and mentoring for children and teens. This programming became known as Students for Appalachia in 1968. These programs provided opportunities for Berea College students to serve in the community by working alongside local families and organizations. SFA was reorganized with the creation of CELTS in 2000. While the outreach programs have changed through the years, opportunities for Berea College students to serve with and learn alongside community members continues to be at the heart of CELTS programming.

“As a student who started working with CELTS when services were still online, I am ready to experience hands-on projects with our partners in a joint effort to prosper the Appalachian region and find inspiration working with my cohort,” sophomore Syakira Wijaya said.

Khawla Nasser AlDeen, who graduated from Berea College in 2018 with a degree in psychology, said she has taken the skills she learned with CELTS to her post-college career as a World Health Organization (WHO) consultant.

“I served with middle-school students for three years and was able to learn firsthand about the needs of students and participate in designing programs that cater to their interests,” she reminisced about her time at CELTS.

Berea College students, faculty and staff work together with community members to achieve the main goal of CELTS: supporting Berea College students in developing as service-oriented and civic-minded leaders.

One key element of CELTS has always been working with several community partner organizations, including the Madison County Health Department. Lloyd Jordison, the Health Department’s health education director, said the benefits have been tremendous.

“Volunteers come to us with enthusiasm and skills that we need—it’s like a breath of fresh air,” Jordison said. “While our helpers are learning to work in the real-world setting, we are learning talents they bring with them. For instance, without the technical skills of our helpers, we would not have been able to create the database that we currently have.”

Ashley Cochrane, CELTS director, agrees.

“Everyone is a teacher, and everyone is a learner during community-campus collaborations,” she said.

Throughout the almost 20-year partnership between the health department and CELTS, students have collaborated on many projects, including coordinating events, creating publicity materials, and conducting community-based research. One of Jordison’s favorite CELTS projects was the Buckle Bear Project, where students from the Theatre Department teamed with the health department and used their extra material to make bears.

“We were able to give [the bears] to kids for awareness [about proper seat belt usage],” Jordison said. “It is projects like this that make me, and the rest of the community, feel fulfilled.”

Ultimately, building the community requires another critical component—participation. While recruiting college volunteers on campus, CELTS also collaborates with community-partner organizations and welcomes contact from guardians who are interested in enrolling their students in CELTS programs.

“Community collaborations remind us that every person—from children to teens to adults—can play a role in making our community stronger,” Cochrane emphasized. “Each person has something to contribute—some knowledge, some skill, some wisdom that will contribute to making it a thriving, safe and empowering place to be.”

“You won’t be sorry,” Jordison added. “It is a worthwhile endeavor.”

1. The New York Life Secure Term Choice Fixed Annuity is a single premium fixed deferred annuity with a number of interest rate guarantee/surrender periods to choose from. Available in jurisdictions where approved and subject to eligibility requirements. Guarantees based on the claims-paying ability of the issuer.

2. Withdrawals may be subject to regular income taxes and, if made prior to age 59½, may be subject to a 10% IRS penalty. Depending on the period chosen, withdrawals during the first 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, or 8 years of the policy may be subject to surrender charges. Rates are subject to change at any time. The interest rate is an effective annual yield based on a nominal rate that is compounded daily. Yields assume no additions or withdrawals made during the guaranteed period. After the initial guaranteed interest rate period, the policy will receive a renewal rate that is guaranteed for one year. The crediting rate will not be less than the guaranteed minimum interest rate (GMIR) stated in your policy. Please call your representative for current interest rates on premium amounts of $1.5 million or more. Policies with premium amounts of $1 million or more require prior NYLAC approval.

3. The “highest ratings currently awarded” refers to the highest ratings currently awarded to any U.S. life insurer, specifically: Standard & Poor’s (A++), A.M. Best (A++), Moody’s (Aaa), and Fitch (AAA). Source: Individual Third-Party Ratings Reports as of 09/30/21.

The policy form number for the New York Life Secure Term Choice Fixed Annuity is ICC11-P113 in most jurisdictions; in some states, it may be 211-P113, and state variations may apply.

The New York Life Secure Term Choice Fixed Annuity is issued by New York Life Insurance and Annuity Corporation (A Delaware Corporation), a wholly owned subsidiary of New York Life Insurance Company, 51 Madison Avenue, New York, NY 10010.

Bentley Cummins

Mr. Loyd Bentley Cummins, 94 died Wednesday, August 17th at his home in Kodak, Tennessee. He was born April 2, 1928, to Joe and Nancy Sowder Cummins, in Mount Vernon. The fourth of eight children, he was raised in Renfro Valley near Mt. Vernon, where at the age of 11, he started his first job at the Renfro Valley Lodge and Restaurant. He continued to work at Renfro Valley throughout his teenage years and met his wife Betty Foley there in 1947. The two were married in 1948. Bentley worked in automobile sales with several dealers, including his wife's uncle Clarence "Cotton" Foley in Berea. Mr. Cummins was a lifetime member of the Berea Masonic Lodge # 617 and was a member of the Berea City Council in the early 1960s.

In 1968, Bentley and Betty moved their family from Berea to Junction City, KS to open their first of five Kentucky Fried Chicken restaurants. Recognized as one of KFC's top franchisees, he was selected to serve on the KFC National Franchisee Advisory Council for several years in the 70's. The Cumminses were also active members of the Kansas Republican Party in the late 70's and early 80's. Mr. Cummins served as a Delegate to the Republican National Convention in 1981, and traveled to Detroit to cast his state's nomination vote for Ronald Reagan. Bentley and Betty later attended President Reagan's inauguration in Washington DC. They were involved with several local charities in Junction City, and helped forge long lasting positive relationships with other businesses and the military leadership at nearby US Army base Fort Riley. Bentley and Betty remained in the KFC business until 1984, when they sold the business to devote time to travel, and eventually relocated back to Kentucky for retirement.

Mr. Cummins is preceded in death by his wife of forty-two years, Betty Foley Cummins, who passed away in 1990; his parents Joe and Nancy Sowder Cummins; four brothers: Kenneth, Vernon, Ivan, and Earl Cummins; and two sisters: Vivian Cummins and Jean Anderson. He is survived by one daughter, Charlotte J. (Rex) Hunter of Donelson, TN; two sons, Clyde Foley (Kat) Cummins and Patrick Bentley Cummins, both of Kodak, TN; and one brother, Glen W. Cummins of Nicholasville, KY. He was blessed with seven grandchildren and ten great-grandchildren.

Funeral services for Mr. Cummins were conducted Tuesday, August 23 at the Dowell & Martin Funeral Home Chapel by Revs. Kent Loveday, Johnny Delashmit, and Allen Livingood. Entombment followed in the Berea Cemetery.

Pallbearers were Joe Cummins, Joseph Cummins, Kerry Cummins, Tory Cummins, Roy Martin, Lionel Miller, Ronnie Parker, Steve Riddle and Rob Vigil.

Donations are requested to: Riverside Mission, 4280 Boyds Creek Highway, Sevierville, TN 37876.

COVID numbers drop

FRANKFORT (KT) – For the second week in a row, the number of new cases of COVID-19 as well as deaths in Kentucky saw a substantial drop in new cases, according to the weekly report issued by the Department for Public Health on Monday afternoon.

During the seven-day period ending Aug. 2, there were 12,381 new cases of COVID reported in the state. That is down from 14,409 reported a week ago, and 15,652 cases the week before that. There have now been 1,521,375 cases in Kentucky, since the first one was confirmed in March 2020.

Thirty-seven counties have had 100 or more new cases in the past week, five more than appeared in the previous report. The 10 counties with the highest number were: Jefferson 1,773, Fayette 754, Hardin 490, Warren 405, Harlan 397, Laurel 293, Hopkins 255, Madison 254, Perry 241, and Daviess 237.

Kentucky's positivity rate, which measures the number of cases from all tests performed, except those with home kits, was 18.96%. That's up from 18.51% on the August 15 report, and continues a trend of increases, including the 17.89% recorded on Aug. 1.

There was a decrease in COVID-related deaths, with 63 listed in the latest weekly report. Last week there were 76, compared to 67 two weeks ago and 45 on Aug. 1.

Beverly addresses Rotary

After opening the meeting with the four-way test, President Frederiksen reiterated the emphasis from the national level for Rotarians to shoulder a project such as, "Empower Girls." After some discussion relative to human trafficking, he gave member Jim Davis the floor to introduce the speaker, Rose Beverly. Beverly comes to Berea from Idaho to serve as the city administrator.

She defined her position as well as its responsibilities. She had much praise for the working relationships of the ten department heads of Berea City Government. She mentioned the resurfacing of streets as a current project plus long range financial planning. She indicated any future issues will likely be related to inflation with its 'rising costs of simply doing business.'

She sees Berea as a well-balanced community with friendly, hard-working people. She did mention the emotional impact of seeing the deep appreciation from the citizens of Hazard with the donated police cruisers from the city. She shared that she personally had never witnessed a disaster of such breadth. Treasurer Wayland reported that members had donated $530 to the Rotary Club of Pikeville which was hard hit by recent floods. In closing the meeting, Frederiksen encouraged members to support the Celtic Fest being held in Berea on the weekend.

Ginny and Reed Barnett were guests. The next meeting, Tuesday, Sept. 6, will be at the Smokehouse Grill. Past President Rita Davis will host the speaker. A week later on Monday the 1 th the club will enjoy a social evening for "Woodsongs" at the Lyric Theatre in Lexington.

Books, reading provided path to career

I love to read. When I started reading at a young age, I had no idea the past would lead me to what ultimately became my career. Journalism requires the skills of reading, writing and of course researching. I acquired all of those skills early in life. Books about sports, tornadoes and hurricanes always were intriguing. When the book fair showed up at the old Kirksville School — now known as the Kirksville Community Center — it was like Christmas morning. I would spend what seemed like countless hours researching and trying to find the perfect book to purchase. The one book that intrigued me was a book about Elvis Presley and his death. For whatever reason I didn't but the book, but I read it front to cover in a matter of minutes and fascinated by a man named,

Keith Taylor

Elvis. Later I learned more about Elvis and became an instant fan of his timeless music. My love for reading can be traced to my late grandmother, Irene Taylor, who subscribed to TV Guide and made weekly visits to the drug store to purchase the National Enquirer, Globe and other gossip publications. She was into soap operas and game shows and never missed the noon telecast on WLEX-TV. I spent a lot of time at her house growing up and learned about Jesus, Hollywood and preparing myself for what was to come in the weekly TV Guide. Mamaw Taylor always kept the old issues, and from time to time, I would pick some of those up and read about past television history. When I began driving, she would hand me money and tell me to go pick up her “books.” I knew exactly what she meant and what I was supposed to buy. If my memory is correct, I had to pick those up each Monday afternoon at CVS on Main Street in Richmond. In addition, mamaw kept a scrapbook of newspaper clippings and obituary notices and other topics of interest of those she knew. When I began writing, she cut out every one of my articles and kept them. I didn't discover those until after she had passed in 2001, but I loved browsing through her scrapbooks and I have those at home stored away. Little did I know how much reading would play a role in my career path and you never stop learning.

FAQs

When will it be in the newspaper?

Well, that depends on if we know about an event. Most of the time, we are aware of most events, but some folks prefer the social media method, which doesn't extend or reach the readership this newspaper does on a weekly basis. Your own Facebook or other social media feeds don't cover Berea and Madison County. The best way to get your news of interest to us is simply by submitting a photo and the information to us, which can be done easily by e-mail or if you prefer regular mail, that works as well. It's hard to clip out a social media post to save as a keepsake.

Why didn't I get my paper?

Two factors come into play on this one. Either the subscription ran out or it got mixed up at the post office after we dropped them off after getting them from our printing press at J. Frank Publishing in London. Other things can happen but those are the two most common reasons why some readers didn't get their paper on a timely basis. Be sure to renew your subscription early so you won't have a disruption in the delivery. Sometimes it takes two weeks for our cooperative office in Manchester fill the order.

How much is the paper?

Right now, we have the best one-year subscription rate in the region. You can get a one-year subscription for just $30 per year if you live in the county and $40 per year if you reside outside of Madison County.

How much does an ad cost?

We base our rates on column inches and it depends on what size you want to run and the frequency of the ad that you are running. An ad that doesn't run on the classified page is considered a stand alone display ad and our most popular sizes are half page and quarter page sizes.

Fixing our financial woes

According to the AIRS, a $400,000 or more annual household income represents America's top 1.8% income-earners. Per IRS Publication 6292, there were 154 million tax returns filed in 2019, thus approximately 2.8 million people earn over $400,000.

Approximately 330 million people live in the United States. (2020 Census) Millions of illegals have and are coming so this number is on steroids. Some 69.1 million people received benefits from programs administered by the Social Security Administration (SSA) in 2019. 5.7 million people were newly awarded Social Security benefits in 2019. (SSA) About 2.8 million people making over $400,000 a year cannot solve the financial problems of America's government. Telling Americans that we are going to stick it to the rich or 1.8% of our country to carry 70 million retirees and millions of illegals flooding into our country is just political rhetoric. Most people aren't doing great when it comes to saving for the future: A 2020 SSA study found that 40% of Americans rely on Social Security as their sole source of retirement income. The average annual Social Security benefit for a worker is nearly $20,000, hardly enough money for most retirees to subsist on. (CNBC) The United States Department of Labor data shows that there were 113,062 pension plans in 1990, but only 46,869 in 2018. The average private pension in the United States today is about $10,788, according to data from the Pension Rights Center. (Annuity.org) In 2023, the year in which the legislation will increase tax revenue most, individuals making less than $10,000 per year will pay 3.1% more in taxes and those making between $20,000-30,000 per year will see a 1.1% tax increase, the Joint Committee on Taxation (JCT) analysis showed. Tax revenue collected from those making $100,000 per year or less would increase by $5.8 billion in 2023 under the Inflation Reduction Act. In addition, the share of tax revenue collected from all Americans making more than $200,000 per year would remain at the current percentage, according to the JCT. Taxpayers with an annual income of $200,000 or greater pay more than 57% of all federal income taxes. Will America's seniors eventually pay more in taxes? Currently retirees may pay income tax on up to 85% of benefits if your combined income is more than $34,000. Combined incomes between $32,000 and $44,000 may be taxed up to 50% of the total, and above $44,000 may be taxed up to 85% of the total. if you're married and filing a joint return. Do you think these numbers will go down? There is only one way that taxes have gone in America — up. Our problems cannot be fixed by one small group of America's people. We must have a flat tax for everyone making over $50,000. We have to stop the influx of illegals. We must be self sufficient in energy and manufacturing. Many retirees who are physically able may have to go back to work to survive inflation. In the meantime Government must help us by eliminating the billions of dollars wasted each year. Also, they need to stop trying convince us that they are going to fix our problems by only going after 1.8 percent of the America people.

• RECIPE OF THE WEEK •

Recipe from the heart

As summer is coming to a close, I thought I would include another recipe that uses fresh ingredients that are still in season.
Libby Horn

Corn and Tomato Fettuccine

Ingredients
8 ounces uncooked fettuccine
2 medium ears sweet corn
2 teaspoons plus 2 Tablespoons Olive Oil, divided
1/2 chopped sweet red pepper
4 green onions, chopped
2 medium tomatoes, chopped,
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
1 cup crumbled feta cheese
2 Tablespoons fresh parsley minced

Directions
In a Dutch oven, cook fettuccine according to package directions, adding corn during the last 8 minutes of cooking.
Meanwhile, in a small skillet, heat 2 teaspoons oil over medium-high heat. Add red pepper and green onions; cook and stir until tender.
Drain pasta and corn; transfer pasta to a large bowl. Cool corn slightly; cut corn from cob and add to pasta. Add tomatoes, salt, pepper, remaining oil and the pepper mixture; toss to combine. Sprinkle with cheese and parsley.

troops under the command of Major General Edmund Kirby Smith against a raw, hastily organized Union force under Major General William "Bull" Nelson. The day-long battle, reaching nearly 10 miles in length, saw almost the entire Union Army either killed, wounded, or captured. The Battle of Richmond is one of the most lopsided victories one side over the other during the span of the Civil War.

The battle was a pivotal element of the summer of 1862 when Confederate soldiers advanced into Kentucky with hopes of winning the Commonwealth over to the Confederate side. The campaign ended with the Battle of Perryville in early October 1862, resulting in the Confederates withdrawing from the state.

In addition to the battle reenactment, the highlight of the event features an 1860s-era baseball game, the first game of its kind in Madison County in more than 25 years.

The Cincinnati Red Stockings will face off against their crosstown rival the Cincinnati Buckeyes at 10:30 a.m. Aug. 27. The two teams will battle for the first-ever Battle of Richmond Patrick Cleburne Cup, an 1860s-era trophy constructed for the winner.

Both teams are part of the Cincinnati Vintage Baseball Club. The game will be played according to 1860 rules. There will be commentary during the game to give spectators a better understanding of the game in that time period.

Besides the battle reenactment and the baseball game, visitors will experience the Civil War life of soldiers and civilians, interactive presentations in the 1824 Pleasant View House, and book signings by Civil War authors.

The reenactment will feature infantry, cavalry, and artillery using weapons and tactics of the period.

Guests are encouraged to begin the day with a visit to the award winning Battle of Richmond Visitors Center, which will be open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. each day.

The historic Mt. Zion Church will host a special period worship service Aug. 28 at 11 a.m. The Mt. Zion Church building was struck by at least one Confederate artillery shell, the scars of which are still visible on the south exterior wall.

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9X9 grid, broken down into nine 3X3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

August 24, 1922 Berea College gets $10,000 bequest

Berea College of Berea, Kentucky would receive $10,000 by the will of Arthur B. Emmons, who died recently and whose will will be disposing of $1,000,000, was probated on Monday. The Berea College bequest was one of the many to public institutions and charity. Emmon’s wife was left certain personal belongings and his daughter was given his yacht. The Boston Museum of Fine Arts was given $50,000; the Boston Children’s Hospital $25,000; the Newport Dedwood Library $10,000; the Hampton Normal and Agricultural Institute of Hampton, Virginia, $10,000; and the Tuskegee Institute of Tuskegee, Alabama, $10,000.

August 28, 1947 Two Bereans open wholesale business

Carl G. Ford and Charles Marcum, Berea residents, announced that they would open a wholesale business in the old Pearson Motor Company building located at 55 Chestnut Street on September 1, 1947. Ford and Marcum would be selling tobaccos, candies, fountain supplies and notions. They planned to extend their business through Madison and adjacent counties and will begin road trips through those areas beginning after September 1st. they had rented their building from Mr. H.C. Bowman

August 30, 1979 Fall term at college starts Sunday

Fall semester activities at Berea College got underway on Sunday, September 2nd with room assignments, student labor assignments, ID cards and college post office box information. A reception for parents and family members was held in the Baird Lounge of the Alumni Building and a parent orientation program with President Willis D. Weatherford was held in Phelps Stokes Chapel. Freshmen and transfer students along with their families were invited to a picnic later in the day on the Alumni Building patio with worship services to follow. Buses departed from Boone tavern at 7:15 p.m. for a performance of “Wilderness Road,” for which complimentary tickets were provided to new students and their families. President Weatherford addressed new students at an assembly the following Tuesday at Phelps Stokes Chapel. Following that program, he and Mrs. Weatherford hosted an ice cream social at their home.

August 27, 1992 Local gospel group has hit single

In 1980, a group of young singers gathered in a living room to sing some gospel music. They sat around a fireplace and took turns leading old gospel songs. To their surprise, the music sounded a lot better than they expected. This is how “They Jubilee Echoes” got their start. Since that beginning, the group had continually grown, practiced, and performed in thousands of church and religious events throughout an eight-state area. That hard work and practice was paying off. “We never expected to get. This far when we first started,” said manager Bill Sowder. The group’s recent hit “He is. SO Wonderful” debuted at number seventy-five on the gospel charts nationwide. “The Lord has done a lot for us. We certainly wouldn’t have come this far without his and,” Sowder said. Sowder said he remembered well the many trips the group would take as a young quartet. “We would all pile into cars and head out. We all got together during practice and prayed that if there was a bus somewhere we could afford, somehow, we sure would like to have it. Two weeks later, we had a bus,” he recalled. The band at publication time was made up of seven singers and musicians. Sowder served as the manager, lead and baritone singer while his wife, Terri sang alto. Greg Bullock supplied the group with tenor and baritone. Rodney Wright sang base. Bobby Lions played bass guitar and Scott Taylor played the piano. Linden Stocker was the bus driver. The group had many awards to their credit including the first-place title at the 1989 Kentucky State Fair Quartet Competition. The Gospel Voice Magazine in Nashville said, “to sum put this group in one word, this group is fun.” With such continuous reviews from music publications the group became quite busy. “He is So Wonderful” was originally an unexpected song for the group. “I was at home in bed and this song, tune and all just came to me. I got up and wrote the entire song in about 15 minutes because the Lord just gave me the words to write. The band wasn’t really interested in it so we sat it aside for a while. We picked it back up later and now it’s on the charts,” said Sowder. “If this song changes one person’s life, then it has done its job. Of course we hope it goes on and on, but mainly we hope that one person will be effected and if so, then the song has done its job ever if we never have another song to do anything,” said Sowder.

Crunchy potato chips make it hard to hear the boss coming

Perhaps you heard about the boss who found a rather lazy employee with his feet up, drinking a soda and noisily eating a bag of crunchy potato chips. The boss asked him why he wasn't working? "I'm sorry," the employee said. "I didn't hear you coming."

I expect most people want to be busy, or at least look busy, when the boss is watching. But, you know, the Bible tells us we are to always work hard, even when no one is watching, and that we should do our work with a good attitude.

Though many scriptures make that point, I wanted to share a few given to us by the Apostle Paul who, by the way, was a very hard worker. He spent countless hours preaching the gospel, and, during his time off, he earned his living making tents.

When I think of the Apostle Paul, I envision a man who was never bored. He always had something to do. Even when he was locked away in prison for preaching the gospel, he was busy leading others to Christ or writing letters to churches.

So this hard-working apostle shared some important insights, like:

"If any would not work, neither should he eat" (2 Thessalonians 3:10).

"Do all things without murmurings and disputings" (Philippians 2:14).

"Whatsoever ye do, do it heartily, as to the Lord, and not unto men" (Colossians 3:23).

"If any provide not for his own, and specially for those of his own house, he has denied the faith, and is worse than an infidel" (1 Timothy 5:8).

It's important to note that those scriptures aren't aimed at people who have health or mental issues that prevent them from working. It's aimed at those strong, healthy people who feel entitled to live off of others without lifting so much a finger.

That can be a son or daughter who, though fully grown, still lives in their parents' homes without contributing in any way. Or, that can be strong, healthy welfare recipients who don't even have to walk to the mailbox anymore, because Uncle Sam makes monthly deposits straight into their bank accounts.

Working hard is a clear biblical principle.

Perhaps lots of people are like the employee with his feet up, the one who worked hard only to impress the boss. But the Apostle Paul is very clear that we should strive to be hard workers because that's the kind of people God wants us to be.

We can try to look busy when the boss is watching, or we can stay busy all the time because the Lord is watching.

the day where we were running a total of nine 24-hour ambulances in the county. I am extremely proud to say that we are lowering our taxes and increasing our services,” Jackson said.

Jackson estimated the EMS would service about 20,000 calls this year.

The library board also lowered its rates. The rate for real property is 5.2%, personal property 6.5%, and motor vehicles and watercraft at 3.5%. The extension office kept its rates at 1.8% for real property, 3.37% personal property, and 1.4% for motor vehicles and watercraft. The health department is maintaining the same rate at five cents across the board for real and personal property, as well as motor vehicles and water craft. The Red Lick Water Shed will maintain a five cents across the board tax rate for real and personal property and motor vehicle and watercraft.

“I want to thank all of the taxing districts and the citizens of the county that serve on the boards for all of their hard work,” said Reagan Taylor, Madison County Judge-Executive. “This shows that everyone involved is doing their due diligence, lowering rates, and providing more services with less money.”

The court had the first reading of a proposed zone change from C-7/R-7 (Commercial and residential agriculture) to UC-1 (Single family residential) for 70.27 acres on College Hill Road near Waco. The court voted 4-1 to approve the first reading with Magistrate John Tudor, who represents the area, voting no.

The magistrates and judge-executive can inspect the property and traffic patterns in the area before the second reading and public comment period to approve the zone change.

Tudor said he had received several comments from residents of the area voicing their displeasure. “I’ve received several calls opposing not necessarily the new development, but the prospect of the single family homes being built at a rate of three homes per acre,” he said. “We have a nice development across the road with $300,00 and $400,000 homes and the residents are afraid if 1,300 to 1,500 square foot homes are constructed that will lower the property values of their homes.”

Bert Thomas, county Planning and Zoning director, said the number of homes per acre, as well as the square footage of the homes, are yet to be determined by the builder. sewer issues also can be discussed.

Thomas said the builder would be available to answer questions at the second reading of the zone change. The magistrate also expressed concern about the traffic impact of the area and the difficulty of adding a turn lane into the neighborhood from College Hill Road.

“I’m going to research all of the issues further, but I haven’t had much positive feedback on this project,” Tudor said.

In other business:

- Issued a proclamation for National Assisted Living Week Sept. 11-Sept. 17.
- Heard the treasurer’s report for the first 30 days of the fiscal year, ending July 31. The county currently has $31,581,163.86 in general fund.
- Adopted the approval of two roadways in Berkley Hall Subdivision, Hampton Hall Roadway (550 feet long and 20 feet wide) and Spanish Wells Drive (1,160 feet long and 20 feet wide), into the county road maintenance system.
- Discontinued Cedarwood Drive, Gindertree Lane, and 82.58 feet of the southwest portion of Brookwood Drive from the county roadway maintenance system. 152 feet of Brookwood Drive will remain in the county roadway system.

turn their attention to the section between U.S. 25 N. and KY 1016. The new road will include sections that have both two and four lanes, according to a press release from the Kentucky Transportation Cabinet District 7.

Mayor Bruce Fraley noted that while the project has faced some delays, including a shortage of concrete that delayed the completion of the bridge over Silver Creek, the end result will have two major impacts on Berea. The first will be to significantly reduce traffic in the center of town and around some schools, including Silver Creek Elementary, Madison Southern High School and Foley Middle School, as well as Berea College.

“It will have a very positive impact in terms of traffic,” Fraley said. ““I think it will take a lot of traffic out of the center of town.” Currently, motorists from Jackson County and southeastern Madison County have to go through the middle of Berea to get reach Interstate 75. Fraley noted the reduction in heavy truck traffic will also likely reduce wear and tear on Berea’s city streets.

Additionally, Fraley said he expects the new phase of the bypass to boost three key facets of Berea’s economic development, including commercial, industrial, and residential housing.

“It will help because the bypass will lead directly into Berea’s industrial park, our future corridor for business and industry, and it will also potentially open up property for residential housing development, which is something the city of Berea is currently short on right now,” Fraley said. “There are several parcels near major intersections that are designated for future commercial development in the city’s comprehensive plan,” Fraley said.

Four years ago, Phase II of the Berea Bypass was dropped from Kentucky’s six-year transportation plan. Then-Berea City Councilman Fraley, along with council members Jim Davis, David Rowlette, and Berea Chamber of Commerce President Jennifer Napier went to Frankfort to lobby state officials.

Fraley noted that with the help of state representatives Sal Santoro, Ken Upchurch, and with assistance from Senator Jared Carpenter, Berea’s case for a bypass was given new consideration with the help of a briefing document development by then-Berea City Administrator Randy Stone.

With the success of securing support for Phase II, Fraley said important lessons were learned that have since been applied in securing intergovernmental funding for Berea projects.

“I think it showed the importance of being engaged and being willing to let our elected and appointed leaders in Frankfort know why these kinds of projects are important to Berea,” Fraley said.

“The old saying goes that the squeaky wheel gets the grease. You have to continually engage elected and appointed officials to make sure these projects get funded and completed. That was the lesson learned,” Fraley said.

Key a target for Cats

LEXINGTON (KT) — Dane Key is ready to make an immediate impact in his debut season in the collegiate ranks. He also wants to take a humble but hungry approach. “I came in with the mind-set to really come in and have an impact, but I’ve just got to keep my head down and keep working hard,” he said. The Kentucky freshman receiver and former Frederick Douglass High School standout has already made an impression on Wildcats coach Mark Stoops and the coaching staff during spring practice. He was rated as one of the top prospects in the state of Kentucky and won the prestigious Paul Hornung Award as the Kentucky Player of the Year last season.

“We have some guys (receivers) we have to push (but) we’re fortunate, one of the young guys came in spring so we had the opportunity to watch him — Dane Key,” Stoops said at Southeastern Conference Media Days last month. “He’s a special young man, definitely an impact player. You could see right away he has the mind-set that he could pick things up.” Kentucky quarterback Will Levis has already envisioned Key as a potential target on a regular basis this year and likes the energy Key has brought to the team. “He’s a starter right now,” Levis said. “He’s got to go into the facility every single day and earn that spot every single day. Not a lot of true freshmen have that opportunity, so I’m sure that he’s excited for it.” Key, whose father Donte’ Key was a linebacker and defensive end at Kentucky (1992-95) and brother Devon Key is a defensive back for the Kansas City Chiefs, wants to build on this success he had last spring. “My goal for fall camp is get through fall camp and just have as good as a camp as I had in the spring,” he said. “I expect just to come in and just work to the best of my ability and just whatever happened after I came in and worked is what’s going to be the outcome. I am going to keep grinding like I have and keep grinding with the rest of the receivers so I can achieve the outcome that I want.” Key has already developed a chemistry with Levis and has taken measures to take the quarterback-receiver relationship a step further. “We’re just grinding every day to get better,” he said. “I mean, we’ll throw a little bit after practice or a little bit on the weekends just so that chemistry will be right for us throughout camp, throughout the first game (and) throughout the season.” Although confident in his abilities, Key also wants to do whatever it takes for the Wildcats to be successful this season. “I’ll throw myself out there just to go out there and make a play whenever it’s needed,” he said.

PREP ROUNDUP

By Mike Moore
For The Citizen

Mark Payne’s Madison Southern Eagles gave Southwestern a scare Friday night, but in the end, the Warriors made key plays in the fourth quarter to escape with a 27-19 win. From the outset, Madison Southern controlled the game’s tempo against Southwestern as the Eagles jumped to a 19-6 halftime lead. Unfortunately for the Eagles, the proverbial gas tank hit “E” in the fourth quarter as the Warriors put up 21 unanswered points to pull out the win. “Our kids came out very motivated,” the first-year coach said. “They really have a chip on their shoulder to prove to everyone that they’re not the same team from a year ago, and we’re not. However, it’s tough when you’re playing a lot of guys both ways, and right now, we have several going both ways. So, we ran out of gas in the second half. But I’m very proud of my guys. We fought for 48 minutes down to the last whistle.” Southern opened the game by pounding the ball at Southwestern using Stephen Whitehead. Whitehead found the endzone twice in the first quarter on runs of 1 and 5 yards to give Southern a 13-0 lead. In the second quarter, Southwestern marched inside the Eagles’ 5-yard line but was turned away as Southern’s defense forced a fumble in the endzone. From there, Southern went 80 yards, highlighted by a 10-yard run on a fake punt by Cade Sullivan to keep the drive alive. A few plays later, Jayshaun Ethridge took a wide receiver screen 56-yards to put the Eagles up 19-0 midway through the second quarter. Just before the half, Southwestern’s Tanner Wright scored to cut the lead to 19-6 at the break. Wright added three more rushing touchdowns in the fourth quarter to cap the Warriors’ comeback. Whitehead led Southern with 76 yards on 18 carries. Ethridge finished with 137 yards on five catches, while quarterback Ethan Woods finished with 162 yards and a score. Whitehead also recorded 12 tackles, six solo, while Lukas Mullins added six stops, and five solo on defense. Southern returns to action Friday night when they travel to George Rogers Clark for a 7:30 p.m. game in Winchester. • The Berea Pirates fell short in its season-opening game on the road at Harlan in the First Priority Bowl. Harlan scored a late touchdown to secure the win. Yamil Cruz powered the Pirates with a pair of scoring runs, while Koty Roberts caught a touchdown from quarterback Jayson Coburn. Coach Frank Parks said the Pirates played well in spurts, but in the end, the inexperience along the offensive line showed. “We played well in spots offensively and defensively,” Parks said. “We had a great opportunity to win, driving down into their territory at the end of the game, but we made some costly mistakes.” Berea (0-1) returns to action Friday at 7:30 p.m. when they travel to Nicholas County. Prep Soccer The Madison Southern boys soccer team (3-1) won two games last week, knocking off Danville, 5-2, and North Laurel, 8-1. Avery Davidson scored three times against Danville, while Hayden Jakubowski added a goal. Cam Hechemy added three assists in the win. The Eagles kept up their winning ways against the Jaguars as seven players found the net. Hayden Shepard scored twice, while Garrett Wickersham, Ahmad Lahamer, Landon Sipple, Lemmer, Hachemy, and Davidson added a goal. • The Madison Southern Lady Eagles (4-1) picked up three wins last week, knocking off Berea (10-0), Lincoln County (2-0) and Model (1-0). Southern got a pair of goals each from Tehya Darst and Carlie Hechmy in the win over Berea. Avyn Willis, Mallory Robinson, Mallory Duerson, Ashlee Pisula, Riley Green and Claire Cress each added a goal in the win. Darst and Duerson each scored a goal against Lincoln County. • The Berea Pirates soccer team (1-3) dropped games to North Laurel (3-1) and Franklin County (2-0) last week. Canon Cummins scored Berea’s lone goal against North Laurel. • The Berea Lady Pirates fell to 1-4 on the season after dropping games to Madison Southern (10-0) and Model (4-0). Prep Volleyball The Madison Southern volleyball team (1-0) knocked off East Jessamine, winning 3 games to 2 last week. Julia Bingham finished the match with 19 kills and eight digs. Breanna Dawes had 22 digs, while Jordyn Walker added 13 assists and 11 digs. Abby McMullin finished with 10 digs, while Regan Burns finished with 14 assists and 7 digs. • The Berea Pirates (1-2) upended Menifee County, winning 3-0, before losing to Madison Central, 3-0. Courthouse renovations in full swing

By Leslie Barlow
Citizen Staff Writer

Changes are coming to the Madison County Courthouse through a series of updates and renovations to the historic building to bring it more up to date and to better serve the needs of county residents and the judicial staff.

County officials called the project a critical need in order to make the courthouse safer for officials and community members. The courthouse was constructed in 1850 and was most recently renovated in 1960.

"Excited is an understatement when I think about the courthouse renovation project," said Madison County Judge-Executive Reagan Taylor. "We've been working and advocating for this much needed project since 2017 with Judge Logue and other members of the Madison County team. Now, we are able to get this accomplished without using any local tax dollars"

Jill Williams, Madison County Deputy Judge-Executive, said the courthouse will keep its historical integrity while the renovations will be focused on providing the necessary space and function for the circuit courts, adding that a third judge was recently added to the county because of the volume of circuit court cases.

Williams said the renovation will address many needs of a building that has one of the state's top 10 highest circuit court dockets with only one

Line of fire

The Battle of Richmond Reenactment returned last week following a two-year hiatus because of the pandemic. The event drew a large crowd on Saturday and Sunday, giving attendees a live version of the Battle of Richmond fought 160 years ago. The battle pitted experienced Confederate troops under the command of Major General Edmund Kirby Smith against a raw, hastily organized Union force under Major General William "Bull" Nelson. The day-long battle, reaching nearly 10 miles in length, saw almost the entire Union Army either killed, wounded, or captured. The Battle of Richmond is one of the most lopsided victories one side over the other during the span of the Civil War. The battle was a pivotal element of the summer of 1862 when Confederate soldiers advanced into Kentucky with hopes of winning the Commonwealth over to the Confederate side. The campaign ended with the Battle of Perryville in early October 1862, resulting in the Confederates withdrawing from the state. In addition to the battle reenactment, the highlight of the event was an 1860s-era baseball game, the first game of its kind in Madison County in more than 25 years. (The Citizen Keith Taylor)

Berea College to make donation to flood victims

President Lyle Roelofs announced this week that Berea College will make substantial funds available to eastern Kentucky counties impacted by last month's devastating flooding. The flooding affected 8,000 residents in the region.

The funds — expected to total more than $1 million overall — will be made available through the following channels:

- A contribution to the Foundation for Appalachian Kentucky to administer through its networks.
- Support directed to school systems in the affected counties, up to $50,000 for each system.
- A contribution administered through the Mountain Association to assist businesses in the counties impacted by flooding.

The College's contribution to the rebuilding efforts in the region align with its mission to serve Appalachia by

P&Z eyes zone change for retirement community

By Andy McDonald
For The Citizen

The Berea Planning Commission recently tabled a zone change request on Christmas Ridge Road that is intended to facilitate the construction of a development for citizens who are 55 years of age and older.

At the August 23 business meeting, property manager Katie Wiles said she was requesting a zone change from R-1 residential to R-3 multi-family development for 3.11 acres of land near Christmas Ridge Road. Wiles noted there is a strong need for housing for 55+ residents who want to live in senior-friendly housing.

"Daily I see the need for single level, small apartments of duplexes or housing for people that are not ready to transition into a nursing home yet," Wiles said. "We have people calling daily, wanting and needing one level, single story units to

Time indeed flies when you're having fun

Has it been five years? On Labor Day weekend five years ago, Rhonda and I packed our bags and moved to Berea. It wasn't a long journey, considering the change in destination was within the same county. Basically we just switched towns and our zip code changed from 40475 to 40403. Simple enough. Although Berea has always been a part of my life as a lifelong Madison County resident, we had to get familiar with the area again, since it was going to be part of our immediate surroundings. The move allowed both of us to be closer to our parents. Looking back on what has transpired over the past 60 months, the move was meant to be as I was able to spend time with my mom before her passing nearly two years ago. Our previous residence was a two-level home. Although the upstairs was mainly my territory, climbing stairs wasn't my ideal definition of daily exercise. We needed one-level and found a home on a level acre lot in Berea that is within the city limits but has a country feel. Nearly every morning, I look outside my window and there are birds, squirrels and even deer have been seen roaming around the back yard. The transition included making a switch from a riding mower to a zero turn and more time manicuring the grass, which I don't mind and actually enjoy on a weekly basis. We have more trees and shade and the feel of country sunshine. For 15 years, I drove from Richmond to Winchester during my time at the Winchester Sun and frequently made four trips in one day while covering sports at George Rogers Clark High School. Commuting to work has its perks and I spent many times venting my frustrations while driving along 627. By the end of my tenure, the drive became less and less enjoyable and it was time to change directions. I'm glad I did. We did a lot of remodeling to our new home and found out we needed new windows after we spent the first winter with drafty air creeping through. The investment on modern windows ended up being the best investment we ever made. We also invested in a new central air unit, which also saved money over the course of the past four years. I've always been close to Berea, but now feel like a member of the community and I'm grateful Berea has welcomed us with open arms and accepted us as one of your own. We enjoy our town and progress it has made since we have been residents of this city. Being a publisher of this newspaper has afforded me the opportunity to meet some wonderful every day people and business leaders in the community. We have a lot to be proud of, but more work needs to be done. Much like being a homeowner, we can never become complacent and keep moving forward and making progress. Work never stops and you can never stop improving.

A marathon not a sprint

Long after attention from beyond the region dwindles, the people in eastern Kentucky will still need our help. The devastation from flooding is massive, and it will take a long time to recover. For those wanting to help, the most pressing needs in the short term are emergency funds and often hands willing to pitch in. Concerned citizens can donate through a number of organizations, including the Team Eastern Kentucky Flood Relief Fund, the American Red Cross, the Foundation for Appalachian Kentucky, and Save the Children. For the long term, the impacted people and organizations will need sustained support. Although the people in the mountains have always lived with flooding, this flood was unlike others, wiping out home after home, building after building, leaving many families with nothing. In an inspiring display, people, institutions, organizations, agencies and resources from throughout the region, the state, and the nation have been mobilized, but this "clean up" is just the first stage. Soon, many people will be making hard decisions about how to rebuild, whether to stay or go, and what their communities are going to look like in the months and years ahead.

Lyle Roelofs

A number of Berea students and their families were impacted. We offered those students the opportunity to return early to campus. To their credit, all chose to stay and help their families and neighbors with the recovery process, but now that classes are underway, they are back. Several organizations with which Berea has close connections have also been very seriously impacted, notably Appalshop in Whitesburg, Hindman Settlement School and the Appalachian Artisan Center. Many Bereans have already made their way to these organizations and pitched in to the work of recovery, and we have offered extra vacation days to employees wanting to volunteer. We will also be looking for ways to support these organizations financially. Meanwhile, on campus, the Loyal Jones Appalachian Center, the Center for Excellence in Learning through Service (CELTs) and the Willis D. Weatherford, Jr. Campus Christian Center will be working to organize the efforts of students who would like to provide volunteer service. In addition, we have more than 80 staff members in our Partners for Education unit living and working in Appalachian Kentucky. Many of those employees were directly impacted, and four of these families lost everything. We have set up a special donation fund so that College employees may support these families.

Recovery in eastern Kentucky will be a marathon, not a sprint. In some places, the destruction is nearly total. Understanding that resources will be needed for an extended period of time, the College will be making substantial funds available through the Mountain Association, the Foundation for Appalachian Kentucky, and directly through local governments in the affected counties.

These efforts will support families, schools and businesses. The funding, which will total more than $1 million overall, will be drawn from the College's reserve funds.

Berea College's mission calls us to recognize the dignity of all people and also to "engage Appalachian communities, families, and students in partnership for mutual learning, growth, and service." We therefore trust that the spirit of Appalachian generosity would be there for us if the situation were reversed. Let's all pitch in where we can.

Big dummies

If you worked hard for a scholarship, paid your way through school, paid back loans or your family sacrificed for you to go to school, President Biden has shown that you were a big dummy.

Don't knock yourself out. Just sit back and the government will throw you some crumbs to take care of you.

In a move that Biden had promised during his campaign he erased between $10,000 to $20,000 of debt from millions of Americans college spending spree extravaganza. Years ago, Americans starting learning to spend money like it's water. Maybe they thought, "I won't have to pay it back". Their dream has come true. You and I along with the rest of America's tax payers will get to pay at least a half trillion dollars of this debt.

This is just what you had been hoping for! More taxes! Oh wait, just those rich people in America will have to pay this off, right? Every American on some level will share in this new financial burden.

Universities are legally taking from America's families because we sign up and agree to pay the tuition. We do it to ourselves. Universities don't put a gun to the heads of Americans and make us pay. Americans foolishly agree to this debt. Yet, most universities are the last sector in America to feel the pain of the economy. In 2020-2021, most of them received millions of free government paycheck protection program money. This is more government money that will be eaten by you – the taxpayer. Millions of American businesses also received tens of thousands to millions of dollars of free PPP money in the last two years that will also slam all Americans in more taxes.

Some tenured professors are making over $200,000, a year. Many University Presidents across the country are making over one million dollars a year, plus major perks. Many coaches make a million or more a year. Universities spend money like its water. They are the ones who need to be lending and collecting or forgiving some of this debt. Not you.

You probably already paid once. Now we get to pay more for the students and the Universities who just kept spending money. Why are you responsible for the foolish people who borrow $50,000 to $100,000 and more?

I believe in helping people, but Biden needs to pass some of this lending and collecting burden to the Universities. You the taxpayer keep giving the money. The universities want $30,000 to $50,000 a year and more. American families foolishly swallow the poison. Next, their financial insanity becomes everybody's problem. Does this seem right to you?

Sadly, millions of Americans rack up college debt and never complete their degrees. Millions more get degrees they never use. You don't need a college degree for a lot of jobs. Most jobs do require training that can be accomplished in far less time and money.

Congratulations if your debt is $10,000 to $20,000 lighter, but your debt will still have to be paid, by your friends, family, neighbors and others.

Consider spending the first two years in a community college or trade school. You can move on to the big-name school for your Junior and Senior years. The first two years are generally electives and classes you don't enjoy that much anyway. You'll save a lot of money and maybe grow up some before you land in a dorm room 200 miles away from home.

Sudoku

Level: Intermediate

Here's How It Works

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9X9 grid, broken down into nine 3X3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Solve the code to discover words related to summertime.
Each number corresponds to a letter.

providing educational opportunity for students of all races, primarily from Appalachia, who have great promise and limited economic resources. “Berea College’s Eighth Great Commitment calls on us to recognize the dignity of all people, and to ‘engage Appalachian communities, families, and students in partnership for mutual learning, growth, and service,’” Roelofs said. “We are committing our reserve funds in support of organizations impacted by the flooding, but trust that the spirit of Appalachian generosity would be there for us if the situation were reversed. We want to pitch in where we can.” In addition to monetary support, the Berea College community is offering support in other forms. Berea College has deep and abiding connections in the affected counties, Roelofs said, and several Berea students and their families were impacted. The College offered those students the opportunity to return to campus prior to the start of the academic year, and to their credit, all chose to stay and help their families and neighbors with the recovery process. Several organizations with which Berea has close connections were seriously impacted by the flooding, notably Appalshop in Whitesburg, Hindman Settlement School, and the Appalachian Artisan Center. Several members of the Berea campus community have already made their way to these organizations and pitched in to the work of recovery. The College is giving employees two extra vacation days through September to be used for volunteering in the affected counties; several employees have already responded. On the Berea campus, the Loyal Jones Appalachian Center, the Center for Excellence in Learning through Service (CELTS) and the Willis D. Weatherford, Jr. Campus Christian Center will be working to organize the efforts of students who would like to provide volunteer service. Berea College also has more than 80 staff members in its Partners for Education unit living and working in Appalachian Kentucky. Several of those employees were directly impacted by the flooding, and four families lost everything. Berea has set up a special donation fund so that College employees may support these families. Berea College’s Department of Computer Science reconditions College laptops on an ongoing basis and donates them to nonprofits and other organizations. The latest donation of these laptops will all go to schools in flooded areas of eastern Kentucky. Additionally, the Berea College Appalachian Fund will make grants to affected counties and leverage other philanthropic support.

Writer on campus

Dr. Raymond Cable, co-author of the Berea song, “Berea Beloved,” visited the Berea College campus last weekend. He was en route to his home in Compton, Kentucky from Perdue University in Lafayette, Indiana, where is was a professor in the department of biology. Dr. Cable graduated from Berea college in 1929 and from 1932 to 1935, he served as an associate professor of biology for the College. He received his Ph. D. from New York University in 1933. He co-authored the Berea song with classmate Wilfred Johnston.

Library friends eye tax

A new city library and county book mobile appeared to be in Berea’s future, if the Friends of the Library got their way. The group, headed in Berea by Judy Gilbert, planned to begin circulating petitions to add a four cent per hundred levy onto property taxes. Friends of the Library was seeking 3,100 signatures of registered voters on the petition. If successful, the tax would produce over $200,000 yearly. “There isn’t a public library in Madison County,” said Mrs. Gilbert. “There’s a library in Richmond and the college library in Berea – but some people don’t feel comfortable in using the college library and the Richmond library is too far away to drive.” Mrs. Gilbert emphasized that the proposed library program included the purchase and utilization of a bookmobile. “If we have a library branch in a central location in southern Madison County, it will encourage people to utilize the library, but I think that a bookmobile

College hosts delegation

Berea College hosted a delegation of women leaders from 22 Third World nations who were studying equal opportunity programs in this country. Jane Stephenson, director of the college’s New Opportunity School for Women, coordinated activities for the 25 participants of the month-long projected sponsored by the United States Information Agency’s International Visitor Program. The women were in key positions of responsibility and influence in their countries,” Stephenson said. While in Kentucky, the group focused on higher education partnerships, rural health care, economic development, and women’s cooperatives. In addition to Berea College, several service agencies in the region also met with the delegation. Accompanied by four escort officers, the international visitors arrived in Lexington and traveled by bus to Wendover in Leslie County where they were guests of Frontier Nursing Service. On Sunday in Berea, they met with college officials and received information on the school’s no-tuition policy, labor program and outreach efforts. The women’s group departed Kentucky on Thursday. They divided into smaller groups for visits to New Mexico, Michigan, Missouri, Oklahoma and Utah. The educational tour of the states was concluded on September 5.

Noisy kids make it hard to sleep in church these days

When the church service ended, a father scolded his preschool son for being noisy. "Don't you understand why it's important to be quiet during the sermon?" the father asked.

"Yeah, because other people are sleeping," the preschooler said. Sometimes things backfire when we're trying to make a point to our children, and that was perhaps one of those times.

Another was when a father was trying to teach his son to steer clear of alcohol. That father put a worm in a glass of water and another worm in a glass of moonshine.

The worm in the water lived, and the worm in the moonshine died.

The father then looked at his son, and asked, "What does that show you?"

"Well," the son answered, "it shows that if you drink moonshine you won't have worms."

Fathers really do teach their children lots of things – sometimes intentionally and sometimes unintentionally.

Perhaps you remember the "Like father, like son" anti-smoking TV commercial from the late 1960s. It showed a little boy wanting to do everything his father does. When the father lights up a cigarette, the little boy watches closely. A narrator says, "Like father like son. Think about it."

So I was reading Hosea the other day and ran into an interesting parallel to the "like father, like son" idea.

"Like people, like priest: and I will punish them for their ways and reward them their doings" (Hosea 4:9).

That verse reminds us that we can learn good habits and bad from those we worship with. It's very important that congregations have biblically solid preachers to lead them and to show them the way.

I wrote an article not long ago about a pastor who gave a kidney to one of his church members. You know why he did it? Because his church member needed one, and he, the pastor, happened to have two. So, it seemed altogether natural to that dear pastor to give one away.

That's the kind of pastor who sets a great example for a congregation.

Great pastors are always doing incredible things like that. Great pastors live by the Golden Rule of Matthew 7:12 by treating others the way they'd want to be treated.

Great pastors lead their congregations into closer walks with the Lord by being living, breathing examples of love.

Jesus said, "A new commandment I give you, that ye love one another; as I have loved you. By this shall men know that ye are my disciples, if you have love one to another" (John 13:34-35).

A great pastor lives out that kind of love. And a great pastor's ultimate reward is to see God's people do the same.

The TV commercial that declared "like father, like son" is perfectly true.

And that's why we need noisy little boys in church, to make sure others stay awake and listen to the preacher.

Wiles requested the zone change to amend the Berea Comprehensive Plan Future Land Use map for the building of 12 duplexes. Officials noted the property appears to be suitable for 11 or 12 single family homes, and that the area is currently designated for single-family residential homes, according to the current land use map.

Wiles added the property would likely include some kind of common area, whether it is a gazebo or other structure.

A number of local residents in the area opposed Wiles’ request, however.

Residents raised concerns about potential flooding in the area that the development might make worse, while resident Dwayne Litton suggested that once the property is zoned R-3, the owners are free to build anything under that designation, including multi-story apartment buildings.

Other residents raised concerns about traffic safety issues in the area, stating that 24 additional cars in the neighborhood could aggravate already unsafe road conditions on KY 21 and Christmas Ridge Road. Others raised reservations because the small road serving the neighborhood would potentially hinder both garbage collection and snow removal service, and could create parking issues. In response, Wiles assured commissioners she would make sure the plan would work, including arranging for garbage collection service, if necessary.

Joshua Bills presented the most comprehensive argument against the zone change, noting the Berea Planning Commission has twice rejected similar zone change requests in 2000 and 2001. Bills also cited previous decisions noting that just because there is a need for 55+ housing in the community as a whole, that does not justify a zone change in the Christmas Ridge neighborhood.

Carroll McGill agreed, noting, “The neighborhood is residential, it has always been residential, and it should stay residential.”

At one point, Planning and Codes Administrator Amanda Haney noted the commission does have the discretion to consider a zone change request contingent upon the submission of a conceptual development plan. A conceptual development plan differs from a site development plan in that it does not include specific, comprehensive calculations and review by planning professionals such as the city engineer. Instead, it provides an overview for what the developers intent to build at the site.

Planning Commission Chair Betty Olinger cautioned that even with a zone change, the developers would still be subject to the process of submitting a site development plan for final approval by the commission. Additionally, any zone change request would ultimately have to be approved by the Berea City Council.

Planning Commissioner Chester Powell moved to table the request for a zone change pending the submission of a conceptual development plan, a measure that was approved by the commission.

The Berea Planning and Zoning Commission will meet again on September 13.

RENOVATIONS

circuit court courtroom. The building is also without a holding cell and lacks Americans with Disability Act (ADA) compliant elevators, is energy inefficient, and lacks the required security features required by the Administrative Office of the Courts (AOC) for employees and citizens.

“When you think about the legacy of the building and how we will be able to maintain the beautiful history of one of the oldest treasures in our county while modernizing the facilities, and providing judges and citizens with the safety and security both required and deserved, it reminds us how we are continuing to move this county forward,” Taylor said. “This is the good stuff, actually the great stuff, and truly building a better Madison County.”

The renovation project officially launched last October with the establishment of the Project Development Board (PDB). The actual renovations to the temporary circuit court space began in April. The courthouse renovations are expected to begin at the start of 2023, if not sooner, with the project being completed in 2024.

While construction is ongoing, all of the circuit courts, judges and their related offices will move to the temporary Circuit Court space in the old Chase Bank building on Main Street in November. The Madison County Fiscal Court approved the purchase of the building in 2019 for a price not to exceed $750,000.

“This will be as smooth of a transition as possible to provide as little disruption as possible,” Williams said. “Our goal is that the citizens never see a difference, they will just go to a different location.”

The temporary circuit courthouse will be the home of the courts for about 18 months to 2 years while the renovations are ongoing. The total cost of the renovation project will be near $10 to $12 million and will be funded by the AOC. Williams explained the renovations are a state legislative capital project for the AOC.

“As the landlord of the building and as the entity required by law to provide the judicial branch space in Madison County, the Madison County Fiscal Court is required to oversee the project in conjunction with the AOC,” William said.

Integrity Architecture and D.W. Wilburn was selected to oversee the design and construction of the project. Williams said the authorized project scope has an annual use allowance of $1,415,700 for the life of the bond, which will be 100 percent funded through the state project.

The project was previously authorized by the 2018 General Assembly as a lease rather than a Judicial Branch Capital Construction Project. The project was reauthorized in 2021 House Bill 195 (HB 195) as a Judicial Branch Capital Construction Project after much advocacy to pay for the entire project.

Renovation plans call for the existing courthouse to receive a total makeover. There will be an addition on the Second Street side of the courthouse, which will include a sally-port, holding cells, and additional secured spaces. As part of the existing renovation, there will be an additional courtroom and the drug court will also move into the courthouse.

“The courthouse will now become the judicial center for Madison County and allow separation of the judicial branch of local government and administrative functions of local government,” Williams said.

Prep notes: Eagles fall to GRC

By Mike Moore
For the Citizen

Jayshaun Ethridge scored twice against George Rogers Clark, but it wasn’t nearly enough as Madison Southern fell 43-13 last Friday night in Winchester.

Ethridge led the Eagles (0-2) with 80 yards on three catches, including a 17-yard second quarter touchdown from quarterback Ethan Wood. Ethridge also scored on a 5-yard run in the second half.

The Eagles will look to get into the win column when it hosts Madison Central Friday night.

• Not much went right for the Berea Pirates (0-2) last Friday night as they fell 32-2 to Nicholas County. A safety on a bad snap in the end zone accounted for Berea’s only points.

From there, it was all Nicholas County as the Blue Jackets rolled up four rushing touchdowns.

Berea returns to action Friday night when they travel to Adair County.

Prep Soccer

The Madison Southern Eagles pounded out 10 goals against Southwestern in a 10-0 win. The Eagles (4-2) got three goals from Avery Davidson, while Garrett Wickersham and Ru Lemmer scored two goals. Jorian Hedges, Hayden Shepard and Micah Whitaker each scored a goal. The Eagles saw their four-game winning streak snapped against Dunbar as Southern fell 3-1. Davidson scored the lone goal against the Bulldogs.

The Lady Eagles (4-2) fell to Scott County, 2-0 last week.

• The Berea Pirates went 1-1 on the week, winning 4-3 over Wayne County and falling 6-2 against

Woman dies after being struck by car

A Berea woman died when she was struck by a car Monday on Glades Road.

Madison County Coroner Jimmy Cornelison said 83-year-old Shirley Gilpin died when a car backed out of a parking space in a parking lot and struck her. The coroner’s office received the call around 11 a.m.

Gilpin was transported to CHI Saint Joseph Health in Berea where she was pronounced dead.

C-Rod to miss opener

LEXINGTON (KT) — Kentucky will be without its top running back in the season opener against Miami of Ohio on Saturday at Kroger Field.

Veteran Chris Rodriguez has been suspended at least one game and maybe more after he was arrested and charged with DUI in July and is reportedly facing discipline for another off-the-field incident that UK coaches have not confirmed.

Kentucky football coach Mark Stoops didn't give a timetable on his possible return to the lineup.

"I expect a few of them will have multiple-game suspensions but I don't know," Stoops said without divulging any other specific player or players. "I'll address it next week ... There are layers to things. It's not always black and white. The players have rights and there are processes involved. That's where we're at."

Stoops added that he has been "in tune with the situation for awhile" and said, "things evolve, things change." "Information comes and goes," he said. "There are different layers to things. That means there are multiple different entities involved. I prefer not to dig anymore into it. I'm not withholding anything. I've been pretty in tune with what I felt like things were going to happen, but I have bosses and they have bosses."

The team's first depth chart listed Kavosiey Smoke as the No. 1 running back for the opener. Smoke, a senior, is listed ahead of Sam Houston State transfer Ramon Jefferson who was No. 2.

"He (Smoke) has this opportunity right now and we're excited. I'm excited for him and to see what he does with it," Stoops said. "I have a good feeling what he'll do, you know, because I've seen him seen him play through the years. I've seen his preparation. I like the way he's responded."

Stoops and the coaching staff "put more pressure" on Smoke in training camp with good results.

"We expect a lot out of him and we want to see that consistency," Stoops said. "I'm proud of the way he's responded the past couple of weeks because he didn't start out there. You know, he didn't start out in the number one spot, whether Chris was there or not, he's worked his way (up)."

Kentucky's newcomers were impressive in camp and the confidence of Stoops and the coaching staff in the freshmen class was evident on the depth chart.

Six freshmen were on the two-deep depth chart. Heralded receivers Dane Key and Barian Brown are listed on the first team and Stoops thinks at least eight freshmen will "play for sure."

Can Cats win 10?

The expectations are high as they should be for Kentucky this season

In two of the past four years, the Wildcats have notched 10 victories, both of which culminated with a win in the Citrus Bowl. Kentucky defeated Penn State on New Year's Day in 2018 and knocked off Iowa a year ago in Orlando. Mark Stoops is on the verge of becoming the school's all-time winningest coach, needing just two wins to surpass the late Paul "Bear" Bryant on the ledger.

A glance at the schedule, which features eight home games, and four road encounters, suggests Kentucky has a chance to produce 10 victories this season.

Keith Taylor

ence opener will also be Billy Napier's conference debut as coach of the Gators. Although Florida is the home team, it still won't be enough time to adapt to Napier's schemes on both sides of the ball. Kentucky 28, Florida 21.

Sept. 17 Youngstown State

The Penguins have been a traditional powerhouse in the FCS and Mark Stoops' hometown team and the team Kentucky tight ends coach and recruiting coordinator Vince Marrow grew up following in his own back year. Kentucky 45, Youngstown State 14.

Sept. 24 N. Illinois

In what will be the team's final non-conference game before settling into an SEC routine, the Wildcats shouldn't have any issues in the first meeting against the Huskies. Kentucky 56, N, Illinois 17.

Oct. 1 at Ole Miss

The Rebels have won the past two games in the series and are nearly unbeatable. A toss-up, but the Rebels have the edge since they are playing in front of the home crowd. Ole Miss 27, Kentucky 21

Oct. 8 South Carolina

Shane Beamer has the Gamecocks beaming but not enough to retain the dominance the enjoyed during most of the Steve Spurrier era. Kentucky 24, South Carolina 17.

Oct. 15 Miss. St.

In one of the most agonizing losses for Kentucky last season, the Bulldogs stunned the Wildcats in Starkville. The two teams meet at Kroger Field this time and around and Kentucky should win for the third time in the past five years. Kentucky 32, Mississippi State 28

Oct. 29 at Tennessee

This one, like most of the team's road games this season, could be tricky, depending on the health of the team. An open date the week before Oct. 22 will help Kentucky and give the Cats an advantage.. UK 29, Tennessee 27.

Nov. 5 at Missouri

Kentucky has enjoyed success against the Tigers and will continue that trend this year with ease. Kentucky 38, Missouri 27.

Nov. 12 Vanderbilt

A series that flipped flopped has become one as of late that has been dominated by Kentucky. Another relatively easy victory for the Wildcats. Kentucky 41, Vandy 21.

Nov. 19 Georgia

Depending on how the Wildcats and Bulldogs fare against the previous conference opponents, this one decides the SEC East champion. Georgia has won 12 in a row against Kentucky and is the defending national champion, which carries a lot of weight. Georgia 29, Kentucky 24.

Nov. 26 Louisville

Kentucky has captured three straight against the Cardinals and show no signs of letting up. The Wildcats should have 10 wins before learning of their postseason destination. Kentucky 31, Louisville 17.

Berea College salutes the Kiwanis Club of Berea on 100 years of support to the community and youth of southern Madison County.

Berea Kiwanis — Celebrating over 100 Years of community building

Centennial Celebration

Steve Connelly
Attorney-at-Law
CONGRATULATIONS ON 100 YEARS OF KIWANIS HISTORY

As reported by the Berea Citizen, "In May 1922 a group of Berea businessmen recognized the need for an association to bring businessmen together in a more social and vital way." The Kiwanis Clubs of Irvine/Ravenna and Winchester met on August 23, 1922, at Boone Tavern to organize the Kiwanis Club of Berea. Thus began an organization that celebrates its 100th year of service to the Berea community. The rest is our history.

Throughout the years, Berea Kiwanis has contributed vital support to the community ... monetarily, with spiritual support and physical labor. Our focus has always been on its citizens and their children. From Berea Memorial Park to Kendyl playground, parks have been created or been the benefactors of our interests. We donated over $40,000 to the extension of Scaffold Cane Dixie Highway, but no task has been too menial, as highway trash pickup has been a signature project for decades. We have contributed to beautification when we planted the Redbuds and Dogwoods along Highway 25 and trees on the Berea College campus. Our youth services encompass fun things like youth sports leagues and campouts, but also scholarships, school resource centers, and purchases of equipment for those challenged or in need of some extra support. Our Annual Easter Egg Hunt has been a signature event since 1938! Books, schools, and children of all ages are our friends.

Since those early 1922 meetings, our Berea Club has been one of “firsts” for our Division and the Kentucky-Tennessee District. First with an interracial Board of Directors (1972); first elected African American K-T District Governor; first to admit women (1987); first elected female Lt. Governor from our Club (2010) and a long list of other firsts, too numerous to mention.

Our outreach has extended beyond the boundaries of Madison County as we contribute thousands to local, regional, and international disaster relief funds. In 1922, Berea Kiwanis pledged to support the Kiwanis International motto, "We Build." To continue our century old legacy of community building, we endorse our most recent directive, "Kids need Kiwanis" and Kiwanis needs YOU.
