

Aces Over

By: Mike French

I woke early Tuesday morning to step outside and find a heavy fog sticking to the ground.

Weeds and grass was soaking wet from dew and there was a tiny, barely detectable autumn nip in the air as I raised my coffee cup to my lips and stared out over the misty field.

I couldn't help it. My mind wandered back to a time when my father and I and old cuz (Brian Newman) would have been headed out to our favorite tree stump in the woods with a gun across our shoulder.

Though the temperature would warm quickly, our camo pants and boots would have been saturated with dew keeping us cool as we sat quietly about 50 yards apart.

We would be looking up into the trees, from our carefully chosen perch, and we would occasionally glance over to each other as we sat quietly.

As soon as we heard the first patter of a hundred dew drops hitting the ground, we knew something had shaken the tree limb above enough to shake the dew off the leaves.

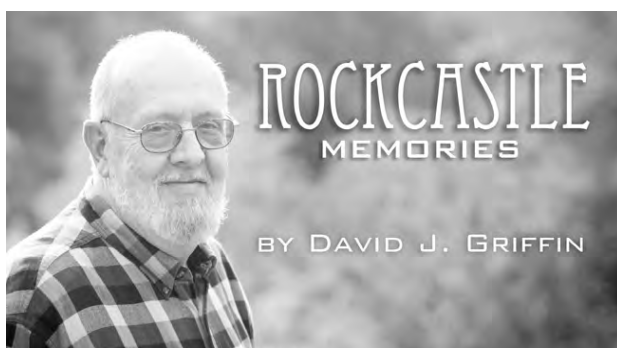

Our hearts would begin to beat faster and we would very quietly reposition ourselves so that we could see the top of the tree above where the dew drops had fallen.

It was never long before we would see a squirrel trotting on a limb or down the side of the tree he had spent the night in.

Looking at each other through the fog, we could see if one of us had drawn a bead in that direction and we would be ready to hear the spat of a .22 and then the thud of the squirrel hitting the ground.

Then, wait some more. One would think that the spat of a .22 would scare others off. And it does for a minute usually. But they come back out really soon and usually there's a whole

Dog Days of Summer

When I was a little boy, my grandfather (Pop) very much disliked that late part of the summer season which he called "the dog days of summer." For a long time, I thought he was the one that named this summer event. When I asked him what he meant, he said, "David Joe, the month of July and most of August aren't fit for a dog." He went on to explain that particular time of the year. "This is the hottest part of the summer; it is sultry, and the thunderstorms are more severe."

The more I thought about this period of time, I agreed with him. I had more trouble with mosquitoes, ticks, and, most especially, chiggers in July and August. Pop even told me and Kenneth Hansel that we should not go swimming in creeks and local ponds during this time. He said, "The bugs will drive you crazy." He also told us not to fish. "You won't have much fun if you are fighting off the

Keeping in the Spirit of Labor

Dear Journal,

In keeping with the spirit of labor, Stanley and I have labored this Labor Day weekend. There have been a few projects around the house and yard that have needed our attention for quite some time and we finally got the chance to do some of them. So, this weekend we got right to work.

I was off on Friday and I got busy with some indoor cleaning. On Sunday, we really put our backs into it. We got to work on the outside stuff. Stanley repaired a little wagon that once belonged to his dad. He will need it to haul some stuff this fall. He got his saws and saw horses and got to work. He also worked a little on my metal dish safe that has turned into an all summer long project. I got started on cleaning my flower beds and some areas of mulch around our three big maple trees. I ended up and raked part of the mulch out, too. But that is fine, I'll put more in the spring.

I cleaned out the turtle flower bed where Terry and Tilly come to eat. I put them out some tomatoes when I was through. I think I'll get my brother Don to build them a little turtle house for the spring. He likes to make bird houses as a hobby and it couldn't be that much harder to make a turtle house.

I used my walker for resting when I got tired which ended up about as much as I worked so it seemed. We got started early

Points East

By Ike Adams

We're back to Blair Branch Grade School, after being so rudely interrupted by a 3-day, diabetes interlude at the hospital where the cafeteria food was decidedly superior to any food ever served at the Blair Branch School cafeteria.

On the other hand, I'd be willing to be a few $$ that the Blair Branch cooks would have served up a far more appetizing meal if our school had ever had a cafeteria. As it was, the only kitchen appliance in the building was a refrigerator, placed in the back of the "big room" as far from the heating stove as we could get it. The old fridge was used to stock 5-ounce cartons of milk and any lunch bags students might want to cram inside it.

Most of us had dear meat sandwiches for lunch, several times a week. Dear old bologna. I remember one teacher bringing an electric "hot plate" to school so he could fry his bologna at his desk. That lasted about a week before guilt got to him when we sat around drooling like dogs, hoping for a handout or waiting for something to drop off the kitchen table.

Kids who lived only a few hundred yards from the school house usually went home for lunch and most of them got hot meals. After Mr. Back decided the hot plate was more trouble than it was worth, he ate cold sandwiches like the rest of us. If his bologna was fried, it was still cold.

One year (my 7th grade) he made arrangements to have a nearby neighbor cook up kettles of soup or stew that was served to students for 15 cents each, but more than half of us couldn't afford even that.

On days when we didn't take a bologna sandwich for lunch, my younger brothers and I might have a different slice of deli meat such as diced ham "lunch meat" Dixie Loaf or, my favorite to this day, liver loaf.

Fried egg "omelet" sandwiches were often in our dinner sacks as well as sausage or fried pork on biscuits. I've even taken pint jars of milk and cornbread to lunch and we almost always had apple butter or jam sandwiches for dessert.

For several years, my Mom ordered baby, white leghorn cockerel chicks for not much more than the cost of postage to ship them. The female chicks were produced for the egg industry and, since roosters have still not learned to lay eggs, poultry farmers were looking ways to get rid of them, almost at cost. Mom bought at least 100 at a time and up to 300, scattered through 3 or more orders, between January and March. There was no way we could take care of that many babies all at once, but, when one group got up to 3 weeks old, she'd order more.

To make a long story short, our family ate way more fried chicken than we really needed and Mom turned a nice profit selling fryers, at payday, to a few dozen coal miners.

The Adams boys also took a lot of fried chicken sandwiches to school for lunch. In fact, it got to the point that I'd have preferred almost anything to cold, fried chicken for a noon mosquitoes.”

Later in my adult life, I learned where the term “dog days of summer” came from. It has to do with the sun and the brightest star (Sirius) being in the same region of the sky. Sirius is sometimes called the Dog Star. The Farmer’s Almanac lists the dates of July 3 until August 11 to be the official dates of “dog days” in the Northern Hemisphere.

Other events occur during this time of year that make me cautious and even nervous. This is when snakes shed their skin—a process which affects their vision, causing them to strike more often. Ponds are covered with a scum. The humidity is so high that you cannot feel comfortable outside; sometimes it can be suffocating. And the days are longer.

Pop was more intelligent than he was given credit for being. He told us to drink more liquids, limit our time outdoors, and I recall noticing that he only worked in his garden early in the morning or late in the afternoon during this time.

Because it was so hot and humid, Pop would have trouble sleeping in our non-air conditioned house, causing him to move to the porch swing in his underwear, late at night. He was searching for a cool breeze.

I rode my bike a lot during this time of the summer. I would take my bike down old US25 to an area where there was shade. I would ride back and forth, allowing the air to cool my face. Sometimes, I would take off my shirt to assist in the cooling process.

I have always disliked this part of summer. But it does make me look forward to fall, the changing of the leaves, and the added touch of a crispy feeling to the evening air. And, of course, one of the things that I anticipate most is being able to sit near a “gnat smoke” fire in one of our fire rings next to our house on the mountain. Hang on, it won't be long.

My 8th grade teacher, Monroe Caudill, brought a “Dagwood” type sandwich to school every day that usually had 2 or 3 slices of fancy deli meat layered with Swiss cheese, lettuce and onion. They not only looked tasty but they were virtual works of art!

One day I came to school with a couple of Mom's biscuits stuffed with fried chicken. Mr. Caudill took a glance at my lunch and nodded at his masterpiece. “I'll swap with you,” he said.

We may have set a world record for the amount of time it took for those sandwiches to change hands. I later learned that he really believed he had gotten the better end of the deal. I know, for an absolute fact, that I did.

family around very close.
It would take five or six of the little rascals to make a good meal for all of us and by the time my mom added the gravy and biscuits and fresh garden maters, we would have a meal fit for a king.

We three guys would be cleaning our guns after the hunt while mom filled the house with the smell of squirrel in corn meal and flour.

Squirrel season was the time of year I looked forward to all year long.

I sat in every classroom through high school, during the fall, planning on that Saturday morning and old cuz spending the night with me, or me with him, so that our Saturday morning would be ready to go.

I suppose everyone has some childhood memory that comes to their mind quite often. I am blessed that mine involves family and joy and freedom and love and good, good food.

about eight and worked steady until around five. About two, we broke for lunch. I had some cold rotisserie chicken in the fridge and some garden tomatoes, so that is what we had for lunch. We ate it outside and it was like a little impromptu picnic. Then, it was back to work.

Obviously, I haven't found anybody that would “work for food” as I had commented about earlier. I can't even find a nice young man that isn't afraid of work to come and help me, even for money. He needs to be young and healthy so he can do all that is necessary.

The next day, on Monday, was Labor Day. Our projects weren't done and by now I had strained my back and twisted my right knee and hardly able to move on Monday. I had Stanley to grease me down in Aspercream and fetch the ibuprofen. In a while I was able to get around a little but not much. I knew I couldn't work like I had the day before but I did a few things. Stanley had to take it easy somewhat, too. He did hang some mini blinds and a few other minor jobs here and there.

I did string some fresh beans and baked some sweet potatoes and made some hamburger steaks. I guess you could say that Stanley is working for food.

Man killed in local accident

By: Mike French
Editor

Shawn H. Smith, 23, of Oneida, Tennessee was killed last week in an accident in Rockcastle County.

According to reports, Smith was traveling south on I-75, near mile marker 72, when he lost control of his 1999 Dodge and struck a guardrail and then left the roadway near the Flat Gap road tunnel.

The vehicle reportedly left the interstate and traveled over an embankment ejecting Smith before the vehicle became partially submerged in a creek beside Flat Gap Road.

The road was closed while crews worked to clear the scene. The Rockcastle County Coroner pronounced Smith dead at the scene.

On the scene were the Kentucky State Police Post 11 troopers and personnel, Rockcastle County EMS, Rockcastle County Sheriff's Deputies, the Mount Vernon Fire Department and the Rockcastle County Coroner's office.

Trooper Seth Whiles is leading the investigation into the incident.

Natural gas line may come soon

— Farmers Market in October

By: Mike French
Editor

Having a supply of natural gas in Rockcastle County is on the top of the priority list for members of the Rockcastle County Industrial Development Authority.

"This would be a huge, huge thing," said Chairman Corey Craig. "To have a gas pipeline in Crab Orchard, Brodhead, Mount Vernon, Renfro Valley and other places that would otherwise not have one, this could have extreme potential."

There is no deal yet but members of the board, RCIDA Executive Director Jeff VanHook and Rockcastle County Judge/Executive Howell Holbrook have been aggressively talking to "all the right people to get it done," according to VanHook.

RCIDA officials and RCID VERNON City Administrator Josh Bray have been in discussion with gas companies as well as several state officials in a grant-seeking process, to see that a gas pipeline does come through the county soon, according to Craig.

"This would make a tremendous difference in our new TIF District," said Craig. "Restaurants and other businesses would have one less excuse not to locate here."

When asked if a gas line through the county is "probable," VanHook said, "It is our top priority and we are aggressively approaching the project." Craig agreed, "We will get it done. We feel confident that this will happen in our county, and I hope soon."

The board met Wednesday morning after changing the meeting time last month but now plan to hold the October meeting on Tuesday, October 1 at 8:30 a.m. as a trial meeting time.

The board discussed many county issues during the meeting Wednesday, including the new Farmers Market building planned on Richmond Street.

VanHook said the $300,000 to $350,000 project is nearly funded now as he and others have already begun grant requests totaling $275,000.

Members of the board discussed the proposed building design and layout and VanHook said the project is expected to officially begin in October while actual construction will begin in March of 2020. He said the building should be complete by October of 2020.

Craig said he is enthusiastically promoting the building's use for 12 months a year. "We really hope the building can be used for educational purposes and many other uses when the farmer's market is not using the building," he said.

Board members also discussed the possibility of an access road between exit 62 and exit 59 in Rockcastle County. Craig said such a road would provide immeasurable benefit to the county.

VanHook and Holbrook said the project is "on a list of projects" that the state plans in the future and board members agreed that such an access road would be a benefit to the entire county.

Craig also reported to the board that the CDBG revolving loan fund has $257,000 left to be used by Microfoodery. Craig said the plant is moving ahead and should be able to produce product by the holiday season this year.

VanHook also told board members the Family Dollar in Livingston plans to be filled with laughter and good times throughout the weekend and organizers say this year may have been "the best ever" in many ways.

Mayor Jason Medley said a large crowd endured the heat to take part in the countless events and he was pleased to enjoy fellowship with so many Livingston residents as well as many who came from out of town.

Starting Friday night, the streets of Livingston were filled with gospel music and throughout the entire weekend, music could be heard throughout the town as popular bands from across the region entertained those who braved the sun.

Local Detention Center overcrowded

But not as bad as most

By: Mike French
Editor

While neighboring counties are running out of space in their jails, The Rockcastle County Detention Center seems to be keeping up with growth in inmate population...so far.

Nathan Carter, Rockcastle County Jailer, says the local jail population is always more than the detention center was designed to hold, but that the local jail is not as overcrowded as most surrounding county lockups.

In fact, just this week, officials in neighboring Madison County held a community wide event to gather ideas and suggestions to help with massive overcrowding there. And Laurel County is currently building an 800-bed facility, according to Carter.

In the local detention center, Carter says there are currently 123 inmates but only 73 beds.

"I hate that there are prisoner that have to lay on the floor," said Carter. "But that is the hand we are dealt."

Carter says those who have to sleep on the floor have mats and blankets but he still wishes there were more beds, or less inmates.

In fact, just last week, Carter began calling neighboring counties to see if he could move some of the local inmates there because of overcrowding. "But as usual, they are all over capacity right now and they couldn't take them either."

The local jail receives inmates from the state by housing state prisoners but of the 123 current inmates, only 61 are state prisoners.

As for increasing the size of the local facility, Carter says such ideas are only for the future. "It is a very complex procedure and many guidelines that must be followed in order to even have the DOC (Department Of Corrections) take part in adding or building more space."

The 73-bed limit is set by DOC requirements and Carter is not allowed by law to put more beds in the local facility. "In order to add more beds, you have to add more space," he said. "And unless you are looking at a large expansion the DOC won't even get involved."

So, while neighboring communities are apparently scrambling to find or build more space to increase bed limits, the Rockcastle County Detention Center will remain the same size for years to come, according to Carter.

As facilities in Kentucky continue to expand, those that are overcrowded will send their floor-bound inmates to those facilities as soon as they open, causing them to be filled as well.

"It doesn't matter how big your facility may be, you will fill it immediately and need more space," Carter said.

Jail overcrowding is a problem across the nation and Carter says he doesn't see the problem going away. "I sure don't see crime going down across the county or the state," he said. "There will always be a need for more space in jails."

Local school board passes tax increase

By: Mike French
Editor

The Rockcastle County Board of Education held a public hearing Thursday, August 29th to give the public a chance to express any concerns about a small tax rate increase.

However, no one from the community attended the hearing and school board members then convened a special called meeting to enact the increase.

The real estate tax rate was increased from 42 cents per $100 of assessed value, to 42.2 cents per $100.

On an assessed value of $100,000, the increase would equal about $2. However, over all, the increase will provide about $85,000 more to the annual budget.

The vote was held immediately after the public hearing and, with no opposition, the increase was approved unanimously.

The September regular meeting is scheduled for Tuesday, September 10 when Finance Director Jenny Sweet said she hoped to have the working budget ready to present to board members

Tractor Show

The Southeast Kentucky Antique Tractor Association Show will be held at the Brodhead Fairgrounds October 3, 4 and 5. All tractor enthusiasts are encouraged to attend this free event. The event is open to all vendors. Campsites are on a first come, first serve basis.

Twenty years ago

It was 20 years ago that Americans, as well as many Rockcastle Countians, became concerned that the changing of the Millennial from 1900s to 2000 would cause a nationwide computer crash. Known as the "Y2K Bug" fear struck many who believed computer systems would shut down across the nation.

Three ways to get kids motivated to move more (StatePoint) Getting regular physical activity helps children meet developmental milestones and promotes mental and physical wellness. However, forming this healthy habit works best when you get started early. To motivate your kids to move more, consider the following ideas:

- Go on an outing: At least some of the time, be sure to select active outings. This way, physical activity will become a natural part of your family's lifestyle. For example, go skating or rock climbing instead of to the movies. If you're going on a picnic, hike or bike to the picnic site and bring along frisbees, balls and other toys and games that keep people moving.

- Put on your dancing shoes: It's easy to get kids moving and grooving with fun dance games. Especially those that incorporate innovative and interactive tech such as the new VTech Kidi Star Dance. By wearing motion-activated bands, kids can learn 20 cool dance moves step-by-step by following the animated dance instructor. Once kids learn the moves, they can put them together and dance along to the included music. Color-changing lights flash along to the music to make kids feel like a star. Play four motion games or create music through movement by playing 14 different effects, including drums and magical fairy sounds. Give the second band to a friend and challenge them to a game or dance-off. Connect your own MP3 player or load songs using a microSD card to add more music so kids never get bored.

- Take evening walks: Instead of heading straight for the couch in the evenings, make a ritual of taking a short walk first. This is a great chance to chitchat, get some fresh air and even promote better sleep. Kids may not be able to travel too far at first, so start with a brief walk around the block. As they begin to build endurance, extend it a bit further or consider turning the ritual into a friendly race.

Physical activity is not only great for you, but it's also a lot of fun. By incorporating games and activities into evenings and weekends, parents can play an active role in getting kids motivated to move more.

How close is too close when it comes to living near your family (StatePoint) While you can't choose your family, you can choose how close you live to them. A new survey suggests some healthy boundaries between parents and in-laws make for a happier family relationship -- something to keep in mind when shopping for a home.

Fifty-seven percent of respondents in the survey from Ally Home, the direct-to-consumer mortgage arm of Ally Bank, say there should be at least some driving distance between where their parents and/or in-laws live and where they live. An even greater percentage of gen Z respondents (63 percent) -- and millennials (62 percent) -- felt some distance was important.

"We're deep into the home buying season, and we're seeing first-hand how excited consumers are to find and then be able to afford the home of their dreams," says Glenn Brunner, mortgage executive with Ally Home. "But as Ally Home goes through that home-buying journey with them, it's clear that there's more than just the house and yard that go into making a home the right fit. Buyers are thinking through things like the neighborhood, school system, access to good hospitals, and yes, just how near or far they prefer to be to family."

Other survey findings included:

- Call First Before Popping In: Thirty-seven percent of respondents agree family should not live close enough to just pop in and say hi. An even greater percentage of millennials -- 42 percent don't like the idea of the unannounced pop-in.

- Adults Need Their Own Space: Almost two-thirds of Americans say that while they love their adult children, they don't want them living with them. Millennials don't like how things are trending, either. They worry more than any other age group that at some point they will have their adult children, their parents or in-laws living with them.

- Proximity is a Top Stressor: The survey also presented respondents with a number of stress points and asked which ones ranked top when dealing with family. Thirty-eight percent of respondents named "living within five minutes of parents or in-laws" as their top stressor, out-ranking "cooking a complicated meal for a mother or mother-in-law" and "hosting family for the holidays."

"Much of a person's preference regarding location has to do with cultural norms, since extended families living together or nearby one another is common in certain cultures. But more often, having some physical distance between family can help create a healthy boundary. Ultimately, it's up to family members to be open and honest about their own boundaries and what makes them most comfortable," says William X. Kelly, a marriage and family therapist.

A good choice for a home is one that makes you happy. When shopping for a home, don't forget to take the family factor into consideration.

BULBS – Landscape With Them

In January 2016 we had benefit of an ElNino year, and that meant I successfully planted nearly a thousand tulip bulbs, plus some various other bulbs, in the middle of winter. But, the proper time to plant spring blooming bulbs such as tulips and daffodils and squill and hyacinths is actually November in USDA zone 6. Let's study up a bit, and see if bulb planting for a more lovely yard in the spring might work for you.

Once hot weather is over, but before the ground is frozen, is planting time for trees and large shrubs, and also for those bulbs that grow into narcissus or tulips.

Bulbs aren't cheap. (Unless you have a friend or relative digging up and dividing or discarding some and they offer you freebies.) So, a few bulbs placed here and yonder may be nicer than no bulbs at all, but some organization and planning would be advisable, so as not to waste time and effort and money; but, rather, use them wisely.

Many flowers that come from bulbs love deciduous shade. That means a woodland area can be all bloom, and get sunshine to the plants, before the trees leaf out. Tulips and iris are two that need more sun, but there are many kinds of flowering bulbs that will do well in a woody area or on the shady side of a house.

Deer love anything that grows in winter it seems.

'RCIDA'

He also said paperwork for the Marathon Station to be located adjacent to the Family Dollar Store is underway and "things should start moving ahead now very soon."

VanHook also discussed the ongoing lawsuit with Eagle Manufacturing and said the county is waiting to find out the actual value of the theft that the lawsuit is addressing before the suit can move ahead.

'Event'

There were several changes this year as organizers work to make the event better each year. "Everyone seemed to love all the changes this year and we are so pleased that everyone had such a great time," said Medley.

Visitors also had the chance to see some of the changes in the town itself as new sidewalks and improvements to building fronts as well as construction of the new Family Dollar Store were evidence of Livingston's growth and development.

In fact, guests seemed to enjoy the event so much this year that visitors were offering to help next year. "We already picked up some new volunteers to help us with next year's event," said Medley. "We start planning next year's Homecoming the day after this one is over."

The small town atmosphere continued throughout the weekend according to Medley. "There was no trouble at all," he said. "Police kept a close eye on everything making sure everyone was safe but there was no trouble anywhere in our fair town."

The event has become one of the more popular events throughout the county each year and Medley says he plans for next year to be just as good. "There is no other way to experience the Livingston Homecoming than to say it is just a special event."

Yards to Paradise

But, no, your daffodils and hyacinths will be safe. (Tulips: no, you can't have everything be deer resistant or mouse resistant, etc.)

Tulips and other spring blooming bulbs will get a bit ugly after blooming, but you can't mow them down until their leaves are brown or dead and the bulb is mature and waiting patiently in the ground to bloom again next year. (Cut off the foliage too soon, and there won't be many blooms the following year!)

So, you may want to plan some companion plantings. Groundcovers such as vinca minor or plumbago or mondo grass might work. And a plant such as hosta that comes up after most early bulbs have bloomed works well as a companion plant for tulips and daffodils and hyacinths.

You can plant in random groups for an informal look. Or, for a formal look, plant in organized beds or rows. Perhaps with other colors or sizes acting as a border, or a 'sandwich' of color. Monochromatic plantings make a bold statement, but the cottage garden can have whatever colors a person likes and still be attractive. Bulb mixtures may offer more blooms for the buck.

Plant some bulbs where you can see them. In winter you may not be outside much—if you can see them from the window of the house or your car you will appreciate them much more. (If you love cold weather, then, plant them wherever you'll bundle up in a coat and take a winter stroll.)

Let your bulbs multiply!

Two or three bulbs planted in a clump or "hill" will become ten or twenty in a few years, giving a bigger and brighter blooming. Don't disturb them very much. Instead, pick the best spots for the bulbs, and leave them be for a glorious spring show for many many years.

This short article isn't meant to cover all there is to know on the subject. Rather, it's to get your imagination going, which may lead to you dreaming of spring this fall. And, if you're so motivated, come up with a plan, buy the bulbs, and plant some this fall for lovely blooms at your place next year. Reserving bulbs early for fall planting will help assure you can find the right bulbs for your landscaping needs.

Thacker gets 252 total yards

Rockets best Rebels 41-33 for first win

The Rockcastle Rockets bounced back from a 40-0 loss last week at Somerset to even their record at 1-1 with a 41-33 home game win over the Casey County Rebels Friday night.

The Rockets first score of the game was set up by a blocked punt by junior Rylee DeLeon that gave the Rockets the ball on the Casey 13 yard line. Following gains by seniors Josh Thacker and Zach Taylor, quarterback Noah Parkey took it in for the score with almost eight minutes remaining in the first quarter. The point after kick failed.

On the Rocket kick-off, Casey County took the ball to the Rockets 35 yard line but failed to make the first down and the Rockets took over on their own 27. On the next play, at the 5:10 mark, Thacker took the ball 72 yards for the touchdown. A two point conversion by Taylor was good and the Rockets were up 14-0 at the end of the first quarter.

The Rebels were on the march in the second quarter with first and 10 on the Rockets 42 when sophomore Drew Mink picked off a Rebel pass to stop the drive. The Rockets then had to punt the ball away on their drive and Casey took over on their own 42 and, two plays later, were at the Rockets 43 with a first down. However, three incomplete Rebel passes later, and a high snap on the punt gave the Rockets the ball on Casey's 32. Four plays later, Parkey hit sophomore Landon Dillingham for a 19 yard touchdown pass. The extra point kick was good and the Rockets were up 21-0 with 4 minutes left in the first half.

The Rebels got their first score of the game on their next possession on a pass play to the Rockets 20 (with 1:52 left in the first half) and the Rebel runner took it in for the score. The extra point kick was blocked and it was 21-6.

The Rockets weren't done though. With 17 seconds left in the half, Taylor scampered in for the score. The extra point attempt was blocked and it was 27-6 at the half.

In the third quarter, a pass interference call against the Rockets helped set up the next Rebel score, a 32 yard touchdown pass. The extra point was good and it was 27-13 Rockets with 9:53 remaining in the third quarter.

The Rebels kick-off went out of bounds and the Rockets started their next possession from their own 35. On three carries, Thacker took the Rockets to the Casey County 25 and later picked up another first down on the Rebels six and, three plays later, Taylor scored at the 5 minute mark. Parkey ran for the two point conversion and the Rockets were back up 35-13.

An interception, late in the third quarter by the Rebels, set up their next score of the game when, with 11:04 remaining in the fourth quarter, the quarterback took the ball in from the four yard line for the TD and it was 35-20.

The Rebels scored twice more in the fourth quarter, one set up by a fumble recovery by the Rebels who scored on the next play from the Rockets 44. The extra point attempt was no good and it was 36-26.

The Rockets had to punt on their next possession and a personal foul was called against the Rockets for hitting the Rebel catching the kick after he had called a fair catch. Then a pass interference call against the Rockets gave the Rebels a first and 10 on the Rockets 39 and a pass play gave the Rebels their third score of the quarter at the 7:55 mark. This time, the extra point was good and Casey was within two at 35-33.

“Rockets”

The Rockets began their next possession on their own 38. On this possession, Taylor and Parkey each picked up a first down and Thacker got two before taking the ball into the end zone from the three with 2:09 left on the clock. The extra point attempt was blocked but the Rockets were back up 41-33 for the final score of the game.

Coach Scott Parkey said after the game that his team “played much more aggressively this week.” He went on to say, “The offensive line was much improved. Those guys opened up some nice running lanes for the backs. Josh Thacker had a really good game with the ball in his hands. We have to continue to improve on some of the details of our offense but overall, we like our progress to this point.”

The coach also commented on his defense, saying that the secondary played well. “The guys up front did a good job of hurrying the quarterback and forcing him to make throws earlier than he liked.”

Offensively, the team was led by senior Josh Thacker with 207 yards rushing in 16 carries and scored two touchdowns. Quarterback Noah Parkey, who was five for 10 in pass attempts for 69 yards, also rushed for 63 yards on 14 carries and scored one touchdown and one two point conversion. Senior Zach Taylor got 36 yards on 16 carries and scored two touchdowns.

Thacker also led his team in pass receptions, getting 45 yards on two catches; sophomore Landon Dillingham got one catch, a 19 yard touch-down pass, and senior Jacob Loudermilk caught two passes for five yards.

Junior Mitchell Buckner attempted three extra point kicks and converted one of them.

Defensively, Zach Taylor was credited with six total tackles, two solo; Rylee DeLeon and Matthew Chasteen got five total, including three solo for DeLeon and two solo for Chasteen. DeLeon was also credited with two defensive sacks and Chasteen and Isaiah Didelot got 1/2 defensive sack each. Didelot, along with Josh Thacker, Noah Reams and Christopher Mink, was credited with four total tackles, with Thacker’s all solo tackles.

Others credited with tackles were: Isaiah Dehart and Landon Dillingham, three each; Jacob Loudermilk and Trevor Todd, two each and Logan Brown and Landen Broaddus, one each.

Next week the Rockets will host the Wayne County Cardinals, who has “one of the best, if not the best running backs we will face all season,” according to Coach Parkey.

Parkey also said, “the crowd last week was great and we would love nothing more than to see The Rock packed again this week supporting this team.”

Kindness

It would be really sad to think we were so strict on the doctrine of Christ but missed Heaven because we didn't treat others with a Christlike attitude. Harmful attitudes and personality conflicts can cause as much harm to a congregation as error on matters of worship or the plan of salvation. If the world observes a mean attitude, by the one who professes Christianity, what influence for good can we have on the world, zero? To the church at Ephesus write, Ephesians 4:32 And be ye kind one to another, tender hearted, forgiving one another, even as God for Christ sakes hath forgiven you. This command that was given many years ago is still just as important and needed in the house of God as it was when it was penned, maybe even more.

To be the proper example of a Christian we must be kind. Others will be influenced when we are good to them. How many problems in congregations and homes could be avoided if men and women, boys and girls would labor to be kind one to another, as the Bible teaches Proverbs 19:22.

In our present society it seems that many are living on the edge, from broken homes, debt that is overwhelming, or the loss of a job, we never know exactly what, but we know that kindness from someone who really cares can make all the difference in the world. The desire of a man is kindness.

The definition of the word kind means benevolent or gracious. It means not harsh, not sharp, not bitter. It identifies one who is mild and pleasant in nature. Even if these traits were not ingrained in our hearts during our younger years, we can work to add those traits to our life, it will make our life so much richer.

No matter how many times we get burned for doing the right thing, we must never lose our desire to be kind and helpful to others. I know I appreciate the kindness of others, when things are not going right in my life it means a lot. It takes no more effort to be kind than it does to be mean.

Galatians 6:2 Bear ye one another's burdens and so fulfill the law of Christ. Our kindness doesn't always consist of a good deed or a large gift. Many times, all it takes is a kind word or a hug or just a beautiful smile can make all the difference in the world.

I cannot tell you how important it is that we all grow to be more kind in our life, on this earth especially if we are Christians. Just think how much better homes would be, schools would be, the workplace and also at the house of worship. Galatians 6:10 As we have therefore opportunity let us do good unto all men, especially unto them who are of the household of faith.

It is a shame when brothers and sisters in Christ treat each other with anger and are ready to fight or to kill. These shouldn't be in our society and they should never be in the house of God.

Thank you as always for reading this article. I pray as always your are well, and you are still counting your blessings. We would love you come and worship with us at the Chestnut Ridge Church of Christ, Mt. Vernon, Ky. If you would like to get in touch with someone all you have to do is call these numbers below.

Tiger Pause

Welcome back to all of our returning students and families. A special Brodhead welcome to all of our new students and their families joining us this school year. Brodhead Elementary has had a wonderful first month of the 2019-2020 school year.

Everyone at Brodhead considers it a privilege and a blessing to be able to work with the youth of the Brodhead community and we will never take for granted the trust you place in us to take care of your children while they are in our care.

Our rigorous curriculum and the continued implementation of the new standards makes it more important than ever for the school and home to continue to build a stronger partnership working together to make each and every child successful in their adventures.

We can't do it without you! Keys to Success - Be here early to be on time (Brodhead starts our breakfast program at 7:30 and students are starting morning work in their classroom at 7:50) - Set and follow a student routine (Set sleep patterns, travel arrangements to and from school, homework and practice schedules) - Keep up the communication (Feel free to contact Brodhead staff with any questions or concerns 758-8512).

Brodhead Elementary was honored to participate in "Hats Off to Abby on Friday, August 30th. With a $1 donation, students were able to wear a hat in honor Abby's memory. All proceeds will go to two scholarships awarded to one male student and one female student at Rockcastle County High School. Brodhead students were able to raise well over $100.00 for the event.

Brodhead Elementary School would like to take this time to thank a special visitor Dr. Callie Shaffer. Dr. Callie took time to share a message with our 1st-5th grade students during Monday Morning Meeting. Students became familiar walked away with information to understand how their bodies function when they become ill. Dr. Callie's time with our students will be put to good work as our students strive to keep themselves free from sickness by using the proactive tips that were shared. Thanks again to Dr. Callie Shaffer for sharing with our BES students.

Back to School brings time with friends. Students eating lunch from BES third grade are: Harrison Craig, Khloe Bussell, Laurel Lyons, Cierra Edington, Aiden Daugherty and Zander Bullock.

The Rockcastle Garden Club is donating a book to each of the county elementary schools to be used by teachers and students when talking and learning about gardening. The book titled We Are The Gardener's is written by Joanna Gains (of "Fixer Upper" fame on HGTV) and her children is a beautiful illustrated book that details how the family got interested in gardening and the many setbacks and rewards of gardening. Above Club member Tereasa Isaacs is shown presenting the book to Melissa Neeley, librarian at Brodhead Elementary School.

Chemical spill kills fish in Renfro Creek

No damage to drinking water

By: Mike French

Jaws and Jaws II: "Just when you thought it was safe to go back in the water."

Just as local residents heard from officials that the bad taste and odor in the drinking water in Mount Vernon had been addressed and would be eliminated, a chemical spill Monday, into Renfro Creek at the Mount Vernon Water Plant killing countless wildlife and turning the water white, caused some to wonder if local water troubles were over after all.

"I couldn't even drink my coffee. It was white and tasted terrible," said one caller to the Mount Vernon Signal office.

However, officials say the two subjects are in no way related.

"This incident has nothing to do with our lake or our drinking water," said Water Plant Supervisor Frank Baker. "Our lake is in great shape and this has no effect on it." One official said, "Our drinking water doesn't come from Renfro Creek."

According to officials, a company that the City of Mount Vernon hires to perform routine maintenance on the local water storage tanks, was cleaning the tanks Monday when the

Healthy Joe Expo

The annual Healthy Joe Expo Men's Health Fair will be held September 24 at 6 p.m. at Marcella's Farm to Fork Restaurant. There will be door prizes, a free meal and health education presentations. All Rockcastle County men are invited to attend the event with Dr. David Bullock as the keynote speaker.

Twenty years ago

Though many may believe methamphetamine is a newer problem, Twenty years ago in Rockcastle County, police busted a local methamphetamine lab and arrested two local residents for making the illegal drug.

Help Wanted

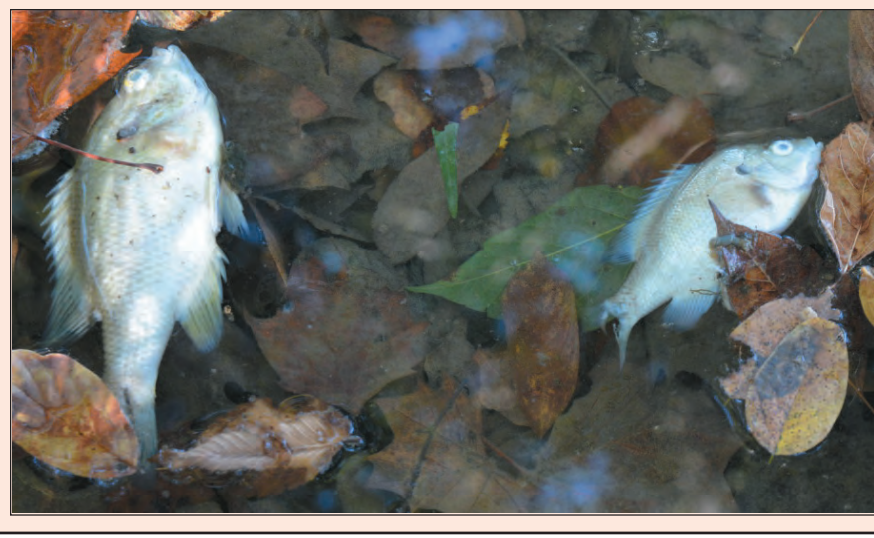

Officials at all Rockcastle County Fire Departments are still looking for volunteers. All training and equipment needed is provided. Though officials say there are enough firefighters to answer any call, those who volunteer now are working more hours than they should and more volunteers are needed to help lighten schedules.

Grand Finale

This season's Grand Finale at the Rockcastle Speedway will be held on September 21. There will be a 100-lap late-model finale with $2,000 to the winner.

The water in Renfro Creek turned white Monday and many fish were killed from a chemical spill at the Mount Vernon Water Plant. This caused concern by many about the local drinking water. However, officials say the spill was a chemical nontoxic to humans and that it did not enter the lake or the drinking water. Officials say the chemicals are being removed from the creek and there is no danger to anyone from the spill.

Superintendent announces retirement

By: Mike French
Editor

After serving the Rockcastle County School system for 29 years, Superintendent David Pensol announced his retirement during Tuesday regular monthly meeting.

Pensol presented a letter of his intended retirement, which will take affect on June, 30 of 2020, early so that the board would have ample time to choose his replacement.

Throughout the meeting, board members and department heads voiced their regret that Pensol will be leaving the school system and some even asked him to reconsider his retirement "for the good of the kids."

But, Pensol said he has made his decision and gave this much notice of his plans so that he can help prepare the next superintendent to continue the district's attitude of "kids first."

"Finding the right person for this job is a very long and tedious process," said Pensol. "I want to go ahead and start that process now so that the new superintendent will have time to be caught up on everything going on within the school system and be better able to do what's right for the kids."

According to Pensol, changes throughout the school system are constant and he hopes his replacement will be fully informed and up-to-date about all those changes before he takes office. "The last thing I want is for someone to take on this role and not be fully aware of what we have gone through, where we are now and where we are headed as a school system," Pensol said. "The new superintendent must be fully aware of everything we fight through to keep the kids first in Rockcastle County."

Pensol said budget cuts are one of the biggest obstacles the board and superintendent will face. "Declining funding is a constant challenge and there will have to be some painful conversations about how to create a budget that keeps kids first and maintains the services Rockcastle County Schools provide," he said.

Board members discussed the process of finding a new superintendent and plans to advertise the

Brodhead to receive nearly half million in FEMA grants

Alcohol tax takes effect

By: Mike French
Editor

The Brodhead City Commission held their regular monthly meeting Monday evening and proceeded to handle all the city's business in 32 minutes.

Among the items discussed was the $470,000 in mitigation money that will be coming to Brodhead through FEMA (Federal Emergency Management Agency), according to Brodhead Emergency Management Coordinator Brian Bussell. Bussell had submitted requests for grants to help with seven projects that are needed due to flooding in the past two years. Two of those were recently approved he said.

One of the grants

($400,000) will provide funds for a new lift station in the city of Brodhead that is expected to keep flood waters down dramatically. The other $70,000 grant will be used to restructure the design of Church Street and Silver Street so that flood waters will not cause damage in the future.

The City of Brodhead must provide 13% of the funding but, according to City Commissioner Brian Bullock, that amount can be easily covered with in-kind work. "We need to keep close track of everything we do in helping get this done," said Bullock. "It will add up really quickly and will be our 13%."

Commissioner John Burton agreed the grants will be a help to the city of Brodhead. "This is huge," said Burton. "It's a big deal that we are getting this work done through FEMA."

School budget presented

On her first night as Rockcastle County School Board member, Misty Lakes heard the presentation of the working budget, for the 2019-20 fiscal year, during Tuesday's regular monthly meeting.

Though many items were discussed, the focus of conversation was the budget. And, as in most recent years, that conversation included declining funding, according to Jenny Sweet, Rockcastle County Schools Finance Director.

Sweet announced a total expected revenue budget of $35,318,153.88 which she says is about $400,000 less than last year. The general fund budget is $27,880,555.

Superintendent David Pensol said he and Sweet have worked very closely compiling the working budget and were forced to make some changes due to declining grants. "Everyone should be aware that over the years we have cut and cut and cut and cut in our top priority," he said. "But we have basically run out of places to cut and there will be some difficult conversations coming very soon."

Pensol did not elaborate on where more cuts may need to be made but he said "we have been able so far to hold staffing levels and instructional services."

Sweet agreed that student instruction is by far the focus of this budget. "We should be very proud that our budget is focused on the students exactly where it

I've done it again. I went to a family grave yard. I saw a stone that said this lady passed away in 1853.

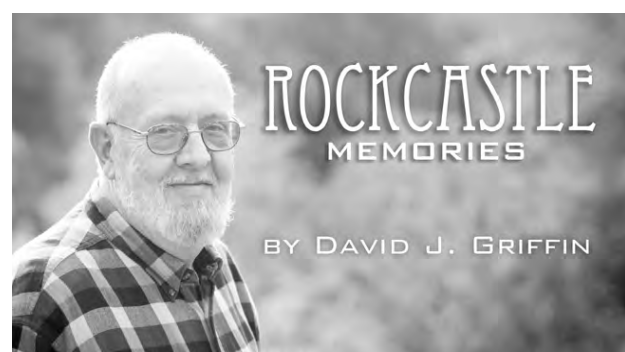

Well, that meant I had to just sit there on the ground in front of old Weitha French (whom I had never heard of) and ponder. It's a curse. I can't help it. I just can't seem to make myself not think about what their life must have been like in 1853.

I had the chance to ask mom about this person and she wasn't too sure who they were either but had heard the name from my dad before he died. Any personal memory of old Weitha is gone now.

There is no one on the earth who knew her personally and can tell of her little habit of clicking her tongue or that she liked to smoke cigars, or whatever her character may have been like.

My sons and I stood there and looked down at the spot where she had been placed. It was right beside a huge tree that may have been there when Weitha was buried. It looked nearly 200 years old but it may not have

I'm not supposed to eat cereal. A visit to the fruit stand is limited to fresh strawberries and blue berries. I can eat all the meat I want as long as it is not accompanied with potatoes.

“Aces”

I know that someone who must have been heart-broken, stood there on that hill on that cold, November day in 1853 and looked out over that valley after they put Weitha in the ground.

In that amount of time, a family could have built a home there across the road and it would be gone without a trace by now. But that would have changed the landscape some.

Every person Weitha ever met is gone now and no one can tell her story.

Coincidentally, my boys and I talked for a long time that day about a couple of rather serious, personal problems we have in life. That led into talking about Weitha and how she must have had similar problems and worries 170 years ago.

I know I write about this kind of thing a lot. Perhaps I am a little morbid. But I have always been interested in days gone by and I can't help but imagine what life must have been like for people. Especially people who were part of the line that created me and my children.

There are such stories in every life that are so easily forgotten.

I couldn't sleep and sat up at 2 a.m. and watched a documentary on David Cassidy the other night and it told every tiny detail of his entire life. Even little things that were unimportant to my thinking but must have been important to him.

I wish every gravestone had a button one could push and a screen would roll out and show a documentary of their life.

Not just the rich, rock stars of the world. But also the young, vibrant, laughing life of a girl in Red Lick, Kentucky who must have had a purpose too.

Mom has shared a story of being a very young girl when she fell out of a moving car. She was apparently very badly hurt and some even wondered if she would make it.

It's a horrifying story and must have been a huge thing in the family that was talked about for years.

But now, many who knew details of that incident are gone or have fading memories and I know that someday, someone will see her stone and will have no idea such a major event ever occurred.

Will my grandchild tell her grandchildren of their great-great-great grandmother falling out of a car in 1945? I doubt it. But it mattered.

Walking through a graveyard always makes me ponder about such things.

What kind of impact must one have before people remember the little things?

Elvis, David Cassidy, Hitler, Charles Manson, and others, will always be remembered.

But whatever Weitha did, is long forgotten.. I and my sons stood over Weitha for a long time and quietly thought about the day she was laid to rest there on that quiet hill. How many attended? What songs were sung? What was the preacher's message?

Scientists say 105 billion people have been born and have died since Adam and Eve. There are seven billion alive right now.

Each and everyone of them was born for a reason. Lived for a reason. Died for a reason. And will meet again for a reason.

For whatever her part was in the overall scheme of things, for what ever role she played in the human existence, thank you Weitha French.

school days at Mt. Vernon High School (MVHS) very much. Those years included 1959 through 1962, when I graduated, and then into the middle 60s while I was attending college. After lengthy consideration, I selected 1963 as my choice.

Even though tragic events marked some of that year in the United States (such as the assassination of President John F. Kennedy), the details of my recollections will revolve around my personal (and pleasant) memories of that year. Reflections on tragedy will wait for another day.

The event that changed my life is common for anyone who attended college: my enrollment as a student at the University of Kentucky (UK), which occurred in my case as soon as I graduated from MVHS. I didn't even wait for the fall semester to begin.

I had never lived anywhere outside of Rockcastle County before my move to Lexington. Being on my own as a UK student was a huge step in my life. For the first time, it was up to me to decide when I would go to bed, get up, what I was going to eat, and where I would spend my leisure time. I loved the freedom to make my own choices. I also loved my classes at UK. I discovered that my math and science background was sound and I could excel in those classes, which eventually lead to a degree in chemistry.

Another outstanding memory of 1963 was the purchase of my first new automobile. My grandfather (Pop) assisted me with ordering a 1963 Chevy Impala Super Sport. Pop and I placed the order, and I had to wait for several weeks before my new car was delivered. I will never forget Pop calling me at UK, saying my new car had arrived. The Saturday that he and I picked up that new sporty ride will always stand out in my mind. My friends at UK were very excited because we now had a new set of wheels in which to discover Fayette County and beyond.

During 1963, the Postal Service introduced zip codes in the United States. It was strange to me that every address in America had to have a five digit number attached to the address. I think that I remember it clearly because it seemed to take forever to get accustomed to this postal change. After all, it could require an extra step in mailing anything. You needed to know the zip code!

I also remember that two of my favorite movies were released in 1963. Alfred Hitchcock's The Birds and the saga of Cleopatra opened to standing room crowds. I saw them both in theaters when they opened. My reaction to The Birds was a fairly typical one: I thought it was one of the most frightening movies I had ever seen, or would ever see, on the big screen.

And, of course, there was a substantially significant rock-and-roll event that occurred in December of 1963. Capitol Records released the Beatles' "I Want to Hold Your Hand," with "I Saw Her Standing There" on the B-side of the 45 RPM. That record sold over 250,000 copies in the US in three days. The Beatles began their rise in America with that release and their appearance within months on the Ed Sullivan Show.

Several other memorable things also happened in 1963, such as: the introduction of the Lava Lamp, the first-ever push-button telephone, and Tab, Coke's first bottled diet drink.

These are the events of 1963 which stood out to a blooming adolescent. It was an exciting time to be a 19-year-old boy in America.

I'm encouraged to eat all the eggs, bacon and sausage I want, as long as it doesn't come with biscuits and/or gravy.

To make a long story short, a list of the stuff I'm not allowed to eat is at least a dozen times longer than the meager fare on which I'm supposed to subsist.

Actually, the diet restrictions are supposed to be enforced with insulin as well as the pill-form medication I'm currently using. The big reason I need to get off insulin has to do with the fact that somebody, besides myself, has to administer the shots and blood tests I need half a dozen times a day.

For instance, blood sticks on the fingers of my left hand leave purple bruises. The docs have no idea why that happens but it's probably related to a couple of strokes I had a few years back. I have almost no use of that hand and no way to use it to do blood tests on my right hand.

I could probably manage to use my right hand to administer insulin shots on my belly, but Mr. Parkinson often has that hand shaking so badly that the needle might easily end up in my forehead instead of somewhere on my belly.

I have no aversion to needles or the sight of blood. Both the shots and the blood sticks are painless and scarcely more than a nuisance. The problem is that they have to be done on time and somebody else has to do them.

Mamaw's Kitchen

NUTMEG SAUCE

When I told Wayne about my cookbook, his first response was about this recipe. He couldn't wait to try it again. Many a Rook game was interrupted so we could eat a piece of cake with this sauce covering it. As far back as I can remember, Mamaw and my aunts would make this sauce, but the recipe was not written down. None of my aunts or cousins now can remember the exact ingredients, so I have had to experiment with the bits and pieces that they do remember. I'm not complaining, as I have had some very tasteful results. The following recipe is what I remember this sauce tasting like.

1/2 cup sugar
2 tablespoons flour
Dash of salt
1 cup boiling water
1/2 cup milk
1 tablespoon butter
1 teaspoon nutmeg
Mix sugar, flour, and salt. Add water slowly, mixing well, and cook over low heat for three minutes, whisking or stirring constantly, until thickened. Stir in milk and bring back to a boil. That should take about 2 minutes. Remove from heat and add butter and nutmeg. Stir until butter melts. Serve warm. Spoon over yellow or white cake from a mix.

PEACH SAUCE
1 can (14 ounce) sliced peaches, in juice
1/3 cup packed brown sugar
1 tablespoon cornstarch
4 tablespoons butter
Drain peaches. Measure juice and add enough water to make 1 and 3/4 cups liquid. Place in medium saucepan along with brown sugar. Stir. Place cornstarch in small bowl, add 1/4 cup water and stir to dissolve. Add to peaches. With heat on medium high, cook until thickened, stirring constantly to avoid lumps. Remove from heat and add butter. Stir until melted. Serve warm as a topping for pancakes, French toast, waffles, or plain cake.

CHOCOLATE SAUCE
1 can Eagle Brand Milk
1 stick butter or margarine
1 can Hershey's chocolate syrup
Mix all together in medium pan. Let come to boil, but do not boil. Set aside and let cool a little. It thickens as it cools.

Yards to Paradise

By Max Phelps
Using Rhododendron and Azaleas

March to June, these lovely landscape plants can brighten your yard with glorious blossoms; and since most are evergreen and lovely all year, they can be a good contributor to your piece of paradise in all seasons.

To begin this topic, let's clear up a little confusion. All azaleas are rhododendrons. But not all rhododendrons are azaleas. The family of rhododendron is a varied one, with over 1000 species, mostly in Asia, but several in Europe and North America.

Rhododendron are in the heath family, ericaceae, as are hollies, pieris, heather, penkianthus, laurels, cranberries and blueberries. They generally require good drainage, with acidic and moist soils high in organic matter. Light shade is preferred, foliage of most may be damaged in full sun, and plants do not bloom well and grow leggy in deep shade.

Azaleas and rhododendron lend themselves well to the native, forested look in a landscape. Though a few varieties of azaleas can be sheared like a boxwood, most perform best when left alone except for removing stray or diseased branches. A few cultivars, such as Gumpo white, will keep a nice tight appearance with little care.

Most are evergreen, but there are deciduous azaleas. In the United States we have several deciduous natives from Georgia to Maine. Some azaleas and rhododendron can be grown anywhere from semi-tropical Florida to Northern Canada. Some rhododendron are native to high in the Himalayan mountains where they are snow-covered much of the year. The wild ones growing in Kentucky and throughout Appalachia are the ones I grew up loving as a youngster. Today we have many crosses and hybrids from breeders and nurserymen from around the world. There should be a rhododendron for just about anyone; just pick the right plant for the right climate and spot.

Most rhododendron and azaleas have fine fibrous roots that are shallow and spread no farther than the limbs drip line, and can be transplanted fairly easily. (Large, mature plants may be more challenging, and those growing in the woods will have tree roots commingled with them, making the digging of grown specimen plants from the wild almost impossible.)

When designing a front yard or foundation planting, use discretion with rhododendron, and try to color-coordinate them. In a naturalized woody planting or in a cottage garden, it would be fine to plant whichever you fancy in a random manner.

The broad-leaved evergreen rhodies contribute not just blossoms, but during seasons when green leaves are rare, they help ward away the winter blues. Landscaping with these plants, from the small azaleas to the very large rosebay rhododendron of the mountains, adds a natural beauty that well-sheared boxwoods just can't.

A drive through West

Virginia or along the Blue Ridge Parkway in Virginia or North Carolina in June (some years also July) will reveal what these plants can look like in their native setting. Roan Mountain in Tennessee or along the Nantahala River in Western North Carolina are places I've admired the rosebay and Catawba rhododendron in their native habitat.

I've planted quite a few of these plants for my landscape customers over the years. Rhododendron and azaleas may be a little more difficult than many plants, but I generally have had good success with them and heartily recommend the homeowner try a few. Especially in a shady nook.

For additional reference material on rhododendrons and their culture, I suggest the interested reader go to rhododendron.org which is the official website of The American Rhododendron Society.

The author, Max Phelps, is a landscaper specializing in watergardens.

Matthew Chasteen and Zach Taylor bring down a Cardinal during the Rockets' loss to Wayne County Friday night. Chasteen led all defense with 16 tackles - eight solo and eight assists. Taylor was next with eight tackles - four solo and four assists.

Landon Dillingham goes up high for a catch on the first play from scrimmage for the Rockets in their loss to Wayne County Friday night. Dillingham caught three passes for 34 yards on the night.

Rockets lose to Wayne Co. Cardinals 62-27

The Rockcastle Rockets proved to be no match for the Wayne County Cardinals last Friday night as the Cardinals wound up with the big win 62-27.

The Rockets actually drew first blood, helped out by a pass interference call on the Cardinals which gave the Rockets a 1-10 on Wayne's 18 yard line. Four plays later, on a 4th and 12, quarterback Noah Parkey hit senior Jacob Loudermilk in the end zone for the touchdown. Junior Matthew Buckner's extra point attempt was good and the Rockets were up 7-0 at the 9:26 mark of the first quarter.

However, it only took the Cardinals two plays and 48 seconds to answer with a pass play to the Rockets 27 which the receiver took in for the score. The extra point kick was good and it was knotted at 7 all.

The Rockets had to punt the ball away on their next possession and Wayne took over on their own 35 and, following a first down to the Rockets' 41, the Cardinals scored again on fourth down and 10 on a pass play with almost five minutes left on the first quarter clock. The extra point kick was good and Wayne was up 14-7.

The Rockets picked up a first down on their next possession on a long run by Parkey to Wayne's 29; however, a holding penalty against the Rockets and two incomplete passes gave Wayne the ball on downs on their own 40.

The Wayne Co. runner got loose for a long gain on the first play but it was called back because of a holding call. Wayne was at the Rockets' 25 at the end of the first quarter and, two plays into the second quarter the Cardinals scored, making it 21-7.

The Rockets had to punt the ball away on their next possession and Wayne returned it to the Rockets 25 and, three plays later, scored their fourth touchdown of the night making the score 28-7 and that was the score at the end of the first half.

The Rockets had to kick off to begin the second half and Wayne County started from their own 41 yard line. A pass play gave Wayne the ball on the Rockets 42 and, three plays later, a 37 yard pass play accounted for the Cardinals fifth score of the game. The extra point failed and but the Cardinals were up 34-7.

The Rockets scored on their next possession, following big pick-ups by senior Josh Thacker, a complete pass to Drew Mink and a pass interference call against Wayne which put the ball on Wayne's 25 with a 1-10. Two plays later, Parkey went in for the score and later also for the two point conversion making it 34-15.

But, once again, Wayne immediately scored again to make the score 41-15.

On their next possession, the Rockets picked up five first downs behind some good running by senior Zach Taylor and two penalty flags against the Cardinals before Thacker went over for the score from the three. The two point attempt was no good and it was 41-21 Wayne Co. at the end of the third quarter.

But, once again, the Cardinals quickly retaliated, going 67 yards for the score on the second play of the fourth quarter to make it 48-21.

After the Rockets had to punt on their next possession, the Cardinals took over on their own 36 and four plays later scored again to make it 55-21.

At the 2:49 mark of the fourth quarter, Taylor went in from the three for the Rockets last score of the game to make it 55-27.

The Cardinals weren't through however. With 54-4 seconds on the clock, they scored once again, on a 70 yard run, for the final 62-27.

The Rockets picked up 235 rushing yards in the game but Wayne got 340 and Wayne also won the passing game, picking up 149 yards to the Rockets 82.

Quarterback Noah Parkey took rushing honors for his team with 132 on 10 carries and scored one touchdown and a two point conversion; Thacker got 55 yards on 21 carries with one touchdown; Taylor gained 42 yards in seven attempts and scored one touchdown and Christopher Mink and Trevor Todd got three yards each on two carries to round out the rushing yardage.

Parkey was 8 for 22 in passing with 82 net yards and one touchdown pass to Jacob Loudermilk. Loudermilk led in pass receptions with three for 43 yards; sophomore Landon Dillingham also caught three passes for 34 yards and picked off the only Rocket interception of the game. Mink caught one pass for four yards and Taylor caught one pass for one

Defensively, the Rockets were led by sophomore Matthew Chasteen with 16 tackles, eight solo and eight assists; Taylor got eight tackles, four solo; sophomore Landen Broadus, Mink and Dillingham were all credited with three tackles, all of Mink's were solo, juniors Rylee DeLeon and Isaiah Didelot each got two tackles, both solos for Didelot and sophomore Isaiah Dehart and seniors Blaine Rumsey, Trevor Todd and Noah Reams all got one tackle, Rumsey's and Dehart's were solos.

The Rockets are idle this week and will travel to Adair county the following Friday night.

“Spill”

chemical involved somehow leaked into the Renfro Valley Creek.

The chemical, an aluminum-based polymer that is used in the process of purifying drinking water before it is in contact with the carbon filters, leaked into the local creek turning the creek almost cake white.

The biggest negative affect of the chemical is that it also kills any fish it comes in contact with by adhering to its gills causing suffocation.

Immediately after the spill was discovered, local officials contacted the EPA, Kentucky Division of Water and the Fish and Wildlife Department who sent engineers to assess the situation.

Officials from each agency agreed that the polymer leak has created no threat to humans and is a nontoxic material.

But, the week after a groundbreaking ceremony to celebrate the purity of local drinking water, local citizens saw the creek near the water plant flowing white with dead fish along the edges of the banks causing many local citizens to question the quality of the local drinking water.

According to officials with the Environmental Protection Agency, the Kentucky Fish and Wildlife and the City of Mount Vernon water plant, the chemical is nontoxic to humans and never entered drinking water.

One official said “I can’t stress enough that this is not a big deal.”

Officials mobilized Tuesday morning at the creek behind the Renfro Valley Camp Ground with water pumps to remove all of the chemical from the creek and blow it out into the field.

Officials said the polymer is not dangerous and will be dispersed throughout the field behind the campground. The chemical will then soak into the ground, officials say, which provides a natural filtering system.

The routine maintenance procedure had been performed many times in the past, and according to one city official, “we have never had this much of it leak into the creek before.”

Technically, the polymer is pumped into the drinking water during every routine maintenance, causing all microbes and algae as well as other contaminants, to bind together, making them easier to be filtered out through the carbon filtering system.

Officials say they expect the creek to be back to normal within a few days and no permanent damage was done and that drinking water was in no way affected by the spill.

Baker says the lack of rain recently made the situation look worse than it was since water is not flowing in the creek and the white substance is staying there.

But Baker says there is no danger to anyone or anything, except the fish, in direct contact with the substance. “We actually put this chemical in the drinking water before it is sent to the carbon filter anyway,” he said. “Not this much of it, but it is harmless.”

Baker said over 1,000 gallons of the substance spilled but officials don’t know an exact amount yet.

“Within a few days everything will be back to normal and the polymer will be properly dispersed,” said Baker.

According to officials with the water plant, it is indeed safe to go back in the water in Mount Vernon.

Commissioners, agreed that Bussell should be recognized for “outstanding commitment” to the community since he has apparently worked diligently on the grant applications.

Officials say Bussell has made countless trips and phone calls as well as worked around the clock on many occasions to see that Brodhead received these and other grants.

Work is expected to begin late this year on the projects.

The commissioners also held their second reading of the 5% alcohol regulatory fee which imposes a 5% tax on the sale of all alcoholic beverages within the city of Brodhead.

The ordinance passed unanimously.

There was also considerable discussion about the newly proposed 15 miles per hour speed limit on city streets. Commission members had agreed to make all interior street speed limits 15 mph at last month’s meeting.

However, Mayor Walter Cash suggested the city change that ordinance to 20 mph. “I have received more complaints about setting the speed limit at 15 mph than I have anything we have done in Brodhead,” said Cash.

After some discussion, the commissioners voted to set the limit at 20 mph with Burton and Bullock abstaining from the vote and Commissioner Dallas Todd voting for 15 mph. Mayor Cash and Commissioner Ricky Kirby voted for 20 mph.

Police Chief Travis Davis told the commissioners that the vote would make no difference to him because if the speed limit is set at 20 mph, he will be much less lenient about giving speeding tickets than he would have been if the speed limit were 15 mph.

“I was going to let people drive 20 to 21 without a ticket if the speed limit was set at 15 mph,” said Davis. “But if you set the limit at 20, I will just be a lot less generous.”

Bullock said he doesn’t think a speed limit will help matters and “I am a firm believer that speed humps (not speed bumps) are in our future here in Brodhead,” he said.

Davis reported to the commissioners that his department now has two new, high-tech radar guns that will help keep speeds down in the area. The new equipment was purchased through donations to the department, he said.

Commissioners then voted to enter closed session to discuss state funding and other issues, according to Burton.

The next meeting is scheduled for October 7 at 7 p.m. position in December or January.

“There will be countless work sessions and many other steps to go through to find the right person,” said Board Chairman Angela Stallworth-Mink. “Finding someone who truly loves the kids like David does is our task at hand and it is a very difficult task indeed.”

Mink, along with other board members, expressed their concern that the new superintendent continue the “passion for each student” that Pensol has demonstrated.

Pensol started his career as a teacher but three years later became principal of Roundstone Elementary School where he served for nine years. After his stint as principal, Pensol took the position of District Instructional Supervisor for another nine years and then was named Rockcastle County School District Superintendent in May of 2012.

Mink said she is concerned about locating a replacement that will be as focused as Pensol. “I work with David closely and I know he loves every kid. That’s what we have to find,” she said. “Someone who loves the kids. That is out job.”

Pensol said he is ready for the move. “I am ready for retirement,” he said. “I will miss it in many ways, but it’s just time.”

The 29-year veteran of the local school system said he is glad to have been part of the local system.

“Budget”

should be,” she said.

According to the budget, Sweet is correct. In fact, of the listed expenditures, “student instruction costs” are the largest expenditure at $16,474,049. The second biggest expense is “Plant Operations” which includes electric, water, custodians and the general operations of each building, which is set at $2,431,558.

Sweet went over several details of the presented budget and discussed “declining funding” in several categories. “SEEK funding is up slightly per student but our enrollment is lower so it is not noticeable in our district,” she said. “but the decline in grant allocations are evident throughout the budget.”

Pensol said even through the cuts, he is pleased with the budget this year. “We aren’t broke,” he said. “We are doing okay and we have money. But the declining funding is going to force difficult conversations and this board should be aware that they are coming if the decline continues.”

Student transportation is listed at $1,906,987 while student support is listed at $1,624,182.

According to the budget, the school system is well ahead of most systems in the contingency fund. This fund is required by the Kentucky Department of Education and must be at least 2% of the General Fund budget which is $27,880,555. This means the contingency fund must be at least $616,000. However, the Rockcastle County School system has over $1.9 million in the fund. “We continue to do well in our contingency fund and have much more than required in the budget for that,” said Sweet.

The board unanimously approved the working budget.

The board also heard the Superintendent’s report. It is as follows:

Introducing Megan Taylor Pittman, APRN

Megan Taylor Pittman, APRN

Rockcastle Pediatrics and Adolescents is pleased to welcome Megan Taylor Pittman, APRN to their staff.

A native of Brodhead, Megan earned her bachelor of science degree in nursing from Eastern Kentucky University and her master’s degree in family nurse practitioner studies from Frontier Nursing University. She says that she has a passion for caring for children that is rooted in her personal experience when she was diagnosed with lymphoma as a child. “I experienced first-hand, how the providers at my oncology clinic changed the lives of not only my family and me, but all the other sick children there. This put a desire in my heart to serve kids.”

When managing her patients’ care, Megan focuses on building a solid and trusting relationship with her patient and their parents or care givers. She finds great joy when she is able to witness kids’ barriers come down when they begin to trust her and know she is there to help them feel better.

DAR promotes Constitution Week

Celebrate the foundation of America

There are two documents of paramount importance to American history: The Declaration of Independence, which forged our national identity, and the United States Constitution, which set forth the framework for the federal government that is still in use today.

While Independence Day is a beloved national holiday, fewer people know about Constitution Week, an annual commemoration of the living document that upholds and protects the freedoms central to our American way of life. This year, the annual celebration begins September 17, 2019.

The Daughters of the American Revolution (DAR) initiated the observance in 1955, when the organization petitioned the U.S. Congress to dedicate September 17-23 of each year to the commemoration of Constitution Week.

Congress adopted the resolution, and on August 2, 1956, President Dwight D. Eisenhower signed it into Public Law #915. The celebration's goals are threefold: to encourage the study of the historical events that led to the framing of the Constitution in September 1787; to inform people that the Constitution is the basis of America's great heritage and the foundation of our way of life; and to emphasize U.S. citizens' responsibility to protect, defend and preserve the Constitution.

DAR has been the foremost advocate for the awareness, promotion and celebration of Constitution Week.

This annual observance provides innumerable opportunities for educational initiatives and community outreach, two mission areas of crucial importance to the National Society's work.

By fostering knowledge of and appreciation for the Constitution and the inalienable rights it affords to all Americans, DAR helps to keep alive the memory of the men and women who secured our nation's independence, whose bravery and sacrifice made possible the liberties we enjoy today.

"The framers created a Constitution that translated into law the ideals upon which our nation was built," said DAR President General Denise Doring VanBuren. "Their vision was so forward thinking that their words still guide us today. No American history education can be complete without a thorough understanding of the impact the Constitution has had on the lives of American citizens past and present."

One of the largest patriotic women's organizations in the world, DAR has more than 185,000 members in approximately 3,000 chapters across the country and even in numerous foreign countries.

DAR strives to promote historic preservation, education and patriotism via commemorative events, scholarships and educational initiatives, citizenship programs, service to veterans, meaningful community service, and more. For additional information about DAR and its programs, visit www.dar.org.

Kelsey Ladd, MD

Rockcastle Regional is pleased to welcome Psychiatrist Dr. Kelsey Ladd who is joining our physician team at Rockcastle Family Wellness.

Dr. Ladd earned her medical degree from the University of Kentucky College of Medicine in 2014 and completed her residency in psychiatry from the University of Kentucky.

"Psychiatry encompasses the aspects of medicine that I enjoyed most," said Dr. Ladd. "It's incredibly rewarding to develop relationships with patients over time and to then see them get better. My goal is to provide my patients the opportunity to talk about some of their most sensitive issues in a sympathetic and unrushed setting."

She says that her philosophy on patient care is the same she applies to her personal life: Do unto others as you would have done unto you. "I approach every patient as I hope someone would my family member or loved one. How would I want someone to care for my mother, grandfather, husband, or child? My goal is to provide the best care in a compassionate, patient, and empathetic manner."

Dr. Ladd says she feels incredibly fortunate to have the opportunity to serve the people in Rockcastle and the surrounding communities. "I look forward to providing a crucial service that, until now, has not been available. I am very excited to get to know the members of this warm, friendly, and proud community."

Take control of your life TODAY!

This Place Called Heaven

Have you ever thought about how little Christians talk about Heaven, a place where we are all supposed to be going? We read about it, we teach and preach about it. We preach there is a Heaven to gain and a hell to shun, but let a loved one leave this life that is a Christian, and we carry on sometimes like our world has come to an end, it is sad and we miss those who have left this life, but we should be able to take comfort in those words from Heaven, Revelations 14:13 Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord from henceforth. They may rest from their labors and their works do follow them. We need to think and talk about Heaven more, so we don't get so attached to this old world.

Is Heaven a state of mind, a dream, an invention of preachers? No Heaven is a real place, built by God and prepared by Jesus Hebrews 11:10 For he waited for the city which has foundations, whose builder and maker is God. John tells us in John 14:1-4 there are many mansions, He is preparing this place today and He said if I prepare this place I will come again and receive you unto myself, that where I am you can be there also. Heaven is a real place it is as real as the church of Christ. Colossians 1:5 For the hope, which is laid up for you in Heaven, where of ye heard before in the word of the truth of the gospel. Heaven is the place where our treasures are laid up, Matthew 6:19-21.

We also find where John writes in the book of Revelation 21:25 Heaven is a place where there is no night, no longer will we fear darkness or concerned about electric bills, because God is the light. But most importantly to us humans, Heaven is a place of eternal happiness because God is there. What a great joy to finally receive the reward of a home with Jesus.

In Heaven is going to be a place of the living. We find in Revelation 21:3-4 There shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain, for the former things are passed away. Yes, there really is a place called Heaven.

Many ask where is Heaven? Isaiah 14:13-14 I will ascend into Heaven. I will exalt my throne above the stars of God. I will ascend above the heights of the clouds I will be like the most high. Heaven is far beyond the stars in the sky, it is in a place all to itself where man cannot see neither can he find with any physical instrument.

People want to know how big is Heaven? Revelation 21:16 The Bible tells us it is 12,000 furlongs, high wide and long. To our way of thinking that is about 1500 miles square. Whether these are exact numbers, or John's way of telling us, Heaven is big enough for all who want to go there. Jesus Matthew 11:28 Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy laden and I will give you rest. Heaven is a prepared place for a prepared people. Only those who submit to the saving power of the gospel will enter through those pearly gates, by believing that Jesus Christ is the Son of God, repenting of ones sins, confessing openly with the mouth that we believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God, and then be baptized for the remission of our sins. Thank you as always for reading this article. I hope and pray that you count your blessings everyday and that you find the time to search the scriptures daily and pray every day, we are a blessed people in this country and we have many reasons to give thanks.

Home destroyed by fire

The Mount Vernon, Brodhead and Livingston Fire Departments, along with the Mount Vernon Police Department, the Kentucky State police and the Rockcastle County Sheriff's office, responded to this house fire on South Wilderness Road Tuesday afternoon. When first responders reached the scene, the home was engulfed in flames and officials made several trips bringing extra water to extinguish the blaze. Emergency crews worked for several hours fighting the fire to keep the flames from reaching the nearby wooded area behind the home. Officials are not certain about the cause of the fire at this time. No one was reported injured from the blaze. Rockcastle County Judge Executive Howell Holbrook signed an Executive Order just this week installing a burn ban in the county due to extremely dry conditions.

Burn Ban issued by executive order

By: Mike French Editor

Rockcastle County Judge/Executive Howell Holbrook has issued an Executive Order banning all open burning in the county until further notice.

Holbrook said he has consulted with all the local fire chiefs, as well as the Kentucky Division of Forestry, and decided to follow suit with several other Kentucky counties by signing the order.

"The grass is extremely dry in our county right now and it is simply perfect conditions for a fire to get out of hand," said Holbrook.

Holbrook said no one intends to start a fire but in conditions where foliage is excessively dry, such an accidental fire would be easily started. "We all agreed that it would be better to issue this ban now before something happens," he said. "It would be very easy for a small fire to get out of hand quickly right now and we hope to prevent that."

The Judge/Executive said residents may still use their grill but may not burn anything on the ground or in a fire pit until the ban is lifted.

"We don't want to stop anyone from grilling out a hotdog," said Holbrook. "We simply ask that everyone be very careful right now."

Holbrook said the ban may be lifted at anytime in the event of rain that may saturate the ground or cause brush to become moist. "If we get a good, solid rain this weekend, we may lift the ban next week," he said. "But until that happens, we want to prevent any accidental fires. And it would be extremely easy for a fire to

Chemical spill is called "all clear"

By: Mike French Editor

All is clear, according to officials, after a chemical spill last week caused a scare among some local residents when the Renfro Creek turned white and dead fish were seen along the creek banks.

About 1,000 gallons of an aluminum-based polymer, used during routine maintenance at the Mount Vernon Water Plant, spilled into the local creek last Monday causing some local citizens to be concerned about the drinking water in Mount Vernon.

However, officials with the City of Mount Vernon say the chemical was never

Two are found with meth while being placed under arrest

By: Mike French Editor

Livingston Police Chief Travis Richardson arrested Freddie Mason, 52, on an indictment warrant for possession of methamphetamine on Saturday, September 14.

However, when the officer attempted to arrest Mason, a citation says the Livingston man attempted to hand his son a plastic container that he had taken from his pocket.

When Richardson attempted to retrieve the container, Mason insisted it was car fuses, the citation says. But, the officer took the container from the son and found a small baggie inside with methamphetamine and two yellow pills marked TEVA 3926. The citation says the pills are a schedule 4 controlled substance.

Mason then received the (See "Meth" on A5)

Marathon station coming soon

The Family Dollar store in Livingston is near completion and is expected to be open for business by the end of the week, according to Livingston Mayor Jason Medley. The official Grand Opening ceremony is planned for September 28 at 8 a.m. Next door, site work has begun on the new Marathon station, also locating in Livingston. Officials expect the convenient store/gas station to be open for business before winter. Medley said the two new businesses will provide a huge benefit to the residents of Livingston as well as attract new home buyers and tourists to the area.

I used to love those little balsa wood airplanes. I think they cost about a dime and you put the wings on the body by fitting them into slots already provided.

On the good ones (maybe the 15 cent ones) there was a propeller and a rubber band that we twisted around so the plane would fly a second longer.

Of course, we would climb onto the roof of the house to set them off on their journey.

Our house had a tin roof with grooves about every 2 feet apart.

After we let the plane go, we would use the tin roof as a sliding board. We would go to the peak of the house and slide down to the gutter and pray we stopped before we slid off the end of the house.

Somewhat we always did. There was some construction going on near my childhood home. Oh boy, did that provide dozens of new play avenues.

The piles of sand provided endless hours of sand castle building and race track liner.

The dirt piles caused us to get mom's garden tools or a tobacco stick to use as a shovel so that we could build a tunnel through the center of the dirt pile.

In the winter, those dirt piles made excellent forts for our snowball wars.

A pack of 100 of those little green army men cost about 20 cents and oh the army forts we could build around the concrete blocks

Soup Beans and Cornbread
A few weeks ago, my wife asked me to cook a pot of soup beans (pintos) and my mother's (Bee) cornbread for dinner one night soon. I keep a dried bag of pintos in the pantry, so I explained that I would soak them that night and have them the next day.

I watched Bee and my grandmother prepare this meal countless times when I was a boy. The beans often had small rocks and tiny dirt balls in the packages. So the first chore was to wash and clean the beans to remove these particles. Even though modern sacks of pintos do not contain these items, I still wash them as I look for tiny stones or other foreign items.

After washing the beans, we always soaked them in a bowl of water

The Summer That Lasted Too Long
Dear Journal,
Today marks the middle of September and the temperature should be in the 70's to low 80's for a high. The current temperature is in the low 90's. You would think that the beautiful fall leaves would be bursting with color, there would be a little nip in the air, there would be fall decor in the yards and there would be plenty of pumpkin spice flavor to go around for everybody.

The leaves aren't really changing color this year, only drying up due to the hot sun and dry weather. Then, they just fall off the tree and wait for the snow to come. Is it just me, or is fall coming later and later every year with about two weeks of fall? It seems that nobody is anxious to put up fall decor. I guess it is because we are in that Fourth of July mode and are all red, white and blue. About all of the fall decor is in the stores, and that is because they have Halloween stuff to sell.

I really miss fall. It is probably my favorite season, but it seems so elusive. I've only had a tease of fall so far. I've driven into Mount Vernon twice last week and it was cool enough to run a little heat and it felt pretty good, too. I'm about ready for some good old fall cooking. Maybe I can get some molasses popcorn balls that I've wanted for at least two or three years. Then, there are the apple and pumpkin pies, the chili, beef stew, stack cakes, and the list just goes on from there.

Our turtles, Terry and Tilly, are very confused. They usually come along to eat about seven to eight every morning but now it is ten to twelve before they are seen. They are somewhere waiting for the weather to warm a bit so they won't feel so cold. They are preparing their "nest" for hibernating this winter. They are working very hard and not eating as much as usual. We may have little turtles by next spring.

I do have that fall/winter feel, though. I have the first cold of the season and it has really knocked me out and put me in bed Friday and Saturday. It is the first cold I've had in at least two or three years. I have a stuffy head and chest and it in the nineties with high humidity, too.

Maybe I'll get some of that good fall food and maybe even see some pumpkins and a scarecrow in a few yards before the Christmas lights go up. Fall should last a couple of months like it used to, but at this point, I'd settle for several days.

and bricks that were waiting to be installed. We had a smokehouse out back. Well, to mom and dad it was a smokehouse. To us kids it was the Wells Fargo Bank in the city of Northfork and Marshal Matt Dillon was never far away.

We robbed that bank a hundred times and it seems like we always got away with it unless we were the sheriff that day in which case, the evil bank robbers were always captured and placed in the jail. Our jail of course was also known as the tobacco stripping room.

Oddly enough, the bark on a huge pine tree in our yard was shaped exactly like a Coast Guard Cutter and when we added just a little paint, found at the Wells Fargo Bank, and glued on a green army man, we could place that cutter in the creek and our day was filled.

We would get in the creek walk behind that boat all day. It would occasionally get in trouble and we would have to rescue those on board by moving it away from where it had beached. But, for the most part, we would walk behind that boat, straight down the middle of the creek, until we just couldn't walk any farther.

Whenever my dad was doing something around the house, whatever parts or tools he had laying out, became a day long adventure for us.

Once, while putting new screen in the screen door, we were lucky enough that he had a piece left over.

We panned for a lot of gold through that piece of screen.

I guess my point is, when my kids ask for a new toy or gizmo, I seem to discover that there is only one manufacturer that is acceptable and that the item in question costs nearly as much as a used truck.

It doesn't seem fair somehow that our toys when I was a lad were either made out of whatever was lying around, or was something that cost less than a quarter.

We found ways to use an old walking cane that would occupy us for an entire weekend. Yet, today's lads seem to need a $200 game that can only be played if you have a $1,000 box to plug it into. Oh yes, and a wide-screen, high-definition, smart, blue-tooth television to hook it all up to.

In a way, I truly believe we had more fun with our sticks and rubber bands then they do with all the CGI, high-tech, planet-killing toys on earth.

Watching them, they actually seem bored as they blow up solar systems and their chair vibrates during the firing of their laser cannons.

I rarely see them laugh while they are playing. In fact, a smile is rare. It seems to be a job for them. A serious task that must be accomplished.

As for me, we laughed and jumped and ran outside all day with our stick boats. We laughed so hard our bellies hurt. Not to mention, our parents still had $1,500 in the bank.

I think we took a wrong turn somewhere. I say we keep the $1,500 in the bank and make an "X-Box 360, phase II, requium part III panel" out of an old milk carton and paint it black.

gardens and lived to write about it.

Most of the time, most vegetable crops will grow much faster if they are planted in July, or even early August. I call it double dipping. When summer veggies first start coming in, I'm usually getting ready to plant another crop that will mature in late September or early October.

Generally speaking, vegetables that are normally supposed to mature in 78 days or less will reach maturity at least a week to 10 days faster when they are planted in mid-summer than they do when they are planted in mid spring. I have no idea as to the scientific reasoning for this phenomenon other it's just the way Mother Nature works.

However, if I've ever had a fall garden as pitiful as the 2019 rendition is turning out to be, I don't remember it. It would take some doing to prove, but I'd be willing to bet that it's been more than 30 years since I've had a fall garden that I wasn't talking about, at least one time, in the newspapers. I still don't understand why most people don't take up the habit of fall gardening, but I no longer belabor the point.

Since the fall of 2016, when Mr. Parkinson attempted to make me hang up my gardening shoes, my younger brother, Andy, has stepped in to do all the heavy, and most of the light, lifting when it comes to gardening at 249 Charlie Brown Road. Since then we have had three of the prettiest crops of late beans I've ever seen grow in any season.

This year, we have only one out of the five hoops we planted with a few straggly vines still alive. There's no hope that we'll pick a bean off it. We also planted peas but not a single seed sprouted.

The planting was done during the last week of July and the first week of August. I know, for sure, that it has rained, on several occasions, within five or fewer miles of Charlie Brown Road since we planted the garden, but, at no time, since then, has it rained enough to make beans, peas, squash, lettuce and a host of other greens seeds sprout on our little road.

Two short rows of Bodacious Sweet corn, perhaps 4 square feet of turnips and one hoop of heirloom English cucumbers sprouted only because I talked some friends into packing buckets of water to pour on them. The corn doesn't have a chance of making a cob and the turnips are doubtful of making much. But we do have sweet potatoes cracking the ground.

On at least three occasions, to date, I have talked Loretta into packing 4 gallons of fertilized water at a time out to the cucumbers and they are thriving. She loves them as much as I do. If you have never grown heirloom English cucumbers in autumn, you have missed out on one of the seasons most fabulous treats.

I got a start of these, a few years ago, from a friend who lives in the Cotswold's region of England. I've been saving my own seed ever since and making sure that they are isolated enough that they will not cross pollinate with domestic, hybrid varieties.

When grown on trellises, the cukes will grow about an inch in diameter and up to 18 inches long before they start filling out and producing mature seeds. Even in dry weather, they rarely have any bitterness and, when grown in cool, fall weather, they become as crunchy as walnuts and even have a somewhat nutty taste.

It is no wonder, to me, why the Brits are so fond of cucumber sandwiches. These are no ordinary cucumbers.

Even though it hasn't rained here in many weeks, except for one little, dry-weather, sunshine shower last week, we still have all the tomatoes we can eat. Now that I'm on this diabetic diet, I eat tomatoes at least three times a day and worry about what I'll do after the first few frosts when the cukes and maters are gone.

There's not going to be enough turnips to get by on for more than a few days and I don't believe I'm allowed to eat sweet taters.

overnight in the refrigerator. So I washed and soaked my beans to prepare this favorite meal of my family.

The next day, I pulled out a large pot that had belonged to my mother and placed the beans inside with a couple large slices of country ham. I brought the pot to a quick boil and then turned them down to cook all afternoon. After a couple of hours, I tasted the mixture to see how much salt I would need to add, if any.

If I had been given more timely notice, I probably would have purchased a ham hock to flavor the beans. This time I just used some country ham that I already had in the refrigerator. Either one provides the ham flavor to the beans, but I believe the ham hock is better.

When I was a little boy, we had two different types of meals when consuming soup beans. If prepared for lunch, we were served the beans and cornbread, topped off with diced onions, or green onions if they were available. If the meal was for dinner, the beans, cornbread, and onions were served with a side dish of "wilted lettuce and onions," homemade apple sauce, or a tray of radishes, tomatoes, and cucumbers fresh from the garden. Mommie Katie often cooked one of her famous apple stack cakes for dessert. Now, in my opinion, that is one fine country meal.

Whenever we cooked soup beans and cornbread, we knew that the leftovers would last for a couple of days. Frankly, I always found it even better the second time around.

My mother's recipe for cornbread includes: yellow cornmeal, a small amount of self-rising flour, two eggs, milk, and a small amount of bacon grease combined together and baked in her 9" black iron skillet - which I keep on my stove-top - and use often. This combination makes what I call a fine "pone" of cornbread.

For my wife's meal, I served the soup beans, Bee's fresh cornbread, onions, and a plate of fresh sliced tomatoes that I had purchased at the local Powell County farmers' market. I also added some sliced cucumbers, which had soaked in salt-water overnight in the refrigerator.

We both enjoyed our meal that night, and it brought back so many memories of my childhood. I am thankful for the lessons I learned way back then. I think this was one of my family's favorite meals. There were certainly no complaints whenever it was served.

Besides, sometimes you just get a hankering for some good ol' soup beans.

Honeybee Facts

"Do Honeybees Hibernate?"

Do honeybees hibernate during the colder months? No! Honeybees remain active all winter long despite the freezing temperatures and lack of flowers on which to forage.

As temperatures continue to drop, the worker bees start actively generating heat within the hive.

They begin to flex the flight muscles, but their wings don't move. Instead, this vibration raises each bee's body temperature with thousands of bees vibrating in this manner, the temperature at the center of the cluster warms to a cozy 93 degrees.

During warmer spells, the entire cluster will move within the hive, positioning themselves around fresh supplies of nectar or other sugar sources.

With luck, we will have live bees in the spring! I will be at the Farmers' Market Saturday, 9 a.m. until 2 p.m. So come get your honey for the cold winter mornings. This will be about the last Saturday to pick up honey this year and a special thanks to all that came by the Farmers' Market this year. Bee Happy!

in Lake Linville or in the drinking water except in the amounts that are supposed to be present.

The spill happened as an outside contractor was performing maintenance at the local plant which turned the water in Renfro Creek white and killed any fish that came in contact with the chemical.

Officials immediately called the Environmental Protection Agency and the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife to the scene where a cleanup procedure began.

Mount Vernon Water Plant Supervisor Frank Baker said the cleanup was a success.

“All of the chemical was removed from the creek and everything is back to normal now,” said Baker. “The division of water has checked everything and has told us that all is clear.”

Officials say the chemical that was spilled into the creek is the same chemical that is added to the water during regular maintenance but smaller amounts are added.

The polymer causes contaminants to adhere to each other which makes the carbon filters more effective during the filtration process, according to water plant officials.

“Our water supply was never in danger and all is well,” said Baker.

additional charges of possession of meth, possession of a controlled substance and tampering with physical evidence while being arrested on the original meth indictment.

Mason’s bond was not set at press time.

In a similar, but unrelated case, Jennifer Creech, 39, was arrested Monday, September 16, and taken into custody for an active warrant for public intoxication by Mount Vernon police officer Dylan Hensley.

The Mount Vernon resident was taken to the Rockcastle County Detention Center where she was strip searched and, according to a uniform citation, meth was discovered stuck to her leg.

The citation says, Creech had been asked numerous times if she had anything on her person that would be considered illegal and had continually responded that there was not.

However, during the search, Deputy Jailer Josie Adams discovered a white bag of crystal substance stuck to Creech’s leg.

Creech then received additional charges of promoting contraband, possession of meth and tampering with physical evidence while being arrested on other charges.

Her bond was set at $5,000 cash.

New sidewalks

City workers spent most of the day Monday forming and pouring the new sidewalk at the city-owned Sinclair property on the corner of West Main and Richmond Street. Officials are still considering several options concerning the best use of the property but a sidewalk will be required regardless of how the property is finally utilized.

Mamaw’s Kitchen

By Regina Poynter Hoskins

The day after we fixed pinto beans was always “chili day” even in the summertime. That was a wonderful way to use any leftover beans we may have had. Most of the kids and adults liked pasta in their chili, but I never did. Mum and Mamaw had to make two batches of chili—one with and one without. Sometimes we had crackers with our chili and sometimes we had cornbread.

JUDY’S CHILI

1 pound ground beef
1 onion, chopped
1 can (8 ounce) tomato sauce
A couple handfuls of macaroni or spaghetti, uncooked
1/4 cup tomato ketchup
2 cups water
1 to 3 tablespoons chili powder

2 to 4 cups cooked pinto beans
Salt
Brown ground beef and onion in skillet. Add to a large pot along with rest of ingredients. Let come to boil, reduce heat and gently simmer for 30 minutes or so.

REGINA’S CHILI

I liked the chili Mum and Mamaw fixed while I was growing up, but these days I prefer my chili thicker than what we made then. Use more chili powder if you like it spicier. (I use Mexene® chili powder because that’s the one Mum used.)
2 tablespoons oil
1 onion, chopped
1/2 C chopped green bell pepper
1 pound lean ground beef
1 tablespoon chili powder

1 can (8 ounce) tomato sauce
1 can (14 ounce) petite or regular diced tomatoes, undrained
1/4 cup water
2 cups cooked pinto or kidney beans (or one 14 ounce can)
Add oil to large pot with a lid. Let oil heat on medium-high and add chopped onion and green pepper. Cook for about two minutes. Crumble ground beef over onion. Using a wooden spoon, break ground beef up into very small pieces. Cook until beef is no longer pink. Stir in chili powder, tomato sauce, tomatoes and water. Stir. Bring to a boil. Cover, reduce heat and simmer for an hour. Stir frequently. Add beans and cook on medium another 10 to 30 minutes.

Abraham's Answer

In Luke the sixteenth chapter, verses 27 and 28, we find a very familiar story of the rich man and Lazarus. When we look at these two verses of the Bible, we find two people in two different states of life, the rich man in a state of helplessness and hopelessness he finally realizes there is nothing he can do but to cry out to father Abraham, send Lazarus back to his father's house to warn his brothers so they could miss this place, prepared for those who had lived as he had, because he knew his brothers were in the same state as he was in. Then in verse 29 father Abraham offers a simple response, they have Moses and the prophets, let them hear them.

As we consider the conversation between these two, there seems to be an obvious point that arises. What would father Abraham's answer be to one in this lost condition today if the same question was asked? Is it that they have the church and the gospel, being preached let them hear them.

Jesus told his disciples go and teach all nations all things, whatsoever he had commanded them. Matthew 28:19-20, and folks that is the only hope for those who are lost and headed to the place where the rich man was headed.

We live in a world today who does not appreciate Biblical ideas, with the attitude of many of that of anger or disdain for one who would attempt to engage others in a study of God's Word and what He expects of us. The nation we live in today is a prime example of what the apostle Paul was talking about in 2 Timothy 4:3-4 For the time will come when they will not endure sound doctrine, but after their own lusts shall they heap to themselves teachers, having itching ears, and they shall turn away their ears from the truth, and shall be turned unto fables. Folks, this is sad, but true and we see it happening everywhere in the name of religion, and even in the Lord's church. Just like Israel of old, too many times people want preachers and teachers to tickle their ears. Isaiah 30:10 Speak unto us smooth things, prophesy deceits. The question we need to ask ourselves will we be justified when we stand before God which side will we be joined to, the ones on the left or the ones on the right, this is the reason we are warned, not to take the first step that leads away from God's Word. The apostle Paul said 2 Timothy 4:2 Preach the word, whether in season or out of season. There is no wrong time to preach the truth, it is always in season, in the eyes of God. This is how we keep ourselves and those that hear us prepared for battles that we face every day on this earth.

We find the rich man was not satisfied with Abraham's reply, so the rich man said in verse 30 of Luke the sixteenth chapter if one was sent back from the dead then they would hear. Abraham's reply in the 31st verse was this, if they hear not Moses and the prophets, neither will they be persuaded, though one rose from the dead. What he is saying is God's plan is just right the way it is to save the soul of man.

The gospel is still what saves men souls when it is preached just the way it is written in this Holy Book we call the Bible. Romans 1:16 The gospel is the power of God unto salvation unto everyone. Hearing it, believing, repenting, confessing the name of Christ then being baptized for the forgiveness of our sins.

Frankfort Update

By R. Travis Brenda State Representative
Committees hold monthly meetings, legislature gearing up for 2020 Regular Session

Interim committees met September 9 through 13 for their monthly meetings, bringing together members of the House and Senate to hear from state government officials and members of the public about the issues we will be looking at during the next session. The committee meeting schedule for this year has been reorganized, so now almost all of the meetings take place during one week each month.

This month, members of the Education Committee met and discussed two important topics facing education today – child abuse and neglect, and a shortage in teachers. The presentation on child abuse and neglect came from a group of students from Boyle County. They are requesting that the General Assembly consider requiring age-appropriate education on child abuse and neglect as part of our public school curriculum. According to the presentation, 28 states have already passed similar requirements and comparable measures have been filed in previous sessions. Child abuse and neglect have been a priority for the General Assembly over the past few years, with Kentucky leading the nation in child abuse and neglect cases. While the next step for this proposal requires a great deal of review and consideration, I was quite impressed by how this group of young people handled a difficult topic.

Education Committee members also heard from school superintendents about a shortage of teachers in our public schools. According to Jim Flynn with the Kentucky Association of School Superintendents, 95 percent of public school superintendents say that the teacher shortage is a "significant problem." Flynn also shared that there has been a steep decline in the number of students studying education in the colleges and universities in Kentucky, from 13,000 in 2007 to just 5,000 today. There has already been some discussion about incentives like dual credit hours, altering the certification process, and maybe even expanding the financial assistance available to those who want to teach. Already, more than $1.7 million per year in lottery funds are invested in need-based scholarships designed to attract qualified students to teaching. The pension crisis also creates some uncertainty for potential teachers, as does the concern that teachers have to spend too much time on paperwork and not enough time with students. We will continue to monitor the situation and look for possible solutions.

The Interim Joint Committee on Economic Development and Workforce Investment also met last week. Representatives from the drug abuse treatment, business and health insurance communities were on the agenda to discuss how the opioid crisis is hurting our efforts to improve Kentucky's workforce. This is a hot topic because, despite record economic investment and thousands of new jobs we still rank 47th in the nation in workforce participation. That means that too many Kentuckians who could be working are not. The information we get paints a pretty clear picture – drug addiction is preventing people from becoming productive, healthy members of society.

Interim committees cover a wide array of topics. They represent the opportunities and challenges we face as a state, and highlight what we need to work on when we come back in session in January. The committees will meet again the week of September 30 through October 4.

While in Frankfort last week, I also pre-filed Bill Request 102 for the upcoming session. With changes made to taxable services during recent sessions, the Revenue Cabinet has interpreted changes regarding landscaping services to include contracting someone to mow a hay or pasture field. A constituent contacted my office saying that they had received notification from the Revenue Cabinet requesting payment of sales tax for work that they had completed for farmers in District 71. Bill Request 102, if passed, will exempt activities such as mowing, spraying, tree trimming, or fence cleaning being conducted on land that is currently used for agricultural purposes.

Information regarding committee meetings and potential legislation is available through the Kentucky Legislature Home Page at www.lrc.ky.gov. As always, I can be reached through the toll-free message line in Frankfort at 1-800-372-7181, or via e-mail at travis.brenda@lrc.ky.gov. Welcome

Introducing Dr. Kelsey Ladd

Kelsey Ladd, MD

Rockcastle Regional is pleased to welcome Psychiatrist Dr. Kelsey Ladd who is joining our physician team at Rockcastle Family Wellness.

Dr. Ladd earned her medical degree from the University of Kentucky College of Medicine in 2014 and completed her residency in psychiatry from the University of Kentucky.

"Psychiatry encompasses the aspects of medicine that I enjoyed most," said Dr. Ladd. "It's incredibly rewarding to develop relationships with patients over time and to then see them get better. My goal is to provide my patients the opportunity to talk about some of their most sensitive issues in a sympathetic and unrushed setting."

She says that her philosophy on patient care is the same she applies to her personal life: Do unto others as you would have done unto you. "I approach every patient as I hope someone would my family member or loved one. How would I want someone to care for my mother, grandfather, husband, or child? My goal is to provide the best care in a compassionate, patient, and empathetic manner."

Dr. Ladd says she feels incredibly fortunate to have the opportunity to serve the people in Rockcastle and the surrounding communities. "I look forward to providing a crucial service that, until now, has not been available. I am very excited to get to know the members of this warm, friendly, and proud community."

To schedule an appointment with Dr. Kelsey Ladd, please call (606) 256-7466.

The resolution was later adopted by the U.S. Congress and signed into public law on 2 August 1956 by President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Tiger Pause

The Brodhead Elementary first graders, participated in International Dot Day on Friday, September 13, 2019. Dot Day is a global celebration of creativity, courage and collaboration, focused around the book The Dot by Peter H. Reynolds. The Dot is a story of a caring teacher who dares a doubting student to trust in her own abilities by being brave enough to “make her mark”. What begins with a small dot on a piece of paper becomes a breakthrough in confidence and courage, igniting a journey of self-discovery and sharing, which has gone on to inspire countless children and even adults around the world. BES first graders created different pieces of art using various types of dots. Pictured are BES first grade students with their tie-dye t-shirts that they created during their day of celebration. Pictured creating their shirts are Addie Wilburn, Anabelle Childress, Gracelyn Staton, Brett Thomas, Bryce Carter, and Khloe McFerron.

Brodhead Elementary would also like to say thanks to the Rockcastle Shaolin Do for their generosity to our students with an early morning presentation on Monday, September 9th. Our students and staff would like to say thanks for the awesome presentation from the Rockcastle Shaolin Do Demo Team. During the presentation, some of our very own Brodhead Elementary student received the opportunity to display their talents. BES students in the photo are James Coldiron, James Perkins, Caylin Noe, and Kaylee Neal.

you’ll know how and where to meet, how you will contact each other and what to do in different situations.

2. Stock up on emergency items.
Make sure you gather enough essentials for at least 72 hours and include items such as necessary medicines, water, nonperishable food, a manual can opener, crank-powered flashlight, first aid items, spare clothing, phone chargers, battery-operated radio and extra batteries.
3. Make a kit now — before an emergency.
Store your stock-piled emergency supplies in one location, preferably in air-tight storage. You may have to evacuate at a moment’s notice and take essentials with you. You will probably not have time to search for the supplies you need or shop for them. Make sure each member of the household or work location knows where the emergency preparedness kit will be stored.

4. Take your emergency planning on the go.
Whether short- or long-distance traveling, it’s always a good idea to make a similar emergency preparedness kit for your vehicle in case you become stranded. Include items like jumper cables, flashlights, extra batteries, first aid items, necessary medicines, nonperishable food, water, battery-operated radio, cell phone chargers, ice scraper, spare clothing, flares and blankets.
5. Keep informed.
When power outages occur, LG&E and KU provide near real-time outage information through the utilities’ online outage map to help customers make critical decisions. The map is mobile friendly for customers on the go, and provides critical information including estimated restoration times, weather radar overlay and zooming capabilities to street level.

LG&E and KU customers can also sign up for outage texting to report an outage to 4LGEKU (454358) and to request status updates from their mobile device. After customers text OUTAGE and the location of the outage being reported has been confirmed, customers can text STATUS at any time to receive updates regarding when their service might be restored. Once power is back on, the customer will receive a text confirming service has been restored.

(b) In the case of a return where a business entity understates net profit, or omits an amount properly includable in net profits, or both, which understatement or omission, or both, is in excess of twenty-five percent (25%) of the amount of net profit stated in the return, the additional tax may be assessed at any time within six (6) years after the return was filed.

(c) In the case of an assessment of additional tax relating directly to adjustments resulting from a final determination of a federal audit, the additional tax may be assessed before the expiration of the times provided in this subsection, or six (6) months from the date the city receives the final determination of the federal audit from the business entity, whichever is later.

Section 10 Contains administrative provisions related to fractional parts of a dollar; automatic extensions if due date falls on a weekend; deadline for requesting refunds; collected tax receipts are deposited into the General Fund of the City of Livingston and the Occupational Tax Administrator is charged with enforcing the ordinance.

Section 11 Provides that all information received by the City of Livingston related to the collection of the occupational tax and net profit tax shall be confidential.

Section 12 Penalties

(1) A business entity subject to tax on net profits may be subject to a penalty equal to five percent (5%) of the tax due for each calendar month or fraction thereof if the business entity:

(a) Fails to file any return or report on or before the due date prescribed for filing or as extended by the city; or

(b) Fails to pay the tax computed on the return or report on or before the due date prescribed for payment. The total penalty levied pursuant to this subsection shall not exceed twenty-five percent (25%) of the total tax due; however, the penalty shall not be less than twenty-five dollars ($25).

(2) Every employer who fails to file a return or pay the tax on or before the date prescribed under Section (5) of this ordinance may be subject to a penalty in an amount equal to five percent (5%) of the tax due for each calendar month or fraction thereof. The total penalty levied pursuant to this subsection shall not exceed twenty-five percent (25%) of the total tax due; however, the penalty shall not be less than twenty-five dollars ($25).

(3) In addition to the penalties prescribed in this section, any business entity or employer shall pay, as part of the tax, an amount equal to twelve percent (12%) per annum simple interest on the tax shown due, but not previously paid, from the time the tax was due until the tax is paid to the city. A fraction of a month is counted as an entire month.

(4) Every tax imposed by this ordinance, and all increases, interest, and penalties thereon, shall become, from the time the tax is due and payable, a personal debt of the taxpayer to the city.

(5) The city may enforce the collection of the occupational tax due under section (3) of this ordinance and any fees, penalties, and interest as provided in subsections (1), (2), (3), and (4) of this section by civil action in a court of appropriate jurisdiction. To the extent authorized by law, the city shall be entitled to recover all court costs and reasonable attorney fees incurred by it in enforcing any provision of this ordinance.

(6) In addition to the penalties prescribed in this section, any person, business entity or employer who willfully fails to make a return, willfully makes a false return, or who willfully fails to pay taxes owing or collected, with the intent to evade payment of the tax or amount collected, or any part thereof, shall be guilty of a Class A misdemeanor.

(7) Any person who willfully aids or assists in, or procures, counsels, or advises the preparation or presentation under, or in connection with, any matter arising under this ordinance of a return, affidavit, claim, or other document, which is fraudulent or is false as to any material matter, whether or not the falsity or fraud is with the knowledge or consent of the person authorized or required to present the return, affidavit, claim, or document, shall be guilty of a Class A misdemeanor.

(8) A return for the purpose of this section shall mean and include any return, declaration, or form prescribed by the city and required to be filed with the city by the provisions of this ordinance, or by the rules of the city or by written request for information to the business entity by the city.

(9) Any person violating the provisions of section (11) of this ordinance by intentionally inspecting confidential taxpayer information without authorization, shall be fined not more than five hundred dollars ($500) or imprisoned for not longer than six (6) months, or both (10) Any person violating the provisions of section (11) of this ordinance by divulging confidential taxpayer information shall be fined not more than one thousand ($1000) or imprisoned for not more than one (1) year, or both.

Section 14 Severability

Each section and each provision of each section of this ordinance are severable, and if any provision, section, paragraph, sentence or part thereof, or the application thereof to any person, license, class or group, is held by a court of law to be unconstitutional or invalid for any reason, such holding shall not affect or impair the remainder of this ordinance, it being the legislative intent to ordain and enact each provision, section, paragraph, sentence and part thereof, separately and independently of the rest.

Josh Bray named as KLC Employee of the Year for 2019

Over 20,000 considered

By: Mike French
Editor

There are over 20,000 city employees in Kentucky. All are watched closely by the Kentucky League of Cities (KLC) for their accomplishments and dedication to their job. But of those 20,000-plus, one stands above all others, according to KLC.

Josh Bray is now the KLC City Employee of the Year for 2019.

"This is quite an honor," said Bray. "I'm just doing my job. It helps that I love my city."

KLC officials looked closely at the accomplishments of all 20,000 employees and chose Mount Vernon's City Administrator as the one city employee who exemplified "exceptional performance at a distinguished level to improve his or her local government and community."

Bray started working for the City of Mount Vernon while a student at Eastern Kentucky University as Tax Administrator. However, he proved so useful to the city that, when he graduated from EKV in 2008 and was about to move on, the mayor and the council created the new position of City Administrator and offered Bray the job.

Since then Bray has been in the center of city business.

"Both Josh and his city have flourished and his list of accomplishments are long," said the KLC press release announcing Bray's selection.

According to the release, Bray has saved the city hundreds of thousands of dollars, created opportunities for business development and revenue, designed his department from the ground up, and has played a major role in most all of the city's growth and development since becoming an employee.

Bray's dedication to the city and the community are evident in his work as he demonstrates his desire for the city to succeed. In fact, after playing a huge role in

Livingston keeping up with local growth

Family Dollar opens today

As the county makes plans for future growth through TIF districts and new commercial property, cities in the county are also planning for such growth.

Brodhead officials created and then doubled the size of their police force in one year and are in the process of annexing 80 acres of additional property.

The Conway community recently saw the grand opening ceremonies of the new Family Dollar Store while Mount Vernon added the Microfoodery plant to the local business directory.

Mount Vernon is also planning to begin the new million-dollar water basin for the local water plant and is seeing development near exit 62 with very high hopes for the area.

Mount Vernon and Brodhead also voted to allow the sale of alcohol in the city limits of each town. There is a new Farmer's Market also coming to Mount Vernon with plans for a structure that will accommodate other events and activities as well.

The 8th Annual Hunger Walk was held in downtown Mount Vernon last Thursday. The walk was led by: Mount Vernon Mayor Mike Bryant and wife, Carol; Howell Holbrook, Rockcastle County Judge Executive; Sherri Barnett, manager of the Grateful Bread Food Pantry; Landon Reppert, RCMS and Shane Baker, field representative from the Office of the Governor. Below are some of the students from local schools which took part in the walk.

Huge turnout for Hunger Walk

The community came out in large numbers to support the 8th Annual Hunger Walk, sponsored by Christian Appalachian Project's Grateful Bread Food Pantry last week.

September is Hunger Awareness Month across the nation and more than 1,300 walkers participated in this year's event, which seeks to bring awareness to hunger-related issues in Appalachia.

"I am so proud to be a part of this community which chooses to take action against hunger issues by supporting CAP's Hunger Walk each year," said Sherri Barnett, manager of CAP's Grateful Bread Food Pantry. "It is a blessing to be a part of a community that is helping to feed those who really don't know where their next meal may come from. This food drive for the pantry is extremely important because it will help feed over 2,000 people in Rockcastle County that are living with food insecurities. It helps our children, the elderly, individuals with disabilities, the working poor, and single parents, all struggling with hunger issues. I can't thank the commu-

City of Livingston imposes 1% Occupational tax

By: Mike French
Editor

The City of Livingston has levied a 1% occupational tax on those who work in the city limits.

The Livingston City Commission recently voted unanimously to levy the new tax and Mayor Jason Medley said the revenue from the tax will help the city in several ways.

The tax comes just as two new businesses are locating in the city and officials expect even more may be coming in the near future. According to Medley, "We are a growing city and we have a lot to offer. This additional revenue will help us continue to make Livingston more attractive to other businesses and to people who may consider moving to our town."

Medley says the new tax is expected to generate enough revenue to add 20 percent to the general fund of the city budget. "With that additional revenue, we expect to be able to continue to upgrade the city's infrastructure and make many local improvements," he said.

Along with bigger and better sidewalks and improved city buildings, Medley says he and city commissioners have some local beautification projects in mind for the city.

"Livingston is a beautiful city, nestled in the Appalachian hills by the Rockcastle River. We have some projects in mind that can make our town even more appealing," he said. "The increased revenue will play a big part in our overall beautification of the city."

The new tax will be paid by anyone who works inside the city of Livingston with some exceptions.

According to the ordinance, every person or business engaged in business for profit will be required to pay the 1% tax for the "privilege of engaging in such activities within the city."

However, the ordinance provides exceptions for some banking institutions, Kentucky National Guard,

Property tax rate drops to 15.8 cents per $100

In a very short special called meeting, the Mount Vernon City Council held the first reading of two ordinances Monday evening, Ordinance 2019-11, and 2019-12 which sets the tax rates for real and personal property in the city.

The motor vehicle tax is set at 16.7 cents on each $100 of value while the real property tax rate is set at 15.8 cents per $100 of value.

Officials say the real property tax rate is a drop from 16.2 last fiscal year but since property values are more this year, and more property is in the city lim-

Rockcastle County's three mayors and the county judge/executive presented the "State of the County" address during Tuesday's Rockcastle County Chamber of Commerce meeting.

The event, held at

Community Trust Bank, gave each elected official a chance to talk about the progress and accomplishments over the past year in their respective city and County Judge/Executive Howell Holbrook talked about the county as a whole.

Brodhead Mayor Walter Cash started the luncheon talk about the flooding last year that damaged the Brodhead Park and announced that a Veterinary Clinic that is planning to locate in Brodhead soon.

"There isn't a lot going on in Brodhead right now. There's not much happening. But we are fixing the park and have a Family Dollar store coming," he said. "Then there will be a vet clinic locating beside that store."

Livingston Mayor Jason Medley discussed several projects underway in his town and said he is thankful for the cooperation between the local cities. "All the mayors and the county understand ramblings...

by: perlina m. anderkin

We finished the fourth week of our bowling league Tuesday night and it's been rough, so far.

Our first week, we ruthlessly took four games from our opponents -- okay, they were really having a rough night and that helped us a lot. The next week, we just got drubbed, four games gone. Then, the next, we lost four games, by a combined total of 35 pins. We lost the first by 25, the second by two and the third by eight.

I will not lay blame, but some of us -- mainly yours truly -- had a terrible night.

But, Tuesday night, we at least managed to split with one of the top teams in the league -- you know, those women who have the ability to string together two, three and sometimes four strikes in a row and, almost always, pick up their spares -- showoffs one and all. (Actually this was my lead for a ramblings column for the 9/5 issue which I gave up on.

We have now bowled three more weeks and only managed four wins out of 12 games so our records even sadder now. I was just too sorry to come up with a new lead for this week's column).

I've had a hard time coming up with a ramblings the past few weeks. I don't consider myself depressed but maybe it's just the feeling that I am so helpless to control anything that affects my life.

I start thinking about innocent babies being murdered, even up to birth, and I just about can't function.

Add to that the sadness that always affects me on September 11th each year and it gets worse.

Democrats want to allow anyone to come across our border at any time, they are all for taking guns from law-abiding citizens but, of course, their bodyguards would still be armed to the teeth in order to protect them. They want to allow reparations for blacks because of slavery way back in the history of our country (what I can't figure out is are they going to pay reparations to families of soldiers from the north who gave their lives to free said slaves?). They are advocating the cancellation of all student loan debt (with no consideration for those who paid their's off) and, most recently, for the cancellation of all medical debt. They want to let prisoners vote, allow illegals drivers licenses and provide free health insurance for said illegals. They are willing to provide sanctuary cities for illegals to hide in and to be a drain on our economy and for many to prey on our legal citizens.

Aces Over

By: Mike French

There seems to be a special era that captured the heart and soul of what America is. At least to me it seems that there was one special time in America that will never be forgotten. It was the 50s.

I have always said that I was born late. Since my very early childhood I have wished that I had been 20 years old in about 1957. Of course I most likely would be gone now if I had been 20 over 60 years ago. But, all my life I have felt like that was the greatest of times in America.

There are other eras that stand out some. There are Civil War reenactments and events focusing on the roaring 20s and western attire depicting the old west, but it seems to me that the 50s is so much more popular.

Almost everywhere I go I see restaurants dedicated to the 50s with juke boxes and Elvis posters. I see 50s television programs, 50s dances, and events almost weekly that are centered around the 50s lifestyle.

At a large number of car shows, like the great show this weekend in Renfro Valley, it seems there are always '55 Chevys and 1950s music playing over the speakers. There are lots of other cars too, of course, but it just seems to me that the cars in the 50s were so much "cooler" than any other era.

James Dean and Elvis and the Beetles seemed to change the very direction of the country. Though parents in the 50s must have thought it was terrible the way things were changing, and there was an obvious tussle between parents and teens in the 50s, things were different then.

What parents thought were terrible, evil things that were destroying the youth of America, now seem to be wholesome, clean lifestyles.

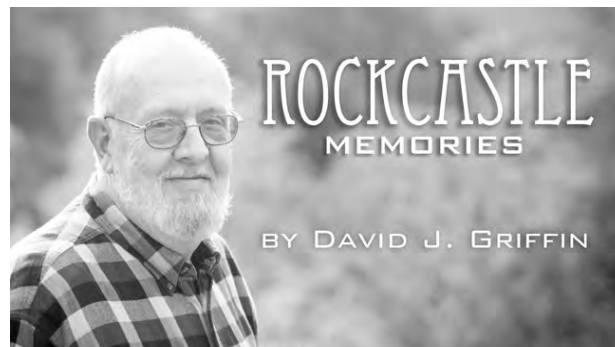

In those days the wildest thing kids could do was wear a black, leather jacket and have slicked back hair that reached over the ear.

Today, the problems seem to be kids wearing practically nothing at all and painting their hair purple and trying to decide if God was wrong when he made them a male or female.

To me, 50s music was the best in history. As a musician I can tell you, the guitar riff that is instantly identified as "50s music" when anyone hears it, is a very, very simple thing.

It is a one-finger move that can be done even by a person who has never held a guitar in their life, yet when you hear it, everyone around instantly thinks of the 50s

Weekly Reader

When I was in elementary school at Mt. Vernon Elementary School (MVES), I always looked forward to Fridays because that was when the Weekly Reader arrived. Our teachers purchased subscriptions so that each student would have their very own copy.

The Weekly Reader was designed especially for kids, and it was full of articles about current news events. This was a quiet, relaxing time in the classroom. Our teachers allowed us to read at our own pace.

We were always assigned the task of completing the study questions on the last page. These questions gaged our comprehension of what we had read. Some of my teachers also required us to create our own short report about specific stories. I loved doing that.

The Weekly Reader was a way of using current events to help teach and encourage children to read and to offer them up-to-date educational information. It was a way to keep us abreast of news items that were happening at the moment.

The Weekly Reader was published from 1928 until 2012. Eighty-four years of serving teachers and students is a remarkable feat.

When I was Chair of the Science Department at George Rogers Clark High School in Winchester, I ordered Science World Magazine for some of the lower-level classes. Science World brought to life the latest news and discoveries in every field of science. Like the Weekly Reader, it offered new ideas to the students in the classes for which it was used.

Points East

If you are a fan of original country music, I hope you have been watching the 8-parts, 2 hours each, Ken Burns, Country Music series that has been running on KET and PBS stations, nationwide, over the last couple of weeks.

While the program has done little to enhance my understanding as to how and why so-called, "modern" country music has evolved mostly into Nashville noise pollution, it sure has brought back a flood of precious memories from my younger days.

Actually, at this writing, we have only watched the first 5 episodes, but by the time you are reading this missive, we should be through the series and already watching again the ones we have recorded. Two hours of anything is about all Mr. Parkinson can tolerate on any given night, but I expect that reruns of this series will keep me well-entertained throughout this fall and the coming winter.

We will, most likely, watch The Voice on Mondays and Tuesdays over the next several weeks because the contestants frequently perform old songs that pre-date 1980. The rest of my late evening entertainment will largely consist of re-playing the first half dozen episodes of the Country Music series. As far as I'm concerned, that's not much different than playing your favorite music recording several times a week or even several times a day. It never really gets old even though it may become a nuisance to your friends and family members.

The first 5 episodes have mostly focused on the very early days of radio leading into the heydays of the Grand Ole Opry through 1968. I figure the next 2

T.J.'s Journal

By: Tonya J. Cook

Sunday Morning at the Cook House

Dear Journal,

On Sunday morning at the Cook house, we get to sleep in and it sure does feel good. Usually Stanley is up at 4:00 AM in order to walk the dogs, eat breakfast, and get ready for work. I don't get up until around five- to six-ish, depending on how bad I feel. Some mornings old "Arthur" knocks louder than usual. This particular Sunday morning we slept in until 8 AM. We couldn't sleep any longer as our "alarm clocks" wanted to be walked and fed.

I guess I'll start having to get up at four as well. About a week ago, Stanley saw fresh bear claw marks on the road that goes in front of our house, the dog walking route. They weren't there the evening before. He made pictures as to document the fact. Imagine claws sharp enough to scratch the pavement. I'll stand guard on the porch to save him and the dogs or at least call 911.

There are lots of things to get done today. I made a nice breakfast for us. I made a frutata (quiche without the crust) for us and some biscuits. I fried the biscuits and they have altogether a different flavor. I prefer them, actually. I made the frutata with six eggs, (I should have used eight) scrambled, fried turkey sausage (one roll), one can of drained spinach, and a generous amount of grated cheddar cheese (1 1/2 cups). I baked it in my copper skillet and didn't have to use any grease. When the dish rises and the center is firm, it is done. I baked it at 350 degrees. I sat down to eat and the "four-footed taste testers" had to get a sample. They really like hot buttered biscuits.

This is a recipe I've learned from my new job at the Rockcastle Adult Day Health Care. Shanda Hayes is the chief cook and bottle washer as well as many other jobs. She makes this recipe about once a week and everyone just loves it. Shanda is a character and keeps the place lively. The party seems to follow her wherever she goes. This is all served by the staff in the mornings. Julie Wilson, the LPN, is so efficient and keeps up with everything coming and going. She is very jolly and pleasant and is lovingly known as "The Warden" by the clients. Rebecca Davis gives me hope for the younger generations. She is very knowledgeable and well spoken. She has a "goodly heritage" as they say in the DAR which she is joining very soon. Becky Bradley serves, as well. She is a favorite among the clients and she entertains them with a variety of activities. She sees they never have a dull moment.

Stanley and I watch that CBS news program, "Sunday Morning". Today they were talking about a new movie coming out soon, "Judy", about one of my favorite actresses, Judy Garland. I'll have to see it. It is rare for me to go out to see a movie. These new movies don't hold much interest for me. The topics are so mundane...same old thing told in a slightly different script. Thank God for my own collection of "jewels" on DVD.

Well, time is a-wastin', and I should really get started. I'm trying to live by my new cliché, "Your time is your life". It really is and I don't want to waste a moment.

and most begin to sway back and forth and smile.

Rock-n-Roll music was centered around this one simple beginner riff that I could teach you in 30 seconds. Yet, it changed the direction of music around the world.

The dress code from the 50s seems to have established itself as the forever standard in America. After all, who does not own a pair of blue jeans and a leather jacket.

The styles have changed a little. But very little. I would guess the huge majority of men in America now have hair longer than they did in 1940 and that all started in the 50s.

I would guess most all men wear blue jeans from time to time.

And I would guess that a huge majority of people in America can't help but "jiggle around" just a little when a 1955 Rock-n-Roll song comes on the radio.

It was a time when everything simply fell into place.

There was indeed political turmoil and racism and sexism. But, there still are those things. And there always will be since the Tower of Babel.

It was just a fun time to be a teenager. Though alcohol was a problem, drugs were not nearly as rampant and most modern opioids hadn't been invented. There were protests but no one shot up a school.

Teens were considered "wild and irresponsible" but they got jobs and respected their elders.

Some considered the music to be evil but there was prayer in school.

Some considered youth to be untamed. But parents disciplined them and they respected authority.

Yes the 50s had its problems but all in all I think it was a time that many wish was still here.

The Sunday gatherings, the music, the family time, the work ethic, the acceptance of personal responsibility, the moral values, the cars, the hair, the clothes, etc. It was all a part of a time that will never be again. And, yet, it will never be forgotten.

Here's hoping that America never strays too far from the values that made America great. And the hope that we can -- you guessed it--make America great again.

And, of course, their most recent accomplishment, the whatever procedure they're using to try and impeach a sitting President because, let's be honest, they despise him because he had the temerity to defeat their candidate and, in my opinion, throw a stumbling block into their plans to include our country in their global New World Order and obliterate our country's individual identity.

I realize I can be accused of being a conspiracy theorist but it's like the old saying of being accused of being paranoid. It's not paranoid if it's true.

Just show me, in black and white, the "high crimes and misdemeanors" our President has committed and I'll shut up and accept the outcome.

I believed that Science World Magazine could create interest in a variety of science stories that might not be available in the regular classroom. This concept came from my reading of the Weekly Reader in elementary school.

The teachers in the science department loved getting Science World Magazine each month. All of the teachers of basic-level classes used the magazine religiously. They, and their students, awaited its arrival each month.

Even to this day, occasionally one of my former students will remind me of the Science World Magazine of their youth. So I figure that I must have been right about it making a positive impression. Little did they know that it was actually my teen-aged version of the Weekly Reader from my youth.

(You can reach me at themtnman@att.net or you can drop me a line at 2167 Furnace Road - Stanton, KY 40380. I appreciate your comments and suggestions.)

"Points East"

episodes will get us up to 1990s, at which point I will stop hitting the rewind button. I can count, on the fingers of one hand, the number of new songs that I've actually wanted to hear repeated since 1999.

In the meantime, I like to wax nostalgic about the music on which I literally cut my teeth, or at least my baby teeth.

By the time I was 6 years old, I had learned to stand on a kitchen chair to reach up and turn the dial and volume knobs on our old, mid-1940s model, AM Stromberg Carlson, vacuum-tube, radio that was perched on top of the refrigerator. Mom kept it there because that was the only place in the house where it would play.

The fridge served as an antenna and the radio would play just fine when it was tuned into "local" stations in Whitesburg, Neon, Hazard and Hindman. Those stations came "on the air" at 6:00 AM and "signed off" at 5:00 or 6:00 PM each evening.

If we wanted to listen to most of the big city stations, at night, it was my job to stand by the radio with my hand touching it because, for whatever reason, doing so would greatly amplify the signal. If Mom or Dad really wanted to hear country music programs on WCKY (Cincinnati) WLS or WJJD (Chicago) or one of the numerous other clear channel, faraway stations, one of them might stand by the radio and spell me from antenna duty. One of my cousins, who owned a radio repair shop, managed to install a much better internal antenna but the radio still played more clearly if someone was touching it.

We finally got a new Zenith "solid state," tubeless radio in the late 1950's but, even it, played better if someone was standing very close by or touching it.

Of course everyone's favorite radio program was the Grand Ole Opry on Nashville's WSM on both Friday and Saturday nights. The dial on the old radio was so sensitive that the station could go out of tune if the refrigerator door was opened and closed. You really have not been yelled at if you have never had a Chicago station cut into WSM and interrupt my Dad while Roy Acuff was right in the middle of singing "Great Speckled Bird" only because you wanted a cold drink of cool aid.

And when we finally did manage to get the signal in clear as a bell, Dad was apt to holler "Don't touch that dial," if anyone went anywhere close to the radio.

"How much does a funeral cost?"

The answer depends on what type of service is selected. Dowell and Martin Funeral Home offers a wide variety of services at prices that are affordable to everyone. Combining quality and cost is one of the things we have done best for half a century! The price of a funeral depends on the casket and outer container selected, the type of service preferred—everything in one day, nighttime visitation/next day funerals, cremations, and memorial services to celebrate the life of your loved one.

"I cannot afford that funeral home because their prices are too high."

We hear this quite often. We pride ourselves at Dowell and Martin in offering Rockcastle-area families services that fit every budget. According to the National Funeral Directors Association, the average funeral cost today is $8500.00. This price does not include cemetery charges and other items associated with funerals. The average price for a funeral at Dowell and Martin is much less than the national average! We offer Package Services starting at $2500.00 and several packages under $5000.00. Monthly payment plans are also available.

We invite you to call with any questions you may have. Better yet, come by and visit our facility and talk with us about the facts about funeral prices. We are proud to offer families the same personal, caring attention we have shown for 50 years.

Attention Heat Vendors

The Daniel Boone Community Action Agency will again be administering the Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP) for low-income people in Clay, Laurel, Jackson and Rockcastle Counties beginning November 4, 2019.

Anyone wanting to be a vendor in this year's program will need to attend a vendor meeting in their perspective county.

The meeting for Rockcastle Co. will be held on October 9, 2019 at 1:00.

The office in Rockcastle County is located at 105 East Main St., Mt. Vernon, Ky.

precinct workers, Public Service Corporations, alcohol sales, some insurance companies, anyone 65 or older, those who rent two or less units and persons engaged in agriculture. All others must pay the tax.

The ordinance also contains language for those who fail to pay the tax and imposes penalties per month.

Medley says city officials are submitting the paperwork to Frankfort this week and the tax should take effect very soon.

“Overall, this will be a big help to our city and all who live and work here,” said Medley. “This revenue will help make Livingston an even better town than we have now.”

Medley says the growth and development in Livingston will help everyone. “We will always keep our small town family atmosphere and this revenue will help us grow and provide the best services possible for our citizens and our workforce.”

acquiring the Lake Linville Marina, which is now a tourist staple in Mount Vernon, Bray worked in the bait shop and the dock on weekends to help it get off the ground.

The KLC release goes on to mention the “200 plus jobs” that are expected from the Microfoodery plant that Bray played a lead role in bringing to Mount Vernon.

The release, which was sent to all news media outlets and all cities in Kentucky, goes on to list many of Bray’s accomplishments over the years and even mentions Bray’s role in testifying before state committees to change Kentucky laws on alcohol sales to benefit smaller cities, including Mount Vernon.

Among Bray’s countless accomplishments is the TIF District designation which some estimate will bring over $120 million in economic impact to the City of Mount Vernon. Bray and RCIDA Executive Director Jeff VanHook worked through many hurdles to change the alcoholic beverage sales tax laws and create the TIF District.

Officials at KLC say Bray’s impact is not limited to the City of Mount Vernon. “His ability to reach across lines and work in many areas to get things done has made him a valued asset not only to this city, but to his region,” the release says.

As expected, Bray remains humble about the award. “It’s nice to win such a huge award because it shows that people statewide are noticing what we are doing in Mount Vernon,” said Bray. “But you don’t do this job for recognition.”

Bray says the city and county are growing in the right direction. “The progress we are making is significant for the community,” he said. “We are laying the groundwork for some very big things in the next few years.”

Any task that Bray undertakes for the city or the county or the region, must meet three requirements before he attacks the task at hand, he says.

First, it must benefit the city. Second, it must promote the growth and development of the region. And third, it must be the right thing to do.

“I am proud of what we have accomplished and I know what we are doing is the right thing to do,” Bray said.

Councilmembers also heard reports from Brian Carter, Mount Vernon Chief of Police.

Carter said his department had 417 calls for service in August. Of those calls, 32 were for vehicle accidents and there were 38 total arrests and 31 drug charges. The department gave out 25 traffic violations and served 21 warrants with 4 D.U.I.s and 10 grand jury indictments.

Mount Vernon Fire Chief David Bales told the council his department made 25 runs in August and used 5,500 gallons of water.

The department also worked 13 vehicle accidents, two vehicle fires and four brush fires.

All American Club Coordinator Wayne Bullock said his club picked up 10 bags of trash in Mount Vernon, which is slightly less than a normal month.

Mayor Mike Bryant also signed a proclamation designating October as Roadside Pride Month in Mount Vernon.

Mayor Bryant also gave accolades to City Administrator Josh Bray for his Kentucky League of Cities recognition as City Employee of the Year. “I nominated Josh for the award and I can say that it could not come to a more deserving city employee,” the mayor said.

are also actively seeking a new gas pipeline through the county and I-75 is currently under improvements through the county even as several other local roads are being considered for widening projects.

Officials also say there are possible plans for a new access road in Rockcastle County between the two exits which officials say would provide an opportunity for many new businesses to locate in the county.

And through it all, the City of Livingston is keeping up.

The new Family Dollar Store in the town plans to open their doors today (Thursday) and hold an official Grand Opening ceremony sometime in October.

The city widened and restructured sidewalks through the town this year and now the Marathon Station is about to begin construction in the city limits.

“They have already begun the site work and we are trying to open the station before winter this year,” said Livingston Mayor Jason Medley.

The only officially designated “Kentucky Pride” city in the state, Livingston is also an official Trail Town depending upon tourism for a portion of the city’s growth. Medley says the new Marathon station will be a big help in that area.

“The Family Dollar store has greatly helped provide convenience for our residents and tourists,” said Medley. “And now the Marathon Station will be a huge addition to our community.”

Medley said the convenience of the two new businesses will have a strong impact on residents. “No more driving out of town for a gallon of milk or a loaf of bread,” he said. “It is so much more convenient to simply run to the store.”

In addition, Medley says this convenience keeps Livingston money in Livingston circulating locally. “These new businesses also provide local jobs and a tax base that can help our community,” he said.

The city has now also adopted a 1% occupational tax in the City of Livingston.

The Marathon station is expected to open before winter and Medley says he could not be more pleased with that plan. “The sooner, the better,” he said. “This is another step in being more attractive to new residents as well as for tourists.”

Medley says the county, and the cities within the county, are all growing and Livingston is proud to be a part of that growth. “This is an exciting time in our county and in Livingston,” he said. “Having an everyday convenience such as the Family Dollar and the Marathon station, is vital to growth and development.”

each other’s vision and work so well together to make big things happen,” he said.

Medley started his presentation by saying “Livingston was a victim of highway robbery,” to the full house in the conference room.

Medley said when I-75 was first created, it took business and growth away from Livingston since travelers no longer had to go through the town. “People stopped coming to Livingston like they did before the big highway was put in.”

The town continued to grow smaller he says. Medley says even the water connections during his stint as mayor have dropped from 186 to 165.

However, the new Family Dollar store is about to open and a new Marathon station is under construction now. The city has also improved sidewalks and has become a Trail Town and a Kentucky Pride Town in the past few years.

“These two new projects are the biggest in Livingston in 60 years,” he said. “Since I-75 came through. And as soon as these are finished, we are going to start another project.”

The city commissioners recently approved a 1% occupational tax to help the city grow. “Keep in mind, these two new businesses will give us about 25 taxable jobs for this new occupational tax and that will bring our total taxable jobs to about 30,” he said. “So as you can see, this is a big deal for us.”

Medley talked about his plans to leave public office, before the two new businesses decided to locate in Livingston “I wasn’t planning to run for Mayor again and thought I had hit a wall and done all I could do,” he said. “Just then, a real estate man walked into my barber shop talking about a Family Dollar Store. God has perfect timing.”

And now Medley says the growth is contagious. “We are hoping to have Boone Gap Outfitters locate in our town and we have another business interested in coming as well,” he said. “If we can find a place for them to locate.”

Medley talked about plans to upgrade the sewer system and beautification projects and bringing more tourist dollars to the community. “Tourism is the number one business in the county. But it’s number two in Kentucky,” he said. “If we keep going in the direction we are headed, we will need every ounce of our sewer system,” he said.

Mount Vernon Mayor Mike Bryant then addressed the crowd concerning the past year in his city.

“I can tell you, we are the envy of other communities in our ability to work together,” Bryant said. “I am excited for the friendship and collaboration between all three cities, the county, RCIDA, the school system and others who work so well together.”

Bryant agreed that his faith plays a part in his city’s growth as well as the county’s growth. “I’m not afraid to say part of the reason we work so well together is that we are all Christians and we have similar visions for our community. I truly believe we have divine favor in our community.”

Bryant talked about many projects throughout Mount Vernon as well as growth that he is expecting very soon. “We can’t say who yet, but we are expecting another business coming very soon with a $24 million net profit business per year. Our growth is mushrooming and building constantly,” he said.

Bryant also addressed the local drinking water and continues to assure everyone that the problem with taste and odor is now being stopped.

“We are assured that this new project will permanently fix the drinking water problem. There will always be ‘naysayers’ but it is getting done right now,” he said.

Bryant also listed accomplishments the city has made in the past few years and touched on several improvement projects planned for the Lake Linville Campground in the near future.

Judge/Executive Holbrook then addressed the crowd concerning projects throughout the county.

Holbrook listed countless improvements and development in the county and listed many grants received in the past year for county projects.

Holbrook focused on county infrastructure plans and the many events the county helps sponsor throughout the year. He also discussed the proposed Highway 461 widening project as well as the possibility of widening the highway from McDonalds to I-75.

The first-year Judge/Executive also addressed plans for upgraded emergency response networking as well as optic fiber upgrades in the county courthouse in order to broadcast fiscal court meetings online.

Holbrook also discussed many county roads that he hopes to see upgraded and repaired as well as the Microfoodery plant, bicycle routes, new vehicles for jail staff and the road department, Brothead Fairgrounds, and many other projects.

Chamber of Commerce President Steve McKinney ended the ceremony with accolades to all local officials. “It is clear to see that each of these people have put their lives into their city and their county,” said McKinney. “We can all be very proud of our community because of the hard work and passion of these people you see before you.”

nity enough for supporting our Hunger Walk and the food that was donated to Grateful Bread is greatly appreciated.”

Arrahlyn Richards, fifth grade class president from Roundstone Elementary School, was one of the event’s speakers. “Hunger looks like my neighbor, the kid on my bus, the kid on my basketball team, my best friend, or the kid next to me at the lunch table,” she said. “Hunger does not care where you live, where you go to school, what sports you play, what clothes you wear, or what car you drive. Hunger affects so much of our world and our community.”

Landon Reppert, a student from Rockcastle County Middle School (RCMS), reminded attendees of the statistics that illustrate why the annual Hunger Walk is needed. “In Kentucky, 1 in 6 adults and 1 in 5 children struggle with putting food on the table,” he said. “That means 20 percent of kids at school in our state struggle with hunger.” Seventy-six percent of students at RCMS qualify for free or reduced lunch, which enables the entire school to qualify for free lunch and breakfast for everyone.

Grateful Bread Food Pantry is doing its part to meet needs in the community. Every week, Christian Appalachian Project employees and volunteers pack 104 weekend food backpacks that are distributed through Rockcastle County Schools. Additionally, in the last fiscal year, CAP distributed 35,000 pounds of food each month to families through the food pantry and to elderly individuals through commodity distribution.

In Rockcastle County the food insecurity rate is 16.4 percent or 2,790 people in the community who have issues with hunger. The number of children in the county who suffer with hunger issues is estimated to be 950: nearly one-fourth of the children under the age of 18.

“These are our neighbors, friends, people who sit beside us in class or church, people we pass by every day,” said Luke Peavie, president of the Rockcastle County High School Honors Club. “It is our responsibility as a community to support each other. Encourage your church to have food drives for the Grateful Bread Food Pantry, if you know someone in need, refer them to Grateful Bread, and volunteer at the pantry when you can.”

Shane Baker, field representative from the Office of the Governor, has become a regular supporter of the Hunger Walk. He recounted his interaction with his wife, an elementary school teacher, who was concerned about how many of her students were not eating over the weekend and regularly purchased food to provide to them. “You are doing just what she does to help other children, to share the love of God. If each of us can do our part, we can overcome the challenges we face as a society. I am thankful to see the effort you have made today to help meet that need.”

This year, Rockcastle County Schools held a food drive the week prior to the Hunger Walk. Those items, along with non-perishable food items brought on the day of the walk, totaled 3,521 pounds of food. In addition, CAP hosted a Virtual Hunger Walk which allowed supporters outside of Rockcastle County to give to help the pantry. That effort raised an additional $7,846.

The 2019 Hunger Walk was cosponsored by the City of Mt. Vernon, Rockcastle County Schools, and Berea Wal-Mart. Among the walkers were Mike Bryant, mayor of Mt. Vernon; Hal Holbrook, Rockcastle County Judge Executive; and Kenny Fields, manager of the Berea Wal-Mart.

Thacker lost for season to ACL injury

Rockets get second win with 41-14 beat down of Adair Co.

The Rockcastle Rockets earned their second win of the season Friday night, defeating the Adair County Indians 41-14, but it came at a high cost, the loss of senior captain running back Josh Thacker, on the third play of the game.

According to Head Coach Scott Parkey, it was confirmed Monday that Thacker suffered a torn ACL and will be out for the season. About the injury, Parkey said, "He (Josh) played for things bigger than himself. I hope the fans appreciate that and let him know they appreciate his efforts at RCCHS."

To begin the game, Adair kicked off to the Rockets and sophomore Reese Coguer made an impressive return of the ball to Adair County's 47. It was third and 7 for the Rockets when Thacker took the ball 21 yards to Adair's 23 for the first down and was injured on that play.

The Rockets didn't convert on that drive, letting

Adair take over on downs on their one yard line. However, on Adair's first play from scrimmage, they fumbled the ball and junior Drew Mink recovered for the Rockets on the five yard line. On the next play, senior Zach Taylor went over for the score. Junior Mitchell Buckner's extra point kick was good and the Rockets were up 7-0.

Adair started their drive from their own 46 and, on their first play, again fumbled the ball in the backfield and junior Isaiah Didelot recovered the fumble on Adair's 43. The Rockets had to surrender the ball on downs to Adair but had gotten the ball back and were on the move again when the first quarter ended.

Two plays into the second quarter, sophomore Matthew Chasteen went over for the touchdown from the four yard line and then took the ball in for the two extra points making it 15-0 Rockcastle.

It didn't take long for the Rockets to light up the scoreboard again. Following an unsuccessful series of downs by Adair, the Rockets took over on Adair's 46. Taylor picked up a first down on the next play to Adair's 18 and, on the next play, quarterback Noah Parkey scampered in for the third touchdown of the night for the Rockets. Buckner's extra point kick was good and it was 22-0 Rockets. The Rockets and Indians then swapped possessions to end the first half.

The Rockets had to kick to the Indians to begin the second half and Adair began play from their 37 but had to punt the ball away. The Rockets began from their own 40 and a face mask against the Indians helped them keep the drive alive.

A 27 yard pass from Parkey to Drew Mink, gave the Rockets a first and goal on Adair's five yard line and Chasteen went in for the session on their own 41 and, two plays later, scored on a 52 yard pass play. The extra point was good and it was 41-14, the final score of the game.

After the game, Parkey said that his offensive line “really played well” and gave a lot of credit to Rylee DeLeon, Chris Whitehead, Caleb Williams, Blaine Rumsey and Austin Tillery, saying they had “their best game as a group.”

Parkey also said he was happy with the guys who stepped in as runners for Josh, singling out Mink and Chasteen who he said “really got their feet wet.” About these two players, Parkey went on to say, “Mink has some growing with his vision while running from the running back position. Chasteen has done it his whole life. We have eased him into the offense so as to not put too much on him early in his varsity career. Starting as a freshman at linebacker is a very demanding task and we wanted to limit his offense last year due to that. This year, we have been easing him into a bigger role. With the loss of Josh, he is going to be asked to contribute much more, and more quickly.”

As to his quarterback, Parkey said “Noah had another great game running the ball. We didn’t pass as much this week, due to our need to really establish the run game with the offensive line. But, the passes he did throw were on target. He continues to improve in that phase each week.”

As to his defense, the coach said, “Defensively, it was our best game to date. The front seven guys did an outstanding job of containing the run and forcing Adair to do things they were not comfortable with. Our secondary, aside from two plays also played really well. The improvement that comes from game experience is very evident and will only continue to get better as we roll into district play.”

The Rockets match up with the Estill County Engineers, at home, this Friday night and the coach gave his opinion of the team, saying, “Estill County is a solid team. They have some huge linemen and a very good running back to run behind them. Their defense is good against the run as well. Our main thing, going through the week and into the game, is to not get distracted by the festivities surrounding homecoming and Hall of Fame Night. EC’s team can flat out embarrass us if we do not focus on our preparation. Looking forward to being back home in front of a big crowd for this district matchup!”

Marty Brown coming to the Hall of Fame

Recording Artist, Marty Brown, is back after a long hiatus from country music.

Earlier this year, Brown signed a recording contract with Plowboy Records in Nashville, Tennessee, and in May, he released his first album in twenty-five years, American Highway.

Many of Marty's fans from the '90s remember him from the MCA days with songs like High and Dry, Cryin', Lovin', Leavin', and Wild Kentucky Skies.

Brown also wrote for HighTone Records releasing one of his most critically acclaimed songs, Here's To the Honkytonks.

Brown's feature story in Rolling Stone Magazine referred to him as, "Too country for country music," prompting the songwriter to write the groovy classic for Tracy Byrd, "I'm from the country and I like it that way."

Brown recently received his 5 Million Airplay Award from BMI for his hit on Tracy Byrd. Nashville Songwriters Association International also awarded him first place in their Contemporary Country Music Category for a song he wrote for Martina McBride called, "She's Forgotten How to Fly."

Brown's audition on America's Got Talent Season 8 with his heartfelt rendition of the Bob Dylan classic,

Make You Feel My Love, catapulted him back to the stage.

This audition went viral on the internet receiving over 12 million online views and started his latest tour of America from Coast to Coast. He has also played the Grand Ole Opry four times in the last year.

In typical Marty Brown fashion, Brown has penned all of the songs on his new album, and he will be performing them acoustically in an intimate setting at the Kentucky Music Hall of Fame on Friday, October 4, 2019, at 7 pm.

Tickets for Marty's show and album release party are available for purchase at www.kentuckymusichalloffame.com.

A salute to first responders

Dear Editor,
On some anniversaries we celebrate. On others we reflect.

The 18th Anniversary of the attack on America and New York's World Trade Center is one of the times for reflection. There is truly nothing to celebrate in the extraordinary tragedy of 9/11.

As much as I would like to forget some of them, the images from that day will never be out of my mind, nor will the victims and their families.

But there is one memory I want to hold on to, one that I want to cherish as the deepest and most lasting of September 11, 2001. It is the memory of the heroism and selflessness demonstrated by law enforcement officers, firefighters and emergency medical technicians, who went about their business that day without concern for their own safety and without consideration for the magnitude of what they were confronting.

I suppose the term 'first responders' was around before 9/11 but I can't remember ever hearing or using it before then. It caught on with me because it succinctly and accurately captures not only what these public servants do, but it says something about who they are.

They are people willing to respond, without question or hesitation, when our community needs them. Men and women willing to make someone else's emergency or crisis their own and to put their lives on the line doing it.

If that doesn't deserve our respect, nothing does.

I am not sure where the tradition of delivering a desert to first responders on the anniversary of 9/11 started in our company, but I'm glad it did. It started out of someone's caring and appreciative heart and spread from employee to employee and location to location until stores all over Kentucky and Tennessee were involved.

No one ever imagined that taking a meal to first responders, as a way of showing our appreciation, would turn out to mean so much to the people in our company. As more and more people and locations became involved, a simple gesture became an annual Salute to First Responders.

The way we show our appreciation differs from community to community and location to location, but everyone involved knows they have the support and encouragement of our company.

Using the 9/11 anniversary as an opportunity to refresh and rekindle our feelings for first responders is a good thing. It's a simple but meaningful way to say "Thank you First Responders. We salute you."

What does QPR mean? QPR stands for question, persuade, and refer. The 3 simple steps anyone can learn to help save a life from suicide. Just as people trained in CPR and the Heimlich Maneuver help save thousands of lives each year, people trained in QPR learn how to recognize the warning signs of a suicide crisis and how to question, persuade, and refer someone to help. Each year, thousands of Americans like you are saying yes to saving the life of a friend, colleague, sibling, or neighbor.

What is a Gatekeeper? According to the Surgeon General's National Strategy for Suicide Prevention (2001), a gatekeeper is someone in a position to recognize a crisis and the warning signs that someone may be contemplating suicide. Gatekeepers can be anyone, but include parents, friends, neighbors, teachers, coworkers, and many others who are strategically positioned and refer someone at risk of suicide.

Each participant will be given a pocket sized reference booklet to keep to assist them if faced with a person in a suicide crisis. This booklet is provided free of charge and has mental health contact numbers for each region of our state.

Big changes for 2019 celebration

RCHS celebrates homecoming

Submitted by Rockcastle County High School Student Council

Rockcastle County High School is celebrating Homecoming 2019 this week with the theme of "Rock of Ages": A Celebration of 5 Decades at the Rock!

For weeks, the RCHS administration, student council, and Rocket Club have been working to change some aspects of Homecoming.

According to RCHS Principal, JD Bussell, "Our hope is that this will grow into an event that our teachers, students, alumni, and community all can enjoy and see as a celebration we look forward to together".

One of the largest changes for 2019 is the selection process and awarding of Homecoming Queen. This year, the title will also come with a $500 scholarship provided by the RCHS Student Council.

Student council members are: Kylee Fain, Autumn King, Jaelyn Chadwell, Alexa Bussell, Kerrigan Medley, Erica Pigg, Haley Thacker, Gary Ramsey, Emma Ballinger and Bailey Bullock.

Nearly 30 girls in the senior class applied for the honor. A committee of local alumni worked to evaluate these applications, which included an essay about school spirit, and narrowed the field to eight finalists—the 2019 Homecoming Court.

Those eight finalists are Aden Amburgey, Jaelyn Chadwell, Cynthia Wells, Autumn King, Jaylon Ponder, Selicity Broaddus, Kristen Taylor and Kaylee Brock.

The Homecoming Queen will now be selected through an interview process and student body vote, each counting as fifty per cent of the total score. The winner will be announced at halftime of the football game on Friday night.

Homecoming Week at RCHS has consisted of Spirit Days ranging from "Throwback Tuesday" to "Camo Day" on Thursday.

There will also be a Powder Puff football game Friday afternoon where the senior and freshman girls will take on the juniors and sophomores. This will be followed by a pep rally to end the week.

Students are encouraged to start their game festivities on Thursday night with $1 student tickets to the RCHS volleyball game against Pulaski County at RCHS.

They will also have opportunities to tailgate at the game Friday night, where the UNITE Club of RCHS will be hosting events for RCHS students ranging from music and food to games and giveaways.

Students will also be sending off their Rockets to the game against Estill County with their inaugural "Rocket Launch" walk to the famous field spirit line.

RCHS alumni and community are asked to wear white on Friday to work to support Homecoming Week but are asked to remember that the game theme for Friday night is a PINK OUT.

Fans are asked to wear pink in conjunction with Rockcastle Regional Hospital to help to continue to

At Renfro Valley

Jenny Robbins honored at annual Alumni Show

The annual Renfro Valley Alumni Show was held Labor Day Weekend on the old stage at Renfro Valley, and comments from audience members clearly indicated a successful and entertaining Show. With four bands and multiple individual performers, it was the longest Alumni Show ever presented.

During the Show, Kathee Staton, the Barndance Alumni Coordinator, presented a special award to Jenny Robbins for her "many years of professional representation of the State of Kentucky and Renfro Valley during her long musical career". Jenny, a Rockcastle County native, was introduced on stage by John Lair, the founder of the Renfro Valley Barndance, at an early age probably the youngest singer ever chosen by Mr. Lair to perform on the stage at Renfro Valley. Following a long career at Renfro, Jenny was off to Nashville where she was represented by the Wilburn Brothers, appeared on The Grand Old Opry, recorded songs, and a big win for Jenny was being nominated for "Female Vocalist of the Year" next to Reba McIntire. Jenny has had a long career in country music and has certainly represented Kentucky and Renfro Valley well in the Country Music field.

The House Band from Ohio, Butch Jones & The Standard Country Time Band, opened the Show and introduced a new singer with the Band, Jessica Haddix of Ohio, who was accompanied by her father, both of whom are members of the HaddixFamily Band in Ohio. Local musician and alumni member, Phillip Doan & The Just In Time Band were, as always, a hit with the audience; alumni member Mark Poe & The All American Bluegrass Band returned to appear on the Show, and a guest Country/Rock band, Mike Gabbard & Thunder Bay, also performed. In addition to the four bands, individual entertainers included Charlie Napier, Swany Cornett, Avery Bradshaw, Leighanne Cooper, Jenny Robbins, Doug Morgan, Gwen Flannery, and Kathee Staton. A very special guest, Caden Napier, was introduced for the first time on the stage and received accolades from the audience as a very talented, rising young musician. Alumni members Pete Stamper, Betty Lou York, and John Cosby were physically unable to attend this year's Show. They were mentioned and prayers requested for each of them.

The Standard Country Time Band will return to perform on Renfro Valley's 80th Birthday Celebration scheduled for Friday evening, November 1st, at 8 p.m. Also appearing with the Band will be Jessica Haddix and Caden Napier. Kathee Staton will emcee the special Show and, during the Show, Pete Stamper, Charlie Napier, and Kathee will be discussing the early days of Renfro Valley with the audience. Tickets to this special Show are $27.50 each and can be reserved by calling the Renfro Ticket Office at 800/765-7464 or 606/256-2664. Following the Show, cake and drinks will be served in the Country Store for audience members and the performers. Mark your calendars now for this wonderful event and join the Renfro Valley staff and entertainers to celebrate Renfro Valley's 80th Birthday.

Mamaw's Kitchen

By Regina Poynter Hoskins

CROCK POT BEEF ROAST WITH VEGGIES

1 to 2 pounds little potatoes
1 pound baby carrots
1 onion, sliced
1/2 teaspoon sea salt
1/2 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
3 pounds boneless beef chuck roast
1 teaspoon flour
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
1 tablespoon A1® steak sauce, optional
1 can (about 14 ounce) beef broth

Put vegetables in bottom of slow cooker. Salt and pepper meat, then place in slow cooker on top of vegetables. Mix flour, Worcestershire sauce, and A1® steak sauce in beef broth. Pour over beef and vegetables in slow cooker. Cover and cook on HIGH 5 to 6 hours or LOW 8 to 10 hours.

CROCK POT GREEN BEAN CASSEROLE

2 cans (about 11 ounces each) cream of mushroom soup
3 cans (14.5 ounces each) green beans, drained
1/3 cup milk
1 can (6 ounce) French fried onions
Gently mix together soups, drained green beans, and milk until well blended. Spray crock pot lightly. Pour green bean mixture into crock pot and spread evenly. Cover and cook on low for 2 to 3 hours. Sprinkle French fried onions on top before serving

CROCK POT CINNAMON ROLL CASSEROLE

2 cans (12-ounces each) cinnamon rolls, cut into quarters
4 eggs
1/2 cup heavy whipping cream
4 tablespoons maple syrup
2 teaspoons vanilla
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon nutmeg
Spray the inside of your slow cooker dish with non-stick cooking spray or rub butter on bottom and sides. Place enough of cinnamon roll pieces in a layer to completely cover the bottom of your slow cooker. Set aside the icing packets. Beat eggs in a small bowl. Mix together the heavy cream, maple syrup, vanilla, and spices until blended well;

add to the eggs and mix all together. Pour entire mixture evenly over the layer of cinnamon rolls in the slow cooker. Spread the remaining cinnamon roll pieces evenly over the top and spoon one packet of icing over rolls. Cover and cook on low for 2 and 1/2 hours or until sides are golden and rolls are set. Switch heat setting to warm if not serving immediately. Drizzle remaining icing packet over top and serve warm. Enjoy!

Moving Forward

Daddy, I look forward to the day I can throw these crutches down and walk all by myself. So the story goes of the little boy whose fall left him damaged, so that he had to use crutches to get around. The little boy couldn't wait to finally throw the crutches down and walk on his own. For this to take place it was going to take several things. 1 God's help. 2. Desire and determination. 3. Medicine. 4. Exercise. 5. Encouragement. These things are vital for a steady recovery.

As a newborn child of God, we are like a newborn babe, in need of much help. As a babe we have to have food for growth and protection. We looked at the physical things for growth, now let's compare those to our spiritual growth, which is much more important.

God's help is there for the weights that bind us. Matthew 7:7 Ask and it shall be given you, seek and ye shall find, knock and it shall be opened unto you. God has that which he will release to those who are in sin, to help them grow, so they no longer offend God. Paul speaks about it as, the word of reconciliation 2 Corinthians 5:19. It shows how we are brought to God, through His word. God also allows us to know through His word how to rid ourselves of those things that can destroy us 2 Corinthians 4:5-7.

2. Many in the medical field will tell you it is just as important that the patient wants good health as is the doctor who prescribes medicine or surgery and exercise for the patient. I think we all know people who go to the doctor but are not willing to do what the doctor tells them they must do in order to have good health. We have to follow the doctor's orders to have good physical health, we have to follow the Lord Jesus Christ to have great spiritual health. Paul writes Philippians 3:16 I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus. Having the right desire has a whole lot in doing the right thing. We have to look at sin as a disease, just the way we look at cancer or heart problems, when we conquer our sins one by one it is a victory, for the people of God. Just like a cancer survivor, or someone else who was physically sick but now they are well.

3. One way we grow the Apostle Paul writes in Philippians 4:8-9 Filling our minds with things that are pure, clean, honest, things of a good report. Sin really looks ugly when we fill our hearts with things that are pure.

4. We find the people of old Hebrews 11:6 Desired a better country. This for sure is a motivating factor for those who are children of God. 1 Corinthians 2:9 Eye hath not seen, nor can we imagine the wonderful things God has in store for those who love him.

I hope by reading these words it encourages you to grow and understand, to enter into Heaven when this life is over, we must be moving upward in our life everyday to receive the prize, that is waiting for those who faithfully serve the Lord.

Thank you as always for reading this article. I pray this week finds you with the things you need and that you give God thanks for your blessings. Remember our services and remember you are always welcome at our services at the Chestnut Ridge Church of Christ at Mt. Vernon, Ky.
