Tour groups bring big business

By Andy McDonald
For The Citizen

In October, Berea will serve as a travel hub for a new group of visitors exploring the Bluegrass region.

Grassroots Motorsports magazine is sponsoring two waves of tour groups – 30 couples each, 60 travelers total – who are paying $4,000 a person for an itinerary that includes an extended stay and meals in Berea. With a taste for exploring and money to spend, the out-of-town automotive aficionados are expected to provide a significant economic boost to the city during their upcoming visit.

Berea Tourism Motorcoach Specialist Ethan Cima said welcoming more tour groups to town has been one of his goals since joining the city last year.

"We're talking lots of people, lots of money, cash flow coming in, so that's great. I would like to attract more visitors like that – clubs, organizations, associations, to get them to come here and stay here," Cima recently told the Berea Tourism Commission.

Cima reports 180 meals will be served to the Grassroots Motorsports group in Berea, which will include visits to Honeysuckle Dining and Bourbon House and the Boone Tavern Inn, along with potential for side visits to other local eateries.

He added there are more benefits to come as Berea continues to build a reputation as a destination for groups and small conventions.

"I am currently collaborating with a Kentucky-based group. They are planning to host a day of fun and enrichment for their conference attendees, and they've chosen Berea as the ideal location," Cima said. "With an estimated 300 travelers and tourists expected to join us in September for this conference trip alone, our town is poised to welcome a substantial influx of visitors."

Officials frustrated by Bypass delays

By Andy McDonald
For The Citizen

Berea City Councilman David Rowlette urged the Allen Company to finish the Berea Bypass, expressing frustration about the project's delays. Last winter, city officials were told the road would be completed by spring.

Rowlette addressed the issue Tuesday during a business meeting of council, after Councilman Jerry Little noted several citizens have asked about the progress on the roadway, which appears to be at a virtual standstill. Little and other officials have been told completion of the project is being held up because the company does have the lights which need to be installed near the roundabout on Highway 1016. Rowlette was skeptical, however.

"We have been moved to very low priority on finishing our bypass, because they [Allen Company] have probably been paid for 90 percent of that project," Rowlette said. "This idea that they can't finish the bypass is just not cutting it because there are other areas they could be working on with or without these lights. I know for a fact they can do better."

Has it been 6 years?

Keith Taylor

Has it been six years? On Labor Day in 2017, Rhonda and I weren't necessarily take a break from our routine jobs. We were busy moving from our home in Richmond to Berea, where we could be closer to our parents and spend more time with them.

Rhonda was one year removed from a life-changing heart surgery, where she had her mitral valve replaced with a mechanical one and had spent the previous 12 months recovering from the surgery. In the process, we decided it was time to make a change within our landscape and chose to make the move to Berea.

I remember it was a hectic move and required a lot of help and my precious mom was right in the middle of it. She packed, unpacked and basically did it all that day, along with others who helped us move to our new home.

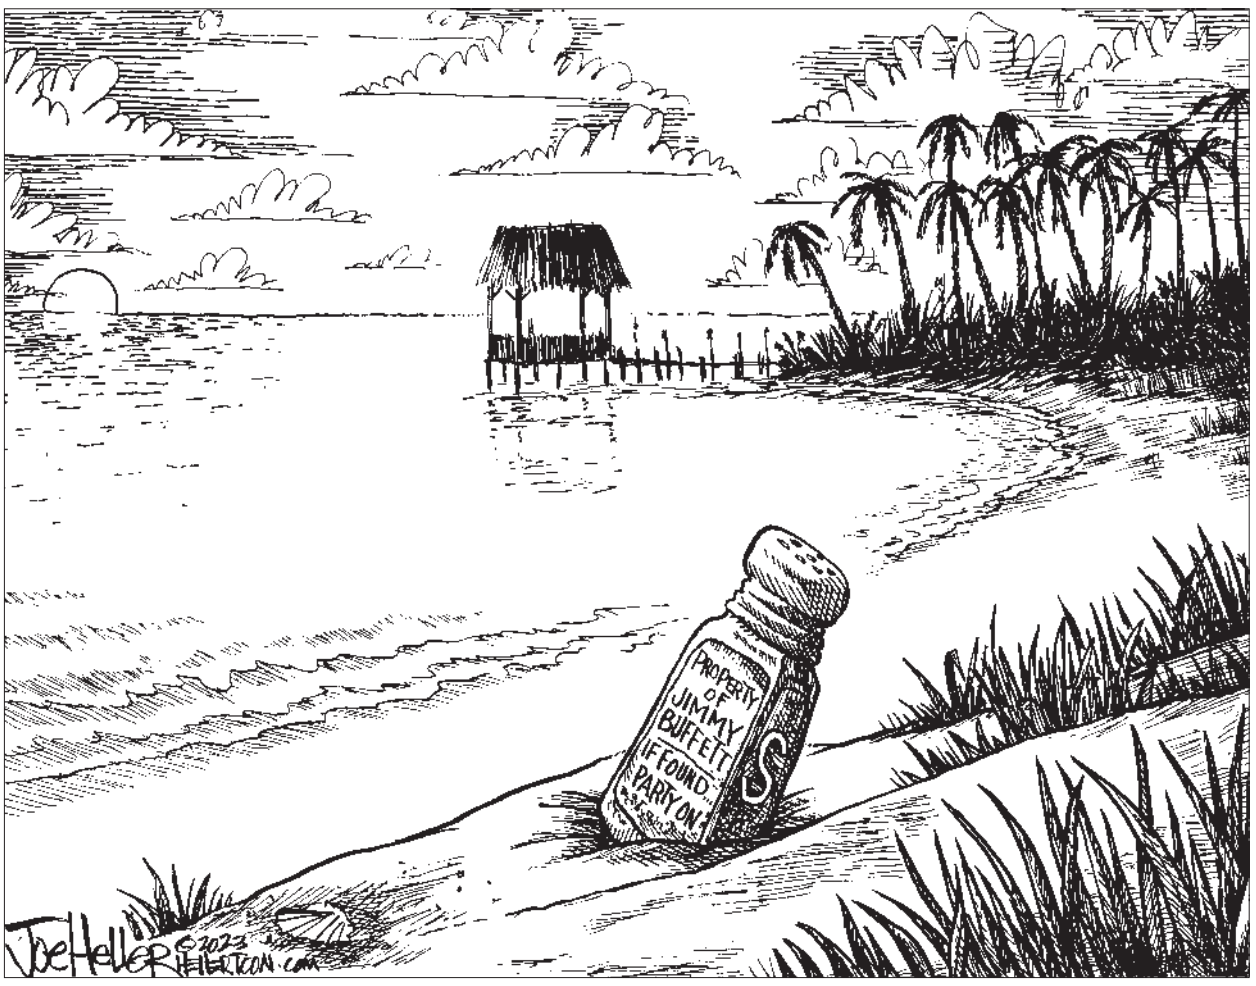
We had the keys to our new home a little sooner because of family ties to our home, but we also did some improvements, such as new carpets, flooring, appliances, and converting the garage into a home office and music room. We did it our way and added some more upgrades along the way, such as windows and a new HVAC unit. It took us six years, but we finally got the vents cleaned, which has made a big difference in the air flow throughout the house.

Since moving to Berea, I've made new contacts, established old ones and became more involved in the community through the Berea Chamber of Commerce, where I have been a board member since December of 2022.

A lot has transpired in the past six years. Since then, I've become publisher here at the Berea Citizen and we navigated through a painful pandemic that took that life of my mom and many off our family, friends and neighbors. Our place of worship has changed and we have made new friends in the process, while maintaining the friendships at our previous church.

Had we not decided to move to Berea, we would have met and made friends with so many people in this community. Many of you reached out during my mom's passing and I can't tell you how much that meant to our family. We are still meeting new people and making new friendships.

In the grand scheme of things, that's what it's all about.



Extraordinary lives

Glenn Mollette

Jimmy Buffett, Bob Barker and Bill Richardson all died recently. They all had one thing in common. They lived extraordinary lives.

Buffett had become a billionaire. He had amassed his fortune by capitalizing on his song, "Margaritaville." His hotels, restaurants, resorts and even retirement communities were hugely successful. In his later years, he continued to build new hotels and resorts that were beautiful and hugely successful.

Sadly, Buffett passed from Merkel cell skin cancer. He had been receiving treatment for over four years at was still doing concerts even as late as early July in Rhode Island. There was nothing stopping Buffett, except the skin cancer that took his life even when he had so much he still wanted to do. Yet, few people will ever live the life of Jimmy Buffett

Bill Richardson had spent his last few years helping people internationally. He was very successful in politics serving as a U.S. Congressman, Governor of New Mexico and as an Ambassador to the United Nations. He may best be remembered for his diplomatic work in negotiating the releases of journalist Danny Fenster from a Myanmar prison in 2021 and most recently Britney Griner from a Russian prison, among others. Richardson lived an amazing life.

Bob Barker gets the longevity prize. It's hard to top 99, unless you make it to 100. Barker lived a full life of entertaining us on television. For fifty years he came into our homes as the host and producer of The Price is Right and earlier as the host of Truth of Consequences. Many of us show him in the hit comedy Happy Gilmore. Many Americans felt like Barker was a member of their families since he was in their homes via television for so many years.

Barker, Buffett, and Richardson were all bigger than life personalities who lived extraordinary lives filled with success and prosperity.

Keep in mind the measure of our lives is not meant to be measured beside the lives of national or global personalities or anyone else. The fulfillment and success of your life may be in taking care of an aged parent, a troubled or disabled child, or seeing your spouse or life partner through life's difficult stages. Or, the great success of your life may be remembered in your kindness to your neighbors and to others you meet along the way Quite possibly, life's most extraordinary people may not be fully recognized until we are beyond this life.

The best we can do is the best we can do. We should trust God and live our lives in as meaningful a way as possible.

suggested the city may need to find ways to get other road construction companies to compete for Berea's business in the future.

"I think it's time that anytime we're using City of Berea tax funds we pay a little extra to get a project done just to send a message to them. It's time, way past time, to get that done," Rowlette said of the bypass.

Though he said he was not defending the company, Little said that more of the bypass is finished than people realize, but Rowlette remained adamant. "In 30 to 45 days they could be out of there," Rowlette replied. "It's frustrating."

Berea City Administrator Rose Beverly interjected that the bypass is not a city-run project. "This is a state project. They don't report to us. We don't have any control over it," Beverly said. "I just want everybody to understand this is not a city-funded project."

On a related note, Rowlette suggested the city move ahead to repair Glades Street with city funds, though Beverly said Public Works Director Roy Curtis expressed concern that the foundation of the street should be allowed to fully settle over winter before final roadwork is completed in the spring.

In other action, the council heard the first reading of an ordinance that would allow for the regulation of alcohol sales at public events and on city property. Representing the Kentucky Brewer's Guild, Stephanie Stumbo asked the city to clarify parts of the ordinance, including precisely which vendors are responsible for obtaining alcohol sales permits for special events. The ordinance comes up again for a final reading on September 19.

Meanwhile, in a unanimous vote, the council accepted streets, gutters and sidewalks into the city's infrastructure plan in the Central Park subdivision. Speaking on behalf of Codes and Planning Admistrator Amanda Haney, Beverly said the infrastructure is comprised of approximately 1,300 feet of road, gutter and sidewalk valued at roughly $518,000.

The council also heard the first reading of an ordinance regulating the responsibilities of property owners when it comes to the maintenance of sidewalks, gutters and utility strips (grass) between the street and the sidewalk. Under the proposal, property owners must address areas in disrepair within 10 days after being notified by the city, or face a fine. Additionally, property owners must clear obstructions of those areas within 24 hours of being notified by the city, or face a fine. The proposed ordinance also states the city can elect to repair a sidewalk, utility strip, or gutter, and access a portion of the cost of repairs to the property owner.

Berea Parks and Recreation Director Cilla Bloom addressed the council, noting her department is maintaining ball fields and gearing up for winter activities. Councilman Steve Caudill praised Bloom and her staff for the excellent condition of the ball fields, while Fraley praised Bloom and her staff for all they do.

Berea Municipal Utilities Manager Kevin Howard secured approval for a utility bucket truck for $198,000. He explained the item has been the budget, but with steel shortage, it has been difficult to fill the order.

Ali Blair of First Friday Berea reported the Levitt Amp Berea concert series was success, with 11 events, 23 bands, and an estimate 4,000 guests served. Events were staged at the Berea City Park, Chestnut Street Pavilion, and the Tillie Off Leash Dog Park.

"All of that is provided to our visitors and the community free of charge," Blair said of the concerts, which are mostly funded by the Levitt Amp Foundation. Blair said the current iteration of the music series began in 2017. She also thanked Bloom and her department, as well as Berea Public Works.

Berea College President Cynthia Nixon briefly addressed the council, noting she is excited to "build new partnerships." Asking on behalf of Councilman Ronnie Terrill, who did not attend Tuesday's meeting. Little asked whether the college could help in managing pedestrian traffic at the crosswalk in front of the Berea College president's house.

• The next Berea City Council meeting will take place on Sept. 19.

AWARDS

Award, first bestowed in 2013, recognizes the outstanding efforts of a Berea resident or group who has championed human rights within the community. The inaugural award was granted to the "Concerned Citizens of Berea" organization, which played an instrumental role in resolving tensions following a tragic racial incident in 1968. The award was accepted by surviving members Robert Shaffer and Loyal Jones, with the presence of relatives of the founding African-American members adding to the significance of the occasion.

Nominations for both awards should include a clear statement of 250 words or less, describing the courageous or praiseworthy conduct in the realm of human rights that supports the nomination. The full name, address, and contact information of both the nominator and the nominee must be provided. Nominations can be submitted via post-mail to Berea Human Rights Commission, 212 Chestnut Street, Berea, Kentucky 40403, or through email to HRC@bereaky.gov. The deadline for nominations has been extended to October 20..

September 4, 1924 Convention in Frankfort

The ninety-second annual convention of the Disciples of Christ or Christian Churches of Kentucky was held in Frankfort September 15 – 18, 1924. A splendid program had been prepared by the various state organizations. Outstanding addresses were delivered by state and national leaders. Important issues for the churches were discussed. Every church of the Disciples of Christ was encouraged to send at least one representative.

September 2, 1948 Local rebuilds Ford

Local Ford dealer, Clarence V. Foley turned a vintage 1915 Model T Ford into what could have been a gold mine for him. One salesman in Ohio offered Foley $2,000 on the spot cash to purchase the vehicle. Mr. Foley said, "No, the car is not for sale." So, one day in June, Mr. Foley and his family took off for the south for a ride they would never forget. The first day, they drove for five hours without any problems, making it at least 100 miles. On the second day the made the final lap of the journey and reached their destination of Nashville, Tennessee, where they stayed with Clarence's brother "Red" Foley, who was one of the most important members of the Grand Ole Opry of station of WSM. On their way back home to Berea, the family traveled through Scottsville, Kentucky. While the car was being serviced a gentleman happened to see the Model T all fixed up and exclaimed, "What will you take for this car?" Clarence replied, "It's not for sale, but I was offered $2,000." The gentleman rebutted with an offer of $2,200 cash. However, Clarence refused to part with the car. The stranger continued to make offers for the car ending with an offer of $2,750 in cash. Clarence thought, if the car is worth more than money, he was just going to keep it as a family heirloom. The car was originally purchased in 1915 from the Richmond Motor Pictured is Clarence Foley, Berea Ford dealer, sitting in his 1915 Ford just after he arrived in Nashville having driven the Model T all the way from Berea. Cranking the car is "Red" Foley, Clarence's brother in whose back yard the picture was taken in Nashville.

Company by Reverend E.B. English, former pastor of the local Baptist Church for $580. Mr. English sold it to John Stephens, a farmer who lived on Scaffold Cane Road in Rockcastle County. Mr. Stephens paid $480 for it. In the fall of 1947, Mr. Foley purchased the car from Mr. Stephens. With four months of work, the car was reconditioned. Foley had to travel hundreds of miles to find missing parts. No tires of the right size could be located. So, Mr. Foley asked Firestone Tire and Rubber Company to make him two tires from the old molds. They obliged. When the project was said and done, it cost Mr. Foley $900. How did it perform? It made the 531 mile trip to Nashville and back without a problem. It averaged 22 miles to a gallon of gasoline and climbed all of the hills but one in high gear and could travel about 40 miles per hour.

September 6, 1973 Airport funding

Howard Colyer, secretary of the Richmond Chamber of Commerce was successful in his attempts to get the Madison County Fiscal Court to increase the appropriations for the new airport. The court had previously approved $20,000 and Mr. Collier requested and was granted an additional $15,000 which would allow for the construction of a 4,000 foot runway.

September 3, 1998 Faulty wiring blamed

Faulty wiring was determined to be the cause for an apartment fire on Joseph Street in Berea. Fire Chief Bob Davis said the fire in Jefferson Village Townhouses was reported at approximately 5:20 a.m. on August 29th. "When we arrived, we found apartments one through six had smoke and flames coming through the roof," Davis said. The fire fighters managed to contain the blaze to those six units, Davis said, and were able to get everyone out safely. "We had a couple of close calls," Davis said. "But we got everybody out alright. Nobody was injured." Richmond Fire Department rendered mutual aid by sending a breathing air trailer to refill air packs worn by firefighters. Davis estimated the damage to the apartments to be $200,000

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:
Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Family takes pistol-packing pastor's invitation seriously

I love the story about one of my pistol-packing pastor friends who had been going door to door inviting folks to church.

He was walking across a large front yard when two vicious dogs came running at him, snarling and growling, their teeth glistening in the afternoon sun.

xThat preacher thought he would be eaten alive, so he did what any country preacher might do in a case like that. He pulled a .45 out from under his jacket and fired off a couple warning shots. He didn't hit the dogs, but dirt and grass flew into the air.

The dogs wheeled around and ran back to that house whimpering, their tails between their legs.

The preacher holstered his .45 and continued to walk nonchalantly toward the house.

Roger Alford

By now, the entire family was standing on the porch. The preacher introduced himself and told them he had stopped by to invite them to church on Sunday morning.

The entire family showed up.

Pastors of rural churches need to be familiar with Philippians 3:2, which begins with three crucial words: "Beware of dogs."

I follow that admonition to the letter, primarily because, as a journalist, I've written a good many stories over the years about people who have been injured, even killed, by vicious dogs.

When I have to go to an unfamiliar house, I always look around for dogs before I get out of the car.

So, it was that I went to pay a visit to a very elderly lady from church for the first time. She had fallen and hurt herself. As the new pastor, I wanted to make sure she was OK.

She lived out in the country in a beautiful farmhouse. Tacked to a tree in the front yard was a sign that read: "Beware of dogs."

There were no dogs in sight, but, still, I decided not to get out of the car.

It turned out this lady, perhaps the kindest Christian I've ever met, didn't have a dog at all, just the words of Philippians 3:2 tacked to that tree to deter unwelcome visitors.

It worked.

It's interesting just how practical the Bible is. It's filled with words of wisdom. It sets clear parameters on how we should live. And it clearly presents the gospel of Jesus Christ, the one name under heaven given among men whereby we must be saved.

Yet, in the midst of all that, the Bible provides practical guidance, including to beware of dogs.

My pistol-packing pastor friend learned his lesson. He now lives by Philippians 3:2.

Cats focus on fundamentals

LEXINGTON (KT) — Mark Stoops couldn't fault his team's effort in a season-opening 44-14 win over Ball State last Saturday, but the Kentucky coach wasn't happy with the lack of attention to details.

"I will say that the biggest thing, the biggest compliment I could say for our team is they were definitely ready to play the game. Emotionally, I thought physically we were ready to play the game," Stoops said Monday. "I thought our guys played physical on both sides of the ball. We played really mentally. They were ready to play. What we did not play was very clean.

"That was true with watching the film, the little details and all the things that we talk about. It's a fundamental game and we played hard (and) we played physical. We were not always fundamentally sound and that will bite us eventually."

Stoops wasn't happy the Wildcats had just 11 plays in the second half until the final scoring drive that featured 10 plays and 78 yards, capped by Ray Davis' 30-yard touchdown run.

"It was frustrating and that's twofold," he said. "I compliment our team on scoring on offense, defense and special teams, and that's something that we'll always take, but you put that in with long drives."

The Kentucky coach will be seeking improvement from opening week to the second one when the Wildcats take on Eastern Kentucky University on Saturday at Kroger Field. The Colonels, Stoops said, will pose a challenge, but added the focus will be on his own squad.

EKU will be trying to regroup after being belted by Cincinnati, 66-13, in its opener.

"Just like anybody we're playing, we need to focus on ourselves — we need to improve this week," he said. "We need to coach harder and more detailed and we need to execute better in critical moments."

The Wildcats came out relatively healthy after the opener, but will be without standout offensive lineman Kenneth Horsey, who suffered an undisclosed injury in the opener.

"The good news is, is it will not be season-ending at this point, but he will be out for for a couple of weeks, I think at the least," Stoops said.

West Virginia transfer Dylan Ray will fill Horsey's spot at left guard, while Paul Rodriguez will be Ray's backup on the offensive line.

• Kentucky sophomore Barion Brown was named Southeastern Conference Special Teams Player of the Week, while teammate Trevin Wallace, a linebacker, was named the league's Defensive Player of the Week by the league office on Monday.

Southern beats Central for first win of year

Michael Watkins

It wasn't a textbook win but it was a big victory for coach Mark Payne and the Madison Southern Eagles (1-2) last Friday night as they defeated their in-county rival Madison Central for the first time since 2020 and only the fifth time since 2007 with an 18-6 win in Richmond.

After a scoreless first quarter with sloppy play offensively, Southern capitalized off a Central mistake. A Lukas Mullins 26-yard run gave the Eagles momentum and put them in the red-zone for the first time since opening week.

After an Ethan Moore QB run pushed the ball to the 1 yard line, Southern had a first and goal and went back to the man that sparked the drive as Mullins capped it off with a touchdown run.

That continued to be the theme of the second quarter as the Eagles — on two more occasions — took advantage of good field position and end up with points. Following the touchdown, Southern's defense forced a quick three and out and began their next drive in Madison Central territory. Another big run, this time from Stephen Whitehead, set up the offense inside the 10. A few plays later on fourth and goal the Eagles used Moore to punch it in on a QB sneak and after a two point conversion led 15-0.

With time winding down in the first half Central was punting again and a big return by Moore helped set up Avery Davidson for a 33-yard field goal as the first half clocked expired and gave his team an 18-0 lead.

Central scored the only points in the second half, but didn't have enough to mount a comeback.

Four Eagles combined for 44 carries, with Whitehead going for 92 yards to lead the team, Braeden Kelly added 41 yards, Moore ran for 39 and Mullins 26. Moore completed one pass for seven yards to RJ Blair, but the defense was the biggest factor in the game. Whitehead and Mullins also combined for 21 tackles and Brayden Hall picked off a pass in the win.

With the win, Mark Payne becomes just the second coach at Southern to defeat Madison Central. His team now heads to Wayne County looking for back-to-back road victories.

Kidd's legacy of winning, caring made an impact on Newton

Roy Kidd 1931-2013

By Keith Taylor
Citizen Publisher

Inside: Late EKU coach a true gentleman, A4

Roy Kidd was more than just a neighbor to Austin Newton. The late Eastern Kentucky University football coach was there for Newton during one of the toughest times of his life.

An assistant coach on the men's basketball staff at Eastern Kentucky at the time, Newton found himself out of a job after former coach Jefff Neubauer resigned to take a similar position at Forham at the end of the 2014-15 season. Neubauer's replacement, Dan McHale, brought in his own staff, leaving Newton without a job.

Newton resided near Kidd and his wife Sue at Battlefield Golf Course and got to know Kidd on a personal basis. Through their friendship and close bond, Newton was offered a job to work alongside Kidd in the EKU Alumni Development office, located in the Jones Building on the Richmond campus.

"He was he was there for me, because it was a really tough time in my life just being out of coaching for the first time and and so I didn't I didn't really know how to handle it," Newton recalled. "He was not only

Pool numbers slightly down

By Andy McDonald
For The Citizen

Berea Parks and Recreation Director Priscilla Bloom highlighted the achievements of her department during a recent Berea City Council meeting, including wrapping up the pool season with its annual event, Pooch Poolooza.

■ The pool welcomed 17,000 patrons this season, slightly below last year's numbers, with an average daily attendance of 224 people.

According to Bloom, participants were allowed to bring their dogs in for a dip in exchange for supplies to help the local animal shelter housing dogs awaiting adoption.

"We welcomed 50 pups and 125 of their humans for a few hours of swimming and fun," Bloom said. "We were very pleased to take our biggest collection yet of donated items for the Madison County Animal Shelter. And as always, they were very grateful to get those much-needed supplies."

Bloom also reported the pool welcomed 17,000 patrons this season, slightly below last year's numbers, with an average daily attendance of 224 people. The facility closed for the season on Aug. 14.

Overall, Bloom said the pool season was a success, considering the lifeguard staffing issues they faced at the start, as well as mechanical issues with the aging pool.

Other highlights of Bloom's report included:

• Berea Parks and Recreation partnered with Richmond Parks to host a game night for Special Olympics participants and their families in late August.

• Bloom thanked the Berea Police Department for providing prizes and donuts to participants at Bingo

Court OKs cost-share agreement

By Leslie Barlow • Citizen Staff Writer

A neighborhood will soon have a better roadway after the Madison Court Fiscal Court approved a cost-share agreement at its Sept. 12 meeting at Berea City Hall in Berea.

The county agreed to fund 26 percent of the cost to resurface Cavalier Court, which is off Lancaster Road in Richmond. The neighborhood residents agreed to fund 74% of the cost of the project. Scott Shepherd, Madison County Road Supervisor, said the county will pay $30 per ton of asphalt and the project will require 275 tons.

Shepherd told the court that Cavalier Court was identified as one of the Coach and true gentleman

When the phone rang at the office on a Monday morning back in the late 1990s, it usually meant someone wasn't happy about what they read in the newspaper. This particular day was different.

Keith Taylor

On the other end of the call was a familiar voice. It was late Eastern Kentucky University football coach Roy Kidd, who was calling me to let me know he had missed me at his team's football game and wanted to make sure everything was okay.

That was coming from a coach I grew up admiring as his team made four national championship game appearances from 1979-82, winning a title in the beginning and the end of a four-year era in which the Colonels went 46-7, capped by a perfect 13-0 season.

I was in elementary school during the glory days at the hometown university, but I spent eight years covering Kidd as he was winding up his coaching career. Because of his stature as a football coach, I was little intimidated by Kidd in the beginning, but that all changed once I began covering his teams on a full-time basis.

It didn't take long to find out, I had nothing at all to be afraid of because Kidd was down to earth, approachable and treated me with respect. I did the same and the feeling was mutual.

I also found out he was competitive even in the late stages of his coaching career. He never enjoyed losing — especially to Western Kentucky University — and had a passion for Eastern Kentucky, where he was a star quarterback. He loved Richmond and it showed.

At the beginning of my career as a young sportswriter, Kidd gave me and other local media personalities access to his program. We visited practice anytime for impromptu interviews with the coach, staff and players. Of course, some things, such as the film room were off limits, but that was understandable.

During my tenure as sports editor at the Richmond Register, I covered Kidd's 250th win and a personal highlight was witnessing his 300th collegiate victory, a 30-7 win over Liberty at the stadium named in his honor. I can still remember the players carrying Kidd on their shoulders toward the locker room on that night.

The goal posts came down. Both of them.

He went on to coach one more season and retired with a record of 314-124-8 at the age of 71. He lived a full retirement and played a lot of golf at Battlefield Golf Course. I got the opportunity to play with him in a number of golf outings and enjoyed those times with him on the golf course.

Much like he was as a coach, he was a competitive golfer and was good at it, too. He had a knack for hitting the ball off the tee and could putt the ball really well. He even taught me a trick or two.

Coach Kidd was old school and that's what I loved about him. He treated others as he wanted to be treated and it showed on the field and off the field.

I never played one down of football, but he's one coach who made me feel like a part of the program. It was a matter of pride to know Kidd personally and professionally.

When is it time to retire?

Glenn Mollette

Is Senator Mitch McConnell too old to serve in the United States Senate? The same question is being asked of California U.S. Senator Dianne Feinstein, President Joe Biden, and even former President Donald Trump. How old is too old?

Some people are old and sickly by the time they are 50 or even younger. Some people are robust and very active at age 80. McConnell is 81, Feinstein is 90, President Biden is 80 and Trump is 77.

My grandfather Hinkle ran a country grocery store until two weeks before he died at age 83. My grandmother was almost 80 before she finally closed the doors to the store. They were still working but in their last couple of years they seemed to be just holding on. My dad was enjoying fishing and hunting and his mind was clear up until his death at 85. However at age 55 he knew it was time to retire from his 37 years of underground coal mining. There is wisdom in knowing when to make life transitions.

We all know there comes a time to retire. None of us want anyone else forcing that on us but commonsense is imperative. A person is not allowed to serve as President of the United States until they are 35 years old. We need to have a number on the other end as well – perhaps 80 or 82. If someone is elected at 81 they still have four years putting them at 85 when they have to step aside.

I've worked with a number of 75 to 85 year old people. They are overall good workers, dependable and mean well but the aging process overcomes us all eventually.

It's about over for McConnell. He needs to finish his term and retire gracefully. This means he has two more years on his current term. Re-election for him is not until 2026. He can accomplish a lot even yet if his health holds up. President Biden should try to get through this term and retire. Rehoboth Beach is calling him and he needs to enjoy his remaining years in Delaware. If Trump were to be elected then he definitely needs to retire at the end of his four years.

Most Americans formulate their opinion about this based on their party affiliation. Democrats and Republicans want to stand by their man or woman. We can hardly blame McConnell for wanting to stay on. He could be once again the majority leader in the Senate. That's a hard position to pass over for a rocking chair in Louisville.

Feinstein should have quit several years ago. She definitely shows all the signs of not being well enough to do her job.

The problem is we let these people serve too many years in office. A U.S. Congressman or woman should be limited to 12 years as should a U.S. Senator.

We limit the President to eight why should these other politicians camp out forever in the Capitol? They have made it America's premier nursing home facility.

This is not to say that we can't all be useful when we hit our eighties. There are certainly millions of Americans still trying to work jobs in their golden years.

Sadly, I don't believe many of them really feel like it or are able to be working at such a late stage of life.

September 18, 1924 Union Church

September of 1922, the beautiful new Union Church Houser was dedicated. Sunday, September 21, 1924, was the second anniversary of this event. The congregation planned special services to commemorate the day. The morning sermon was delivered by the pastor. Special anniversary music was also presented. After the morning preaching, a picnic basket was opened, and a dinner was enjoyed by all on the church lawn. After the lunch (at 2:30 p.m.) another anniversary service was held where people from other churches and the community were invited to attend. This service featured special organ and vocal performances as well as short addresses from Professor LeVant\ Dodge and Mr. J.A. Burgess (and others). Professor Dodge was completing a fifty year residence in Berea. He spoke on the preaching of John G. Fee, with whom he was associated for more than a quarter of a century. The contribution of Dr. R. G. Hutchins was the topic of the presentation by Mr. Burgess. Other speakers spoke briefly on other phases of history and the work of Union church which was originally organized in 1833 and was in its 71st year of existence at the time.

September 9, 1948 County schools upgrade

Four Madison County High Schools (Waco, Kingston, Kirksville and Central) had recently installed electrical equipment to be used in teaching modern methods of home economics. This was announced by William S. Pearson, county school superintendent. Mr. Pearson stated that through the installation of these new appliances, the school board, had hopes that Madison County students would have an opportunity to keep pace with modern trends in homemaking. Miss Evelyn Long, former home economics teacher at Waco High school and was at the time employed by Kentucky Utilities Company, would have charge of home and school demonstrations. She would stress the more efficient uses of these modern appliances. Appliances that had been installed in the four schools were: flat plate ironer, rotary ironer, vacuum cleaner, range, refrigerator, laundromat, automatic dryer, dishwasher sink, roaster, sewing machines, handheld iron and mixer.

September 13, 1973 Coast-to-Coast hiker

Why would a person decide to walk across the United States? Bruce Plasse of Whittier, California, is doing just that and said he did it because he wanted to. Mr. Plasse made a stop in Berea during his trek. Several people had started the task, and a few had even finished it but the fact that sets Mr. Plasse apart from all of the others is that he just does it because he wanted to and not for some cause. He had begun walking approximately a year and a half prior to his stop in Berea and he expected to finish his walk to Newport, Rhode Island sometime during late winter of 1972-73. Mr. Plasse held a B.A. from California Polytech and had worked on a master's degree in communications. However, the urge to travel overcame his desire to study and he hit the road, or rather the rails. As strange as it might seem, he said that it was impossible to walk along the highway because people would not believe that he did not want a ride. To avoid this, he hiked along railroad right of ways. When Mr. Plasse arrived in Kentucky, he said everyone told him the one thing he would have to see was Berea. He made a slight side trip from Morehead and spent almost a week in Berea before going back to Morehead to resume his trek. Berea was very pleasing to him and when he left, he said that he liked everything about the town. Several aspects that caught his eye were the street layout, the blend of the college and community and the way Berea was able to remain small town while at the same time expanding its commerce and industry.

September 17, 1998 PeaceCraft celebrates

1998 marked the 10th anniversary of PeaceCraft, a nonprofit marketplace in Berea. PeaceCraft would celebrate the exciting occasion with numerous events throughout the year. Ethnic refreshments and other surprises would be provided the third Saturday of every month. A glimpse of the marketplace's history would be on display to present all of the accomplishments made over the years. A volunteer celebration was conducted on September 20th to recognize the dedicated workers, old and new, that kept PeaceCraft going. A week-long celebration would also take place and included mark-downs on selected items throughout the store. The shop provided (and continues to provide) a venue for artisan neighbors in over 30 developing nations of Africa, Asia and the Americas. Due to poverty and economic forces in these areas, cottage industry was undervalued. Many artisans lacked a market for their handmade crafts within their own country. So PeaceCraft provided that service here in Kentucky with all proceeds going directly to the crafts people wo work in the coops to obtain basic needs and education for the children. Through the selling of goods, PeaceCraft hoped to educate citizens about the causes of economic injustices and to foster understanding of the reality of live for most third world people.

Here's How It Works:
Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Can possums lead lost people out of the woods?

Roger Alford

I have no idea who first gave the tongue-in-cheek advice for city slickers who go on back country hikes, but it sure makes me laugh.

It goes like this: "If you get lost in the woods, find a possum and follow it. You will be in the middle of the road in no time."

Someone once said you only find two things in the middle of the road — yellow stripes and dead skunks. But possums really should be added to that list.

Not people, though.

People should avoid the middle of the road. The middle of the road is a dangerous place to be, and not just in the literal sense.

Too many people want to be middle-of-the-roaders spiritually, straddling the line between God's kingdom and the world, precariously balancing between the two.

The Old Testament prophet Elijah challenged the people of his day in 1 Kings 18:41: "How long halt ye between two opinions? If the Lord be God, follow Him."

And the Old Testament patriarch Joshua delivered a challenge in his day, saying: "Choose you this day whom ye will serve. … As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord."

The point is, it behooves people to decide whether they will serve God and leave the world behind.

It's important to understand in this case that no decision is actually a decision. You see, you were born into the world, and no decision leaves you in the world. You must intentionally choose to follow the Lord, to put both feet on the path to heaven.

Any country boy who has ever followed possum tracks in the snow knows the critters walk in almost continuous circles. But despite that, they do somehow find their way into the middle of the road with regularity.

The middle of the road is an easy place to find, and that seems to be where many people hang out most of the time, there with the yellow stripes, the dead skunks and, of course, the possums.

But when you realize you're spiritually lost, you best look for Jesus and follow Him.

He's the only one who can truly lead you in the right direction.

Day at the Berea Intergenerational Center.

• Parks and Rec staged a murder mystery at the Russel Acton Folk Center, which was a success, Bloom said. The event was so popular, another one will be hosted at the folk center on Friday, September 8.

• Parks and Rec will soon begin their weekly after school program at Berea Community School.

• Berea has begun fall soccer and football seasons and the staff is also keeping fields ready for weekend tournaments.

• The Bluegrass Reaper Challenge took place, featuring contests in Berea featuring 10K and 50K races. Over 165 runners from 15 states participated in the event.

• The Swing for a Cure softball tournament raised $3,000 for the Markey Cancer Center and the Matt Ross Fund.

• Staffers are gearing up for the Spoonbread Festival as well as the 22nd Annual Halloween in the Park.

In other news, Bloom said she is joining city officials to present an application to the state's Recreational Trails Program to get funding to replace the restrooms next to Duerson Stadium.

Berea Mayor Bruce Fraley said he thinks the city may hear the results of that application process next spring. The matching grant will enable the city to use funds from the American Rescue Plan Act to pay for the proposed facility upgrade.

At the conclusion of her report, officials thanked Bloom and her staff for their efforts throughout the year.

Said Mayor Fraley: "I know the summer is the busiest time for you guys. You're busy all year but especially during the summer, so compliments to you and your staff, including the temporary staff, that did a great job throughout the summer and continue to do so at the ballparks now that the pool is closed. Thank you for what you do."

Councilman Steve Caudill, who also coaches youth sports, added the department is doing a great job maintaining the park's athletic fields.

"I tell you this all the time, but our fields are better than anybody else's anywhere near here. You guys do a great job and everybody appreciates it," Caudill said.

roadways in need of improvement during the county road assessment earlier this year.

"I like these kinds of approvals, and the citizens' willingness to do this type of thing," said Madison County Judge-Executive Reagan Taylor. "This allows for citizen engagement in our county."

Zone change?

A zone change could be coming for a portion of Mt. Vernon Road after the court gave approval on its first reading. The change at 479 Mt. Vernon Road, which fronts U.S. 25, would be from UC-1 Single Family Residential to UC-4 General Commercial. The change will become official following second reading.

The court approved the use of $212,600 in discretionary funds for resurfacing Charles White Road and portions of Gravel Lick Branch Road.

Housing contract

Approval was given for the Madison County Detention Center to enter into a prisoner housing contract with Three Forks Regional Jail in Lee County. The county approved a contract to pay $35 per day per prisoner to house adult prisoners at the facility. The regional jail currently houses 40 Madison County inmates and could take up to 60 to 70 if needed.

Purchases

The county road department received approval to purchase two cab tractors and boom mower attachments. The cost will be $112, 695.84 cents per tractor and $94,127.70 per mower bed. The total cost will be $413,646.08.

Shepherd told the court the current mowers were purchased in 1998 and had more than outlived their lifecycle. The county is not expected to take delivery of the tractors until June 2024.

Other business

In other business, the court agreed to enter into a professional services agreement with Colt Engineering, DBA Thoroughbred Engineering. The companies will work to beautify the Madison County exits off Interstate 75.

KIDD

a coach to me, but just a friend during a really tough time of my life, and was there just to kind of help me through that time."

The pair was responsible for raising funds to support the athletics programs at Eastern. One of those fundraising efforts was to find revenue streams to fund the statue of Kidd and the wall behind it that bears the names of his former players, staff and supporters. More than the statue that bears his likeness, Kidd was more interested in making sure his everyone else was included in the project.

"All he wanted to do was raise money for the wall that went behind the statue that put all the players names up there," Newton said. "He didn't care anything about that statue. He thought it was cool, but he would always tell me, 'don't be out there raising money for that statue, now we need to get those names on that wall.' He was just always thinking about other people. I think that's what made him so successful."

Newton and Kidd worked together for three years before Newton became the boys basketball coach at Madison Southern in 2018. He coached the Eagles for four seasons before taking over at Berea College last year.

Kidd, who died Tuesday at the age of 91, followed Newton's career at Southern before health issues during the past few years prevented him from attending games and team functions on a regular basis.

Kidd's interest in Newton is a testament of a legacy that extended beyond the football field well into his retirement years.

"The way he just treated everybody is what I remember the most," he said. "Because you think about the way he took me in. I didn't play football and wasn't one of his players. For him to coach somewhere for 39 years and just think of how many lives he impacted and how many players that he coached — for him to like take ownership in me and take me under his wing was just really special.

"He made everybody feel that way, not just me, but even people he didn't know."

While working with Kidd, Newton received numerous calls from his co-worker, often leaving voicemails, many of which Newton still has stored on his phone.

"He'd carry on for like a minute and a half or two minutes," Newton said. "(He would just) give me a hard time. Like, 'Hey, I know you're not working today. You're out playing golf, but I'm up here and I'm working.

"I've got 77 voicemails and I've been going through the last few days and it just sort of made me cry.

"He called to check in, not only on how I was doing, but because he was really invested."

Newton said Kidd's special trait was his "winner's mentality and taught Newton to "love on your players."

"The guy loved to win," Newton said. "He was a fierce competitor. Didn't matter, golf or football … He thought, you know, obviously you need discipline, but you've got to love them up. He said, when you love them up, you can be hard on them and you can discipline.

"I think that anybody that played for him would tell you the same thing, that he was tough on them. But, he also loved them and took care of them."

Newton visited Kidd at his residence over the summer and "thought to myself this may be the last time that I got to see him."

"I don't know why he took a liking to me, but he did and I spent a lot of a lot of time with him over the last eight, nine to 10 years," Newton said. "I will cherish those moments forever."

Cats endure challenge off field

LEXINGTON (KT) — On the 22nd anniversary of 9/11, Kentucky football coach Mark Stoops offered his appreciation for first responders and gave a greater sense of appreciation after offensive coordinator Liam Coen suffered a medical episode early Sunday afternoon.

"It doesn't take you very long to be in any type of situation where you need first responders and doctors and it happens to hit very close to home with me today and the appreciation and need for those folks," he said. "On this day, I think it's certainly fitting to remember them and thank them and pray for all the people that lost their lives. It has been a challenging day or so for us and we will continue to push forward as always. I think the prognosis of things look good with the people in our office and that will be back in our office."

Coen spent Sunday and Monday night at UK Chandler Medical Center and was released on Tuesday. The Kentucky offensive coordinator suffered the unknown emergency less than 24 hours after the Wildcats (2-0) defeated Eastern Kentucky University 28-17 Saturday night at Kroger Field.

Stoops isn't sure whether Coen will return to the sidelines when Kentucky hosts Akron on Saturday night to close out a three-game homestand to open the season. Stoops said the offensive staff collectively began preparing for the Zips on Sunday.

"We'll be fine," he said. "We've got it under control. We've worked extremely hard after a challenging day. We had a good work night and got some things in place. We will move forward and get corrections made from this past game and get going on Akron, and have already done both."

Stoops admitted unexpected circumstances are "always a challenge because we have a very tight staff and a big group" and added it has been emotional during the past 24 hours.

"I've been here 11 years, I don't think I've ever gotten emotional on this thing, so don't try to get me," Stoops said. "The emotions could come out on me right now because, you know, we love each other. When we work, we put a lot of pressure on ourselves. So, when anything happens to any of our staff members, it's hard.

"I can't dive into too much but we have a lot of special people there," he said. "As I mentioned in the opening statement, with your appreciation for any police, fire, EMS, doctors, and what appreciation you have when you need them."

• Kentucky senior Eli Cox was named Southeastern Conference Offensive Lineman of the Week for the second time in his career by the league office on Monday.

After picking up its first win of the season over in-county rival Madison Central, Madison Southern (1-3) was looking to build on the momentum and earn back-to-back wins for the first time under Mark Payne when they traveled to Wayne County (4-0).

Unfortunately the offense that we saw for the Eagles against the Indians in the win never showed and Southern fell to 1-3 with a 19-14 loss.

The Eagles once again relied heavily on the ground game with five ball carriers combining for 189 yards, led by 50 yards from Braeden Kelly, 49 yards from Ethan Moore and Stephen Whitehead's 48 yards. Lukas Mullins ran the ball six times for 36 yards and scored a touchdown. Moore also connected with Kelly for a 25-yard touchdown pass in the loss.

On the other side, Mullins led the team in tackles with 12, while Ethan Diaz also racked up double digit stops with 11.

The lone home game in town last week was the Berea Pirates that left head Coach Jonathon Thomas was still in search of his first win.

The Pirates (0-4) hosted Bracken County (3-1) and it didn't take long for the Polar Bears to exert their dominance.

Daulton Tarter scored his first of three rushing touchdowns less than three minutes into the game and the Pirates could never answer.

Bracken County would eventually pull away to a 49-0 victory. Despite the loss, Aidan Houston might've had the best game of his season with 76 yards passing and was 6-of-9 through the air, but Houston never really had time to settle in and throw the entire night. Cam Thompson ran for 36 yards in the game while Dolton Robinson was the biggest offensive factor in the game for Berea as he hauled in four catches for 74 yards.

Berea and Southern will be in action again at home this week. The Pirates will host Gallatin County, while the Eagles host Henry Clay for homecoming.

Both games kickoff at 7:30 p.m.

City adopts utility strip measure

By Andy McDonald
For The Citizen

The Berea City Council adopted a measure Tuesday requiring the maintenance of utility strips on a property owner's private property.

Under the provisions of the ordinance, which was adopted in a 7-1 vote, property owners will be required to maintain utility strips, the grassy area between the sidewalk and the streets, as there are currently required to maintain sidewalks and gutters on their property.

The regulation stipulates property owners must clear utility strips of obstructions within 24 hours of being notified by the city, or face possible fines.

The regulation stipulates property owners must clear utility strips of obstructions within 24 hours of being notified by the city, or face possible fines.

During discussion of the ordinance, Councilman Jerry Little proposed an amendment prohibiting property owners from planting anything on utility strips except for grass. Commenting on the proposal, Berea Municipal Utilities Manager Kevin Howard noted certain trees can get into water, sewer, and power lines, creating a hazard to public infrastructure. Little, meanwhile, said prohibiting trees in the utility strips is also a matter of public safety.

Councilmember Katie Startzman disagreed, however, suggesting Little's amendment was not flexible enough for the planting of flowers or small trees, as is currently allowed in Lexington.

"It feels like we would be negatively impacting the beautifying of the city to not allow street trees," Startzman said, noting there are already small trees allowed on Chestnut Street and along Highway 595. "I appreciate Jerry's opinion, but I think it's too severe."

Startzman recommended collecting more information on the matter from the state Natural Resource and Conservation District and urban forestry officials in Frankfort.

Spoonbread Festival a big draw to kick off the fall

By Keith Taylor
Citizen Publisher

The Berea Chamber of Commerce showcased its signature event last weekend with the 27th annual Spoonbread Festival at Memorial Park.

The three-day event featured 148 vendors, a spoonbread eating contest, dog show, parade, entertainment tent, carnival, car show, sponsored by Cumberland Valley National Bank and the popular Balloon Glow on Friday night, presented by Novelis. The support by Novelis was beneficial to the success of the balloon glow.

"They were amazing," Berea Chamber of Commerce Manager Debbie Warford said. "Because of them, we were finally able to have an extra balloon at the ballon glow. We were able to afford the radio station to come out and broadcast it live for us. Novelis was a big sponsor this year. They helped us out with that and we really appreciate them."

More choices also were available with additional food trucks, which also provided attendees a variety of menu options.

"Last year on Friday night, a lot of our food trucks actually sold out of food and had to shut down early," Warford said. "This year, we thought we would bring in a few more food trucks, and I think it was a huge hit. People were raving about having so many options here in Berea to eat out for the weekend. The food truck vendors were happy. They all said they did good and had great sales. We're happy to hear that."

The Berea Chamber of Commerce had its annual Spoonbread Festival last Friday-Sunday at the Berea Memorial Park. The annual Balloon Glow, sponsored by Novelis, was a big hit on Friday night at Berea Community School. The spoonbread eating contest was held on Saturday afternoon on Jefferson Street.

The Citizen/ Keith Taylor

Berea Mayor Bruce Fraley applauded the Chamber for another successful festival.

"My highest compliments to the Berea Chamber of Commerce for hosting another very successful Spoonbread Festival.," he said. "Over the course of the weekend, I saw a great mix of visitors from out of town and local residents and their families having a great time kicking off the fall season."

a blend of the Berea Pirate and Madison Southern Eagle mascots. The Chamber unveiled a comic book that had puzzles, games and a scavenger hunt that gave kids attending the festival a chance to visit booths and collect stickers that spelled out a message in the comic books. Prizes were awarded at the information booth once youngsters completed the task.

"That went over really well," Warford said. "It got a lot of the parents around to booths that they normally wouldn't think to stop at. I think everybody was happy with the scavenger hunt."

Overall, 342 pans of spoonbread were served and the vendors were satisfied with the results of the yearly festival.

"Talking to vendors, they do say that they made more this year than they did last year," Warford said. "All of our vendors were happy with the foot traffic and the sales they had.

"Overall, I think it was a great year for our vendors and the musicians that were on stage."

A light rainfall on Saturday evening didn't hinder activity at the entertainment tent as the show went on until closing.

"It didn't stop the music," Warford said. "The music was still going. We had quite a few food vendors that stayed open until 9 p.m.

"The crowds that left early Saturday came back on Sunday."

Warford said her first year running the festival "was a little hectic" but added this year went "really smooth."

"We had a lot of help," she said. "With this being a volunteer-based business, and the festival being put on by volunteers, we honestly have a huge support group in this town that help us make that possible."

Fraley also noticed the teamwork showcased last weekend during the annual festival.

"It is impressive to see the collaboration and teamwork by the chamber, local businesses, sponsors, and our city staff working hard to showcase our city and put our best foot forward," he said. "I also heard from several business owners who reported that sales and visits to their place of business was extremely strong over the weekend, which shines a light on the positive impact the Spoonbread Festival has on our local economy."

Although this year's event has concluded, Warford is already looking ahead.

"We look forward to a bigger and better festival next year," she said.

Old-school lessons

Keith Taylor

I'm a fan of old-school. I like old-school music — rock, country, gospel and bluegrass — an old-fashioned cooked meal, old automobiles and just about anything antique.

I like old-school coaches, such as the late Roy Kidd and Bobby Bowden. Both coaches won more than 300 football games and were truly genuine gentlemen.

I had the privilege of covering Kidd and his teams at Eastern Kentucky University early in my career and it was during those times and learned all about the "Cabin on the Hill."

I was there when he won his 300th game and remember it just like just happened yesterday. I was there when Kidd coached a football game for the last time and there at his retirement celebration.

He has a stadium named after him and the street in front of Roy Kidd Stadium is named in Roy and Sue Kidd's honor. A statue with his likeness overlooks the stadium where he coached many football games.

I was there at his casket Sunday night near the end of visitation hours set aside at the EKU Center for the Arts. I couldn't help but notice the two giant rings Kidd had on his fingers. On one of them, the number "300" shined brightly and caught my attention.

It brought back memories of the night EKU defeated Liberty 30-7 on Sept. 8, 2001 to reach a milestone only a handful of coaches have achieved on the football field. I remember Kidd been carried off the field by his players as he celebrated the rare feat.

It also brought back the time I interviewed late Florida State football coach Bobby Bowden at Eastside Community Church in Richmond a few years ago. Like Kidd, Bowden won more than 300 college football games. Kidd and Bowden each won two national championships while coaching at the same university for decades.

Kidd and Bowden won more than 300 games at the same university and both coaches guided their teams to an undefeated season, Kidd in 1982 when the Colonels went 13-0 and captured a second national title in a four-year period. Eleven years later in 1992, Bowden guided the Seminoles to a perfect 12-0 record and the first of two national titles in the 1990's.

I talked to Kidd routinely in the early stages of my journalism career and gained much wisdom and knowledge from Kidd, not just on the game of football, but also the field of life. He always treated me with respect and I did the same. We shared the same life principles.

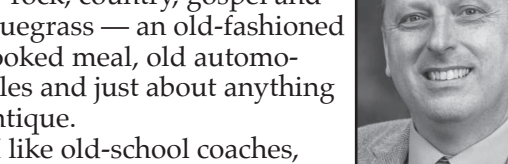
I didn't interact with Bowden as often as Kidd because of obvious reasons, but the one time I sat down with him on the couch in pastor Virgil Grant's office was impactful. He called me son and gave up 10 to 15 minutes out his busy schedule that morning as he prepared for two morning worship services at Eastside that morning.

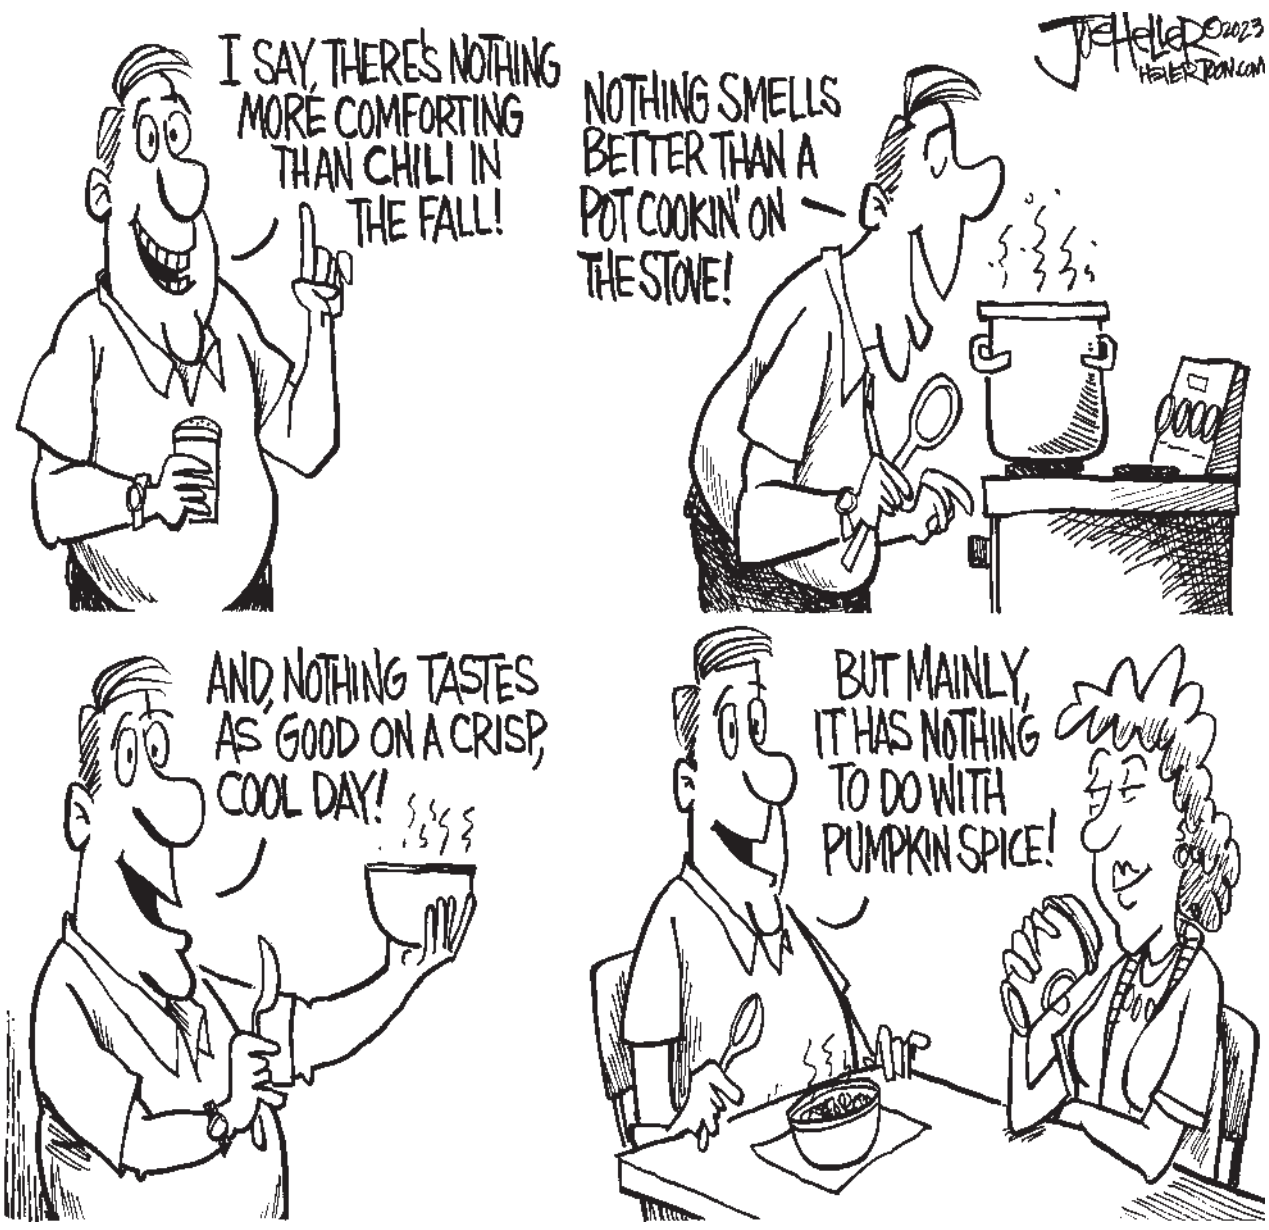
I remember Bowden telling me that he had been to the mountain top in coaching and there wasn't nothing there.

Those words of wisdom have stuck with me and I will never forget the words that help keep me humble and not forget my roots.

Kidd and Bowden shared the same traits and were old school in their approach to football and life. Both coaches lived to be 91 and made an impact on thousands in all walks of life during their nine decades on this earth.

I'm thankful and blessed to have crossed paths with two of the best on this journey of life.





Life has no guarantees

Glenn Mollette

National football star Aaron Rodger's football career may be over, but maybe not. It's hard to keep a good man down. Sometimes, there is too much to overcome to come back.

Many of us watched the mega media debut of Rodgers as a New York Jets quarterback. His move from Green Bay after 18 seasons catapulted him to New York City celebrity status. He came to the Jets after a hugely successful career with the Packers. His accomplishments were many and include a Super Bowl ring. He was received the Super Bowl MVP award and four NFL MVP awards. He was touted as the man who would revitalize the Jet's program and lead them to glory.

Rodger's financial package to make the move from Wisconsin to the Jet's program was $75 million dollars over two years. The money is guaranteed even though he may never play again. Rodgers reportedly took a salary cut to make the move.

During last week's Monday night football game on the fourth play of the game, Rodger's Achilles heel tendon was torn during the play. The injury requires surgery and the rest of the season to rehabilitate. The spirit of the electrified crowd spiraled south as Rodgers was transported off the field.

Unfortunately, Rodger's injury goes along with the game of football and can happen in most any sport. People can and do get hurt. There are no guarantees.

Life has no guarantees. We aren't guaranteed another day. Regardless of the size of the financial package, doctor's report, health, prior success, or talent, none of us can count on anything for sure.

We can say we are going to travel to a certain city and do business. Yet, there is no guarantee we will be able to complete the trip. We can promise we will work a job for ten years but it all depends on our health and good fortune.

We aren't assured of another day. We hope, we have faith, we trust, we believe, and we try to make good on our commitments. After this, it's all in the hands of God.

We do hope Aaron Rodgers recuperates and is able to end his career on a higher note. I suspect that today he might be happy to end his football career by simply being able to play and walk off the field.

Depending on our circumstances, our lives and perspectives seem to always be changing.

FAQs

When will it be in the newspaper?

Well, that depends on if we know about an event. Most of the time, we are aware of most events, but some folks prefer the social media method, which doesn't extend or reach the readership this newspaper does on a weekly basis. Your own Facebook or other social media feeds don't cover Berea and Madison County. The best way to get your news of interest to us is simply by submitting a photo and the information to us, which can be done easily by e-mail or if you prefer regular mail, that works as well. It's hard to clip out a social media post to save as a keepsake.

Why didn't I get my paper?

Two factors come into play on this one. Either the subscription ran out or it got mixed up at the post office after we dropped them off after getting them from our printing press at J. Frank Publishing in London. Other things can happen but those are the two most common reasons why some readers didn't get their paper on a timely basis. Be sure to renew your subscription early so you won't have a disruption in the delivery. Sometimes it takes two weeks for our cooperate office in Manchester to get the paperwork completed.

How much is the paper?

Right now, we have the best one-year subscription rate in the region. You can get a one-year subscription for just $30 per year if you live in the county and $40 per year if you reside outside of Madison County. We offer a 10 percent senior discount.

How much does an ad cost?

We base our rates on column inches and it depends on what size you want to run and the frequency of the ad that you are running, An ad that doesn't run on the classified page is considered a stand alone display ad and our most popular sizes are half page and quarter page sizes. We offer multi-run discounts and will work with you to help fit your needs depending on your budget.

Are you owned by the Government?

No, we are not owned by those who govern our state, nation or our world. We are protected by the First Amendment for the freedom of the press, but we receive zero local, state or federal dollars as a subsidy for our operation. We are owned a family cooperation - Nolan Group Media - based in London and we are part of eight newspapers owned by the family. Our advertisers, subscribers and folks who buy our paper in the machines and local establishments that carry our newspaper put money back into the local economy and our newspaper, not big tech or other large cooperate chains based out of state.

Fire destroys mill

A fire of unknown origin completely destroyed the small grist mill belonging to Gallus Wilson and I.B. Chesnut. The fire was first discovered by a passing tourist who immediately reported the fire to Mrs. Wilson. Mr. Wilson happened to be away at the time. The neighbors came to the rescue, but the flames had gained too much headway and the entire building and contents were destroyed. The building belonged to I.B. Chesnut and its machinery to Mr. Wilson. Neither contents nor building were insured. The dwelling house which was located near the mill also caught fire but was saved by the prompt actions of the Berea Fire Department. The entire loss was estimated to be about $1,500

The circus was sponsored for the financial aid of the Shrine Crippled Children's Hospital. Shriners L.C. Britton, C.C. Hensley, John Hesse and L. M. Isaacs accompanied the boys to the circus. This is the first year that the Berea Shriners had sponsored the event. Next year the organization planned to take a group of both boys and girls.

New house of worship

In September of 1943, the late. Wiley Reed asked his pastor Reverend O.H. Mylum, to lead prayer in his home for his sons Sam and Alson, where fighting in World War II, as well as for Mrs. Reed's brother. Those early prayer meetings continued for more than a year and as a mission of the Berea Baptist Church was begun. The Reeds gave land on which a church was built for this new congregation. In 1944, a small concrete building was built. Eventually in 1945, the mission was organized into the Bethel Baptist church and called its first minister, the Reverend Langhorn. From 1945 until 1968, Bethel saw several ministers come and go as the church continued to grow. Then in 1968, the Mr. Mylum, who earlier in 1965 had retired from the pastorate of Berea Baptist Church, after 22 years of service, accepted the call of the Bethel congregation to become its. Minister. Mylum immediately started a build- i n g fund and established the first Sunday of each month as a time to give to this project. In 1973, there was between $12,000 and $13,000 in the fund. $11,000 of the fund was already paid on the new site on which the new church was to be built. A group of five men headed by Aster Shouse, spearheaded the project and assisted in the construction of the new church. The brick building was a 34' x 72' structure styled along colonial lines with a traditional steeple, would house an auditorium that would seat 220 people, a choir loft, a baptistry, the vestibule and a full sized basement that would provide for 10 Sunday School rooms, a kitchen, fellowship area and rest rooms. Construction of the new building was located at the corner of Reed Hill and Scaffold Cane Road and was expected to be completed in the spring of 1974.

Agent Detected

Officials at the Blue Grass Chemical Activity in Richmond confirmed the presence of the chemical agent GB gas had been detected in a chemical munition's storage igloo at the depot. The igloo contained M55 rockets filled with the chemical nerve agent. Army officials said there was no danger to the surrounding community and that air vents had been closed and that filters had been installed on the affected igloo. The igloo would be continuously filtered until crews enter to determine the exact source of the chemical. County, state and Congressional officials were notified shortly after the leaker was confirmed in accordance with the agreement made with the depot and locally elected officials.

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:
Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

COUNCIL

amending the ordinance to include review of proposals by a Utility Strip Review Board to be named later. Under the amendment, citizens or groups can submit proposals to the board to plant flowers or trees, subject to the approval of the board.

When the vote was cast, Katie Startzman cast the lone dissenting vote.

In related remarks during the public comments portion of the meeting, Eleanor Workman expressed disappointment that the item was not set aside for further exploration and discussion, as requested by Startzman. Workman also requested the city reconsider its deployment of signs in order to accommodate shorter-than-average motorists who have difficulty seeing over some signs.

In other news, the council unanimously adopted a resolution authorizing the city of Berea to join a joint post-CSEPP transition task force resolution with the City of Richmond and the Madison County Fiscal Court. Each government entity will appoint two members to work with first responders to address local safety and disaster response following the completion of the chemical weapons demilitarization project at the Blue Grass Army Depot. Federal subsidies and resources the governments currently have, such as the funding of emergency sirens, radios, and other resources, will end once the demilitarization project is completed.

In other news, Jennifer Lainhart of Hope's Wings addresses the council, noting that October is Domestic Violence Awareness Month. Lainhart stated Kentucky still ranks second in the nation when it comes to domestic violence reports, and that 54 Kentuckians died last year as a result of domestic violence. Berea will be hosting a county-wide anti-domestic violence rally at city hall on October 20 at 5:30 p.m.

Additionally, Patty Calico Davis accepted a resolution on behalf of the Laurel Ridge Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution commemorating Constitution Week 2023. The chapter provided information packets regarding the Constitution and the American flag to local students, and there is a display commemorating the document at the Madison County Library.

Finance Director Susan Meeks reported that General Fund numbers ended the year stronger than anticipated.

"I am pleased to say we are going to increase our General Fund fund balance by $2 million," Meeks said. "That's where we're at now, which is really exciting." The precise numbers will be finalized once the annual audit is complete, Meeks said.

Additionally, Meeks noted that Tourism may increase their fund balance for the last fiscal year by about $1 million.

Caudill thanked Meeks for her work, noting the excess revenue is a sign of both prudent city management and sound planning on the part of the administration.

"That news of having a surplus in an environment of between eight and 12 percent inflation is a testament to the work of a lot of people," Caudill said. "It's a testament to our department heads spending wisely and investing wisely, and thinking about the things that are really important for their areas."

Caudill said what is remarkable is the city is saving money without cutting personnel or programs. "We've done that [the surplus] without reducing services," Caudill said. "There's a lot of really great momentum in our city that really a testament to every single employee that we have and a lot of really wise decisions by a lot of people. Thank you to all those people, and Susan, we could not have the financial stability that we have in the city without you and your entire staff. The work that you do is important, it's appreciated, and we all see it."

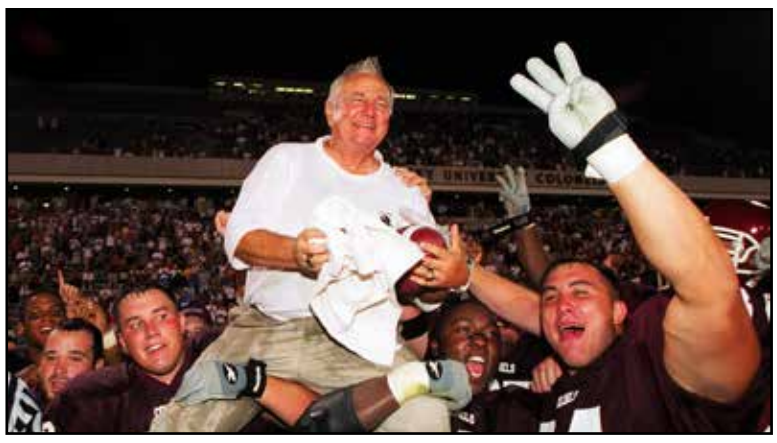
Remembering Roy Kidd

Honesty, integrity defined late coach



By Keith Taylor
Citizen Publisher

RICHMOND — Roy Kidd's actions spoke louder than words. He was all about honesty and integrity and it showed in his professional and personal life.

"Before every football season began, he would have me talk to the incoming freshmen and transfers about honesty and integrity," Kidd's longtime pastor Bill Fort said. "He felt like honesty and integrity had a foundation in scripture. He never encouraged me to shy away from or totally alleviate biblical mandates from my address. He welcomed and expected it."

The late Eastern Kentucky University football coach, who passed away Tuesday, Sept. 12 at 91, was a man of faith and a Kentucky Baptist as a longtime member of First Baptist Church in Richmond. Fort compared Kidd's faith similar to James, whose faith "welled up in actions instead of words alone."

Fort officiated the funeral service for Kidd on Monday at the EKU Center for the Arts.

> "He was an incredible man."
> — Pastor Bill Fort

"He and I ate lunch fairly routinely." Fort recalled. "It was during that setting that he would ask a question about my previous sermon or something about scripture or life that he had been pondering."

During his conversations with Kidd over the years, Fort said Kidd never forgot his upbringing, especially his Christian roots that were firmly planted early in his childhood.

"Coach Kidd's journey began a long time ago in Corbin (Kentucky)," Fort said. "He had a mother and aunt particularly who sought to teach and train him in the faith. It reminds me of Timothy's faith being built by his mother and grandmother. He never veered from that sage instruction."

Kidd's biggest mission field, Fort said, was his football program at Eastern Kentucky, where he developed a close bond with players and staff.

"He had the greatest desire for them to leave his program and become great husbands, fathers, and citizens," Fort said. "He had chaplains that were a part of the team. For years, it was Gene Strange. After Gene, it was Rick Trexler. He made them a part of the team because he wanted his players to have access to spiritual and godly wisdom in the everyday of their lives and not just on Saturdays. His connection with the players didn't end when they graduated. He kept up with them, loved them, celebrated them, and mourned hard when some died."

While it was Fort who ministered to Kidd, the late coach became concerned about his pastor when he was involved in an automobile accident with his son.

"He ministered in a thousand ways that not many people saw," Fort recalled. "My son, Patrick, and I had a car accident many years ago that kept me in the hospital for two days. Coach and Sue (his wife) were in Florida on vacation. I woke up the next morning to my phone ringing. It was coach Kidd checking on me. He continued to check on me until he was assured that I was fine."

Marc Whitt, a member of Fort's congregation at First Baptist, told Fort a story when Kidd showed compassion for other sports and programs at EKU. It occurred when Marc was part of the school's marching band.

"The band was in fall practice just like the football team was," Fort said. "During a break, a couple of the incoming football freshmen were making fun of the band. When coach Kidd heard about it, he quickly put a stop to it. The coach then went to the band director, and they had a short conversation. Coach then called the football team over and addressed them and the band. He gave a rousing speech to all of them about the band, cheerleaders, and football players all being on the same team and seeking to achieve the same goal. Because of that goal, they ought to be each other's greatest advocate. He then made the two freshmen culprits work with the band for a week in order for them to see how hard the marching Colonels work."

That's just one of the many ways Kidd treated others as he wanted to be treated.

"He was an incredible man," Fort said.

Cats open SEC at Vandy

LEXINGTON (KT) — It will be a weekend of firsts for Kentucky this week.

The Wildcats (3-0) will take on Vanderbilt in both their first Southeastern Conference contest and road encounter. Kickoff is set for noon In Nashville.

"I've got to get them ready, no matter the situation," Stoops said Monday. "We've tried many different things. We've gone over this through the years, when we've played on the road and played at 11 o'clock and our approach. I did that years ago. We played, I think it was at Missouri at 11 a.m., and just the way we get them up, get them rolling, get the music going. I want high energy early in the morning, you've got to wake them up and get them rolling. So, that's always been our approach for 10 years or so with the early kicks."

In addition to the early kickoff — 11 a.m. CST — Vanderbilt Stadium is undergoing a facelift, which could also be a distraction.

"It needs to be talked about so they're not surprised because it definitely will be the most challenging environment we will play in this year," Stoops said. "Aesthetically, getting dressed, logistically. We'll deal with it and our players will handle it just fine."

The Wildcats are coming off a 35-3 win over Akron in a contest that resembled the team's first contests against Ball State and Eastern Kentucky.

"There's some really good things in there and there's some things that we've got to get fixed up," Stoops said. "I feel like it's a broken record; I've said that probably every Monday … you can't get tired of the good that our team is doing. They can't let the frustration seep in and we as coaches can't.

"There's a lot of good things in there and there's a lot of pieces that we can't (repeat), as the competition improves this week, with a team that beat us a year ago."

Kentucky receiver Jordan Dingle agreed and is confident the Wildcats will reach their full potential.

"It's not really frustrating (but) it is frustrating trying to lock in on all the little details, but with all the playmakers we have the sky is the limit," he said. "I can't wait to see what the future holds once we get all the details cleaned up."

Stoops was especially pleased with Kentucky's defensive unit. The Wildcats didn't allow a touchdown for the first time this season.

"Defensively, we played a very, very good game," he said. "Both sides were efficient on third down. We played a good, complete game, same with special teams.… I think our players, if they continue to take the approach of worrying about ourselves and improving this week, then you'll see some more growth and try to play cleaner in certain aspects."

Eagles celebrate homecoming

An efficient Ethan Moore is just what the doctor ordered for Madison Southern (2-3) to earn their first home win of the season in a 36-6 victory over Henry Clay (0-5) last Friday night.

The Eagles knew they needed to get off to a good start.

In its first win of the season two weeks ago against Madison Central, Southern scored the first 18 points of the game. In this one Southern built a 28-point lead in the first half before going on to win by 30.

Once again the ground game led the way as Moore, Lukas Mullins, Braden Kelly and others combined for 239 rushing yards on 35 carries. Moore had his best game of the season as the young QB was perfect through the air going 3-3, with a 72-yard touchdown pass to Brayden Hall, and adding 129 on the ground and a score.

Michael Watkins

Kelley totaled 37 yards and a touchdown rushing and Preston Williams got in the end zone while adding 27 yards on four carries.

Kelley wasn't just doing damage on offense , either. The junior led the team with eleven tackles including four tackles for loss, a pair of sacks and a pick six. Gino Ballard recorded nine stops in the game for Southern and Mullins made 8 tackles.

As we get closer to district play in a couple weeks, the Eagles will look to build on their momentum with another big home game this Friday against Mercer County.

Both Berea and Madison Central each dropped another home game this past Friday. Gallatin County defeated the Pirates 33-13, while the Indians fell to 0-5 for the first time since 2009.

All three local teams stay in-county this week as the Pirates host Jackson County, a team they've defeated three straight times.

Madison Central welcomes 1-4 Great Crossing into Richmond as they look for their first win of the William Blair era at Madison Central

Wilgreen Lake project gets an added boost

By Leslie Barlow
Citizen Staff Writer

Madison County officials are stepping up their involvement with the ongoing improvements at Wilgreen Lake following the fiscal voting during its Sept. 26 meeting at Richmond City Hall to approve the county covering the costs of the asphalt to resurface the parking lot.

In order to help expedite the project, the county will use its contracted asphalt rates to cover the costs. The Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources (KDFWR) requested to expand the courtesy dock as part of the agreement.

The renovation project will include paved parking areas, an updated boat ramp, and a kayak launch for the 169-acre reservoir.

In addition, renovations will include an expanded courtesy dock that will hold 16 boats. The old fish cleaning station, which was severely damaged during the spring storms, will be removed.

The county hosted a kickoff ceremony on May 2, in collaboration with the KDFWR, to announce and show plans for the $250,000

Storm drain upgrade a success

By Andy McDonald
For The Citizen

After years of residents enduring flooding in Rose Court during heavy rains, the City of Berea recently completed upgrades to storm drains to resolve the problem.

Berea City Administrator Rose Beverly briefly touched on the development during a recent business meeting of the Berea City Council, stating:

"I am happy to report today that the Rose Court project is completed," Beverly said. "They had a pretty significant storm [Saturday] and it performed pretty well, which is why we've really taken our time on that project and done a really good job. The ultimate goal is to get the water to go where it's supposed to go and it seemed to do really well."

Berea City Councilman and Public Works Committee Chair Jerry Little praised Berea staffers for their efforts in fixing the chronic problem.

"On the Rose Street project, I want to give a big shout out to the

Traffic flow a concern at Stoney Creek

By Andy McDonald
For The Citizen

Building is booming in Stoney Creek Subdivision with approximately 585 potential units. Officials are trying to figure out how to add access points to the subdivision and enhance traffic safety.

The Berea Planning and Zoning Commission recently reviewed preliminary plans for future development in and near the Stoney Creek Subdivision in north Berea.

However, officials also heard the concerns of local residents, who said traffic safety is a serious issue in the neighborhood.

The two projects discussed at a recent P&Z work session included Unit 3, Phase 2 of the Stoney Creek Subdivision, a 102-unit housing tract submitted by Tru Property Development. Officials were also briefed on a potential project on the north east border

Hall of Fame journey had many twists and turns

Keith Taylor

My love for basketball began at an early age.

I don't remember particularly at what age, but I spent countless hours playing on the gravel driveway shooting the basketball at a goal and backboard attached to the garage. It was nothing fancy but it was a start. Soon I practiced at the old Kirksville School Gymnasium, where I learned to properly dribble, pass and shoot.

Back then there weren't many youth leagues, and for the most part, you learned on your own and I played from daylight to dark. We had a night light attached to the pole and it provided enough light for me to practice way past dark, until mom said it was bed time.

After elementary school, I tried out for the seventh-grade basketball team at Foley Middle School and missed the final cut. I was disappointed because I felt like a failure.

That didn't last long and I continued to practice, practice and practice. I tried out again for the eighth-grade team and again, fell short of my goal.

When it came time to enter high school, mom and dad gave me the option to attend the county high school, which was Madison Central at the time, or attend Berea Community.

I chose Berea and didn't know anyone, with the exception of Steve Seals, who took the same trail through elementary, middle and high school. We followed each other.

Starting over, everything was new. I had to make new friends, find myself and fit in at my new school. It took time, but I finally made the basketball team at Berea after missing out in middle school and my freshman year.

Once I became a part of the team, our senior class, comprised of nine of us, began a fun journey our sophomore year.

I learned a lot about basketball than I ever dreamed and became part of a band of brothers that felt like family.

Although I loved the basketball part of it all, those conditioning drills about took me out, but in the end, coach Bill Smallwood had me in the best shape of my life. Because our senior class was so deep, I didn't play a lot of minutes, but being part of a special group that won 37 games over a two-year period was the best time of my high school career.

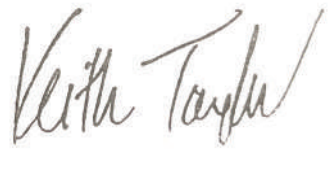
There is something about being part of a team, and I was happy to be part of it.

Because of basketball, I made friendships and memories that last a lifetime and I will never forget.

Last weekend, our 1987-88 team, which defeated Madison Central in the 44th District championship 35 years ago, was inducted into the Berea Community School Athletic Hall of Fame Class of 2023.

The ceremony was like a family reunion, as we looked back and talked about the glory days that seem like yesterday. I was so humbled and honored to be part of the celebration.

All I ever wanted to do was play basketball. It turned out to be a Hall of Fame journey with a great group of coaches and teammates all of whom will always hold a special place in my heart.



MakerLab coming to the library

Christina Cornelison

I have exciting news for the community of Berea.

Last month, the Madison County Public Library was awarded a $35,000 grant from the Steele-Reese Foundation to transform the Berea location's basement into a MakerLab!

MakerLabs in libraries have been growing in popularity for almost two decades, as equipment such as 3D printers, laser cutters, and CNC routers have become more accessible. Generally speaking, a MakerLab is a space that provides equipment, tools, and technology to assist in creative projects. MakerLabs also provide space for lifelong learning and community connection. Patrons can both learn from direct experience with the equipment and from working with each other.

A MakerLab was part of the library's Richmond location remodel in 2019, and was met with great success. Our 3D printers have been a significant draw and are in consistent use. The library's Technology Services team has also used this space and its equipment for STEM activities, robotics and coding programs, as well as digitization projects.

While these technology-driven programs have remained popular, we recently noticed a shift towards more "analog" equipment. An awareness of sustainability and self-sufficiency came into focus more prominently during the pandemic. Perhaps as a result, the Richmond location's sewing machines are among its most utilized pieces of equipment. The ability to create something, whether it's virtual or tangible, is a key goal of the library's MakerLab.

Our MakerLab in Berea will be a hybrid of high and low tech. We'll have traditional MakerLab equipment such as 3D printers, a large capacity laser cutter, and a poster printer, alongside sewing machines, a Cricut, and pottery wheels. A significant and unique feature of the Berea MakerLab will be a recording studio. Our goal is for this space to be utilized for podcasting, music production and recording, as well as oral histories. As I write this, I'm becoming increasingly excited about the prospect of an oral history podcast! I hope your creative interests are piqued, too.

The Berea library's MakerLab is an exciting project, and also a major one, as the basement has been used primarily for storage. Grant funds from the Steele-Reese Foundation will mostly cover the remodel of the space, including electrical and plumbing upgrades, flooring, painting, and construction of the recording booth. The remainder will be spent on equipment. Our incredible Friends of the Madison County Public Library have also pledged an additional $5000 to support equipment purchases!

We hope to have the project completed by the summer of 2024. In the meantime, please contact me with any questions. I am confident this project is going to have a tremendously positive impact for Berea and I look forward to welcoming you to our new MakerLab next year!

Can you afford a new car?

Glenn Mollette

If you can't afford a new car now, it's not going to get easier.

Supposedly the average new car price in America is "about" $30,000 according to ftc.gov. Be wary of the preposition "about." It gets tougher all the time to walk out of a dealership with a new car that has very many bells and whistles for under $35,000. The average payment for a new car is $700 according to bankrate.com. A more reasonable car payment means you have to have a sizable down payment or receive a lot of credit on your trade-in. Many Americans are financing their cars for 72 months and they are often worn out when traded. Often there is still some balance owed that is refinanced in the new deal. This creates an ongoing financial hardship for millions of Americans.

Millions of Americans struggle with bad credit ratings which impacts their car loan deal.

In most parts of America, you have to have a car. There are some locations in our country where you can make it with buses and trains but that is a small section of America. If you live on the East coast between NYC and Washington, D.C. then you might be able to survive without a car. If you live in Tomahawk, Kentucky you must have a car.

The United Auto Workers are striking for better pay and benefits. Many of the plant employees are making over $30 an hour but lower tier employees are making less than $20 an hour for the same kind of work. The UAW is asking to end a tier system which pays employees less for doing the same work. UAW wants their pay increased by 36% over the next four years. They also are tired of working 60-to-80-hour weeks just to survive. They are asking for a four day or 32-hour work week but paid for 40 hours. They also want the defined benefit pension reinstated for all the employees. General Motors ended its defined benefit pension January 1, 2007. They are also asking for better medical insurance for the lower tier employees. The UAW says the big three gave up cost of living adjustments during the 2008 financial crisis when GM and Chrysler went bankrupt. The UAW says that this has resulted in a tremendous pay decrease for the auto workers.

The 401k retirement plan is going to be the best that American companies are going to offer going forward. In the old days many companies offered defined benefit plans. If you worked 30 years then you were promised a certain retirement wage. The big three auto makers once had such benefits but they will never go back to that because they know it's unsustainable. If a company will match or pay even half of what you pay into your 401K then you are doing well.

We all surely hope for the best for our all concerned. Everybody has to make money. I hope they can get the best deal possible.

In the meantime, most of us will be shopping around to see what we can afford. Paying an extra 36% percent or whatever it might be for a new car will be difficult for most Americans.

Event postponed

Imagine the task that teachers at the Academy had. A bunch of students not only without lesson plans after anticipating a day in the hills but rightly upset from being knocked out of the enjoyment the day held in store. Who was to blame? The rain did it and yet it was a beautiful day after all. That was the bad part of it all. If it had not continued to rain, then the day could have gone on as scheduled, but to knock them out of a trip and then to turn pretty. That was just too much. Some students thought perhaps the fire whistle on Monday at seven o'clock meant there was a fire. However, students at the academy knew better. To them, it was a heralding to a day of drudgery, when they had anticipated a day of pleasure. The silver lining was the wagon party and geology trip that was also scheduled, was able to go on later that day when the weather cleared up.

Local option defeated

In a local option election held in Richmond, citizens voted in favor of legal liquor sales by a majority of 446 votes. The wet vote totaled 1,962 and the dry's listed as casting 1,516 votes. As in 1943, when a county-wide vote was held, six of the city's precincts voted in favor of liquor. In the 1946 county-wide election when Madison remained dry by a margin of 2,307 votes, Richmond supported the wet cause by a majority of 631 votes. In 1943, when the county upheld prohibition, Richmond precincts voted for legal alcohol sales by a majority of 325 votes. Two other option elections were held in the state on the same day. Shelbyville voted to go wet by 411 votes and Jackson remained dry by only 21 votes.

16 acres rezoned

Rezoning of 16 acres from residential to commercial use was approved. Four plats of lot lines were changed and okayed and several other matters were addressed during the Tuesday meeting of the Berea Zoning Commission. The remaining area was an irregular shaped plot of land fronting U.S. 25 North, running behind the municipal housing development and fronting on Highway 1016. Dr. Dwight Blackburn represented the owners of the property owners except one were agreeable to the change and that all prospective buyers of the property desired a commercial zoning. He also noted that adjoining Richmond Road land was all commercial. The one objecting property owner was Randall Shew who asked that the property remain residential. Don Burrell, Bluegrass Development planner, gave the opinion that the fire-acre part of the land on Richmond Road could be changed but the remainder stay residential since it was surrounded by residential properties. Nerveless, the commission voted unanimously to change the entire 16-acre tract to commercial zoning and would so recommend to the City Council. Mrs. William D. (Faye) Ballenger was granted permission to establish a one-chair beauty shop in her home on Central Avenue and to place minimally sized signage. Kenneth Cummins requested a zone change for Meadowlark on Richmond Road adjacent to the new store under construction to be used as a parking lot. Commissioners ascertained that the lot was already zoned commercial but said that the deed restrictions held force, since they were of record before the zoning commission was formed and active.

Exxon Grant

Berea Community Elementary School was awarded a $14,000 grant from the Exxon Education Foundation to develop a K-3 Mathematics Specialist Project. Superintendent Cheryl Chedster said the program would help train teachers to find ways to get young children interested in learning math at an early age in order to better prepare them for the increasing need to know mathematics in today's technology laden world. The project would train a core group of teachers who would then disseminate the information to the larger group of elementary teachers at the school. The project would also allow the teachers at Berea Elementary to tap into the math learning networks already in place at Eastern Kentucky University and other colleges. Networking would allow other teachers to share ideas and concepts from around the country. They could see what other teachers had tried and what had been successful at other schools. The proposal for the $14,000 gran was to fund the development of the project was a joint effort of two Berea Elementary teachers, Dana Hemphill and Linda Taylor who worked in conjunction with the superintendent. Hemphill and Taylor would c0-direct the K-3 Mathematics Specialist Project at Berea Elementary. According to Chedester, Dana and Linda had attained through the National Mathematics Program and Chedester was one of the regional trainers when they were in the class. The two already possessed the background so it made sense for them to coordinate the project once confirmation of the grant was received. Chedester said that the project would also tie into the school's curriculum and would be developed in a way that it would be tailored to the needs of the students.

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

It's cold when it's 10 below in the living room

Roger Alford

A couple spending the winter in Florida saw on the weather forecast that it was 30 below zero back home in northern Michigan.

The husband said to his wife: "I believe they're stretching it a bit. It can't be that cold. I'll call up there and ask my friend Bubba."

So he called Bubba and asked what the weather's like.

"It's around 10 below," Bubba said.

"Aha," the man said, "I knew the weatherman was lying when he said it was 30 below."

"Well," Bubba said, "it may be outside."

I love that old joke. In fact, I love the many, many jokes that have been told about winter throughout the generations. Lots of people don't like winter, but, you know, the Bible tells us that God sends us cold weather as a gift.

In Psalm 147:16-17, we're told that He sends the snow, scatters the frost, and casts forth ice.

Everything God does, He does for a purpose. Scientists cite many reasons why winter's cold weather is beneficial.

I appreciate that winter's cold sends ticks, mosquitos, spiders, and gnats into hibernation.

Did you ever walk into the web of one of those big ugly Asian spiders that have been moving into this area. I feel like I can get a full week's worth of cardio in 30 seconds trying to get away from those things.

Winter brings opportunities for sledding, skiing, and tubing. And for country boys like me, winter is the best season for hunting with hounds.

One of the most incredible sights I've ever seen is a big hound treed on a cold winter night. He stands there on his hind legs, his front feet gripping the truck of a big oak. He looks dragon-like with fire in his eyes and steam blowing from his mouth.

You can only see such a sight in the cold of winter.

So, yes, I love winter. But not when it's 10 below in the living room.

ROTARY CLUB NEWS

"Cybersecurity Basics" was the topic of guest speaker Daniel Brineley at the Tuesday, Sept. 19, lunch meeting of the Berea Rotary club at the Smokehouse Grill. Brineley is the IT (Internet Technician) specialist for the city of Berea.

He had these suggestions to help you avoid a breach of your security:

CHANGE your passwords at least every 60 to 90 days, and DO NOT use the same password for all your multiple sites. Make sure your passwords are unique and strong. Use different passwords for each program.

DO NOT use the same password on your bank account as you do on any other sites. Brineley advised, "Keep your banking information separate, and two-level authentication is the safest way to log in to your various programs."

KEEP your devices up to date. "Updates are provided by Microsoft and other providers because they include protections from security problems they have detected," Brineley explained. "This can be inconvenient sometimes, but it is very important to protecting your computer."

BE WARY of Phishing attempts. Phishing is the practice of sending fraudulent messages that appear to come from a legitimate or reputable source. These usually come as emails or text messages.

BE CAUTIOUS on social media. Game sites, Facebook, Netflix, and other social media platforms are vulnerable to scammers. Two-level authentication to these sites when you log in is one way to verify the site is legitimate.

"Watch out for weird email names and domain names in messages," he said. Legitimate businesses such as Amazon, Netflix, Google, have their own domain names. "Watch for misspellings or unusual wording because many scams originate in foreign countries," he cautioned.

DO NOT respond to any message on your phone or computer that demands immediate action or threatens severe consequences if you don't "click here" or "call this number" to fix whatever problem they say you have. Hang up! Delete! If in doubt, hang up and call a verifiable number of the business and ask if they called you.

"They don't want you to have time to think about what they are saying," he said. "Don't rush. If they say your bank account has been compromised, check with the bank yourself."

AVOID SHARING personal information. If a game site, quiz game, or online survey asks questions like: Where did you live as a child? What was your first pet's name? What is your mother's maiden name? Do not respond. Those are the types of questions your bank asks to verify your identity. A scammer can use your answers to get into your bank account.

He reminded, "If something seems off, or is too good to be true, then it probably is. Be cautious when dealing with unfamiliar situations." Above all, he said, "TRUST YOUR INSTINCTS."

Stoney Creek, called Stoney View Subdivision, by New Idea Construction.

In total, there are approximately 585 housing units in Stoney Creek Subdivision, not all of which have been constructed to date. Stoney View could have as many as 230 additional units.

The prospect of future development in the neighborhood raised questions among citizens and officials about both road safety and adequate access. Some suggest the lack of a controlled intersection at U.S. 25 and Wyldwood Way is unsafe.

While the state has a commitment from the Allen Company to install new turning lanes off of Richmond Road into Stoney Creek, residents say more needs to be done than just adding turning lanes.

At the Aug. 8 commission business session, Stoney Creek resident Ashley Storm told commissioners her vehicle was struck by an on-coming car at the intersection of Richmond Road and Wyldwood Way.

"A red light needs to go up now," Storm told the commission. "My kid almost got killed. I almost got killed. My head smacked the windshield and the side. And the little girl that hit me almost got killed. So, I think before anything else gets done, a red light needs to be put in."

Speaking on behalf of Vantage Engineering, Colton McGlone said it is his understanding that the Allen Company was supposed to begin creating the turn lanes on U.S. 25 this month. Meanwhile, Codes and Planning Administrator Amanda Haney cautioned that the state, not the city or county, maintains U.S. 25, and it may be very difficult to get them to install a traffic signal on that highway.

The other problem addressed by residents was that of limited entrance and exits to Stoney Creek, and potentially, Stoney View.

"If there is another accident there, or, God forbid, something happened to the road there, or a natural disaster, there's going to be hundreds of people not able to access a way out. So, that is a huge liability," Storm said during last month's business session.

At the recent work session, Commissioner Ben Robinson III also voiced his reservations about continuing to approve major development projects where there is only one entrance and exit.

"I continue to grow more and more concerned about the development there with only one entrance," Robinson said. "The numbers are starting to mushroom from a development standpoint, and I grow concerned about the traffic and safety."

Haney reminded the commission that when the development was first proposed in the early 2000s, at least five road access points were planned, including a connection to Old U.S. 25. But the property has changed hands since.

Speaking on behalf of New Idea Construction, Bill Short said he is working on a solution to add at least one more entrance and exit into Stoney Creek. Crestview Drive, a county street north of the subdivision, would need improvement, but it could serve as another point of access, Short said. He added he is in discussions with Madison County Judge Executive Reagan Taylor to help that happen.

In the meantime, city officials agree that opening Crestview Drive to the subdivision could solve part of the neighborhood's access problem.

"In speaking with the city's legal counsel, their stance is that it is the planning commission's job is to ensure we have connectivity to a public way, and Crestview Drive is that public way," Haney told commissioners.

Berea City Councilman Jerry Little, who attended Tuesday's work session, agreed. "I understand everybody's concern about the entrance and exit. Public safety has to be the number one thing," Little said. "It [Crestview] can be used as an entrance and exit, and that's the legal opinion of the City of Berea [counsel], he added.

The commission has taken two actions to address traffic safety near the Stoney Creek. Commissioners unanimously adopted a resolution in August, introduced by Martin Richards, requiring a formal commitment or plan to install the turn lanes on U.S. 25 before further development can be approved in the neighborhood. Additionally, the measure stipulates that landscape owned by the developer must be mowed and maintained, and that paving in phases A, B, and C, including Wyldwood Way, must be completed.

In the meantime, Short stated that in addition to continuing efforts to open Crestview Drive as an alternate entrance and exit, he would initially build only 55 of the proposed 230 units in the Stoney View Subdivision, if, in fact, he ultimately chooses to move ahead with the development.

Wilgreen Lake boat ramp has been closed since July 10 due to construction work.

"Things look really well down at the lake," said Magistrate Tom Botkin. "I'm glad to see the addition of the docks. There has always been a place to put boats in but not a place to go tie up when coming back and going to weigh in. It's going to be good when it open."

In other business, the court approved on second reading a zone change request at 479 Mt. Vernon Road from UC-1 Single Family to UC-4 General Commercial.

The court also approved a credit card processing contract for Battlefield Golf Course. The county entered into an agreement with Lightspeed for credit card processing software. Through the agreement, the county will see a reduction in credit card processing fees from 3.83% to 2.3% on all credit card transactions, a savings for the county of about $200 to $300 per month, at the golf course.

Public Works Department. For years down there we've had flooding and it's been a mess. That's as good a job as I've ever seen done, and I think the problem is taken care of. I just think they did a great job and I want to give them credit," Little said.

In addition to their other day-to-day duties in maintaining the city, Beverly noted the next major project tackled by Public Works will be the construction of a new firing range for the Berea Police Department.

Cats' slate all set

LEXINGTON (KT) — Kentucky will play Georgetown College and Kentucky State in its two exhibition games the school announced Monday.

The Wildcats will open the exhibition campaign against Georgetown College on Oct. 27 and will take on Kentucky State on Nov. 2. Both games will be played at the Rupp Arena at Central Bank Center. Game times and television designations will be announced at a later date.

Kentucky has played Georgetown College four times and last met in 2019 when the Wildcats defeated the Tigers 80-53.

The contest against Kentucky State will be the program's yearly contest in the Unity Series against HBCU schools. The game raises awareness of the missions of the HBCUs and to raise funds to provide opportunities for students at their institutions. The Wildcats and their opponents have participated in educational field trips to the National Underground Railroad Freedom Museum in Cincinnati.

It will mark the second straight season the Wildcats have played Kentucky State in an exhibition game.

Kentucky is 150-12 all-time and 47-1 in exhibition games under Calipari.

Cats brace for Gators

LEXINGTON (KT) — Kentucky football coach Mark Stoops doesn't want his team to be overconfident with their recent success against Florida.

The Wildcats (4-0, 1-0 Southeastern Conference) have won two straight over the 23rd-ranked Gators after suffering 31 straight setbacks. Stoops said the past two victories "really doesn't have any bearing on (this) game."

"There's a term that we use a lot in our program and that is divine discontent," he said. "We know there's more out there. We know we can play better. And that ought to be our motivation.

"We're still hungry and and nobody's content with what we're doing and we're looking forward to a great opportunity here this week with the Florida team that we know is always extremely talented (and a) very good team team."

Five weeks into the regular season, Stoops likes the way the Wildcats have progressed each week and how they performed last week at Vanderbilt.

"I think there was a lot to build off of — still more to improve on," Stoops said. "I thought we made some improvements in many areas. (It was a) pretty impressive performance defensively."

Florida (3-1, 1-0) is coming off a 22-7 win over Charlotte.

Hairston honored

Kentucky defensive back Maxwell Hairston was named SEC Defensive Player of the Week following his impressive performance at Vanderbilt last week. Hairston tied an SEC record with two interception returns for a touchdown and finished with four tackles and collected three pass breakups.

"With the two great plays that he had — it was nice to see," Stoops said. "We had a penalty or two, but he responded. He came back and made big plays. That's what you have to do with that position. It's a tough position to play and have a short memory. … I also think he has a lot of confidence and a lot of juice and excitement. He's always ready to play and came back and made some really big plays for us."

SEC Nation in town

The SEC Nation will be in Lexington from 10 a.m.-noon prior to the kickoff between Kentucky and Florida. The show will be aired live on the SEC Network.

School officials advised fans to arrive at the stadium early for the noon kickoff.

"We need them to be there and be packed and loud," Stoops said.

Game time set

Kentucky's contest at top-ranked Georgia is set for 7 p.m. on Saturday, Oct. 7, and will be televised on ESPN.

The Bulldogs have won 13 straight over the Wildcats, including. 16-6 victory a year ago in Lexington.

Kentucky's last win over Georgia was a 34-27 victory in 2009 at Athens.

Gametracker: Florida at Kentucky, noon, Saturday. TV/Radio: SEC Network, UK Radio Network.

Eagles fall to Titans; Pirates still winless

Prep Roundup

After a 30-point win on Homecoming Sept. 15, the Madison Southern Eagles (2-4) were looking to earn back-to-back victories as they hosted Mercer County at home last week. That wasn't the case, however, as the Titans (5-1) jumped out to a 21-0 lead in the first half and cruised to a 42-6 victory.

Inconsistency on offense has haunted Mark Payne's team all year and that was once again the case on Friday. Despite once again rushing for more than 230 yards, the Eagles could not get the passing game going, as Ethan Moore completed just three of his passes for 25 yards. Moore did rush for 103 yards and a score, while Braeden Kelly added 53 yards and Lukas Mullins chipped in with 44 yards. Defensively Brayden Hall picked off two passes but that wasn't enough as Mercer County ran for five touchdowns on the ground and combined for over 400 yards of total offense. Southern will head back out on the road this week as they begin district play at East Jessamine.

Michael Watkins

In Richmond on Friday a second-quarter drive by the Madison Central (1-5) might be just what jumstarts its season as they head down the stretch. After a scoreless first period the home team fell behind 10-0 to Great Crossing (1-5) and looked as if that would be the score heading into halftime. But a two-play drive, engineered by Senior quarterback KJ Wells, with a deep pass to Jackson Prichard and a 35-yard touchdown throw to Cody Morrison to cut the deficit to three. On the ensuing drive out of the half, Bryant Mathis found the end zone for the first of his three touchdowns as the Indians went on to win, 30-17. Central doesn't play its first district game until Oct. 6, but will be on the road Friday at Pulaski County.

Despite maybe their best half of football this season, the Berea Pirates (0-6) remain winless after a 40-19 loss to Jackson County (4-2) at home last Friday. The Pirates travel to Lexington this Friday in their first district game of the season at undefeated Sayre, a team the Pirates have never beaten in football.
