Small towns a step back in time

I'm not from the big city. I was born and raised in rural Madison County and appreciate the small-town feel of this place I call home. During a business trip to Barren River State Park last weekend, Rhonda and I enjoyed touring country roads in the western end of the state all while in the central time zone, which will be our "new time" come Sunday. We liked our stay at the Barren River Lodge, which is tucked away close to beautiful Barren River Lake. In between Kentucky Press Association business meetings, we explored the area and enjoyed a drive through Glasgow and Bowling Green.

For some reason, Rhonda and I enjoy exploring and checking the scenery. We stumbled upon the road that leads to Mammoth Cave Park but didn't have enough time to explore the cave, which we toured on a family vacation more than three decades ago.

Our vacation times were always the best when I was growing up and we made the best of each and every opportunity. Mom and Dad always worked hard, but when it was vacation time, we jumped in the car and took off and explored.

I guess that's one reason I like to just drive and explore and find it an enjoyable experience. In reality Dad was lost, but referred to it as a "scenic drive," which drove mom crazy.

After taking care of business, we ventured back toward Knoxville, where I covered the Kentucky-Tennessee game Saturday night in Knoxville.

While on the way to Big Orange Country, we took the backroads and made a stop in Celina, Tennessee, home of the Jackson County Bulldogs. The small Tennessee town had the feel of Mayberry and was one of the highlights of our trip.

We stopped in what could be considered downtown and had breakfast at the "Gone Country" cafe, which served breakfast all day long. Rhonda wondered why I kept driving west instead of going to Shoney's in Glasgow, but sometimes you just have to change course and trust your instincts. Speaking of Shoney's we did the breakfast bar before we left for home Sunday, but it wasn't in Glasgow.

Next to the restaurant was a bakery that served homemade goodies and a very reasonable price. We snagged some sweets before heading to our next retreat in Oak Ridge, Tennessee. Knowing that hotel rooms in Knoxville were going to be expensive last weekend, I settled for points and a stay approximately 30 minutes away from Knox County.

Kentucky took a beating from the Volunteers on Saturday night but it didn't take away from an enjoyable business trip on a beautiful fall weekend.

It reminded me no matter where you go, you can always find a small town close around.

Letters to the editor

Shell: Taylor a strong county executive

Dear Editor:
Leadership matters. When a community has a strong executive who knows how to get things done, it shows. The leadership and effectiveness of Judge-Executive Reagan Taylor is on full display when you enter Madison County. That is why I encourage you to vote for him this November.

I've watched Reagan's steady hand at work as he has guided unprecedented growth in your community. He's also helped navigate significant challenges to make sure the community and its citizens have come out ahead. I have known Reagan personally for most of my life, there is not a better man to serve Madison County and lead it's future.

The type of leadership that Reagan offers is also well respected in Frankfort. He's got the ear of decision makers which benefits Madison County. He works with anyone to get you results. Reagan Taylor is effective, and he will never stop working for you. I hope you'll vote to keep him working for you as Judge-Executive.

Hubbard: Alcohol referendum not needed

Dear Editor:
The Citizen did a good page on the Amendment I and Amendment II. I enjoyed reading the Citizen each week to catch the Berea news. I read in October 12 issue of the Citizen that Donna Angel of Berea Business and Tourism Development, said "A referendum could clear way for Kroger to come to Berea."

Kroger only comes to cities that can sell alcohol in their stores. We read that Kroger can receive over 20% of their revenue from alcohol sales. Then Donna Angel said, "Berea just did not fit the communities where other stores are located."

I think this difference is why more families are moving to Berea. Talk to the people in the community school, and about the many new students that have enrolled this year! Folks can just drive 12 miles to all the stores and bars that sell alcohol.

In 1994, my husband and I chose 2 acres just 5 miles with a beautiful drive to Chestnut street. We Drove to Lexington several times a year to hear the concerts in the opera house but would never choose to live in Lexington. You see on T.V. about their news!

During the last 3 years, after talking to Madison Co. Health Dept and they had a different job between Berea and Richmond stores and the COVID problems in the closed bars. We also have different kinds of students in the two colleges! Berea just came through a good 2021-22 audit of over 7 million dollars, exceeding expenditures by 9 1/2 million.

We read of other new businesses are soon coming to Berea. Oh, so sad.

Time to heal

One of the greatest Presidents of all time was Franklin D. Roosevelt. He served from 1933 to 1945. He led this country and saw us through some of our toughest years. Many say he stands as the greatest President of all time. Ironically, he had a difficult time standing.

Photographs of Roosevelt in a wheelchair are rare but you can find one on the Internet.

Franklin D. Roosevelt, was our 32nd President but he began experiencing symptoms of a paralytic illness in 1921 when he was 39 years old. His main symptoms were fever; symmetric, ascending paralysis; facial paralysis; bowel and bladder dysfunction; numbness and hyperesthesia; and a descending pattern of recovery. He was diagnosed with poliomyelitis and underwent years of therapy, including hydrotherapy at Warm Springs, Georgia. Roosevelt remained paralyzed from the waist down and relied on a wheelchair and leg braces for mobility, which he took efforts to conceal in public. In 1938, he founded the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, leading to the development of polio vaccines. Although historical accounts continue to refer to Roosevelt's case as polio, the diagnosis has been questioned in the context of current medical science, with a competing diagnosis of Guillain-Barré syndrome proposed by some authors.

We could talk and write about Franklin D. Roosevelt all day. However here are a few of his noted accomplishments from his 12 years of service – longer than anyone. Creation of the emergency banking act to counteract the Great Depression. Establishment of FDIC. Unemployment rate reduction. Setup many institutions to support the New Deal. Created institutions as part of the New Deal. Created the U.S. Social Security System. Established the minimum wage and 40-hour work week. He took action to prohibit discrimination in employment, led America to victory in World War II, and, took part in the creation of the United Nations. He also aided water pollution control and more. (Wikipedia)

However, would Roosevelt even have a chance today? Can you imagine him trying to conceal his wheelchair or his leg braces? Not in this age. Would The Press and the opposition tear him to shreds as being physically incapable of holding down the job?

Disabled Americans and people worldwide can point to Roosevelt as someone who dealt with tremendous physical obstacles to accomplish much for our country and the world.

Americans with disabilities should not be excluded from running for public office. We vote for who we want to vote for but in a free country all citizens should be able to try.

John Fetterman of Pennsylvania is trying.

He has had a stroke, but he's trying. It has been amazing to witness the amount of support

Glenn Mollette

Pennsylvania has given Fetterman. He is in a dead heat race with national celebrity Dr. Mehmet Oz whose star power as a long time TV doctor star has surely greatly boosted him in his race with Fetterman for the United States Senate.

Tragically, Fetterman's health apparently prevents him from articulating clearly. His mental ability to quickly process what he is hearing is obviously impaired. This has to make it tough for him. Roosevelt did not have this problem. His mind appeared to be sharp and his speech clear and convincing during his years as President. This is where Roosevelt's situation and Fetterman's is different.

Fetterman needs and deserves time to heal. He obviously needs continuing medical treatment and therapy to recuperate from his stroke. He is still a young man. In a year, or two he may be fully recovered and more able to serve. This is unfortunate for Fetterman and his supporters but only makes sense for his personal health. The fact that he is running for such a demanding job in his current state demonstrates that his mental clarity is somewhat impaired. It also demonstrates that people close to him are mentally impaired to have encouraged him to continue in this political contest.

He needs time to get well so that if elected he can serve effectively.

The bottom line is that voters will decide who represents them. This is one right we must continue to cherish, protect and be mentally clear about.

Library remains committed to neutrality

When we hear “intellectual freedom,” we often immediately think of book banning. While censorship is indeed the antithesis of the free access to information, it is almost reductive to focus solely on activities like book banning when we talk about intellectual freedom.

Lately, book banning seems to be constantly in the headlines. Just the phrase “book banning” conjures all sorts of frightening images of officials forcing citizens to throw books into fire pits. Since it is a subject that appeals to emotion, I fear that the nature of some of these headlines about book banning seeks to play on divisiveness. While book challenges are a real threat to our democracy in that they seek to rob individuals of personal choice, when we focus solely on this facet of censorship we automatically zero in on taking a side, tuning out anything else.

What gets lost in the shuffle here is a conversation about all functions and principles of intellectual freedom. All of us may have differing opinions about the merit, relevance or veracity of different information resources, but I believe we all value having a choice in the matter. Intellectual freedom, then, is actually an ideology that can unite us.

At its core, intellectual freedom is a guarantee of personal choice. It enables people to seek and process information of their choosing without restriction from any agency or other individual. The principle of intellectual freedom promotes access to all viewpoints, and encourages us to use our own judgment when gathering and processing information. Further, the right to speak, publish, and assemble under the First Amendment has been interpreted by the Supreme Court as a means of protecting us from government censorship of books and other printed media.

Ensuring our constitutional right to read continues is truly one of the reasons I became a public librarian. I believe public libraries are stalwart defenders of the freedom to access information of one’s choosing. The library as an institution has no agenda, we take no sides, and we welcome everyone with no exception. To me, our neutrality is our best quality, and the primary safeguard of intellectual freedom.

Intentional or not, neglecting to embrace, value, and operationalize institutional neutrality is akin to book banning. It is simply a form of censorship. When public agencies begin to chip away at neutrality, the inherent biases of those agencies are front and center. As a result, information is limited, representing only a selection of viewpoints, alienating individuals and removing choice. This, again, is the antithesis of intellectual freedom.

While a shift away from neutrality may have begun with intentions of representation and inclusivity, the end result is exclusivity. Exclusive is the last thing a public library should be.

Perhaps for me, institutional neutrality conjures the emotional response most have to book banning. As the Madison County Public Library Director I take the library’s neutrality very seriously. Providing barrier-free access to information that is reflective of all viewpoints, opinions and deeply held beliefs of the 93,000 residents of Madison County is our primary function and it is a privilege we do not take lightly.

The library’s commitment to neutrality seeks to preserve and protect intellectual freedom - all of its facets - and that, to me, is something we can all get behind.

Reflections

From the Berea Citizen archives

Oct. 26, 1922

The flat iron building on the corner of Chestnut and Boone Streets, was destroyed by fire on Sunday night, October 23. It housed the Berea Baking Company. The fire, which originated in an oil burner, was believed to have exploded when baker John Nix attempted to light it. Owing to the confusion among the members of the fire department as to the direction of the fire, they arrived too late to save the building. However, their tenacity in hanging with the raging flames until 1 a.m. undoubtedly saved adjoining buildings from destruction. The building, owned by A. F. Scruggs of Berea was valued at $2,500 and was insured for $2,000. The equipment contained inside of the building was worth approximately $2,000. $1,000 of that equipment belonged to Johnson and Howe, who were operating the establishment.

Oct. 30, 1947

The annual banquet for all 4-H Club County Champions and 4-H Club Leaders sponsored by the Berea Kiwanis Club was held Friday, November 7th at Boone Tavern. It was announced that the County Agent’s Office featured on the program would be reporting on the prize-winning projects by the County Champions and recognition of the two district champions from Southern Madison district. John Hesse, President of the Kiwanis Club, would extend a welcome to 4-Hers and would be answered by Harold Bowman, newly elected county 4-H Club president. Following the welcome and response, Ernestene Lamb, song leader, lead a group song. Evelyn Callihan, retiring secretary, officiated the remaining pledges. Albert Schumacher, president of the County 4-H Council introduced club leaders and the 4-H Council members. William Robert Hutcherson introduced county champions. Hutcherson was the retiring county 4-H president. Following introductions of the county champions, Mrs. Helen Blanton, County Home Demonstration Agent, introduced the two district champions, William Robert Hutcherson, Poultry Champion and Shirley Belle Johnson, Housekeeping Champion.

Nov. 1, 1972

With a renewed pledge of support from Berea and Richmond business and civic leaders, Berea College trustees voted to continue the outdoor drama, “Wilderness Road,” for another year. College president Willis D. Weatherford said the board at its fall meeting agreed to continue Paul Green’s drama on the basis of a commitment from the Friends of the Berea Outdoor Drama Association to rails $10,000 toward the 1980 production costs.

Oct. 29, 1992

Re-established in January of 1992, the Bluegrass Chapter of the Dream Factory, had successfully fulfilled the dreams of three children and was currently working on a fourth. All of this was made possible by hard work and creative fund-raising ideas by local chapter members. The only compensation these volunteers received was a big smile from those children who had had their dreams come true. The Madison County Chapter had hosted several fund-raising events during the year beginning with a benefit trail ride called “Ride for the Rainbow.” The event was co-sponsored by a local trail club. Despite adverse weather conditions, all riders had a good time and made new friends while raising money to fulfil the dreams of another child.

Japanese exchange revived after hiatus

For the first time since the onset of the COVID-19 global pandemic, Madison County and Hokuto City Japan will revive their sister-region cultural exchange program when Hokuto City Mayor Eiji Kamimura leads a to four-day visit to Berea and Richmond beginning November 7.

Mayor Kamimura will be accompanied by city government, school, tourism, and local chamber of commerce officials. The visit will renew a bond between Madison County and Japan after a hiatus in the exchange program. “In recent years, the COVID-19 has changed the shape and form of cultures and communities around the world,” Kamimura stated. “We hope this visit to the U.S. will become an opportunity to further develop our sister-region program for the future, continuing our unchanged friendship and bonds for many years to come, as well as to create new collaborative educational opportunities.”

Welcoming the Japanese to Berea, Richmond and Madison County will be Berea Mayor Bruce Fraley, Richmond Mayor Robert Blythe, Madison County Judge/ Executive Reagan Taylor, as well as Berea College President Lyle Roelofs and Eastern Kentucky University President David McFaddin, among others. The Japanese visit is being facilitated by the Madison County International Committee (MCIC), and will include the formalization of an agreement to create a new educational exchange program between Model High School in Richmond and Koryo High School in Hokuto City.

The MCIC was formed in 1988, after Takane town Mayor Masatami Shimizu reached out to Eastern Kentucky University professor Martha Conaway to propose a cultural exchange that was initially between Takane-cho and Berea. That led to the formation of an agreement between the two local governments and the creation of the MCIC.

City Council has been an educational and rewarding endeavor. I hope I’ve made a positive impact and would welcome the opportunity to continue to serve the citizens of Berea.

- The issues facing Berea include aging infrastructure, maintaining the workforce necessary to provide city services, and meeting needs and expectations of the citizens amidst ever increasing costs. Prioritizing spending is crucial.
- The city can not and should not be all things to all people. Government’s primary role is seeing to the safety and well being of citizens. Berea does this by providing police and fire protection, and maintaining and improving infrastructure. Beyond those things, the city government also seeks to improve the quality of life for its residents through high standards in building and growth, economic development, parks and recreation, and promoting tourism.
- The current administration is continually and successfully seeking out business and industry to locate in town. Berea has seen numerous wonderful additions in just the past two years. Among the more noteworthy are the long awaited Berea campus of Madison County School’s vocational and technology center and AppHarvest, in addition to chain fast food restaurants and many small businesses.
- Determining something underrated is hard for me. I believe we do good job promoting all the things that make Berea a special place. I would put good, kind, hardworking people at the top of a list that would include good places to work and play, a wide choice of churches, excellent schools and much more.

Berea and wanted to give back to my community. I have served 7 consecutive terms on council and feel we have made many good accomplishments over the last 14 years.

- I feel our electric contract. That must be renewed in May 2024 is that biggest single issue we are facing. My goal is to make sure we put out a good R.F.P. for numerous electric companies to bid on our wholesale electric and make sure we continue to keep quality electrical service for our city and most affordable price possible.
- City government’s role is to make sure we have a very efficient city with a good police and fire department maintain our infrastructures and parks, be a good steward of tax payer money while maintaining a rainy day fund, and take care of our employees.
- We need to continue to keep good infrastructures and maintain and grow our industrial park. Keep our utilities and tax rates as low as possible. Our new technical parks. Keep our utilities and tax rates as low as possible. Our new technical school will also help attract new businesses with a well-trained and educated work force. We offer a safe city with good police and fire departments and have a excellent park system and walking trails.
- The most underrated thing about Berea is its citizens. Berea is a very friendly place with lots of job opportunities and a safe place to raise a family with good schools.

and Collins Funeral Home in Richmond.

- I am running to see the completion of the raising of the Owsley Fork Dam, a project that was put back on the front burner after my first election 6 years ago. I am also running for the continues economic development of Berea. This is the fourth them to run. I am seeking my fourth term in office.
- The single biggest issue to me for Berea is our water supply. For the past 6 years, we have been working to get the dam raised at Owsley Fork and bureaucracy to get the project done has been phenomenal. Hopefully, we will see bids let, and construction started in 2023.
- The main role of the government in Berea is to supply police and fire protection. Streets, infrastructure, Parks, and recreation etc., are not next. The main role of the City Council is to control the purse strings or the budget.
- One thing that may be unpopular to some people is for Berea to become wet. Until we do become wet, instead of just some historical building or districts being wet, changes are very good that we will never attract a name-brand names grocery store or any chain restaurants to come to our town. Berea is on and island. Out county seat is wet as well as every county around us is wet, and here we sit.
- Our trail system, the pinnacles, mountain bike trail, Owsley Fork Lake. We have a good Tourism Commission, and they have, and will continue, I hope to let people far and wide know what we have to offer.

- The biggest issue facing Berea is affordability. Many different things are getting high and out of hand for the common person to afford.
- The role of the city government is to hear the voice of the people and make decisions that would benefit them.
- We need more community events that are free or low cost to the community. Also could benefit from more places to shop. That being grocery stores or department stores.
- The trails and beauty of our nature. More events within our trails are needed or offered.

over the past two years as a governing body and hope to continue to serve Berea in the future.

- I am running for Berea City Council to continue to see Berea transform into the place that I want my family to live. We have made incredible progress over the past few years, and it feels like Berea is on the cusp of truly seeing the kind of growth that is our potential. I have served on the City Council for 8 years and this is my fifth election.
- The single greatest issue facing Berea is the long-term financial health of the City. We are at a point of ever-increasing expenses and revenues that are not able to grow at the same rate of the expenses. City government is in the people business. We provide services that require a great deal of labor, and the city is going to need to work toward making sure we are doing that as efficiently as possible to remain solvent in the next decade. We must make difficult decisions both within the government and the utilities as we go to market for wholesale power once again.
- The role of city government is to provide services and infrastructure to the citizens of the city. The specific role of Council in our form of government is to legislate and set the budget for the city. The greatest annual responsibility that we have as a body is to set the budget to be the financial road map for the upcoming year. This document annually shows the priorities and goals of the government. We must constantly be working with our city administration and department heads to make sure that when the budget process comes about there are no surprises about difficult decisions that must be made for the future of the city.
- The number one thing that Berea can do to attract businesses is to understand what potential businesses are looking for and be prepared when they visit our city. We have spent many years insuring that our industrial park has the amenities that make us competitive both regionally and nationally. The work that has been done to have shovel ready sites, expand the industrial park, and put in place the proper infrastructure to access these properties is the reason that Berea has been so successful recently in landing business prospects.
- The most underrated thing about Berea is the outdoor resources that we have surrounding our city. We have pushed these the last few years, but there still needs to be work done to improve what we currently have while looking for new opportunities. There must be a focus on increasing the overall experience of both people who are visiting Berea and those that live year. Berea must focus on keeping our exceptional youth while bringing in new people to keep our city thriving for the short-term and long-term.

I was elected in 2015 and have served 3 terms.

- There are several issues facing Berea, but the one that concerns me the most is having an adequate workforce to attract new business and industry. I really believe that Berea’s new vocational school will help meet that need.
- The role of Berea City Government should be to serve and meet the needs of its citizens.
- We need to be more business friendly. I believe the current administration is going in the right direction to accomplish this goal.
- The taxpayers of Berea are the most underrated and valuable asset we have. We need to listen to their ideas and suggestions. Fresh ideas are good! I think we learned this when listening to the citizens of Farristown.

Council, I have provided a conservative voice for ALL to ensure we, as a City, don’t waste tax payers dollars. I will continue to be conservative voice.

- I think there are 2 major issues facing Berea: (1) connecting the Roselawn subdivision to the new bypass and, (2) the bridge on Highway 1016 that crosses Silver Creek.
- For as long as I can remember, coming up with a solution to the single entry / exit point for the Dixie Park / Roselawn subdivisions has been an issue. With the completion of the new bypass in the near future, myself and a few others on the City Council are working on a plan for a connection for this area to the new bypass.
- The Silver Creek bridge on Highway 1016 should have been widened to allow safer pedestrian traffic back in the Summer when the State was resurfacing. A lot of students cross this bridge on foot daily and, in my opinion, creates a real safety hazard. The City needs to work with the State to get this bridge safer for pedestrians.
- I think the role of city Government is to maintain, update, and repair city facilities, promote economic development, and provide public safety services (fire / police). We should provide all of these things with a balanced budget, keeping in mind that they are spending the Citizens dollars.
- Donna Angel, Economic Development Director, and the Economic Development Committee, of which I am a member, have been working together on several fronts for recruitment of businesses for Berea. We must keep up the good work we have been doing.
- I think that Berea has a lot to offer, both citizens and visitors. Our parks, walking trails, locally owned restaurants are all a valuable part of Berea. We need to continue our support for tourism, just as long as the money is spent in a useful manner.

daughters Aimee and Lyndee. I also have an infant granddaughter named Evelyn. I taught first and second grade at Berea Community for 31 years and continue to substitute as time allows. I enjoy volunteering with children and also devoting time to dog rescue.

- I am running for city council because I believe it is now my time to serve my community. Throughout the past 60 years our city government has been guided by many citizens who chose to donate their time through city government. It is now time for me to “step up” and give something back to Berea. I want to make a difference to my hometown and be the voice of its citizens.
- The feedback I have gotten overwhelmingly presents lack of affordable housing as a primary concern. Many citizens have struggled finding a place that they can afford to rent / buy. Rental housing particularly concerns many. This is a problem in many cities nationwide and there is no single solution. While there are many factors to consider; it is my belief it is the basic economics of supply and demand. When demand is high, costs go up. Therefore, we need to increase the supply and costs should go down. To increase our housing supply we need to make it easier for builders to build these kinds of dwellings. This could include :
 - Financial incentives for construction of affordable homes is needed. Some possible incentives might be federal / state supports and grants, and better lending terms on construction of affordable homes. We need to explore housing options like manufactured housing, condominiums, and “flipping” existing buildings. Also Study / Revise zoning, and construction regulations to ease the “red tape” for those who Want to build / invest in affordable housing.
 - As a local legislative body; the city council is responsible to the citizens who elected them. The role of the City Council is to identify the problems and needs within the community.
- The council is then to establish community goals and objectives to meet those needs. The city council is to be the voice of the people who elect them.
- I believe we could attract more businesses to Berea if we can attract more people to live / or visit here. Improving our small town feel with revitalizing the Main Street area, and promoting outdoor recreational activities available in the Berea area would bring visitors. Increasing affordable housing opportunities would increase the population and improve the economic opportunities.
- In my opinion the most underrated thing about Berea is its position as a central location for outdoor recreation. With our walking / biking trails and the Owsley / Pinnacles area Berea could be used as a hub for outdoor recreation in Kentucky. We are within an hour of multiple outdoor recreation destinations and could market ourselves as the start / return point for Kentucky- outdoor adventures. Our state promotes exploring Outdoor Kentucky already and we could “ride the coattails” of that advertising.

In my four years on council, the city has completed a major highway project (US 25N), begun an expansion to the Berea Bypass and made substantial improvements to our city’s roads. More than a mile of shared-used path has been added along with a splash pad, ball-field improvements, two new parks, a Pavilion and a section of Boone’s Trace trail through Brushy Fork. In this time we have also seen expansions and addition at the airport, with local businesses and industry. We are on track to see the opening of a new vocational school, two more large sections of shared used path, and expansion of our Owsley Fork Reservoir and other projects during the next term.

- I have served for nearly four years and have seen a substantial amount of progress in that time. This will be my fourth time on the ballot. I believe with continued work on council and through advocacy with our local magistrates, our state representatives and partners, Berea will continue to improve our parks, services, infrastructure and employment opportunities.
- Like most communities, city government must address quality of life issues. We address it by proper maintenance and improvements in infrastructure. We address it through park expansion, improvements and community events. We address it by holding public employees to high standards and retaining them through fair and competitive compensation. By focusing on the quality of life of our citizens, we attract new residents and businesses to our community and give Berea even more to offer.
- City government is responsible for ensuring public services are maintained at a high standard. City government coordinates with service vendors and public employees to ensure accountability and that the needs of the city and its citizens are being met.
- The city must continue its pace of improvements in its roads, sidewalks, trails, and parks. The same things that make Berea an attractive place to live will attract businesses to our community. We must also make sure that our Business & Economic Development Office and Small Business Center have the resources they need to communicate effectively the benefits of opening a new business in Berea.
- Berea has a growing path and trail system that sets us apart from most of our neighbors. While we are still known as the Arts and Crafts Capital of KY, our trails encourage visitors to stay longer and explore Berea. Unlike many tourist attractions, our paths and trails are a free and accessible benefit to our residents year round. Over the coming years, I will do my part to advocate for more of these paths and to connect the ones we have.

Trails remain popular since pandemic

By Andy McDonald
For The Citizen

Use of Berea’s trail system has remained strong in the wake of the COVID-19 pandemic, according to a study from the Berea College Health and Human Performance Department.

Dr. Louisa Summers revealed the results of the study at Tuesday’s meeting of the Berea City Council, focusing on Stephenson Trail. Use of the trail surged during the pandemic and residents and visitors have continued that trend. When the surveys began in 2018, 17,912 used Stephenson Trail, which runs from Tillie Memorial Dog Park on Harrison Court, up Short Line Pike, along Highway 21 then on to Indian Fort Theater. Those numbers peaked during the pandemic, then settled at 30,706 users in 2022, according to Summers. “COVID got people out to our trails, and they have stayed there,” Summers said. There was also an increase in cyclists on the path since Stephenson Trail was connected to Indian Fort Theater, and those numbers have stayed constant since, Summers reported. Overall, local citizens seem to be deriving the most benefit from the trails so far, as approximately 67 percent surveyed were local residents, 14 percent were from Richmond, and six percent were from Lexington. Berea Tourism has recently launched a campaign promoting the trails following the opening of the Silver Creek Mountain Bike Park last year.

In response to a question from Summers, Berea Mayor Bruce Fraley reported the trail network is expanding to include trails along Phase II of the Berea Bypass, running from U.S. 25 N. to Highway 21. Additionally, the city is currently making efforts to add a trail along Scaffold Cane Road and another on Ellipse Street to Richmond Road.

On another note, Summers said her Berea College research assistants Maria Martinez and Dalton Harris asked participants whether climate affected their use of the trails, especially during hotter months. Those over 25 years old said they used the trails regardless of the climate, while those aged 18-25 reported climate did affect their decision as to whether to use the trail.

In other news, Berea City Administrator Rose Beverly requested three expenditures that cost slightly more than was budgeted. The council approved a purchase from Lakeside Equipment for Berea Municipal Utilities for a screw pump lower bearing assembly for approximately $48,000, the purchase of two Dodge Durangos for the Berea Police Department for $103,472, and approval of a street striping contract from Central Seal for approximately $21,000.

During the mayoral comments segment of the meeting, Berea Mayor Bruce Fraley read a letter from Bro. Mike Caudill at First Baptist Church in Hindman, thanking Berea for the city’s recent coat drive effort. The drive for coats, socks, and other warm clothing was started three weeks ago at the behest of Mayor Fraley, and was driven by the Berea Police Department and the Berea Fire Department.

Fraley said the drive was in response to the fact that many people in the Hindman area are still unable to return home in the wake of recent flooding in southeastern Kentucky, and that the mountain region is entering the cold season. Many of the affected residents were without warm clothing. Additionally, Fraley reported Church on the Rock pledged $5,000 to go toward the purchase of new warm clothing, at which point the mayor thanked all who were involved in the drive.

Turning to city finances, city of Berea Finance Director Susan Meeks addressed the council, reminding citizens that Berea city taxes are paid using the blue mailer, while Madison County taxes are paid with the yellow mailer. Meeks reported some residents are inadvertently trying to pay their county tax bills by mailing the yellow bill to the city of Berea. The deadline to receive a two percent discount on Berea city taxes is November 30.

Meeks also noted the city is still receiving applications to sign up for the Berea Municipal Utilities (BMU) new alert system, which will notify customers of events like power outages, boil water advisories, and other alerts. Customers who sign up before December 1 are eligible for a drawing to receive a $150 credit on their utility bill. Meeks said approximately 250 customers have signed up so far. More information is available at bereautilities.com, by emailing bereautilities@berea.gov, or by calling BMU at 986-4391.

In other finance-related news, Meeks reported revenue for both the city of Berea and Berea Municipal Utilities is up in the first quarter of the fiscal year, compared to last year. Meeks said general revenues are up by about $150,000 compared to 2021. Property tax revenues, for example, are up 44 percent compared to the previous fiscal year, Meeks reported.

The next Berea City Council meeting is slated for November 15.

Startzman calls for civility as election nears

By Andy McDonald
For The Citizen

Berea City Councilmember Katie Startzman made an emotional appeal for civility Tuesday evening, calling on council members to disassociate themselves from a campaign to elect a conservative slate of candidates to the council.

The first-term council member cited signs posted around town urging voters to select five current incumbents, Jerry Little, Cora Jane Wilson, Teresa Scenters, Jim Davis, and Ronnie Terrill, in addition, and former councilman David Rowlette and first-time candidate Rebecca McClure Issacs. Incumbents Startzman, Steve Caudill and John Payne were excluded from the proposed slate.

Startzman accused the organizers of the campaign of running afoul campaign laws, but she objected most to the tenor of the campaign, which she claims is ratcheting up “a toxic campaign of hate,” against certain incumbents, other candidates for office, as well as family members of public officials.

“This is wrong,” Startzman said. “This is unacceptable, and I challenge those of you who are on this slate to speak out against this.” Startzman noted some current incumbents were not aware their names were on the sign, while others actually helped install them, she alleged.

“I’ve heard from many citizens over the last two weeks, on both sides of the aisle, stating how tired they are of the toxic hate that this group and individual is spewing all over this city. I’m tired of it at meetings, I’m tired of it on social media, I’m tired of people boycotting my business [The Native Bagel and Nightjar]. And I know by speaking out, by wanting something better for our city, I will probably be further targeted. But sometimes being a leader means sticking your neck out when real consequences could come from that. Maybe I won’t get reelected. I don’t know.”

Startzman nonetheless implored her fellow council members to stand against the campaign to exclude certain incumbents because of their personal views. “I urge my colleagues who are finding support from this individual and her social media crew to withdraw their support from that body and say we are a community that values collaboration, we can work with people who are not the same as us, and we all want to move Berea forward instead of continuing the cycle of sniping, and this cancer of this...hateful perspective.”

Startzman did not specifically name the individual or organization responsible for the campaign, though she added she is proud of her work with the other members of the council, regardless of their politics. “I hope you hear my comments in the spirit in which they are intended, because I really value the role of all of you on council, and I don’t want any of us to not be here in the future. But I also feel like we all need to respect each other as colleagues and professionals, and say, ‘This is the line that we are drawing in the sand.’”

During council comments, Councilman Ronnie Terrill addressed Startzman’s remarks, accusing her of not observing the Pledge of Allegiance at the beginning of meetings.

Terrill said he personally takes exception to that because his father was a combat veteran, and because he believes the flag should be respected.

Terrill closed by urging citizens to vote in next Tuesday’s election.

parents of kids. I ran for city council in 2014 and was not successful. In 2020, I ran again and have been serving on council since then. I’m proud of the way I have represented the citizens of Berea over the past 2 years by sharing information via social media videos, being a professional and well-prepared colleague, and working collaboratively with the administration and other council members.

- The single biggest issue facing our city is the disproportionate growth of our expenditures and our revenue. Expenses are rising, and our revenue is not growing at the same rate. This is an issue facing many communities in the state/region, but this trend is likely to continue to be the biggest challenge we face as we look for more creative ways to provide services to Berea citizens, while keeping a close eye on our cash reserves. Being resourceful is key to addressing this issue! I think public/private partnerships could be utilized more, for one example, a “Friends of Berea Parks” foundation could solicit sponsorships for events and facilities at the city parks. We also need to look critically at the expenses we have in our budget, and carefully weigh the cost/benefit of each line item. I prioritize carefully reading and researching our budget when we go thru that process each year. Thanks to the leadership of our city administrator, will soon begin working on long-term financial planning and projecting for our city finances, and I’m looking forward to seeing the 5 and 10 year trends as that will help inform how we should move forward- as this will continue to be a huge issue.

- The largest role of city government is to provide essential services to residents. The primary role of the council is to determine our values and priorities by passing the budget each year.

- For Berea to attract more businesses, we need to be providing not only traditional city services or even economic development incentives, but we need to be a great place to live- a place that offers a high quality of life. An inclusive, diverse city is more attractive to creative entrepreneurs and small business owners. We need to resist the division and vitriol that some folks want to bring to the table and work together for a shared vision of a vibrant community with strong leadership, healthy discourse, and welcoming of new ideas and voices. This culture of excitement and entrepreneurial momentum can’t be purchased or faked, and I believe it’s the spark we desperately need if we are going to continue to attract folks who are looking to start or grow a business. Also, on a more practical note, we don’t have a ton of commercial property stock. Incentivizing property owners to rent their vacant commercial properties could provide spots for new businesses looking to open.

- The most underrated thing about Berea is the small business owners who have been in business for a long time and are still here. It’s very compelling to look for the next big thing, the new sexy businesses, but we should also celebrate the folks who have already chosen to make an investment in our community by putting down roots and starting businesses here. I would like to for our economic development committee to seek new ways to support and uplift the folks who are already here, doing the hard work of building a business.

State prepared for Nov. 8

FRANKFORT (KT) – Kentucky Secretary of State Michael Adams says both state and local officials have been working to ensure the Nov. 8 general election is secure, especially when there is early voting taking place.

In an interview with Kentucky Today on Tuesday, Adams said there have been a lot of changes since he took office in 2020, hundreds of pages worth. Most of them are very technical, but they do improve the security of the ballot boxes and scanners during early voting days.

“One example would be putting video surveillance on ballot boxes, when they’re not being voted in,” he said. “We don’t want people surveilled while they’re voting, obviously, but we do want to have surveillance on these boxes because now, with multiple days, we don’t just wheel them out and wheel them back in. We have to have a process to make sure they are adequately supervised, when voting isn’t going on overnight.”

Another change is fewer polling places, in favor of better ones that are larger with more parking available, and that are ADA compliant. Each county came up with their own location plans, which were then approved by the State Board of Elections.

“Our elections are secure,” Adams said. “I maintain they have never been more secure than they are today. What we’ve learned, and what we’re telling other states now, is that you can make your elections accessible and secure, simultaneously.”

Adams, a Republican, said separate bills dealing with ballot access and security passed the General Assembly this year with wide bipartisan support. “As far as I know, we are the only state in America where the Democrats came together to vote for better security. And I think that is what has made Kentucky so special the last few years, and an example to the rest of the country, is you can do both at the same time, in a bipartisan way.”

Combating misinformation regarding voter suppression and election security is something Adams has been involved in and says local county clerks have been a big factor in responding to the peoples’ concerns, since they are closer to the people than state or federal officials.

However, he is also being proactive. “If we hear goofy rumors, we call them out, and we have our own Snopes page on our website, where we address it and disprove it. We get a lot of traffic and compliments on our rumor control site. We also use social media pretty actively to respond.”

The rumor control page is <https://www.sos.ky.gov/elections/Pages/Rumor-Control.aspx>.

While Franklin County Clerk Jeff Hancock is predicting a 60% turnout in his county, Adams believes statewide it will be somewhere between 45-50%.

“We have what I call a ‘barbell ballot’ this time,” he said. “You have a U.S. Senate race at the top of the ballot and you have Constitutional Amendment 2 at the bottom of the ballot. Those two things are the primary drivers, I think.”

He pointed out the legislative, county, judge, and city races in the middle of the ballot are all important. “They get lost in the clutter of the Senate race television ads and the Amendment 2 ads. Those two will drive the turnout, but the question is how will they drive it?”

Adams notes the majority of mail-in absentee ballot requests came from registered Democrats, while most early in-person absentee voting has been among Republicans.

No excuse, in-person voting takes place Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Check with the county clerk for hours and locations. There is no voting on Monday, so the county clerks can prepare for election day.

He adds his office and the Attorney General’s office will continue having an election integrity working group to ensure the election is a clean one.

Ben Robinson, III, is the Magistrate for the 1st District of Madison County. Robinson has served Southern Madison County for over 28 years through elected service on the Berea City Council and the Berea School Board, through committee work on the Finance, Ethics, Planning and Zoning, Personnel, and Public Works Committees and by serving on the Pattie A. Clay Medical Center Board, the US Selective Service Board, and as Chair of the Berea City Parks Board. He is a 1984 graduate of Berea Independent Schools, a 1989 graduate of Eastern Kentucky University, and has worked in the Supply Chain and Transportation Industry for over 30 years.

Why are you

See ROBINSON, A10

John Tudor is a lifelong resident of Madison County who is seeking his third term as 3rd District Magistrate. He is retired from the United States Postal Service after 34 years of service and has been married to his wife, Robin, for 30 years. Tudor is very active on various boards and committies across the county.

Why are you running for office? How many times have you ran and if you are an incumbent, how many terms have you served?

I am running for office because I care about Madison County. This is a very pivotal time for our county. We must make decisions to continue moving our county forward in

See TUDOR, A10

I grew up in Madison County and have been married to Steve Vescio for over 38 years. We have 2 daughters; 2 grandchildren and I am the daughter of Jim and Betty Masterson. I graduated from EKU with Bachelor’s degree in Mathematics and Master’s degree in Industrial Technology. I have worked at IBM for nearly 40 years and for the past 10 years working in the area of business development. I have been actively involved in the community with various charities and my church.

I see the position of Magistrate as someone who represents the people’s interest and is a voice for their concerns and ideas on where the county is now and where we want it to be in the future. Your representative must make wise decisions on how our tax dollars are utilized to maintain needed services. I have spoken to many of you, who shared similar concerns about decisions being made and the direction Madison County is taking. I believe that the people in the 4th District need to have their voices heard and need better representation on issues that affect them the most. That is why I am running for 4th District Magistrate.

In speaking with people, one of the most common areas of concern is the traffic. I am a supporter of local development and growth. However, we need better planning.

Planning is more than just approving zone changes. Planning is understanding the impact these changes will have on surrounding communities. Advanced planning is needed because whatever is decided today will affect all the infrastructure tomorrow. I can say that I will seek well thought out plans before making hasty decisions.”

Within the 4th district there over 18,500 registered voters and approximately 3,100 people voted in the primary (less than 17%). I would like to encourage all citizens of the 4th District, no matter party affiliation, to vote for the person you think will best represent you.

“My commitment to you is simple; I will represent the people of the 4th district and work on the services needed in our county. I would be honored to serve as your Magistrate and I’m asking for your vote on Tuesday,

ELECT

Debbie Vescio

4th District Magistrate

Taxes

- On September 10, 2019, the Madison County Fiscal Court passed an ordinance that increased the real property tax rate from 8.2 cents per $100 to 19.6 cents per $100. ⁽¹⁾
- We worked together gathering petitions to place the issue on the ballot to stop the tax increase. On November 26, 2019 the tax was repealed. ⁽²⁾
- On December 17, 2019, the Madison County Fiscal Court passed an ordinance that placed a tax upon insurance companies at the rate of 5% of premiums collected. In turn, many insurance companies passed on the 5% tax to Madison Countians living outside of the city limits, thus increasing our cost of home, farm, and auto insurance. ⁽³⁾
- I will be a good steward of how our tax dollars are utilized to maintain services.

Roads

- Bottom line we need better planning. I will seek well-thought-out plans for improvements.
- Tired of hearing the excuse “It’s a state road, not a county or city road, so it’s not our problem.” I will work with state officials to make our problems know

Safety

- I am a strong supporter of local law enforcement, firefighters, and emergency medical services.
- I will work to find grants for these organizations to keep our community safe.

I want to hear what you have to say:

- The Madison County Fiscal Court meetings are held in the mornings. For more people to attend, I would like these meetings to be held in the evenings.
- I will return your phone calls.

I will not be a rubber stamp!

to keep providing a service that our residents are proud of. I have been fortunate to be your sheriff for 10 years and I will continue to work diligently to provide a professional department that not only serves as law enforcement, but also community support. We pride ourselves on and strive to be a full service agency available 24 hours per day seven days a week for everyone and I will continue to pursue the excellence expected by the citizens of Madison County.

I am a proud graduate of Eastern Kentucky University with a BS Degree in Police Administration. I began my career with Richmond and Berea Police Departments before starting with the Kentucky State Police. I retired from the Kentucky State Police with over 28 years of service. I’ve been a faithful and devoted law enforcement servant to the state of Kentucky and Madison County for over 43 years. I have completed thousands of hours of specialized law enforcement training. I have extensive experience in the area of drug enforcement and worked as the public relations officer for the Kentucky State Police. My experience and training qualify me to be your Sheriff. My record will show that under my administration, I’ve provided the leadership needed to staff and run a proactive, efficient, and professional office. Our State Audits have been excellent, and we are good stewards of the taxpayer’s money. I am very proud of our staff and officers, and I’ll continue to provide Madison County with the best of both. I will be seeking my third term as Madison County Sheriff.

What is the solution to that issue or issues facing Madison County?

We believe the single biggest issue facing Madison County is drug overdoses. We would like to see this problem reduce in Madison County as a whole. We have a total of six deputies who are assigned to this effort from the Madison County Sheriff’s Office.

Three detectives are working with officers from the Richmond Police Department, Berea Police Department and the Kentucky State Police on a HIDTA (High Intensity Drug Trafficking Area) Task Force to attack this problem. Their goal is to identify and dismantle Drug Trafficking Organizations that have a nexus with Madison County. We have two deputies assigned to a street crimes unit and their duties are specifically to address each drug complaint we receive individually. They have been very productive in their efforts, and we hope to amplify this program with additional equipment and manpower as the budget allows. We have a detective assigned to the Drug Enforcement Agency (DEA) who investigates and adopts cases that need to be pursued in federal proceedings. This has led to dozens of high-profile drug dealers in Madison County incarcerated for large prison terms in federal prison. We have a detective assigned to the Office of Homeland Security to investigate overdose deaths and they will be working with Madison County Ambulance Service, Madison County Coroner’s Office as well as the prosecutors to identify the sources of drug trafficking and zero in to help rid them of the poisonous drugs to our citizens of Madison County. We all need to work together to minimize the drug problems. This is a national problem but we each need to do our share.

We have a total of four K9s assigned to use as another tool in the fight against this scourge also. They have been instrumental in assisting our agency and others in Madison County on locating concealed narcotics, tracking and apprehension of suspects and providing security for the deputies in certain situations.

We have hired four School Resource Officers at our county elementary schools in an effort not only to protect our children but also educate and mentor them at an early age about the dangers of drugs.

What is the role of an elected official in the position you are seeking?

My role as Sheriff is to oversee the protection of the citizens of Madison County, service of civil and criminal papers, protection of the courts, and collect the taxes for Madison County. I know and understand my role as Sheriff.

The Madison County Sheriff’s Office is proactive, and our community is safer because of it. Our street crimes unit, K9 and drug investigators help minimize the drug problems in Madison County and our School Resource Officers are helping protect our children while mentoring them. We believe this will be enticing to any industry looking to be involved in a safe community such as Madison County.

What is your message to voters?

running? How many times have you ran and how many terms have you served?

I am the current 1st District Magistrate and am running for re-election to continue to be a voice and an advocate for Southern Madison County. I have always felt an obligation to serve my community and am honored to currently serve as Magistrate.

What is the biggest challenge facing the county and what is the solution to that issue?

The single biggest long-term issue facing Madison County / Southern Madison County is the Madison County Detention Center’s overcrowding. Because the County budget is responsible for the expense of holding detainees in surrounding county jails and for the Sheriff’s time and cost of transportation, this issue indirectly affects all residents.

I propose creation of a Working Group of government and community members to study our current detention center, research potential solutions, and bring fiscally responsible recommendations to the Fiscal Court. I will also continue my good working relationship with our members of the General Assembly and the Court of Justice to explore alternative options for non-violent, low-level offenders and to reduce unreimbursed pretrial incarceration costs.

What is the role of an elected official in the position you are seeking?

gether with citizens and local elected officials along with state officials to help provide safe communities, good jobs, a quality education and a vibrant community to raise our children, our workforce and elderly.

What can be done to attract more businesses to (Berea, Richmond or Madison County)?

We are already in a position to attract more businesses to our county by improving infrastructures to our local airport. Madison County has seven interchanges along I-75. We need to develop an industrial site for the county to intice industry.

What is the most underrated thing about Berea, Richmond or Madison and what would you do to make sure it becomes the most noted thing the city has to offer?

The most underrated thing about Madison County is our diversity. From our rural farming communities to our cities of Richmond and Berea. It is beautiful how different we are and yet come together to celebrate the Millstone Park, Spoonbread festival, to Boonesborough and Whitehall Park. From different job opportunities to different higher education facilities, this just makes an ideal place to start any kind of business. Madison County is one of the best places in the commonwealth to live and raise a family. We must continue to promote all of the different amenities offered here.

"PRO-ABORTION ACTIVISTS ARE TRYING TO SCARE KENTUCKIANS WITH THEIR LIES ABOUT AMENDMENT #2.

"THE AMENDMENT IS NOT A BAN ON ABORTION. CURRENT KENTUCKY LAW STRONGLY PROTECTS THE HEALTH AND LIFE OF MOTHERS. TO SAY OTHERWISE IS GROSS DISHONESTY THAT WILL ONLY DISCOURAGE KENTUCKY WOMEN FROM SEEKING THE CARE THEY NEED AND PUT THEIR HEALTH IN DANGER.

YES ON 2

We, the following pastors in the Berea community encourage every voter to VOTE YES ON AMENDMENT 2 This amendment has nothing to do with politics, but has everything to do with protecting the lives of the unborn. Regardless of the propaganda that the pro-abortion advocates have been spreading, this amendment is not anti Healthcare, nor is it anti-female rights, it simply states the obvious, that there is no inherent right in the Constitution of the State of Kentucky that guarantees the right to an abortion. If as the proponents of abortion claim, abortion is Healthcare, it is the only medical “procedure” that begins with the goal of ending a human life. The actual wording for the amendment can be found in the graphic above. It further guarantees that tax dollars will not be used to fund the barbaric act of abortion. The following quote by Thomas Jefferson captures and expresses the sentiments of many Kentucky citizens.

“To compel a man to furnish funds for the propagation of ideas he disbelieves and abhors is sinful and tyrannical.” Thomas Jefferson

Stoops ‘jacked up’ ready to rebound

LEXINGTON (KT) — Kentucky coach Mark Stoops hasn’t hit the panic button just yet.

Two days after his team’s dismal showing in a 44-6 loss at No. 2 Tennessee last Saturday, the Kentucky coach was right back to work, preparing the Wildcats for Saturday’s contest at Missouri.

“I feel surprisingly jacked up and great. Why? Because I have to be,” Stoops said Monday. “Yeah, I felt like crap all night Saturday night and all day Sunday. But today, I’m jacked up, ready to go.”

The loss, the team’s third in the past four games, dropped the Wildcats out of the Associated Press Top 25 poll for the first time this season and has Kentucky (5-3, 2-3) in search of a sixth victory to claim bowl eligibility with four games remaining, starting with Saturday’s contest at Missouri.

“(I’m) really excited about this opportunity, to be honest with you,” Stoops said. “Any time you take a butt-kicking like that, you get into work on Sunday after that long bus ride home. And Sunday, it’s not fun. But we have to face the facts. We have to take a good look at ourselves, see the areas where we’re falling short and address them.”

Stoops said the Wildcats will be focusing on how to improve on offense following their lowest-scoring output of the year. He added adjustments will need to be made across the board.

“Obviously, you’re not very pleased with that result,” Stoops said. “You have to always look at things and see where you’re falling short. You better look at it, address it, and get it fixed. But we’re not going to do anything drastic. We are constantly looking at things and striving to be better. We’ve got to look at why and where we’re spending our time. All those things we have to look at to put our players in a position to be successful.”

The Tigers (4-4, 2-3 Southeastern Conference) have had several close calls this season and defeated South Carolina 23-10 last Saturday in Columbia. Missouri has won two straight after dropping their first three conference encounters, including a 26-22 loss to top-ranked Georgia.

“I think they’re playing extremely hard,” Stoops said. “They always have some guys up front who are disruptive and play very physical. They’re playing very good as a team.”

Exhibition a good lesson

LEXINGTON (KT) — CJ Fredrick scored 15 points to lead No. 4 Kentucky to a 56-38 win over Missouri Western State in an exhibition game Sunday night at Rupp Arena.

It marked the fewest points scored by the Wildcats in an exhibition game since a 74-28 win over Transylvania on Nov. 5, 2012. Despite the lack of offensive production, Kentucky coach John Calipari said it was a valuable learning experience.

“This was good for us,” he said. “Man, did they play hard (and) did they compete. ... it’s good to play a team to have done what they did to us. ... give them credit. They held a pretty good team to 56 points and were trying to play fast. They played us physical and you would think, at one point, they would go away. They didn’t, they played until the (final) horn. They just kept coming.”

It was the timely shooting of Fredrick that provided some separation.

Making his first appearance at Rupp since leading Covington Catholic to a state title in 2018, Fredrick hit four of the Wildcats’ seven shots from 3-point range and missed just three shots on eight attempts from the floor.

“It felt awesome — not playing in a year and a half, I put a lot of hard work into this moment,” Fredrick said. “Just being able to go out there and compete again ... it was awesome.”

Calipari praised Fredrick and his veteran leadership, which provided a lift for the Wildcats.

“It’s nice to have older guys that really know what they’re doing out there,” Calipari said. “He’s special.”

Kentucky guard Sahvir Wheeler suffered a right leg injury after making a hard fall to the floor with 12:45 remaining. Wheeler finished with four points, two rebounds and one assist.

“Hopefully, Sahvir will be OK,” said Calipari, who offered no immediate updates following the contest, but added it was the same knee he tweaked prior to the Blue-White game in Pikeville a week ago. “He had to be out a couple of days of practice, probably a week (the last time).”

Jacob Toppin followed Fredrick with 10 points.

MISSING OSCAR

Kentucky junior forward Oscar Tshiebwe missed the exhibition opener and is still recovering from minor knee surgery he had earlier this month. The Wildcats collected 35 rebounds, but were clearly missing Tshiebwe in the post, especially on the offensive end. The Griffons had 36 boards, including 26 on offense.

HOOD, MARTIN RETURN

Former Kentucky guard Jon

Hood, who played for five seasons with the Wildcats and was part of the school’s national championship team in 2012, is in his second season as an assistant coach with the Griffons.

Missouri Western State head coach Will Martin served as a student manager at Kentucky and was on the staff that went to made three Elite Eight appearances and was the top manager during the 2011-12.

“The players loved him,” Calipari said. “We all appreciated him.”

“What he did here and the mark he left. On top of that, he’s a heck of a coach.”

BLOCK PARTY

Kentucky forward Ugonna Onyenso had five of Kentucky’s 11 blocks. Lance Ware, Cason Wallace finished with two blocks each against the undersized Griffons.

KENTUCKY (56) — Toppin 10, Fredrick 15, Wheeler 4, Reeves 5, Wallace 9, Livingston 2, Ware 2, Thiero 5, Onyenso 4.

MISSOURI WESTERN STATE (38) — John 5, Earnes 12, Dixon 4, Fields 9, Kemp 3, Nunez 2, Kilgore 3.

It's a fact: Buzzards never talk with their beaks full

I shared the tale with you some time ago about the fellow who had accompanied his wife to one of those all-you-can-eat, buffet-style dinner parties sponsored by the company she worked for. “That’s the fifth time you’ve gone back for more food,” the wife whispered to her gluttonous husband. “Doesn’t that embarrass you?” “Not at all,” he said with a grin. “I keep telling them I’m getting more food for you.”

The Bible warns us that we’re to mind our manners when attending company dinners, especially with the big boss there. “When you sit down to eat with a ruler, consider diligently what is before thee. And put a knife to thy throat if thou be a man given to appetite. Be not desirous of his dainties, or his most choice foods” (Proverbs 23:1-3).

If you’re sitting across the table from the big cheese, you’d do well to focus not on what is before you but on who is before you.

As a reporter years ago, I watched two gubernatorial candidates who were attending the same dinner. One didn’t take even a bite of food but instead was entirely focused on the people at that dinner. He shook hands with them. He chatted with them. He laughed with them. No one escaped his attention.

The other sat down at a table and ate, talking only with those seated next to him.

As you might have guessed, the man who won the election was the one who focused on the people, not the food at that dinner.

In my days as a pastor, I was often encouraged to sit down and eat at dinners. Sometimes, I did. But most often I didn’t, because it was my job to chat with the attendees.

When I did eat, I always tried to follow Deborah Ruddell’s advice included in her poem called, “A Vulture’s Guide to Good Manners.” This is what she said:

I never never never put my elbows on the table, and my face will never show it if my tummy feels unstable. I never tell a story when my beak is full of food, or eat a sprig of broccoli that hasn’t been well chewed. I never leave the table until I’ve been excused. When someone breaks the gravy boat, I never act amused. I never spit my food out. I’m never ever late. But when I come to dinner, I always clean my plate.

Now that is one mannerly vulture. And when he makes multiple trips back through the buffet line to fill his place, I bet that he doesn’t say it’s for his wife.

Lions Club has Dinner Train raffle drawing

The Berea Lions welcomed RJ Corman Dinner Train engineer Mike Johnson, to its annual raffle ticket drawing, Oct. 24, at the Smokehouse Grill in Berea. Engineer Mike was invited to draw the winning ticket for a ride about the RJ Corman Dinner Train at Bardstown. For those unfamiliar, the dinner train features a two and a half hour, 16 mile ride, multi-course gourmet meal served aboard beautifully restored 60's era passenger train equipment, passing areas of Bernheim forest and several bourbon distilleries.

Johnson first began working for the railroad just out of high school washing dishes on the dinner train and holding down a part-time job at a local post office. As time went by, he worked his way up the ranks to engineer certification. He spoke fondly of his experiences meeting Rick Corman during his earlier years on the railroad, "He was very rewarding to be around...I used to run to Lexington a lot on weekends and take him up and down the railroad in his business car - it was always a pleasure to be around him and to be able to do some things for him...you went out and gave it your best, and so did pretty much everybody around him...we definitely miss him [Corman passed away in August, 2013]

In 1987, RJ "Rick" Corman bought the 20 mile Bardstown branch from CSX, and began freight operations. "He was in his early 30's when he bought it...He did quite well as a young man... He started out with a backhoe and a dump truck right out of high school...went to work for some other railroads repairing railroad crossings...within four to five years he had already bought a fleet of dump trucks and backhoes...had everything paid for and was doing real well with railroad construction." In 1988 Corman conceived the dinner train concept, starting out with two dining cars, one halfdiner/half-Kitchen, and a 64-seat dining car. The first dinner train served catered meals, but after inconsistent quality issues, Corman decided on using a full kitchen car with meals being freshly prepared... "Him [Corman] being the person that he was, he wanted it to be perfect every time."

In 1989, the railroad decided to buy an old Amtrak car and have it refurbished in stainless state-of-the-art style at the company's Nicholasville facility. With the addition of the new dining car, the dinner train became a three-car operation. Meals are now freshly prepared as the train goes down the line. The decision was made in 1992 to add a 72-seat dining car due to the success of the dinner train which was doing four runs a day. "Starting This November, we will have a five-car train with the capacity to go over 200 people." Expectations now project over 24,000 people to ride the train by year's end.

One of the newly added attractions are the Bourbon excursion runs. "We'll have a specialist from one of our bourbon industries come in on one of our dining cars, talk about the bourbon, explain how it's made, where it came from, pass out different styles of bourbon, talk about the taste, how the barrels were charred...the people seemed to like it."

RJ Corman has since evolved into an 18 railroad enterprise covering 11 different states ranging from Pennsylvania, New York, South Carolina. A major part of the RJ Corman business is derailment wreck cleanup with operations extending west of the Mississippi River. "We own and operate one of the largest derailment divisions in the United States..."

Mr. Corman's motto is 'Can Do', he looked at everything as 'I can do it', he put that thought into everything."

The Dinner Ticket was a donation to the club by RJ Corman as part of its service donation program for groups doing community service work.

Dr. Chris Sipple Endorses Chuck Givens

for Madison County Judge-Executive

I am supporting Chuck Givens for MC Judge-Executive because I believe in his vision and plans for Madison County. His priority will be the citizens. Our views align regardless of our party lines. Chuck has worked hard to achieve success and continues to maintain his success by being dedicated to his work. He is friendly and will not judge anyone by their party affiliation. Chuck is a motivated man on a mission to make a better way of life for everyone. I am voting person over party because we need a change in Madison County. We cannot continue to do what we have done in the past and expect a different result. We need someone who will work for the best interest of all the people and not just a select few. Madison County citizens can not afford another 4 years of overspending and overtaxing. I would like every one to make an informed decision based on the policies and performance of the last 8 years of our current Madison County Judge Executive. I will be supporting the candidate I believe will make the most change and do the most good for the citizens. MY VOTE WILL NOT BE BY PARTY BUT BY PERSON. We must be able to rely on the Judge Executive to make decisions that will benefit the people and not create a hardship for them. If you want a different result, you must make a different choice.

Seven incumbents retain seats on council; Rowlette returns

By Andy McDonald
For The Citizen

The Berea City Council stayed pretty much the same after Tuesday's election, with seven out of eight incumbents retaining their seats. The only change was that two-term incumbent John Payne was replaced by David Rowlette, who staged a comeback after being voted off two years ago. Garnering the most votes for the third Berea City Council election in a row was four-term incumbent Steve Caudill, who tallied 2,718 votes. Caudill placed fourth and third in the 2014 and 2016 races, respectively. "It's always super humbling to get that many votes," Caudill said. "I'm very pleased, and always appreciative of peoples' support." Caudill noted he plans to focus on critical issues in Berea's near future, including completing a new electricity contract for the city, as well as formulating a plan to make wise use of approximately $4 million in American Rescue Plan Act (ARPA) funds. Additionally, Caudill said he would like to continue the city's efforts in expanding the mountain bike trails and shared use paths. Katie Startzman placed second Tuesday, collecting 2,260 votes after making an appeal for civility at the last council meeting before the election. Startzman jumped

Barger: Voting goes smooth

By Leslie Barlow
Citizen Writer

Almost half of all registered voters in Madison County showed up to vote in the Nov. 8 general election either through traditional voting on election day, early voting, or absentee voting. Madison County Court Clerk Kenny Barger said 40.2% of all registered voters in the county cast their votes despite the number of registered voters increasing. He said 7,600 voters cast their votes during the early voting period. "Overall, I think everything went very smoothly. We had a great group of precinct workers that helped move people along and get them in and out as quickly as possible." Barger, who was unopposed and re-elected to the county court clerk position, said. "We did have some strain on the voting lines at the Madison County Public Library and that is something we will discuss as we move forward toward the

BCHS alum promoted to admiral

By Andy McDonald
For The Citizen

When Berea native David Duttlinger, 52, joined the Naval Reserve Officers Training Corps in 1992, he didn't foresee one day getting promoted to rear admiral in the United States Navy.

However, after his sons, Nathan, 18, and Ben, 16, adorned his uniform with admiral insignia at a promotion ceremony last month, Duttlinger was quick to credit others for the proud accomplishment, whether it's his family, his church, mentors in the armed forces, or even his hometown and school. "Berea and Berea Community High School [BCHS] are wonderful places to grow up," said the 1988 BCHS alumnus. "Riding bikes around town, the cultural and academic influence of the college, the

All precinct, early voting a convenience for voters

I voted and it wasn't in my precinct. Thankfully, Madison County offers and "all precinct" option, a system that allows registered voters to cast a vote at any location within the county. It's a method that provided a convenience for this voter on Tuesday afternoon. I spent most of Election Day with my wife Rhonda in the Emergency Room at Baptist Health in Richmond as we sought answers from her recent breathing difficulties and recent health issues. In between moving her to a room on the fourth floor, my mother- and father-in-law, Bill and Alberta Howard covered for me while I took a break to do my civic duty. In between, Pastor Kevin Slemph from Berea Baptist Church came and prayed with Rhonda.

Under similar circumstances in the past, I would have drove back to my precinct location — Silver Creek Elementary School — in order to cast my vote. It would have cost more time and money in order to do so. Instead of driving back to Berea, I ventured to Eastside Community Church, showed my identification, received my paper ballot and received my "I Voted" sticker and returned to the hospital.

Although relatively a seamless process that provides an avenue for voters who are in a pinch because of unplanned circumstances similar to what I faced Tuesday, there are still some kinks that need to be worked out, such as adding more precinct locations and poll workers. Much like new things, it's a work in progress and additions and subtractions will be made along the way.

The good news is that nearly 10,000 citizens took advantage of the early voting option this year, which provided another alternative to those who couldn't get to the polls during the 12 hours allotted on Election Day. Rhonda and I took advantage of this option two years ago and it helped us adjust amid our busy schedules. The turnout was 40 percent, which is a major increase from the May primary, which didn't draw much interest even though this was a big election year for the county.

The early voting will never surpass the traditional Election Day grind, but it's a solid alternative that will be available for generations to come, whose schedules differ from the ones that us older folks grew up with. For example, I remember seeing campaign ads that read, "Pull Lever 8" to vote for" I never pulled a lever but the time I started voting, but thankfully technology and paper have made things a lot easier at the polls.

The turnout in Madison County this fall hopefully is a good indication that voters are starting to take part in the democratic process that isn't given to so many people across the globe.

For those of you who took time to vote, it counted and that's what matters the most.

Veterans Day

Supporting veterans is a worthy endeavor at any time of year, though such efforts tend to be more prominent in November. Veterans Day is celebrated annually on November 11 in honor of the millions of individuals across the United States who are military veterans. The day coincides with holidays such as Armistice Day and Remembrance Day, which are celebrated in other countries and also honor military veterans.

- Visit wounded veterans. The United States Census Bureau reports that more than one-third of the nearly 3.8 million men and women who have served in the U.S. Armed Forces since September 2001 have a service-connected disability. Many of these individuals are fighting to overcome physical injuries sustained while on active duty. Individuals who want to show their support for veterans can contact their local VA facility to arrange a visit to wounded veterans. Such visits can lift veterans' spirits and reassure them that their sacrifices are both acknowledged and appreciated.

- Support legislation that supports veterans. Though it might seem like a no-brainer, legislation to support veterans often faces an uphill battle to get passed.

- Help raise awareness about homeless veterans. Data from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development estimates that approximately 40,000 veterans are homeless on any given night. But that figure doesn't tell the whole story, as the National Coalition for Homeless Veterans notes that, over the course of a year, roughly twice that many veterans experience homelessness.

Veterans Day is a time to show veterans that their service and sacrifices are not taken for granted. Visiting wounded veterans and supporting efforts to ensure veterans get what they need to live full, healthy and happy lives is a great way to send the message that veterans are appreciated.

Always give thanks

Thanksgiving is coming and it's never out of season to say thank you.

Say thank you to your local politicians. The majority of those who pursue an office, lose. Losing is tough and usually expensive. Thank them for their interest in your community or state and for the time they gave making their case and pursuing votes.

Our world would be better if we all said thank you and please as often as possible. Amazingly many people don't know how to say thank you, or please.

If someone does anything for you say thank you. Even if they haven't necessarily done it for you but are helping others then say thank you. Thank your community leaders, teachers, politicians, clergy, this media source, family, friends and anyone who is somehow positively impacting your life.

Teaching our kids to say thank you and to say it often is well worth our time for us and them.

Here are some thank you notes from Reader's Digest, RD.com June 2023.

About 15 years ago, we purchased a dining set from an older couple after seeing their ad. When we went to pick it up, it was apparent to me that the lady was having a hard time seeing it go, although it hadn't been used for many years. On Thanksgiving, I set the table, took a picture, and sent it to her, saying we were thankful to be enjoying the beautiful set. She sent a note back that read, it looks like it was meant to be. It really has helped me, seeing it happy. Thank you from my heart. —Diane Ensche, Mansfield, Texas

As a volunteer, I recorded several audiobooks for the blind. I received a braille card that said thanks for my work. Fortunately, the sender also enclosed a reading chart for the braille words. It took me 90 minutes to figure out what the card said. It reminded me of how blessed I am and how much I can keep giving. —Yen Chou, Taipei, Taiwan

My coworker sent me this heartwarming e-mail after I was laid off: Thank you for giving me a chance way back when. This position got me off state assistance, paid for my car, and has blessed me and my son in so many ways. You have been an amazing mentor and friend, Mike. The best! I've learned so much and not just about pest control. To speak up for myself. To be less emotional when things go wrong. To have patience with myself and others. Thank you for being so incredibly patient with me and my thousands of questions and mistakes! It has helped my confidence in so many ways. Thank you! Thank you! It was humbling for me to know that I had that kind of impact on someone's life by just being myself, doing my job. —Michael Shearing, Port Angeles, Washington.

After I had worked as a mail carrier for 30 years, it was time to retire. I put a note in each of my 436 customers' mailboxes, thanking them for allowing me to serve them over the years. I never expected that on my last day so many would hang balloons on the boxes and put out so many beautiful thank-yous. I hope I delivered all the mail properly that day, as there were tears of gratitude filling my eyes. —Kay Scott, Bucyrus, Ohio

I was gram's favorite, and she was mine. She passed away in September 2016, at 100½—she always said you earned the "half" when you got to be her age. To my surprise, I received a card in the mail that my sweet grandma had tucked away for my aunt to send after she passed.

It read, Melis, thank you for all the nice things you did for me. Remember, this is the year you'll meet your man. Be cool and play it safe. Don't screw it up. Be careful. I'll be watching you. All my love, Gram.—Melissa Wegman, Cincinnati, Ohio

You can find these and other thank you notes on RD.com Reader's Digest, June 3, 2022 Thanksgiving season is here. Let's all aim for a lifestyle of saying thank you.

Stuffed Acorn Squash

Ingredients

3 medium sized acorn squash
2 tbsp. olive oil
Salt and pepper
8 sage leaves, chopped
1 lb. ground italian sausage
8 oz. baby bella mushrooms, sliced
1/2 red onion, chopped
2 cloves garlic, finely chopped
1 tbsp. fresh thyme, chopped plus more for garnish
1/2 tsp. salt
1/2 tsp. ground black pepper, plus more for garnish
1 1/2 c. cooked rice
1/3 c. heavy cream
1 c. grated Fontina or Monterrey Jack cheese

Directions

For the squash: Preheat the oven to 400°F. Carefully cut the squash in half, through the stem. Scoop out the seeds and fibrous center. Place on a baking sheet cut-side up. Brush with olive oil and sprinkle generously with salt and pepper. Roast for 30 minutes. Flip each half over, placing them cut side down, and continue to roast for 15 minutes or until very tender. Remove from the oven and reduce the oven temperature to 350°F.

For the filling: While the squash is roasting, heat 1 tablespoon of olive oil in a large skillet over medium-high heat until very hot. Add the sage and cook for 30 seconds or until dark green. Add the sausage to the skillet. Cook until fully browned, breaking up the sausage with the back of a spoon as it cooks, about 10 minutes. Transfer the sausage-sage mixture to a bowl.

Add the remaining 1 tablespoon of oil to the skillet. Add the mushrooms, onion, garlic, thyme, salt, and pepper. Cook, stirring frequently, until the mushrooms release their liquid and the onions are softened, about 7 minutes.

Stir in the cooked rice and heavy cream. Stir in 1/2 cup fontina cheese until well combined. Stir the sausage back into the mixture. Let simmer for a couple of minutes then remove from the heat.

Flip the squash cut-side up and divide the filling among each squash half. Sprinkle with the remaining 1/2 cup fontina. Bake for 12-15 minutes or until the cheese is melted and everything is warm throughout. Garnish with more fresh thyme leaves and black pepper before serving.

November 9, 1922 Noted specialist visits Berea

S. A. Mathiason who had made a study of Folk Lore Schools in Scandinavian countries and who was then on tour through the Southland with the intent of interesting the Southern people in the establishment of a similar type of school, brought a message to the students and faculty in Berea College's chapel. Mr. Mathiason briefly reviewed the growth of these schools in Denmark and the influence they had had in that country during the last fifty ears in establishment of spiritual life through education. When Germany had taken Denmark's best territory, the country was left facing poverty and national disintegration. It was at that time that leader and educator Gundvig appeared on the scene advocating education of adults through community schools established in reaching all. Germany held that every adult, no matter what the disadvantage of past life, ought to have a chance to become acquainted with art, literature, and other things, which up to that time had only been given out in colleges. A number of colleges were established for this purpose out in the country district of Denmark where folk dances were taught, where people sang together, and played games. In these schools there was no definite promise of financial returns, no diploma was sought. School itself was its own reward. Through these schools the whole youth of Denmark was brought to a realization that they had a place in the world and were thus equipped to contribute to the community and national life of the country. Denmark, who before these schools were established, was full of disease and poverty and was on the verge of national decay, had become one of the richest countries of the work according to its size in the world. There was practically no poverty and comparatively little sickness. Mr. Mathiason remained in Berea for several hours to give the students and members of the faculty, who were interested in the program establishment in America, had the interview him.

November 13, 2022 KU hook-up is completed

The hook-up with Kentucky Utilities to furnish Berea with more electricity had formally begun when Mr. George Dick, retired Heat and Power Superintendent, threw the switches at the new power station located behind the Heat and Power building and at the Heat and Power building. The hook-up, which had been contemplated for several months, had been held up when the right of way into the Bluegrass Ordinance Depot was obtained. The new service required Kentucky Utilities to carry thirty-five percent or more of the total load. The new power could be switched to any of the local circuit operated by the Berea College plant. The substation would carry 33,000 volts on a three-phase line. Present at the switch throwing ceremonies, were George Fawkes, district manager for KU, Pat Allen, line foreman of KY, Frank Milburn superintendent of heat and power, William Hutchins, business manager, George Kavanaugh, and many other workers of the plant.

November 15, 1979 New life ahead for L & N depot

Brighter days were around the corner for the Berea L & N depot. Out of use since the decline of passenger traffic, the depot in recent years had been the target of neighborhood vandals and a shelter for the homeless. Although a Berea-based depot restoration committee had tried to reduce the vandalism and restore the building to some of its old grace and utility, no tenant had been found for the South Broadway building. This changed at a meeting of the Berea City Council when they agreed to a lease with MATCH, Inc. MATCH, an Appalachian self-help organization, leased the historic building for $1 per year for 10 years. MATCH planned to put $100,000 into the building's restoration in the future. The lease, which hinged on funding from outside sources for the MATCH project, included provisions for a community room available to clubs and civic organizations. According to released details, MATCH would pay utilities, carry insurance, pay personal property taxes on the building and do all of the maintenance and upkeep on the building.

November 12, 11992 Local author publishes history of Madison County

Harry Johnson had spent many years collecting postal related items such as stamps, postcards, and photos of old post offices. Johnson had also been in love with the Madison County area all his life and his collections finally became so broad that he decided to publish the information he had gathered into a boo so that the rest of the county residents could also enjoy the old photos and some special knowledge about the county. Page one of the book, entitled, "Madison County, Kentucky," gave readers information about the county and its heritage. Johnson separated Berea as one of the areas focused on within the pages. The book included post cards which depicted most of the historical sites in the county as they appeared in the past. Madison County postmarks were displayed on the front and back covers and included every postmark from any Madison County post office since the county's inception. Johnson had spent over 50 years collecting materials and had about 7,000 postcards that did not appear in the book.

in the results compared to the 2020 election, going from eighth place to second in the final tally. Cora Jane Wilson was reelected with 2,244 votes, edging up to third place compared to her fifth-place finish two years ago. In a statement to well-wishers on Facebook, Wilson stated: “I just want to thank you all for your support,” Wilson said. “Thank you all for the phone calls, texts, and even visits to the [antique] mall. I truly appreciate you all and covet your prayers. I absolutely love Berea and its citizens.” Teresa Scenters won a second term, moving up from her 2020 seventh-place finish to tally 2,186 votes Tuesday night. Said Scenters: “I’m grateful to everyone who voted and humbled by their confidence in me. With God’s guidance, I look forward to working with Bruce [Fraley] and Rose [Beverly] and my fellow council members to make Berea the best place to live, work, and visit.” David Rowlette secured his return to the council with 2,134 votes, after being edged out by Startzman in 2020. Rowlette placed eighth in 2018 when he sought election after being appointed to fill a seat left vacant with the resignation of Councilman Billy Wooten in February 2018.

After securing another term with 2,131 votes, Councilman Jim Davis remarked: “I just want to thank the voters for their confidence in me to serve for another two years, and I look forward to working with the administration and the council as we move Berea Forward.”

Jerry Little was next in seventh place with 2,083 votes, while Ronnie Terrill found himself in unfamiliar territory in eighth place with 2010 votes, compared to his second-place finish in 2020.

Incumbent John Payne missed getting another two years on council by a mere 27 votes, ending up with 1,983 votes when the unofficial tally was posted. Next came first-time candidate Rebecca McClure Isaacs, who got 1,844 votes and Teresa Louise Wren, who received 1,495 to round out the field.

unbelievable beauty of the natural environment highlighted by the Pinnacles or Owsley Fork. What more could you ask for as a young boy growing up?”

Duttlinger recalls one Berea teacher in particular who helped prepare him for success in academia, which culminated with a Bachelor’s Degree in Science in Civil Engineering from Vanderbilt University, a Master’s Degree in Environmental Engineering from Stanford University, and a Master’s in Public Administration from the University of Kentucky.

“Trudy Gabbard was my math teacher from 9th through 12th grade,” Duttlinger said. “It was that strong math background that helped me succeed at Vanderbilt.”

That foundation led to his stints as a naval engineer, which took Duttlinger to various posts around the world. Among many other assignments, Duttlinger was company commander/engineering officer in the Naval Mobile Construction Engineer at Port Hueneme, California, a staff engineer at the Office in Charge of Contingency Construction Atlantic, Norfolk, where he deployed in support of Operation Iraqi Freedom, and he served in such far-flung places as Adak, Alaska, Guam, Rota, Spain, and back in Washington D.C. at Naval Facilities Engineering Command.

Though he practiced at an environmental consulting firm in Lexington, Duttlinger is perhaps best known in central Kentucky as the executive director of the Blue Grass Area Development District [BGADD], where for the last 16 years he has been able to apply his experience at BGADD and the military to help improve communities in the commonwealth. BGADD serves 17 counties, 32 cities, and over 800,000 residents in central Kentucky, assisting local governments build their infrastructure, enhance recreational facilities, and create opportunities for tourism and economic development, among many other services.

“I have gained skills in the military that have added value to my work in our central Kentucky communities, such as leadership, budgeting and policy execution,” Duttlinger said. “But I have also learned many skills at the Bluegrass ADD that have added value to my career in the military – collaboration, compromise, and diplomacy.”

At last October’s promotion ceremony, several local officials showed up to pay their respects, including four county judge executives and three mayors: Lexington Mayor Linda Gorton, Winchester Mayor Ed Burtner, and Berea Mayor Bruce Fraley, who has developed a close friendship with Duttlinger since he became mayor in 2018.

“David is the first admiral I have ever met, and from his personality, his grace, his friendliness, you would not guess that he was an admiral or high-ranking officer because of his down-to-earth demeanor and his humility,” Fraley said. “It’s one of the reasons I like working with him so much.”

Like many people who serve, Duttlinger said he owes perhaps the biggest debt of gratitude to his wife of 22 years, Christine.

“Christine is the glue that holds everything together,” Duttlinger said. “There really is no greater commitment than the effort put forth by a military spouse. When I leave for military service, my workload is cut in half, while hers doubles. She has always been there to support and encourage me along the way.

Duttlinger also expresses gratitude to Vice Admiral Mike Loose, who was Duttlinger’s battalion commander and mentor, along with Lieutenant Commander Ron Senykoff, who attended Berea United Methodist Church and encouraged Duttlinger to explore the Navy. His parents, Hans and Martha Duttlinger, were also an inspiration. Hans served the military in his native Switzerland, an example of giving back that epitomizes the spirit of Veteran’s Day – something Duttlinger thinks is needed today in America.

“While I don’t support compulsory service in the military, I do agree everyone should serve their country and ask themselves, as President Kennedy reminded us, to ask what we can do for our country, not what our country can do for us,” Duttlinger said. “There is a sense of civic commitment that is missing in our society from this lack of service. And there are many ways to serve our country outside of the military. We just need to embrace that same love for our country that my dad had, and realize that we owe this country more than it owes to us.”

Taylor said he plans to continue to work for the citizens of Madison County.

“This means a major focus on economic development, expanding broadband access for every Madison Countian and using technology and innovation to improve efficiency,” Taylor said. “We are positioned for success and have the team in place to continue the upward trajectory and that is exactly what we are going to do. We can’t wait to see all of the success we have in the next term. We are grateful that Madison Countians believe in our leadership and vision.”

Taylor will welcome three new magistrates to the fiscal court, Billy Ray Hughes defeated incumbent John Tudor in the 3rd district and Brian Combs defeated Ben Robinson in the 1st district. The retirement of Roger Barger left an open position in the 2nd district with Stephen Lochmueller defeating Bruce Barnes for the open seat.

Magistrate Tom Botkin retained his seat as 4th district after he defeated Debbie Vesico.

In the race for Madison County Jailor, 40-plus year law enforcement veteran Steve Tussey defeated Doug Thomas to earn a third term in the position.

“I am very excited and humbled by the confidence the people of Madison County have in me,” Tussey said. “I plan to continue to serve them well and make positive changes for all the citizens.”

The race for Madison County Sheriff saw 10-year incumbent Mike Coyle hold off challenger William “BJ” O’Donnell to earn a third term in office.

“The support that I have received throughout this campaign season has been incredibly humbling,” Coyle said on his Facebook page following his win. “Thank you, to my wife Linda, my family and my supportive work family.”

presidential election when the voter turnout is near 65%.”

Barger added the longest report of waiting in line to vote was 45 minutes but most people were in and out within 15 to 20 minutes.

“We do not want to deter voting due to long lines,” Barger said. “This is something we are going to look at going forward.

“We may need to add more locations and hire more precinct workers and receive approval to increase the pay of precinct workers. My standard is to be in and out within 10 to 15 minutes.”

Older ladies in bathrobes can run fast when necessary

You might have heard about the two fellows who worked for the gas company.

Having finished a meter check, one of the guys challenged the other to a foot race back to the truck.

As each strained to outrun the other, an old lady in a bathrobe came from behind, passing them both, huffing and puffing and looking anxiously over her shoulder. They stopped her to ask what was wrong.

“When I see gas company employees running as hard and fast as you were, you’d better believe I’m going to run, too.”

The Bible tells us there are things we should flee from because staying put could lead to spiritual calamity. “Flee” is a strong word. It casts the image of people in such a hurry that they don’t even stop to grab any of life’s necessities or niceties. “Flee” conjures up images of people running with urgency as far and as fast as possible.

When the Apostle Paul was writing to the young preacher Timothy, he offered him some advice that seems absolutely foreign in modern day America. Paul told Timothy to flee from the human tendency to love money.

“For the love of money is the root of all evil, which, while some coveted after, they have erred from the faith, and pierced themselves through with many sorrows. But thou, O man of God, flee these things, and follow after righteousness, godliness, faith, love, patience, meekness” (1 Timothy 6:10-11).

In other words, Paul told Timothy he should seek after what’s truly valuable – righteousness, godliness, faith, love, patience and meekness – rather than to chase the almighty dollar.

I once left a high-paying job to serve as pastor of a very small church that paid very little. People thought I had lost my mind.

The fact is, all of us should strive to do what the Lord would have us do, no matter what people think.

“The steps of a good man are ordered by the Lord: and he delight-

eth in his way. Though he fall, he shall not be utterly cast down, for the Lord upholdeth him with his hand. I have been young, and now am old, yet have I not seen the righteous forsaken nor his seed begging bread” (Psalm 37:23-25).

Why do people chase after money and material goods anyway? Someone once wisely said they had never seen a hearse pulling a U-Haul trailer. In other words, we can’t take anything with us when we leave this world, but, if we’re fortunate, we can leave something behind – a clear testimony that we sought to love and serve God rather than to love money and chase after the riches of this world.

There are things more important than money, and that truth might become altogether clear if you, like that old lady, were to see a couple gas company employees running down the street as fast as they could. You might just leave everything behind and flee down that street, even if all you have on is a bathrobe.

New faces, fun places

Cats roll past Howard in season opener

LEXINGTON (KT) — Kentucky was missing two of its five starters in the season opener Monday night but it didn't matter.

Antonio Reeves scored 22 points to lead the fourth-ranked Wildcats to a 95-63 win over outmanned Howard. Reeves, an Illinois State transfer, knocked down six of the team's 11 3-pointers in the easy victory. The six treys by Reeves set a school record for the most made in a debut.

"That's wild," Reeves said. "I didn't know that. ... I did pretty well for my first game. I was able to knock down shots and the team did as well. We all connected and rebounded it and moved the ball pretty well."

Kentucky (1-0) was without veteran forward and National Player of the Year Oscar Tshiebwe (right leg) and point guard Sahvir Wheeler.

Both players are listed as day-to-day going into Friday's contest against Dusquene. Tshiebwe missed both exhibition games, while Wheeler sat out the blowout win over Kentucky State last Thursday night.

The Wildcats started freshmen Cason Wallace and Chris Livingston in the absence of Tshiebwe (right leg) and Wheeler (right leg). The Wildcats also were without sophomore forward Daimion Collins (dealing with his father's unexpected death). Collins is expected to play Friday.

Celebrating his 19th birthday, Wallace provided a solid floor game for Kentucky and just missed a triple-double in his collegiate debut. Wallace finished with 15 points, eight rebounds and nine assists.

"I couldn't have imagined this (kind of game)," Wallace said. "This is great. I'm just coming out and (trying to play) my best game. ... I played with my guys today, the best gift I could have."

Kentucky coach John Calipari praised the performance by Wallace, who had just two turnovers in 35 minutes.

"He's a guard is what he is," Calipari said. "The best players I've had have been guards. They can play on the ball and they can play off the ball and they are tough as nails and he is tough. He's fun to be around. He's a competitor. ... He's special."

Senior transfer guard CJ Fredrick, also making his Rupp Arena debut, finished with 20 points and scored 11 of those in the opening half. Fredrick knocked down two shots from long range.

"You know what CJ does? He makes all the right plays," Calipari said. "He played 36 minutes and no turnovers. That's him."

Jacob Toppin had his first career double-double with 15 points and 11 rebounds to round out four players in double figures.

Prior to the contest Tshiebwe received the Naismith Player of the Year trophy and also a game ball for scoring his 1,000th career point last year, which included his time at West Virginia.

Howard coach Kenny Blakeney said Kentucky's length affected his team's ability to perform to their capabilities.

"I wish we could have played like we've been practicing," he said. "We struggled tonight."

Even without his two seniors, Calipari likes the makeup of his squad even though the competition for minutes will get more intense when Tshiebwe and Wheeler return to the lineup.

"This is a unique and special group," he said. "They're competing for minutes, but they're cheering for each other."

Hays named Police Chief

By Andy McDonald
For The Citizen

At Tuesday's meeting of the Berea City Council, Mayor Bruce Fraley announced the city will be getting a new police chief in December.

Following an executive session concerning a personnel matter, Fraley stated:

"I notified the city council that on November 14, 2022, I received and accepted Police Chief Eric Scott's resignation letter. He is going to accept a new position outside of the city of Berea, effective November 30, 2022," Fraley said. "I notified the council that I intend to promote Major Jason Hays to the position of police chief, effective December 1, 2022, and I am requesting council approval of the selection of Jason Hays as our next police chief," Fraley said.

In a roll call vote, seven of eight council members approved Fraley's proposal to hire Hays, while Ronnie Terrill cast a dissenting vote. Fraley then congratulated Hays on his promotion, and thanked Chief Scott, who will wrap up approximately three years of service to the city.

"I will state for the record, Eric, we wish you all the best. The opportunity you have is truly the opportunity of a lifetime, and I know that you are planning to announce that

'Triple-demic'

Flu, COVID, RSV cases on the rise

By Leslie Barlow
Citizen Staff Writer

Influenza is spreading quickly and much earlier than in previous years across Kentucky, raising the threat of a "triple-demic" of flu, Covid-19 and respiratory syncytial virus (RSV).

The Kentucky Department for Public Health's most recent report says 2,082 flu cases were confirmed during the week that ended Nov. 5. That was 140 percent more than the previous week, and case numbers the week before were more than triple the previous week. To date, 3,342 cases have been confirmed, and that does not include at-home tests.

One influenza-related death has been reported thus far this year.

Locally, Madison County reported 23 lab confirmed flu cases as of Nov. 4, totaling 125 cases thus far into the season, according to the Kentucky Cabinet for Health and Family Services.

Currently, Madison County is in the Medium or Yellow level according to Kelley McBride of the Madison County

Take 3 Steps to Fight the Flu:

Get yourself and your family a flu vaccine each year before flu activity begins in your community. Getting vaccinated this season is may be more important than ever if there is both flu and COVID-19 activity at the same time.

Take everyday preventive actions to stop the spread of germs

Wash your hands often

Cover your coughs and sneezes

Stay home if you are sick

3

Take flu antiviral medicine if prescribed

Return to normalcy ... we're not there yet

The pandemic took away a lot of things. Some of which we may never get back and hopefully that won't be the case.

The pandemic took away a lot of things. Some of which we may never get back and hopefully that won't be the case.

Human interaction has always been a part of our society. Technology has taken phone conversations to another level. Face Time and Zoom were extremely beneficial as we all navigated through an unprecedented health crisis, the worse we all have experienced in our lifetime.

Thankfully, I was able to get my two jobs done through the use of the internet, but during this times, I missed talking and meeting people face-to-face. I missed the human aspect of relationships and having conversations without masks. Believe me, the fear of COVID-19 was real and it took mom from us. I've had the virus not once but twice, had the shots, the boosters as a preventive measure. Still, I'm a proponent of doing what you can to avoid the spread of a virus that just won't go away.

Maybe we took the simple things for granted pre-2020. Those simple things to me, were family gatherings, shaking hands, giving pats on the back, conducting interviews one-on-one, meeting with prospective clients, having friends and family come to the office without fear. We are somewhat back to those days, but we aren't completely there just yet, but we are getting closer to normalcy.

During Rhonda's recent stay at Baptist Health in Richmond, I had to wear a mask while in the facility.

Keith Taylor

I understand that viruses can spread easier in the hospital, but before the pandemic, we didn't wear them. Rhonda also received her meals on a Styrofoam tray with all disposable plates, cups and silverware. Would it not be cheaper to go back to the regular trays and plates to save money?

The waiting room on the third floor was closed, creating an inconvenience if Rhonda had more than two or three visitors. I had nowhere to go, because I only one adult visitor was permitted in her room. Rhonda needed me there, she needed her family and friends for support. I appreciate the care and concern, but we need to open things up again in order to move forward.

Although Baptist Health in Richmond is undergoing renovations, it's still no reason to shut down waiting rooms, force patients and visitors to go down to the ground floor and park in the back of the hospital. Every time the elevator door opened to the first floor, everything looked normal to me. But again, I don't know the entire circumstances, I just know what I see.

The hospital staff was extremely helpful and nice to us and they deserve a pat on the back for taking care of Rhonda during her six-day stay. However, I could tell they were overworked and short-staffed at times. I hope that young people will consider a career in the health care profession and I'm thankful that Lyndsey Horn, my front office manager's daughter, will be beginning her full-time career as an RN in the immediate future.

It's my hope that when people are sick and in need of love and compassion, the human touch won't be replaced by technology or closed doors.

Costly election

Total cost of 2022 state and federal midterm elections may have exceeded $16 billion according to a OpenSecrets analysis. Federal candidates and political committees spent over $8 billion while state candidates, party committees, and ballot measure committees spent close to $8 billion.

Here are the five most expensive Senate races this year according to OpenSecrets. This includes both general election and primary candidates together with the outside groups supporting them, such as the national parties and Super PACs:

- Pennsylvania: $373.6 million
- Georgia: $271.4 million (Georgia's is growing)
- Arizona: $234.6 million
- Wisconsin: $205.8 million
- Ohio: $202.1 million

Pennsylvania's crucial U.S. Senate race has been the most expensive in the country this year — and it wasn't even close. Georgia may end up close to $300 million. Who in Georgia is happy about this? The television stations. If you own a television station during a highly contested election season, in a lucrative market, you'll never have to work again when the election is over.

Democrat John Fetterman, Republican Mehmet Oz and their political allies have spent a combined $312 million on a race that ended up not even close. According to OpenSecrets, a nonpartisan group that tracks money in politics, money poured into Pennsylvania for Fetterman as he had over $15 million dollars more to work with than Oz.

Many are wondering how Fetterman, a recuperating sick man with the worst debate performance ever on national television, beat Oz? The answer is not a simple sentence. The bottom line was they didn't want Oz. Oz was seen as an outsider. Someone who moved to the state to further his career in politics. He is well known. That should have helped but it didn't help him that much. He was well known for being rich, famous and still relatively good looking for an old guy. Fetterman on the other hand is the local state guy. He doesn't look so good. They know who he is whether that is good or bad. He has been very sick and trying to rehabilitate. A lot of people feel sorry for him and didn't see him as a rich, affluent personality but rather a down to earth guy they can relate to. People often cheer for the underdog. If you post something on social media saying you are sick, bad off, down and out you'll get many more "likes" or responses than if you post you have just received a career advance and a $50,000 bonus.

Rand Paul of Kentucky raised $26,410,677 and reportedly spent $20 million. I hope he will use the remaining $6 million to rebuild homes in East, Kentucky recently devastated by flooding. Or, even West, Kentucky that is still trying to rebuild from tornadoes that flattened that part of the state.

The money spent on this election and all national elections is insane. People all over America can't afford to go the grocery store, fill up the gas tank or take care of their children's school needs. Yet politicians, interest groups, political parties, and Political Action Committees are raising and spending mega millions trying to keep or gain a political seat. You can't do anything about it either. We have so very little to say about anything in our country.

We have to depend on the people spending millions to get their seat. If the seat is worth millions to them and the special interest groups then do you really think they care about we think?

Blankenship: Set an example for all the rest

Dear Editor: It's not every day that a transgender woman or a lesbian runs for office, and certainly not in a small town. In fact, a trans person has never been elected to any office in the state of Kentucky, which makes it that much more significant that Bereans chose to be the first people to do so.

Berea has always been a town of contradictions. It is the town where John G. Fee founded Berea College. And it is the town where John G. Fee was dragged out of his home and beaten for daring to be an anti-racist. In that way, Berea is a lot like America: a place of great hope, and a place of tragedy. A proud and wonderful place, and a place that falls short of its dreams.

Many Americans — and many Bereans — have faced public abuse because of who they are. In the last few years, Bereans of color have had racial slurs screamed at them from passing cars. Bereans who practice minority religions have been made to feel excluded. Bereans who held a pride festival and organized for a fairness ordinance were viciously mistreated at council meetings.

Our Mayor, Bruce Fraley, recently said at a candidate forum that the hate some Bereans are subjected to is not a proof of their character, but a test of it. And the same is true of our city. The hate we see, the prejudice and ruthlessness and fear, do not show who Berea is. Only our response can do that.

What I hope, in the days and weeks to come, is that we will all make choices that pass the test. That we will greet our neighbors with kindness and love. That we will speak out when the town that we love is falling short of its founder's dream. That we will look our children in the eye and ask that they treat others with respect. If we don't do that — together — hate will flourish and spread. Or we can set our minds to living up to John G. Fee's founding vision — to become the beloved community that sets an example for all the rest.

Ky River Foothills Begins Energy Assistance Program

Kentucky River Foothills Development Council began the Subsidy portion of their Low-Income Home Energy Assistance Program Nov. 7. The agency is encouraging all eligible households to apply as soon as possible. Applications will be accepted through Dec. 16 or until funds are depleted.

Both homeowners and renters who are responsible for their heating bills and meet income guidelines are eligible to receive a one-time payment voucher. Individuals and households that have already received assistance this year are eligible to receive additional assistance.

“As we move into the winter and prepare to spend even more time indoors, home energy bills are going to increase, said Karen Atkins, KRFDC public information officer.

“We know that recent economic uncertainty and rising energy costs have made it more difficult for people to keep up. Our program frees up money that can be spent on groceries, medicine, and other essential household items.” Qualifying participants will receive an energy assistance benefit made payable to their primary or secondary heating fuel vendor. Energy services include electric, gas, kerosene, propane, coal, or wood. Eligible participants do not need to have an unpaid energy bill or be out of fuel to receive energy assistance. The benefit amount that each household receives is based on income, housing type (subsidized or unsubsidized), and the type of fuel used for heating. All eligible households will receive a benefit until LIHEAP funds are fully depleted.

A household is eligible for energy assistance when the household meets the basic eligibility criteria: completion of an application; is responsible for home energy costs, directly or as an undesignated portion of their rent; live in Kentucky when the application is made and apply in the county of residence.

Applicants must provide the following information:
Photo Identification.
Proof of Social Security Number or Permanent Residence card for each member of household.
Proof of all household's (all members) income from preceding month.
Most recent heating bill, verification from landlord that heating expenses are included in rent, or statement from utility company verifying participation in Pre-Pay Electric Program.

Vendor information (including account number and name on account) for your main heating fuel as well as electric.

Income eligibility for the program is up to and including 130% of the Federal Poverty Guidelines. For the 2022-2023 program year, the income guidelines are:
Household Size Gross Monthly Income
1 $1,437
2 $1,984
3 $2,495
4 $3,007
5 $3,518
6 $4,029
7 $4,541
8 $5,052
Add $511 for each additional family member.

Residents outside KRFDC's service region of Clark, Estill, Madison and Powell counties can find their community action agency here: <https://www.capky.org/network/>
Individuals who are unable to apply for themselves may send an authorized individual to apply for them. If this is the case, please contact the Foothills office in advance. If you are sick or have the flu, please call the Outreach Office first to make other arrangements.
LIHEAP is a statewide initiative sponsored by Community Action Kentucky in partnership with the Cabinet for Health and Family Services (CHFS). The U.S. Department for Health and Human Services appropriates funding to Kentucky through the CHFS, which contracts with Community Action Agencies across the state to receive LIHEAP applications and provide recipient benefits.

Funeral doesn't keep loyal sports fan away from game

An old fellow was watching the Super Bowl from front row seats near the 50-yard line when a man, passing by, asked if someone would be sitting in the seat next to him. “No,” he said. “That seat is empty.” “You have to be kidding me,” the man said. “Who in their right mind would have a great seat like this for the Super Bowl and not use it?” “Well, actually my wife was supposed to come with me, but she died.” “I’m sorry to hear that. But couldn’t you find a friend or relative or even a neighbor to take the seat?” “No,” the fellow said. “They’re all at her funeral.” I’m constantly amazed by the loyalty and devotion so many people have to their favorite athletic teams. They wouldn’t dare miss a game. If they can’t be there in person, they’ll watch on TV, even if it means paying huge monthly bills to cable or satellite companies to get all the ESPN coverage.

Here’s the kicker: So many of those sports fans claim to be devout Christians who insist that their devotion to Christ is first and foremost. Yet, those Christians have no inhibitions about skipping church services if their favorite teams are playing.

Time was when missing Sunday worship was unthinkable. Nowadays, many Christians know far more about their favorite sports heroes than they know about Jesus.

They’ll spend a couple hundred dollars or more for tickets, parking, food and drinks at a sports arena. Yet, they’ll feel like they’ve done something incredibly generous if they toss a $20 bill into the church offering plate.

If sports fans invested as much in local churches as they do for season tickets, the gospel would quickly spread to every corner of the earth. And if they would bring the same excitement to church that they take to the sports arena, worship services would be lively indeed.

The great victory in the history of the world came when Jesus defeated death, hell and the grave, and when we hear sermons about that, we should jump to our feet and cheer. In fact, we should absolutely shake the rafters with applause. What could be more exciting?

We chuckle about the fanatical sports fan who refused to miss a game for his wife’s funeral.

Perhaps you know someone just that serious about their favorite athlete, someone who talks constantly about that athlete and even wears his jersey.

If only we had more people who felt so strongly about Jesus.

Reflections

From Berea Citizen archives

November 16, 1922 Mrs. Belue in Rich- mond to occupy new stand

Mrs. B.E. Belue, who was known to The Citi-zen readers, had sold her ready-to-wear store on Second Street in Rich-mond to Mrs. Ed Carson Co. Mrs. Belue will open up a store at her old stand in the Soper building on East Main Street, where she planned to continue to carry an up-to-date line of ready-to-wear. Mrs. Carson, who will take possession of Mrs. Belue’s stand had had many years of experience. Both of the ladies had acquired many friends who believed in their ability to succeed.

November 20, 1947 Water spouts 18 feet in the air

Water from a displaced fire hydrant spouted 18 feet into the air on No- vember 13th, when Lester Mc Queen, a Railway Express driver, backed his truck into a hydrant locat- ed in front of Berea Col- lege’s Liberal Arts Build- ing. McQueen, a former employee of Bill’s Service station and a recent hire to the Railway Express staff, was on a routine delivery run and had taken the asphalt road behind University Walk when the accident occurred. They geyser of water rocketed skyward for a period of 50 minutes, and an estimate by the Heat and Power Department placed the total amount of water that was released to be over 100,000. Water three inches deep ran off down the hill and filtered through the windows and into the basement of the Heat and Power building. The water tower, located near the trunk line running from the L & N tracks into the college property was practically drained dry, the standpipe of the tower recording the gradual drop. Ten minutes after the gusher started bub- bling into the air, a crowd of approximately 100 people gathered to watch the torrential downpour and repair work.

November 22, 1979 Carter won’t seek re-election

Congressman Tim Lee Carter issued the fol- lowing statement on November 15th from Washington, D.C.: “I am deeply appreciative of the people of Kentucky and especially of the Fifth Congressional District. I can truthfully say that I can consider every person a friend. I am thankful for the support you have given me over the years. In return, I have tried to dedicate myself to your service, I trust I have fought the good fight and that I have kept the faith. I shall not run for reelec- tion to the United States House of Representa- tives. As to my future, I look forward to seeing the green hills of Kentucky, the deep valleys and the rippling hills. Previous to the surgery I had under- gone, I had made up my mind to retire at the end of this term. I am making this announcement at the time in order that those who wish to seek the of- fice I now hold may have ample time to visit the wonderful people of the Fifth Congressional Dis- trict. Again, it has been a labor of love to serve you. May God bless and keep you.”

November 19, 1992 Council invited to participate in parade

began Tuesday when Brad Park and Jim Master of the Berea Chamber of Commerce addressed the council. Park, Chair- man of the Chamber’s 7th Annual ‘Parade Commit- tee, invited each council member to participate in the parade, while Master, Chairman of the Christ- mas Banquet Committee invited each member to the Christmas Banquet that was to be held on December 10th. In other action, City Attorney J.T. Gilbert read a resolution awarding contract “A” of the new City Park to C&W Construction Com- pany. The contract was awarded to the company at the last council meet- ing, but Gilbert said due to questions raised af- ter the awarding of this contract, this resolution was needed. This resolu- tion stated why the city did not take the lowest bidder which was New Visions Construction. The resolution states the same reasons were brought out during the last meeting in- cluding some construction jobs that New Visions ap- parently had not finished on time. The resolution also stated that C&W had more, and better equip- ment and that the city felt the job would be better suited to this company.

"I am honored and humbled to be chosen as the next president of Berea College," Dr. Nixon said. "Berea is an inspirational model of what higher education can and should be. I share Berea's focus on inclusive excellence, having dedicated my career to serving underserved students. I have worked in both rural and urban settings to provide opportunities to students who often do not see themselves within higher education. By creating new ways to welcome these talented students into college, we can transform lives while also transforming communities. We must help students with wide-ranging interests and abilities feel inspired and empowered by the world of ideas. We must also help our communities—from Boston to the Navajo Nation to Appalachia—see and feel the benefits of higher education."

Dr. Nixon also stressed the unique strengths of Berea College, stating, "Berea's service to its students is grounded in the exhilarating values of the Great Commitments. Berea is a rare institution because it leads with its heart—it is not afraid to articulate courageous values. Add to that the Labor Program, which puts those values into action every day by taking pride in working together. There is no other college that connects learning to believing and doing in this same way, and it is a true honor to join this community of

Most of the cases have been in Kentuckians 20 and younger. Many school districts have closed schools or moved to nontraditional instruction (NTI) for a few days.

Madison County canceled classes Nov. 4 and students worked under an NTI day Nov. 7. Election day closed schools Nov. 8 and classes resumed Nov. 9. Berea Community Schools were closed Nov. 3 and 4.

"The spread of influenza in Kentucky is at widespread levels," said Susan Dunlap, Kentucky Cabinet for Health and Family Services Executive Director of Public Affairs. "In prior recent years, this level of flu activity was not observed until much later in the flu season."

The majority of influenza detections in Kentucky have been identified as Type A (primarily H3N2), Dunlap said.

The flu or influenza-like illness is defined as a temperature of 100 degrees or higher and a cough/ and or sore throat.

McBride said to help prevent spread of viruses such as influenza and COVID-19:

- Wash your hands often with soap and water for 15-20 seconds or use alcohol-based disposable hand wipes or gel sanitizers.
- Avoid touching your eyes, nose, or mouth. Germs often are spread when a person touches an object contaminated with germs and then touches his or her eyes, nose, or mouth.

The Berea College Board of Trustees began a presidential search process earlier this year after President Roelofs announced his upcoming retirement. A search committee comprised of a diverse mix of students, faculty, staff and trustees worked diligently to evaluate submissions from a field of 125 applicants.

"Finding a president for Berea College is an immense yet intimate task," said Board of Trustees Chair Stephanie Zeigler. "Not only does the person need to have achieved academic excellence and the intellect to rise in their field, but the person also needs to be truly compassionate to care deeply about everyone on our campus. Our president must be a true believer and advocate for equality, access and the transformational power of education. I'm deeply pleased to say Dr. Cheryl Nixon is all of that and more. On paper, she immediately impressed the search committee with her academic background and career trajectory through every rank in higher education. Her experience with and dedication to the liberal arts as a means of changing lives, and her hands-on work with students, faculty and staff alike was unparalleled. She naturally and effortlessly embodies every superlative the community had requested in our next president."

Dr. Nixon earned her B.A. in English and Political Science (summa cum laude) from Tufts University and her M.A. and Ph.D. in English from Harvard University. Her research focuses on the invention of the novel in the 18th century, and her books and articles compare the early novel's representation of the family to manuscript legal cases.

- Get an annual flu shot to help you develop antibodies to protect against flu infection.
- Avoid close contact with people who are sick. When you are sick, keep your distance from others to protect them from contracting your illness.
- Stay home from work, school and errands, if possible, when you are sick. This will help prevent others from catching your illness.
- Remind children to practice healthy habits because germs spread easily at school and in childcare settings, resulting in high rates of absenteeism among students and staff in our state's schools.

The flu vaccine has been updated this year and is expected to perform well against this circulating strain.

Early data indicate that the flu vaccination rate for children this current 2022-2023 flu season in Kentucky (21.3%) is slightly higher than it was during the same time in 2021 (17.3%). However, it is well below the Health People target of 70% and lower than is optimal during this level of flu activity.

With regard to RSV, the virus has recently increased in the United States and outbreaks of RSV have occurred in Kentucky daycares and preschools. Respiratory syncytial virus (RSV) is a common respiratory virus that typically causes mild cold-like symptoms.

People of any age can become infected with RSV and most recover within 1-2 weeks. RSV can be serious, though, especially for infants and older adults.

RSV is not a reportable disease so exact case numbers are not readily known.

on your own terms ...," Fraley said. Scott announced Wednesday that he is accepting a position in marketing at Eastern Kentucky University.

In other business, the council approved a municipal order adopting revisions to the city's personnel procedures. Under the terms of the revisions, which were discussed in a work session before the business meeting, the process for employee dismissal were revised. The changes come at the recommendation of the Kentucky League of Cities.

The council also heard an update on the Owsley Fork Reservoir dam project from Berea Municipal Utilities Manager Kevin Howard.

Howard noted that the USDA's Natural Resources Conservation Service is weighing options as to whether to require additions to the current dam construction plan, which could cost up to $6.5 million, most of which would be paid for by the federal government. BMU would be responsible for 35 percent of construction costs.

After NCRS engineers consulted some soil samples stored at the city, federal and state officials question whether architectural measures have to be taken to ensure there is not excessive shale expansion at the base of the dam, which could potentially create structural issues in the future. Howard said BMU is still hoping to make the case that taking new soil samples will prove that the shale is stable and suitable for the originally designed construction.

"Those are just some issues that have come up, and we are patiently and diligently working through those issues," Howard said, adding he believes NRCS wants to see the project through to completion. "I think they have skin in the game, and it's one of their goals to make sure this project makes it to construction."

Howard noted the importance of building a new dam, stating Berea has a water capacity issues. Reservoir levels are currently down in Owsley Fork, Cowbell and B Lake, despite record rains in July and August.

Howard said if the dam had

Cats falling short

Kentucky's football team will not be playing in the Southeastern Conference championship game. The Wildcats won't be participating in a New Year's Day bowl encounter this season. They will break even or win seven to eight games depending on the outcome of the last two encounters.

Keith Taylor

It's a far cry from last year when the Wildcats were routinely scoring and soaring under former offensive coordinator Liam Coen.

A season that began with high expectations following a second 10-win season in four years has quickly turned into one of disappointment down the stretch even though Kentucky is bowl eligible with two games remaining. The final conference game is Saturday against top-ranked Georgia and the finale will be against rival Louisville on Thanksgiving weekend.

The Wildcats opened with four straight victories but have lost four of the past six games — all of which were league encounters. The downfall began with a 22-19 loss at Mississippi on Oct. 1 and Kentucky has struggled to regain the confidence it had during the first quarter of the season.

The team's offense has struggled under first-year offensive coordinator Rich Scangarello, especially during the past month. Although the Wildcats have veteran quarterback Will Levis and running back Chris Rodriguez, the offensive line also hasn't lived up to the expectations of the "Big Blue Wall."

In conference play, unexpected losses to South Carolina and Vanderbilt and ranked foes Ole Miss and Tennessee have placed the Wildcats in the middle of the pack in the Eastern Division. Florida, South Carolina and Kentucky will be battling for third place in the division Saturday. Kentucky has the hardest path to finishing 4-4 in the league.

It's hard to gauge whether Kentucky's troubles can be entirely placed on Scangarello but losing to the Commodores and only scoring and average of 16 points in the past three games can't be encouraging numbers on his coaching resume.

The defense hasn't exactly played inspiring football during the past month, either, but scoring points is a top priority in college football.

Coach Mark Stoops said after the setback to Vanderbilt, which ended the Commodores' 26-game conference losing streak, he's not making staff changes, at least for now. In the past, Stoops isn't known to make in-season changes of any kind and kept Shannon Dawson through the end of the 2015 season before making a change after a season-ending loss to Louisville that year.

Sure, the NIL is a concern in terms of recruiting, but money isn't and shouldn't be everything in college athletics. Hopefully money won't become the name of the game in the collegiate ranks and create a wedge between education and sports. The top priority should always be to obtain an education, which is the main function of colleges and universities.

There certainly are issues within the program that need to be addressed by Stoops, but don't expect those concerns to be fixed during the next two weeks.

Ugonna Onyenso eyes a move toward the basket against Duquesne last Friday at Rupp Arena. Onyenso has been a pleasant surprise for the Wildcats so far this season. (Kentucky Today/Keith Taylor)

Post presence Onyenso an impact for Cats

LEXINGTON (KT) — Ugonna Onyenso continues to make an impression in his first season at Kentucky.

"He impacts the game the minute he walks on the court," Kentucky coach John Calipari said. "(He's) not afraid."

The 7-foot freshman center just missed a double-double with nine points and 10 rebounds in the Wildcats' 77-52 win over Duquesne Friday night. Aside from his scoring and rebounding contributions, Onyenso added three blocked shots, giving him seven in the first two games. It's the most in the first two games of the year since Anthony Davis swatted 12 blocks in the first two games of his collegiate career in the 2011-12 season.

Once Oscar Tshiebwe returns, Onyenso knows it will continue to take the little things to keep him on the court.

"I feel like I have the ability to stay in the game because of what I do," he said. "The fact that I help the team by blocking shots, I think it is going to get me more minutes. I am still working on other things. For now I am just playing a role on the team and doing my best to help the team."

Like Calipari, Duquesne coach Keith Dambrot said Onyenso's presence down low makes things difficult for opposing teams to have success in the post and believes he has a future at the next level.

"(He's) gonna make a lot of money (in the NBA)," Dambrot said. "He's the newfangled (and) that's kind of what those centers in the NBA look like now. Run, jump, and then he changes the game."

"We told our guys if you're not 100 percent shooting don't shoot it because it's coming back at you. And that's just like a turnover really. I hope (Kentucky can) keep him a while, it won't be easy."

The comments by Dambrot, Onyenso said, won't impact his daily approach and will strive to get better as the season progresses.

"It doesn't change anything," Onyenso said. "I just keep staying focused and I'm just working on my craft, trying to improve every day. When the time comes, I'll make the money. But for now, all I'm focused on is improving my game offensively and also building my confidence."

That confidence, Onyenso said, continues to grow and develop on a daily basis and he's discovered the college game isn't much different from the professional ranks.

"When I first got here, I thought like it wasn't going to be this easy for me blocking shots," he said. "But I found out that it was, the same as it was in high school — not much difference."

Onyenso's teammates have embraced his athletic ability in the post and the freshman center has been a pleasant surprise.

"Nobody knew what he was going to bring coming in, but he's definitely exceeded expectations," senior forward Jacob Toppin said. "He's been really good for us, blocking shots, being effective anywhere on the court. It's good for him and is good for this team."

Fraley: City on the rise amid challenges

By Andy McDonald
For The Citizen

Berea Mayor Bruce Fraley delivered his annual State of the City address last Thursday, noting the city is still on the rise despite steep challenges. Fraley also emphasized that Berea is a city with a big heart, reaching out to help others in need. The free public event took place at the Acton Folk Center and was sponsored by the Berea Chamber of Commerce.

Fraley noted the city has emerged strong in the wake of the 2020 global pandemic, continuing to build its road infrastructure, recreation facilities, has expanded and welcomed new industries and jobs, added small businesses, all while continuing to maintain a solid financial position that includes $3 million in a "rainy day" savings account and approximately $3.5 million for needed

Airport projects on the right track

By Andy McDonald
For The Citizen

The effort to extend a sewer line out to the Central Kentucky Regional Airport (CKRA) is on track, according to a recent report from Berea Municipal Utilities Manager Kevin Howard. Howard made the announcement last Tuesday during a business meeting of the Berea City Council.

According to Howard, Berea Municipal Utilities has received verbal commitments from all but one land owner to secure property easements, but Howard said he is confident that final easement will be received soon. Engineers should be out on the site within a couple of weeks to conduct surveying for the laying of the sewer line, he added.

THE WOODWORKING SCHOOL AT

SPRING 2023 REGISTRATION IS NOW OPEN!

Registration open for spring classes at The Woodworking School at Pine Croft

By Paula Keshderian
Berea College

The Woodworking School at Pine Croft, a division of Berea College Student Craft, is now registering for spring 2023 classes.

Ten different classes covering an array of woodworking skills will be offered and taught by woodworking instructors visiting Berea from around the country. One special class offered in the spring will be The Chairmaker's Toolbox, a program aimed at bringing people together through access and equality in the field of chairmaking.

"We are extremely excited to have The Chairmaker's Toolbox with us in the spring," said Andy Glenn, head of Pine Croft. "The Chairmaker's Toolbox is working to raise awareness of traditional woodworking techniques to those who may be interested, but do not otherwise have access to this type of program. By eliminating barriers to education and providing chairmaking tools to those who participate, we are literally growing a new generation of chairmakers. Bringing this nationally known program to Berea College is a great way to raise awareness."

Kelly Harris from Brooklyn, New York, will lead the class, along with Alexandra Mavrikis and Aspen Golann.

The Chairmaker's Toolbox course requires an application process. All other classes are available to the public, regardless of previous experience. "There are no requirements for these classes," Glenn said. "Some are more challenging, so previous woodworking experience helps, but regardless, all are welcome to attend."

Glenn said the classes offer more than just woodworking skill.

"This is a chance to be involved with a supportive community," he said. "Every time we offer classes, I am impressed by the students, how they help and encourage one another and how they share their excitement for this craft."

Hunter Elliot, the director of apprenticeships at Student Craft who has completed three previous Pine Croft classes, encourages everyone—regardless of skill level—to attend.

"Whether you are a beginner or have had experience in woodworking, there's always something to learn," Elliot said.

Both Glenn and Elliot agree on one thing—The Woodworking School at Pine Croft is beneficial for both the Berea community and beyond.

"We offer renowned instructors from around the country, and students travel from afar," Glenn said. "But we also have had students from Madison County, Rockcastle County and Estill County who attend. We love that these classes have such a great mix of attendees—meaning that there's even more for attendees to experience."

The Woodworking School at Pine Croft is nestled in the hills of Appalachia, within Berea College's 9,000-acre forest tucked up against the Berea Pinnacles.

"It's a great place to enjoy the craft, learn and challenge yourself and spend some time with other invested people," Glenn said.

Ralph “Kenton” Davis

Ralph “Kenton” Davis, 84, of Berea departed this life at his residence and entered into the presence of Jesus on Nov. 20, 2022. He was born February 26, 1938 son of the late Ikey and Delora Wren Davis. He was preceded in death by the love of his life, his loving and faithful wife Carolyn Jones Davis on Oct. 16, 2008.

In addition to his parents and wife he was preceded in death by siblings Fred Davis and Judy Wilson. Kenton was an amazing father to his four children who survive him, Kenny Davis, Jr. and wife Lisa, Steve Davis, Tommy Davis and wife Elaine and Lisa Botkin. His grandchildren and great-grandchildren were a source of great joy to him and always brought a smile to his face when they were around him. Grand-children are Travis (Jamie) Davis, Katie (Anthony) Wilburn, Logan Davis, Branden (Brittany) Davis, Joshua (Olivia) Davis, Jessica (Matt) Grant, Sarah (Jonathan) Casteel, Abby Botkin; great-grandchildren Natalie Davis, Parker Wilburn, Kenton Wilburn, Knox Wilburn, Dovie Davis, Georgia Davis, Hunter Grant, Tate Grant, Davis Grant, Kayce Casteel. He is also survived by one sister Ann Rowlette; sister-in-law Etta Davis, brother-in-law Roger Wilson.

His dear friend Larry Abrams must be recognized for his continual support and his daily visits and amazing friendship. Kenton and his life-long friend Harold Johnson were featured in a news article for using jumping mules to coon hunt. Proverbs 18:24 says “A man that has friends must shew himself friendly” and certainly this describes Kenton as he has so many friends that loved him whether they knew him ten minutes or fifty years!

Kenton was a hard-working man from his youth and was a man of character and integrity. He attempted to instill these traits in his children and all his descendants. He worked many years at Dresser Industries and Okonite and was a proud member of International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (IBEW). He also owned and operated his own welding and metal fabricating shop where he built countless trailers that are still in use today. The strength of his welds are legendary in central Kentucky, as is his ability to repair farm equipment. His ability to design and fabricate anything mechanical is known far and wide.

The love of mules and horses was a love Kenton carried throughout his life. He was a mule man and talked many times of when he was a small child standing on a special box his father built for him to be able to harness a team of mules as they prepared to go to the field to work everyday.

He was recognized nationally for his ability to build equine sleds for farm use.

When asked by the reporter what the secret was to building the perfect sled Kenton replied, “Look for the perfect crook in the tree to make the sled runners.”

Kenton was a faithful member of Silver Creek Baptist Church where he attended regularly as long as his health permitted.

Funeral services were at 11 a.m. Wednesday, Nov. 23, 2022 at Silver Creek Baptist Church.

Bro. Kenny Davis, Jr., Bro. Larry David Freeman and Bro. Scott Witcher officiated. Entombment followed at Berea Cemetery.

Pallbearers were grandsons and grandsons-in-law, Branden Davis, Josh Davis, Travis Davis, Logan Davis, Matt Grant, Jonathan Casteel, Anthony Wilburn. In addition to her parents and husband, she was preceded in death by one sister, and seven brothers.

She is survived by her children, Gwina (James) Poff, and Mitchell (Rhonda) Smith; eight grandchildren, Amy (Adam) Harding, Joseph (Deanna) Smith, Kathy (Michael) Coyle, Ashley

Anita Pauline Calico

Anita Pauline Calico, 97 of Berea, widow of Lewis Ray Calico, passed away on Nov.19, 2022, at The Terrace in Berea.

She was one of twelve children born in Madison County to the late Granderson David and Florence Chasteen Clark. She was a member of Berea Baptist Church since 1955 and was also a member of the Dixie-Sunshine Sunday School class. She was a 65+ year member of the White Station Homemaker’s Club. In her spare time, she loved to craft and keep her hands busy, she quilted, painted china, made baskets, knitted, and loved cooking for her family.

In addition to her parents, she was also preceded in death by her husband of 72 years, Lewis Ray Calico, one infant son, Roy Edward Calico, one son-in-law, Wayne Lawson, and eleven siblings.

She is survived by her children, Ray (Linda) Calico, Lois (Bill) Davenport, Connie Lawson, and Fred (Terry) Calico; ten grandchildren; and multiple great grandchildren.

Funeral services were at 4 p.m., Monday, Nov. 21, 2022, at Lakes Funeral Home. Rev. Kevin Slemp officiated and burial followed on Tuesday at Berea Cemetery at 11 a.m.

Active pallbearers were Tony Calico, Randy Calico, Brandon Davenport, Steve Warford, Brad Warford, and Raymond McLain. Honorary bearers will be great grandchildren.

In lieu of flowers, donations may be made to Hospice Compassionate Care Center in Richmond, church, or charity of your choice.

Blessed

There's a certain pastor here in Berea who gives me the same answer every time I ask how he's doing when we speak.

No matter if it's on the street, on the phone or at an event, he always gives the same answer. Anytime I ask Kenny Davis, pastor of Bethel Baptist Church, how he's doing, he replies, "I'm blessed."

I know what it's like to be in a pastor's home because I grew up a "PK" and I know for a fact being a minister can take its toll on a pastor. My Dad pastored churches and he also worked a full-time job on top of that, making it even more stressful to carry out the duties of delivering sermons and meeting the demands of a congregation. He did it and to this day, I don't know how. His example, however, taught me how to manage two jobs and still have time for church and family.

I'm sure Kenny carries that same weight as a full-time minister at his church to go along with the demands of every day life. Just like you and I, they are human and have families and have feelings, too. But, yet, he still tells me he's "blessed" no matter the circumstances. I'm not 100 percent certain, but I would imagine Kenny issues that same reply to everyone he comes into contact with in and out of church.

To be honest, every time I hear Kenny tell me he's blessed, it puts everything into perspective and serves as a reminder that no matter what kind of day I'm having at the moment, I am indeed blessed. Blessed to have family, friends, my health and two jobs that I have a big passion for and thankful for each and everything God has entrusted me with in life. And I do my best to be a good steward of his blessings.

I'm sure it wasn't meant to be a "Thanksgiving" sermon, but Pastor Kevin Slemp touched on "owning, managing and belonging" during a sermon recently. His key scripture was found in Psalm 24:1: "The earth is the Lord's and everything in it. The world and all its people belong to him." (NLT)

On this week of Thanksgiving, it should serve as a reminder that we are all blessed to have what we are entrusted with and be thankful and not resentful. It's easy to look around at what everyone else has and wonder why we aren't on the same level of living, and I'm guilty of that sometimes.

I've lost a lot in the past two years with the passing of my mom that I deal with daily but I'm thankful to have been raised by the best.

I'm blessed.

Always Story Time

According to my 2022 shelf on the Goodreads app, I've read 62 books so far this year. I'm hoping to reach 70 by 2023.

I am by all means a very goal oriented person who also enjoys measuring year-to-year results - one of the many reasons I love my position as library director - so annual reading challenges are extremely appealing. A reading goal is a fun one to meet.

At the beginning of 2022, I set a goal to read 52 books. I felt one book per week was attainable but still a challenge, as I tend to work long hours and typically fall asleep within 20 minutes of cracking open a book. Contrary to many stereotypes, we librarians do not, in fact, read at our desks all day.

While I do manage to finish several printed books in these 20 minute increments, audiobooks are really what help me achieve my reading goals. I listen to books primarily on my commute, as well as while I'm doing chores, cooking, and exercising. There's something about being read to that makes mundane tasks such as these much more appealing.

I've really always loved being read to, especially as a child - my family will attest to this, as I believe I tended to be a bit demanding about it - and I was fortunate to be surrounded by people who found it important to read to me.

This not only fostered a love of reading that has continued into adulthood, it laid the groundwork for success in both the classroom and the workforce.

The benefits of reading to a child are limitless in potential long term impact. Most brain growth occurs in the first five years of life, making this time period critical to cognitive and emotional development. Daily reading creates much needed stability and consistency. Reading the same story also helps children learn elements through repetition.

Reading to children is also critical to language development. According to Healthline, babies who are read to score higher in language and problem solving skills.

This extends through childhood and into the teen years as well, as displayed through higher IQ and language scores.

Vocabulary is also significantly enhanced. A study featured in the Journal of Developmental and Behavioral Pediatrics found that children who are routinely read to from birth to 5 years old are exposed to 1.4 million more words than children who are not read to. This creates a major head start in a child's education. Consistent exposure to language creates a solid foundation for lifelong literacy and learning.

The Madison County Public Library offers many opportunities to support reading to children, both at home and at the library. We have thousands of picture books and level readers available for checkout at both our Richmond and Berea locations.

Story Time at the library, offered weekly at both locations, is also a great way to build those critical language skills while also connecting with other children and caregivers.

Story time doesn't have to end with childhood - audiobooks provide story time for adults.

The library's Libby app makes audiobook listening extremely convenient as well. Download the Libby app on any mobile device, log in with your library card, and gain instant access to thousands of audiobooks available for checkout. Just a few taps of the screen to bring a story to life, and perhaps make those annual reading challenges a bit more fun as well.

GivingTuesday: Releasing the power of generosity

The period between Thanksgiving and New Year's Day is widely referred to as the holiday season. Holidays such as Chanukah, Christmas and Kwanzaa all take place in this typically six-week window.

During this period, there's another, possibly lesser known, event that can elicit many of the same warm feelings generated by more recognizable holidays.

GivingTuesday is held on the Tuesday after Thanksgiving every year.

Though that typically means the day is celebrated after the calendar turns to December, this year GivingTuesday takes place on Tuesday, November 30.

About GivingTuesday?

GivingTuesday organizers describe the event as a "movement that unleashes the power of generosity around the world." GivingTuesday is often characterized as hashtag activism, which involves social media users employing Twitter hashtags to show support for a cause. Twitter hashtags do not utilize spaces between words, so GivingTuesday references adhere to this practice.

How to participate

The organizers behind Giv-ingTuesday note that the day is about all types of giving.

- Individuals who want to participate can donate money, food and/or clothing; start an advocacy campaign; help a neighbor; or commit an act of generosity.

- Participants need not make their GivingTuesday efforts part of any official event associated with the day, but those who want to can visit VolunteerMatch.org to look for volunteering opportunities in and around their communities.

- Employers and even local governments also may sponsor or host events on GivingTuesday.

- Twitter users also can use the hashtag #GivingTuesday to promote causes and/or encourage donations throughout the day.

Some organizations may match users' donations up to a predetermined dollar amount, and users can enter #GivingTuesday into the Twitter search engine to discover such efforts.

- Parents can even help children find ways to participate by visiting GivingTuesdaySpark.org.

GivingTuesday is a global effort that emphasizes the power of generosity. Individuals can learn more at GivingTuesday.org.

Fred Thrasher Art Collection Auction Press Release

The legendary Fred Thrasher, a local artist form Clinton County, Kentucky whose works depicted the America of yesterday seen through the eyes of today, was a fixture of the art community for decades, with his final work coming in 2014.

The themes of nature, of home, and of times gone-by and our own fond recollections of them would go on to span across hundreds of paintings.

Certain themes would be revisited, often with a seasonal flair – the same setting would be revisited across all four seasons, showing both the passage of time but also how each season affords it's setting its own specific charm and beauty. His "four seasons" collections would become some of his most prized works.
Describing his art, he once noted "with all the traffic and busy hustle of daily life, I feel that if I can take someone back to a place that's full of peaceful memories, even just for 5 or 10 minutes, I've accomplished something."

He would travel around, visiting and working with galleries, studios, festivals, state fairs, and conventions to forge the relationships that would make his art a success and build the connections with those who enjoyed his work that, in many ways, was the true gift of his art career.

As a portion of the Fred Thrasher estate the collection will go online for auction just after Thanksgiving with the online auction closing at 6pm on Friday, December 9th on www.fordbrothersinc.com. For more details regarding this auction please call 606.256.4545.

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9X9 grid, broken down into nine 3X3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

The Richmond railroad station was the scene of a train wreck on November 22nd around 1 p.m. when Number 35 from Cincinnati derailed just as it was pulling into the station. According to reports from Richmond, the engine and coal tender both left the rails and turned cross ways on the tracks. All of the passenger coaches remained intact, and no one was injured.

A train wreck that damaged nine coal cars and tore up about 300 feet of track and spilled 470 tons of coal occurred just south of the L & N tunnel on November 20th. Train traffic on the railroad was tied up until nearly midnight. The train wrecked was a double-header pulling over 100 cars and was northbound at the time of the accident. The wreck was caused by a drawbar dropping from the 99th car in the train. Included in the 470 tons of coal spilled was one car of egg coal, 2 cars of coal dust, 2 cars of black coal, and 4 cars of oil treated stoker coal. No one was injured in the wreck. The repairs and wrecking crews responded from Corbin and Ravenna.

Secretary of Army, Clifford Alexander, told Senator Wendell Ford that there was no link between the chemical incident at the Lexington – Bluegrass Army Depot involving a cloud of noxious gas earlier this year and the presence of pentachlorophenol (PCP) treated wood. In a letter responding to an earlier inquiry from Ford, Alexander repeated that the PCP-treated ammunitions crates had not and would not be released to the public at the Central Kentucky Army installation. “This results from a supply and demand balance rather than because of PCP impregnation,” Alexander said. Alexander also told Ford that the Department of the Army had contacted the Environmental Protection Agency’s Office of Special Pesticide Review regarding the need for public notification of the possible hazards associated with PCP-treated lumber. Alexander assured Ford that the Army would continue to follow an ongoing EPA study to determine if clusters of cancer had occurred in the Madison County area and, if so, to identify possible causes.

A group of people with ties to Appalachia had been presenting a seminar on the region, entitled “Identifying Family Strengths in Appalachia.” Warren Bruner, an accomplished Appalachian photographer, joined the group when the approached him at his Berea studio and asked for slides of old family photos. “The girls submitted a paper to this conference and were accepted to show it and then they copied all of their own family pictures and they came into the studio and said, can we make slides of it,” Brunner said. Sensing that this was his type of project, Bruner asked if he could help and became the fifth member of the team, which consisted of four women (Ruth R. Davis, Kathy Ratliff, Delores Carpenter and Mary Singleton) with Berea connections. The four agreed and the project was underway. The project consisted of a slide show which drew on photos from Bruner’s archives and other old photos along with family pictures from the four women, spanning from 1964 through 1984. Then the women went out and took new photos for the seminar. The seminar was presented in a one-hour format at the University of Kentucky and then as a part of an all-day program at Eastern Kentucky University as a part of continuing education in the College of Allied Health and Nursing. From that point the group had given several presentations on what was then considered a national topic. The presentation centered on six aspects of family: family strengths, responses to illness, sense of community, spirituality, communication and four seasons in Appalachia slide presentation. “In part of this is the original concept to show strengths of the Appalachian family and we did this partly for caregivers, doctors, nurses, social workers and clergy, and a lot of it was helpful for new people coming into Kentucky, Bruner said.

KSP urges Hwy safety

FRANKFORT (KT) – Kentucky State Police will be participating in Operation CARE Nov. 23-27 to promote highway safety during the heavily traveled Thanksgiving holiday period.

Operation CARE, which stands for “Collision Awareness and Reduction Efforts,” will focus on DUI enforcement, although seat belt use and distracted driving will also be a part of Operation CARE. Saturation patrols and traffic safety checkpoints will be conducted throughout the operational period.

Some of their safety reminders include:

- Never drive under the influence of alcohol or while impaired by any substance.

- Abide by speed limits. Reduce speeds during inclement weather.

- Wear your seat belts and be sure to utilize child restraint devices and booster seats when required.

- Maintain a safe distance between you and the vehicle in front of you.

- Keep right except to pass. It is Kentucky law that drivers on limited access highways that have two lanes per side, must stay in the right-hand lane unless they are actively passing another vehicle.

- Move over and slow down for stopped emergency vehicles and any other stopped or disabled vehicle on the shoulder or emergency strip.

Hornets tend to be Rambos of the insect world

I heard the other day about a woman who saved her husband from a hornet.

"We were out in the garden when that hornet lit on his nose," she explained. "He was very fortunate that I was close enough to swat the thing with my shovel. It might have stung him if I hadn't been there."

In a list of most-feared insects, hornets have to be near the top. Their stings are quite painful. And it seems they need little prompting to attack. So, it's no wonder that when the Lord needed a special weapon to chase enemies out of the Promised Land he looked to the hornet.

The children of God had grown fearful of opposing armies. That's when the Lord reminded them of the great things he had done in the past to free them from Egyptian slavery, how he had opened a path across the Red Sea for them to escape Pharaoh's soldiers, how he had provided manna from heaven to eat as they traveled toward the Promised Land. The Lord was making the point that if he had done all that in the past, why should they doubt what he'd do in the future?

So, opposing armies were dug in. They had the high ground. The children of God saw themselves at a distinct disadvantage, but that was only because they had lost sight of just how awesome God is, that he had created everything, including his secret weapon, the hornet.

"The Lord thy God will send the hornet among them, until they that are left, and hide themselves from thee, be destroyed" (Deuteronomy 7:20).

When I was a little boy, I spent a lot of time roaming the mountains of eastern Kentucky. My parents taught me to be especially careful around three things, rattlesnakes, copperheads and hornets.

Roger Alford

Hornets? Why would a little ol' insect be included alongside poisonous snakes in that warning? When I threw my first rock through a big hornet's nest, I quickly learned why. They're absolutely vicious. I suppose I have never run so fast.

If you have ever had a run in with hornets, you'll understand that the Lord couldn't have chosen a more effective means to make soldiers get up and move ... fast.

Can you just imagine, war-hardened soldiers running from those hornets? I can.

The moral to this story is this: When the Lord wants you to do something, go ahead and do it. You don't want to risk a run-in with the hornets of God.

home décor, home designed and embroidered t-shirts, quilts and blankets, painted gourds, and so much more,” said Jennifer Parsons. “We hope to continue growing and make Berea proud. On behalf of all small businesses in town, we appreciate the proclamation and the support for Small Business Saturday.”

In addition to Fraley’s proclamation, city officials have been urging local residents to participate in Small Business Saturday, including Berea Business and Tourism Development Director Donna Angel.

“It’s important to me in tourism that we back up the small business owners, because without them, we’d have pretty slim pickings around here,” Angel said. “But Shop Small Saturday last year had 1,861 people who came through this town. Those were taken from credit card zip codes. So, that shows you how many people come to down during that weekend.”

Angel said supporting events like Small Business Saturday or Shop Small Saturday also helps send the message that keeping retail dollars in the city is good for the community.

“We do believe in shopping small, staying home, and taking care of our businesses right here. We know what a role that plays in keeping our merchants content in calling this home for their business,” Angel said during a recent Berea Tourism Commission meeting.

Berea City Councilman John Payne has long maintained that if Berea residents like having small businesses in town, and if they want more, they have to support the ones that are already here. With that in mind, Payne encouraged residents to check out the new Mexican restaurant in town, Nuevo Vallarta on Richmond Road.

capital expenditures, including, for example, new emergency equipment like fire trucks or police cruisers.

Berea’s notable accomplishments outlined by Fraley included:

- Substantial completion of Phase II of the Berea Bypass;
- Expansion of local industry, including AppHarvest and Hitachi Astemo Electric Motor Systems;
- Landing funding for major projects, including $1.7 million for the Scaffold Cane Shared Use Trail, $500,000 for industrial economic development, and $588,000 for the Brushy Fork Sanitary Sewer Project;
- Continuing to improve road infrastructure, including the repair and repaving of Chestnut Street and supporting the continuing upgrade of the Central Kentucky Regional Airport.
- As for priorities in the coming year, Fraley outlined some of the goals the city council, administration, and staff will be pursuing including:

- Completing the Owsley Fork Dam project;
- Adopting financial strategies to deal with inflation;
- Implementing the strategic plan to improve city parks;
- Finalizing a power purchase plan project for the city;
- Continuing positive working relationships with the city of Richmond, Madison County, Berea College, and Eastern Kentucky University.

In closing, Fraley had words of praise for staffers and the council who showed that Berea has a “big heart” when it comes to supporting other communities in need, including helping tornado victims in western Kentucky, and stepping up to help flood victims in eastern Kentucky in July. He noted that all facets of the community come together – citizens, churches, civic groups – to help those in need, whether they are in different parts of Kentucky or right in Berea.

“Just like our other small businesses, I hope our community members will welcome them and spend their money there,” Payne said.

Councilmember Teresa Scenters expressed hope that residents would seek ways to do more holiday spending in Berea this year.

“As the holiday season comes upon us, don’t forget Small Business Saturday. Everybody spend your dollars at home. Have a happy Thanksgiving,” Scenters said.

Economic Development Committee Chair Jim Davis echoed those sentiments, adding consumers should continue to support local commerce even after the holiday season is done.

“It’s very important to our small businesses and so, remember them on Small Business Saturday and all year long,” Davis said.

Consumers can cap their Small Business Saturday experience in Old Town Artisan Village with the Mayor’s

Merry Mingling Event, running 6 –7:30 p.m., on the Cabin Lawn. Mayor Fraley invites residents to kick off the holiday season with the annual Christmas tree lighting, photos with Santa, hot cocoa, cookies and kettle corn, marshmallow roasting, storytelling and musical performances.

PROJECTS

Additionally, efforts are also planned to extend an eight-inch water line from the Madison Southern Water District to the airport with the aim of expanding airport facilities to include a terminal building. Corporate air traffic, including private jets, has increased significantly in recent years as more manufacturers and businesses open in Madison County. The water line will also enhance the airport’s fire suppression capabilities, Madison County Airport Board Chairman George Wyatt has stated.

Airport officials are hoping to secure approximately $1 million to pay for the water/sewer line extension, and have applied for a grant to fund 80 percent of the cost through the Appalachian Regional Commission. The city of Berea is sponsoring efforts to secure funding for the remaining 20 percent, or approximately $250,000 in funding, in a loan from the Kentucky Industrial Authority. Airport officials say prospects for securing both of those loans is very good.

In related news, officials from the Madison County Airport Board noted efforts to finalize the contract for the new terminal building are still under way. Negotiations on that contract are being handled by representatives of the airport’s fixed base operator, Eastern Kentucky University. The terminal will not only provide for flight instruction learning facilities for the EKU Aviation Program, it will also serve general aviation and enable the airport to entice more corporate flights to come to Berea/Richmond, thus allowing the facility to sell more aviation fuel and increase profits.

In related news, airport board officials reported at the November 1 meeting that the CKRA is halfway through a project to replace all of the facility’s lighting with LED bulbs. Officials have said the project will not only help save energy, it will also reduce the cost of maintenance because of the longer life of the LED bulbs.

At that meeting, Dwayne Brumley of the Madison County Emergency Management Agency also addressed the board, requesting board members to identify a site on airport grounds where a new emergency warning siren could be installed. Brumley explained it’s part of a county-wide effort to upgrade the warning sirens before the completion of the chemical weapons demilitarization project at the Bluegrass Army Depot. Fraley said aiding the completion of the Central Kentucky Regional Airport modernization program is a key goal of the city government in the coming fiscal year, due to the facility’s positive impact on the regional economy.

Out of the Blue

Wednesday, November 23, 2022

The Berea Citizen A12

It's not a November to remember

It hasn't been a November to remember for Kentucky.

The Wildcats have two losses in their first five games, both coming in the past six days. The tumble began following late-game break-downs in an 86-77 double-overtime loss to Michigan State in the Champions Classic on Tuesday. An 88-72 loss to No. 2 Gonzaga Sunday night will most likely drop the fourth-ranked Wildcats (3-2) out of the top 10 when the rankings are released Monday.

Keith Taylor

The showdown in Spokane featured two of the top players in college basketball and the largest crowd in Spokane Arena history. Big crowds and the big stage historically haven't been an issue for Kentucky. An 80-62 win over eventual national champion Kansas at Allen Fieldhouse in Lawrence, Kansas, last year supports that evidence.

In the battle between the two top players in the East and West Coast, Kentucky standout Oscar Tshiebwe posted a double-double with 20 points and 15 rebounds, while the Zags' top player — Drew Timme — scored 22 points and collected seven rebounds. Tshiebwe was more dominating individually, but his teammates were not when it mattered the most.

The difference was the support Timme received from his teammates. Two Gonzaga players finished with 20 or more points, while Tshiebwe didn't get the same production from his backcourt and it showed.

Making his first start this season, Tshiebwe carried the Wildcats on his shoulders through the rough waters of first half, even as the hosts built a lead that reached 18 points at one time in the first 20 minutes.

Gonzaga simply couldn't miss, while Kentucky struggled from the field. The Wildcats missed all 10 of their shots from long range in the opening half and didn't connect on a 3-pointer until the second half. A trey by CJ Fredrick and ignited a rally that featured back-to-back threes by Cason Wallace and Antonio Reeves pulled the Wildcats within four with 13 minutes remaining, but that's as close as Kentucky could get down the stretch.

The two setbacks aren't costly for the Wildcats this early in the season, considering there are four months remaining before another national champion is crowned. Barring unforeseen circumstances, Tshiebwe will be in the conversation for Player of the Year yet again, but the team's overall success will depend in the rest of the cast.

It's a long season. Remember, it's just November.

Cats showed fight in loss to Bulldogs

LEXINGTON (KT) — Kentucky made No. 1 Georgia earn its second straight perfect season in the Southeastern Conference Saturday.

The Bulldogs (11-0, 8-0 Southeastern Conference) weren't at their best, but did enough to continue their recent dominance over the Wildcats, with a hard-fought 16-6 victory, claiming their 13th consecutive win in the series between the two SEC East foes.

"They're the No. 1 team in the country for a reason," Kentucky coach Mark Stoops said. "They're a very complete football team in all areas and they play very well."

On paper, a blowout was anticipated, considering the Bulldogs had scored 40 or more points in three of its past four games. On the field, it was a different story, thanks to Kentucky's defensive unit that made up for a poor showing in a stunning 24-21 loss to Vanderbilt last week that ended the Commodores' 26-game conference losing streak.

"After a tough loss a week ago, getting them motivated to compete at a high level (was our priority). We invested to the commitment that it takes to go and compete against a team like (Georgia)," Stoops said. "It took a lot of digging and soul-searching and the competitive nature of our players to re-invest and commit and to put in that kind of effort. We came up short, but the effort, the preparation was there."

Much of Georgia's struggles were attributed to Kentucky's defense. Kentucky (6-5, 3-5) kept the Bulldogs out of the end zone in the first half, limiting Georgia to three field goals on its three possessions of the half. Kentucky had another goal-line stop at the 1-yard line in the fourth quarter that resulted in an impressive 99-yard scoring drive by the offense.

The lone touchdown of the game by Georgia came in the third quarter on a 9-yard run by Kenny McIntosh, who finished with a game-high 143 yards rushing. Kentucky made a pair of fourth-down stops at their own 1-yard line, limiting Georgia to a field goal in the opening half on one of those impressive stops. Jordan Lovett had an interception that stalled a Georgia drive in the second quarter.

Despite managing just 124 total yards through the first three quarters. Kentucky showed signs of life in the fourth quarter with an impressive 99-yard drive that featured three dazzling catches by freshman receiver Barion Brown for 55 yards.

Stoops gets extension

LEXINGTON (KT) — Mark Stoops doesn't regret signing a contact extension but wishes the timing of the agreement could have been better for both parties.

The Kentucky football coach signed the deal that will run through the 2030 season and expires in June, 2031. He will receive a raise that increases to $8.65 million beginning in February. The extension wasn't made public or released to the media, but records show it was signed on Nov. 11, the day before his team's 24-21 loss to Vanderbilt. His buyout will change from $1.75 million to $4.5 million and decrease by $500,000 at the end of each season he remains at the helm.

"It was agreed upon, when things were really good, but obviously I feel bad for Mitch (Barnhart) and Dr. (Eli) Capilouto in not doing my part, truthfully. After that game (Vandy), believe me, I better just stop there. I felt very bad about that loss and some of the parts of the season."

Stoops said he has no plans of leaving anytime soon although he has received interest from other programs.

"I'm committed to this place and have been," he said. "This is my home. This is the place that I've helped build to this point. Do we want more? Yes. I think we want to continue to grow."

"Dr. Capilouto expects more. Mitch expects more, and I do, and I want to continue to build, continue to have the continuity, and I want to improve. There's a lot of people that would like to have the stability that we have had. And there's a lot of people that would, much like us, be driven to compete at higher levels as well."

Stoops, the second-longest tenured coach in the Southeastern Conference behind Alabama's Nick Saban, will close out the first decade of his tenure when the Wildcats (6-5, 3-5 SEC) take on instate rival Louisville (7-4) Saturday at Kroger Field.

New police chief takes over

By Andy McDonald
For The Citizen

When Major Jason Hays, 45, takes over as chief of the Berea Police Department (BPD) Thursday, he intends to continue the changes that have been implemented over the last three years by the current chief, Eric Scott. Effective Thursday, Scott, who signed on to lead the department approximately three years ago, is stepping down to accept an administrative and marketing position at Eastern Kentucky University.

Jason Hays

Berea Mayor Bruce Fraley said the hiring of Hays was the best choice given his experience as the second in command at the department. In addition to handling the continuing accreditation requirements for the BPD, Fraley praised Hays for his ability to identify talent, as well as his sound judgment when it comes to handling personnel matters.

"He has shown what I would call an uncanny ability to identify good talent," Fraley said. "Based on the current status of the police department, the training that we've completed, the accreditation, and the strong staff that we have, I felt strongly that our next police chief should come from within. Ignite Academy South gives students early start on achieving future goals

Citizen Staff Writer

High school students in Southern Madison County now have a new place to learn and work toward a future career with the opening of the Ignite Academy South. The nearly 52,000 square foot building is located adjacent to Farris-town Middle School.

The south campus opening follows the September opening of the 73,000-square foot Ignite Academy North in Richmond.

Both campuses hosted open house events Nov. 21 and 22 to showcase their facilities.

"Ignite Academy South is a great opportunity for all students in the south to achieve their career goals," said Chris Clark, Ignite Academy Director. "In the past, Southern students had the opportunity to attend the Richmond ATC Center, but not as many students wanted to travel north.

"By opening the Ignite Academy South, Madison County Schools has provided opportunities for students to attend a career center right down the road from their home. We have both Madison Southern High School students and Berea Community students enrolled at Ignite South. All students enrolled are taking this opportunity and working hard to achieve industry certifications that they never thought possible before the school was open."

Former state Rep. Shell files to run for ag commissioner

FRANKFORT (KT) – A former Kentucky House Majority Leader is hoping to return to Frankfort after filing candidacy papers Tuesday with the Secretary of State's office seeking the GOP nomination for Commissioner of Agriculture in the May 2023 primary. Jonathan Shell, who describes himself as a fifth-generation farmer from Garrard County, was elected to the Kentucky House of Representatives in 2012, becoming the youngest member of the General Assembly. Prior to the 2016 election, he was tapped by Republican leadership to spearhead candidate recruitment. That year, Kentucky elected its first Republican House Majority in nearly 100 years.

In 2017, Shell's colleagues elected him Kentucky's first-ever Republican House Majority Floor Leader, where he helped develop and execute legislative strategies which led to enactment of a Right to Work law, pro-life legislation, support for farmers and a crackdown on opioid traffickers.

Shell lost his House seat in 2018

when he was upset in the primary.

Shell said he is running for ag commissioner due to a desire for public service which was instilled in him by his grandfather, who passed away three years ago.

"He was always involved in our community," Shell said. "He was on every board that you could be on, whether it be Farm Bureau, or the fire department boards. I learned not only how to perform public service through him, but also how to be a conservative."

Top counselor

Parsons receives prestigious award

By Leslie Barlow
Citizen Writer

Lisa Parsons was nominated and has received the 2022 Outstanding Mental Health Counselor Award. The award winner is chosen by the Kentucky Counseling Association Board.

Parsons, a native of Portland, Ore., who has lived in Kentucky since 2004 and Berea since 2007, earned the award for the work she is doing at Parsons Counseling & Play Therapy Center.

The Eastern Kentucky University graduate called receiving the award an honor. “The joy that it makes me feel to hear my peers cheer and clap for me was the best moment,” Parsons said. “I appreciate my clients, and those that know me that it was well deserved, is so touching to me. As a business owner Covid was tough. I had a lot of personal losses in Covid, too. I was surviving to keep Parsons Counseling open, sometimes I work so hard that I do not see the fruit of my labor. This award has allowed me to pause and realize that I am helping others and my goal of making a difference in others lives is coming true, not only for my clients but as I train counselors and educate other counselors in the unique services I offer at Parsons Counseling.”

Parsons said the idea for Parsons Counseling and Play Therapy Center was created in June 2014 and she saw her first client Sept. 30 of the same year.

“I wanted to serve my community with the best counselor services possible,” Parsons said. “I wanted to work at a place where there was no ceiling so I could offer services without restraint.”

Parsons Counseling has locations in Berea and Richmond. The center specializes in helping children, adults, and families overcome their challenges and achieve their personal goals by improving their competence, capacity and productivity.

Parsons believes in giving back to the community by being an active participant in supporting school sports. The center has sponsored Madison Southern High School’s Cross Country Team (2018) and Dance Team (2019) as a corporate sponsor. They have also supported Madison Southern High School’s Marching band since 2017 by volunteering, donating food, purchasing a video camera, and advertising to assist in their efforts to raise money. Parsons has also become a corporate athletic sponsor for Madison Southern High School.

In addition, Parsons said they have advertised for the Berea Community Football team, Madison Southern’s football team, and Madison Central High School basketball team, and various other community events and teams.

The center has provided $8,500 in scholarships for Madison County high school students since 2018.

Being involved with the youth of the county is very important to Parsons. In 2021 the center offered free social group camps during the summer to clients to assist them to learn and practice their coping skills while having fun with peers after COVID-19.

“It is our desire to continue to find ways to give back and serve our community in ways that bring people together, provide opportunities to the underserved, and give back to those that support us,” Parsons said.

The center is also actively involved with the Spoonbread Festival each year.

Parsons Counseling received Berea’s Best Family Counselor Award for seven consecutive years. Parsons was nominated in 2018 for the Women of Courage award in Madison County for starting a business that was making a difference.

“Our overall business goal is to be a leader in the counseling industry in Madison County to provide quality services for children as young as two years old through adults by being well-trained professionals and by having great customer service,” Parsons said.

Seniors have stories to tell and we want to share them

You are reading history. The Berea Citizen has been a part of this community and Madison County since 1899 and records events and happenings in our community that will be forever stored in the archives on microfilm at the Berea College Library. Each week we publish a “Reflections” column that takes readers down memory lane and gives current generations a glimpse of past news and events that were highlighted by those who lived before us. Those generations didn’t enjoy the luxuries that we now have. Life was hard, but hard work was valued by our ancestors.

They place value on life, their faith, friends and their job. They understood friendships and establishing relationships. They talked to one another face to face and didn’t rely on technology to communicate. Technology has its place, but there’s something about personal interaction.

Our older generation population have stories to tell.

Keith Taylor

They have seen and heard it all. They remember when radio and newspapers were the only source of information. They remember their parents telling them about the Great Depression, the Recovery and they remember the Good ‘Ole Days.

They envisioned the “American Dream” and pursued it relentlessly.

I love hearing our senior citizens tell stories from the best moments of their lives. They knew of a world that existed before computers and smart phones. What did we do before Apple developed the iPhone? What did we do to kill time?

Our older generation knows a thing or two about survival when times are tough. They know what it takes to make it through the bad times. While growing up in the 1970s and 1980s, we had our share of challenges, but nothing like my parents experienced while they were growing up.

I have stories and memories, my nothing like our senior citizens can share.

That’s why starting in January, we will be profiling senior citizens in our community who are 90 and over. They have a lot to say and we want to hear and share their experiences.

Our staff writer, Leslie Barlow, will be compiling and writing those stories as we delve into history from the perspective of those who lived to tell it.

Our younger generation deserves to know about the past and we can’t wait to share it.

Send your 90 and over name and information to publisher Keith Taylor at publisher@bereacitizen.net. Or call our office at (859) 986-0959 to provide a name for consideration to be included in this series.

Christmas is in your heart

Christmas once started for me when the JC Penny and Sears catalogs came in the mail. They came early in the Fall and I wore them out looking at the toy section. By December the catalogs were in shambles.

My mother used to order clothes and other stuff from those catalogs. I don’t remember her ever ordering toys. They usually came from the five and dime store in our town of Inez, KY or G.C. Murphy’s store in Paintsville. Yet, the catalogs were fun and gave me ideas of the latest items for which to wish and hope.

I think my mother would enjoy the Internet today. She could order online like many of us are doing. Having Internet in the country is like have an updated Christmas catalog every day. There is always a means to shop and order. Back in that day ordering was tedious and arrival took weeks. Shipping back a dress that didn’t fit was a long ordeal.

As a child there was always much more that I saw, dreamed of and wished for than I ever received. Some Christmases were lean and others were more abundant. Life is like that most of the time. We have hopes and wishes that never come true and some that do. It’s nice when one or two come true.

We hope for good health and enough money to pay the bills. We hope for our children to have meaningful lives and to be independent. We hope for peace and to see positive results from our efforts in life. We would all like to be compensated well for the jobs we do. Being stuck in a job that is restraining with little hope of better wages is discouraging. Everyone deserves a life where internal inspiration can lead to reward and a better life.

The hardest part of life is when we feel hopeless. A terminal illness. Hard work with little to no reward. An empty house that isn’t changing because you just buried a spouse. Failing when you may have tried hard or just decisions that didn’t work out too well. All of these and more can be heartbreaking. Heartbreak doesn’t do much for the Christmas spirit.

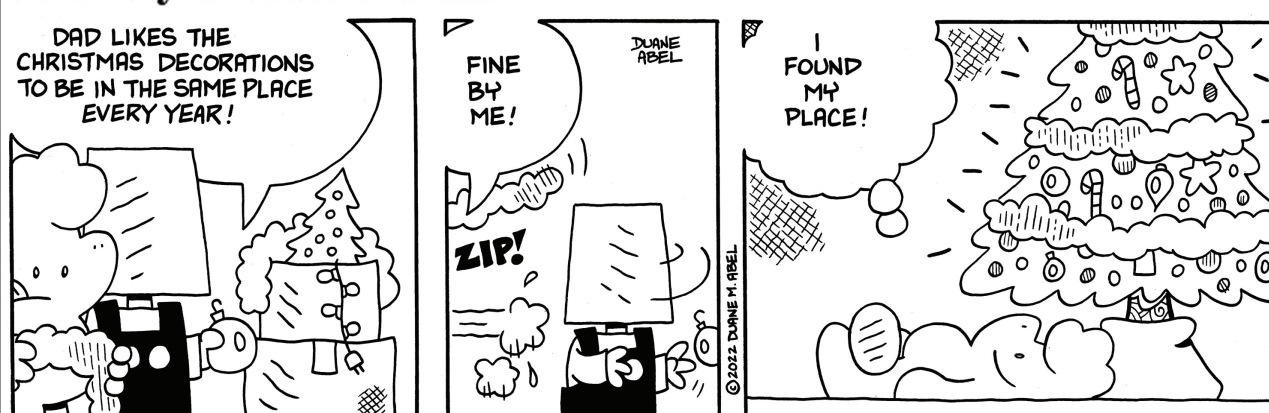

Those of us who have lived a few years know that Christmas doesn’t come in a catalog, nor never did. It doesn’t come on Black Fridays or cyber-Mondays. The multitude of Christmas programs don’t bring Christmas. Decorated houses and trees are delightful but they don’t create Christmas.

Christmas is an inside job. Christmas is in your heart and mind. The first Christmas was a peasant couple giving birth to a baby in a barn with a cow’s trough for a crib. They were poor and just paying their taxes was about all they could afford. Yet, the child brought a joy they had never experienced.

In Luke chapter 2:19 we read “but Mary treasured up all these things and pondered in her heart...” Consider what and mainly who brings you joy and what really matters in your life and let there be Christmas in your heart during this season.

November 30, 1922 Search for clues to postal robberies

Post office inspectors were in Richmond investigation the mysterious robbery of parcel post packages which had been mailed from Richmond to northern addresses. A considerable quantity of women’s apparel had disappeared according to authorities. Of 100 packages mailed from Richmond within in the time span of a week, 42 had been tampered with, inspectors declared. Some of these were decoy packages which had been opened and a portion of the contents removed. Meanwhile the inspectors said they had been unable to develop any clues.

December 4, 1947 Fire department makes two runs

The Berea Fire Department responded to two runs with in two and a half hours of each other on Tuesday, December 3rd. Both runs were to extinguish grass and brush fires. The first run, at 10:40 a.m., was to extinguish a fire behind Clark Apartments on Jackson Street. The fire was extinguished without any trouble and no damage was done. The second response occurred around 12:45 p.m. It was a brush fire behind a residence on Pearl Street. The wind was spreading the fire toward an outbuilding and was more difficult to contain than the first fire. No damage was reported at the Pearl Street fire.

December 6, 1979 High fashion minus inflation in town

Clothing merchants who displayed the Citizen’s anti-inflation poster were showing the same high fashion garments displayed by the exclusive shops of New York, Paris, London, Dallas and Hollywood. These merchants were not asking consumers to pay the inflated prices that the exclusive shops were charging for the originals. Instead, they were offering exact replicas of the same styles in woolens, silks, polyesters and the latest synthetic materials at a fraction of the cost of the original designs. The local merchants were fashion experts and were happy to assist their customers in finding the right high fashion look. Berea merchants who participated in the anti-inflation cause included: Marlene’s, Whitaker’s Men and Ladies Apparel, Williams Floor Covering and Furniture, Clifton Drugs, Royalty-Keightly Lumber Company, Happy Meadow Natural Foods Market, Mario’s Pizza, Wilson’s Best for Less, Kentucky Fried Chicken, Baker and Baker Appliance Store, Small World, Finnell Furniture, Cowden Factory Outlet, Superior Food Market, People’s Bank and Trust Company, Brunner Studio, Blackburn Garden Center, Pennington Realty and Insurance Company, Wayman’s United Department Store, So-White Self Service, Reed Realty and Auction Company, Todd’s Supermarket, Horton’s Jewelry, Berea Stove and Pipe Shop and Packard Manning Funeral Home.

December 3, 1992 Local drive-by shooting destroys church sign

Greg Gallaher, pastor of the Paint Lick United Methodist Church, was awakened on Sunday, November 29th by the sound of gunfire near his home. Gallaher said the shots rang out at approximately 3:15 a.m. outside the parsonage of the church where he, his wife and their two children resided at the time. Gallaher said he looked out the window of the home and witnessed a 1970’s model “souped-up” Chevrolet on Highway 52 just outside the church. A few moments later, Gallaher said the passengers in the vehicle began shooting at the newly illuminated church sign in front of the parsonage. After firing several shots, he said the vehicle pulled past the sign, stopping and firing shots at the other side of the sign. “It was very frightening to our family. The shots awakened the entire neighborhood and bullets could have traveled anywhere,” Gallaher stated. Gallaher called 911. “I was calling 911 while the shots were still being fired. To my knowledge, 911 never responded to the situation. We never saw or heard from any State Police or any Sheriff’s department,” Gallaher said he watched the vehicle leave the church and turn down White Lick Road while still firing the gun. Gallaher said he was unable to identify the type of gun being fired and he was unable to get a good look at the passengers. The sign was insured and 2/3 of the costs were anticipated to be covered.

such as business and marketing, health science, culinary and food service, industrial maintenance and electrical technician, engineering, diesel medium heavy truck inspection, maintenance and minor repair technician, entry-level welding, and work toward dual credit courses in criminal justice through Eastern Kentucky University. Clark said the current enrollment is around 350 students but the goal is to serve 600 students. Ignite South features seven instructors, while 12 teachers serve Ignite Academy North, which has the capacity to enroll around 1,000 students.

Ignite Academy North enrolls students from Madison Central, Model Lab, Estill County, and Berea Community. Ignite North has similar career pathways as Ignite South but they also have automotive, electrical, and machine/too.

Inside the new facilities, there are interconnected spaces that feature a classroom, instructor’s office, and lab for each career pathway. The educational spaces are set up for a combination of hands-on classwork and community collaboration. Students attending classes at Ignite will have the opportunity to finish their programs with certifications and be ready to enter the workforce upon high school graduation.

“The goal for both Ignite Academies is for all students who enter the pathway to complete four classes and earn an industry certification before graduating high school,” Clark said. “The industry certification can help the students go directly into the workforce or can be a stepping stone for their future.”

Ever been so behind time you thought you were early?

After waiting more than an hour and a half for her date, one young lady decided she had been stood up. So, she changed from her best dress back into her pajamas and slippers, fixed herself some popcorn and plopped down on the couch for an evening in front of the television.

She had hardly gotten settled in when the doorbell rang. She opened the door, and there stood her date.

He took one look at her and grumbled, "I'm two hours late ... and you're still not ready?"

I'm sure you've noticed that some people are always behind schedule, living out the old saying, "better late than never."

You know, that old saying is especially true in spiritual terms. It's always best to give our hearts and lives to Jesus when we're young, but some people tend to put off that most important decision for years. The danger is that those folks might put it off too long and end up going into eternity without Jesus.

I've been noticing a trend in the last few years of senior citizens making late-life decisions to follow Christ. The baby boomer generation that had pushed spiritual matters aside in their younger days have reached the senior years and are realizing something is missing in their lives. That something actually is someone – Jesus.

We're seeing these folks turn to Christ in their 60's and 70's, and we're hearing them say, "I only wish I had accepted Jesus sooner."

Well, it's better late than never. In fact, the Lord was careful to make that clear to us in a number of places in the Bible. For example, the repentant thief on the cross became a believer only a short time before he closed his eyes in death.

In another instance, Jesus

told about a farmer who went out to hire workers. In so doing, he did something many people might consider unfair; he provided the same pay to everyone, whether they'd worked since morning light or whether they came very late in the evening. The point to that story is that whether we come to Christ as children, in the mornings of our lives, or whether we come to Christ as senior citizens, in the evenings of our lives, we'll all enjoy the beauty of heaven.

I was thinking about the day that Jesus fed the 5,000. You may recall, there were a dozen baskets of leftovers after everyone had finished eating. I have heard many varied reasons why the Lord arranged to have leftovers. One that blesses my heart is that Jesus was prepared for any late arrivals.

It's never too late to come to Jesus.

New coach, same goals for Eagles

By Mike Moore
For The Citizen

The Madison Southern Eagles will have a new face leading from the sidelines as first-year coach Bill Bevins takes over the program that won 21 games last year.

Bevins is not a stranger to Eagles basketball, as he served as an assistant for many years. He said the short-notice transition has gone smoothly and anticipates a successful season in 2022-2023.

"I have a lot of support from the people in our building and administration. The players are on board. We are coming off a successful season a year ago, and I think the guys are looking for consistency. When Coach (Austin) Newton decided to pursue other options, the (players) came to me and wanted me to try to get the job."

The style of play will be familiar to Southern faithful, but it will have a few tweaks as Bevin puts his stamp on it.

"I'm trying to leave a lot of the (system) in place because it has proven successful," he said. "I'm going to be my own person and bring my own twist to things and I can pull some things from different places, so I think it's going to be a little bit of me and stuff they're used to, and I think it will blend very well."

Last season, Southern finished with a 21-12 record, winning the 44th District Tournament and advancing to the 11th Region semi-finals. It was the farthest the program has gone in the postseason to date.

This year, Bevins said the team has a single goal – winning the region and playing at Rupp Arena.

"Last year we had three team goals, and we met all three," he said. "We advanced farther than ever in the postseason as we reached the Region semi-finals. We led that game (a 60-54 loss to Frederick Douglass) into the fourth quarter, and we let it slip away."

Southern has the talent for the team to accomplish the goal as several players return from last year's squad.

"Jay Rose is a three-year starter who led us in scoring last year," Bevins said. "He's a proven scorer and the guys look to him because he's been here, and he's proven."

In addition to Rose, Bevins Zach and Braden Hudson will provide some spark.

"(The twins) are as fiery and as competitive as you can get," he said. "They are locked and loaded and ready to go."

Brett Erslan, whom Bevins called a floor general, will be a force in the paint.

"He's our senior, and he's a monster in the middle," Bevins said. "I love having him on our team. He's a floor general, he's been around, and he's experienced."

Sophomore point guard Cason Nobbe returns after cracking the starting lineup in the middle of last year.

"He has a lot of game experience," Bevins said. "He picked things up well and gets us into our offense, and he's good defensively."

To duplicate the success of last year, Southern will have to navigate its way through a challenging schedule.

"The schedule is one of the toughest I've ever seen," Bevins said. "We're coming off a successful year, and we have a lot of our pieces back and we will play a good, tough schedule to see where we really are; we'll find out if we're one of the best teams in the region, and, if so, we'll handle that schedule."

I think by the time we get to the end of the season and getting ready for tournament time, I think we will be battle-tested," Bevins concluded.

Lady Eagles have the right pieces

By Mike Moore
For The Citizen

The Madison Southern Lady Eagles are preparing to embark on their 2022-2023 season, and Coach Josh Curtis feels the pieces are in place for a successful season.

"We have seven seniors, six who have all started or played valuable minutes like Bella Moberly, Tara Wooten, Jada Carter, Natalea Clark, and newcomer Megan Correll," Curtis said. "We also return our leading scorer, freshman Hadley French, along with other young contributors like Ashlan Estep and Laci Sandlin."

Last season, the Lady Eagles won 22 games, including the 44th District Tournament, and advanced to the second round of the 11th Region Tournament.

Curtis said this isn't a team that will rest on its laurels.

"Our goal is the same as always," he said. "We hope to be playing our best basketball at the end of the season when it matters most. If we can do that, we can live with whatever outcome. With a team featuring seven seniors, and plenty of talented and experienced players, we hope we are playing our best to put ourselves in position for another run."

A familiar face will assist Curtis this season, as former Lady Eagle Coach Summer Simmons joins his staff.

"She is going to be our JV coach," Curtis said. "She is an invaluable resource who has been around the program, knows how it works and has had success here. She will do a great job helping to coach the younger players for the future."

Offensively, Curtis said Southern has several players who could step up on any given night to lead the way.

"I think we could potentially have different leading scorers every night," he said. "We are very balanced in the ways we can score. The good thing about our team is we can have other teams take someone away, and we have two or three other options that can hurt you. It makes it hard to prepare for us."

The Lady Eagles' defense has been the team's calling card under Curtis.

"We have always taken pride in our defense and make it the number one priority," he said. "Someone told me we were 16th in the state in points allowed. The runs we could make the last two years were not because we were setting the scoreboards on fire. We have a lot of kids who have bought into our defense style, which allows us to succeed. We have a lot of depth, size, and length that will allow us to play different styles this season."

Curtis said there are no pushovers in the district and region, as the competition will be fierce.

"I know there is a lot of competition within our district and region that can beat us," he said. "I think Madison Central has one of the top rosters in the region and will be there to contend at the end of the season. Berea lost a big senior class but return some really good players that will help them continue their success. Looking out into the region, the 11th region starts and ends with Franklin County until someone knocks them off. They will have another great team again this season. Other teams like Frederick Douglass, Henry Clay, and Lafayette also bring back some really good players."

Cats grind out win

LEXINGTON (KT) — Bellarmine didn't make things easy for Kentucky Tuesday night. The Knights, wrapping up an unprecedented nine-day tour that included stops at Duke and UCLA and concluded with a first visit to Rupp Arena, gave the 19th-ranked Wildcats all they could handle before Kentucky pulled way to a 60-41 victory to remain undefeated at home.

Evidence of a hard-fought contest was found in Kentucky's locker room as the Wildcats (5-2) fought off fatigue following a tougher-than-expected home encounter.

"That's a hard game to play," Kentucky coach John Calipari said. "We (had guys) cramping up in there. ... You had to play the whole clock (on defense). We worked the last three days on how we finish games."

In that stack of game plans included a scheme to wear down the opposition when push came to shove, especially at crunch time.

"We went to our grind it stuff, which we had worked on," he said. "You saw that we were grinding it out, which are, some games you've got to do it. That's is what was good about the last three days. We were able to do some stuff."

Bellarmine, which defeated Louisville 67-66 in its season-opener on Nov. 9, wasn't intimidated by its surroundings and had the Wildcats on the ropes, leading 32-24 with 15 minutes remaining after forcing a 21-21 tie at the break.

That's when Kentucky simply overpowered the Knights with a 23-3 run that pushed the lead to double digits and gave the Wildcats the nudge they needed to overcome the pesky Knights. Calipari wasn't surprised by Bellarmine's performance, especially in the first half.

"They were tied with us at halftime and we're supposed to be one of those (top) teams," Calipari said. "(Our) defense was really, really good. ... We needed to show some discipline and we also needed to grind it out."

Kentucky guard Antonio Reeves, who led the Wildcats with a game-high 18 points, was surprised by Bellarmine's ability to impose its will on Kentucky.

"They definitely move the ball with all the cuts they do and it's definitely difficult to guard, and they go deep into the shot clock," Reeves said. "Not many teams do that and we tried to do what they were doing a little bit and try to grind it out, so we could do the same thing they were doing to us."

The Wildcats missed their first six shots from long range, but the treys came through during the decisive spurt down the stretch. CJ Fredrick knocked down two 3-pointers in consecutive fashion, while Reeves capped an 11-0 spurt with a long range jumper of his own. The Fredrick and Reeves combination provided a lift for hosts.

"He looks for me and I look for him," Reeves said. "We get each other going as well.

That was the mindset in the game."

Although his team struggled in the opening half, Calipari was pleased with the finish. "I liked what we did the second half," he said. "Three turnovers. We were playing fast, grinding it out. Every team that plays us, they have nothing to lose — everybody. You've got to play that way and play like you have nothing to lose or you're at a disadvantage in every game you play."

The Wildcats did just that when it mattered the most.

- The Wildcats will take their longest trip of the season — across the Atlantic — when they play Michigan in London in the Basketball Hall of Fame London Showcase on Sunday. The game was originally scheduled for 2020 but was postponed because of the COVID-19 pandemic. Kentucky will be playing its third regular-season game outside the United States and its first in Europe.

Tipoff is set for 1 p.m. Sunday on ABC.

Stoops should scan college landscape for next OC

Kentucky coach Mark Stoops is looking for an offensive coordinator for the third time in three years following an uneven and disappointing 7-5 season in his 10th year at the helm.

Stoops fired Rich Scangarello on Tuesday, three days after the Wildcats defeated rival Louisville to end a two-game losing streak. So the search is on for at least two coaches.

The Kentucky coach has scooped up his past two offensive playcallers from the National Football League in bringing a pro scheme to Lexington. Liam Coen delivered big in his first and only season with the Wildcats, calling the shots during a successful 10-3 campaign a year ago with Will Levis emerging as a star quarterback.

However, Coen was wooed back to the Los Angeles Rams as the defending Super Bowl champion's offensive coordinator. Stoops turned to Scangarello, who had previously been with the San Francisco 49ers.

But Scangarello fell short in less than a year on the job. He was hired late last spring and never stopped playing catchup. He never seemed to grasp the college style after spending several seasons in the professional ranks. Kentucky's offense failed to reach the 30-point mark in the final eight games and managed just six points against a Tennessee defense that surrendered 63 points in a stunning loss to South Carolina. An embarrassing setback to Vanderbilt earlier this month didn't help Scangarello's cause. Failing to score touchdowns in the red zone was a major issue throughout the frustrating season.

Poor offensive line play led

to Levis being banged up most of the season and what was expected to be a high-scoring offense never materialized. Scangarello was maligned by fans who thought the Cats should be better.

The professional environment is different from the college atmosphere. Some coaches adapt and are successful, while others simply fail, whether it's stepping up the coaching ladder or taking a step down numerous successful college coaches — Steve Spurrier and Bobby Petrino among them — weren't successful as professional coaches, compared to the success they enjoyed while coaching college players.

Aside from Coen, most of the successful coordinators under Stoops have been college coaches who have an understanding of what it takes to create a successful offensive scheme with that age group. Scangarello joins Shannon Dawson and Coen as the one-and-done offensive coordinators. Eddie Gran served the longest in that capacity (two years) and knew how to adapt to change. Remember the Lynn Bowden season? How many coordinators could have pulled that off that turned around Kentucky's season in an instant?

Stoops also will be looking for a running backs coach, too, after firing John Settle on Monday.

The two vacancies could be a combo package depending on the situation. Stoops should search around the collegiate landscape first before making a pitch to professional coaches who don't have as much experience with college players.

I'm sure Stoops will explore all options before making a decision on his next offensive coordinator, but he should start at the college ranks before making the jump back to the NFL in search of the next Liam Coen.
